An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and Throat and Lung, Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative power in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. SHERAR, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, New York.

WILMINGTON MARKET

DURING WEEK

ENDING DECEMBER 2.

THE attention of all persons interested is called to the fact that strict personal attention is given to the collection of the necessary information, and the careful preparation of our MARKET REPORT, so as to give a correct general review of transactions and prices, for the week ending each Tuesday morning.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—Market very weak on Wednesday last at 39 cents; on Friday price fell to 37 cents (a few casks sold at 35½ cents); on Saturday market rallied and sales were made successively at 37, 38 and 39 cents; Monday the market was dull and drooping. At close of our report on Tuesday the market was unsettled and nothing done.

ROSIN—Strained and Good Strained held to previous quotations on Wednesday and Friday, with market dull; on Saturday prices fell to $1 30 for both qualities; Monday nominally same but market dull.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—In this article there have been frequent changes. On Wednesday prices paid were at $1 50 and $2 50 for Hard and Yellow Dip respectively; on Thursday an advance of five cents was obtained on each quality; Friday first lots were sold at last prices named, but the demand ran figures up to $1 65 for Hard and $2 65 for Yellow Dip, and later to $2 75 on latter quality; Saturday and since $1 50 and $2 50 respectively; Tuesday price not settled at our close.

TAR—Tranquil and unchanged throughout.

COTTON—Throughout the market has been firm at 11¼ cents for Middling, with considerable activity; on Tuesday steady but hardly so firm.

CORN—No special change to note.

TIMBER—Sales 1 raft Common Mill $5; 1 do. Fair Mill at $6 50; 2 rafts Good Mill at $8 50.

WHOLESALE PRICES.

☞ These quotations represent the wholesale prices.

ARTICLES.	PRICES.
BACON—Western Smoked—
Hams	10 a 12
Sides, per lb	0 a 7½
Shoulders	a 6½
Dry Salted—
Sides, per lb	0 a 7½
Shoulders	0 a 6
CHEESE—Northern Factory, per lb	0 a 11
Dairy, cream per lb	00 a 14½
State, per lb	00 a 10
COFFEE—Rio, per lb	13 a 18
Laguayra, per lb	18 a 20
CORN MEAL—per bush in sacks	7½ a 77½
DOMESTICS—Sheetings, 4-4, per yd	a 6½
Yarn, per bunch	00 a 85
FLOUR—Fine, per bbl	0 00 a 5 00
Super, Northern, per bbl	5 50 a 6 00
Extra do. " per bbl	6 25 a 6 50
Family " per bbl	7 50 a 9 00
City Mills Extra Super, per bbl	0 00 a 7 25
" Family, per bbl	0 00 a 7 75
" Extra do., per bbl	0 00 a 8 25
GLUE—per lb	6 a 14
GRAIN—Corn, in sacks, per 56 lbs from store—white	72½ a 77½
CORN, wholesale, in sacks	68 a 72½
Corn, mixed, wholesale in sacks	65 a 67½
Corn, Cargo, per 56 lbs, bulk	57½ a 62
Oats, per bushel from store	00 a 60
Peas, Cow, per bushel	65 a 70
HOOP IRON—per ton	00 a 90 00
LARD—Northern, per lb	8½ a 10
North Carolina, per lb	10 a 11
LIME—per bbl	0 00 a 1 00
MOLASSES—West Indies, old crop	33 a 36
" " bbls	35 a 38
" " new crop	35 a 37
" " bbls	37 a 39
New Orleans	28 a 50
Sugar House, hhds, per gal	23 a 24
" " bbls., per gal	00 a 25
Syrup, bbls., per gal	40 a 55
NAILS—Cut, 4d to 20d, per keg	00 a 3 70
OILS—Kerosene, per gal	13½ a 15
Lard, per gal	1 00 a 1 10
PEANUTS—per bushel	80 a 1 10
PORK—Northern, City Mess	12 00 a 12 50
SALT—Alum, per bag of 2 bushels	00 a 00
Alum, per ton	6 00 a 7 00
Liverpool, per sack	80 a 85
Liverpool fine, per sack	0 00 a 1 75
SUGAR—Cuba, per lb	8½ a 10½
Porto Rico, per lb	0 a 7½
A—Coffee, per lb	0 a 11
B— " per lb	9 a 11½
C— " per lb	9 a 9½
Ex. C— per lb	0 a 9½
Crushed, per lb	00 a 11½
SOAP—Northern, per lb	5 a 7
Crampton's N. Y. Palm Soap, per box 100 lbs., ½ bars	0 00 a 4 20
TIMBER—Shipping, per M	12 00 a 18 00
Mill Prime, per M	9 00 a 11 00
Mill Fair, per M	6 50 a 8 50
Inferior to Ordinary, per M	3 00 a 5 00

SUDDEN CHANGES OF THE WEATHER often cause Pulmonary, Bronchial and Asthmatic troubles. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" will allay irritation, which induces coughing, oftentimes giving immediate relief.

25c. buys a pair of Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners and make a boot or shoe last twice as long.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

SALT! SALT! SALT!

21,000 Sacks now on way from England, and daily expected, consisting of Fine Table Salt, 224 lbs and 150 lbs, in white twilled sacks, 150 lbs in Dundee stripe sacks. Liverpool Ground Alum Salt, in new striped sacks, from 150 to 200 lbs. Send for quotations delivered at your depot.
Apply at WILLARD'S,
No. Water st., Wilmington, N. C.
dec 3 621-tf

Molasses! Molasses!

CUBA, SELECTED CUBA, PORTO RICO, NEW Orleans in Hhds, Tierces or Barrels, at
WILLARD'S.
dec 3 621-tf

FIRST EDITION, 103,000.

So rapidly are orders increasing for the DECEMBER SCRIBNER that it is thought the first edition of 103,000 will not supply the demand. One cause of the recent increase in circulation, by which 100,000 November Numbers were sold in two weeks, is undoubtedly due to the growing interest in the two serials, Henry James, Jr.'s, "Confidence," and Geo W. Cable's NOVEL OF NEW ORLEANS LIFE, "The Grandissimes." The latter, begun in November, promises to be among the strongest works of fiction that have appeared in American literature. The December number also includes TWENTY POEMS BY AMERICAN WOMEN, comprising verse by many of our most prominent women writers; "Two Visits to Victor Hugo," by H. H. Boyesen, with a large portrait engraved by Cole; an illustration of the Johns Hopkins University; a paper by Burroughs on "Nature and the Poets;" "THE NEW CAPITOL AT ALBANY," it is thought, the first completely illustrated description yet published—in eighteen pages and with twenty-three drawings; "SUCCESS WITH SMALL FRUITS," the second of E. P. Roe's valuable papers, profusely illustrated, and an article on "Coffee Culture in Brazil"—an industry of world-wide interest, described from personal observation. "THE REIGN OF PETER THE GREAT," By EUGENE SCHUYLER, will begin in the February number. The illustrations for the first of this splendid series of Historical Papers are now almost completed, and include several finely engraved reproductions of famous Russian paintings.
Sold, and subscription received, by book and news dealers, at $4 a year, 35 cents a number.
SCRIBNER & CO., New York.

BLYMYER M'F'G CO. BELLS.
Church, School, Fire-alarm, Fine-toned, low-priced, warranted. Catalogue with 1500 testimonials, prices, etc., sent free. Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.
dec 3 621-eow-1y

THOS. A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.
McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.
Practice in all the State and Federal Courts n North Carolina. 598 1y.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
Charlotte, N. C.,
KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will Compete in Prices,
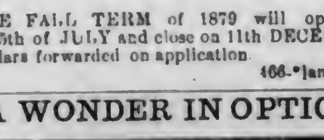
—EITHER—
WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,
With any Market.
All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods
VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.
We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.
BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 185.

SELECT BOARDING
AND
DAY SCHOOL,
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.
Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.
THE FALL TERM of 1879 will open the 25th of JULY and close on 11th DECEMBER. Circulars forwarded on application.
466-*Jan.1.'79

A WONDER IN OPTICS.



A COMPLETE EXHIBITION FOR $13.

READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN
If you like to be satisfied deal with
MOTT & CAMPEN,
—Dealers in—
BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.
We keep on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain our reputation in this regard. We will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,
MOTT & CAMPEN.
North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.
P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult us either by mail or in person.
nov 19 619-tf

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS
MADE TO ORDER.
Send your orders by mail.

An Elegant Holiday Present.—A Gilt Bound Autograph Album, with 48 beautifully engraved pages and 47 select quotations, all for 15c post-paid, Stamps taken. Agents wanted. RAY & CO. West Haven, Ct.
nov 19 619-4t eow

AGENTS. READ THIS
We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.

COTTON!
IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants
For the Sale of Cotton,
Which they are prepared to do
On the Most Economical Charges.
They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.
ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,
Wilmington, N. C.
September 3d, 1879. 608

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.
WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.
Our Trimming Department is Complete,
and comprises the leading styles.
Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.
We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.
Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.
The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.
N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.
nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.
THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the
Latest and Most Approved Style.
To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.
"First Come, First Served."
MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
apl 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.
Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings Machinery of Every Description.
Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.
TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER
The Invention of the Age.
It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape.)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
☞ Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.

FREE 2 Papers and 7 Wonders! Money in them and no mistake. Send 3 names on postal to S. P. HOUSE, Wadsworth, Ohio.
nov 19 619-2t

POWDER! POWDER!
WE ARE AGENTS for THE HAZARD POWDER COMPANY, and keep constantly on hand, their celebrated brands of
KENTUCKY RIFLE POWDER
IN KEGS, HALF KEGS, and QUARTER KEGS.
—ALSO—
Deer Powder and Blasting Powder
WILLARD BROS.
Wilmington, N. C.

PROVERBS.
"The Richest Blood, Sweetest Breath and Fairest Skin in Hop Bitters."
"A little Hop Bitters saves big doctor bills and long sickness."
"That invalid wife, mother, sister or child can be made the picture of health with Hop Bitters."
"When worn down and ready to take your bed, Hop Bitters is what you need."
"Don't physic and physic, for it weakens and destroys, but take Hop Bitters, that build up continually."
"Physicians of all schools use and recommend Hop Bitters. Test them."
"Health is beauty and joy—Hop Bitters gives health and beauty."
"There are more cures made with Hop Bitters than all other medicines."
"When the brain is wearied, the nerves unstrung, the muscles weak, use Hop Bitters."
"That low, nervous fever, want of sleep and weakness, calls for Hop Bitters."
Hop Cough Cure and Pain Relief is Pleasant, Sure and Cheap.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Customers Wanted.
We are now receiving our Fall stock of
DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, BOOTS, SHOES, Groceries, Hardware, COTTON BAGGING, TIES, &c.,
All of which we are offering low.
Highest cash prices paid for COTTON, NAVAL STORES, and all kinds of country produce.
BRYAN & CO.,
Jonesboro, N. C.

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. DR. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.
nov 19 619-13t

CHEESE.
200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,
For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

FALL STOCK.
WE HAVE ON HAND NOW THE LARGEST and most handsome
STOCK OF GOODS
We have ever offered in this market. A thorough examination of our Stock will not only convince you that it is full, but you will find that we can compare styles, qualities and prices with any house in the State. Our stock of
Fancy Dress Goods, Cashmeres and Alpaccas
Is complete, and we are confident we can please any one wanting anything in this line. A full line of Flannels, Repellants, Cassimeres, Jeans, Damasks, Oil Cretonnes, Domestics, &c. We have a very large stock of CLOAKS AND SHAWLS that we will sell very cheap. Our stock of Clothing, Hats and Caps,
Boots and Shoes, Trunks and Valises, is complete, and at prices that will make it to your interest to buy from us. Carpets and Oil Cloths.
T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opp. Charlotte Hotel, Tryon st., Charlotte, N. C. oct 29 616-tf

D^E ROSSET & NORTHROP,
FIRE AND MARINE
INSURANCE AGENTS,
REPRESENTING } Standard American AND English Companies.
28 North Water Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
nov 19 619-tf

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.
LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.
Children's Merino Under Suits—A great comfort and convenience.
CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.
LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.
PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,
In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c, for Circulars.
A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.
OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.
Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.
dec 3 631-1y

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847.) S. W. WHITING.
R. B. ANDREWS & CO.
Men and Boys Extra Large Sizes
CLOTHING, CLOTHING,

Dress Shirts, Cuffs, A Specialty.
TIES, SCARFS, HATS AND CAPS,
Half Hose, Suspenders, A Large Assortment.
Gloves,
Handkerchiefs, Underwear, We give special attention to orders from a distance.
Trunks, Valises, &c. LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.
NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh. N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods
—AT—
M. M. KATZ'S,
36 MARKET STREET.
BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.
Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS. SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.
DRESS GOODS.—Satin Melange, Cashmere Soie, Brocade Persan, Persan Raye, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.
MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Ete, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.
CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS. Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets. The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.
MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c, &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to oct 22 M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

To Sunday Schools.

The Scholars' Quarterly was started in 1876 as a 32 page book. It is now a 46 page book, containing, besides the lesson matter, a colored map, beautiful pictures and appropriate music. It is used in schools of all denominations, throughout the United States and Canada, and a special edition is published each quarter in London, for use in Great Britain. For 1880 it will be greatly improved, and its price reduced.

THE REDUCED PRICE will certainly enable any school to use it. Could there be a better time to begin than at the opening of the new year? It will be sent by mail, without cost of postage to subscribers, at the following rates: Single copy one year (four numbers), 20 cents; 100 copies, one year, 20 dollars; single copies (one quarter), 5 cents each; 200 copies or over to one address, for one school, 18 dollars per hundred, a year; 400 copies or over to one address, for one school, 16 dollars per hundred, a year. Subscriptions are taken for three or six months at the yearly rate. Send five cents for a specimen. Send also for a specimen of the Weekly Lesson Leaf if something cheap and good is wanted.

These publications are issued from the office of The Sunday School Times. Address,
JOHN D. WATTLES, Publisher, 725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Keep this for reference.

RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS!

BOOKS!! BOOKS!!
Sunday School Books! Books of all Publishers!
Approved Books of the Committee of Publication.
The Largest Stock of Sunday School Books in the South. Extra discount given to Sunday Schools on Books of Presbyterian Publishing Company and Presbyterian Committee of Publication.
J. L. SHOTWELL, Agent,
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va.
☞ Please state where you saw this advertisement. apl 23-589-tf

Bagging, Ties and Salt.
1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber.
WILMINGTON, N. C.
Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments. oct 1-3m

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.
THE FALL TERM of 1879 opens Wednesday, AUGUST 27. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks.
Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.
Address MRS. E. N. GRANT, Principal.
feb 20 528-1y

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.
200 Hhds and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., 218 Fulton St. N.Y.
oct 8 413-26t

HALL & PEARSALL
OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of
100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER,
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.
sep 3—608-tf

FOR THE FAMILY.

The Things Unseen.

We babble much of proof—let us talk less;
We can but prove the lesser, lower things—
Things further from us: when God's blessedness
Dwells in us, as the light in dew, it brings
An instant recognition. How should I Stand outside self (one little half within),
With testing rod in hand, with "how" and "why"
On the wise lip, and in this mood begin
To measure out the half of self, and call
The weak result the truth? Does not our need
That clamors most for the Unknown, which Paul Declared at Athens once forever, plead
That, by its strong demand, its tears and cries,
Too near ourselves for proof He ever lies?
—London Spectator.

The History of a Leaf.

A STORY FOR VERY LITTLE FOLKS.

A large maple tree stood alone by the side of the road, not far from a house. It's branches spread out over the road, and in summer made a pleasant shade, where tired men and horses often stopped to rest. But now there was no shade, for it was in early spring-time, and though the branches were dotted with buds, not one leaf had yet made its appearance. Now a gentle shower fell, and through the long day there was a stirring in the heart of one of the buds, and just as the bright sun was sinking to rest, a little leaf emerged from it and took its first survey of the world. It was a very little leaf, all wrinkled and creased with having been folded up so long in the bud; and it was tinged more with red than green, as some kinds of new leaves nearly always are.

When it found itself all alone and unprotected from the cold, it trembled and wished itself safe within the bud again; but just then the branch which supported it espied and thus welcomed it: "Hail! little messenger of spring. You are the first in the train of greenery; but I fear that if Jack Frost makes us a call to-night you will wish you had stayed in until to-morrow."

"And who is Jack Frost?" asked the leaf.

"Do you feel cold?" said the branch, without answering its question.

"Yes, indeed," said the leaf, "I am chilled to my very heart."

"Well, that is because Jack Frost is near us in the air," returned the branch; "and if he really comes here, I fear you will never live to see the morning."

At this the leaf trembled more than ever, but though the frost king kept hovering around in the evening, he did not visit the maple, and at midnight he took his departure—frightened away by a soft, warm shower.

In the morning, when the leaf wakened up, she found herself surrounded by myriads of leaves which looked just as she had looked the evening before, while for herself she found that she was somewhat larger than she was then, and the blush which covered her face was not quite so deep as before.

And now, as she was a little larger than the rest, she began to entertain those nearest her with a history of what had taken place before they had opened their eyes to the light; and in telling of the threatened approach of the frost king, she felt very brave and forgot how she had trembled the night before. The nearest leaves listened for awhile, and then growing tired, allowed her to continue without an audience.

The early summer passed away and left the leaves much changed in appearance. The red tint had left them, and they were now clothed in the brightest verdure and had all grown very much; but our little leaf which came out first was no longer larger than the rest. The refusal of her sisters to allow her to do nearly all the talking had caused her to feel bitterly toward them, and when she found out that some of them were growing faster and had become larger than herself, she became very jealous indeed, and withdrew entirely from their society and occupied herself with watching the travelers as they went whirling by or paused to enjoy the coolness of the shade.

Two little children came there often to play. They built a play-house and carpeted it with moss, furnished it with moss-covered stones for chairs, and beds made of leaves with moss quilts. So, you see, the little leaf had plenty to look at, though it grew very lonely at times for somebody to talk to.

The time wore on until the month of roses came, when one day the two little children were sitting in their play-house, and the little leaf heard one of them say:

"Oh! see that pretty leaf up there, away up high; the one that does not look just like the rest."

This set her to wondering if she were the one meant, and looking around, she found her neighbors all looking as usual, but in herself she saw a change. There was a dash of yellow on one side, and her edges were trimmed with a yellow line. She wondered that she had not noticed it before. She forgot that she had been so busy watching the passengers that she had no time to see anything else, for since she had quarreled with her sisters, her only happiness was in forgetting herself and them; but now when she could again boast of something which they could not, she attempted to renew her intercourse with them.

"See," said she, "what a beautiful color I am getting to be. I think it is much prettier than to be all green, like the rest of you are."

But before any of the leaves could answer, the branch said: "Yes, it is pretty; but it reminds us that autumn is in the future."

"Why does it remind you of autumn?" asked the leaf, trembling, though she hardly knew what she had to fear.

"Oh! that is just the way all the leaves began to look before they fell off in autumn last year," returned the branch.

A great terror struck to the heart of the little leaf, and she was silent. She looked at the ground, as if measuring the distance of her fall, and held on more tightly than ever.

As the days passed on she sat gloomily by herself and thought about the future. One day a man with a little child rode by, and the little fellow wanted some leaves; and because his father could not reach higher to get the branch he wanted, he pouted and would not have the branch he got for him, but threw it down in the road, and there it lay, crushed by whirling wheels, mangled by horses' feet, and the pity of the sister leaves could not restore it to its place or save its life. And as the golden light upon the little leaf deepened, and the line around her edge grew broader, she thought: "I will be just like the other leaves when I fall—the horses will walk over me and the wheels will grind me down into the dust"—and silently she shed many bitter tears as she thought of her fate.

When her sister leaves saw her weeping, they were sorry for her, and would have tried to comfort her; but they remembered how proud she had been, and felt afraid to speak to her. But after awhile, when they saw that she could not stay with them much longer, one of them said: "O, leaf, we will be sorry to have you leave us, but we wish you a pleasant journey;" and the little leaf was so glad to find that the rest were sorry for her that she answered quite pleasantly. The other leaves told her that they too would go upon the same journey soon, that she was only going a little while before the rest, and she began to feel reconciled to going, and could think and talk about the future without grieving.

One day there came a very strong breeze, and the leaf felt that her time had come. So she said "Good-by" to the sister leaves and loosened her hold of the branch, and in a moment she was taken away and all her sisters waved a farewell to her.

The breeze carried her upward and then descending laid her beside one of the moss-covered stones in the play-house, and she was picked up by one of the play-house children, who shouted: "See, sister, what a pretty leaf! We'll take it home for mama to put in her book of dried flowers."

This story of the leaf shows us that it is not only wrong to be proud, but it will make us unhappy too; and that, if we are something which others cannot be, or have something which they haven't, it is not because we are better than they, but only that we have more to be thankful for. And it shows us, too, that if anyone has felt angry towards us, as the little leaf did toward her sisters, we should be willing to forgive and even to forget all about it, and in time of trouble, help with pitying words, if we can do no more.—United Presbyterian.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Lion Tamer's Peril.

Coup's show was at Towanda last week. At the close of the concert an exciting scene occurred, long to be remembered by those present. It is the custom, after the concert is over, to feed the animals in the presence of the audience. The den of Prof. McDonald's performing lions is so constructed by swinging iron gates from the back of the cage that each animal has an apartment to itself while feeding. Everything was secure and the meat placed in position by means of an iron fork, the animals seizing their food and drawing it through the bars of the cage.

After they are done feeding, the gates are again thrown back, leaving them together in harmony. It sometimes occurs that the animal will not devour all the food allotted him, which would be removed before the gates opened, placing them in one department. It is customary in all menageries to omit feeding one day each week. Animals thrive better to fast one day each week. Consequently they are more ferocious and anxious for their food after their twenty-four hours' fasting.

On the day stated, the den was divided in the usual manner, the large African lion "Ned" in one end, the Asiatic lioness in the centre, and the powerful leopard in the other end, and their food provided. "Ned" quickly finished his repast and retired to his corner, seemingly satisfied; the leopard also finished his meal; but the lioness retired to a corner of her apartment, leaving a portion of her meat near the gate which separated her from the leopard.

The attendants neglected to remove the meat which the lioness had left, and opened the gate which separated her from "Ned." Just as the iron gate fell back to its place, the leopard espied the meat near the bars of the centre apartment and sprang to drag it to the gate. "Ned" anticipated this movement, and at the same instant placed his enormous paw on the meat. A terrible struggle ensued. Prof. McDonald was at this time attending to other duties, but was immediately called. All that has ever been necessary before in such an emergency was simply for the Professor to speak, and "Ned" would at once yield to his master. This time, however, he paid no attention to him, and seemed determined to be master himself.

McDonald took the large feeding fork and tried to force the meat from him, but without avail. With the determination that a brave man can place himself in the jaws of death in performing his duty, McDonald made preparations for entering the den, remarking as he did so, "You or I must be master." The moment McDonald closed the door behind him, "Ned" sprang upon him, and with claws extended, struck him a terrible blow in the breast, tearing his vest and shirt, and lacerating his flesh. The blow staggered him to the end of the cage, where he slipped and fell on the greasy floor. An attendant, thinking to assist him, took him by the foot and pulled him near the door, and again "Ned" struck him on the thigh, tearing overalls, pants and underwear, and the flesh in frightful manner.

Children screamed, ladies fainted, and strong men stood paralyzed, with lips compressed and faces white as snow. The only one that was calm and collected was the "Lion King" in his terrible prison. He regained his feet, and with blood flowing from his breast and thigh, his clothing torn into shreds, he stood for a moment looking at his favorite, who had retired again with his meat under his paw. No one can ever forget the look of mingled dignity, pride and affection depicted on his features as he said in an authoritative and loving voice, "Ned, what are you doing? Do you mean to kill me, your best friend?"

It really seems that the "king of the forest" understood every word this man said, and, looking at him for a moment, "Ned" dropped his eyes, and with his paw shoved the meat from him, which said as plain as words could speak, "I surrender." McDonald approached him, and calling for his stool, seated himself beside his "noble friend." "Ned" then licked the blood from his master's wounds.—Towanda Republican.

How Old is Glass?

The oldest specimen of pure glass bearing anything like a date is a little moulded lion's head bearing the name of an Egyptian king of the eleventh dynasty, in the Slade collection at the British Museum. That is to say at a period which may moderately be placed as more than 2000 years B. C., glass was not only made, but made with a skill which shows that the art was nothing new. The invention of glazing pottery with a film or varnish of glass is so old that among the fragments which bear inscriptions of the early Egyptian monarchy are beads, possibly of the first dynasty. Of later glass there are numerous examples, such as a head found at Thebes, which has the name Queen Hatasoo or Hashop, of the eighteenth dynasty. Of the same period are vases and goblets and many fragments. It cannot be doubted that the story preserved by Pliny, which assigns the credit of the invention to the Phœnicians, is so far true that these adventurous merchants brought specimens to other countries from Egypt. Dr. Schliemann found disks of glass in the excavations at Mycenæ, though Homer does not mention it as a substance known to him. That the modern art of the glass blower was known long before is certain from representations among the pictures on the walls of a tomb at Beni Hassan, of the twelfth Egyptian dynasty; but a much older picture, which probably represented the same manufacture, is among the half-obliterated scenes in a chamber of the tomb of Thy, at Sakkara, and dates from the time of the fifth dynasty, a time so remote that it is not possible, in spite of the assiduous researches of many Egyptologers, to give it a date in years.

Some Things Learned by Experience.

If your coal fire is low, throw on a tablespoonful of salt, and it will help it very much. A little ginger put into sausage meat improves the flavor. In icing cakes dip the knife frequently into cold water. In boiling meat for soup use cold water to extract the juice; if the meat is wanted for itself alone plunge in boiling water at once. You can get a bottle or barrel of oil off any carpet or woolen stuff by applying dry buckwheat plentifully and faithfully; never put water to such grease spots, or liquid of any kind. Broil steak without salting; salt draws the juices in cooking; it is desirable to keep these in if possible; cook over a hot fire, turning frequently, searing on both sides; place on a platter, and salt and pepper to taste. Beef having a tendency to be tough can be made very palatable by stewing gently for two hours, with pepper and salt, taking out about a pint of the liquor when half done, and letting the rest boil into the meat; brown the meat in the pot. After taking up make a gravy of the pint of liquor saved. A small piece of charcoal in the pot with boiling cabbage removes the smell. Clean oilcloths with milk and water; a brush and soap will ruin them. Tumblers that have had milk in them should never be put in hot water. A spoonful of stewed tomatoes in the gravy of either roasted or fried meats is an improvement. The skin of a boiled egg is the most efficacious remedy that can be applied to a boil; peel it carefully, wet and apply it to the part affected; it will draw off the matter and relieve the soreness in a few hours.—Scottish-American Journal.

Seeing One's Circulation.

Dr. C. Huter, a German savant of Griefswald, has devised a simple arrangement which demonstrates the circulation of the blood in the human body by making it visible. What is known as Purkinje's experiment previously enabled an observer to witness the circulation in his own retinal blood-vessels; but now, for the first time, can the flow of the vital fluid in one person can be watched by another, and with sufficient accuracy to detect anything abnormal, and to obtain invaluable assistance in the diagnosis of disease. Dr. Huter's method is as follows: The patient's head being fixed in a frame, on which is a contrivance for supporting a microscope and a lamp, his lower lip is drawn out and fixed on the stage of the microscope by means of clips, the inner surface being uppermost, and having a strong light thrown upon it by a condenser. When these preparations are completed all the observer has to do is to bring the microscope to bear on the surface of the lip, using a low-power objective, and focusing a small superficial vessel. At once he sees the endless procession of the blood corpuscles through the minute capillaries, the colorless ones appearing like white specks dotting the red stream. Dr. Huter asserts that from taking careful note of variations in the blood-flow and changes in the corpuscles he has derived great advantages in the treatment of medical cases.—Christian Union.

Traveling Stones.

Many of our readers have doubtless heard of the famous traveling stones of Australia. Similar curiosities have recently been found in Nevada which are described as almost perfectly round, the majority of them as large as a walnut and of an irony nature. When distributed about upon the floor, table or other level surface, within two or three feet of each other, they immediately begin traveling toward a common centre, and there lie huddled up in a bunch like a lot of eggs in a nest. A single stone, removed to a distance of three and a half feet, upon being released at once started off with wonderful and somewhat comical celerity to join its fellows; taken away four or five feet it remained motionless. They are found in a region that is comparatively level and is nothing but bare rock. Scattered over this barren region are little basins from a few feet to a rod in diameter, and it is in the bottom of these that the rolling stones are found. They are from the size of a pea to five or six inches in diameter. The cause of their rolling together is doubtless to be found in the material of which they are composed, which appears to be lodestone or magnetic iron ore.—Christian Union.

The Moment of Fear.

Bonaparte lost four aides-de-camp during the short time he was in Egypt. One of them, Croisier, appearing to Napoleon to lack the proper degree of boldness at the proper moment, he burst out against him in one of his violent and humiliating attacks of abuse and contempt. The word coward escaped him; Croisier determined not to survive it; he sought death on several occasions, but did not succeed till the siege of Acre. He was in attendance on Napoleon in the trenches there, when such a sharp look-out was kept by the garrison that if an elbow or feather showed itself above or beside them, it was immediately grazed by a bullet. Croisier watched his opportunity and jumped upon the platform. "Come down, I command you!" cried Napoleon, in a voice of thunder; but it was too late; the victim of his severity fell at his feet. Murat, the chivalrous braver of all danger, had also his moment of fear, which lost him the countenance of his general until displeasure could no longer resist the brilliancy of his achievements. It was at the siege of Mantua, in the first Italian campaign, that Murat was ordered to charge a body of troops that were making a sortie from the garrison. He hesitated, and in his confusion declared himself wounded; he was removed from the presence of the general and in every way discountenanced. In Egypt he was sent out on the most distant and dangerous services; in short, he more than reconquered his character before the battle of Aboukir, on which occasion Napoleon himself was obliged to declare he was superb. The brave Marshal Lannes one day severely reprimanded a colonel who had punished a young officer for a moment of fear. "That man," said he, "is worse than a poltroon who pretends that he never knew fear."—Scottish-American Journal.

Humorous.

"Silence in the court," thundered a Kentucky judge the other morning. "Half a dozen men have been convicted already without the Court's having been able to hear a word of the testimony."

"Woman is a delusion, madam," exclaimed a crusty old bachelor to a witty young lady. "And man is always hugging some delusion or other," was the quick retort.

Two Irishmen traveling on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad track came to a mile-post, when one of them said, "Tread aisy, Pat. Here lies a man 108 years old. His name was Miles, from Baltimore."

If every pastor were to relate some of his comical experiences in performing the marriage ceremony the public would be greatly amused. We have read of one who was called upon to unite a man to his fourth wife. Approaching the couple, he asked them to rise, and was astonished to receive the reply, "We've usually sot."

SECULAR NEWS.

We are pleased to learn that Chief Justice W. N. H. Smith, of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, has returned in improved health from New York, where he has been under medical treatment.

The Raleigh News says that Moore county can boast of more minerals than any county in the State. It has twenty-eight gold mines, six silver, eight copper and nine or ten iron, and a general assortment of the various other minerals.

Great excitement prevails in Ireland on account of the arrest of Daly and Davitt for treasonable utterances in connection with the anti-rent troubles. One hundred and twenty soldiers were kept under arms and one hundred additional policemen in readiness.

The depot and stables of the Eighth Avenue Railroad Company were destroyed by fire on the 25th ult. One hundred horses were burnt. Five firemen were buried under the walls, but only two were seriously hurt. The loss is $250,000.

The South Carolina Legislature convened on the 15th ult. The session will probably be a short one.

We have never seen greater improvement in a newspaper than that exhibited by the Greensboro Patriot under its new management. It is now one of the best secular newspapers in the State.

The steamer Lake Champlain came in collision with a barque at sea, and sunk her. The crew were saved.

The illhealth of the Empress of Russia is serious. She has been obliged to postpone her journey to Florence.

Relations between Russia and Persia are not now friendly.

Not a Beverage.

"They are not a beverage, but a medicine, with curative properties of the highest degree, containing no poisoning drugs. They do not tear down an already debilitated system, but build it up. One bottle contains more hops, that is, more real hop strength, than a barrel of ordinary beer. Every druggist in Rochester sells them, and the physicians prescribe them."—Rochester Evening Express on Hop Bitters.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS

An Enlarged View of the Pad.

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.

Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs. Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago, Ill.

THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated American
WORM SPECIFIC
OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a knawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE
will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.
—:o:—

DR. C. McLANE'S
LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

INSTITUTE FOR TRAINING OF COLORED MINISTERS
Under the care of the General Assembly.
Located at TUSKALOOSA, ALA.

THE FOURTH SESSION, of ten months, will commence on the 1st day of September next, under the instruction of Rev. D. C. Rankin, Professor, who has the best testimonials of fitness for the work, in his deep interest in the colored people and his past labors in their behalf, his ample scholarship, and his aptness to teach.

All the branches necessary to fit candidates for the Gospel Ministry will be taught. Some acquaintance with the early branches of English will be required for entrance. Candidates must come recommended by their Presbyteries or Committees of Education; and if of other denominations, must have similar credentials.

No charge for tuition. Board can be had on reasonable terms.

C. A. STILLMAN, Superintendent.
July 23 602-tf

Fresh Arrivals.

100 Boxes CREAM CHEESE,
50 Tubs LARD,
10 Tierces Fairbanks' LARD,
100 Boxes SOAP,
100 Boxes POTASH and LYE,
200 Bags SHOT,
BAGGING AND TIES,
10 Tierces good cheap HAMS.
For sale low by
HALL & PEARSALL.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest Selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publishing Co., Phila., Pa. oct 1-8t

Lame Back.
Weak Back.
BENSON'S Capcino Porous Plaster.
This article is one which really possesses extraordinary merit. By consulting reliable physicians in your own locality, you will find that the above is true. It is far superior to the ordinary porus plaster, all the so called electrical appliances, and to all external remedies whatever. It contains entirely new elements which cause it to relieve pain at once, strengthen and cure where other plasters will not even relieve. For Lameness and Weakness of the back, diseased Kidneys, Lung and Chest difficulties, Rheumatism, Neglected Colds, Female Affections, and all local aches and pains, it is simply the best remedy ever devised. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25 Cents.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NOTICE.

BUYERS of Oils will take notice that I am selling
WEST ALADDIN SECURITY OIL
at the low price of 25 cents per gallon. It is absolutely safe, guaranteed 150 deg. Fire test.
PERKINS and HOUSE SAFETY LAMPS, the best Lamp made, and only perfectly safe one, at Factory prices.
Kerosene, Lard, Mineral and Linseed Oils, Paints, Colors, Glass, &c., Low down at
GEO. A. PECK'S.
25 South Front Street.
Jan 15 405-tf

EMPLOYMENT FOR LADIES OR MEN. $50 [illegible] MONTH easily made selling [illegible] new book entitled
The COMPLETE HOME
[illegible] anecdote and wit, holding [illegible] narration of family life. [illegible] extra terms, address J. C. McCURDY & Co., Philadelphia, Pa
July 2 599-12t eow

AGENTS WANTED For the handsomest and CHEAPEST BIBLES Ever furnished Agents. Extra Terms and Large CASH PREMIUMS
FORSHEE & McMAKIN, Cincinnati, O.
oct 8 613-13teow

Sawing off a Log,
Easy and Fast.

Our latest improved sawing machine cuts off a 2-foot log in 2 minutes. A $100 PRESENT will be given to two men who can saw as much in the old way, as one man can with this machine. Circulars sent free. W. GILES, 741 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
nov 19 619 4t cow

DECORATE Your Homes by using Embossed Pictures for Pottery, Scrap Books, etc. [illegible] Designs on hand. Handsome sample package, 10 cents; [illegible] Illustrated catalogue with each order. Stamps taken. Agents wanted. BURT & PRENTICE, 73 Beekman St., N. Y.
nov 19 619-2teow

THE IMPROVED
DEMAS

A turning lathe and bracket saw combined. So low in price as to come within the reach of all. Boxed free and delivered to Express Co. with all extras on receipt of $8.00. The Improved 1880 Holly Scroll Saw, $3.00. Lester, New American, Fleetwood, Dexter, and all leading machines at manufacturers' prices.
Send Stamp for Illustrated Catalogue. Address J. J. WATROUS, 38 Arcade, Cincin'ti, O.
nov 19 619-4teow

TO THE TRADE
—AT—
Low Prices.

400 Boxes D. S. and SMOKED SIDES,
1000 Bdls GRIP TIES,
2000 Bdls ACME TIES,
1000 Bdls PIECED TIES,
1000 Whole and Half Rolls BAGGING,
500 Kegs NAILS,
300 Bales HAY,
500 Bush CORN,
250 Bbls SUGARS,
250 Bags COFFEE,
1000 Bbls FLOUR, following brands: La Rose, Blanche, Jack Frost, Plant's Extra, Paragon, Princess, &c.
WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,
MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,
1879–'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's-day, into two Terms.

The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.

There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:

1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.

A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.

Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.

Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.

For Catalogues and other information apply to
REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D.,
President.
Jan 16-522-

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of
BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,
For the purpose of carrying on a
General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,
AT THE OLD STANDS,
5, 7 and 8, North Front Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.
JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.
Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 8, 1877
oct 10 509.

Salt. Salt.

12,000 SACKS LIVERPOOL SALT.
Ground Alum, 150 to 200 lb Sacks.
Fine Salt 150 lb White Seamless Sacks.
Fine Salt 224 lb White Seamless Sacks.
For sale at WILLARD'S,
No. Water st., Wilmington, N. C.
nov12 618-tf

ALTAFFER & PRICE
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Woodwork and Builder's Hardware.
We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.
Church Windows Doors Pew Ends
CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles.
Factory foot of Walnut St. Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross } Wilmington, N. C.
apl 16 588-1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL.

HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF
Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish,
Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,
COTTON BAGGING and TIES.
☞ We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.
HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
63-ly

BUY THE BEST.

WE HAVE now on hand finished,
35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.
Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.
Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.
A. A. McKETHAN & SONS,
Fayetteville, N. C.
Oct. 21 354-t

W. S. MOORE,
GREENSBORO, N. C.,
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS, MILLINERY,
NOTIONS, GLOVES, TRIMMINGS, &C.
We send our Millinery largely over the State, and into five other States. Butterick's patterns.
Agent for Mason & Hamlin and Waters' celebrated Church and Parlor ORGANS. New at $40 and upwards. $75 to $90 buys a magnificent Organ.
Also Waters' and other new Pianos from $125 up. Warranted five and six years. Send for circulars.
One Mason & Hamlin second-hand small Organ $30—good order and cheap.
oct 30-tf W. S. MOORE.

$2,500 A YEAR.
ACTIVE AGENTS
WANTED in every County, to Canvass our line of fine
PREMIUM FAMILY BIBLES;
ENGLISH and GERMAN, PROTESTANT and CATHOLIC
Comprising nearly 100 different styles, with numerous elegantly Illustrated Explanatory Features.
The most complete, perfect and beautiful line of Bibles ever offered to the American public.
—ALSO ON OUR—
Grand Combination Prospectus
Of 150 Distinct Publications.
Representing Agricultural, Biographical, Historical, Religious and Miscellaneous Works, and Family, Pulpit and Pocket Bibles and Testaments, wanted in every family.
A Novel Feature in Canvassing. Sales made from this Prospectus, when all single books fail.
Also GENERAL and LOCAL AGENTS WANTED ON OUR GREAT WAR BOOK.
The most Comprehensive, Reliable and Accurate History of the late conflict between the RUSSIAN and the TURK, with its 300 elegant Engravings, Maps, and Plans, the most showy, desirable and useful book now published. For Circulars and Liberal terms, address,
JOHN E. POTTER & CO.,
Publishers, Philadelphia.
my 22 504-tf

J. D. McNEEY,
Grocery, Produce & Commission Merchant
AGENT FOR THE SALE OF Fertilizers, Lime, Sawed Shingles, & Mountain Produce
MERCHANDIZE AND COTTON BROKER,
aug 28-tf Salisbury, N. C

JAMES W. JACKSON., BENJAMIN BELL.
JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS, PUBLISHERS,
AND
BOOK BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.
GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.
We are prepared to execute in the very best style,
ALL KINDS OF
JOB PRINTING
SUCH AS

Business Cards,	Statements,	Catalogues,
Visiting Cards,	Handbills,	Manifests,
Wedding Cards,	Posters,	Bills Lading,
Show Cards,	Notices,	Receipts,
Bill Heads,	Checks,	Labels,
Letter Heads,	Notes,	Tags,
Note Heads,	Drafts,	Envelopes,
Account Sales,	School Circulars,	Pamphlets,

and in fact, every description of
RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING
AT THE
LOWEST HARD TIMES PRICES.
We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed.
Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS WANTED For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1,018 Pages, 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & Co., 66 N. 4th St., Phil'a., Pa.
oct 15 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO
[illegible] Golden Tongue Reeds [illegible] $98. New Pianos, Stool, Cover & Book, $143 to $255. [illegible] Illustrated Newspaper sent Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.
oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.
CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
63 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,
would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys, wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.
SAMPLES SENT FREE!
Also, to their
DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.
Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.
All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 12-1y

McMILLAN BROS,
MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN
SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS
15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS
FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.

Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes, Still Doors & Grate bars.
As we have four Copper smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only
Regular and Reliable Establishment
where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing
D. G. McMILLAN, Supt.
feb 12 Fayetteville, N. C.

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.
HAVE FOR SALE.
2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrup.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.
Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.
Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.
Nov. 19 463-ly

ADRIAN & VOLLERS
CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present,
SMOKED BACON,
in hogsheads and boxes,
HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKGS,
Breakfast Strips,
Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,
SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT;
Molasses and Syrup
OF ALL KINDS.
FLOUR of all Qualities,
and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries
nov 19 551-12m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
36 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md.
Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies, &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c. mch 28 461-ly

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES
OF THE
GENERAL ASSEMBLY,
OF THE
Presbyterian Church in the United States.

THE CLERKS.
Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D., Richmond, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.
President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq., Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.
Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md.

PUBLICATION.
Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va.
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION.
Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D.D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn.

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS.
1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January.
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September.
6. Education—First Sabbath in November.

WE KEEP
PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR, FAIRBANK'S LARD,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FINE N. O. SYRUP,
And other Standard articles.
Orders solicited.
HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents. Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XII—No 622.] WILMINGTON, DECEMBER 10, 1879. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXII—No. 1,242.]

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION.

One copy one year, in advance.....$2 65
If payment be delayed six months.....3 15
One copy six months, in advance.....1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each NEW subscriber of $2 65.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procurred without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

OUR SISTER SYNOD.

MR. EDITOR: I have just returned from a visit to the Synod of South Carolina, at Rock Hill. I had never seen Dr. Plumer, but recognized him at the distance of a hundred yards by his venerable appearance.

Synod was largely occupied with the consideration of the interests of Columbia Seminary. The trustees reported that unless some measure was devised to meet current expenses they would feel constrained to discontinue the exercises after the present scholastic year.

An overture was adopted asking the Assembly to assume the burden and divide it out among all the Synods. It is to be hoped that some plan more likely to succeed will be hit upon before the next session.

The topic of absorbing interest was an overture to the Assembly asking a repeal or modification of its lost deliverance on worldly amusements. It was presented by Dr. Girardeau and advocated in a speech of about two hours, which of itself was worth the trouble of going to Rock Hill to hear. He is an orator in the highest sense of the word—no mere word painter, but a reasoner as well. The ideas seem to be jumping off like electric sparks from every part of the body, mouth, eyes, head, hands, fingers and even feet. When he talks he talks all over. The point contended for was the right of the Assembly, not to make law but to declare what is law, and declare it authoritatively, as well by a deliverance in thesi as by a judicial decision. The other side was being opened by Dr. Adger when I had to leave. From the part of his speech that I heard, I understood him to deny that this right was denied by the Assembly's deliverance, asserting that it only meant to answer specifically the specific and limited question whether the former deliverances of the Assembly on worldly amusements required judicial prosecution. A glance at the debates recorded by Mr. Wolfe, and report of the deliverance in question, taken in connection with the action approving the records of the Synod of Georgia, as explained by Dr. Woodrow, will show that this ground cannot be held. The Assembly did unquestionably deny, as a proposition, that its in thesi deliverances can have the force of laws.

Other speakers were to follow but I was unable to stay longer to hear what they had to say, or learn the result of the vote.

One thing more deserves mention: These brethren, differing toto cœlo on great principles and maintaining opposite sides with intense earnestness, were yet able to treat each other as Christian gentlemen, and said not a word that would tend to interfere with the friendliest personal relations.

Dr. Wilson gave us an address on Africa as a mission field, which made me feel that if I were only a young man I would feel like starting there at once. Yours truly, S. H. C.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

PRESBYTERIANISM DEFENDED.

It is contended that the lawfulness of women preaching has been decided by the number of conversions that have taken place by that instrumentality—the Lord Himself having set the seal of His approbation upon the practice.

The conversion of a soul is the work of God alone. The means employed are only means, and are effective only when God uses them. He may, and often does make use of wicked men in direct violation of His command to effect His purposes of mercy. Are these acts to be justified upon the ground that God uses them to a beneficent effect? In other words, "shall we do evil that good may come?" Shall we do an act which God has forbidden, because by means of that act He sometimes effects the temporal or spiritual good of his creatures? If so, then the greatest sin ever committed on earth may be justified, yea, in fact, must cease to be a sin, because by its instrumentality God effected the salvation of all the children of Adam who will be saved. If wicked men had not been guilty of the violation of the sixth commandment, in murdering the son of God, not a sinner of Adam's race could have been saved. Does that fact make the putting to death of the Lord Jesus Christ a justified act? But if the killing of Jesus by the Jews was treason as well as murder, even supposing that they knew him to be their Lord and King, and that their motive had been the salvation of the human race, then it cannot be right to do any act which God has forbidden—that is to say, it cannot be right to do wrong—in order that God may have the opportunity of working good out of it. That the end justifies the means is a doctrine of the Romish Church which has been productive of untold sufferings and horrible murders of thousand of Protestants at the hand of its fanatical devotees.

It is upon this plea—that "she is doing so much good"—that many have justified the preaching of a woman. It is insisted that God has done so much good through this instrumentality. If we are to be governed in our conduct by such reasoning, then, in deciding whether to do a certain act, we are not to consider whether God has forbidden it, but whether He sometimes brings good out of it. Away with such a principle, so utterly destructive to all good morals. Abraham did not think it was right for him to disobey God in order to save the life of his child.

How much of the seeming good resulting from the preaching of women is real, and whether the evil will not, in the end, greatly overbalance the good, are questions which may hereafter be considered. The question now to be decided is, not whether God may or does effect good by the acts of His creatures, but a question of the interpretation of Scripture. The question is, is the interpretation which the people of God, learned and unlearned, have given in the past ages, of the passages of Scripture which have seemed to them so clearly to forbid women preaching, the true interpretation?

In the 14th chapter of 1st Corinthians, Paul, having given direction about the way in which men whom He has "set in the Church" may so use their God-given authority to speak in the Church as to prevent confusion, goes on to say in the plainest and most positive manner, "Let your women keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to speak." In the house of God, she is to be regarded as a learner, not a teacher, and if she should not understand what has been publicly taught by men, she is not even then permitted to break the enjoined silence by asking questions; she must ask her husband at home. (Verse 35.)

It is evident that those women who, by their disorderly conduct, gave occasion for these prohibiting injunctions of the Apostle, were wives. Single women being kept in subjection at home, in those days, never dreamed of such a monstrous absurdity, such daring presumption, such unheard of impropriety, as undertaking publicly to "reprove, rebuke, exhort, teach" their own parents and the parents of other children.

The direction given by Paul to Timothy (1 Tim. ii: 11-14,) is equally explicit. "I suffer not a woman to teach." Teaching religion in the church of God by a woman is just as clearly forbidden as stealing, murder or lying. That this is the case is more clearly seen when we notice the reasons given for the prohibition. Women "are commanded to be in obedience." "It is a shame for women to speak in the Church." They are required to "Learn in silence with all subjection." They are forbidden to "usurp authority over the man." "For Adam was first formed, then Eve." And the woman "was in the transgression" first. Paul declared his injunction to be "the commandments of the Lord," and he appeals to the law of Moses to confirm his decision: "Thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee."

The Church—I do not mean a meeting house, nor a Sunday School class of boys and girls—is an assembly of the professed people of God, men, women and children, associated together for the purpose of worshiping Him in His appointed way. A teacher of such an assembly is the superior of the learners in it. (A teacher was denominated by the Jews Rabbi, master—not mistress.) The ruler in such an assembly is the superior of the subjects. And it will be seen by a careful examination of the Word of God that the right to rule in the Church was included in the right to teach. And the members were required to obey them that had the rule over them.

It is therefore a reversion of the order which God has established for the man to be learner and the woman his teacher—(the man the disciple and the woman the Rabbi-ess;) for the man to be the subject and the woman his ruler. By taking such a position a woman impudently and presumptuously takes herself out of the place where God has put her, and usurps the power which God has given only to the man. God has said "the head of every man is Christ, and the head of the woman is the man." This new doctrine says the head of man is woman. In that case, who is the head of woman? (In the first century there were no women's rights associations to dispute the inspired authority of Paul.)

In the religious meetings recently conducted in different parts of this State, a certain Quakeress (who does not see in the Bible any command to be baptized and to partake of the Lord's Supper, but who does see with the eyes of her soul, somewhere outside of the Bible, a command to her to preach) was the ruling Spirit. She was constituted temporary head of affairs. Ministers, and other officers of the Church, private members, men, women and children, were subject to her authority, so far as the conduct of the meeting was concerned; and they all sat at her feet as learners of the Gospel. Some of the disciples of this Rabbi-ess said that they had never heard the Gospel preached before. One minister of the Gospel said that she was inspired as truly as was the Apostle Paul, though not to the same degree. One minister of the Gospel, in a prayer to God, in the congregation, called her an angel.

Now, how do the advocates of woman-preaching interpret the passages of Scripture above alluded to? I have heard of only three interpretations differing from the one commonly received:

1. It is affirmed that these prohibitory clauses, with the reasons annexed, mean simply that a woman must not ask questions in a meeting house. She may teach, exhort, preach, talk, and take control of a religious meeting, and yet not usurp authority over man. But she has violated the law, and has usurped authority, if she asks a question.

2. It is affirmed that a woman must "learn in silence, with all subjection," in the household, but not in the Church.

3. It is affirmed that this prohibition respected only Jewish women, or at most, women of that age. According to this interpretation, the woman of this age may usurp authority over the man. It is not true now as it used to be, that Adam was first formed, then Eve.

These are not interpretations of the Word of God, but only evasions of its plainest teachings. P. T. PENICK.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

LOSSES IN BUSINESS.

Losses in business, like other troubles, are fraught with valuable lessons to the Christian, but it frequently happens that the irritation they produce prevents the sufferer learning them. An incident occured recently at Clapham, England, which shows how an earnest Christian may hear such losses not only with fortitude, but in a spirit of child-like docility which no mere formalist can attain. One morning Mr. Thornton, a merchant at Clapham, received notice of a failure by which he would lose a sum equivalent to half a million dollars. On the same morning a minister from the country called at his counting-house to ask a subscription to an important object. Hearing that Mr. Thornton had suffered this loss, he apologized for having called. But Mr. Thornton took him kindly by the hand, and said: "My dear sir, the wealth I have is not mine, but the Lord's. It may be that He is going to take it out of my hands and give it to another; and if so, this is a good reason why I should make good use of what is left." He then doubled the subscription he had formerly intended to give.—Christian Herald.

FORETHOUGHT AND OVER-SOLICITUDE.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

The Master knew that His disciples would often be careful and troubled about many things, and therefore He spoke loving and gracious words to them which were precisely suited to their needs. Among the most precious of the commands of Jesus are the words contained in the 6th chapter of the Gospel of Matthew, from the 19th verse to the end. And yet to us modern nineteenth century Christians they are sometimes, because of our little faith, a puzzle, and we are at a loss to know how we can obey them literally. There are times in soul-life and times in home-life when we are like mariners tossing on a stormy sea, and we fear that the ship will never cast anchor in a haven of peace. We have not quite let go our faith, but the lamp is burning dimly, and we do not see the way, nor one walking before us there, even on the waves, whose hands bear the print of the nails. Yet these are the very times when, if we listen, we hear the comforting assurances of the Bible ringing out, clear and sweet, over billow and reef, bell answering bell in silvery tones till the air is filled with jubilant voices. And then, though we have trouble and toil, though we are losing where we hoped to gain, and finding defeat where we anticipated success, we cannot be cast down nor dismayed. The voice of Jesus says so tenderly, "Come unto Me, and rest," that in the very crisis of discouragement we arise strengthened. It is wonderful how the Bible is studded with words of promise, words of peace and words of cheer, so that, open it where we will, we find that which is exactly what we need in the present distress.

But we must take thought for the morrow. We must sow if we would reap, and the same book which bids us take no thought tells us that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he reap. If we are wasteful and improvident we must pay the penalty in privation and suffering.

How is it that wise forethought is right and fretful repining wrong? Where is the point at which we may be sure of having done all we can, and at which we may pause, saying, "Lord, thou knowest what we want. Fulfil thy precious word in our experience, to the glory of thy grace."

Well, of one thing we may be certain, and that is, that it is never found at the place of purely selfish ease. We are commanded to work while the day lasts, to improve the time and to do unto others as we would that they should do unto us. If, for any reason of indolence or personal luxury, or material gratification, we fold our hands, refusing to labor at our own difficulties, they will not be removed from us. But we are not bidden to work beyond our strength. We are prohibited from lifting to-morrow's load before we arrive at it. And just here, it is, that the lesson of trusting comes in so sweetly. When we have, in a prayerful spirit, and as well as we know how, provided for the day's emergencies, then let us leave ourselves, and our work, and everything that concerns us, at God's feet. He will care for His own. Many people carry their burdens to the cross, but the trouble is, that they do not leave them there. They carry them away again. Unbelief robs them of what Jesus would fain bestow, if they would but accept it at His hand.

It is always easy to think the lot of our neighbor less crooked than our own. The fact is, that there is very little in life over which we cannot find room to be very anxious, unless we have learned to heed the Saviour's command, not to take undue thought, and unless we accept His assurance, "Your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask Him." Our children approach maturity. They must meet temptation and trial. We cannot save them from conflicts and struggles, though in our weak love we often wish that we could. Their Divine Father loves them with a wiser, stronger love than ours, and He has appointed their paths. Having educated them, and prepared them as best we can, for the sober duties and stern responsibilities of life, let us take no undue thought for the morrow. Training in the fear of God, and in strict integrity, should count for something. Daily trust and daily consecration to the Lord should count for more. We and our children are His. Let us believe it and not fret.

Sometimes, when everything seems to be going wrong, if we could see the end from the beginning, we should be consoled by the knowledge that really everything was right. There is true comfort in leaning consciously on God. He knows the way He taketh, and are we not blessed if we are walking with Him, blessed in the dark and in the light, in the storm and in the sunshine? For the rest, the steadfast soul can be thankful, if it finds room for service in the place where the Lord has given it an abode. Service now, rest hereafter.—Christian Intelligencer.

INFLUENCE OF A MOTHER'S TEARS.

History records no more suggestive incident than the memorable termination of the siege of Rome by Coriolanus. No child ever perused the narrative without extraordinary emotion. There is something in it which appeals with an effect that may not be resisted to the heart and the consciousness of all. Who has not in imagination dwelt on the scene? A stout and stardy warrior, steeled by years of active military service against the pitiful appeals of suffering humanity—the victim of fierce and ungovernable passions—smarting under a keen sense of accumulated wrong—consecrates the energies of his life to the avenging of his injury, and exiled from the city whose annals his military prowess has adorned, sallies forth, the infuriated minister of wrath. Sacrificing all higher and ennobling aspirations—sullying forever the hard earned laurels of the victor of Corioli—he seeks, even at the price of a traitor's fame, to purchase a satisfying vengeance. Rallying around him an army of the enemy he had prostrated for her, he throws himself with an exulting legion upon the offending city, and thunders at her gates. Appalled and prostrate at the realization of her seemingly inevitable doom, Rome trembles before him. With humbled pride, her haughty senators, in solemn procession, come to sue for mercy. Disdainfully repulsed, they dispatch the minister of their religion to woo with the hopes of future bliss, and intimidate with the prospect of a coming retribution. But all is vain. Unrelenting and unmoved by every appeal, the stern veteran relaxes not his purpose. Then come the mother's tears. Bending under the weight of years—sustained by a holy hope—the aged matron rallies forth. Who can paint the scene? Who may realize the meeting? In the most inseparate soul there are treasured associations and memories which, forgotten amid the wild tumult of angry passion, awaken at the whisper of a mother's name, to beat in every pulsation of the heart and thrill through every fibre of the frame. There is a sentiment of holy veneration in the soul of the child to its mother, which he must sound the lowest depths of infamy who may forget or disregard. With streaming eyes and anguished hearts the Roman mother kneels to plead with her traitor son. Appealing to him by all the hallowed memories of his uncorrupted boyhood, and chiding with the affectionate rebuke and tenderness that well up from a mother's soul towards an erring child, she conjures him to relinquish his cherished purpose. The warrior is unmanned. Talk not of grief till thou hast seen the tears of a warlike man. Fearful, but of brief duration, is the struggle of contending emotion. Instinct triumphs—the cup of vengeance is dashed untasted from the lips—Rome is safe again. A mother's tears have changed the destiny of the world.

AGREEING WITH EVERYBODY.

In point of fact, it is utterly impossible for a man to agree with everybody, or to avoid making enemies, in some sense. If he has no opponents, it necessarily follows that he is either a hypocrite or a cypher. Some persons are so destitute of any real strength of character that no one cares what they think, and so no one takes the trouble to disagree with them. A person of strong convictions and sound common sense must arouse opposition in a world not yet in a millennial condition. Such is the variety of tastes and opinions; such is the sincere difference of belief, even on the most fundamental subjects, such as the nature of God and the distinctions between right and wrong; such is the heterogeneous character of even the smallest social world, that no sincere person can avoid disagreement with a large number of those with whom he associates. If he seems always to agree with all, he is in the nature of things guilty of falsehood toward some. That constant courtesy which is always a duty need never be hypocritical. Servility and deceit are not courteous; they are in reality gross insults. He who professes agreement with opinions utterly divergent, practices deceit, throws a large share of his influence on the side of error, and weakens his own character. As George Eliot says, "his mind is furnished as hotels are, with everything for occasional and transient use."

It is evident that such a man must become more and more incapacitated for the performance of any sound reformatory work in the world. His moral force and even his intellectual ability, become hopeless weakened. He must be measured rather by the lowest level to which he sinks, than by the highest summit to which some more powerful spirit occasionally drags him. He is merely a member of society, which, according to the author just quoted, is "chiefly made up of human beings whose daily acts are all performed either in unreflecting obedience to custom and routine, or from immediate promptings of thought or feeling to execute an immediate purpose." Their immediate purpose is simply to be thought agreeable by the person with whom they have to do at the moment; and hence they have no kinship with the real helpers of the world, by whom every separate act is subordinated to a deliberate plan and a sound moral method.

Because we must deplorably fail if we attempt to agree with everybody, it by no means follows that we ought to show our independence by disagreeing with everybody. The perpetual cynic is as repulsive and injurious as the perpetual sycophant; for if the latter flatters the bad, the former denounces the good. The right method is to pursue a course of personal independence, remembering the old maxim which reminds us that Christ's service is true liberty. His is the only approbation we need. If we agree with him and his laws, we must agree or disagree with men and measures just as they seem to us right or wrong. We should praise what we can and blame what we must. If we are honest men those who disagree with us will give us their respect, which is better than their liking. If we are dishonest, in order that we may say we have not an enemy in the world, we shall be likely to make good men our enemies, and to cause bad men to despise us.—Sunday School Times.

HELPING THE YOUTH.

The effort that is being made to increase the effectiveness of Sabbath school work is one in every way deserving commendation. It suggests a desire to make this important branch of service worthy of the end for which it is carried on, and it indicates that there is a growing wish to care for the youth of the Church. Whatever we may say about having all the people of a congregation attend the Sabbath school, and however far in some cases this is realized, it is understood after all that it is an institution originated and carried on in the interests of the children. The justification of its existence consists in its suitableness for giving them instruction in the truth of the Gospel and training in the ways of the Church.

We have frequently presented complaints of the denominations that their membership does not increase. There are revivals, during which large numbers are received and enrolled, and there are encouraging accounts of statistical prosperity in many quarters, yet a final summing up discloses the unhappy fact that if there has not been loss, there has been but little gain.

Now, the natural growth of the church population ought to yield a large yearly increase to the enrollment; and if no gain is made by conversions from the world, there should be evidence of numerical strengthening. The fact that this is not so, shows that the Church's children are not true to their obligations. They wander off from the early home and Christian fold, losing themselves in the worldliness that solicits and absorbs their devotion. Whatever can be done to resist this tendency will be well done.

The hope of the Church is in its own children. Mission schools are good and saving souls from death, they may be expected to add something to the force of the kingdom, but the real dependence for stable and effective strength must be in the youth born in the kingdom and inheriting its blessings. We are glad, therefore, to see any appropriate effort made to more fully gain the youthful heart and secure its spiritual consecration.—United Presbyterian.

TIME FLIES.

Have you seen those marble statues in some public square or garden which art has so finished into a perennial fountain that through the lips, or through the hands, the clear water flows in a perpetual stream, on and on forever, and the marble stands there, passive, cold, making no effort to arrest the gliding water? It is so that time flies through the hands of men—swift, never pausing till it has run itself out; and there is the man petrified into a marble sleep, not feeling what it is which is passing away for ever. It is so, brethren, just so, that the destiny of nine men out of ten accomplishes itself, slipping away from them, aimless, useless, until it is too late.—Robertson.

SCRIPTURE TRANSLATIONS.

Rev. John W. Davis, one of our missionaries in China, sends the following to the Missionary. He wrote at Shanghai, Oct. 1st:

"I send you by this mail a copy of Matthew, one of Mark and one of Luke. John has not yet been bound. I also enclose you a sheet which will show you how the work goes on. Since I came from Poodoo with renewed strength, August 23d, I have put through the press about 140 octavo pages. The Gospel of John was printed in fifteen days. I hope to complete Acts in about two weeks. I have frequent letters from Soochow. My native assistant carries on the work during my absence; he preaches in the chapel and watches over the day school which Mrs. Davis opened a few months ago. I hope to make my forthcoming book useful in the school. It is a work in the Soochow dialect and hence will be easily understood by the scholars. The three maps, (1) of Palestine, (2) of Jerusalem, (3) Paul's travels, will be highly useful in connection with the notes. Paul's missionary movements are, in the notes, traced out with great minuteness. I hope to use the book for many years, so I have done the work of tracing out Paul's travels, once for all.

"The brethren in Hangchow, appreciating the importance of my finishing the work at once, have kindly postponed the mission meeting for two weeks, till October 22d. This is a great accommodation to me. Rev. William S. Holt, superintendent of the Presbyterian Mission Press here in Shanghai, has been very, very kind to me. He obtained for me the aid of a fine teacher, gives me the free use of his library, which contains the works of Addison, Alexander, William Smith, Ellicott, Angus, Hodge and others; found a good Chinese engraver for me, so that I have been able to enrich my pages with several illustrations of great value. Among them are the ground plan of the temple and a map of Jerusalem. Mrs. Randolph has returned from North China to Hangchow. Miss Safford expected to arrive soon from Pekin, where she has been spending a short time. Mrs. Davis and I are quite well."

READING WITHOUT THINKING.

We quite understand the ambition of men engaged in intellectual pursuits to "keep up with the world's thought." But it is this effort that fills all the professions with crammed men, and leaves them scant of thinkers. Baling the ocean with a dipper is the work for those only who do not realize the shortness of time or the greatness of the task. There is so little truth in the world, science is pulling up her stakes and setting them forward so frequently, that not half so much would be lost as the average student, now pressed and puzzled on all sides, would think, if he should intermit his baffling pursuit of knowledge for a few years, and go to using what wisdom he has. The daily press will keep a man from getting rusty. A few of the old classics—including first the chief classic of all, the Bible—will give him food and stimulant enough; and nature and his own heart will give him the best themes and thoughts.—Golden Rule.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

Gleaned from Exchanges:

It takes $58,000,000 a year to support the State Church in England.

The resignations of Belgian teachers to escape excommunication now number 2,472 out of about 20,000.

The Reformed Episcopal Church in England, of which Bishop Gregg is the head, added 3,000 to its membership in the last year.

The Pope has contributed an autograph, with an appropriate verse from Genesis 8 and Psalm 106, to the album of autographs of royal and distinguished personages, which will be one of the chief attractions at the Paris fetes in behalf of the sufferers from the floods in Murcia.

One-tenth of the members of the Methodist Free Church of Great Britain are on foreign mission stations. The increase for the past year was 237, making the total 7,000. The receipts of the Missionary Society were $89,-300.

The girls' boarding-school at Sidon, Syria, has prospered during the past year. There are now in the school about forty pupils, all children of native Christian families. Four of the graduates are engaged in teaching in different villages. This school has now twenty-five of its graduates engaged in teaching.

The Protestant church at Versailles being about to be rebuilt, the congregation, through the efforts of M. Jules Favre, who has married a Protestant and is himself an attendant, has secured the temporary use of a room under the Œil de Bœuf. Louis XIV. never foresaw Protestant worship in his own palace.

A special school of diplomacy is to be established at the Vatican. Its object will be to make known to ecclesiastical students the history of Pontifical diplomacy from the original documents preserved in the archies of the Vatican, and will thus be intimately connected with the Vatican Library, which is under the charge of Cardinal Hergenrother.

In 1872 the Canada Presbyterian Missionary Board sent Rev. Mr. McKay to Northern Formosa, where his work has been so successful that there are now 7 schools with 150 scholars, 15 chapels with as many trained native preachers, 5 trained helpers, 2 Bible women, a hospital and 263 communicants, including 11 elders and 5 deacons. The number of hearers is estimated at 2,000.

The image of a god of the Philistines has been unearthed near Gaza by an Arab who was quarrying stone. The idol is 15 feet high, and represents an aged man, with hair in long ringlets, and lengthy beard, one arm being crossed over the breast, while a drapery covers the shoulders. The pedestal bears no inscription, and is carved in one huge piece with the figure, which was found in a recumbent position, buried in the sand on the top of a hill near the sea, having evidently been removed from its original site. The Pasha of Jerusalem has placed a guard over the idol to preserve it from the Gaza fanatics.

The Rev. Canon Marrable, D. D., thus writes of Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin: "It is perhaps desirable that the public should be informed that distinct acts of idolatry are, from time to time, practiced in this cathedral, as palpable as in any Romish mass house in this land—I mean men bowing before the representation of our blessed Lord, as crucified, in the east window crossing and blessing themselves before it. I have again and again witnessed these genuflections during and after Divine service. Surely it is time for the authorities to be alert, and take action for the removal of objects which are the occasion of such scandal in what ought to be a Protestant church. It is painful for me, as one of this cathedral body, to write this letter, but the acts of idolatry which I and others have seen, urge me to make public what I have long since anticipated and expressed, in my former correspondence, as a certain consequence of the erection of such Romish devices."

The Edinburgh Daily Review says Dr. Wylie's "History of Protestantism," is sorely exciting the ire of the Ritualistic clergy of England. Among other instances we may mention that a letter, dated "Parsonage, Etal, Nov. 3rd," addressed to the secretary of the "Crookham and Pallinsburn Mutual Improvement Club," expressed the writer's intention of withdrawing his quarterly subscription unless the "History of Protestantism" were removed from the library. The writer added that he could not sufficently express his dislike and disapproval of that work. The secretary, we understand, replied that, according to the rules, the existing state of things in the reading room could not be changed unless a motion be entered in a book kept for the purpose, and the promoter attend in person at a general meeting to move his motion. This work, the first issue of which had a vast circulation, is now in its second issue, which doubtless will bring it up to some 100,000 copies. It is being widely sold in Canada. Recently Mr. Millar, of London, placed a copy of it in all the public libraries of the county of Caithness.

Peter's pence is a failing speculation. The Ultramontanists admit, whist they deplore, the falling away of the faithful from the paths of salvation; yet surely on this score Rome has but slight cause for complaint. The current of Roman Catholic charity, which so long flowed to Rome to purchase fresh straw for the prisoner in his dungeon at the Vatican, has been diverted to Lourdes and Sallette Montmartre, to rearing gorgeous fanes on the sites where the Virgin has held converse with peasants in their native patois. It was declared that the erection of a splendid basilica to glorify the Sacred Heart was an affair of public utility, of absolute necessity. It was needful that Paris should have constantly before her eyes a monument overlooking the great and gay city, which should remind it of its wayward wickness. Yet the millions which were needed to rear the fane do not flock in so quickly as into the coffers of speculators who promise larger and more tangible interest. Subscriptions are falling off, and many are the devices employed to raise the wind and stimulate the zeal of the faithful. Advertisements proclaim that the faithful will obtain the honor and glory of having their initials chiselled on a stone in the cathedral for 120 francs, and their names and arms chiseled ou a pillar for 5,000 francs. The Bulletin de Vaw National extends this system to other sacred edifices. The same rates for advertisements are maintained. Two initials for 120 francs, five letters for 300 francs, and a name and armoral bearings on a pillar for 5,000 francs; but the promoters can only guarantee that the "letters on the pillar shall be legible." The purchasers of initial tablets will have no legal claim upon the Church if their letters are effaced.

A MERRY HEART.

I'd rather be poor and merry than inherit the wealth of the Indies with a discontented spirit. A merry heart, a cheerful spirit, from which laughter wells up as naturally as bubble the springs of Saratoga, are worth all the money bags, stocks and mortgages of the city. The man who laughs is doctor, with a diploma indorsed by the school of nature; his face does more good in a sick room than a pound of powders or a gallon of bitter draughts. If things go right he laughs, because he is pleased; if they go wrong he laughs, because it is better and cheaper than crying. People are always glad to see him, their hands instinctively go half way to meet his grasp, while they turn involuntarily from the clammy touch of the dyspeptic, who speaks on the groaning key. He laughs you out of your faults, while you never dream of being offended with him. It seems as if sunshine came into the room with him, and you never know what a pleasant world you are living in until he points out the sunny streaks on its pathway. Who can help loving the whole-souled, genial laughter? Not the huffoon, nor the man who classes noise with mirth, but the cheery, contented man of sense and mind! A good humored laugh is the key to all breasts. The truth is that people like to be laughed at in a genial sort of way. If you are making yourself ridiculous you want to be told of it in a pleasant manner, not sneered at. And it is astonishing how frankly the laughing population can talk without treading on the toes of their neighbors. Why will the people put on long faces when it is so much easier and more comfortable to laugh? Tears come to us unsought and unbidden. The wisest way in life is to cultivate smiles, and to find the flowers where others shrink away for fear of thorns.—Banner.

POWER IN THE HUMAN VOICE.

In a recent discourse, Dr. Bartol spoke of the wonderful tones of Dr. Channing's voice. He said Channing was an insignificant figure, short and slender, about one hundred pounds of flesh during the last years of his life being the garment and instrument of this mighty soul. In the desk, however, he was of commanding height. Where was the hiding place of that marvellous voice? one of the three most eloquent, says Emerson, that he ever heard. He spoke with an habitual rising inflection rather than cadence, which seemed to raise every listener to the skies; soft yet audible; melting yet resonant; clear when it whispered, and clarion when it rang. He told me that with speaking for many years new tones had been developed in his voice. One day at his home an unbeliever complained of Christ's denunciation of the Pharisees as too severe. Channing got the Book, turned to the passage, and read the "Woe upon woe!" in his way, so solemn, gracious and calm. "Oh," said the infidel, before the recitation stopped, "if He spoke in that tone, my objection is withdrawn." Henry Clay's voice was called a band of music, Webster's was a trumpet, Channing's a harp.

A STAR IN THE CROWN.

A young lady was preparing for the dance hall, and standing before a large mirror, placed a light crown ornamented with silver stars upon her head. While thus standing, a little fair-haired sister climbed in a chair and put up her tiny fingers to examine the beautiful head-dress, and was accosted thus: "Sister, what are you doing? You should not touch that crown." Said the little one, "I was looking at that and thinking of something else." "Pray tell me what you were thinking about—you little child." "I was remembering that my Sabbath School teacher said that, if we saved sinners by our influence, we should win stars to our crown in heaven; and when I saw those stars in your crown I wished I could save some soul." The elder sister went to the dance, but in solemn meditation the words of the innocent child found a lodgment in her heart, and she could not enjoy the associations of her friends. At a seasonable hour she left the ball and returned to her home, and going to her chamber, where her dear little sister was sleeping, imprinted a kiss on her soft cheek, and said, "Precious sister, you have won one star for your crown;" and, kneeling at her bed-side, offered a fervent prayer to God for mercy.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN, - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1879.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

WHAT IS THE MATTER?

NO. IV.

Once more we approach the discussion of this deeply interesting question, and if any of our readers are beginning to grow weary we beg them to remember that the interest of our Church is involved in the solution and in the remedy of the evils pointed out. And not the interest of our Church only but of the kingdom of our blessed Master. For it is impossible for any part of the visible Church to suffer without injury to the cause of Christ.

Another evil to be noted in looking over our system of working is the

DEFECTIVE EDUCATION

of our ministers. We imagine now that we can see how some of the readers of this article are lifting their hands, and others are almost ready to lay down the paper, thinking the staid NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN has gone wild.

We ask a little patience while we unfold our view of the case: It is written, "He that winneth souls is wise." Now in what does that wisdom consist? It may be briefly stated under two heads: First, in the knowledge of the message he is to deliver. Second, in knowledge of those to whom it is to be delivered. The first of these requirements is carefully provided for in our ordinary method of procedure. The candidate is examined on his experimental acquaintance with religion, and on his knowledge of the system of doctrine taught in the Word of God. But there is no possible way of examining him as to his knowledge of men. And so we send him forth as a probationer to try his gifts, and unless he is found to be utterly lacking, a call comes for his ordination, and he is ordained to the full work of the ministry.

But is this the whole statement of the case? Let us see. A young man enters the ministry at the age of twenty-five. He has been three years in the seminary, four years in college, and ten or twelve years at school before going to college. Since he was eight or ten years old he has been living among books and with book-men. The foundation period of his life is past or nearly past. And his training has been such as to keep him aloof from the interest and sympathies of the mass of the people among whom he is afterwards to move, and in whom he must be interested if he is to influence them for any good. He has been carefully educated in such a way that his tastes, his habits of thought and his objects of interest are to a large extent separate and apart from those of the busy and toiling multitude around him. It may almost be said that he has been carefully educated away from sympathy, with the pursuits and plans and notions of common life. He has no knowledge of men from experience. He cannot judge them by himself, for his education has put too wide a gap between them. He is unable to reach them, and he is often filled with sadness at the failure of his most earnest efforts, while other ministers of less scholarship and no more native ability are meeting with abundant success, and are building up flourishing churches all around him.

Let us suppose a case which may make this clearer to our minds. A young minister just from the seminary has taken charge of a church in the country, in a neighborhood of not more than the average share of cultivation. There is a number of families in the community who have only a limited English education, and are not reading people. They attend church, and he properly feels that he ought to visit them in his pastoral rounds. He reaches the home of one of these late in the day, and it is expected he will spend the night there. The husband is away on the farm, and so the wife meets him and invites him into the house. Conversation begins in the ordinary inquiries after each other's health, and the common remarks about the weather, and the few items of neighborhood news are soon exhausted. Then an awkward silence falls upon them. It is broken now and then by a painful effort, but the parties have so few matters of common interest that the effort is a failure. She is unable to discuss with him the latest work on theology or philosophy, and he is equally unable to converse with her on the matters of her every-day life and interest. He knows as little of the cares and comforts, of the responsibilities, difficulties and pleasures of her life as she knows of the subjects to which his thoughts and study are given. At nightfall the farmer comes in and meets his guest with cordial greeting, and promises himself a pleasant evening in the company of an intelligent man. But the guest knows no more of crops and farming than he does of housewifery, and he feels as little personal interest in them. Conversation flags and dies or is kept up by painful effort. When the young minister leaves that house it is with a sense of relief, and the people whom he has been visiting are equally relieved. And yet there has not been an unpleasant word, and both parties have done their best to please.

We have perhaps given an extreme case, but we have done so to illustrate a common fact. Men who have lived among books and whose business has been with them, do find it hard to talk with people whose training has only made them familiar with their business and with the interests that gather round their own lives.

Let us take another case: A minister of a different denomination visits the same house. His training from sixteen years of ago was received on the farm and behind the counter. He is at no loss for matters of animated dialogue, and when he leaves both parties remember the visit with much pleasure. Whose church will that family attend, supposing them to be unattached to any? The question answers itself.

But what will you do? says one. Will you lower our standard of education? No. Our complaint is of defective education. We would raise it to the point of greater efficiency. As to the means of raising it, that is another matter which we may discuss when we come—if we ever do—to consider the remedies for these evils. That there is an evil here, we believe that the wisest and best of our Church feel very keenly.

Another important defect is to be found in the very common failure to preach in those matters wherein we differ from other Christians. And this becomes at once apparent when it is remembered that most people get their impressions of our doctrines and ordinances from the representations of their opposers. Presbyterian ministers and people have been so anxious to avoid controversy with other denominations, that they have, as a rule, carefully avoided such discussions till it has come to be common for members of other churches to say, "If these Presbyterians have anything to say in defence of their doctrines, why do they not speak out?" Meanwhile the impolitic patience and reserve of our people are maintained till silence is taken for confession of weakness, and prejudice becomes confirmed and inveterate. Take the public teaching of most of our pulpits from year to year and what doctrinal exposition is given of those matters which distinguish us from other Christian Churches? Is it any wonder that uninformed people yield to the prejudices which are created by those who reject and oppose the doctrines of the Presbyterian Church? And even where prejudice is not awakened is it strange that they fail to see any justifying reason for the separate existence of a Church whose ministers teach only the great doctrines of salvation, and as the hearers think, teach them precisely as they are taught in other churches? Is it strange that very many feel that there is no need of the Presbyterian Church?

OUR OWN DOCTRINE

We fear our readers are growing tired of this discussion. We expect to close this branch of it in one more article. If any of our brethren dissent from the views here expressed let them vigorously express their dissent. Let the subject be sifted to the bottom.

DEATH OF MRS. E. L. CONVERSE.

Mrs. Eliza L. Converse, formerly a missionary to China, died in Louisville, Ky., on Sunday, 30th ult.

The disease which resulted in the death of Mrs. Converse was contracted in infancy, and was induced by the privations attending the missionary labors of her parents in Southern Greece. Despite lameness, consequent upon the disease, she was very active until a recent return of the disease in its severity caused her death.

In 1869 the lady, now deceased, was united in marriage to Rev. Thomas E. Converse and accompanied him to his work in China. She remained in China laboring as faithfully as generally infirm health would permit until compelled to return to America. Of late years she has served the Master by co-operating, in her sphere, with her husband in his labors as pastor of the churches of Woodstock, Va., and Bardstown, Ky.

DEATH OF REV. EDWARD HINES.

Rev. Edward Hines died at his home in Granville county on the 27th ult. He was probably about sixty-five years of age at the time of his death. He was a native of Virginia, graduated from Union Theological Seminary in 1841, and settled in Granville county, N. C. His life was spent in ministering to the churches in Granville county. Nothing would seem to have received his first services, in 1841, while he was as yet a licentiate. On the 29th of May, 1842, he was ordained to the full work of the ministry, and installed pastor of Shiloh church. The pastorate thus formed continued till within a few months past. The churches of Oak Hill, Henderson, Grassy Creek, Shiloh and Nutbush at various times enjoyed his ministrations.

A friend of the deceased, who was personally intimate with him many years, writes thus:

"What shall be said of one who fought so long his Master's battles and bore so faithfully that Master's burdens, except that he always wore, in such manner as became the Christian warrior and servant, the honors of his Lord's service, and performed all that was commanded of him, in humility and in reverent spirit? By his own well regulated and most cheerful fireside, by the beds of those laughing or in mortal pain, in Sunday school, prayer meeting and church session, just as in the pulpit, he was frank, wise, loving, spiritual, abounding in kindly good will to men. Withal he was earnestly devoted to their eternal salvation, which he urged upon them on all fitting occasions in fervid, saintly manner. Mr. Hines was free from cant as the pure air and the clear blue heavens. To his neighbors he was the kind Christian pastor, and none was too obscure or abandoned to call forth his benevolence. All had full confidence in him, and some of his best friends to-day—those who will most sincerely mourn his death—are those of other communions with whom, in spirit of true Christian charity, he often worshiped. No man could be more earnest in his desire to do good. Some have had their lips touched with live coals from the altar, and have entranced their hearers by splendid spells of eloquence, or have been learned in all the lore of the schools, and have taken of their grand stores of wisdom and imparted to the needs of their fellow men. But he, with less oratory and narrower learning, has told the Old, Old Story to thousands, whose names are written in the Lamb's Book of Life with his. As a preacher, Mr. Hines was pointed, earnest, practical, rather than ornate or discursive. On occasions his sermons were elaborated with great care, and sometimes he chose to meet the sophistries of scientific infidelity by a logical analysis adequate to the demand upon his talents. But he was always in earnest! Usually his style of speaking exhibited this characteristic in a most marked manner, though emphasis was seldom misplaced, and the tenderness towards suffering humanity, which he felt at all times, was never regarded by his auditors as affected or melodramatic or maudlin.

"In the councils of the Church he will be sadly missed. True that, owing to his increasing age and family cares, he had not of late been so regular an attendant at Synod and Presbytery as formerly, but such a man as he—one so full of practical wisdom, so willing to serve, so spiritually minded—cannot depart this life without leaving a void. There are those who remember his zeal in behalf of the theological seminaries and the training of our ministry, who, when these lines shall be read, will call up his great qualifications as a member of important committees. Those will agree with us and with his old friends in Granville, N. C., and Mecklenburg, Va., that an able and most useful servant of God has finished his earthly work and gone to his glorious reward in those "mansions in the skies," of the anticipated delights of which, while here, he was so fond of singing and speaking."

Of Mr. Hines' last days Rev. D. E. Jordan writes:

"Rev. Edward Hines has gone to his reward. He had been preaching several days for me at Silver Spring, an outpost of the Henderson church. He seemed to be in unusually good health and his preaching was evidently blessed. He seemed to speak as if he felt the nearness of the things which are unseen and eternal. On Wednesday night he was attacked by an acute neuralgic disease in the chest. This continued, with intervals of rest, a little more than a week. On Thursday afternoon, about 5 o'clock, he passed away. I was with him till Monday once or twice every day. He was at times in great pain, but his joy in the blessed Saviour was full and overflowing. He seemed to labor for words to express the richness of his comfort and peace. He was buried at Shiloh church on Saturday in the presence of a large congregation of sorrowing friends and neighbors. The Lord be with his bereaved family."

ATTENTION!

Members of the class of '74–5 of U. T. Seminary will send their class letters at once to Rev. W. A. Dabney, Pine Bluff, Ark.

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

The date of the establishment of the Sabbath school at Alamance church was 1825, not 1855, as was printed in the published account.

For the following very kind notice we return our thanks to Hale's Weekly:

"Presbyterian readers will not overlook the claims of that excellent paper, the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN. It was always a good paper, and if it receives the support it deserves, it receives all its best friend could wish."

A Baptist church in England in the interest of fellowship proposes to receive affusionists into its membership, classifying them as "non-denominational members" but denying them the right to speak or vote in all cases where the subject of baptism or other denominational differences are in question. A contemporary thinks simply uniting with Pedobaptists in celebration of the Lord's Supper would be sufficient evidence of Christian catholicity and courtesy, and be decidedly preferable to what is little more than a rather absurd incongruity.

"An announcement is made concerning the policy of the Roman Catholic Church in New England toward the public schools. The Archbishop, following the advice of the Pope to a European bishop, has directed all the priests in the Archdiocese of New England to establish parochial schools at once. He threatens parents who refuse to patronize the new schools with the terrors of the Church. In localities where the influence of the public schools is thought to be particularly injurious to Catholic youths the priests are instructed to withdraw the childen at once, even if there be no parochial schools in the vicinity."—Christian at Work.

In our section there is no need of a Papal dictum. Whoever hears of Catholic children attending a Protestant school? The practice is quite the other way, to the shame of Protestants we say it.

In the lecture-room of Dr. Markham's Church, in New Orleans, on the 27th ult., Senator Vance, of North Carolina, delivered his celebrated lecture, "The Scattered Nation." The proceeds were given to the Ladies' Bethel Association.

A correspondent of the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist says of it:

"It was a splendid effort. David Labatt, the eminent Jewish lawyer and scholar, pronounces it the noblest and most just tribute the children of Israel have ever received at the hands of any Christian."

And the Southwestern Presbyterian:

"We had the pleasure last week of listening to a lecture by Senator Vance, of North Carolina, on "The Scattered Nation." It is a subject on which he has lectured before, in other places, and the impression it made elsewhere created a very earnest desire to hear it. For the cause of the Bethel, he allowed himself to be prevailed on to deliver it. We were among the audience who were instructed by its learning, charmed by its eloquence, and amused by its flashes of humor.

"The Senator is a bold speaker as well as a sound thinker. In these days of dilletanteism it is positively sensational to hear a public speaker who has nerve enough to say that the idolatry of Greece and Rome was "beastly," or that our so-called scientists "worship science because they are ignorant of it." But these are only some of the features of the lecture. If you have an opportunity to hear it, don't neglect it.

"The Senator has made a host of friends among us. We hope that he will repeat his visit."

Rev. John W. Davis has struck the right key in the following, which we take from the Missionary:

"When the Romans took Jerusalem there was one unusually powerful battering ram used by them to which the Jews gave the Greek name of "Ho Nikou," the conqueror, for they saw that its power was irresistible. Before its terrible blows the strongest walls that Herod's pride had built went down, and a breach was made in spite of the strength of the masonry and the desperate activity and courage of the defenders. We have such a weapon as this, viz: Truo spiritual religion. Herein lies our power: If we are to conquer idolatry, break down the walls of superstition and wilful ignorance that surround this great Chinese Empire, we must do so by the help of the conqueror, piety. Cherish this above all things else. Let the Church be full of spirituality; then, and not till then, will she "look forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners.

The immense change which has taken place in the religious sentiment of France is thus set forth by the Christian Union:

"A notable incident in France was the holding of a Protestant service in the Palace of Versailles November 2d. In one of the pavilions a pulpit was set up, and there, in the same building in which Louis XIV. signed the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, Luther's "Chorale" was chanted and the Huguenot liturgy recited. The audience was a very large one, and the President of the Consistory of Paris passed through it carrying the great pulpit Bible in his hands. The use of the room has been temporarily given to the Protestants by the French Government."

We are pleased to note from the November statement of the Oxford Orphan Asylum that over $1,700 were received in cash for this deserving institution. Of this amount $500 were contributed by the Grand Lodge of Masons. The contributions in kind were also liberal. Goldsboro contributed very largely.

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

In a private letter of December 1st Rev. B. W. Mebane writes:

"Last week I assisted Brother Tidball in a protracted meeting at Stony Creek. Deep interest was manifested over the whole congregation for several days. I hope great good was accomplished; but am not prepared to say how much.

"Yesterday was communion season with our young church at Company Shops. We received one member. It was a precious occasion with all. It was the first time the elders had ever carried the emblems of Christ's body and blood to a congregation of believers; it was the first time the infant church had ever received them. So much interest was manifested that I have determined to protract the meeting. May God's power be felt amongst us."

GREENSBORO CHURCH.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Dec. 2.

Dear Brother McLaurin: We have just held our November communion, and had the pleasure of receiving eleven into our fellowship, nine by certificate from other churches and two by examination. We had most gratifingly large and very attentive congregations and uncommonly good preaching, Saturday and Sabbath by Brother McKinnon, of Concord. It was a precious communion occasion, and greatly enjoyed by our people; and we will all be glad to hear Brother McKinnon again. He made a deep impression on all.

J. HENRY SMITH.

GRASSY CREEK CHURCH.

We are indebted to Rev. J. S. Watkins for an account of the installation of Rev. J. W. Primrose as pastor of Grassy Creek church. We omit this, as it appeared last week. The brother adds:

"Grassy Creek is the oldest church in Orange Presbytery. It was organized in the year 1753. After a lapse of 126 years the building still stands, and with some repairs will still do good service. Presbyterianism has received a new impulse in this section under the faithful services of our evangelist. Old Grassy Creek church is looking up again and is probably destined to regain its former strength and influence."

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

ALMA, ARKANSAS.

MR. EDITOR—In and around this rising little railroad town, 160 miles west of Little Rock and fifteen miles east of Fort Smith, are Col. J. A. McNeely, Robert Rankin, Mrs. Alexander and family of your State, and a few others from Tennessee and Mississippi, who are working to establish our church here. We are few in numbers and feeble, therefore we extend a cordial invitation, so any of our Presbyterian brethren of your or sister States who intend removal, to cast their lots with us and assist us in the labor we have undertaken. We possess soil, climate, productions and society which we deem superior (to the Southerner) to any portion of the West. Wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco, grass, fruit, all flourish here, though corn and cotton are the leading crops.

Our community is peaceable and orderly. We have a Baptist, Methodist, Campbellite and Presbyterian congregation.

Inquiries addressed to Col. McNeely or myself at this place will meet with full and prompt and reply. Correspondence invited.

J. K. P. DOUGLASS.

Alma, Crawford co., Ark., Nov. 28.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

At the recent session of the Synod of South Carolina, at Rock Hill, the opening sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Junkin of Charleston. 53 ministers and 46 elders were present. Rev. N. W. Edmunds of the Sumter Institute was elected moderator, and Rev. H. G. Gilland temporary clerk. Rev. Dr. Wilson, of the Assembly's Committee of Foreign Missions and Sustentation, made a stirring appeal in behalf of the above named causes, and a collection was taken up the former, amounting to $75. The cause of Education was represented by Rev. E. M. Richardson, and the cause of Publication by Rev. James K. Hazen. Davidson College was represented by Prof. Latimer, who reported 104 students, 40 of whom are from South Carolina. Rev. S. T. Martin, Rev. W. R. Atkinson and Rev. S. H. Chester of the Synod of North Carolina were present. Rev. Dr. Girardeau, from the Synod Committee on Licentiates, made a very able report, which was ordered to be printed in the Southern Presbyterian Review. The condition and wants of the Seminary were fully considered, and Synod resolved to raise within its bounds this current year $2,000. Five churches in Fairfield county were set off from Harmony to Bethel Presbytery. Rev. W. W. Wills is pastor of two of these churches. Rev. Mr. Pratt supplies one of them, and Rev. R. G. Smith, who has accepted a call to Hopewell church, has been supplying the remaining two. Synod adjourned to meet in Sumter, Nov. 17, 1880. W. A. G.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The North American Review for December is before us: Contents: Romanism and the Irish Race in the United States, part 1, James Anthony Froude; Young Men in Politics, George S. Boutwell; The Religion of To-Day; Is Political Economy a Science? Prof. Bonamy Price; English and American Physique, Geo. M. Beard; The Permanence of Political Forces, part 1, Cuthbert Mills; Recent Literature, John R. G. Hassard. D. Appleton & Co.

The British Quarterly Review for October has Adolphe Monod, a biographical sketch; Irenæus, His Testimony to Early Conceptions of Christianity; Dr. Johnson; The Vatican and Civilization; What is Religion? Political Prospects of Italy; University Education in Ireland; Contemporary Literature.

The Edinburgh Review for October has Germany Since the Peace of Frankfort; Mozart; The Philosophy of Color; Spedling's Life of Bacon; The Civil Engineers of Britain; The Family of Mirabeau; Froude's Cæsar; The Code of Criminal Law; Impressions of Theophrastus Such; Afghanistan.

D. Appleton & Co. of New York send us a number of their Handy Volume books. We give their titles and think they will be interesting to those who like that kind of reading. They are: My Queen; The Alpenstock, a book about the Alps and Alpine adventure; Peg Woffington; The World's Parodies; Comedies for Amateur Acting. This last contains some expressions which play lovers would not condemn, but which are not yet, fortunately, allowable in society. These books Appleton & Co. sell at 25 and 30 cents.

Of quite a different style and of far superior merit is another work from the Appletons: Solar Light and Heat: The source and the supply. Gravitation: with explanations of Planetary and Molecular Forces. By Zachariah Allen, LL. D. This work is a sequel to a publication by the writer, in the year 1861, entitled "The Philosophy of the Mechanics of Nature, and the Source of Natural Motive Power." It is desired to eliminate and arrange in due order the rudimentary facts and principles therein detailed, and to show their harmony with the laws that control the material universe.—(Preface.)

The Preacher and Homiletic Monthly for December is on the table. It contains the usual large number of sermons from the most eminent preachers on a great variety of subjects, with a large mass of other interesting and valuable matter. The Departments, Sermonic Criticism and Preachers Exchanging Views, we always turn to with avidity. Per year $2 50, single number 25 cents. Religious Newspaper Agency, New York.

The Mouth and the Feet. American Health Primer, No. 7. By J. W. White, M. D., D. D. S., editor of the Dental Cosmos. 50 cents. Lindsay & Blakiston, Philadelphia, 1879.

The Missionary Herald, December, 1879. Congregational House, No. 1 Somerset street, Boston. $1 10, post-paid, per annum.

This is the organ for the grand "American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions." With its maps, beautiful illustrations in the department for young people, and its important missionary news from all quarters, it is a delightful visitor to the family. In 1880 it will appear in new dress, with larger pages, and better space for maps and engravings.

Mr. John L. Sherey, Boston, Mass., the enterprising publisher of the popular monthly The Nursery, sends The Child's Monthly, 50 cents a year, and Easy Reading, both handsomely illustrated, and capital for children.

The Ladies' Floral Cabinet for December, 1879. Per annum $1 25. Adams & Bishop, 40 Beekman street, New York.

Each subscriber to this beautifully illustrated magazine receives also $1 30 worth of Flower Seed. Each number contains a piece of music. It is a gem.

The Presbyterian Publishing Company, of Richmond, Va., send us the Golden Light, a little book, in paper cover, of 32 pages, containing nearly thirty new and choice pieces of music, set to songs appropriate to the Sunday school and home circle. Several songs are added to the above. No. 1 is before us. A similar publication will appear each six months, keeping up with the times and adding freshness and variety to our Sunday school music. The price of the Golden Light, single copy, is 10 cents; per dozen $1 00, postage 10 cents; per hundred $7 50, postage 1 00.

ECLECTICISMS.

THE ROYAL ROAD TO REVIVAL.

The Evangelist:

There is but one way to get up a revival; and that is to get down into the dust of humility and prayer. There is no royal road to revival but the King's highway, and that leads to his feet and the mercy-seat.

THE BEST SELF-EXAMINATION.

United Presbyterian:

There is a good kind of self-examination and a bad. The latter is that which is usually practiced, and consists of nothing more than an inventory of the soul, with the end in view of enumerating the gains of a season or period. "One look at Christ, is better than ten at ourselves," was the remark of McCheyne, and all good Christian experience proves it true.

WHAT IS NEEDED TO CONVINCE.

Southern Presbyterian:

To convince them of the supernatural character of our religion, we must exhibit a type of morality higher than this world ever reaches; we must show a purity of character, an integrity of purpose, a firmness of principle, a zeal for God and holiness and an uncompromising opposition to all sin, which are far above the capacity of natural virtue. To influence the world, we must not conform to it, but dissent from it. The farther we carry our unlikeness and separation from the world, the more will we command its respect and confidence.

THE PREACHER'S WORK.

Christian Observer:

The preacher must dig for old materials, old thoughts, old truths. Perhaps the older the better, because less familiar to the present generation. He must secure an abundance of them, that he may have a large store to select from. He must have them well assorted in his mind, so that he can find them when wanted. From many varied sources he must draw them, so that they may present forms as varied as the silver ores which come from different mines. And then he must work, as does the inventor, in recombining these old materials in new relations. The originality must lie in the connection which he establishes between these facts.

THE PRESSING WORK.

Central Presbyterian:

Church extension should be inscribed upon our banners, and the spirit of extension awakened among our people and our ministers. There is more of this spirit of late, as is evidenced by the fact that so many of our presbyteries are sending out evangelists and giving greater attention to home missions. There is room for this work, even in the oldest of our presbyteries, and where the fields are best supplied—how much more in those presbyteries covering a large extent of country with only a few churches.

WHAT THE WORLD NEEDS.

Christian Intelligencer:

The world needs to-day not more patient and clear-eyed scholars, not more millionaires, not greater ability in statesmanship, but men of greater organizing and executive ability, but more holy and saintly living, more godliness, more Christlike men and women. This world will be heaven begun below" when all the men and women in it are holy. Would to God there were more said in the pulpit and everywhere in commendation of holiness. Would that a supreme regard for God's will and a supreme desire for God's approbation were magnified as the highest wisdom, the loftiest and best rule and aim of life.

ASSOCIATIONS OF THE SABBATH.

Baltimore Episcopal Methodist:

The holiest names that glow in the Church's history are blended with its hallowed scenes; the richest ingathering of souls that have been made have been made during its hours. The lands that have most sacredly cherished its observance have been the greenest spots among the nations. And the sweetest memories of piety, the richest trophies of grace, the prayers of the sainted dead, the blood of the noble martyred, the bright recollections of the past and the brighter anticipations of the future—all that is most precious in the heritage of the Church, cluster around and consecrate the observance of "the Lord's day."

HOW TO GIVE ADVICE.

S. S. Times:

Help in the line of verbal suggestions ought to be a matter of special study, for without tact and good judgment the utility of advice may be seriously impaired or wholly destroyed. It is not enough to go blundering along, offering our advice, asked or unasked, pertinent or impertinent, to everybody who we think stands in need of it. Before one endeavors to offer such suggestions as occur to him, he ought to make up his mind whether speech or silence is his duty; and, if he concludes he can make the world or the individual the better for his advice, he ought then to use his utmost endeavors to speak words that shall be sensible, kindly, and timely.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF PRAYER.

The Christian Advocate:

In engineering there is a simple process of measuring angles and an included base line, by which the location of an inaccessible point is accurately determined and thus practically reached. In spiritual engineering prayer is the process by which the humblest saint can reach the pulpit. Prayer is the link by which Omnipotence is coupled on to human weakness and applied to the burdens of life. It is the inspiration by which Omniscience is imparted to human ignorance, and applied to the problems of life. When it is necessary for us to do the impossible, we must pray. When it is necessary for us to find the secret spring of action, we must pray.

NATURE'S LAWS WORK DOWNWARD.

Interior:

The lower life cannot command the upper. The lump of earth cannot shape the flower. The flower cannot determine the flight of the bird above it. The bird's wing cannot reach the thought of a man. But the laws of nature work downward in supreme control. The thought of a man can measure the flight of a bird. The bird can draw nectar out of the flower. The flower can root itself in the lump of earth. It is just as true in the moral realm. The very best part of the kingdom of this world fails to command heaven. Avarice cannot bend generosity to itself, passion cannot bend purity. The love of the world cannot open the gates of glory. Spiritual laws work downward. Grace has power over nature. Heaven owns the kingdom of earth, and most profoundly it is true, they who have that kingdom have all things.

SPIRITUAL DESPONDENCY.

Active devotion to Christ's service is a cure for spiritual despondency. The faith-faculty gets numb by long inaction, just as a limb becomes numb and useless if it is not exercised. The love-power grows cold if it is not kept fired up. When faith and love both run low, the soul easily falls into an ague fit. What you need is to get out of yourself into a sympathy with, and downright efforts for the good of others. When a desponding Christian came to old Dr. Alexander for relief the Doctor urged him to pray. "I do pray continually." "What do you pray for?" The young student said, "I pray that the Lord would lift upon me the light of His countenance." Then replied the sagacious veteran, "Go and pray that He will use you for the conversion of souls." This was on the principle that a man who is in danger of freezing will keep himself warm by pulling others out of the snow. Zealous workers for Christ seldom drift into the region of fogs. They are too busy to nurse doubts, and the exercise of their graces keeps them in a glow.—Dr. T. L. Cuyler.

THE SIGN OF HIS PRESENCE.

Everywhere troubled hearts are asking, What are the signs of a revival of religion? It is not the cry of the multitudes even of professed Christians, for they are exceedingly comfortable, and appear not unlike those who said they were "rich and had need of nothing." There is a comfortable feeling in all our churches. Peace reigns supreme, and there is but little disposition to find fault with pastors, especially if there is no difficulty about the salary. But this popular peace is the quiet of death. Life is full of agitations and frictions. The body twinges with growing pains. It is not a healthy condition when the preaching is not found fault with because of its personalities and its sharp inquisitions into the soul's secrets. If there is unusual life in the pulpit men will get provoked and imagine themselves as specially pointed out and unmercifully cauterized. Men and women should hear sermons that will shove them off the pedestals of self-content. They will then come to believe that they have no religion at all, and it is a most hopeful sign to see them searching about to see if their past has not been full of hypocrisy. Out of such conflicts, in which we are thrown back upon ourselves, we will come purer and better, more loving and trustful.

Our very worst phase of backsliding is our belief that things are going on well enough, and need no more than a little adjusting. And this is a fatal deception. Matters in the church are not well enough. Men and women are living and dying in the gall of bitterness around us. The forces of sin are rampant in infernal ingenuity and violence. Scepticisms, like Pharaoh's pests, are crawling into your very kneading troughs. Intemperance has a fang planted in the heart of half the families of this land, either directly or indirectly. The marriage relation, in which is the Shekinah of religion, is dishonored and contemned. The family altar is set away with the old-time traps of the household in the garret or sent to the auction. The prayer-closet is becoming an obsolete word, and if it abides in the household the doorway is closed with cobwebs. And one of the worst features is that multitudes of good people do not want to hear of the mischiefs of the hour. They cry in pathetic protests, "O comfort us! We don't want to look on the dark side!" Skies lighted by dying meteors are better than no light at all, and others have hinted that this dark side of the picture presented too often will injure the paper, as if the truth was to be observed by wads of paper.

But darkness itself would not be recognizable without some light, and there is some light. "Thou hast a little strength," we may say to the church, and the little strength is shown in this, that there are many who will know the worst, to quicken their energies to the rescue, and knowing God is able, and convinced of His strength and their own impotence, are turning to Him. We can illustrate this hopeful sign thus: When your children are playing in the winter days in the snow, they never complain of cold hands until they come in and put them to the fire, and then the wails of pain go up to mother for help. There are many now doing no more than crying of cold hearts. It shows that they are no longer in the regions of unrelenting ice, but they have reached the fire at last, and now feeling the pangs of their coldness in its presence, are crying to their Father to come to their relief. And this we hear in the hymns that seem as by Divine intuition to be chosen in our meetings for prayer—"Nearer, my God, to Thee;" "Come, Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove;" "O! for a closer walk with God;" "More love to Thee, O Christ;" are now as crests on the waves of religious song.—The Presbyterian.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The Rev. George T. Chandler has been installed as pastor of the church at Americus, Ga.—Southern Presbyterian.

On Saturday, Nov. 8th, a church was organized at Acran in the Presbytery of St. John's. The membership consists of nine persons received at the time of profession and four others. Six of the former received baptism. Mr. James P. Miller and Mr. James R. Campbell were ordained elders, and Mr. E. McEwen was ordained deacon.

Dallas Presbytery has commissioned Rev. Dr. A. P. Smith and T. W. Erwin to organize a church in Dallas county, Texas, to be called Mt. Olivet.—Texas Presbyterian.

Rev. D. L. Wilson, pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian church, Rockingham county, Va., has resigned his charge and requested the congregation to unite with him in asking the Presbytery of Lexington to dissolve the pastoral relation.—Staunton Vindicator, 5th inst.

Tho Rev. J. W. Sexton has accepted an invitation to become pastor of the church at Bryan, Texas.—Southern Presbyterian.

Protracted services followed the dedication of the new church at Belle Haven, and at the communion, on Sunday, the 16th ult., (the first communion in the new church) three persons were received on profession of faith.—Central Presbyterian.

As results of a ten days meeting at Pleasant Ridge church, in Tuskaloosa Presbytery, of which Rev. C. M. Hatton is pastor, ten members were received on profession of faith, others were deeply interested, and the church greatly revived. A weekly prayer-meeting for young men was organized. Rev. Dr. D. D. Sanderson aided the pastor.

The house of worship belonging to Woodruff church, in the Presbytery of Enoree, was dedicated on the first Saturday in November. The Rev. A. A. James preached the dedication sermon.—Southern Presbyterian.

Rev. W. H. Reid, of Nazareth church, Spartanburg county, S. C., has had a beautiful family horse presented to him by his congregation.

The Rev. James E. Jones, pastor of the church at Cedartown, Ga., writes us that his church and the community in which it is situated have been greatly blessed during a series of meetings recently held. Nineteen communicants have been added to the Presbyterian church, and considerable numbers to the Methodist and Baptist churches.—Southern Presbyterian.

The postoffice address of the Rev. R. C. Ligon has been changed from Lowndesville to Stony Point, Anderson county, S. C.

The Presbyterians of Louisville, Ky., at a union meeting for thanksgiving service, on 27th ult., raised $310 for the Presbyterian Orphanage at Anchorage, Ky.

Rev. W. J. Lapsley will remain at Troy, Ky. He has declined the call to Mupen church in Missouri.

A correspondent writes to the Christian Observer that Rev. S. F. Tenney will soon take charge of the Texas Presbyterian.

The postoffice address of Rev. W. R. Coppedge is changed from Catawba, Roanoke county, Va., to Sinking Creek, Craig county, in the same State.

Rev. J. H. Wiggins writes to the Texas Presbyterian from Longview, Texas, November 11th, 1879: "During our meeting in Henderson, we received a young lawyer into our church. Congregations good. Church seemed revived. Beginning on Saturday night before the fourth Sunday in September, I preached four days to good congregations. Received four members into the church, three of the four on profession of faith. On the fourth Sunday of last month I received one member and baptized three children. The ladies of the church have put a beautiful carpet on and around the the pulpit. They also have a beautiful sofa and two nice chairs, and were daily looking for a carpet for the aisle. Another commendable feature is their promptness in paying salary which they pay every month. In the church here (Longview) I have received four members—one on profession and three by certificate within the past few weeks.

P. S.—Since writing the above I have been to Texarkana, and received two members into the church, one on certificate and one on profession of faith; the latter received the rite of baptism."

Rev. Dr. R. G. Brank has been induced by the urgent solicitations of his ministerial brethren and of the congregation of the Central Presbyterian church of St. Louis, Mo., to withdraw his resignation of the pastorate.

Rev. A. W. Milster writes to the St. Louis Presbyterian from Caledonia, Dec. 1st, concerning Bellevue church: "Yesterday was a happy day with us. Fourteen persons were received into the communion of the church, thirteen of whom were received on profession of their faith in Christ and one on certificate from the Methodist Church. 'Hitherto hath the Lord helped us.' His name be praised."

Rev. P. D. Stephenson was installed pastor of the Sedalia church, Nov. 23d, by a committee of the Presbytery of LaFayette. Rev. J. A. Quarles preached the sermon and delivered the charge to the people, and Rev. A. W. Nesbit delivered the charge to the pastor.—St. Louis Presbyterian.

Rev. W. H. Clagett has received a call to the Presbyterian church in Leadville, Col., where he has been preaching several weeks.—St. Louis Presbyterian.

Rev. J. M. Travis writes to the St. Louis Presbyterian: "We last night closed a precious meeting at South Fork church. It has continued for eleven days. Our church has not been so moved to prayerfulness and efforts for Christ's cause for several years. There were twenty-six additions. Many of these were young men. Rev. J. A. Calhoun of Palmyra did the preaching and it was well done. It was rigidly orthodox—rather more expository than is usual at such times—was forcible and stirring."

NORTHERN.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The Westminster Presbyterian church, Toledo, Ohio (Rev. Dr. McCracken's), has borne a debt of $17,000 for some years. On Sunday, November 16, the trustees announced that subscriptions to the full amount had been received.—Presbyterian.

A. E. Garrison of Kingman, Kansas, writes to the Presbyterian, "There is one man that I am anxious to find somewhere in the wide world of ministerial life, and that is a minister to come to Kingman and take charge of the Presbyterian church."

Telegraphic news of Dec. 3d brought this intelligence: "A fair was held last night at a Presbyterian church, corner Broad and ...ord streets, Philadelphia, to defray the expenses of the new organ. Early this morning some of the decorations caught fire, and before the flames could be extinguished everything combustible, including the new organ, was destroyed, and nothing remained but the bare walls and steeple. The church stood alone on the lot, so that the fire did not spread to the surrounding property. The church cost $150,000 about ten years ago, and the damage is estimated at $50,000, which is covered by insurance."

METHODIST.

Rev. John F. Gaucher of Baltimore, Md., has announced his purpose to give $10,000 for the training school in Japan—$5000 to the publishing house in Germany, the remaining $5000 to be held in trust for the Martin Mission Institute.

The National Camp-meeting Association have resolved that they will not hold a national camp-meeting where gate fees are taken on the Sabbath.

One Mrs. DeGroot has given the land and will have, at her expense, a new church edifice built for Methodist worship in Newark, N. J. This is the report.

LUTHERAN.

Roanoke College, Va., will receive $16,000 at the death of the widow of the late Jacob Persinger of Roanoke county. Mr. Persinger makes the provision in his will.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

At the General Theological Seminary in New York city fifty young men have matriculated. The seminary is general for Episcopalians.

A debt of $30,000 on the Seabury School of Divinity at Faribault, Minn., has been paid by friends, and daughters of the late Robert Means Mason have given $20,000 to endow a professorship of Exegesis to be called for their father.

Grace church, Detroit, Mich., has been relieved of debt by a gift of $16,000 from J. W. Waterman, a retired real estate dealer.

BAPTIST.

The Baptists of Ohio expended during the past year $6,063 21 for State Missions. During the same period their district associations spent $5 634 35 in district missionary work. The two amounts aggregate $11,697 56.

Only 20 Baptist churches in Colorado, with a membership of 1,000. The aggregate amount paid for salaries of all the ministers last year was $1,200.

The National Baptist says: "In twenty Baptist churches in Philadelphia, with a membership of about 6,500 persons, the attendance at the weekly prayer-meetings is reported at 1,588. Included in the above is the Fourth Baptist church, at Fifth and Buttonwood streets, whose reported membership is the largest, there being 952 communicants, and the attendance at prayer-meetings 214."

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN.

Messrs. Ibraheem Yoosef and Iscaros Masood were ordained by the Presbytery of Egypt at its meeting, October 15th, and settled, the former in the pastoral charge of the native church in Osiout, and the latter of the one in Benook, both in Upper Egypt.—Presbyterian.

CONGREGATIONALIST.

The Christian Intelligencer says: Hartford, Vt., as well as Hartford, Conn., has an honorable reputation for supplying churches with ministers. Twelve ministers and six ministers' wives have gone out from that town, besides sixteen deacons and twenty deacons' wives.

The New Jersey Minutes just published, show a list of thirty-one churches (eight of them in Pennsylvania, Maryland, District of Columbia or Virginia,) having a total membership of 4,685, with a net gain of fifty-three for the year, total charities, $15,055; home expenses, $67,802.

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

A California newspaper says: "Bodie, Cal., is the only city of 8,000 inhabitants in the world, which has no church.

Peter Cooper will give $30,000 to the Cooper Union, New York, for the purpose of furnishing free instruction in the use of tools and machinery.

A cave just discovered near Quero, in the Province of Treviso, Italy, contains a large number of bears' teeth and bones, as also a quantity of stone impliments.

The lottery mania at Mandalay is said to be so possessed the people that Burmese parents are selling their daughters to procure money to purchase tickets.

For Mrs. Hayes two Philadelphia ladies made a beautiful screen of black cloth, embroidered in colors and set in an ebony frame. It was presented to her at the Methodist Fair in Philadelphia recently.

A whole brass band in one man has invaded the streets of Brooklyn. He plays a bagpipe with his fingers; beats a drum, carried on his back, with drum-sticks fastened to his arms; sounds a pair of cymbals and a triangle, with a motion of the foot, and completes his medley of sounds by jingling the bells on the little cap he wears on his head.

California farmers are cultivating fig trees for the sole purpose of raising and fattening hogs. The fruit contains large quantities of saccharine matter, hence is very fattening. The fig-tree once well started, requires litttie attention, bears several crops a year and is very profitable.

The Bombay Gazette says that King Theebaw, of Burmah, has made ready for his son and heir two cradles, covered with gold, and studded with diamonds and rubies and said to be worth five lacs of rupees (£50,000.)

On the 6th inst. the police of New York made a descent upon the lottery establishment of M. A. Dauphin.

It is not generally known that the trade in furs in North Carolina has assumed large proportions. Raleigh and Greensboro are the principal markets from which the furs are shipped. The pelts dealt in are commonly those of the mink, otter, fox, coon, muskrat and rabbit. The skin of the silver fox is the most valuable of all, and for a good one is paid $200. The season begins about the 1st December and closes the 1st of May. Mr. Joseph P. Hayes of this city handled last year 7,000 skins of the fox, mink and coon and 300,000 dozen rabbit skins.—Hale's Weekly.

A Berlin dispatch to the Standard says the Czar will inform the nobility of Moscow, at the reception, of his determination to call a number of unofficial advisers to assist him in the government of the empire. The council will be purely deliberative, without any right of control or interference. It will be chosen partly by the suffrages of the middle and peasant classes, and partly by direct nomination of the Czar from the ranks of the hereditary nobility. Other measures of local reform will be announced. These innovations have been strongly advocated by the Czarewitch.

DEATH OF MRS. MARY P. HARRISS.—Mrs. Mary P. Harriss died in Wilmington, on the evening of the 3d instant, at the age of 78.

Since the year 1831, nearly fifty years, she had been a consistent member of the First Presbyterian church of this city. To her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren she presented an example of unobtrusive, truthful and devoted Christian character.

Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord; Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them.

DEATH OF DR. KING.—Dr. J. Francis King, one of the most skilful and popular physicians of Wilmington, died in New York, on Sunday evening last.

To very many families in this city Dr. King was specially endeared in the practice of his profession, and to those the loss will be like the loss of a brother. Dr. King was about 50 years of age. For a few months past he had laid aside the practice of his profession in search of health.

We call attention to the offer of new and choice books by the Presbyterian Publishing Company, of Richmond, Va.

THE HOME CIRCLE.—We were favored yesterday by a call from Mrs. M. Britton, editor of The Home Circle, a paper published in Charleston, S. C. It is devoted to literature, romance and home matters, and especially designed to suit the tastes and serve the interests of the ladies. The copy before us is very clearly printed and in every way creditable. We commend the paper to our lady readers.

OUR PAPER.

We do not forget that the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN is read not only by Ministers, who by reason of training and study are specially fond of profound discussions of religious philosophy, but by both sexes, and by all classes and conditions of persons. Consequently it is our aim to present such a variety of moral and religious reading that the paper will commend itself to all as a popular vehicle of such information and instruction as not only ought to be read, but as will be read by young and old, rich and poor, clergy and laity, learned and unlearned. We present no elaborate prospectus. To any who may desire to know more of the paper, we refer to its friends, who may be found in almost any community, or we will gladly send sample copies on application.

OUR PREMIUMS.

We invite special attention to the premiums we are offering with the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN for the ensuing year:

To any subscriber, the paper one year, and Kitto's Cyclopedia ($5 00 edition) for $4 75.

The paper one year and Conybeare and Howson's Life of St. Paul ($4.00 edition) for $4 50.

The paper one year and Cruden's Unabridged Concordance for $4 00.

To any one sending us THREE new subscribers at $2 65 each we give

SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY,

OR

THE LIFE OF ST. PAUL

As a premium for TWO new subscribers, at $2 65 each, we give

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.

To every New Subscriber at $2 65 we will give a MAP OF PALESTINE, 28x42

We have sent this Map to a large number of persons and feel justified in saying it gives entire satisfaction. The publisher's price is $1 00.

The Cyclopedia and the Bible Dictionary are very cheap—exceedingly cheap. And

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE,

COMPLETE—UNABRIDGED,

Being an index to every important word in the Scriptures and the Apocrypha—with full definitions of the Theologicol and Scriptural meanings of words, and having the texts indicated with the respective meanings. We say this Concordance—the best probably in the world is a marvel of cheapness. No Christian family—or other family—should be without it.

WE SPECIALLY OFFER

The Paper one year with the

CONCORDANCE,

To any new Subscriber for $3 50.

In all cases we prepay postage.

WE BELIEVE

That if every one would use Hop Bitters freely there would be much less sickness and misery in the world, and people are fast finding this out, whole families keeping well at a trifling cost by its use. We advise all to try it —U. & A., Rochester, N. Y.

FOR CATARRHAL and Throat Disorders "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are renowned and marvellously effective, giving immediate relief in most cases.

Messrs. Polk Miller & Co:
Vest Pocket Cure is of tried virtue. I have seen Dyspepsia cured completely by it. It seems to be an antidote to our "National Disease." The ingredients are not kept by the apothecaries, and have been difficult to get —Editor Richmond Christian Advocate

MARRIED.

☞No notice of a marriage or death will be inserted unless accompanied by a responsible name, which is wanted not for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.

Near Carthage, Moore county, on 4th of December, by Rev. M. McQueen, Mr. D. A. PRIEST, of Cumberland county, and Miss CATHARINE CAMERON, of Cumberland county.

At Thyatira church, Nov. 26, 1879, by Rev. J. Alston Ramsay, Mr. ELIJAH MILLER and Miss ANGIE HOUCK, daughter of Col. W. A. Houck.

In Orange county, N. C., Nov. 20th, 1879, by Rev. C. N. Morrow, Mr. ROBERT SHARP and Miss NANNIE C. HART. All of Orange county.

In Alamance county, N. C., Nov. 26th, 1879, by Rev. C. N. Morrow, Mr. WM. A. BARNWELL and Miss LIZZIE PATTON. All of Alamance county.

25c. buys a pair of Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners and make a boot or shoe last twice as long.

DIED.

☞Obituary notices must be paid for in advance. The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

At Hillsboro, N. C., on the night of Saturday, the 29th of November, Dr. EDMUND STRUDWICK.

He was born in Orange county in March, 1802, and was therefore in his 78th year. His remains were interred on Monday afternoon.

No death so much in the form of a public calamity has ever fallen upon the citizens of Hillsboro. Identified with that community for more than half a century, he had won, and through his long life retained in an unusual degree, the affection, the respect, the confidence of all classes. The good physician, the safe counsellor, the generous friend, the hospitable gentleman, the enlightened citizen, in all the varied relations in which he stood to the world he won every heart and commanded every judgment. Father, friend, guide, his heart, his purse and his professional skill were at the command of all, and without question, his warm affections and his generous bounty were unstintedly lavished. No man has ever gone down to the grave followed by more sincere outpourings of heartfelt sorrow.

His was a beautiful Christian life, exemplifying its highest and purest characteristics by consistent and uniform observance of its teachings. Nothing but its pure and elevating lessons could have animated a heart so warm and so guileless, so affectionate, so generous and so trustful. A long life of active devotion to duty, glorified with the brightest attributes of the Christian character, is suddenly closed, but closed without the usual terrors of the death-bed, for his eyes closed upon this mortal existence without the consciousness of suffering, and the dawn of a glorious eternity broke up his vision with the blissful transition of a bodily translation.

In Wadesboro, on the 24th of November, Miss SARAH ANN, second daughter of Edmund T. and Catherine Lilly.

Long days and wearisome nights were the portion of the deceased, yet she bore them with Christian patience. For about twenty years she had been an humble follower of Jesus, in the Presbyterian Church. In every department of life: as a teacher, as a daughter, as a sister, and as a friend, she exemplified the power of divine grace, but it was in her last sickness when she, by her patience and submission, so beautifully adorned the doctrine of Christ. She was willing to live or ready to depart. She lived a life of faith in Christ, and in her death she gave evidence that she was going home to reap the reward of that life, true life, eternal life. In this State she leaves a lone sister and many friends to mourn her death, but they have the hope, that it is well with the departed. PASTOR.

At the residence of her husband, on Middle Sound, New Hanover county, on the morning of December 1st, Mrs. HANNAH CATHARINE EVERETT, wife of Mr. Reuben Everett, aged about 50 years.

Deceased had been a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for a goodly number of years; and in her life was exemplified much Christian patience and forbearance. The hearts of her sorrowing relatives and friends are cheered by the bright hope that she has passed over the river and is now in the full enjoyment of the rest that awaits those who are faithful to the end. All is well!

"High in heaven's own light she dwelleth;
Full the song of triumph swelleth:
Freed from earth and earthly failing,
Lift for her no voice of wailing." B.

WILMINGTON MARKET
DURING WEEK
ENDING DECEMBER 2.

THE attention of all persons interested is called to the fact that strict personal attention is given to the collection of the necessary information, and the careful preparation of our MARKET REPORT, so as to give a correct general review of transactions and prices, for the week ending each Tuesday morning.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—Sales were made at 38 cents until Friday, when price declined to 37½ cents. Saturday 37½ cents, and so unchanged till close.

ROSIN—Strained and Good Strained $1 30 throughout period of report, with increased activity towards the close.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—Hard $1 60 and Yellow Dip. Receipts day by day sold at these figures.

TAR—Receipts were taken regularly at $1 10 per 280 lbs.

COTTON—On Wednesday sales were made at 12@12½ cents for Middling, an advance of ⅛@¼ cent on quotations of previous day. Thursday market opened firm and sales were made at 12⅜; Friday 12⅜; Saturday market opened firm and sales were made at 12⅜ cents, but later 12¼ cents was best offer. Monday market settled at figures last named.

GRAIN—Market firm and Corn in demand. Peas—Market dull and demand light.

TIMBER—One extra fine lot Railroad timber sold for $12 50; one lot raft timber, Fair Mill, at $7 50. Scarce and wanted.

WHOLESALE PRICES.

☞ These quotations represent the wholesale prices.

ARTICLES.	PRICES.
BACON—Western Smoked—
Hams	10	a	12
Sides, per lb	0	a	7½
Shoulders		a	6½
Dry Salted—
Sides, per lb	0	a	7½
Shoulders	0	a	6
CHEESE—Northern Factory, per lb	0	a	11
Dairy, cream per lb	00	a	14½
State, per lb	00	a	10
COFFEE—Rio, per lb	13	a	18
Laguayra, per lb	18	a	20
CORN MEAL—per bush in sacks	00	a	75
DOMESTICS—Sheetings, 4-4, per yd		a	7½
Yarn, per bunch	00	a	85
FLOUR—Fine, per bbl	0 00	a	5 00
Super, Northern, per bbl	5 50	a	6 00
Extra do. " per bbl	6 25	a	6 50
Family " per bbl	7 50	a	9 00
City Mills—Extra Super, per bbl	0 00	a	7 25
" Family, per bbl	0 00	a	7 75
" Extra do., per bbl	0 00	a	8 25
GLUE—per lb	14	a	16
GRAIN—Corn, in sacks, per 56 lbs from store—white	72½	a	75
CORN, wholesale, in sacks	65	a	67½
Corn, mixed, wholesale in sacks	65	a	67½
Corn, Cargo, per 56 lbs, bulk	60	a	62½
Oats, per bushel from store	60	a	57½
Peas, Cow, per bushel	60	a	65
HOOP IRON—per ton	00	a	95 00
LARD—Northern, per lb	9½	a	10
North Carolina, per lb	10	a	11
LIME—per bbl	0 00	a	1 00
MOLASSES—West Indies, old crop	33	a	36
" " bbls	35	a	38
" " new crop	35	a	37
" " bbls	37	a	39
New Orleans	28	a	50
Sugar House, hhds, per gal	24	a	25
" " bbls., per gal	00	a	26
Syrup, bbls., per gal	40	a	55
NAILS—Cut, 4d to 20d, per keg	00	a	3 70
OILS—Kerosene, per gal	13½	a	15
Lard, per gal	1 00	a	1 10
PEANUTS—per bushel	80	a	1 15
PORK—Northern, City Mess	12 00		12 50
SALT—Alum, per bag of 2 bushels	1 00	a	00
Alum, per ton	6 00		7 00
Liverpool, per sack	80		85
Liverpool fine, per sack	82½	a	85
SUGAR—Cuba, per lb	8½	a	10½
Porto Rico, per lb	0	a	7½
A—Coffee, per lb	9	a	11
B— " per lb	9	a	11¼
C " per lb	9	a	9½
Ex. C— per lb	0	a	9½
Crushed, per lb	00	a	11½
SOAP—Northern, per lb	5	a	7
Crampton's N. Y. Palm Soap, per box 100 lbs., ½ bars	0 00	a	4 20
TIMBER—Shipping, per M	13 00	a	18 00
Mill Prime, per M	9 00	a	11 00
Mill Fair, per M	5 50	a	8 50
Inferior to Ordinary, per M	3 00	a	5 00

Oratory! Pathos! Humor! Fun!
100 CHOICE SELECTIONS No 17 NOW READY. P. GARRETT & CO. 708 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.
dec 10 623-4t

TOBACCO APPETITE REMOVED! No Fee charged until cured. Send Stamp GIANT SYSTEM MED. CO., Cleveland Ohio.
dec 10 622-2t

Beatty's Tour in Europe.
Only 10 cents. Being a condensed history and travels in Europe, over 80 engravings, nearly 100 pages, nicely bound book, sent for only 10 cents, address the Author and Publisher, DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, N. J. 622-1t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.
BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.
LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.
The Remington Sewing Machine
A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.
Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.
Safety Oil 20 Cents Per Gallon.
GEO. A. PECK,
25 South Front Street.
dec 10 622-tf

THE GOLDEN LIGHT,
A SONG BOOK FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS,
PUBLISHED BY
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO'Y.,
1001 Main St., RICHMOND, Va., or
207 North 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, Mo.
Single copy by mail 10 cents; per dozen $1 00—by mail $1 10; per hundred $7 50—by mail $8 50
This number will be followed every six months by similar publications, each containing twenty-five or thirty new and choice pieces of music, and about the same number of standard Sunday School hymns.
dec 10 622 3m

G. H. GRAVES,
—WITH—
YEARGAN, PETTY & Co
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Notions, &c.
RALEIGH, N. C.
Would be glad to have his friends and everybody else to call. He guarantees to sell them goods cheaper than they can be bought elsewhere in the city. Orders are solicited from Merchants and all others.
Messrs. Yeargan, Petty & Co. keep an assortment of RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS and DRESS GOODS.
Special attention is asked to their line of Hamburg and Nainsook Edgings and Insertions, Silk Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Ladies' Dress Shoes, &c.
dec 10 622-1m

Nice Books
—FOR—
HOLIDAY PRESENTS.
CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE, $1 50;
TEACHER'S BIBLES from $1 50 to $8 00;
CHURCH HYMN BOOKS from $1 00 to $3 00;
CHATTERBOX, 1879, $1 00;
WILLIAM, THE BAPTIST, 2d edition, $1 00;
DABNEY'S THEOLOGY, sheep, 2d edition, $5 00;
PROPHECY; A Series of Lectures by Rev. A. P. Foreman, $1 50;
BALM FOR WOUNDED SPIRITS, by W. S. Plumer, D. D., Paper covers, 10 cents.
ASSURANCE OF GRACE AND SALVATION, By Same, Paper, 10 cents;
HAPPY THOUGHTS FOR CHRISTMAS. Beautifully Illustrated, 30 full page engravings, $1 00;
MEMOIR of REV. DR. DAVID COULTER. With Reminiscences, Letters, Lectures and Sermons, $1 50;
A Thousand other Beautiful Books for Christmas Presents and Sunday School Libraries.
Send for approved Lists to
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va.
Or, 207 N. 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.
dec 10 622-tf

PARLOR ORGAN Solid Walnut Case. 5 Octaves 2 full sets Powerful Reeds, 9 Stops, 3 Knee Swells only $50. Address U. S. PIANO CO., 163 Bleecker St., N. Y.
dec 10 622-4t

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine

SELECT BOARDING
AND
DAY SCHOOL,
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.
Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.
THE FALL TERM of 1879 will open the 25th of JULY and close on 11th DECEMBER. Circulars forwarded on application.
466-*jan.1,'79

READERS O THE PRESBYTERIAN
If you like to be satisfied deal with
MOTT & CAMPEN,
—Dealers in—
BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.
We keep on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain our reputation in this regard. We will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,
MOTT & CAMPEN.
North side Market Street, bet. 2d and 3d.
P. S.—Those who have First Beef to sell would do well to consult us either by mail or in person.
nov 19 619-tf

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER.
Send your orders by mail.

An Elegant Holiday Present.—A Gilt Bound Autograph Album, with 48 beautifully engraved pages and 47 select quotations, all for 15c post-paid, Stamps taken. Agents wanted. DAY & CO. West Haven, Ct.
nov 19 619-4t eow

AGENTS, READ THIS
We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.

COTTON!
IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants
For the Sale of Cotton,
Which they are prepared to do
On the Most Economical Charges.
They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.
ALEX. SPRUNT & SON.
Wilmington, N. C.
September 30, 1879. 608

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.
WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.
Our Trimming Department is Complete,
and comprises the leading styles.
Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.
We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.
Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.
The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.
N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.
nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.
THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the
Latest and Most Approved Style.
To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.
"First Come, First Served."
MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
apl 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.
Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings Machinery of Every Description.
Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.
TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER
The Invention of the Age.
It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape.)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
☞Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.

THOS. A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.
McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.
Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 593 1y.

POWDER! POWDER!
WE ARE AGENTS for THE HAZARD POWDER COMPANY, and keep constantly on hand, their celebrated brands of
KENTUCKY RIFLE POWDER
IN KEGS, HALF-KEGS, and QUARTER KEGS.
—ALSO—
Deer Powder and Blasting Powder
WILLARD BROS.
Wilmington, N. C.

PROVERBS.
"The Richest Blood, Sweetest Breath and Fairest Skin in Hop Bitters."
"A little Hop Bitters saves big doctor bills and long sickness."
"That invalid wife, mother, sister or child can be made the picture of health with Hop Bitters."
"When worn down and ready to take your bed, Hop Bitters is what you need."
"Don't physic and physic, for it weakens and destroys, but take Hop Bitters, that build up continually."
"Physicians of all schools use and recommend Hop Bitters. Test them."
"Health is beauty and joy—Hop Bitters gives health and beauty."
"There are more cures made with Hop Bitters than all other medicines."
"When the brain is wearied, the nerves unstrung, the muscles weak, use Hop Bitters."
"That low, nervous fever, want of sleep and weakness, calls for Hop Bitters."
Hop Cough Cure and Pain Relief is Pleasant, Sure and Cheap.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Customers Wanted.
We are now receiving our Fall stock of
DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, BOOTS, SHOES,
Groceries, Hardware,
COTTON BAGGING, TIES, &c.,
All of which we are offering low.
Highest cash prices paid for COTTON, NAVAL STORES, and all kinds of country produce.
BRYAN & CO.,
Jonesboro, N. C.

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. DR. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.
nov 19 619-13t

FALL STOCK.
WE HAVE ON HAND NOW THE LARGEST and most handsome
STOCK OF GOODS
We have ever offered in this market. A thorough examination of our Stock will not only convince you that it is full, but you will find that we can compare styles, qualities and prices with any house in the State. Our stock of
Fancy Dress Goods, Cashmeres and Alpaccas
Is complete, and we are confident we can please any one wanting anything in this line. A full line of Flannels, Repellants, Cassimeres, Jeans, Damasks, Oil Cretonnes, Domestics, &c. We have a very large stock of CLOAKS AND SHAWLS that we will sell very cheap. Our stock of Clothing, Hats and Caps,
Boots and Shoes, Trunks and Valises, is complete, and at prices that will make it to your interest to buy from us. Carpets and Oil Cloths.
T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opp. Charlotte Hotel, Tryon st., Charlotte, N. C. oct 29 616-tf

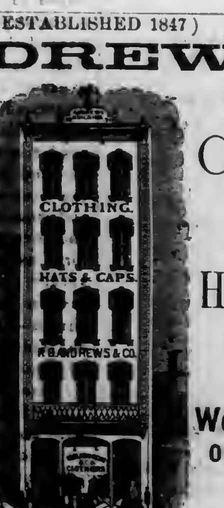
DeROSSET & NORTHROP,
FIRE AND MARINE
INSURANCE AGENTS,
REPRESENTING Standard American AND English Companies.
28 North Water Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
nov 19 619-tf

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.
LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.
Children's Merino Under Suits---A great comfort and convenience.
CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.
LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.
PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,
In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.
A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.
OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.
Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.
dec 3 621-1y

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847) S. W. WHITING.
R. B. ANDREWS & CO.
Men and Boys Extra Large Sizes
CLOTHING, CLOTHING,
A Specialty.



Dress Shirts, Cuffs,
TIES, SCARFS,
Half Hose, Suspenders,
Gloves,
Handkerchiefs, Underwear,
Trunks, Valises, &c.
HATS AND CAPS,
A Large Assortment.
We give special attention to orders from a distance.
LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.
NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh. N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods
—AT—
M. M. KATZ'S,
36 MARKET STREET.
BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.
Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.
DRESS GOODS,—Satin Melange, Cashmere Soie, Brocade Persan, Persan Raye, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.
MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Ete, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.
CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS, Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets. The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.
MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c, &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to oct 22 M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

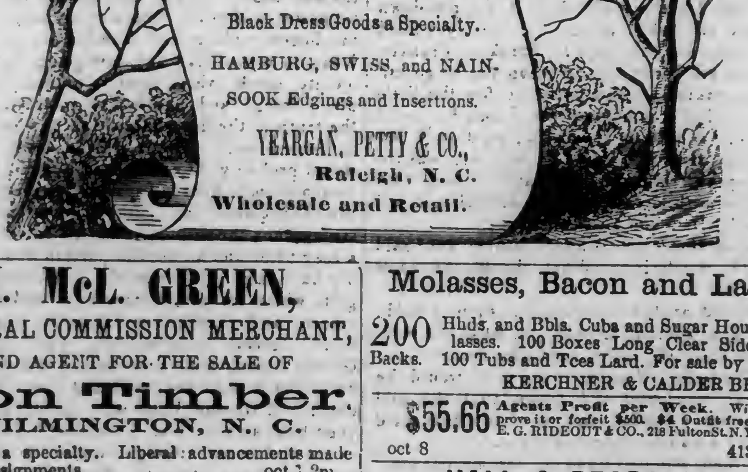
RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS!



H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber.
WILMINGTON, N. C.
Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments. oct 1-2m

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.
THE FALL TERM of 1879 opens Wednesday, AUGUST 27. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks.
Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.
Address MRS. E. N. GRANT, Principal.
feb 20 528-1y

CO-PARTNERSHIP.
The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of
BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,
For the purpose of carrying on a
General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,
AT THE OLD STANDS,
5, 7 and 8, North Front Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.
JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.
Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 3, 1877.
oct 10 509-

A WONDER IN OPTICS.
MAGIC LANTERN WITH 36 VIEWS $12.00 THEO. J. HARBACH 809 FILBERT ST PHILA PA
A COMPLETE EXHIBITION FOR $12.

INSTITUTE FOR TRAINING OF COLORED MINISTERS
Under the care of the General Assembly.
Located at TUSKALOOSA, ALA.
THE FOURTH SESSION, of ten months, will commence on the 1st day of September next, under the instruction of Rev. D. C. Rankin, Professor, who has the best testimonials of fitness for the work, in his deep interest in the colored people, and his past labors in their behalf, his ample scholarship, and his aptness to teach.
All the branches necessary to fit candidates for the Gospel Ministry will be taught. Some acquaintance with the early branches of English will be required for entrance. Candidates must come recommended by their Presbyteries or Committees of Education; and if of other denominations, must have similar credentials.
No charge for tuition. Board can be had on reasonable terms.
C. A. STILLMAN, Superintendent.
july 23 602-tf

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.
200 Hhds. and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses. 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., 218 Fulton St. N. Y.
oct 8 413-26t

HALL & PEARSALL
OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of
100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER,
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.
sep 3—608-tf

CHEESE.
200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,
For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

Fresh Arrivals.
100 Boxes CREAM CHEESE,
50 Tubs LARD,
10 Tierces Fairbanks' LARD,
100 Boxes SOAP,
100 Boxes POTASH and LYE,
200 Bags SHOT,
BAGGING AND TIES,
10 Tierces good cheap HAMS.
For sale low by
HALL & PEARSALL.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
Charlotte, N. C.,
KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will Compete in Prices,
—EITHER—
WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,
With any Market.
All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods
VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.
We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.
BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 185.

SALT! SALT! SALT!
21,000 Sacks now on way from England, and daily expected, consisting of Fine Table Salt, 224 lbs and 150 lbs, in white twilled sacks, 150 lbs in Dundee stripe sacks. Liverpool Ground Alum Salt, in new striped sacks, from 150 to 200 lbs. Send for quotations delivered at your depot.
Apply at WILLARD'S,
No. Water st., Wilmington, N. C.
dec 3 621-tf

FOR THE FAMILY.

Two Ways of Putting It.

The Sultan awoke with a stifled scream:
His nerves were shocked by a fearful dream:

An omen of terrible import and doubt—
His teeth in one moment all fell out.

His wisemen assembled at break of day,
And stood by the throne in solemn array.

And when the terrible dream was told,
Each felt a shudder, his blood ran cold,

And all stood silent, in fear and dread,
And wondering what was best to be said.

At length an old soothsayer, wrinkled and gray,
Cried, "Pardon, my lord, what I have to say;

"'Tis an omen of sorrow sent from on high:
Thou shalt see all thy kindred die."

Wroth was the Sultan; he gnashed his teeth,
And his very words seemed to hiss and seethe,

As he ordered the wiseman bound with chains,
And gave him a hundred stripes for his pains.

The wisemen shook as the Sultan's eye
Swept round to see who next would try:

But one of them, stepping before the throne,
Exclaimed, in a loud and joyous tone:

"Exult, O head of a happy state!
Rejoice, O heir of a glorious fate!

"For this is the favor thou shalt win,
O Sultan—to outlive all thy kin!"

Pleased was the Sultan, and called a slave,
And a hundred crowns to the wiseman gave.

But the courtiers they nod, with grave, sly winks,
And each one whispers what each one thinks.

"Well can the Sultan reward and blame:
Didn't both of the wisemen foretell the same?"

Quoth the crafty old Vizier, shaking his head,
"So much may depend on the way a thing's said!"

—Christian at Work.

Trusting God.

One of Daniel Quorm's class said that she "could not trust the Lord where she could not trace him." Daniel did not believe in that, and, after speaking his own mind, he called on "Frankie," who spoke as follows:

"You've been talkin' about trustin' in the Lord when we can't trace him. Well (bless his dear name!) I don't know anything about tracin' him, and I never thought anything about that. But I do love to think about trustin' him, and I do know something about that (bless him)!

"I be a poor, ignorant scholar, an' always seem to be down at the bottom o' the class in a good many things. But (bless him!) I've had enough, I reckon, to make me a'most the top o' the class in trustin' him. O, dear leader! it be 'xactly as you've been sayin'—so safe that you don't think 'pon it, just lyin' down in his arms, without a morsel o' care or frettin', but feeling so sure that everything be as right as it can be, and never a shadow o' fear comes creepin' between his sunshine an' me. Why, if heaven be any better than that, then heaven must be a wonderful place, sure 'nough.

"It came to my mind a week or two ago, so full, an' sweet, an' precious that I can hardly think of anything else. It was durin' them cold northeast winds; these winds had made my cough very bad, an' I was shook all to bits, and felt very ill. My wife was sittin' by my side, an' once, when I had a sharp fit of it, she put down her work, an' looked at me till her eyes filled with tears, an' she says: 'Frankie, Frankie, whatever will become of us when you be gone?' She was makin' a warm petticoat for the little maid, so, after a minute or two, I took hold of it an' says: 'What are 'ee makin', my dear?' She held it up without a word; her heart was too full to speak. 'For the little maid?' I said. 'An' a nice warm thing, too. How comfortable it will keep her! Does she know about it?'

"'Know about it? Why of course not,' said the wife, wondering. 'What should she know about it for?'

"I waited another minute, an' then I said: 'What a wonderful mother you must be, wife, to think about the little maid like that!'

"'Wonderful, Frankie? Why, it would be more like wonderful if I forgot that the cold weather was a comin', and that the little maid would be a wantin' somethin' warm.'

"So, then, you see, I had got her, my friends," and Frankie smiled. "'O wife!' says I, 'do you think that you be goin' to take care o' the little maid like that, an' your Father in heaven be a goin' to forget you altogether? Come now (bless him!), isn't he as much to be trusted as you are? An' do you think that he'd see the winter comin' up sharp an' cold an' not have something waiting for you an' just what you want, too? An' I know, dear wifie, that you wouldn't like to hear the little maid go a-frettin' and sayin: 'There the cold winter be a-comin', an' whatever shall I do if my mother shall forget me?' Why, you'd be hurt and grieved that she should doubt you like that. She knows that you care for her, an' what more does she need to know? That's enough to keep her from frettin' about anything. Your heavenly Father knoweth that you have need of all these things. That be down in his book for you, wifie, an' on purpose for you, an' you grieve and hurt him when you go to frettin' about the future, an' doubtin' his love.'

"'Ah, Frankie! I wish I had your faith,' says she. An' I let her go on with her work, hopin' she would think it over.

"When the little maid came home from school that afternoon she had a bit of a sick headache. She went frettin' about the kitchen whilst her mother was gettin' the tea, an' could not rest quiet for a minute altogether. But when the wife sat down the little maid came an' laid herself in her mother's arms, an' put her head on her bosom, an' her mother began to sing a quiet kind o' hymn to her. Then the little maid forgot her frettin' and sunk down all snug an' comfortable, and in a few minutes she was gone off to sleep.

"'Frankie,' I says to myself, as I gazed at it, 'there's a lesson for thee. Sometimes the children o' the heavenly Father get all fretful an' sickly, an' they go here an' there, and can't find a comfortable place anywhere, but are all nervous an' fidgety. Here's what thou must do, Frankie; thou must come and lay thyself down in the everlastin' arms, an' lean thy tired head upon the bosom o' thy dear Lord, an' draw his love in all around thee; an' a'most before thou know it all thy fears an' troubles shall be hushed off to sleep, an' thou'lt hear nothin' but a quiet kind o' sighin' in thy soul tellin' o' his love.' Ah! it be more than true, truer than any words can tell, or anybody can think, for 'like as a father (or mother either) pitieth his children so the Lord pitieth them that fear him.'

"It be a poor thing to go a tracin' him. But it be a blessed thing, sure 'nough, to put your trust in him. An' I can't understand how anybody can help a doin' it. Why, when things have come to the worst, an' I do know what that be—when the money been gone, an' the cupboard been empty, an' the devil has come a-temptin' for he do love to hit a man when he's down—I've got down 'pon my knees, just like as if I'd got down under the cross for a bit o' shelter from the storm. An' whichever way the wind blow, a man can get shelter there. Well, let me lift my eyes to Jesus, an' see him there for me, with the crown o' thorns, an' the nails in his blessed hands an' feet, an' very soon my heart be so full as ever it can hold. 'O, Frankie!' I cry out, 'the King o' glory died for thee—died like that. One drop o' his precious blood is more than all worlds, but for thee his heart emptied itself.' He gave himself for me."

The old man's voice grew hoarse with emotion as he went on:

"Why, I kiss those bleeding feet, an' every bit o' life an' strength in me cries out: 'My dear Lord, I can starve, but this I can never do—never, never. My Lord, I can never doubt thy love.'"—Daniel Quorm.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Walter Scott.

That Scott was the mechanic of his genius, or that genius was the slave of his pride, takes nothing from the inherent value of his work. His life was apart altogether from his creations; and we should say no one was more puzzled to explain their immediate and immense popularity than he was himself, though we know now that it was in the glamour of romance and the haze of antiquity hanging round every sentence—in the witchery of which by a strange unforced subtility he enwrapped his reader—that his most potent charms lay. Besides, the time wanted the man and the man came—came to a clear field. Had he come now, with all the gauze of his hoary trappings, he would have had to encounter vastly greater coldness and unconcern. His plots are not of the modern kind; the reader is never made to caracole past hobgoblins and murders to the abyss of the catastrophe; the most of his characters are grand public men and women—the incident history manipulated; and every creature of his creation appears before us in drapery that hangs gracefully together. Goethe repeatedly commends this feature in Scott, and admired as unique the subtile charm—it cannot be called skill—which made characters merge imperceptibly from high tragedy into side-scenes and side-play.

Describing the manners of past ages, Scott himself can never be identified or confounded with any of his princely personalities. He takes us back to the time and the spot, and puts the pigment on before our eyes. His drawing is none the worse because of its elaborateness, or because precision is not greatly studied. Every face has its clear outline and fitting complexion; and his respect for the reader makes him put his own spectacles out of the way, when his work is done, and say, "There it is, sir, take your own view."

You can't mistake the color of the pantoufflee, the shape of the ruffles, or the turn of the shoe. The only things he borrowed from the present were his faces. He went about picking up 19th century men and sent them adrift in the middle ages. His lover's face appears in three places; Erskine was Darsie Latimer; Miss Cranstoun, Die Vernon; Laidlaw, Dandie Dinmont; and M'Guffog, a witness in the tipsy minister's case, figures along with Dirk Hatteraik in "Guy Mannering." Rarely, however, does he draw on his own experience, except, perhaps in the matters of beauty, horsemanship, and honor. He would have fought a duel with Gen. Gourgaud, if the General had challenged him as he expected for a political disclosure in the 'History of Napoleon." Mr. Hutton truly says, he did himself what he would have made his heroes do. He is like none of his successors, who all deal with the intense present and intense reality. Said Carlyle, "Your Shakespeare fashions his characters from the heart outwards; your Scott fashions them from the skin inwards, never getting near the heart of them." The justice of this judgment has been only feebly impugned. It is because he seldom gets near the heart, and seldom felt the dreadful poignancy of intense emotions, bitter experiences, and the tearing conflicts of the inner world, that his endless romance is endlessly entertaining. His men and women, like himself, lived in baronial residences, and, like him, they have much heart, a good deal of brain, but very little soul, and none of the over soul. He had little dissective or analytic power, and never concealed his inaptitude for the domestic pictures. "The big bow-wow strain I can do myself like any now going, but the exquisite touch which renders ordinary commonplace things and characters interesting, from the truth of the description and the sentiment, is denied me." The religious novel, too, he would probably have shunned, for his views on sacred themes were but sparingly expressed; and the impression one gathers from his works strengthens the suspicion that his choice between a rosy prior and an ascetic puritan would probably have lain with the monk. Indeed, his religion, while, for aught we see, it was perfectly sincere, and practical so far as it went, was a little formal, conventional, and apathetic. George Macdonald's heresies and spiritual Presbyterians would have perplexed him. The philosophy of George Eliot was immeasurably beyond him; as also was Thackeray's philosophic satire and moral thoughtfulness; in short, he seems to have joined in the comical couplet of Walter de Mapes:

> "Mysterious and prophetic truths
> I never could unfold 'em."

He dearly loved a joke, and wrote many, but, as a class, they are of a decidedly lumbering kind. He had neither the crisp humor nor the exquisite pathos of Dickens. Yet his style, full of adroit grace, and always plump and round, easily eludes the imitator. Often redundant and elephantine, there is freshness in the redundancy itself. He always wrote without throes, the result being a full and easy flow. The mere plot gave him little trouble; he arranged the heads and plans of chapters while he dressed or superintended the planting of his trees; and if the printers pressed him for copy his composition was all the more free and swift that something goaded him on. We dare say it might be said of him that of all ready-writers he was the only one whom Sheridan would have excepted when he said, "Easy writing is sometimes very hard reading"—From "Great Novelists" by James Crabb Watt.

Better and Cheaper Fences.

In 1860 an Iowa blacksmith attempted to render wire fence more effective by attaching a kind of barbs or points along it, at frequent intervals. He bent a common horse-shoe nail once around the wire closely, leaving the two ends projecting as barbs on each side. As the nails worked loose by the expansion and contraction of heat and cold, he tried to fasten them by winding a small wire spirally around the large main wire to bind the nails in place. From this beginning has sprung up a great variety of forms of single, double, triple and quadruple barbs, on single and double wires, straight and twisted together, and on straps or flat strips of steel, both straight and twisted. The American Agriculturalist for December 1 gives engravings and descriptions showing the exact form and size and mode of construction of no less than twenty-one different forms of barbed wire and barbed strips for fencing, and the editor speaks of half a dozen still different forms that he has seen, but has not yet had samples of for sketches, which will be illustrated hereafter.

A strong objection to many forms of these barbed fences is their liability to pierce, tear and injure animals, yet over 100,000 miles of such fencing have been recently erected. However well adapted for the large western fields, they are too barb-arous for use, at least around small lots, or where animals are very valuable, or for the sides of travelled highways, and especially for line fences around village lots. The editor of the American Agriculturalist has been studying up the subject during the past season, at the West as well as East, and says that among the forms of barbed fence now in use, there are some which, by a little modification which he has suggested to the manufacturers, in the form and length of the barbs, may be adopted everywhere, even in villages for enclosing small plots, as well as on all farms. Also, that such fences made of steel are far cheaper than wood; that they are stronger; that they are almost imperishable, and that they are even ornamental. A series of illustrated articles will give the merits and demerits of the different forms of barbed steel fencing, and the new varieties adapted to all circumstances. Iron or steel posts will also be described, and a call is made upon inventors to devise a new form of iron post that shall supersede wood, both in cheapness and durability. A fortune is in store for the inventor of such a post.—American Agriculturalist.

The Man of Iron.

Prince Bismark has earned the name of the Man of Iron, but his life shows he is not destitute of the softer qualities which characterise ordinary mortals. An incident related by a friend of the Chancellor's proves his susceptibility to the tender passion:

"In his rambles among the Tyrolese Mountains, Prince Bismarck, then simply Herr von Bismarck, was obliged to have recourse at Mitterhad, a small village near Meran, to the hospitality of a well-to-do farmer, called Holgner, with whose only daughter Josefa, a beautiful girl, he fell in love. His affections were reciprocated by the fair one, but the father, a bigoted Roman Catholic, interposed, stoically forbidding all further intercourse with the heretic Protestant, who, after vain endeavors to appease the animosity of the parent, finally left Mitterhad and reluctantly withdrew his suit.

"The poor girl, whose love and sympathies were so rudely tried, had eventually to marry a Catholic farmer at Salzburg, where she died after giving birth to a daughter. In one of his visits to Gastein Prince Bismarck, whose name had in the mean time become famous all over the world, retraced his steps to the scene of his early romance, and on hearing of the sad fate of his former love transferred his interest to her child. The latter, now grown and regarded as the very picture of her mother, recently celebrated her wedding, on which festive day she was gratified by a kind letter and costly presents from her mother's rejected suitor.

Cologne Cathedral.

The beautiful Cologne Cathedral at length is near completion, and August next will see it finished. Begun in the very midst of the "ages of faith," when monarchs beggared themselves to raise magnificent structures, of which only picturesque ruins now remain for the world to look at, this extraordinary temple lagged behind all its contemporaries in the work of construction, saw them reach their mature glory, decline, and sink to ruin, itself being all the time an unfinished fabric. The first stone of the Cologne Cathedral was laid in 1248, when the grand edifice now left, perfect, or ruined, in Europe, were either just finished, or like Notre Dame, in Paris, were in rapid progress; but while the most elaborate of them took only three centuries to bring to perfection, Cologne has absorbed more than double the time. It took nearly three centuries to complete the choir, and since that date it has required liberal aid from nearly all the sovereigns in Europe to keep the construction going. What now remains to be done is the last stage and crowning decoration of the stately towers.—Christian at Work.

Nazareth as It Is.

Nazareth, as compared with other towns of this unhappy and down-trodden land of Palestine, improves upon acquaintance. It is better, has more decent houses, and shows more industry and thrift than any of the miserable villages I have passed through since I left Jerusalem, with the exception of Naples. It is the chief commercial town of Galilee and the mart of exchange between the merchants of Acre and Caiffa and the Bedawin. Viewed from the top of the hill to which in all probability it formerly extended, it presents a pleasing appearance, while the view from that hill is one of the most extensive and charming I have seen in the East. Renan, in his "Life of Jesus," says that no place in the world was so well adapted to dreams of absolute happiness. The women of Nazareth are the most beautiful in all Palestine, with the exception of the women in Bethlehem, where nearly the whole population is Christian. They certainly contrast favorably with the ignorance and degradation of women in the purely Mohammedan villages. They wear around their forehead and face a roll of silver coins called "semedi," to which our Saviour alludes in the parable of the lost piece of silver (Luke xv.) They walk the street unveiled and mostly barefooted, and gather every morning and evening around the marble trough of the Virgin's Fountain," gossiping and quarrelling, and filling their large water jars, which they carry very gracefully on their heads. I was touched by a beautiful little girl that took me by the hand and imploringly looked up to me as if she had lost her father or mother.—Sunday at Home.

Wall Street, New York.

Across the island of New York, in 1685, a wall made of stone and earth, and cannon mounted, was built to keep off the savages. Along by that wall a street was laid out, and as the street followed the line of the wall it was appropriately called Wall Street. It is narrow, it is short, it is unarchitectural, and yet its history is unique. Excepting Lombard street, London, it is the mightiest street on this planet. There the government of the United States was born. There Washington held his levees. There Mrs. Adams and Caldwell and Knox and other brilliant women of the Revolution displayed their charms. There Witherspoon and Jonathan Edwards and George Whitefield sometimes preached. There Dr. Mason chided Alexander Hamilton for writing the Constitution of the United States without any God in it.

There negroes were sold in the slave mart. There criminals were harnessed to wheelbarrows and, like beasts of burden, compelled to draw, or were lashed through the street behind carts to which they were fastened. There fortunes have come to coronation or burial, since the day when reckless speculators, in powdered hair and silver shoe buckles, dodged Dugan, the Governor General of his Majesty, clear down to yesterday at three o'clock.

The history of Wall street is to a certain extent the financial, commercial, agricultural, mining, literary, artistic, moral and religious history of this country. Only a few blocks long, it has reached from the Canadas to the Gulf of Mexico, from San Francisco to Bangor. There are the best men in this country, and there are the worst. Everything, from unswerving integrity to tip-top scoundrelism—everything, from heaven-born charity to bloodless Shylockism.—Extract Sermon of Dr. Talmage.

SECULAR NEWS.

Queen Victoria is reported as quite ill.

The Louisiana election on the 2d inst. resulted in success to the Democrats.

Dr. Edmund Strudwick, an eminent physician, died at his home in Hillsboro on 23d ult. He was 78 years of age.

England has Afghanistan absolutely in possession. Yakoob Khan, last of the Ameers, has been sent out of Cabul.

Capt. T. J. Robinson of Fayetteville, N. C., formerly Professor of Mathematics in the U. S. navy, and attached to the Observatory at Washington previous to the late war, died at home a few days since. At the time of his death he was Secretary of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture.

An attempt has been made to assassinate the Czar of Russia. A train was laid and the car in which he was supposed to be traveling was blown up. Fortunately the usual positions of the Czar's car and the car containing his baggage had been changed, and the baggage car was destroyed.

The Belgian school troubles have led to the public assertion by the Archbishop of Mechlin Belgium, that the Pope is not infallible except when he judges questions which rest on the testimony of God, that is, on his revealed truth or revealed law.

Wm. E. Gillman, formerly a successful merchant of New York but convicted of forgery and for the past two years an inmate of the New York penitentiary, has been pardoned by Gov. Robinson. During his confinement he lost by death his daughter and very recently his wife. The death of the latter, it is said, was made the occasion of the pardon, which had been previously refused.

Lady Beautifiers.

Ladies, you cannot make fair skin, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes with all the cosmetics of France or beautifiers of the world, while in poor health, and nothing will give you such good health, strength and beauty as Hop Bitters. A trial is certain proof. See another column.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"THE PRINCE AMONG MAGAZINES."—N. Y. Observer.

THE GREATEST LIVING Authors, such as [illegible] are represented in the pages of Littell's Living Age.

In 1880, The Living Age enters upon its [illegible] year, admittedly unrivalled and continuously successful. [illegible] the Leading Foreign Novelists, and an amount [illegible]

Unapproached by any other Periodical [illegible]

THE LIVING AGE is a weekly magazine giving more than THREE AND A QUARTER THOUSAND double-column octavo pages of reading-matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its great amount of matter, with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a satisfactory completeness attempted by no other publication, the best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Tales, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical Literature.

The importance of THE LIVING AGE to every American reader, as the only satisfactorily fresh and COMPLETE compilation of an indispensable current literature,—indispensable because it embraces the productions of

THE ABLEST LIVING WRITERS, is sufficiently indicated by the following

Opinions.

[illegible]

"It is, by all odds, the best eclectic published."—Southern Churchman, Richmond.

"It is the embodiment of the truest and purest literature of the age."—[illegible]

[illegible]

"There is no magazine published that gives so general a knowledge of what is going on in the literary world."—Presbyterian Weekly, Baltimore.

"Gives the best of all at the price of one."—New York Independent.

"It holds the palm against all rivals."—Commercial, Louisville.

[illegible]

"It supplies a better compendium of current discussion, information and investigation, and gives a greater amount and variety of reading-matter which it is well worth while to read, than any other publication. . . . It is simply indispensable."—Boston Journal.

"Ought to find a place in every American home."—New York Times.

"There is nothing comparable to it in true value in the whole range of periodical literature."—Mobile Register.

Published WEEKLY at $8.00 a year, free of postage.

EXTRA OFFER FOR 1880.

To all new subscribers for 1880 will be sent gratis the numbers of 1879 [illegible] new story by MRS. OLIPHANT, now appearing in THE LIVING AGE from advance sheets.

Club-Prices for the best Home and Foreign Literature.

[illegible]

Address, LITTELL & CO., Boston.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.

1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.

1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.

5000 Sacks Salt.

For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

SAWING THE LOG.

THE GREAT SUCCESS OF THIS WONDERFUL IMPROVED Labor Saving RIDING SAW MACHINE is fully demonstrated by the number in use and the present demand for them. It saws Logs of any size. One man can saw more logs or cord wood in one day and easier than two men can the old way. It will saw a two foot log in three minutes. Every Farmer needs one. Township agents wanted. Send for Illustrated Circular and Terms.

Address W. W. BOSTWICK & CO., 178 Elm St., Cincinnati, O.

oct 29 616-4teow

PRIZE MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

MAKE and SAVE MONEY BY USING THE CELEBRATED MODEL PRINTING PRESS

Any smart boy can readily manage it and do hundreds of dollars worth of work every year. It will save BUSINESS MEN all their printing bills. Presses for Business Printing $6 to $22. Card Presses as low as $3. Rotary foot and steam power presses $100 to $160. 7,000 now in use. Send 10 cents for handsome illustrated 124-page Instruction and Specimen Book, entitled and copy of MODEL PRINTER'S GUIDE, with all the particulars. J. W. DAUGHADAY & CO., Inventors and Manufacturers, 723 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

HOW TO PRINT

"The Model Press surpasses anything we ever expected. It has about paid for itself in two weeks.—BENSON & McGILL, Hartwell, Ga." "I would not take $100 and be without the Model Press. It has netted me in less than three months over $200.—J. H. STARR, Hartford, Conn." "No investment will pay as well as a Model Press. In my own business I have saved about $500 a year by its use.—B. J. BICKNELL, Memphis, Tenn."

nov 5 617-4teow

TO THE TRADE

—AT—

Low Prices.

400 Boxes D. S. and SMOKED SIDES,
1000 Bdls GRIP TIES,
2000 Bdls ACME TIES,
1000 Bdls PIECED TIES,
1000 Whole and Half Rolls BAGGING,
500 Kegs NAILS,
300 Bales HAY,
500 Bush CORN,
250 Bbls SUGARS,
250 Bags COFFEE,
1000 Bbls FLOUR, following brands: La Rose, Blanche, Jack Frost, Plant's Extra, Paragon, Princess, &c.

WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,

MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.

1879—'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's-day, into two Terms.

The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, travelling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.

There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:

1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.

2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.

3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.

A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.

Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.

Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.

For Catalogues and other information apply to

REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D.,
President.

jan 16-523

ALTAFFER & PRICE

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Wood-work and Builder's Hardware.

We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.

Church Windows Doors Pew Ends

CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles.

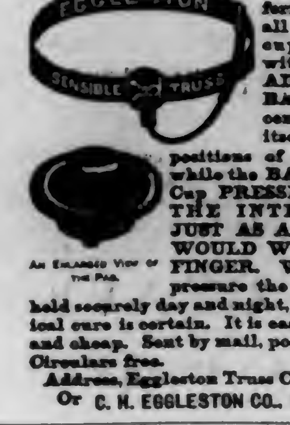
Factory foot of Walnut St
Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross } Wilmington, N. C.

apl 16 588-1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW

ELASTIC TRUSS



An Enlarged View of the Pad.

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.

Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs. Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago, Ill.

45 Years Before the Public.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

LIVER PILLS,

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

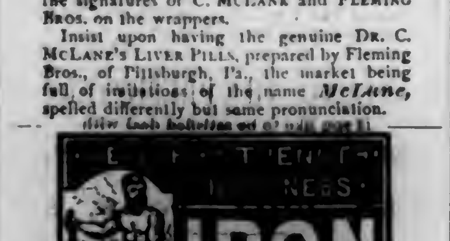
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.



IRON BITTERS

IRON BITTERS, A Great Tonic.

IRON BITTERS, A Sure Appetiser.

IRON BITTERS, A Complete [illegible]

IRON BITTERS, A Valuable Medicine.

IRON BITTERS, Not [illegible] a Beverage.

IRON BITTERS [illegible]

Highly recommended to the public for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient TONIC; especially Indigestion, Dyspepsia, [illegible] It enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. To the aged, ladies, and children requiring recuperation, this valuable remedy can not be too highly recommended. It acts like a charm on the digestive organs. A teaspoonful before meals will remove all dyspeptic symptoms. TRY IT. Sold by all Druggists. [illegible] CHEMICAL CO. [illegible]

dec 10 622-1y-eow

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest Selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publishing Co., Phila., Pa. oct 1-8t

Lame Back. Weak Back.

BENSON'S Capcine Porous Plaster.

This article is one which really possesses extraordinary merit. By consulting reliable physicians in your own locality, you will find that the above is true. It is far superior to the ordinary porus plaster, all the so-called electrical appliances, and to all external remedies whatever. It contains entirely new elements which cause it to relieve pain at once strengthen and cure where other plasters will not even relieve. For Lameness and Weakness of the back, diseased Kidneys, Lung and Chest difficulties, Rheumatism, Neglected Colds, Female Affections, and all local aches and pains, it is simply the best remedy ever devised. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25 Cents.

Molasses! Molasses!

CUBA, SELECTED CUBA, PORTO RICO, NEW Orleans. in Hhds, Tierces or Barrels, at

WILLARD'S.

dec 3 621-tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL.

HALL & PEARSALL

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN

HEAVY GROCERIES,

AND

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF

Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish,

Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,

COTTON BAGGING and TIES.

☞ We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.

HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
63-ly

BUY THE BEST.

WE HAVE now on hand finished.

35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.

Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.

Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual: Send for prices.

A. A. McKETHAN & SONS,
Fayetteville, N. C.

Oct. 21 854-t

W. S. MOORE,

GREENSBORO, N. C.,

DEALER IN

DRY GOODS. MILLINERY, NOTIONS, GLOVES, TRIMMINGS, &C.

We send our Millinery largely over the State, and into five other States. Butterick's patterns

Agent for Mason & Hamlin and Waters' celebrated Church and Parlor ORGANS New at $40 and upwards. $75 to $90 buys a magnificent Organ.

Also Waters' and other new Pianos from $125 up. Warranted five and six years. Send for circulars.

One Mason & Hamlin second-hand small Organ $30—good order and cheap.

oct 30-tf W. S. MOORE.

$2,500 A YEAR.

ACTIVE AGENTS WANTED in every County, to Canvass our line of fine

PREMIUM FAMILY BIBLES;

ENGLISH and GERMAN, PROTESTANT and CATHOLIC

Comprising nearly 100 different styles, with numerous elegantly Illustrated Explanatory Features.

The most complete, perfect and beautiful line of Bibles ever offered to the American public.

—ALSO ON OUR—

Grand Combination Prospectus

Of 150 Distinct Publications.

Representing Agricultural, Biographical, Historical, Religious and Miscellaneous Works, and Family, Pulpit and Pocket Bibles and Testaments, wanted in every family.

A Novel Feature in Canvassing. Sales made from this Prospectus, when all single books fail

Also GENERAL and LOCAL AGENTS WANTED ON OUR

GREAT WAR BOOK.

The most Comprehensive, Reliable and Accurate History of the late conflict between the RUSSIAN and the TURK, with its 300 elegant Engravings, Maps, and Plans, the most showy desirable and useful book now published. For Circulars and Liberal terms, address,

JOHN E. POTTER & CO.,
Publishers, Philadelphia.

mv 22 504-tf

J. D. McNEEY,

Grocery, Produce & Commission Merchant

AGENT FOR THE SALE OF

Fertilisers, Lime, Sawed Shingles & Mountain Produce

MERCHANDIZE AND COTTON BROKER,

aug 28-tf Salisbury, N. C

JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.

JACKSON & BELL,

PRINTERS, PUBLISHERS,

AND

BOOK BINDERS,

Wilmington, N. C.

GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.

We are prepared to execute in the very best style,

ALL KINDS OF

JOB PRINTING

SUCH AS

Business Cards,	Statements,	Catalogues,
Visiting Cards,	Handbills,	Manifests,
Wedding Cards,	Posters,	Bills Lading,
Show Cards,	Notices,	Receipts,
Bill Heads,	Checks,	Labels,
Letter Heads,	Notes,	Tags,
Note Heads,	Drafts,	Envelopes,
Account Sales,	School Circulars,	Pamphlets,

and in fact, every description of

RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING

AT THE

LOWEST HARD TIMES PRICES.

We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed.

Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS WANTED For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1018 Pages, 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & Co., 66 N. 4th St., Phil'a., Pa.

oct 15 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO

[illegible] Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.

oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.

CHAS. SIMON & SONS,

63 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.

SAMPLES SENT FREE!

Also, to their

DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.

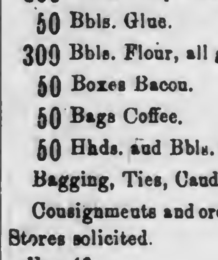
Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.

All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 13-1y

McMILLAN BROS,

MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN

SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS



15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS

FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.

Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes. Still Doors & Grate bars

As we have four Copper smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only

Regular and Reliable Establishment

where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing

D. G. McMILLAN, Supt.
Fayetteville, N. C.

feb 12

WORTH & WORTH,

Commission Merchants,

—AND—

DEALERS IN GROCERIES.

HAVE FOR SALE.

2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Head Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.

Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.

Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.

Nov. 19 463-ly

ADRIAN & VOLLERS

CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present.

SMOKED BACON,

in hogsheads and boxes,

HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKGS,

Breakfast Strips,

Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,

SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT.

Molasses and Syrup

OF ALL KINDS.

FLOUR of all Qualities,

and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries

nov 19 551-18m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,

86 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md.

Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies, &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.

Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c.

mch 28 481-ly

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES

OF THE

GENERAL ASSEMBLY,

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States.

THE CLERKS.

Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D., Richmond, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.

President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq., Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.

Secretary Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md.

PUBLICATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va.
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION.

Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D.D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn.

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January.
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September.
6. Education—First Sabbath in November.

WE KEEP

PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR, FAIRBANK'S LARD,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FINE N. O. SYRUP,

And other Standard articles.

Orders solicited.

HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents. Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XII—No 623.] WILMINGTON, DECEMBER 17, 1879. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXII—No. 1,243.]

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

One copy one year, in advance.....$2 65
If payment be delayed six months..... 3 15
One copy six months, in advance..... 1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each New subscriber of $3 65.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procurred without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

MODERATORS.

Some one has said "The fragmentary flashes of conversation, passing words, almost the idle words, of earnest men, how valuable they are!" If so, why is it that so many resolutions of good, earnest men in Presbytery and Synod seem to be so soon forgotten?

I very respectfully ventnre to say the fault often with the moderator. A resolntion is offered and sometimes voted on without debate and without being announced from the chair. A few vote, but the matter in hand does not impress itself on the members, and the moderator very often does not declare what the matter is which has been voted npon. Sometimes measures are proposed and adopted by earnest men almost without the moderator. Sometimes a motion is made to refer important matters to a committee, and the persons named to serve on the committee, all by one member before he takes breath, and the question submitted to a vote before the real merits of the motion are considered.

This is all wrong. Gentlemen do not like to be placed in such a condition, and it is the moderator's business to keep them ont of it. He can keep the main qnestion before the members till it is decided, and then so announce it, and if any member seems to be making him and embarrassing the honse, he can properly check him. It is always unpleasant for one gentleman to call another to order or oppose irregular and unbecoming conduct, but the moderator is expected to do it. Earnest, good men cannot wisely and safely handle and determine important matters in assembly without a moderator.

A few years ago a motion was made on the floor of the Synod of North Carolina that the moderator shall appoint, at the opening of each annual session, a committee on statistics, to whom should be referred the statistical reports of the presbyteries. The motion was seconded and properly explained by the mover, and adopted. Perhaps a half dozen voted for it, and none voted against it; but the moderator did not call attention, nor announce the motion, nor explain after the vote the rule adopted. Since that time the Stated Clerk has very properly placed the appointment of such committee on the docket, and such committees have been annually appointed and have persisted in doing the business of the Stated Clerk, to wit, compiling the Statistical Report for the General Assembly, and at the last Synod two such reports were approved, one offered by the Committee on Statistics and the other by the Stated Clerk. True, the last committee did go a little further, and reported the number of ordinations and deaths in the Synod.

Then it was that the matter aimed at was again brought up on the floor by way of Dr. H. H. Smith's motion to make the several stated clerks in the Synod a committee, with the stated clerk of Synod as chairman, to compile statistics in an annual statement of the progress of Synod, noting deaths, ordinations, installations, changes, members added to membership, &c. His motion lies over on the docket till next meeting.

Now all this is just what was contemplated by the mover of the rule appointing a committee on statistical reports, adopted several years ago. If Dr. Smith will let his motion take the place of the rule already adopted it may be well to adopt it next fall, if the moderator will just for once call attention to the matter in hand, and see that members understand it, and then announce what the vote is. I believe all assemblies of other denominations appoint a committee on statistics.

R. Z. J.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

PRESBYTERIANISM DEFENDED.

I will notice the arguments given in defence of woman-preaching somewhat in detail, because, weak as they have seemed to some, they have served to convince others of the propriety of the practice.

It is considered by some a convincing argument in favor of the preaching of women, that if they are forbidden to preach in the Church, they are also forbidden to teach in the Sunday School. That is the same thing as to say that if both of these acts are forbidden it is right to do both. By this moral arithmetic, two wrongs make two rights. But surely God has not forbidden a woman to teach a class of boys and girls, because He has refused to give her the office of teacher in a church. The giving of instruction to her own children or to the children of other parents, does not contravene her state of subjection to man. Because she is forbidden to teach her superiors, it does not follow that she is not permitted to teach her inferiors and equals. (I speak of her inferiority to man only in the sense in which the Bible speaks of it.)

It is said that there were prophetesses as well as prophets in the olden times. That is true; but these persons belonged to a class distinct from the class of teachers. "God hath set some in the church, first, apostles; secondarily, prophets; thirdly, teachers." (1 Cor. xii: 28.) If a woman, claiming the right to teach in the Church belongs to the third class, the class of teachers, she does not belong to the second class, the class of prophets. The prophet was distinct from the teacher, because, under the direct inspiration of God, he could foretell future events, which the mere teacher could not do. The cases recorded in the Bible of prophetesses are therefore improperly cited to prove that a woman may preach,

But let us notice these cases. We read of Miriam the prophetess opening her mouth in the public congregation on two occasions: Once when she spoke against Moses, and God, in anger, made her a leper, and again, when she sang an inspired song in company with other women. The words of Hnldah and Deborah are a portion of the Word of God. It was by inspiration that Anna the prophetess learned and declared that the babe eight days old, that was brought into the temple, was the Great Redeemer of men. It is not said that the four daughters of Philip preached, but that they prophesied. It is said, "your sons and daughters shall prophecy"—not preach. None but fanatics can believe that God has in these last times delivered to either men or women, prophecies, or inspired dreams, or inspired visions. When women were forbidden to prophesy—not teach—with their heads uncovered, the covering of the head was intended to indicate "the power on her head," which was the power of her husband, thus showing her state of subjection to man even while delivering an inspired message. Read carefully 1 Cor. xi:3-10.

Is there any mention in the Bible of a woman preaching? The little Jewish maid in Syria, who told, not Naaman, but his wife, of a prophet in Israel who could cure her husband of the leprosy, has been cited. If that record proves that that little girl had authority to preach, then it can be proved that we may properly have not only women preachers, but girl preachers. There is no sort of objection to the kind of preaching done by that little girl. The "woman of Samaria" has been called a preacher because she went home and said to her neighbors, "Come see a man that told me all things that ever I did." If she was a preacher, then those women were also preachers who, having heard some celebrated woman-preacher, went home and said to their neighbors, "come and hear for yonrselves a woman who is converting the worst sinners in the country." Was Mary Magdelene a preacher because she carried a message from our Saviour to His disciples? Then when I send a message to the elders of my Church by a woman, that woman may be called a preacher. It has even been thought by some that women have a right to preach because Rhoda told certain disciples at a prayer meeting that Peter was standing at the door. I do not see why the case was not cited of the babes and sucklings who, when Christ approached Jernsalem, cried "Hosanna," &c. Thus there would have been baby preachers as well as women and girl preachers.

It is said that the female preachers of the present day do not profess to be ordained ministers of the Gospel; that they do not stand in the pulpit, nor pronounce the benediction, nor administer the sacraments. I answer, God is not man that He should stickle for mere forms. He does not regard the wood of which a pulpit is made with any sacredness. He does not convey any mysterious grace to the people, with the words of the benediction, because they have been pronounced by one who was authorized to say them. Away with such notions. The holy God does not employ nor tolerate necromancers. The thing forbidden is preaching—not standing in a pnlpit, &c. To whomsoever God gives the right to preach, He gives the right to prononnce the benediction. The refnsal of a woman preacher to stand in the pnlpit, and to perform other acts nsually done by ministers of the Gospel, is either intended as a blind before the eyes of a credulous people, or it is a confession that God did not put her into the ministry, but that she has put herself into that responsible office. If a man steals, does it make any difference in the eyes of Jehovah whether he does it with his gloves on or off? Every word in the Greek New Testament designating a religious teacher, preacher, pastor, evangelist, or ruler, is in the masculine gender. And now, admitting that the public instructions of a female preacher are sound, that her measures are proper, and that God does convert sonls through her instrumentality. Still, if she is forbidden to preach, and the forbidden act continues to be done, the evil results will in the end greatly preponderate over the good. Sin must at least be followed by its dreadful consequences. The evil effects of this woman movement are mainly in the fntnre; but if it is not stopped, they are sure. As surely as a people are led to believe that men and women need no more call of God, or qualification, or election by the Church of God, than the Jewish maid, and the woman of Samaria and Rhoda, so surely will they come to ignore the visible Church as a divine institution, and necessary for the conversion of sinners. As a natural result of these nnscriptnral opinions which are spreading over the land, and boldly advocated in numerous newspapers and magazines, it must be believed that a man or woman who has not been received into a Christian Church, and who ignores its ordinances and who believes the doctrine of universal salvation, or any other false doctrine, and is moved by his or her spirit to preach it, and can move a crowd to believe it—that is, to be converted to that faith—has as much right to preach as the Apostle Paul. This woman movement, carried to its legitimate results would obliterate the distinction between the Church and the world, between ministers of the Gospel and those who are not. It is directly in the interests of Broad Churchism, which is one of the prevailing heresies of the present age. It is the rationalism which the devil taught Eve in the garden. No one that avows the right of a woman to preach, can consistently deny her the right of suffrage, or eligibility to any civil office in a republican Government.

P. T. Penick.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

For the N. C. Presbyterian

CHRIST AND THE OLD TESTAMENT.

Canon Clayton says: "The references made by Christ to the Old Testament are almost endless. He met his adversaries with the Scripture. It was not with arguments, but with the Bible. Thrice over he met Satan's attack with 'It is written.' In every part of his life he referred to the Scriptures. Even after his resurrection there was no difference in the way in which he showed his reverence for Scripture. Just before his departure from earth to heaven, he told his disciples that 'all things that were written in the law of Moses, and in the Prophets, and in the Psalms, concerning Him, must be fulfilled.' Our Lord knew the darkness of the human mind, even when most cultivated by philosophy and science; he knew that by natnre we cannot comprehend spiritnal things, and therefore he 'opened the understanding of his disciples that they might understand the Scriptnres.'"

One of the greatest mistakes ever made by the Romish Church was her rejecting the teachings of so large a portion of the Old Testament. Take a single instance: The Hebrew political economy required magistrates to be elected by the people themselves, and these elections to be confirmed by the chief magistrate. Moses, their divinely inspired law-giver, said to the nation—"Take (elect) ye wise men, and nnderstanding, and known among your tribes, and I will make them rnlers over you." (Dent. i: 13.) These rnlers were to be in the following proportions—"rnlers of two, rulers of fifties, rulers of hundreds, rulers of thousands," &c., &c. Alfred the Great copied this Mosaic system of government. This tithings (ten citizens living contiguous to each other) his hundredens and his counties were in exact accordance to the Hebrew model. He copied pages of the books of Moses into his book of laws. He opposed the celibacy of the clergy. He showed himself a student of the Bible. The ten rulers of ten and two rulers of fifty formed a jury (not quite like ours, however,) of twelve men who held their courts with a "hnndreden" to preside over them. From the court of the hundred lay an appeal to the court of the thousand, which was also composed of twelve men (ten rulers of hnndred and two of five hnndred), presided over by the ruler of thousand, &c., &c., on up to the Sanhedrim, the highest body, against whose decision there was no appeal.

In England this or a very similar system of administering justice gave rise to that matchless system, which they call Common Law. It is known nowhere else in Enrope, and hence the superiority of Great Britain over all other nations in government. It makes a free, self-governing people. It is scoffingly called by Romanists jury-made law, and for centnries, the Romish Church fought for its extinction in Great Britain. British lawyers call it the lex non scripta, or nnwritten law. It teaches simply that the convictions of twelve honest, Christian citizens, with no prejndices to bias their judgment, will always produce a more righteous sentence than can be obtained by the decisions of any dead jnrist, even though he were as learned as Justinian.

The Roman civil, or statnte law, was first introduced into England by Theobald, a Norman abbot, who was elected to the See of Canterbury in 1133. This prelate appointed a professor, Roger, surnamed Vicarius, a Norman priest, who opened a school in the University of Oxford to teach it to the English people. But they were too much attached to their own system—their beloved jury-made laws, their lex non scripta—to exchange it for any other. The clergy were at that time a very powerful body, and it is wonderful to observe the pertinacity with which the British people resisted their spiritual guides in this matter. The Common Law was the Bible system, the Statute Law was the learned heathen system; yet the clergy fought for the latter, while the laity clung tenaciously to the former. The famous Parliament of Morton declared against the Statnte Law. Nearly a centnry later, in the reign of Richard II., the nobility again onnnciated that, "this realm of England hath never heen nnto this hour, neither by the consent of our lord the King and the lords of Parliament shall it ever be, ruled or governed by the civil law." So violent became the contest that at length Pope Innocent IV. forbade even the reading by the priests of the decision of the conrts of common law, because "it was not founded on the imperial constitutions (of pagan Rome, please observe), but merely on the customs of the laity." The disputo was kept on foot until the reign of Edward I., when the "laws of England (the Common Law), nnder the new discipline introdnced by that skilful commander, obtained a complete and permanent victory." (Rees's Cyclo.)

The Nihilism of Russia and the Socialism of Germany could never exist in a self-governing country, where jury-made law was the rule. Under its wholesome influence, the people become contented, self-reliant, just and merciful.

Some of our Southern statesmen, are avowing themselves in favor of a monarchy, declaring that the rule of the Northern politicians, with a president at their head, is harder to bear than our condition would be under a king. But they would find no difference. The reforms we need are to be found in the Bible, and nowhere else. King or president would make little difference. I would be glad to see our president, senators and judges elected for longer periods of time than at present. Frequent changes produce a constant political fever which fosters a revolutionary spirit. I would not say elect them for life, because old age weakens the memory and reasoning powers. But I would like to see each one of them serve from the time of election until he reaches say sixty years of age. He can then give instructions to his successor, and not feel that he is turned ont of office, but that his long service has come to a graceful and honored end.

Oh, with such a treasury of wisdom in our hands as the Bible, how is it that we make such fearful mistakes! The Hebrew system of public education was the best, their system of agriculture was the best, their system of government was the best, that the world has ever seen.

"Search the Scriptures," said our Lord, but how few, how very few, search what He called the Scriptures—the Old Testament. The Old Testament and the New are as necessary to each other as the two blades of a pair of scissors: it is disastrous to give up either.

H. M. I.

REVERENCE.

In our day this old-fashioned and most beautiful grace is less practiced than it should be by the young. Independence is so praised and so sought after that we sometimes forget that it may be elevated into a mistaken importance. No young lady can have a well balanced character who has not ingrained within her reverence, first for God, her Creator and Redeemer; next for her parents, and afterward for all that is lovely and of good report. We should feel and practice reverence toward the aged. They have borne life's heat and burden. They have experience which we lack. True reverence will make us patient with their infirmities, and gentle toward them in their declining years. We should regard the Bible with veneration, and listen with respect to all who teach it, especially to ministers, whose office it is to tell the good-tidings of life. You may depend upon it that the young girl who is habitually flippant, and who laughs at things which the common consent of the world holds sacred is not a gentlewoman. She lacks reverence.—Christian at Work.

LITTLE KINDNESSES.

Each one of a thousand acts of love cost very little by itself, and yet when viewed altogether, who can estimate their value? What is it that secures for one the name of a kind neighbor? Not the doing of half a dozen great favors in as many years, but the every day kindnesses, neither of which seems of much consequence considered in itself, but their continued repetition sheds a sunlight over the whole neighborhood. It is so, too, in the family. The child whose good offices are always ready when they are wanted—to run up steps or down—to get chips or rock the cradle, or to run on an errand and "right back"—and all with a cheerful look and pleasant temper, has a reward along with such good deeds. If a little girl cannot take her grandfather on her lap, as he takes her on his, she can get his slippers, or put away his hook, or gently comb his thin locks; and whether she thinks of it or not, these little kindnesses that come from a loving heart are the sunbeams that lighten up a dark and woeful world.—London Register.

EXPIRING CALVINISM.

While Alexander was ravaging the East rumor after rumor reached Athens that the great conqneror was dead. And the arrival of each rumor was followed by an enthusiastic outburst of popular joy. And now and then rumors go abroad that Calvinism is dead, and the exultation of certain people is hardly less enthusiastic than was that of the Athenians of old. The latter, however, had good reason to wish the wild Macedonian marander under the sod, but what Christian of whatever name can give a good reason for the wish that Calvinism should sink into the grave?

Calvinism does not lack enlogists even among indifferentists, even among opponents. Mr. Froude asks, as with a puzzled air, "How it came to pass, that if Calvinism is, indeed, the hard and unreasonable creed which modern enlightenment declares it to be, it has possessed such singular attractions for some of the greatest men that ever lived; and how, being, as we are told, fatal to morality, the first symptom of its operation has been to make the moral law the rule of life for states as well as persons? If it be a creed of intellectual servitude, how was it able to inspire and sustain the bravest efforts ever made by man to break the yoke of unjust authority? When all else has failed, when patriotism has covered its face, and human courage has broken down; when intellect has yielded with a smile or a sigh, content to philosophise in the closet, and abroad worship with the vulgar; when emotion and sentiment, and tender imaginative piety have become the handmaids of superstition, and have dreamt themselves into forgetfulness that there was any difference between lies and truth, the slavish form of belief called Calvinism has borne ever an inflexible front to illusion and mendacity, and has preferred rather to be ground to powder like flint than to bend before violence, or melt under enervating temptation." Mr. Bancroft writes: "We boast of our common schools. Calvin was the father of popular education, the inventor of free schools. We are proud of the free States that fringe the Atlantic. The Pilgrims of Plymouth were Calvinists; the ships from Holland that brought the first colonists to Manhattan were filled with Calvinists. He that will not not honor the memory, and respect the influence of Calvin, knows little of the origin of American liberty." The Rev. Dr. Curry, an able historian, and one of the greatest names of the past in the Methodist Church, has written of the Westminster Confession that it "is the clearest and most comprehensive system of doctrine ever formed. It is not only a wonderful monument of the intellectual greatness of its framers, but also a comprehensive embodiment of nearly all the precious truths of the Gospel." "We concede to the Calvinistic Churches the honor of having all along directed the best religious thinking." "Some of the best fruits of the Christian life, and the noblest specimens of the Christian character, have been exhibited among those who have been, at least in theory, Calvinists."

Time was when more than one half of France was Protestant, and those Protestants were Calvinistic Presbyterians. And these were the men that constituted the life blood of French virtue. They were those who fought the great fight with Catherine de Medici and the Guises. Time was when the Netherlands were overrun by hordes of Spanish invaders, who, in the name of the Pope of Rome, were bent upon setting up the Inquisition, and binding hand and foot every champion of true religion and free thought. And the Dutch heroes who made sacrifices, and displayed a heroism rarely equalled and never surpassed, even breaking down the dykes, and calling in the inundating ocean to their aid, were, to a man, Calvinistic Presbyterians. Time was when King Charles, Earl Wentworth and Archbishop Laud had Ireland under the heel of despotism, and England bound hand and foot, Church and State, and lying helpless before the throne, and were directing all the energies of the realm to the subjugation of Scotland. And they who not only successfully breasted this invasion, but rolled back the tide, and raised a spirit that took off the heads of all three of those tyrants, and saved constitutional liberty for the world, were to a man, Calvinistic Presbyterians. Why in the world, then, should any man, who loves his country despise Calvinism?—London Weekly Review.

HAPPINESS IN THE NEWLY MARRIED.

It is the happiest and most virtuous state of society in which the husband and wife set out together, make their property together, and with perfect sympathy of soul graduate all their expenses, plans, calculations, and desires, with reference to their present means and to their future and common interest. Nothing delights me more than to enter the neat little tenement of the young people, who, within perhaps two or three years, without any resources, but their own knowledge or industry, have joined heart and hand, and engage to share together the responsibilities, duties, interests, trials, and pleasures of life. The industrious wife is cheerfully employing her own hands in domestic duties, putting her house in order, or mending her husband's clothes, or preparing the dinner; whilst perhaps the little darling sits prattling on the floor, or lies sleeping in the cradle, and everything seems preparing to welcome the happiest of husbands and the best of fathers, when he shall come home from his toil to enjoy the sweets of his little paradise. This is the true domestic pleasures. Health, contentment, love, abundance, and bright prospects are all here. But it has become a prevalent sentiment that a man must acquire his fortune before he marries—that a wife must have no sympathy nor share with him in the pursuit of it—in which most of the pleasure truly consists—and the young married people must set out with as large and expensive an establishment as is becoming those who have been wedded for twenty years. This is very unhappy; it fills the community with bachelors, who are waiting to make their fortunes, endangering virtue and promoting vice; it destroys the true economy and design of the domestic institution, and it promotes the idleness and inefficiency among females, who are expecting to be taken up by fortune, and passively sustained without any care or concern on their part; and thus many a wife becomes, as a gentlemen once remarked, not a "helpmeet," but a "help-eat."—Winslow.

WOMAN'S MISSION.

The longer I live, the less grows my sympathy with women who are always wishing themselves men. I cannot but believe that in every life that is truly noble—truly good—truly desirable—heaven bestows upon us women in as unsparing measures as upon men. It only desires us, in its great benevolence, to stretch forth our hands to gather for ourselves the rich joys of intellect, of nature, of study, of action, of love and of usefulness which it has poured forth around us. Let us only cast aside the falseness, silly veils of prejudice and fashion, which ignorance has bound about our eyes; let us lay bare our souls to heaven's sunshine of truth and love; let us exercise the intelligence which it has bestowed on us upon worthy and noble objects, and this intelligence may become keen as that of men, and the paltry high heels and whalebone supports of mere drawing-room conventionality and young-ladyhood withering up, we shall stand in humility before heaven, but proudly and rejoicingly by the side of man! different always, but not less noble, not less richly endowed. All this we may do, without losing one jot or one tittle of our womanly spirit, but rather solely owing to these good—these blessed gifts—through a prayerful and earnest development of those gems of peculiar purity, of tenderest delicacy and refinement, with which heaven has so especially endowed the woman. Let beauty and grace, spiritual and external, be the garments of our souls. Let love be the very essence of our being—love of heaven, of man, and of the meanest created thing—love that is strong to endure, strong to renounce, strong to achieve! Alone through the strength of love, the noblest, the most refined of all strength—our blessed Lord Himself having lived and died teaching it to us—have great and good women hitherto wrought their noble deeds in the world; and alone through the strength of all-embracing love will the noble women who have yet to arise, work noble works or enact noble deeds. Let us emulate, if you will, the strength of determination which we admire in men, their earnestness and freedness of purpose, their unwearying energy, their largeness of vision; but let us never sigh after their lower so-called privileges which, when they are sifted with a thoughtful mind, are found to be the mere chaff of the rich grain belonging to humanity and not alone to men. The assumption of masculine airs or of masculine attire, or the absence of tenderness and womanhood in a mistaken struggle after strength, can never sit more gracefully upon us than do the men's old hats and great-coats and boots upon the poor old gardener of the English garden. Let such of us as have devoted ourselves to the study of an art—the interpreter to mankind at large of heaven's beauty—especially remember this, that the highest ideal of life, as well as in art, has ever been the blending of the beautiful and the tender, with the strong and the intellectual.—Exchange.

DO ALL FOR GOD.

"The practical life of the Christian comprehends three distinct elements, viz.: working, fighting and suffering. We have to do the will of God in our business: this is working. We have to oppose our bosom sin and to resist temptation; this is fighting. We have, finally, to endure with cheerfulness and submission whatever cross the Lord Jesus pleases to lay upon us; this is suffering. And to be right in the practical department of the Christian life is summed up in these three things to work devoutly, to fight manfully, and to suffer patiently. Each man's wisdom and happiness must consist in doing, as well as his faculties will admit, the work which God sets him. And now that the true motive, which lifts up the humblest duties into a higher atmosphere, and refines away their earthliness, and glorifies them: "Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as to the Lord, and not unto men; knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance; for ye serve the Lord Christ."—Goldburn.

A THOUGHT FOR THE RICH.

What an awful thing it is to die rich! Imagine the Master auditing the account of a servant who has left behind a million! If that poor wretch who had but one talent was cast into outer darkness because he laid it up, instead of using it in his Master's service, what will be the doom of those who, with their half million and millions (while giving, it may be, a few thousands for decency's sake), have, year after, hoarded up countless treasures which they could never use?

Think of poor Christians pinched with cold and hunger! Think of the Redeemer's cause languishing for the want of that filthy lucre which they hold with close-fisted selfishness! Yet listen to their talk! "I am but a steward." "I am not my own." "Every believer in Jesus is my brother or sister." What a mockery! Will not this be the Master's language to many a professor, "Out of thine own mouth will I condemn thee?"

GOLD DUST.

Life is a school, and trouble is one of the lessons.

Falsehoods always endeavor to copy the mien and attitude of truth.—Johnson.

"The hand of Christ, first strewed the snow on Lebanon, and smoothed the slopes of Calvary."—Ruskin.

Age is not all decay—it is the ripening, the swelling of the fresh life within, that withers and bursts the husks.—George Macdonald.

"The sandal-tree perfumes, when riven
The axe laid it low;
Let man who hopes to be forgiven
Forgive and bless his foe."
—Sir W. Jones.

To fill the sphere which Providence appoints is true wisdom; to discharge trusts faithfully and live exalted ideas, that is the mission of good men.

Remember, you are not a tree that can live or stand alone. You are only a branch, and it is only while you abide in Christ as the branch in the vine that you will flourish, or even live.—M'Cheyne.

And lo, I have caught their secret.
The beauty deeper than all;
This faith—that life's hard moments,
When the jarring sorrows befall,
Are but God plowing His mountains;
And those mountains yet shall be
The source of his grace and freshness
And His peace everlasting to me.
—W. C. Gannett.

As the tree is fertilized by its own broken branches and falling leaves, and grows out of its own decay, so men and nations are bettered and improved by trial, and refined are our broken hopes and blighted expectations.—F. W. Robertson.

If you sit down at set of sun,
And count the acts that you have done,
And counting find
One self-denying act, one word
That eased the heart of him who heard;
One glance most kind,
That fell like sunshine where it went,
Then you may count that day well spent.

But if through all the livelong day
You've cheered no heart by yea or nay;
If through it all
You've nothing done that you can trace,
That brought the sunshine to one face;
No act most small,
That helped some soul, and nothing cost
Then count that day as worse than lost.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

Gleaned from Exchanges:

It is said that the "Old Catholics" desire henceforth to be called "Christ Catholics."

The first Protestant Church in Tyrol was consecrated on the 2d of November at Innsbruck.

The Christian Reformed Church of the Netherlands, which was formed in 1834, as a protest against the rationalizing tendencies in the Reformed Church of Holland, have now 300 ministers and 350 congregations.

In response to the offer of a prize for the best essay on "The Promotion of Religion in Men of War," fourteen essays have been received, and are now under consideration of a committee who have undertaken to act as judges.

A synod for the diocese of Canada was formed on Wednesday, November 29, by the branch of the Reformed Episcopal Church there under the jurisdiction of Bishop Gregg, and application made to the General Synod in England for a bishop for Canada.

The Cardinals to whom the Pope recently submitted several questions for consideration have replied that in their opinion there is no absolute urgency for the holding of a Vatican Council, which could not now be held in Rome, and should not take place elsewhere.

In Chili the Roman Catholics have published a "Popular Catechism," directed especially against the Presbyterian Missionaries. It sums up the case against them in these words: "The Protestant doctrines are horrible in theory and immoral in practice, abhorrent to God and man, vicious to society, contrary to all purity of thought and devoid of all shame. Neither the Pagans nor the Turks have ever attained to such impiety of doctrine."

The Protestant Synod of Prussia has taken the liberty of expressing its disapproval of the custom of holding military reviews on Sabbath, and the Emperor William bluntly reproves it for what he evidently esteems its impertinent presumption. He says that the "conception of the Sabbath as a day of mortification and penance is altogether repulsive to the traditions and tastes of the German people." So is such a conception to any other people, but it is the sheerest clap trap to accuse those who favor the preservation or restoration of the sanctity of the day with desiring to make one of the kind alleged.

With reference to a statement lately published to the effect that in the event of the French Education bill becoming law the Jesuits contemplate the establishment of a school in Jersey, a contemporary hears on good authority that the society has already purchased a large building in the island, to be used for educational purposes. In view of possible religious troubles in France, the archives and principal relics belonging to the monastery of the Grand Chartrense are shortly to be transferred for safe keeping to England, where they will be deposited at the new Carthusian monastery in Sussex.

There is in the Royal Library at Stockholm an immense manuscript which when open, covers about a square yard of surface, and requires two or three men to lift it. It consists of 309 leaves of thick parchment, and probably of asses' skin, and contains the Old Testament, the Antiquities and Jewish Wars of Josephus, the Origines of Isidore, a medical work of Johannicus Johannes Alexandrinus, the New Testament, a curious picture of the devil, and other miscellaneous matter. It belongs to a small Benedictine monastery at Podlazic, in Bohemia, and tradition asserts that it was written in one night, with the devil's help, by an imprisoned monk. The date of its transcription may be ascribed to the period between 1224 and 1239. Late in the sixteenth century it was taken to Prague, whence it was carried off by the Swedes in the last year of the thirty years' war (1648.) Since then it has been in its present home.

Among the ecclesiastical antiquities of Cyprus, the seaport town of Larnaca, most frequently visited by foreign vessels, contains one that has a certain degree of interest. The Greek Church, attached to the Monastery of St. Lazarus, stands in the centre of a large square, one side of which is a burial ground, enclosed by tall iron railings, and the other three sides consist of the cells formerly inhabited by the community of monks, but now let out on hire to common lodgers, while the cemetery has become a boy's playground. The church is reported by Greek religious tradition to contain the tomb of Lazarus, who is said to have come from Bethany long after our Saviour raised him from the dead there, and to have ended a long life here in Cyprus. They keep tapers ever burning in the vault beneath the altar; there is a descent by a few steps, and in the dim light of the shrine a granite slab is visible, arched at the top, with a little spring of water under it, filling a stone basin. This water is said to have miraculous properties for healing of sores, by the application of rags dipped in the water. It would seem that the Lazarus, the poor man who had sores mentioned in the new testament parable of Dives and Lazarus, is considered by the Greek clergy to be the Lazarus that was raised from the dead.

A correspondent, whose letter has just been received, writing from Madagascar on September 13th, says: "You are aware that the Malagasy have adopted the Protestant faith, and, under the guidance of a Christian Queen and an enlightened government, are rapidly advancing in civilization. The Jesuit priests, who are now under the protection of a 'special commissaire' from France—recently arrived in the country—are resorting to what looks like very much like force. The commissaire blusters, threatens, gives sundry hints about 'French men of war,' and magnifies trumpery charges against the government into matters of grave political importance. The Jesuits are laying claim for religious purposes to a large and valuable piece of ground in the centre of the capital on doubtful evidence. In one province in particular they dictate to governors and native officers, hind and flog Protestant teachers, break up the schools, interrupt the worship of the people in the chapels on the Sabbath, officially complain of the preaching, the hymns, and even the prayers of the native ministers, and in one case at least they have induced a chief to pull down a Protestant chapel. The government is in a dilemma, and the whole country is in a state of excitement and trepidation. The fear of the French is so great that the government is afraid to move in case it get into other and worse difficulties. The impression of some is that there is a definite plan to create difficulties between Catholics and Protestants, and bring this government into such complications as will afford a pretext for French interference, and ultimately, it may be, for a French protectorate."—Weekly Review.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN. - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1879.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

OVERTURES TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

An overture from Dallas Presbytery to Synod on the subject of Woman Preaching, led to an elaborate and complete deliverance by the Synod, discountenancing the practice. The Synod also prepared an overture to the next General Assembly praying for a deliverance from that body that would disapprove of the practice, and of any countenance to it.

The Synod of South Carolina from the report of the Committee on the Minutes of the General Assembly adopted the following minute:

"WHEREAS, It has come to the knowledge of this Synod that the deliverance of the last General Assembly, touching worldly amusements, is understood by many as favoring indulgence by church members in such amusements:

"Therefore this Synod, while denying the correctness of this construction, does hereby utter its solemn testimony against members of our churches conforming to the world and indulging in what is known as 'worldly amusements.'"

After the adoption of this minute Dr. Girardeau presented an overture for adoption by the Synod, praying the next General Assembly 'that it will consider and repeal, or at least seriously modify, so much of the deliverance of the last Assembly, at Louisville, in relation to Worldly Amusements, as declares that all deliverances of the General Assembly, and, by necessary implication, of the other courts of the Church, which are not made by them in a strictly judicial capacity, but are deliverances in thesi, can be considered as only didactic, advisory, and monitory."

The Committee on Bills and Overtures, to whom this overture was referred, unanimously recommended its rejection. An earnest debate ensued and the Synod by a large majority of the members present adopted the overture as presented by Dr. Girardeau, and the whole subject will again be before the General Assembly.

PRACTICAL PAPACY.

We have several times had occasion to call the attention of our readers to the tendencies of Roman Catholicism in the United States.

At the risk of being considered an alarmist, we again lift the voice of warning. The occasion is found in the incident recorded in the following extract from an exchange:

"The Rev. Mr. Chiniquy, the ex-French Canadian priest, who some years since renounced Romanism and became a Presbyterian, came to Holyoke and delivered a lecture, stating the reasons for his change of creed. Father Dafresne forbade the members of his flock to attend the lecture and listen to the renegade from the true faith. A Mr. Joseph Parker, who was one of his parishioners, concluded to exercise his own liberty, and, having attended the lecture, he refused to acknowledge his error. For this the priest excommunicated him from the Church, and then threatened to excommunicate all members of his flock who should venture to patronize him in his business as a hackman. The proof showed that a funeral party went to church with Parker's carriages, and that the priest turned them away, saying: 'When you know better than to come here in those hacks I will do your work, and not before. I forbid all members of this church from hiring the hacks or carriages of Joseph Parker, or using them, on the pain of excommunication from this church.' The proof further showed a long list of persons who, by the priest's denunciation and threats, had been intimidated from dealing with this Mr. Parker, to the serious damage of his business."

The genius of the papacy appears revealed in this incident.

Our last warning was from the intimidation of voters by the threatening of excommunication pronounced against all who did not vote for a certain candidate.

That was in Canada. Now we have an instance upon our own soil, in the Republic of the United States: In the face of such instances as these can any one fail to see the dangers of this monstrous system of priestly tyranny?

The propagators of this so-called religion have the brazen effrontery to face the verdict of all history with a summary denial, but these are the facts of to day, occurring in our own country and under our own eyes.

Evidently the papacy remains unchanged. Its priests may make their plausible presentations of its doctrines that are laid against its door, but they cannot deny these things. Any thoughtful man can forecast the sad result of this system if it ever gains the mastery in the United States. Instances of this sort are not very rare. They show the deepest intolerance; they manifest the tendency to dictate to men not only in religion, but to men in politics and ordinary business affairs, and whenever resisted the latent spirit of the inquisition creeps out in such persecution as it can dare to attempt. Were free scope allowed it, can any sane man doubt for a moment what its course would be?

THE SUPPRESSION OF VICE.

The "Society for the Suppression of Vice," of which Mr. Anthony Comstock is the executive officer in the Eastern cities and Mr. R. W. McAfee in the West, has done, and is doing, an amount of good which cannot be overestimated, in the suppression of the transmission of obscene literature through the mails and in counteracting the devilish efforts which are made to ruin our sons and daughters by the circulation of immoral publications in other ways.

The society meets with opposition at every turn. Comstock's character has been assailed and his surveillance, absolutely necessary as it is to the work in hand, has been denounced far and wide as attacking the individual rights of American citizens. Arguments, never sound, but sometimes sufficiently plausible to deceive men who cannot be suspected of any sympathy with vice, have been brought forward, and thus persons of unsullied personal character have been found asking pardon for the most abominable wretches, justly condemned by the laws of the country to a punishment only too mild for the offense. We have heretofore applauded the President for the firmness displayed in rejecting an application for the pardon of the infamous Benedict. Subsequent disclosure have amply justified the President in his course.

We dare not defile our columns even by fittingly characterizing the damnable traffic in which monsters, whom it were sheer flattery to call human beings, are engaged; a traffic that aims at nothing less than the utter ruin for time and eternity of our children, and the bringing of desolation worse ten thousand times than death to our homes; a traffic that invades our offices, our schools, our homes; a traffic from which not a city, not a town, not a village, not a cross-roads postoffice is exempt. Our contemporary, the St. Louis Presbyterian, puts it none too strongly in saying that "one can form no true conception of this damnable traffic, until he hears Comstock of New York or McAfee of St. Louis, who, in the spirit of the most admirable philanthropy, are ferreting out the miscreants and bringing them to merited punishment. Neither is it enough to hear Comstock and McAfee. One must see what they have to show in corroboration of their statements—the papers, the books, the pictures, the implements, which they have captured, literally by the ton, from the incarnate devils who make a business of manufacturing and selling these means of corruption."

Thankful we are that the laws of our country do recognize the crime and provide for its punishment. Thankful too that there are men willing to incur any odium, to brave any danger in ferretting out and bringing to punishment the offenders. Much has been done to break up this vile business, but the infamy can never be totally suppressed until public sentiment becomes so intensified, and so unified against the traffic, that no villain engaged in it will dare to show his face among men.

The religious press must come to the front in the denunciation of this crime, and upon them will devolve mainly the upholding of the hands of those who are doing the noble work of its suppression. Not we gladly, we rejoicingly, say, that the secular press in general approve or in any degree sympathize with the atrocity. Hopeless indeed would be the case were it so, but the subject is one distinctly within the domain of the religious press, and it is altogether fitting that they should be found prominent in the fight for the eradication of the evil.

But while we are prompt to acquit the secular press in general, it must be allowed that the press is used to a large extent in disseminating the vile literature by advertising for its vendors. It is stated positively that newspapers having a daily circulation of over 216,000 copies, and weekly of over 608,000 are known to contain these advertisements.

Is it not time to awake out of sleep?

Our readers must pardon our reference to a subject which we would gladly refrain from handling; but we could not say less, and in one regard for decency we dare not say more.

EVANGELISTIC WORK.

We commend the example of the churches at Mills River and Hendersonville to our churches. Where preaching can be had only once a fortnight or once a month, why cannot a sermon be read, prayer offered and God be praised in song? It needs only the will to do it, and some one or two to start the movement. Many persons feel that they cannot pray in public. We do not question their sincerity of motive, but they can attend and countenance and encourage others. Mission Sabbath schools might be made to do a work which will tell upon eternity. Who will try? Read what these churches are doing and make the effort.

We are glad to get such news. Our churches and our paper need to know what is doing, that they may be induced to undertake, or be encouraged to persevere, in the work of Christ.

DONATIONS.

Persons benevolently inclined are accustomed at this season of the year to send us funds to be applied to sending the Presbyterian to persons who otherwise, because of pecuniary disability, would be deprived of the comfort of its visits. Any one can do a good work by sending us funds (with addresses, preferred,) and many hearts can thus be cheered and many households benefitted at very small cost to the donor.

ROUTINE WORSHIP.

"Decently and in order" is an inspired injunction, and man's experience apart from its inspiration emphasizes its importance.

In order to its observance a certain amount of routine regulation is necessary. Anything in excess of this amount is burdensome and damaging. There are a great many careless bodies in the world and their slip shod way of transacting business is a great stumbling block and cause of offense to others.

On the other hand there are not a few who are painfully precise and exasperatingly orderly. They believe in doing everything by the rule and compass. They are great sticklers for the regulation way of arranging every thing, and are never satisfied until this is accomplished. Who has not seen such a brother rise up in Presbytery and put in his oar in the matter of a mere verbal criticism perhaps, and waste much valuable time in discussing that which he himself admits is of very great insignificance? You cannot escape such men; they are ever on the watch, and they "make a man an offender for a word." Such men make an idol out of their system. It matters not how good a resolution may be it cannot be satisfactory unless it has a certain regulation shape about it.

A sermon may be very striking and forcible, but it is severely criticized unless it is built according to a certain recognized regulation model.

Such persons are afraid of everything which has not the ancient ear-marks on it. Presbyterians are peculiarly liable to this species of idolatry and hence need to watch themselves. There is danger of sacrificing strength to order. "Faultily faultless, icily regular, splendidly null," wrote the poet.

A mill pond is regular, staid, dignified and quiet—but then oh! how stagnant! The torrent may sometimes overflow its banks and may possibly sweep away some rubbish in its course, but still it is preferable on the whole to the pond.

DEATH OF REV. SAMUEL McKINNEY.

Rev. Dr. Samuel McKinney, of Huntsville, Texas, died at his home on 27th ult., in the seventy-fourth year of his age. He removed to Texas from Tennessee many years ago, was the first President of Austin College, and laid the corner-stone of Sam Houston Normal School, and at one time had charge of that institution. During his mature life he has been a Presbyterian minister. His labors have been principally in the education of youth.

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

The Synod of South Carolina at its late session took into earnest consideration the affairs of Columbia Theological Seminary, and resolved to undertake to raise within its bounds $2,000 during the ensuing year to meet the current expenses of the institution. The amount was apportioned among the Presbyteries. Resolutions were also adopted urging upon the General Assembly the support of the Seminary.

An overture was received from Enoree Presbytery requesting Synod to petition the Legislature of South Carolina to pass an act prohibiting the running of freight trains on the Sabbath day. A committee was duly appointed, and since the adjournment of Synod a bill proposing the desired legislation has been introduced into the Legislature.

Le Pelerin, a French journal, gives a graphic account of the reception of the late Pope in heaven. How the news was obtained is not stated:

"Upon entering Paradise he (Pius IX.) received a crown from the hands of the Immaculate Virgin Mary, as a reward for the crown he had conferred on her while on earth. St. Joseph, whom he had made the patron and protector of the Church, did not fail to shake him cordially by the hand and thank him. On seeing him enter St. Peter instantly gave the pitch, and the heavenly choir struck up, whilst Frances de Sales and Alphonso de Liguori, whom he had proclaimed doctors of the church, extolled each in turn the exploits and achievements of his Pontificate. And fifty-two saints and twenty-six blessed, who own to Pius IX. their existing position, regaled him with melodious concerts."

After the failure of the late attempt at assassination of the Czar of Russia, that sovereign called together the nobility and officers near the throne and partook of bread and salt. The covenant of salt is referred to in Numbers xviii: 19, where after the portion of the priests had been assigned, God said to Aaron, "It is a covenant of salt for ever before the Lord unto thee and to thy seed with thee." Again, in Chronicles xiii: 5, Elijah reminded Jeroboam and all Israel that God had given the kingdom over Israel to David and his sons forever by a covenant of salt. In eastern countries partaking of one's salt binds the partaker to inviolable fidelity. In "Biblical Things Not Generally Known" we find it related that Baron du Tott, while travelling in Turkey, was visited by Moldovanji Pacha. The Pacha, on departing, called for bread and salt. Taking a pinch of the salt he put it on the bread and then turned to the Baron, with assurance that he, the Pasha, might thenceforth be relied upon. Another account, less truthful perhaps but more romantic, is of the leader of a fearless band of robbers, who had entered the palace of a Persian prince and gathered a large amount of spoil. By accident he stumbled over something which he supposed to be very valuable. To satisfy himself he put it to his mouth and discovered that it was salt. He had tasted the Prince's salt and thus considering himself as having entered into a "covenant of salt" with the Prince, refused to let any part of the booty be removed. Sometime after he informed the Prince of the adventure and was appointed to a command in the army. He eventually ascended the Persian throne and established a dynasty of kings.

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

MONROE CHURCH, MECKLENBURG.

Monroe church, in Union county, of which Rev. R. A. Miller is pastor, at the communion on the 14th inst., received two young ladies on profession.

Rev. James H. Morrison, pastor of Portland Avenue Presbyterian church, Louisville, Ky., and son of Rev. Wm. N. Morrison, of Asheville, N. C., was married on 2d instant to Miss Elizabeth S. Brannon, of Louisville.

MEBANEVILLE CHURCH.

MEBANEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 8.

Dear Sir and Brother: On Sunday, Nov. 30th, Major Robert Bingham was ordained an elder and Mr. Thomas H. Fowler a deacon by the session of Mebaneville church.

On yesterday the sacrament of the Supper was administered in our church, and five persons united with the church, four by examination and one by letter.

Yours very truly,

T. J. ALLISON.

Rev. A. McFadyen writes from Leeland, S. C., Dec. 11th:

"To-day death in the form of diphtheria again invaded the family of Rev. James Kelly and carried off his only son, James Donald, in the fourth year of his age. How many hopes centered in this very promising boy are now blasted forever! Sad indeed now, and desolate, the home of our dear brother; only one child left where there were, four weeks ago, three! And while the parents are anxious about the little one still in their charge, they know it is well with Dejaunette and James; for they are with him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

Rev. S. Taylor Martin, pastor of Hendersonville and Mills River churches, preaches an alternate Sabbath during the winter season to each church, and during the summer to one in the forenoon and the other in the afternoon. Mills River church holds service every Sabbath, however. A sermon is usually read in the pastor's absence, and members are called on to pray. In cases where natural diffidence is hard to overcome the Lord's Prayer is repeated.

In the regular Sabbath schools for whites, held both at Mills River and Hendersonville, these churches have two mission schools for whites and two for colored persons which are held every Sabbath afternoon. The schools for the whites are the one west of Mills River church and the other east of French Broad river, each three miles from the church. The former numbers thirty scholars and the latter twenty.

The schools for negroes are at the respective churches, and together they bring in from sixty to seventy scholars.

Beyond the direct advantages of these schools to the scholars, they employ all of the members in the Master's cause.

MARK'S CREEK CHURCH, FAYETTEVILLE PRESBYTERY.

Rev. A. N. Ferguson writes us:

"We have recently had an interesting meeting at Mark's Creek church, one of the feeblest churches belonging to Fayetteville Presbytery. The church is located in a sparsely settled section of country, consequently the congregation is small. For the last three or four years they have had no regular preaching except that part of this time I have been preaching for them occasionally on Saturdays and fifth Sabbaths. On the fifth Sabbath in last month we had service there and concluded to continue the service for a few days, if the interest would seem to justify. It pleased the Lord to meet with us. Eight were added on examination; all except three were heads of families. Two or three of this number had joined different churches several years ago, but had been so long away from their churches that they hardly considered themselves really in the Church. To show the power of God's spirit and grace, in this work, one man bordering on his three score and ten came out on the Lord's side; another had spent fifty or more years in the service of the world, and we were impressed with a remark which this man made after being received into the church. Says he, with much earnestness, "I regard my life as a failure! Here is half a century spent in folly—half a century or over trifled away." We assured him that he had the greater cause for thankfulness that the Lord had brought him out at last, and that if he had been cut off in sin his life would have been a terrible failure. This church has been greatly revived. To the Lord be all the praise."

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THANKS! THANKS!

A large box filled with bed clothing and clothing for wife and children and table supplies, and other useful articles, from kind Christian friends, and all the way from my old Fayetteville home, calls forth this reiteration of thanks. We assure our friends that it came in a needy hour, and although it failed to reach us on Thanksgiving Day, yet we trust that the Lord, Who put it into their hearts to remember us on that day, will reward them daily with His best gifts.

I would take this opportunity also to record, for the encouragement and honor of God's people, some other tokens of His favor to us, administered by the hands of some other of His people: In October I received a handsome sum of money from one who also participated in filling this box, and who, indeed, I may testify from my boyhood, has not ceased her gifts. I tell it now rather that others may rejoice with me in this manifestation of grace, and especially, that, now, when she is afflicted in body and growing feeble, this grace abounds.

Brother Anderson, of Morganton, wrote lately how his people had pounded him. I was glad of it. For I can testify that he is himself free and large in his gifts. For since the day that I began to reside within the bounds of his church he has not ceased to pound me, notwithstanding my cries for him to desist, and let me add that in this benevolence his little wife, a daughter of a noble-souled sire, with full and free heart and hand has joined in.

During the month just past some of Brother Anderson's church have shown their zeal in the Lord's service by sending us quite a number of useful articles, while, before, a year ago, they saw fit to turn over to us the whole of their Invalid Fund.

To all these friends we again say thank you, thank you! Thanks to the Lord for this abounding grace in the Church who, in her poverty still finds ways to show her liberality! May it abound yet more and more. May this be the spring whence shall flow the river which shall make glad the city of our God! May the Church find in this way, at least, that she can support her ministry liberally, supply all her waste places, help on the missionary work and build up the Kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ!

J. H. COLTON.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE CHILDREN'S NEW YEAR'S OFFERING FOR SUSTENTATION.

Dear Young Friends: The time has now come for us to ask you again, on the approach of the commencement of another year, to remember the needs of our poorer Christian brethren, and to give as you may be able for the purpose of aiding them in establishing and maintaining the stated and public ministrations of God's house. As we have told you before, the object of the collection to be taken up is to provide assistance for feeble congregations in supporting their ministers and in securing suitable houses of worship. There are several hundred of our churches which are unable, without aid, to furnish means for the support of their ministers, and there are nearly one hundred such churches which have no church building in which to assemble on the Lord's day. They have to meet either in private houses, or school buildings, or court houses, or in the churches of other Christian denominations, the use of which is kindly given for a season. In order to supply all these needs a large amount of money must be raised. The General Assembly has authorized us to ask $40,000 of the whole Church, and we feel sure that the children and Sabbath schools will wish to do their share. Last year eighty-four Sabbath schools contributed $722 16 to this cause. This year, we hope that many more schools will make collections, and if possible, in larger amounts. According to the Minutes of the last General Assembly, there are under its care 1,044 Sabbath schools with 67,851 scholars. Now if a collection is taken up in every school and every child will give something, a large amount will be raised and much will be done, not only to supply the destitute with the Gospel, but also to provide them with houses of worship, where the children may meet on the Sabbath to be instructed in the truths of the Scriptures and the grown people may gather to worship God. We ask every one of you, then, to give what you can to this important object on the first Sabbath of January, at which time we have been accustomed to call on you in behalf of this cause.

With assurance, dear children, of our best wishes and kind regards, we remain,

Very truly yours,

RICHARD MCILWAINE,
J. LEIGHTON WILSON,
Secretaries.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Biblical Things Not Generally Known: A collection of facts, notes and information, concerning much that is rare, quaint, curious, obscure and little known in relation to Biblical subjects. New York: Dick & Fitzgerald, publishers. We are greatly pleased with the book and a cursory glance at this book justifies us, we think, in copying and adopting, the following from the preface:

"There is a vast fund of information that would elucidate Holy Scripture hidden away in books of travel that have had their day, and passed into the upper or back shelves of libraries; in works of Biblical criticism that can only be wisely used by the advanced Bible student; in writings of Continental authors, which are hidden in a foreign tongue; in Oriental literature, which is known only to the few; and in modern works of too expensive a character to come within reach of the general reader. Such little known and valuable help in Biblical study is collected and classified for easy reference and in a readable form in the present work. Every paragraph will be found either to elucidate or illustrate at least some passage of God's Word; and by the aid of the copious indices, both of the subjects dealt with and of the texts referred to, the contents of the work are placed at the ready command of the Bible student, the teacher, and the preacher, while every effort has been made to secure that the book shall be attractive to the general reader; one that may be pleasantly and usefully taken up in leisure moments; one that Christian parents may wish to have lying on the family table; one that shall be regarded as essential by all who earnestly desire to enlarge their acquaintance with that great treasure of truth which God has given to man."

The book is bound in cloth in very handsome and appropriate style.

We are greatly pleased to learn that the N. C. Medical Journal is becoming increasingly appreciated by physicians generally. November number is before us. The articles, both original and selected, are of the first order of merit.

We know of no publishing house superior to D. Appleton & Co. of New York. Their Popular Science Monthly for January is very choice, as a glance at the following list of contents will show: The International Weather Service; John Stuart Mill; A Roguish Household Pet; On the Migrations of Races; Vaccination in New York; The Most Powerful Telescope in Existence; The Moral Sense in the Lower Animals; Middle-Age Spiritualism; History and Methods of Paleontological Discovery; Interoceanic Canal Routes; Premature Burials; Why do Springs Overflow? Correspondence; Editor's Table; Literary Notices; Popular Miscellany; Notes. Price 50 cents.

The Conflict of Christianity with Heathenism: By Dr. Gerhard Uhlhorn. Edited and trans ated by Prof. E G. Smith and C. J. H. Ropes. 1879 Charles Scribner's Sons. $2 50. We have not recently read a book of more valuable matter and absorbing interest. Dr. Uhlhorn is head of the Lutheran Church in Hanover and of the Theological School of Loccum, a distinguished preacher and Protestant author. He has had fine opportunities for critical historical study and has used the accumulations of recent historical investigations in picturing the vital conflict in the establisment and doctrinal organization of the Christian Church. The book is enlivened by personal incidents in the lives of the actors, and possesses a striking unity that brings all its stores of wide research and learning to make one clear and decided impression. He marshals the powers in conflict and delineates vividly the religious and moral status of heathenism, and the new life and conscious power of Christianity. Then the conflict begins and passes before us in its varied phases, at the stake and under adverse Roman legislation, with an unfolding of the standpoint of the contending parties, the dying vigor of heathenism and the developing power of the Church. Then he presents the decisive struggle and the crowning triumph of the Cross. He gives the circumstances of the victory, a masterly analysis of the character of Constantine the Great and of Julian, in closing this fine historical monograph.

Sunday Magazine for January. Once more we say it, this magazine surpasses any literary publication of the kind we have ever seen.

A pamphlet entitled Limitation and Prevention of Diphtheria, by R L Payne, M. D., and published by the N. C. Board of Health is on our table. The work is highly commended in medical quarters and ought to be circulated broadcast. Copies can be had of Dr. T. F. Wood, Secretary of the Board at Wilmington. The amount of money for postage alone will determine the limit of copies sent to any address. One cent will pay postege on two copies.

Appleton's Journal for January, 1880, contains: A Stroke of Diplomacy; Cinderella; Dinners and Literature; Mr. Gladstone as a Man of Letters; The Seamy Side; What is Religion? Letters of Charles Dickens; Fragments: Matthew Arnold on Poetry, Mr. Irving's Shylock; Editor's Table. The department, "Books of the Day" is particularly full and rich. D. Appleton & Co., 549 Broadway, New York. $3 yearly.

ECLECTICISMS.

NOTHING WINS LIKE LOVE.

Southern Presbyterian:

Nothing wins like love; and if that love is pure, unselfish, free from bigotry and sectarian zeal; if it seeks out those from whom no return can be expected; if it labors in obscurity, and gives its alms away from the sight of men; if it seeks out the neglected poor who do the least begging; if it willingly endures inconvenience, labor, and even self-denial, to relieve suffering and want, the world will feel and confess its power and trace it up to the bosom of Him who is Love.

THE REASON WHY.

Times:

Enlightened people laugh at the heathen who twirls a revolving plate on which his prayer is written, and fancies that he has thus done his duty to his god. But thousands of our comfortable, well-fed, and benevolently-inclined citizens are doing all their charity by machinery. And that is one reason why the silent poor are not reached.

THE REMEDY FOR DOUBT.

Western Christian Advocate:

Christians who are full of doubts and troubled with skepticism may find a cure in a deeper tone of piety, a more thorough Christian experience. Young converts may be troubled with skeptical doubts, and old professors often are, but there is a cure for both. Let any person make an honest, earnest, persevering effort to live up to the requirement of the Gospel, and he will not long doubt its truth. He will have such an experience as will leave no room to doubt; the unimpeachable witness will testify within him, and end his last doubt.

FORGIVENESS.

Christian Intelligencer:

Forgiveness, to be such, must include forgetfulness of the offense which called for it. It is always easier to forgive than to forget, and to treasure the memory of our own magnanimity is too common a fault. Real forgiveness remembers not what it forgave. There are few better tests of Christian character than this. A quick forgetfulness of injury, a resolute turning away from all brooding over it, signifies a greater growth in grace than many a more conspicuous quality would indicate. And what is more winning than this ready forgetfulness and forgiveness? But to cultivate it successfully, self love must be put down and kept out of sight.

NEVER DISAPPOINTED.

United Presbyterian:

A lady who prays each Sabbath morning that she may that day have something suited to her either in the way of encouragement or reproof, finds that she is never disappointed. A word in the Psalm, or prayer, or sermon, is sent her, and she goes home not only feeling that her prayer has been answered, but that she has been benefited by the services. How many Christians do just this way? How many families, in their Sabbath morning's devotions, and how many Christians, in their secret prayers, make it a special petition that the pastor may be blessed in his preaching, and that they may have spiritual profit from the exercises? If there were more of this there would be greater edification.

WORK FOR CHRIST.

Church and School:

How can we do the most for Christ? Well, begin by doing something. Look out some one thing and do that. You can comfort a three-year-old who has lost his shoe in the mud. You can explain the assurance "I go to prepare a place for you," to some troubled soul who needs the comfort of a sure hope. You can cultivate a sensible, and therefore Christian intimacy with your next neighbor. You can get three boys together and teach them a twenty minutes lesson of joy and duty.

POOR INDEED!

Zions Herald:

The only man who is a master of the world is he who loves Jesus supremely—with a love that rules the heart and the life. Such a man uses every earthly thing in subordination to his ruling spiritual affection. But of him who gives the world, in any of its aspects or relations, such a measure of his love as sets aside any claim of heaven, the Scripture saith, "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." And he who has not the "love of the Father" in his heart, is poor indeed!

COURAGE.

Exchange:

What we want in our daily exposures to temptation, what the father or brother wants in his business, what the mother or daughter wants at home, what the school-boy or school-girl needs in the associations of the class-room or the play-ground, what we all want chiefly is Christian courage—the courage of our convictions, the courage of high calling, readiness to suffer anything, all things, and even to die rather than sin and bring reproach on Christ.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The health of Rev. J. N. Saunders is improving.

Eight members have been added to the church at Hernando, Miss., within the last two months.

A few weeks ago ten communicants were added to the church at Columbus, Miss.—Southern Presbyterian.

The postoffice address of the Rev. Dr. Wm. E. Boggs has been changed from Memphis Tenn., to No. 57 Washington street, Atlanta, Ga.

Correspondents of Rev. J. R. Zively, evangelist of the Presbytery, are requested to address him at San Marcos, Texas. His former residence was at Elgin.

A new Presbyterian house of worship was dedicated at Hillsboro, Hill county, Texas, on the 9th ult., by Rev. Henry Moseley, of Cotton Gin, Texas.

The churches to which Rev. F. A. Thompson ministers this year (Springfield and Port Royal, Va.,) have been greatly blessed. The former has received about twenty additions, the latter eleven.—Central Presbyterian.

In our last issue we published the report of a correspondent of the Christian Observer that Rev. S. F. Tenny would shortly take charge of the Texas Presbyterian. The last named paper declares the report unfounded.

The Central Presbyterian says that at the Communion of the Second Presbyterian Church of Richmond, Va., (Dr. Hoge's), on Sabbath, November 30th, eleven persons were received by certificate, and two by examination.

As the fruits of a revival of the Presbyterian church at Cedartown, Ga., of which Rev. J. E. Jones is paster, nineteen communicants were added to the Presbyterian church and many to other churches.

A church was organized, Nov. 30th, at Harperseville, Ala., in connection with South Alabama Presbytery. The church consists of sixteen members, two ruling elders and two deacons. Rev. James M. McLean ministers to them.

Rev. D. L. Wilson, pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian church Rockingham county, Va., has resigned his charge and requested the congregation to unite with him in asking the Presbytery of Lexington to dissolve the pastoral relation.—Christian Observer.

York church, at York Station, Ala., was organized 26 ult, and added to Tuskaloosa Presbytery. Sixteen members were enrolled, one of whom was received on profession and baptized. Dr. J. F. Allison and Messrs. Oliver Wiley and R. J. Barr chosen ruling elders and Mr John Mawhenney, deacon. The officers all were installed and Mr. Barr ordained.

The St. Louis Presbyterian says: Last Sunday was the seventh anniversary of the beginning of Dr. Rutherford's labors as pastor of Pine Street church. During this time the additions have averaged forty a year, and the contributions foot up $80,000.

The church at Lexington, Mo., is rejoicing in both temporal and spiritual prosperity. The St. Louis Presbyterian says: The house of worship has been repaired and repainted, within and without, and now presents a very neat appearance. Not only so, but better—infinitely better—ten persons have recently been added to the church on profession of faith, and we learn that others are expected soon to confess Christ. The pastor, Rev. G. L. Leyburn, and his people have much reason to feel encouraged.

The stated celebration of the Lord's Supper took place in the Central Church (Dr. Brank's) last Sunday. It was announced that the Session had admitted four persons by letter. We learn also that, but for providential hindrances, four others would have sought admission by examination.—St. Louis Presbyterian.

Rev. J. Rice Bowman, of Harrisonburg, Va., has received a call from a congregation near St. Louis, and has gone there to visit the field. His old congregation met Sunday and adopted resolutions urging him not to accept and promising him if he will stay "to aid in his labors more cheerfully and earnestly in the future than we have done in the past."—Central Presbyterian.

At an adjourned meeting of West Lexington Presbytery on the 13th ult, Rev. Russell Cecil was ordained to the Gospel ministry and installed pastor of the church at Nicholasville, Ky. Rev. W. J. Lapsley preached the sermon; Rev. G. H. Rout presided and delivered the charge to the people. Rev. J. G. Hunter delivered the charge to the pastor.

The occasion of the farewell of Dr. Boggs to the congregation of the Second Presbyterian Church of Memphis is represented as very affecting. The congregation accepted their pastor's resignation on assurance that his life depended on removal from Memphis. It will be remembered that Dr. Boggs received a call from Atlanta during the prevalence of the yellow fever epidemic, but declined to leave Memphis at that time.

The congregation of the church at Cynthiana, Ky., after a sermon by Rev. Dr. Stuart Robinson on the duty of consecrating their means to God's service raised $1150 toward the completion of their house of worship. Eight hundred and fifty dollars had been previously raised by the ladies and pastor to complete the basement, and $2,150 had been raised for the general work. The building probably will be completed soon. Rev. Jno. E. Triplett, pastor elect of this church, was received into the Presbytery of West Lexington, from the Presbytery of Montgomery, on November 13th.

During the absence of Rev. Dr. Bunting, editor of the Texas Presbyterian, and pastor of the church at Galveston, at Synod, a fire broke out in his home. By the prompt and courageous action of Mrs B. it was soon suppressed, but not until the furniture was damaged and Dr. B.'s wardrobe entirely destroyed.

Two ladies called upon the pastor, and with a delicacy which does honor to their heads and hearts, placed in his hand when leaving, a note expressing their deep sympathy, and containing $125.

The New Orleans Democrat publishes resolutions complimentary to Rev. A. J. Witherspoon, adopted by the Presbyterian Brotherhood of that city on the occasion of releasing him from the care of the city mission work that he may devote himself exclusively to the chaplaincy of the Seamen's Bethel and the Carrollton Mission. The Democrat thus compliments Mr. Witherspoon: 'There is not perhaps in this or any other city a purer man or a more earnest and faithful Christian worker than Rev. A. J Witherspoon. His gentle manners, courteous bearing and his unmistakable piety have all contributed to his remarkable success in city missionary work. While laboring in this field he has given much attention to the Seamen's Bethel. Under his care and guidance that institution has grown steadily in influence and numbers until now it attracts wide attention. There is no doubt that the Bethel will now become more attractive than ever, if that is possible, and that it will steadily grow in popular favor."

NORTHERN.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The St. Louis Presbyterian, regretting the fact, states that the High Street church, in St. Louis, Mo., connected with the Northern Assembly, has succumbed to the burden of debt. The house of worship has been sold, and the church disolved.

The Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Westminster states that at a meeting held in Columbia Pa., Dec. 1st, they suspended Rev. Wm. J. Bridells from the Gospel ministry.

By the will of Dr. Oliver White, of New York city, the sum of $1,000 and all his medical library are bequeathed to the Presbyterian Hospital of New York. Three-fourths of the income of $3,000 are to be given to the support of the pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Somers, N Y., after the death of one person named.—The Presbyterian.

Rev. James Kinner Wilson, died at Wakeeny, Kansas, on the 26th of November. He was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Wakeeny, active and dilligent and successful in his pastoral work.

BAPTIST.

During a pastorate existing for the past thirty five years, Rev. Dr. E. M. Levy, pastor of the Berean Baptist church, Philadelphia, has baptized over one thousand converts.

METHODIST.

The Methodists of Philadelphia recently held a fair for the benefit of their orphanage, and realized $15,000 net.

Rev. J. F. Goucher, pastor of Gilmore Street Church, Baltimore, has given a lot of ground in the city, 83 by 140 feet, for erecting a suitable building for the education of colored ministers. He gives in addition $5,000, on condition that $6,500 are raised otherwise.

LUTHERAN.

The Rev. Dr. C. P. Krauth, Vice-President of the University of Pennsylvania, has been requested by the Pittsburgh Synod of the Lutheran Church to undertake the preparation of a life of Martin Luther.—Presbyterian.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

A Huguenot church, the Church De Saint, in New York City, which has worshipped for many years after the Presbyterian order, has gone over to the Episcopal Church. It numbers eighty-four communicants.

REFORMED EPISCOPAL.

Rev. Dr. R. S. Moran, formerly of the North Carolina Conference, has been called to the rectorship of the Church of the Redeemer, of the Reformed Episcopal Church, in Washington City.

The Reformed Episcopal Church now has ninety-seven ministers, including six bishops, who all have pastoral charges. Of the ninety-seven ministers sixty-four are in the United States, fourteen in Canada, and nineteen in England, where the Church is increasing more rapidly at present than it is in the United States.—Christian at Work.

CONGREGATIONALIST.

The Congregationalist church at South Boston, Mich., has extended a call to the Rev. John Turner, recently of the Methodist Church.

A bronze tablet, set in block polished marble, has been placed in the wall of the Church of the Strangers, in Mercer street, as a memorial of gratitude to the memory of the late Commodore Vanderbilt, who gave the church to the society. The expense of the tablet was met by individual subscriptions of not more than $1 each. The inscription upon the tablet is as follows; "Erected to the memory of Cornelius Vanderbilt by the Church of the Strangers."—Christian Intelligencer.

GENERAL.

It is said that more than fifty ministers, including professors, teachers and others, engaged in different departments of religious work, reside in Princeton, N. J.

The Christian at Work says: Brooklyn is no longer entitled to the distinctive name of the "City of Churches," being now far behind several other cities of this country in proportion of churches to population. There are at least ten prominent cities that go ahead of her. She has only one church for every 1,721 of population, while Washington, which deserves the name that Brooklyn wears, has one for every 932. Cleaveland has one for every 1,044; New Orleans one for every 1,345; Cincinnati one for every 1,345; Baltimore one for every 1,412, and Boston one for every 1,666. St. Louis is nearly as well off for churches as Brooklyn, having one for every 1,852 population. As for this city, it is nearly as far behind Brooklyn as Brooklyn is behind Washington. The proportion stands one to 2,613. In New York State a better showing is made than Washington herself. The figures are 1 to 805.

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

The Wilmington Star tells, through a correspondent, of a red oak tree in Brunswick casting a shade of ten thousand square feet. Just above the ground it is seven feet and a half in diameter.

Col. Charles R. Jones' address before the Carolina fair at Charlotte, on the subject of "Small Grain," is highly commended.

Osnaburgs made by Col. Tom Holt's Haw River factory took the first premium at the Cincinnati exhibition.—Farmer and Mechanic.

The Bank of England supports a rifle corps of its own, which in time, it is intended, shall do away with the necessity of drafting a force every night from one of the household regiments to guard the national money chest.

In the Bermudas numbers of houses are built of rock coral, which have the advantage of being extremely durable, as well as permeable by air currents, thus rendering the houses cool and light. Other varieties of the non-cellular branch are used in Barbadoes for door steps, and even for making roads.

The Durham Recorder says: Professor Ledoux has been invited to deliver the opening address before the American Agricultural Society in New York, and has gone on for that purpose. This is a high compliment to a Southern man.

The Durham Recorder says: Dr. Charles Phillips, accompanied by his wife, took the train here Wednesday afternoon for New York, for the benefit of medical treatment for Dr. P., who, though bright and cheerful as ever, is still very much of an invalid.

The railway to Mount Vesuvius, the last new project in mountain-climbing, is now finished. It is 900 metres in length, and will enable tourists to ascend by it to the very edge of the crater.

To answer a demand for bronze one cent pieces the Philadelphia Mint turned out over 3,000,000 pieces of that denomination last month. This supply did not equal the demand.

Do little things as if they were great, because of the majesty of Jesus Christ, who dwells in thee; and do great things as if they were little and easy, because of his omnipotence.—Pascal.

There is a burden of care in getting riches, fear in keeping them, temptation in using them, guilt in abusing them, sorrow in losing them, and a burden of account at last to be given up concerning them.—Matthew Henry.

We take pleasure in recommending Munson, the clothier. His advice is good, for nothing makes a man feel better satisfied with himself than a suit of new clothes.

We are in receipt of the Catalogue of Bingham School for 1879. The number for the current session (the 171st) is 50 per cent. ahead of the last and 25 per cent. ahead of any former Session. Every Southern State, we believe, is represented and also New York and Wisconsin, Brazil and Siam. The catalogue claims that the culture of the faculty is broader, the discipline and instruction better, the satisfaction given to pupil and patron greater, than ever before. The Prize and Scholarship features are new and so is a Leipzig Ph. D. among the teachers of a Southern School. The increase from 106 in 1876, 123 in 1877, 142 in 1878 to 166 in 1879, is very significant. Board is $12 per month Tuition, $50 per Session. See Advertisement.

Messrs. Polk Miller & Co: Your Pocket Cure is of tried virtue. I have seen Dyspepsia cured completely by it. It seems to be an antidote to our "National Disease." The ingredients are not kept by the apothecaries, and have been difficult to get.—Editor Richmond Christian Advocate.

Maj. W. B. Lynch, whose advertisement appears in to-day's paper, is a grandson of Rev. Wm. Bingham, the great educator, and founder of Bingham School, first located in Wilmington. Maj. Lynch was educated by the late W. J. Bingham and for sometime associated with him in the school at Oaks, N. C. As one of the proprietors of Bingham School he was associated with Col. and with Maj. Bingham at Mebaneville, N. C., for fifteen years.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and Throat and Lung, Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative power in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. SHERAR, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, New York.

WILMINGTON MARKET DURING WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 16.

The attention of all persons interested is called to the fact that strict personal attention is given to the collection of the necessary information, and the careful preparation of our MARKET REPORT, so as to give a correct general review of transactions and prices, for the week ending each Tuesday morning.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—Sales at 38 cents throughout.

ROSIN—Strained and Good Strained $1 30 on Wednesday and Thursday. On Friday sales Strained and Good Strained at $1 27½. Saturday no sales and prices nominally unchanged. Monday dull at $1 25 for both qualities.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—$1 60 for Hard and $2 60 for Yellow Dip, until Monday, when former figures and also $1 75 for Hard and $2 75 for Soft were obtained. On Tuesday at close of report market was very unsettled, with a tendency to lowest figures above given, but price had not been determined.

TAR—Wednesday $1 15, since $1 10, but on Tuesday at close of report $1 only was offered by buyers.

COTTON—No sales on Wednesday and market quoted at 12½ cents for Middling; Thursday, without sales price was quoted at 12½ cents; quotations on Friday 12½ cents; Saturday, market dull and inactive at 11½ cents; Monday no change. At close of report the tendency was to lower prices.

CORN—In fair demand; stock limited. We make no change in prices.

TIMBER—Sales of 2 rafts Common at $5, 1 do. do. Mill at $6 50, 1 do. do. at $7, 2 do. Good Mill at $8, 1 do. do. at $8 50, 2 do. Prime Mill at $10, 2 do. do. at $11 50 and 1 do. Extra Mill at $12 50.

MARRIED.

☞No notice of a marriage or death will be inserted unless accompanied by a responsible name, which is wanted not for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.

At Mill Bridge, Dec. 11, 1879, by Rev. J. Alston Ramsay, Mr. H. A. Holmes and Mr. A. E. Nail.

On the 4th inst., at Pioneer Mills Cabarrus county, N. C., by Rev. James M. Wharey, Mr. Robert Lee Cochran and Miss Mollie L., daughter of Col. J. C. Barnhardt.

On the 2d inst., by Rev. Walter W. Pharr, in Poplar Tent congregation, Cabarrus county, Robert H. Smith and Miss Ella M. Smith.

In Lumber Bridge township, Robeson county, N. C., Dec. 11th, 1879, by Rev. Hector McLean, Mr. William Maxwell and Miss Eliza, daughter of Lauchlin McFayden, who died in the late war.

In the Presbyterian church, Rutherfordton, N. C., Dec. 10th, 1879, by Rev. W. M. McGilvary, Mr. A. N. Daniel, of Wilson, N. C., and Miss Ida McEntire, of Rutherford county, N. C.

In Calvary church, Louisville, Ky., Tuesday evening, 2d inst., by Rev. J. G. Minnigerode, Rev. James H. Morrison, pastor of Portland Avenue Presbyterian church, Louisville, and son of Rev. Wm. N. Morrison, Asheville, N. C., to Miss Elizabeth S. Brannon, of Louisville.

On the evening of the 3d inst., in the Presbyterian church, Asheville, N. C., Robert B., son of Rev. R. B. Sutton, of Greensboro, N. C., and Sallie, youngest daughter of Rev. Wm. N. Morrison, the officiating clergyman, of Asheville.

In the Presbyterian church, Lincolnton, N. C., by Rev. R. Z. Johnston, on the 11th December, T. H. Cobb, Esq., and Miss Nellie, daughter of Capt. V. Q. Johnson, Superintendent of Carolina Central Railway.

At the manse of the Second Presbyterian church of this city, Dec. 11th, by Rev. C. M. Payne Mr. Reuben Grant and Miss Bettie McMillan. All of this city.

At the residence of the bride's father, Dec. 9th, by S. S. Webb, Esq., James A. Zachary and Lina Pickard.

DIED.

☞Obituary notices must be paid for in advance. The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

In Moore county, on the 9th of November, Miss SARAH BLACK, in the 80th year of her age.

Her death was calm and peaceful, as her life had been. Her suffering was protracted, and though often severe, was borne without a murmur. She waited patiently for her release, humbly relying on the wisdom and faithfulness of her Saviour, whom she had loved and trusted for nearly sixty years. She was modest and unassuming, wearing the "ornament of a meek and quiet spirit." Her life was a bright example of what the Christian life should be—a constant evidence that she "had been with Jesus."

PASTOR.

On the 21st of August, 1879, Mrs. T. M. DOUGLASS, in the 42d year of her age.

Mrs. Douglass was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and previous to her death expressed her trust in Christ as her Saviour. She leaves two orphan daughters to mourn the loss of a mother's prayers and training. May the God of the fatherless and motherless be their God. P. T. P.

On the 16th November, at Rocky River parsonage, MARY WALKER, youngest child of J. M. and M. W. Wharey, aged nearly 2 years.

The oppositions and disappointments with which we meet in life are but the touch of Providence to keep us in the right way. Without them we would wander to this side and that, forsaking the one path that leads to Himself and the Kingdom.—United Presbyterian.

OUR PAPER.

We do not forget that the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN is read not only by Ministers, who by reason of training and study are specially fond of profound discussions of religious philosophy, but by both sexes, and by all classes and conditions of persons. Consequently it is our aim to present such a variety of moral and religious reading that the paper will commend itself to all as a popular vehicle of such information and instruction as not only ought to be read, but as will be read by young and old, rich and poor, clergy and laity, learned and unlearned. We present no elaborate prospectus. Any who may desire to know more of the paper, are referred to its friends, who may be found in almost any community, or we will gladly send sample copies on application.

OUR PREMIUMS.

We invite special attention to the premiums we are offering with the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN for the ensuing year:

To any subscriber, the paper one year, and Kitto's Cyclopedia ($5 00 edition) for $4 75.

The paper one year and Conybeare and Howson's Life of St. Paul ($4 00 edition) for $4 50.

The paper one year and Cruden's Unabridged Concordance for $4 00.

To any one sending us THREE new subscribers at $2 65 each we give SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY, OR THE LIFE OF ST. PAUL

As a premium for two new subscribers, at $2 65 each, we give CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.

To every New Subscriber at $2 65 we will give a MAP OF PALESTINE, 28x42

We have sent this Map to a large number of persons and feel justified in saying it gives entire satisfaction. The publisher's price is $1 00.

The Cyclopedia and the Bible Dictionary are very cheap—exceedingly cheap. And CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE, COMPLETE—UNABRIDGED,

Being an index to every important word in the Scriptures and the Apocrypha—with full definitions of the Theological and Scriptural meanings of words, and having the texts indicated with the respective meanings. We say this Concordance—the best probably in the world is a marvel of cheapness. No Christian family—or other family—should be without it.

WE SPECIALLY OFFER The Paper one year with the CONCORDANCE, To any new Subscriber for $3 50.

In all cases we prepay postage.

WE BELIEVE

That if every one would use Hop Bitters freely there would be much less sickness and misery in the world, and people are fast finding this out, whole families keeping well at a trifling cost by its use. We advise all to try it.—U. & A., Rochester, N. Y.

DR. AYER'S LABORATORY, that has done such wonders for the sick, now issues a potent restorer for the beauty of mankind—for the comeliness which advancing age is so prone to diminish and destroy. His VIGOR mounts luxuriant locks on the bald and gray pates among us, and thus lays us under obligations to him for the good looks as well as health of the community.

25c. buys a pair of Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners and make a boot or shoe last twice as long.

A FAVORITE COUGH REMEDY.—For Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Catarrh and other diseases of the bronchial tubes, no more useful article can be found than the well known "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

WHOLESALE PRICES.

☞ These quotations represent the wholesale prices.

ARTICLES.	PRICES.
BACON—Western Smoked—
Hams	10 a	12
Sides, per lb	0 a	7½
Shoulders	a	6½
Dry Salted—
Sides, per lb	0 a	7¾
Shoulders	0 a	6
CHEESE—Northern Factory, per lb	0 a	11
Dairy, cream per lb	00 a	14½
State, per lb	00 a	10
COFFEE—Rio, per lb	18 a	18
Laguayra, per lb	18 a	20
CORN MEAL—per bush in sacks	00 a	75
DOMESTICS—Sheetings, 4-4, per yd	a	7½
Yarn, per bunch	00 a	85
FLOUR—Fine, per bbl	0 00 a	5 00
Super, Northern, per bbl	5 50 a	6 00
Extra do. " per bbl	6 25 a	6 50
Family " per bbl	7 50 a	9 00
City Mills—Extra Super, per bbl	0 00 a	7 25
" Family, per bbl	0 00 a	7 75
" Extra do., per bbl	0 00 a	8 25
GLUE—per lb	14 a	16
GRAIN—Corn, in sacks, per 56 lbs from store—white	72½ a	75
CORN, wholesale, in sacks	65 a	67½
Corn, mixed, wholesale in sacks	65 a	67½
Corn, Cargo, per 56 lbs, bulk	00 a	62½
Oats, per bushel from store	60 a	57½
Peas, Cow, per bushel	60 a	65
HOOP IRON—per ton	90 00 a	95 00
LARD—Northern, per lb	9½ a	10
North Carolina, per lb	10 a	11
LIME—per bbl	0 00 a	1 00
MOLASSES—West Indies, old crop	00 a	30
" " bbls	00 a	33½
" " new crop	35 a	37
" " bbls	37 a	39
New Orleans	28 a	50
Sugar House, hhds, per gal	00 a	20
" " bbls., per gal	00 a	22
Syrup, bbls., per gal	40 a	55
NAILS—Cut, 4d to 20d, per keg	00 a	3 75
OILS—Kerosene, per gal	13½ a	15
Lard, per gal	1 00 a	1 10
PEANUTS—per bushel	80 a	1 15
PORK—Northern, City Mess	12 00	12 50
SALT—Alum, per bag of 3 bushels	75 a	1 00
Liverpool, per sack	85	90
Liverpool fine, per sack	a	1 75
SUGAR—Cuba, per lb	8½ a	10½
Porto Rico, per lb	0 a	7½
A—Coffee, per lb	0 a	11
B— " per lb	9 a	11½
C— " per lb	9 a	9½
Ex. C— per lb	0 a	9½
Crushed, per lb	00 a	11½
SOAP—Northern, per lb	5 a	7
Crampton's N. Y. Palm Soap, per box 100 lbs., ½ bars	0 00 a	4 20
TIMBER—Shipping, per M	12 00 a	13 00
Mill Prime, per M	9 00 a	11 00
Mill Fair, per M	6 50 a	8 50
Inferior to Ordinary, per M	8 00 a	5 00

Lynch's Select School,
HIGH POINT, N. C.

An English, Mathematical, Classical, Commercial and Scientific Academy;

MAJ. W. B. LYNCH, A. M., Principal.
B. P. PRICE, A. B., Assistant.

Spring session of 1880 begins January 21st. Board and Tuition $80. For circulars address the Principal.
dec 17 623-6t

ORGANS New 7-stop Organ, $46. New 13-stop Organ, only $68. ☞ 15 days' trial. Catalogue free. U. S. PIANO CO., 163 Bleecker st., N. Y.

NOWHERE IN THE STATE

CAN A MORE STYLISH CUTTER BE FOUND than the new one at

MUNSON'S.

300 Different kinds of Goods to select a suit from, which, made up in CURRAN'S best style, will enable you to spend

A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.
dec 17 623-2t

BINGHAM SCHOOL,
MEBANEVILLE, N. C.,

Is now PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys.

The 171st Session ending Dec. 17th, 1879, has been the most prosperous in the eighty-six years of the School's history. The 172d Session will begin January 14th, 1880. Board $12 per month. Tuition $50 per Session. For catalogue giving full particulars address, MAJ. R. BINGHAM, Sup't.
dec 17 623-1m

SALT. SALT. SALT.

21,000 Sacks

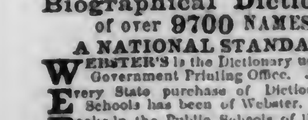
Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!

Factory Filled Fine Table.
AND
Liverpool Ground Alum.

Full Weight Guaranteed.

"WILLARD'S,"
NORTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
dec 17 623-tf

A CHOICE GIFT
For all times,
HOLIDAYS, WEDDING, BIRTHDAY, ANNIVERSARY, or any other day; for PASTOR, TEACHER, PARENT, CHILD, FRIEND.



WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED.
NEW EDITION.
Containing a SUPPLEMENT of over
4600 NEW WORDS and Meanings.
ALSO ADDED, A NEW Biographical Dictionary
of over 9700 NAMES.
A NATIONAL STANDARD.

WEBSTER'S is the Dictionary used in the Government Printing Office. Jan. 1879.
Every State purchase of Dictionaries for Schools has been of Webster.
Books in the Public Schools of the United States are mainly based on Webster.
Sale of Webster's is 20 times as great as the sale of any other series of Dictionaries.
THIRTY-TWO THOUSAND COPIES have been placed in the public schools of the U. S.
Engravings,—contains 3000, nearly three times as many as any other Dictionary.
Recommended by State Sup'ts of Schools in 35 States, and by 50 College Pres'ts.
Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Ms.

NEWEST SABBATH SCHOOL MUSIC BOOKS
60,000 Already Sold.
HEAVENLY CAROLS
By Rev. I. Baltzell and Rev. E S Lorenz.

Including an improved Elementary and Practical Department on the Theory of Music, by J. H. Kurzenknabe. 176 pages. Board cover. Single copies, by mail, 35 cents. Per dozen, by mail, $4. Per dozen, by express, $3 60.

GOLDEN SONGS,
For the Sabbath School.
NO BETTER BOOK IN MARKET.
150,000 Sold.
By Rev. I. Baltzell.

Including an Elementary and Practical Department on the Theory of Music, by J. H. Kurzenknabe.

176 Pages. Board Cover. Single copies, by mail, 35 cents. Per dozen, by express, $3 60 or $4 per dozen by mail, postage paid. Address

W. J. SHUEY, Dayton, Ohio.
dec 17 623-4t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE BEST REMEDY
FOR
Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

SELECT BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL.
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.

Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.

THE SPRING TERM of 1880 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE. Board and Tuition $100.
Circulars forwarded on application.
466-*jan.1,'79

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.

BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.

LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.

The Remington Sewing Machine,

A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.

Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.
Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.
GEO. A. PECK.
25 South Front Street.
dec 10 622-tf

THE GOLDEN LIGHT,
A SONG BOOK FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS,
PUBLISHED BY
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO'Y.,
1001 Main St., RICHMOND, Va., or
207 North 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, Mo.

Single copy by mail 10 cents; per dozen $1 00—by mail $1 10; per hundred $7 50—by mail $8 50.

This number will be followed every six months by similar publications, each containing twenty-five or thirty new and choice pieces of music, and about the same number of standard Sunday School Hymns.
dec 10 622-8m

G. H. GRAVES,
—WITH—
YEARGAN, PETTY & Co
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Notions, &c.
RALEIGH, N. C.

Would be glad to have his friends and everybody else to call. He guarantees to sell them goods cheaper than they can be bought elsewhere in the city. Orders are solicited from Merchants and all others.

Messrs Yeargan, Petty & Co. keep an assortment of RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS and DRESS GOODS

Special attention is asked to their line of Hamburg and Nainsook Edgings and Insertions, Silk Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Ladies' Dress Shoes, &c.
dec 10 622-1m

Nice Books
—FOR—
HOLIDAY PRESENTS.

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE, $1 50;
TEACHER'S BIBLES from $1 50 to $8 00;
CHURCH HYMN BOOKS from $1 00 to $3 00;
CHATTERBOX, 1879, $1 00;
WILLIAM, THE BAPTIST, 2d edition, $1 00;
DABNEY'S THEOLOGY, sheep, 2d edition, $5 00;
PROPHECY; A Series of Lectures by Rev. A. P. Foreman, $1 50;
BALM FOR WOUNDED SPIRITS, by W. S. Plumer, D. D., Paper covers, 10 cents.
ASSURANCE OF GRACE AND SALVATION, By Same, Paper, 10 cents;
HAPPY THOUGHTS FOR CHRISTMAS. Beautifully Illustrated, 80 full page engravings, $1 00;
MEMOIR of REV. DR. DAVID COULTER. With Reminiscences, Letters, Lectures and Sermons, $1 50;

A Thousand other Beautiful Books for Christmas Presents and Sunday School Libraries.

Send for approved Lists to
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va.
Or, 207 N. 8th St., St. Louis, Mo
dec 10 622-tf

Oratory! Pathos! Humor! Fun!
100 CHOICE SELECTIONS
No 17 NOW READY. P. GARRETT & CO.
708 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.
This number is uniform with the Series, and contains another HUNDRED splendid Declamations and Readings. 180 pp. Price, 30 cts., mailed free. Sold by Booksellers. Every boy who speaks pieces, every member of a Lyceum who wants Something New to recite, should get the Whole Set. Club rates, and Full List of Contents Free.
dec 10 622-4t

READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN
If you like to be satisfied deal with
MOTT & CAMPEN,
—Dealers in—
BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.

We keep on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain our reputation in this regard. We will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,
MOTT & CAMPEN.
North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.

P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult us either by mail or in person.
nov 19 619-tf

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.

WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.

Our Trimming Department is Complete,

and comprises the leading styles.

Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.

We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.

Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.

The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.
N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.
nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.

THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the

Latest and Most Approved Style.

To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.

"First Come, First Served."
MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN, api 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

THOS. A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.
McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.

Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 593 1y.

PROVERBS.

"The Richest Blood, Sweetest Breath and Fairest Skin in Hop Bitters."
"A little Hop Bitters saves big doctor bills and long sickness."
"That invalid wife, mother, sister or child can be made the picture of health with Hop Bitters."
"When worn down and ready to take your bed, Hop Bitters is what you need."
"Don't physic and physic, for it weakens and destroys, but take Hop Bitters, that build up continually."
"Physicians of all schools use and recommend Hop Bitters. Test them."
"Health is beauty and joy—Hop Bitters gives health and beauty."
"There are more cures made with Hop Bitters than all other medicines."
"When the brain is wearied, the nerves unstrung, the muscles weak, use Hop Bitters."
"That low, nervous fever, want of sleep and weakness, calls for Hop Bitters."

Hop Cough Cure and Pain Relief is Pleasant, Sure and Cheap.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
Charlotte, N. C.,

KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will

Compete in Prices,
—EITHER—
WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,
With any Market.

All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods
VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.

We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.
BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 185.

INSTITUTE FOR TRAINING OF COLORED MINISTERS
Under the care of the General Assembly.
Located at TUSKALOOSA, ALA.

THE FOURTH SESSION, of ten months, will commence on the 1st day of September next, under the instruction of Rev. D. C. Rankin, Professor, who has the best testimonials of fitness for the work, in his deep interest in the colored people and his past labors in their behalf, his ample scholarship, and his aptness to teach.

All the branches necessary to fit candidates for the Gospel Ministry will be taught. Some acquaintance with the early branches of English will be required for entrance. Candidates must come recommended by their Presbyteries or Committees of Education; and if of other denominations, must have similar credentials.

No charge for tuition. Board can be had on reasonable terms.
C. A. STILLMAN, Superintendent.
july 23 602-tf

CHEESE.
200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,
For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

A WONDER IN OPTICS.
MAGIC LANTERN 36 VIEWS 12.00
A COMPLETE EXHIBITION FOR $12.

AGENTS. READ THIS
We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.
nov 19 619-13t

DeROSSET & NORTHROP,
FIRE AND MARINE
INSURANCE AGENTS,
REPRESENTING } Standard American AND English Companies.
28 North Water Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
nov 19 619-tf

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER. Send your orders by mail.

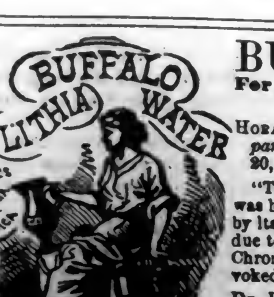
COTTON!

IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants

For the Sale of Cotton,
Which they are prepared to do
On the Most Economical Charges.

They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.

ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,
Wilmington, N. C.
September 3d, 1879. 606



TRADE MARK—PATENTED.

BUFFALO LITHIA WATERS
For Diseases of the Uric Acid Diathesis, Especially Gout, Rheumatism, Stone or Gravel:

HORATIO C. WOOD, Professor of Materia Medica, etc., in the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, in the Medical Times of July 20, 1878.

"The Water of the Buffalo Springs, of Mecklenburg county, Virginia, was brought to our notice by a Baltimore physician, who had been relieved by its use of some very troublesome and alarming symptoms, believed to be due to an inherited gouty diathesis. Trial in one or two cases of inveterate Chronic Gout has afforded much satisfaction to us, free diuresis being provoked and followed by relief of symptoms."

DR. HARVEY L. BYRD, of Baltimore, formerly Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics, and of Principles and Practice of Medicine, and late Professor of Obstetrics and of Diseases of Women and Children.

[Extract from letter dated Baltimore, November 11, 1879.]

"My acquaintance with the therapeutical properties of the Buffalo Lithia Water extend over several years, and to a large number of cases in this city, and also to a season as resident physician at the Springs. As a consequence of this long experience and observation, I feel that what I am about to say in regard to the properties and action of Spring No. 2 will be verified by all those giving the water a fair trial in the diseases hereinafter named, as well as in analogous or kindred conditions of the organism. I have witnessed the best results from the action of this water in Chronic Gout, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatism, Gravel, and Stone of the Bladder, and I not hesitate to express the opinion that in all diseases depending upon or having their origin in the Uric Acid Diathesis, it is unsurpassed, if indeed it is equaled by any water thus far known to the profession."

THOS. F. GOODE, Proprietor, Buffalo Lithia Springs, Va.
dec 17-1t

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.
LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.

Children's Merino Under Suits—A great comfort and convenience.
CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.

LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.

PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,
In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.

A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.
OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.

Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.
dec 3 631-1y

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847) S. W. WHITING.
R. B. ANDREWS & CO.

Men and Boys CLOTHING, Dress Shirts, Cuffs, TIES, SCARFS, Half Hose, Suspenders, Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Underwear, Trunks, Valises, &c.

Extra Large Sizes CLOTHING, A Specialty.

HATS AND CAPS, A Large Assortment.

We give special attention to orders from a distance.

LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.

NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh, N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods
—AT—
M. M. KATZ'S,
36 MARKET STREET.

BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.

Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.

DRESS GOODS.—Satin Melange, Cashmere Sole, Brocade Persan, Persan Rave, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.

MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Ete, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.

CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS. Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Cheneil Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets. The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.

MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c., &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to oct 22 M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS!

H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments. oct 1-2m

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.

THE FALL TERM of 1879 opens Wednesday, AUGUST 27. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks.

Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.

Address MRS. E. N. GRANT, Principal.
feb 20 528-1y

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of

BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,

For the purpose of carrying on a

General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,

AT THE OLD STANDS,

5, 7 and 8, North Front Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.

JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 8, 1877.
oct 10 509-

TOBACCO APPETITE REMOVED! No Fee charged until cured. Send Stamp GIANT SYSTEM MED. CO., Cleveland Ohio.
dec 10 622-3t

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.

200 Hhds and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., 218 Fulton St. N.Y.
oct 8 413-26t

HALL & PEARSALL

OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of

100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER,
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.
sep 3—608-tf

Fresh Arrivals.

100 Boxes CREAM CHEESE,
50 Tubs LARD,
10 Tierces Fairbanks' LARD,
100 Boxes SOAP,
100 Boxes POTASH and LYE,
200 Bags SHOT,
BAGGING AND TIES,
10 Tierces good cheap HAMS.
For sale low by
HALL & PEARSALL.

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

FOR THE FAMILY.

Baby Has Gone to School.

The baby has gone to school; ah, me!
What will the mother do,
With never a call to button or pin,
Or tie a little shoe?
How can she keep herself busy all day
With the little "hindering thing" away?

Another basket to fill with lunch,
Another "good-bye" to say,
And the mother stands at the door to see
Her baby march away;
And turns with a sigh that is half relief,
And half a something akin to grief.

She thinks of a possible future morn:
When the children one by one,
Will go from their home out in the world,
To battle with life alone,
And not even the baby be left to cheer
The desolate home of that future year.

She picks up garments here and there,
Thrown down in careless haste,
And tries to think how it would seem
If nothing were displaced,
If the house was always as still as this,
How could she bear the loneliness?

—Baltimore Presbyterian.

Abel Cole's Peaches.

BY SARAH P. BRIGHAM.

Jonas Cole owned a snug little house and a ten-acre peach orchard just behind it. This was all the property he had, except his wife and seven children. Eight mouths to fill, besides his own, caused him to work very hard, and sometimes he was irritable and discontented. But when the peach-orchard began to bear and yield an income, his life grew easier. He sent the peaches carefully packed in boxes to Philadelphia, and they found a good sale. They had to be picked a little hard, and mellowed on the way, so that when they reached the customers they were ripe and juicy—just right to eat. One autumn there came a week of intensely hot weather, quite unusual for the season. Mr. Cole's peaches ripened very rapidly, and he foresaw many of them would decay before he could get them to market.

"There are at least six bushels that'll be a dead loss," he said testily. "They'll rot, every one of 'em, before they git to Philadelphia. Don't see why the hot weather didn't come in August, when it ought to."

"Father, why don't you peddle 'em in the village?" inquired Abel. "Put the price down a little, and sell 'em right off. They are just right to eat now, and needn't be lost."

"Well said, Abe. Take old Don and go round and sell them. You may have this lot of peaches, and all the money you can get for them. Look out and drive good bargains."

Abel's eyes brightened. "Oh, that's jolly!" he exclaimed. "Whew! won't I make a fine spec' out of this?"

He harnessed Don into the big lumber wagon, and filled it with a load of fine peaches. A drive of a mile brought him into the village.

"P-e-a-c-h-e-s! p-e-a-c-h-e-s!" he cried. "Nice large peaches! Sixty cents a peck."

The first stop he made was at 'Squire Rockwell's. They had just been supplied elsewhere and did not want any. The next house was old Mrs. Mowrey's who was blind of one eye and lame in one leg.

"Don't believe she'll take any," thought Abel as he knocked at the door; "but I don't mean to skip a house. I'll try 'em all; that's the way to get customers. Want to buy some superb peaches?" he inquired, as the old woman came limping up to him.

"Yes, but my wants and money never go together; haven't a cent; it's all I can do to get bread," was the sorrowing reply.

Abel pondered a moment. "This load of peaches belongs to me. Father gave them to me. Bring out a two quart dish and I'll fill it for nothing. I'll favor you since you've had such a hard lot."

Mrs. Mowrey presented a six quart pail, and her eye brightened as Abel filled it high with peaches, which she received with a shower of thanks.

"Got a little out of pocket there," thought Abel, driving on, "but I'll make it up on somebody who's rich. 'Twon't do to press the poor."

A church and school house were upon one side of the street, and the common upon the other, so that Abel drove slowly on several rods, making no stop. In the meantime he was castle-building, and the gay colored pictures of the future he printed with the imagination were like a bright, real light on his path.

"This lot of peaches," he thought, "taking out what I gave old Widow Mowrey, will bring me towards fifteen dollars. I'll spend one dollar for an algebra, and the rest I'll put in the bank to keep towards going to college. Many is the boy, as poor as I, who's gone to college and made his mark in the world. I'll be a lawyer; that's the profession to rise in; yes I will!"

Just then Mr. Cartwright, a dry goods dealer, chanced to appear in sight.

"Hello, Abel," he called; "stop! I've a word to say."

Abel pulled the reins and waited for Mr. Cartwright to come up.

"Want a place in my store?" he inquired.

"Yes, sir," returned Abel, promptly.

"Well, then, come next week and begin work," said Mr. Cartwright.

Abel reflected a little.

"I want a chance to go in a store till I can do better," said he, "but in the end I'm going to college and to make a lawyer. I'll stay with you a few months, if you wish, and work real hard."

"Where are you going to get the means to go to college?" asked the merchant, with a doubtful smile.

"Where there's a will there's a way. I've two legs, and two arms, and a head. That's my capital. This load of peaches father gave me; it'll bring enough to give me a start. I expect fifteen dollars, at least, and I shall put it into a bank."

"Don't count your chickens before they are hatched," answered Mr. Cartwright, laughing.

The parsonage was now close by. Mrs. Aaron Philipson, the minister's wife, stood in the doorway.

"Peaches! peaches!" sung out Able; "only sixty cents a peck; want to buy, ma'am?"

"Yes," replied the lady, pleasantly, "but ministers' families must not indulge in luxuries. Little is the money we have for anything but real necessities. Your peaches are splendid ones; hope you'll find ready market for them."

"O mother do take one peck," pleaded a little girl by her side. "I haven't had but just one peach to eat this whole year."

"You shall have some," exclaimed the generous Abel, and he poured out a full peck and a half upon the kitchen table, and he stood and watched with delight the family as they eagerly seized the peaches and devoured them.

At the next house Abel found a good customer. Mrs. Hartley was going to have "company to tea," and bought a half bushel. How sweetly the dollar and twenty cents she paid Abel jingled in his pocket. It was charming music to his ears, and his spirits rose to fever heat.

Just opposite lived his best friend, Jacob Armstrong. This boy was sitting upon the piazza in an easy-chair, very pale and thin. He was recovering from typhoid fever.

"Jacob, don't you want some of my nice juicy peaches?" called out Abel. "I own this load."

"Yes, indeed," quickly replied Jacob.

Abel selected the best in the wagon, and the pale face of the sick boy brightened on seeing them.

In this way Abel Cole continued to dispose of his peaches. In two hours the wagon was empty. More than two-thirds of the load had been given to the sick and destitute, and all the money the generous boy returned home with was less than three dollars.

Great was Mr. Cole's indignation upon seeing so small a sum. Fearful oaths came from his mouth, and he abused his son with violent language.

"O father," plead Abel, "I wasn't to blame. There were so many people who couldn't pay, that I couldn't help giving to them."

"Abel is a soft-hearted idiot," laughed his cousin Philip, who stood by. "When I want to get rich, I'll take him for a partner. Ha! ha!"

With keen sarcasm and ridicule Philip told some of the village boys the way Abel Cole sold peaches. It reached the ears of Mr. Cartwright, the merchant, and he questioned Abel. The boy would not deny that he had given away most of the load of peaches. Mr. Cartwright was a hard, grasping man. Pity for the unfortunate was unknown to him, and he said sharply:

"Abel, if this is the way you drive bargains, you'll never do for me. I must have a boy in my store who will keep his eye fixed on the profit. Guess you'd better look for work elsewhere. You are not sharp enough."

Poor Abel! His generous kindness had cost him his place. He left Mr. Cartwright with a bursting heart, and went and sat down on a rock by the roadside, and covered his face with his hands, while great tears fell slowly down his cheeks.

A month passed.

About half a mile from Mr. Cole's house, there was a railroad crossing. Abel was returning from the village one morning, and had just come in sight of the words, "Look out for the engine," when he saw Deacon Jones' brindle cow standing on the track. The express train was a little below, coming in all its mighty power, whistling and belching smoke.

"Oh, dear," exclaimed Abel. "The Deacon's cow'll get run over. Hollo! go 'long! go 'long!" he shouted, running towards the cow and brandishing his arms. The cow did not stir. No sense of her imminent danger reached her dull instinct. "Go 'long! Hollo! Get out!" screamed Abel, and he picked up a small stone, with which he hit her in the side. This forced the cow to take a few steps and clear the track. Abel followed, but his foot struck against one of the rails, and he fell violently forward, striking his head against a sharp, projecting rock, and lay half stunned and motionless on the ground, with one foot on the rail. Objects were dark and indistinct before him. He had a faint realization of danger, and attempted to move his foot, but it was powerless. He could not stir. No human eye could see him. There was no ready hand to lift him from the ground.

One—two—minutes passed. On came the train. It went whizzing by at full speed. A darting, terrible pain dashed from Abel's foot to his brain, then all was a blank.

Three hours passed. When Abel awoke to consciousness he was lying on the bed in his own room. Dr. Monroe was beside him with his fingers upon his wrist. There was a strong smell of ether in the air, and his mother's face was ghastly white.

"What's happened? Where am I?" asked Abel in a bewildered voice.

"In your father's house, with friends," answered the doctor.

Abel gazed wildly about a moment.

"Oh, my leg!" he cried. "What sharp pain there is! What's the matter?"

Then he put his hand to his head and slowly moved it downward. His leg was tightly bandaged. Horrible! his right foot was gone. Oh, what a shiver of agony overspread his soul as he made this discovery!

"Your foot was crushed by the cars. The only way to save you was to amputate it," said the doctor tenderly, with moist eyes.

Abel closed his eyes and clasped his hands. No sound issued from his lips for many minutes. Then he said, in a hoarse, hollow voice, "How I do wish I had died! I can never go to college. I can never make a lawyer. I am a cripple for life."

A month passed. Abel's limb was beginning to heal, and he could get around on crutches, but his prospects in life were in ruins. All joy was crushed out of his heart, and his way was viewless and starless. It takes adversity often to reveal to us who are our true friends. This season of agony and darkness brought to the front scores of friends Abel was unconscious of possessing.

When the news of the terrible accident which had befallen Abel Cole was spread over the village profound sorrow was everywhere felt. His generous open nature had made him greatly beloved, and many pitying hearts longed to lighten the blow for him. His name was in every household, and soon people began to talk earnestly about doing something to ameliorate his condition. "Poor Abel!" said one and another. "He has a noble heart. His generosity cost him a place in the store, and saving Deacon Jones' cow has made him a cripple for life. What can be done for him?" Then a subscription paper was carried around. Its purpose was to raise sufficient money to defray Abel's expenses to Appleton Academy one year, and then to send him to college.

The first name that went down was Peter Lee's, a wealthy manufacturer. It stood opposite one hundred dollars. The next name was David Armstrong, with another hundred. He was Jacob's uncle. Jacob had eloquently pleaded his friend Abel's case. "O uncle," he shouted, "instead of helping me do give to Abel Cole. He's a cripple for life, and a tip-top boy."

So it was everywhere. People who had money gave liberally, and those who had none told his sad story to others and excited them to pity and help.

One bright morning Rev. Aaron Phillipson entered Abel's room with a smiling face. The boy was sitting by the window with folded hands, lost in a painful reverie.

"Abel," said the minister tenderly, "do you know how much you are beloved? Your misfortune has caused deep sorrow everywhere, from least to greatest. See what your friends have done for you!"

He put the paper with a long list of well known names into his hand. There were one thousand dollars in large and small sums.

"Dear boy! You are to go to Appleton Academy one year, and afterwards to college. See this little bank book with your name on it. The money given you has been put in the bank till you are ready to use it. It is enough, with help from the college funds, to give you a superior education."

Happy Abel! The dearest wish of his heart, despite his loss of foot, was about to be realized. A thousand sunbeams seemed to dance over his heart. He felt as if he had suddenly ascended a high mountain of light, and the hard, weary road he had traveled had come to an end.

More than twenty years have come and gone. Abel Cole is a man now, in the noonday of life. Higher, higher, higher he has climbed. From a close student he became a wise, convincing lawyer. His staunch integrity won the public confidence, while his active benevolence and interest in every reformatory movement made him honored and beloved. But the basis and corner stone of his success was laid in boyhood by his spirit of self-sacrifice and generous kindness which gained all hearts; and when a dark day came scores of true, helping hands were outstretched, and by their aid he has climbed to the top of the ladder and stands on the proud eminence of many achievements.—Zion's Herald.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Phenomena of Rain.

One of the most curious things about rain is the inequality of its distribution. Of course rain may be measured in inches in almost any measure set out to catch it. If a pail, for example, be put in an open space on the ground it will catch as much rain as would otherwise have sunk into the ground on the space occupied by the pail. If we visit the pail after every shower we may, by means of a two foot rule, tell what depth of rain has fallen. This is the principle of the rain gauge. In practice better means are of course adopted, so as to prevent evaporation and to measure the depth. Now it is of great consequence where we place our rain gauge. It might be supposed of no importance whether it were on the top of the house or in the garden close by; and yet, strange to say, a gauge in the garden near Westminster Abbey caught twenty-three inches of rain in the course of the year, while one on the roof of a house caught only eighteen inches, and one on the top of the Abbey caught only twelve inches; fact is, rain forms at a low elevation—much lower than is generally supposed; or, if not actually formed at a very low elevation, it increases the size of the drops which come from higher levels. Thus, while Mr. Glaisher was descending in a balloon, he passed through a dry and then through wet fog, where the drops of rain were exceedingly fine, covering his note book like pins' points. These increased in size on approaching the earth and more rapidly when very near the earth.—Christian Union.

A Remedy for Diphtheria.

IMPERIAL RUSSIAN LEGATION,
WASHINGTON, Nov. 16, 1879.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

In view of the increase of diphtheria in several places of the State of New York, I hasten to communicate to you for publicity a very simple remedy, which, having been used in Russia and Germany, may prove effective here. Out of several others Dr. Letzerich, who made extensive experiments in the application of this remedy, has used it in 27 cases, eight of which were of a very serious nature, all of which had a favorable result except in one case, when the child died from a complication of diseases. For children of one year he prescribes the remedy for internal use every one or two hours as follows:

NATR. BENZOIC, pur. 5.0 solv. in aqua distillat aq. menth. piper. ana 40.0 syr. cort. aur. 10.0.

For children from one to three years old he prescribed from seven to eight grammes for 100 grammes of distilled water, with same syrup; for children from three to seven years old he prescribed ten to fifteen grammes, and for grown persons from fifteen to twenty-five grammes for each 100 grammes.

Besides this, he uses also with great success the insufflation on the diphtherial membrane through a glass tube in serious cases every three hours; in light cases three times a day of the natr. benzoic pulver. For grown people he prescribes for gargling a dilution of ten grammes of this pulver for two hundred grammes of water.

The effect of the remedy is rapid. After twenty-four or thirty-six hours, the feverish complaints disappear completely, and the temperature and pulse become normal. This remedy was used also with the same success by Dr. Braham Braun and Professor Klebs, in Prague; Dr. Senator, in Cassel; and several others in Russia and Germany.

Hoping that the publication through your widely-spread paper will prove beneficial in the United States, I remain yours, very truly,

N. SHISHKIN,
Minister of Russia to the United States.

Clergymen's Sore Throat—A Remedy.

In last number, a "Subscriber" wished to know the cure for the "preacher's sore throat." Let me give a remedy which, within a day after application, never failed to cure mine. It is simple and inexpensive—so very simple that some readers will doubtless smile at it. Take some milk and heat it, but not to a degree to give pain to the throat; then use it as a gargle once every fifteen minutes. If twenty-four hours pass before relief is had, it will be the first failure I have ever heard of. A lady living here had the diphtheria so badly that the medicines of the physician seemed to do no good. She tried my remedy, and in an hour the swelling had entirely subsided. I have been urged to give this receipt to the press for the benefit of others, so I send it to you for publication. Let "Subscriber" or other brothers try it, and report.

N. C. A.

Colebrook, N. H.

We submitted the above remedy to one of the ablest of our metropolitan physicians. His answer was: If clergymen will add an amount of lime water equal to the milk, they will have the best gargle known to medical science.—Homoletic Monthly.

Sponge Gathering Around Key West.

A Florida correspondent of the Farmer and Fruit Grower tells how sponges are gathered off Key West, in which waters, and along the Gulf coast of Florida, are the principal sponging grounds of the United States. The sponge schooners have two places for cleaning sponges, namely, Anclote Keys and Rock Island. The several varieties of sponges are classed according to their marketable value as "sheep wool," "yellow," "fox glove," "grass," etc., besides one class, the "loggerhead," which has no value, and is not thought worth picking up. The first named is the variety most sought, as it bears the best price. The most of the vessels engaged in the sponge trade are owned and fitted out at Key West. The outfit of a sponge schooner consists of a number of long poles with hooks fastened on the end for gathering; from three to seven small boats called "dingies;" from seven to fifteen men—according to the number of boats—with provisions for from eight to twelve weeks; water-glasses, etc.

In sponging each dingy carries two men, with water-glasses, sponge hooks, and other necessities. While one man sculls the boat about, the other, lying across the boat's thwart with his head in the water-glass, scans the bottom for sponges. The water-glass is nothing but a common deep wooden pail, with a circular pane of glass for a bottom. Placing this upright in the water, and putting the head in far enough to exclude most of the light, one can easily see an object on the bottom in six or seven fathoms of water. The sponger directs the sculler how to go by waving his hand, and when in a desirable position he thrusts his long pole down and hooks his sponge.

The vessels usually remain out upon the bars from Monday until Friday evening of each week, coming into the Keys Friday night in order to clean the sponges gathered the week previous, put those gathered the current week into the crawls, put their wood and water on board, and prepare for the next week. The freshly gathered sponges are put into crawls or pens, made by driving posts in the sand, where, at low water, they will be quite or almost dry. Here they are left until the next Saturday, to be washed by the tides. On the following Saturday they are cleansed by striking them one or two light blows with a paddle.—Scientific American.

SECULAR NEWS.

Castelle has been summoned to form the Spanish ministry, Senor Ayrala having declined.

Two bills have been introduced into the U. S. House of Representatives expressing sympathy for Ireland. One general and the other to her Majesty's government. Both have been referred.

Women voted in Boston on the 9th inst. for members of the school committee.

Great anxiety is felt in Hungary and Transylvania on account of the destruction of dams on the principal rivers. But for the intense cold several towns and villages would be submerged. Some towns were partly inundated and several houses fell in. No loss of life is reported.

Secretary McCrary of the War Department has been confirmed as U. S. Judge of the Eighth Circuit. Alex. Ramsey has been nominated as successor to the Secretaryship.

The insurrectionary troubles in Mexico hardly amount to revolution, and the government seems likely to suppress them. General Gonzales has been arrested and is in close confinement.

The Irish are starving in some districts, and this aggravates the anti-rent movement. Starving people are not affected by soft words or logical reasoning, Irishmen particularly.

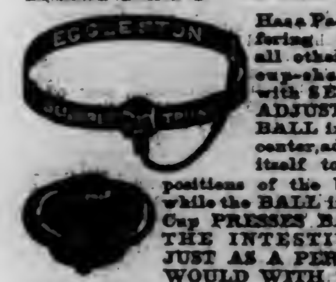
The New York Cotton Exchange reports from twenty six counties in Virginia and North Carolina that 92 per cent. of the cotton has been gathered. Fifty-one per cent. is reported as marketed. The crop is supposed to be less than that of last year.

Lady Beautifiers.

Ladies, you cannot make fair skin, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes with all the cosmetics of France, or beautifiers of the world, while in poor health, and nothing will give you such good health, strength and beauty as Hop Bitters. A trial is certain proof. See another column.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS



Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.
An Enlarged View of the Pad.
Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs.
Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago.

THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated American
WORM SPECIFIC
OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a knawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE
will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper. —:o:—

DR. C. McLANE'S
LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.
As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.
Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.
Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.
Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY
CURATINE
A VEGETABLE MEDICINE FOR THE BLOOD, LIVER & KIDNEYS.

CURATINE, For Blood Diseases.
CURATINE, For Liver Complaints.
CURATINE, For Kidney Diseases.
CURATINE, For Rheumatism.
CURATINE, For Scrofula Diseases.
CURATINE, For Erysipelas, Pimples, Blotches, etc.

A medicinal compound of known value—combining in one preparation the curative powers for the evils which produce all diseases of the Blood, the Liver, the Kidneys. Harmless in action and thorough in its effect. It is unexcelled for the cure of all Blood Diseases such as Scrofula, Tumors, Boils, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Rheumatism, Mercurial Poisoning, also Constipation, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Retention of Urine, etc.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR IT.
THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO.
BALTIMORE, Md.

dec 17 628-eow1y

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest Selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publishing Co., Phila., Pa. oct 1-8t

Lame Back. Weak Back.
BENSON'S Capcine Porous Plaster.
This article is one which really possesses extraordinary merit. By consulting reliable physicians in your own locality, you will find that the above is true. It is far superior to the ordinary porus plaster, all the so-called electrical appliances, and to all external remedies whatever. It contains entirely new elements which cause it to relieve pain at once, strengthen and cure where other plasters will not even relieve. For Lameness and Weakness of the back, diseased Kidneys, Lung and Chest difficulties, Rheumatism, Neglected Colds, Female Affections, and all local aches and pains, it is simply the best remedy ever devised. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25 Cents.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.
1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

AGENTS WANTED For the handsomest and CHEAPEST BIBLES Ever furnished Agents. Extra Terms and Large CASH PREMIUMS. FORSHEE & McMAKIN, Cincinnati, O.
oct 8 618-13teow

Sawing off a Log, Easy and Fast.

Our latest improved sawing machine cuts off a 2-foot log in 2 minutes. A $100 PRESENT will be given to two men who can saw as much in the old way, as one man can with this machine. Circulars sent free. W. GILES, 741 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
nov 19 619-4t eow

THE IMPROVED
DEMAS
A turning lathe and bracket saw combined. So low in price as to come within the reach of all. Boxed free and delivered to Express Co. with all extras on receipt of $8.00. The Improved 1880 Holly Scroll Saw, $3.00. Lester, New American, Fleetwood, Dexter, and all leading machines at manufacturers' prices.
☞Send Stamp for Illustrated Catalogue. Address J. J. WATROUS, 38 Arcade, Cincin'ti, O.
$8.00 COMPLETE
nov 19 619-4teow

BLYMYER M'F'G CO.
BELLS.
Church, School, Fire-alarm, Fine-toned, low-priced, warranted. Catalogue with 1500 testimonials, prices, etc., sent free.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.
dec 3 621-eow-1y

TO THE TRADE
—AT—
Low Prices.

400 Boxes D. S. and SMOKED SIDES,
1000 Bdls GRIP TIES,
2000 Bdls ACME TIES,
1000 Bdls PIECED TIES,
1000 Whole and Half Rolls BAGGING,
500 Kegs NAILS,
300 Bales HAY,
5000 Bush CORN,
250 Bbls SUGARS,
250 Bags COFFEE,
1000 Bbls FLOUR, following brands: La Rose, Blanche, Jack Frost, Plant's Extra, Paragon, Princess, &c.
WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,
MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,
1879—'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's-day, into two Terms.
The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.
There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:
1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.
A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.
Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.
Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.
For Catalogues and other information apply to
REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D., President.
jan 16-522-

FALL STOCK.

WE HAVE ON HAND NOW THE LARGEST and most handsome
STOCK OF GOODS
We have ever offered in this market. A thorough examination of our Stock will not only convince you that it is full, but you will find that we can compare styles, qualities and prices with any house in the State. Our stock of
Fancy Dress Goods, Cashmeres and Alpaccas
Is complete, and we are confident we can please any one wanting anything in this line. A full line of Flannels, Repellants, Cassimeres, Jeans, Damasks, Oil Cretonnes, Domestics, &c. We have a very large stock of CLOAKS AND SHAWLS that we will sell very cheap. Our stock of Clothing, Hats and Caps,
Boots and Shoes, Trunks and Valises, is complete, and at prices that will make it to your interest to buy from us. Carpets and Oil Cloths.
T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opp. Charlotte Hotel, Tryon st., Charlotte, N. C. oct 29 616-tf

Customers Wanted.
We are now receiving our Fall stock of
DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, BOOTS, SHOES,
Groceries, Hardware,
COTTON BAGGING, TIES, &c.,
All of which we are offering low.
Highest cash prices paid for COTTON, NAVAL STORES, and all kinds of country produce.
BRYAN & CO., Jonesboro, N. C.

POWDER! POWDER!
WE ARE AGENTS for THE HAZARD POWDER COMPANY, and keep constantly on hand, their celebrated brands of
KENTUCKY RIFLE POWDER
IN KEGS, HALF KEGS, and QUARTER KEGS.
—ALSO—
Deer Powder and Blasting Powder
WILLARD BROS.
Wilmington, N. C.

ALTAFFER & PRICE
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Woodwork and Builder's Hardware,
We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.
Church Windows Doors Pew Ends
CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles.
Factory foot of Walnut St. Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross. Wilmington, N. C.
apl 16 588-1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL.
HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF
Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish,
Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,
COTTON BAGGING and TIES.
☞ We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.
HALL & PEARSALL, Wilmington, N. C.
63-1y

BUY THE BEST.
WE HAVE now on hand finished.
35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.
Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.
Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.
A. A. McKETHAN & SONS, Fayetteville, N. C.
Oct. 21. 354-t

McMILLAN BROS.,
MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN
SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS

15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS
FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.
Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes, Still Doors & Grate bars.
As we have four Copper-smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only
Regular and Reliable Establishment
where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing
D. G. McMILLAN, Supt., Fayetteville, N. C.
feb 12

W. S. MOORE,
GREENSBORO, N. C.,
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS, MILLINERY, NOTIONS, GLOVES, TRIMMINGS, &C.
We send our Millinery largely over the State, and into five other States. Butterick's patterns.
Agent for Mason & Hamlin and Waters' celebrated Church and Parlor ORGANS. New at $40 and upwards. $75 to $90 buys a magnificent Organ.
Also Waters' and other new Pianos from $125 up. Warranted five and six years. Send for circulars.
One Mason & Hamlin second-hand small Organ $30—good order and cheap.
oct 30-tf W. S. MOORE.

TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.
Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings Machinery of Every Description.
Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.
TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER.
The Invention of the Age.
It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape.)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
☞Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.
HAVE FOR SALE.
2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.
Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.
Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.
Nov. 19 468-1y

J. D. McNEELY,
Grocery, Produce & Commission Merchant
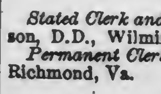
AGENT FOR THE SALE OF Fertilizers, Lime, Sawed Shingles. & Mountain Produce
MERCHANDIZE AND COTTON BROKER,
aug 28-tf Salisbury, N. C.

ADRIAN & VOLLERS
CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present,
SMOKED BACON,
in hogsheads and boxes,
HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKGS,
Breakfast Strips,
Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,
SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,
Molasses and Syrup
OF ALL KINDS.
FLOUR of all Qualities,
and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries.
nov 19 551-1m

JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.
JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS, PUBLISHERS,
AND
BOOK BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.
GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.
We are prepared to execute in the very best style,
ALL KINDS OF
JOB PRINTING
SUCH AS

Business Cards,	Statements,	Catalogues,
Visiting Cards,	Handbills,	Manifests,
Wedding Cards,	Posters,	Bills Lading,
Show Cards,	Notices,	Receipts,
Bill Heads,	Checks,	Labels,
Letter Heads,	Notes,	Tags,
Note Heads,	Drafts,	Envelopes,
Account Sales,	School Circulars,	Pamphlets,

and in fact, every description of
RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING
AT THE
LOWEST HARD TIMES PRICES.
We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed.
Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.



WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
86 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md.
Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c.
mch 28 481-1y

AGENTS WANTED For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1,018 Pages, 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & Co., 66 N. 4th St., Phil'a, Pa.
oct 15 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO
New Organs 13 Stops, 3 set Golden Tongue Reeds, 5 Oct's, 2 Knee Swells, Walnut Case, warnt'd 6 years, Stool & Book $98. New Pianos, Stool, Cover & Book, $143 to $255. Before you buy be sure to write me. Illustrated Newspaper sent Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.
oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.
CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
63 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,
would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.
SAMPLES SENT FREE!
Also, to their
DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.
Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.
All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order.
mch 12-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES
OF THE
GENERAL ASSEMBLY,
OF THE
Presbyterian Church in the United States.

THE CLERKS.

Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D. Richmond, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.

President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq. Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md.

PUBLICATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va.
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION.

Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D. D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn.

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January.
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September
6. Education—First Sabbath in November.

WE KEEP
PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR, FAIRBANK'S LARD,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FINE N. O. SYRUP,
And other Standard articles.
Orders solicited.
HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents. Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XII—No 624.] WILMINGTON, DECEMBER 24, 1879. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXII—No. 1,244.]

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

One copy one year, in advance.....$2 65
If payment be delayed six months..... 3 15
One copy six months, in advance..... 1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each New subscriber of $2 65.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procurred without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

[ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.]

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

PRESBYTERIANISM DEFENDED.

In continuation of my defence of the Presbyterian clergy against the charge that they hinder the conversion of sinners by standing aloof from the "revival" meetings that are sometimes held, I will proceed to give the grounds of my objections to certain other methods, used in such meetings, which tend to produce spurious "conversion."

The use of the "anxions seat" or the "mourner's bench," with the measures which usually attend it, is objectionable for the following reasons:

1. Almost invariably the motion of rising and going to an anxious seat in the presence of anxious, sympathising friends, is attended with a flood of feeling gushing from the soul, which is not and cannot be the result of a deeper conviction of sin produced by the Spirit of God through the instrumentality of that act. Whether the person was previously under a true conviction of sin or not, his act of rising and going to the seat designated is apt to give rise to feelings not induced by the Holy Spirit. Generally, by means of the instructions given to him when urged to take this step, and from the impulses of his own heart, there arises in his mind the feeling of complacency in view of the fact that, in his opinion, he has taken one right step, and therefore is in a hopeful way of obtaining salvation. Such a feeling is not only not created by the Spirit of God, but, being a counteraction of His work, is positively injurious. The sinner is encouraged about himself, and this state of mind is a most dangerous one. He has made up his mind to "get religion," and although he has no true conception of what genuine religion is, he thinks that by taking this step he is in a fair way to get it. This complacent spirit tends to counteract any work of the Holy Spirit leading to a state of self-despair and entire reliance upon Christ. His true position as a guilty, helpless and lost sinner, is thus hid from his eyes. His feelings, greatly excited, and not based upon right apprehensions, will be apt to run ahead of his judgment and lead him to wrong conclusions. Under the circumstances, the distressed sinner, longing to be rid of his distress, is exceedingly liable to fall into some snare of the great adversary of souls, who is always on the watch to tempt men to believe a lie, and to take up with a false hope.

2. The fact that practically, more stress is laid upon these measures for getting up religious feelings among saints and sinners, than upon the preaching of the word of God, is an undeniable proof of their injurious tendency. The Holy Spirit uses the word of God alone for the conviction and conversion of sinners. He never uses any other instrumentality. But there is very little of the word of God presented to the sinner, and that little is not likely to be clearly apprehended when he is being urged to go to an anxious seat, and his mind is excited by seeing others excited, and pressing forward to be prayed for, and when the praying and singing are going on around and over him. The conversions are expected to take place under such circumstances as these, and not when sinners are listening to truth clearly and forcibly presented by the minister of God. Dependence being placed by the anxious sinner as well as the preacher, upon these agencies for accomplishing the work of salvation, dishonor is done to God's own work, by which alone He saves souls. I have often seen sinners who were thoughtless about their spiritual interests, and who were evidently paying no attention to the sermons preached in their hearing, become greatly affected, and make a joyful profession of religion soon after these measures began to be used. A sinner cannot be too deeply concerned about his soul. But a deep concern of mind by reason of the discernment of his true condition in the sight of God, and the state of an excited and confused mind, are two different things. The one is to be prayed for and sought for in the use of the means of God's appointment. The other is to be deprecated. In the one case, the Spirit having given the sinner a view of himself, may give him a view of Christ. In the other case the person is an apt subject for Satanic delusion.

I will close this article by giving extracts from the writings of some eminent divines who labored in many revivals of religion, and who gave to the subject of revivals many years of prayerful thought.

Rev. Archibald Alexander, D. D., late professor of theology in Princeton Seminary, says: "All means and measures which produce a high degree of excitement, or great commotion of the passions, should be avoided; because religion does not consist in these violent emotions, nor is it promoted by them: and when they subside, a wretched state of deadness is sure to succeed. The subject of religious impressions ought not to be brought much into public notice. It ought not to be forgotten that the heart is deceitful above all things, and that strong excitement does not prevent the rising of pride and vain glory. * * * On this account, I prefer having the anxious addressed and instructed as they sit undistinguished in their seats, rather than calling them out to particular pews, denominated anxious seats. * * * All measures which have a tendency to diminish the solemnity of divine worship, or to lessen our reverence for God and divine things, are evidently wrong; and this is uniformly the effect of excessive excitement. Fanaticism often blazes with a glaring flame, and agitates assemblies as with a hurricane or earthquake; but God is not in the fire, nor the wind nor the earthquake. His presence is more commonly with the still small voice."

Rev. Samuel Miller, D. D., late professor in Princeton Seminary, alluding to anxious seats, says: "As means to be used at all, unless under very special circumstances, they are eminently adapted to generate fanaticism; to give a taste for ostentatious display in the service of the sanctuary, to favor the rapid multiplication of superficial, ignorant, untrained professors of religion; and to prepare the way for almost every species of disorder."

Rev. Heman Humphrey, D. D., late President of Amherst College, after alluding to several powerful revivals of religion with which he was acquainted, and stating that of the two hundred and seventy graduates of the College, two hundred were hopefully pious, goes on to say: "Calling anxious sinners into the aisles, to be addressed and prayed for, has not been practiced within the circle of my observation; nor have they been requested, before the great congregation, to come forward from every part of the house, and occupy seats vacated for that purpose; and wherever such measures have been adopted, within my knowledge, I believe that the cause of revivals has lost more than it has gained by them. It is unsafe to argue from the present effect of any new system, that it is better than the old. It may accomplish more in a week, but not so much in a year. It may bring a greater number of persons into the visible kingdom of Christ, but not so many into His spiritual kingdom."

If space permitted I could quote similar sentiments from many other distinguished ministers of the Gospel.

P. T. PENICK.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE INDESTRUCTIBILITY OF BAPTIST PRINCIPLES.

Such is the heading of a leading article in a recent issue of the Religious Herald. It "was prepared to be delivered at the dedication of the house of worship of the Second Baptist church, St. Louis. This helps to explains the superlatively arrogant tone of article. It was seasoned especially to suit the taste of Immersionists on a great festival occasion when high flavoring is thought to be peculiarly appropriate. We wish to enumerate these indestructible Baptist principles and offer a few comments on them.

Baptist principle No. 1—"The sufficiency of the Scriptures as a rule of faith and practice." After this, we are surprised not to find in the list, "The Inspiration of the Scriptures," "Justification by Faith," "The Resurrection," "General Judgment," &c. The assumption that these doctrines were Baptist principles would not have been more absurd. This reminds us of Esop's fly sitting on the axle of a chariot and exclaiming "What a dust I do raise!" The doctrine of "the Sufficiency of the Scriptures" was formulated in the standards of many Reformed Churches before the Baptist sect, in anything like its present form, had an existence. After the chariot of the Reformation had been rolling on gloriously to victory for two or three centuries then this little pugacious sect jumps on the the axle and crys out, "What a dust I do raise!"

Baptist principle No. 2—"Immersion the only baptism." They may have this and welcome. All we have to say is that it is glaringly inconsistent with the other. The Scriptures teach that Christ baptized the apostles and others on the day of Pentecost by "pouring out," "shedding forth," the Holy Ghost upon them. Thousands and millions have been baptized by Christ since that day who have not been immersed. This is the baptism which the Scriptures teach to be of fundamental importance. It is this for which other Christians are laboring and praying, and while Christ continues to grant it in answer to their prayers they will be content to symbolize it by the affusion of water, and let the immersionists glory in their principle.

Baptist principle No. 3—"Believers the only subjects of the ordinance." Of course they except such cases as Judas Iscariot and Simon Magus. The correct interpretation of this principle is that children of believers are not entitled to the ordinance. Whatever else may be said of this principle, it is certainly one in which no believer has any reason to rejoice. On the contrary, we rejoice in the conviction that "the sufficiency of the Scriptures" teaches that "the promise is to you and your children;" that the children of believers "are holy;" that the children of ancient believers were expressly entitled to a sealing ordinance; that in every case where the apostles applied the sealing ordinance of baptism to the head of a house, they applied it also to every member of the household; and that ergo Christians may now, with divine warrant, hold a more comforting principle than this of the Baptists.

Baptist principle No. 4—"Churches composed exclusively of baptized persons." In order to appreciate this it must be taken in connection with principle No. 2—then this truly Baptist principle is, to-wit: "Churches are composed exclusively of immersed persons." Hence there is but one Church, in a collective sense, and that is the Immersionist Church. All other societies appropriating to themselves the name are mere shams, impostures. Immersion is the only door, and only those who have gone in thereat are in the Church. The Papacy can go no further in arrogant pretentions. But the question arises, what is the use of a Church? These societies, which claim to be, but are not, churches, are preaching the Gospel with as much power and success as the real, bona fide Church. Their members are adorning the doctrines of the Gospel with as holy living as can be paralleled by members of the genuine Church. They are doing as much to promote the glory of God and the salvation of sinners, as much to dissipate the darkness of heathenism and lift the whole race to purity and happiness. What greater or more glorious mission is the Church accomplishing? A careless observer would conclude that the mission of the Church is precisely the same as that of those societies, and the most thoughtful observer would conclude that it is not fulfilling this grand mission with more signal success. What would the world loose then if the Church should some day become transformed into a Presbyterian or Methodist society? The answer must be that the world would loose nothing but the practice of dipping and a persistent wrangling about its importance. This then is the distinctive mission of the one, only, true Church, "composed exclusively of immersed persons," to teach the world the vast importance of plunging converts head and ears under water. Truly an inspiring mission, and well does it fulfill it. This it calls "the faith once delivered to the saints."

Baptist principle No. 5—"Churches independent in government." Behold again the fly of the fable! This unscrupulous principle was emancipated long before the first Baptist was born. Fortunately for the Gentile churches of Antioch, Syria and Cilicia, it was not held by them, and so they received with reverent joy the lenient decree of the Jerusalem council.

Baptist principle No. 6—"The Lord's Supper, a feast within and not without the churches." Mix this with principles Nos. 2 and 4, and you have the true import, to-wit: The Lord's Supper belongs exclusively to the one only true apostolic Immersionist Church. As only the immersed are in the Church they only have a right to this ordinance. Members of Presbyterian and Methodist societies may not even have a crumb from the Master's table. It is not denied that they have been converted, that they love the Lord who spread the feast with an intensity of affection not exceeded by the privileged children who sit at the table, that they labor and suffer for Him with as much cheerfulness, are as ready to die for Him, and rejoice in the consciousness that their labor and suffering are as graciously accepted and blessed. Why then not allow them at least a dog's portion? The only answer is that owing to an incurable delusion, and not willful obstinacy, they have not entered the fold by "the door," which, in spite of John 10: 7, is immersion.

This ends the chapter. We next notice the reason assigned for calling these Baptist principles: "Because they are held in their entirety by Baptists and only Baptists." If he means by "entirety," that all these principles are held by no other one denomination, we will not question his statement. But if he means what is most evident from the language and tone of the whole article, that no other denomination holds in its "entirety" any one of these principles, then he means what he ought not to mean. Only two of the principles are distinctively Baptist, namely: "Immersion the only baptism," and "Believers the only subjects of the ordinance."

Whether these two principles are indestructible we are willing to leave to time to determine. We only know that during a long period of the Church's history, since the days of Christ, they did not exist. If they were held by the Apostolic Church they have been once destroyed, and therefore may be again. Moreover, if these principles are necessary to the existence of the Church, as is claimed, then it follows that for many centuries previous to the Reformation the Church had not existence. "The gates of hell" did "prevail against it." The so-called Reformation was no reformation, for there was no church to reform. The true statement would be that the Church was raised from the dead in the 16th century, giving the first evidence of returning animation in the fanatical Anabaptists of Germany, and afterwards developing into fullness of life in England about the middle of the 17th century. But why does the Baptist brother think these principles will never die again? (1) Because they have retained their vitality under such trying circumstances. These principles have lived and flourished in spite of all the innumerable blunders and the many internecine wars of the Baptists who hold them; and in spite of all the destructive efforts of all those who are not Baptists. Having lived through such fiery ordeals, certainly they must be indestructible. This argument not only has weight with the learned Baptist doctor, but the force of it was once acknowledge by an "intelligent Pedobaptist," who gave it as his reason for transferring his membership to the Baptist Church. He thought that God must be with a Church that could carry on so many intestine wars and commit so many blunders and yet not destroy its principles! In another column of this same Herald a Pseudo-Methodist gets into an argument with a bona fide Baptist, and puts this question—"Do you think if we were wrong, such prosperity would attend us?" Bona fide Baptist answers—"Did you know that truth often fails to keep pace with error?" Under such a poser the Pseudo-Methodist had to succumb. Let us match Baptist with Baptist. The doctor says the fact that our Church prospers under adverse circumstances is proof that her principles are indestructible. Mr. Bell, also Baptist, says in reply, "Do you know that error is often more prosperous than truth?" Mr. Bell might back up his side by reference to the world-wide prosperity of the Papacy. (2) These principles are indestructible, "because plainly written in the Scriptures." This is no mean reason, and so we are not surprised to find that not only one but thousands of intelligent Pedobaptists have felt and acknowledged its force. "Thousands, by reading the Scriptures alone, in spite of their Pedobaptist training, and their denominational prejudices have been constrained by their consciences to become Baptists." This may be true, but it can only be true on the supposition that these thousands were absolutely prevented from having Baptist preaching. If only one Baptist preacher had access to them, and that for only one brief hour, it is altogether improbable that they were left to the "reading of the Scriptures alone" to find out that it was their duty to be immersed. From the very constitution of his religious nature a Baptist preacher cannot neglect an opportunity to teach the people how to find immersion in the Bible. "So far as we are informed, Baptist, and Baptist only, direct inquiries to the Scriptures, and the Scriptures alone, for guidance in regard to Christian ordinances and church membership." We will not comment on the probable extent of the Doctor's information, but we cannot forbear a brief comment on this asserted reliance of Baptists on the self-evidencing light of the Bible in regard to "Christian ordinances and church membership." The meaning plainly is that other denominations direct inquiries to their polemic writers in order that they may learn from them the merits of sprinkling, while the Baptists, good souls, go on preaching nothing but Christ and Him crucified, striving only to save souls, and if an inquirer comes to them to make inquiry about the mode of baptism and the Church he should join, they send him to the Bible and tell him to decide the question for himself. This is the most inexcusable mistake that any man acquainted with the Baptist could make. To illustrate, we have been reading the Religious Herald regularly for two or three months, and during this time there have not been two successive issues free from discussions on the subject of immersion. During the same time we have read regularly five other religious papers published by different denominations, and there has not appeared the half of five articles in all of them together on this subject. This is a fair specimen of the different zeal with which Baptists and others teach inquirers in "regard to church ordinances and membership."

They evidently recognize what we have suggested, that it is their distinctive mission to teach the world they importance of a "watery burial." They proclaim it on the "housetop" and speak it in "the ear in closets." The doctor tells us why Baptist principles do not flourish in England. "Their churches early adopted open communion. By logical necessity open communion leads to mixed church membership. Mixed church membership closes the mouth of the pastor on the subject of Baptism." So we have it at last that Baptist principles can never flourish where the pastor's mouth is closed on the subject of baptism. What stranger confirmation could there be of the fact already mentioned that baptism, including mode and subject, is the only distinctive doctrine of the Baptist Church? Silence its preachers on this subject and it cannot prosper. No wonder it harps eternally on this theme. Its corporate life depends on it. This is the only excuse it has for a separate existence. CLARK.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

It is one of the honors of the Presbyterian Church that she has not been under the necessity of seceding from the great Apostacy. She stood, by a desperate and forlorn struggle, in the valleys of Piedmont and of Scotland, successfully against the absorption. If there is any Church that can claim a succession through all time, through the chasm of fifteen hundred years from Luther to Paul, and over the other dismal chasm, from John the Baptist, our Great Sprinkler, to Moses, fifteen hundred years more, it is the Presbyterian Church. It has fought all the great battles of time, and is still holding its way. It has occupied, we may proudly and thankfully say, the forefront of the war of time, for the great fundamental doctrines of the faith. It has held them against statesmen and kings, against philosophers and fanatics, and against the sword that persecuted unto death. Its names are escutcheoned with the many of whom the world was not worthy. Its record, its sublime succession is on high. And yet it has never been a Church of dogmatic bigotry. It has never given its sympathy to absolutism. It shakes hands with all Christians, and counts their institutions valid, if not scriptural. It has always accounted substantive doctrine and principle more valuable than ritual, and has, therefore, always been patient of the fanaticism that wastes itself on modes. It has none of the esprit de corps of the zealot, because it has an evangelical sympathy too wide to be confined within the limits of a denomination. It is generous to a fault. It gives without stint its material to make other communions, but never compasses sea and land to make one proselyte. It blocks out the truth from the quarry and throws with generous hand the pabulum of thought to every people. Popular manipulators appropriate and adapt it to their uses. Still she abides by her quarry work, her grand mission to feed the world with truth, rejoicing and continuing to rejoice that "nevertheless every way Christ is preached." This is noble. But has not the time come when we must train our children and ourselves to a more cohesive loyalty to the Presbyterian Church? Has not the time come when we should more perfectly popularise the two great fundamentals of Presbyterianism, the elder and the family, and take the field as well as abide by the foundry? Nay, the Presbyterian Church of this country owes it to Christ and to herself more perfectly to unfurl her banners, and instead of a popular literature to uphold to the world the sturdy religion of Knox and of Murray, of Coligny, of Augustine and Paul. Let us honor the faith which it is our honor to possess.—London Weekly Review.

Putting on Christ.

To be clothed with is to wear his likeness, to illustrate his characteristics, and to walk as he walked. It is to take his yoke and carry the burden which he appoints. It is to resign our will to his will, our life to his law, and so to present to men the beauty of a Divine ideal in a human experince. Only then can we say:

"Lord, make my heart rejoice or ache,
As seemeth best to thee;
And if it be not broken, break,
And heal it if it be."

"What though we may seem to stumble,
He will not let us fall;
And learning to be humble
Is not lost time at all."

As Guthrie has said, if, like the treading of camomile, or the crushing of a sweet-scented plant that bathes in odors the hand that bruises it, or the burning of incense that draws out its latent perfumes, our trials call forth resignation, humility and obedience, we may indeed rejoice in the discipline that brings us to wear the looks of our Lord. There are active as well as passive virtues, which the putting on of Christ involves. His was a character of strong, active and self-denying zeal—of unwearied devotedness in the work given him to do. "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." By this consecrating ordinance the disciple receives the ontward badge of an inward grace, enrolls himself among God's people, and pledges himself to unite with them in doing God's work. He makes no compromise with the flesh to fulfil its lusts, with indolence, selfishness, pride, covetousness and worldliness. He does not aim to get to heaven as cheap as he can, to spend in religion as little money, as little time and as little effort as possible, but to seek first the kingdom of God, to give his Saviour his freshest thought and emotion, the first fruits, as well as the tithes of all his earnings, and so imitate him who said, "The zeal of thy house has eaten me up." When we thus put on Christ, the world will believe in our professions and be more ready to follow our advice, emphasized by the power of a consistent example.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

REDEMPTION.

A CHRISTMAS ANTHEM.

BY REV. OLIVER CRANE, M. D.

Lo! in the regions of measureless glory
Seraphs exultant, in symphonies new,
Sweetly are chanting, are chanting the story;
God can redeem, and His justice be true:
See them all joyant seem,
Swift as the lightning's gleam,
Bearing the blissful theme—
God is incarnate, and man is redeemed!

List! on the midnight this sweet song is swelling
Faintly and soft as from spirit-toned lyres,
Sweeter and louder its echoes are dwelling—
'Tis, 'tis the song of the cherubic choirs—
"Joy through the earth be known,
Peace from the holy throne,
Glory to God alone,
God is incarnate, and man is redeemed."

See, thro' the darkness o'er Bethlehem beaming,
Brightens the star that portendeth His birth;
Shepherds, it is not in fitfulness gleaming.
See! it directs to the Saviour of earth!
Thither now hastening,
Glad your oblations bring,
Over the Infant sing—
God is incarnate, and man is redeemed.

Heralds of Jesus, arise and proclaim Him,
Borne on the bosom of ocean's dark tide,
Hence to the heathen. Oh! hasten and name Him,
Name Him the Lord who has suffered and died.
Yes, to the farthest bound,
Haste where'er man is found,
Spreading the tidings round—
God is incarnate, and man is redeemed!

INDIVIDUAL DUTY.

However much we must rely, in our efforts for good, upon mutual help and upon organization and social machinery, the reformation of society and of the individual will, working in a lonely way, and reliant, for its best labor, upon itself as helped by God alone. The most imposing combination of men is strengthless unless it rests, at last, upon some independent power of mind. From an autocracy to a democracy, no aggregation of numbers can bring any strength to its work unless it is moved by the influence, in one of its members or in a thousand of them, of a spirit which would be willing, if need be, to go forth single-handed in all the bravery of an individual struggle.

Chas. Kingsley has strongly emphasized the essential nakedness of the most favored souls. Alone we must make our most important decisions in life, and alone we must go to the grave. The Germans call one of their greatest authors "the only," because they find none but himself with whom to compare him. In a true sense the humblest man or woman may be called by the same title; and just as man rises in intelligence and in power for good, so does he perceive more and more clearly that God has made him a being who must, in a large measure, do his own work in his own way, subject only to the Maker of all. From the upbuilding of the Christian Church down to the performance of the humblest of life's labors, we are never absolved from the duty of individual influence.

By the right contemplation of the power of individual influence, and of the positive duty of personal independent development, there can come nothing but strength to our faith and speed to our work. The most individual of men have not been the most egotistic or the most foolhardy. They have not spent their time in wicked self-examination or moody introspection. They have, like Paul, felt themselves to be God's own messengers and representatives, and yet the humblest of His creatures. They have simply perceived their duty to themselves and to others, and have tried to follow whithersoever it led. They have looked beyond any present gregarions advantage, or the temporary glitter of numerical majorities. They have felt in their hearts the strong power of the Maker himself, and so have perceived, with Athanasius, that one man with God is a majority. And thus have they wrought the better for Him whom they serve, for their fellows and for themselves. They have remembered that one that fears God and eschews evil is greater in God's sight than a legion of those who prefer the fellowship of men to that of a pure heart, even though he have to endure as many woes and temptations as the lonely sufferer in the land of Uz.—S. S. Times.

ROMANISM vs. THE CONSTITUTION.

An anonymous writer, quoted by James Anthony Froude in the North American Review, utters these words of truth. Words they are which should be well pondered:

"The Constitution of the United States repudiates the idea of an established religion, yet the Pope tells us that this is a violation of God's law, that by that law the Roman Catholic religion should be made exclusive and the Roman Catholic Church, acting alone through him, should have supreme authority over, not only individuals, but nations, peoples, and sovereigns. The Constitution guarantees liberty of speech and of the press; the Pope says this is the liberty of perdition, and should not be tolerated. The Constitution requires all the people and all the Churches to obey the laws of the United States; the Pope anathematizes this provision because it requires the Roman Catholic Church to pay the same obedience to the law which is paid by the Protestant Churches. The Constitution subordinates all Churches to the civil power except in matters of faith and discipline; the Pope declares this to be heresy, because God has commanded all governments to be subordinate to the Roman Catholic Church. The Constitution repudiates royal powers; the Pope proclaims that the world must be governed by royal power, that it may protect the Roman Catholic Church to the exclusion of other Churches. The Constitution allows the free circulation of the Bible and the right of private judgment in interpreting it; the Pope says that the Catholic Church is the only living authority which has the right to interpret it, and that its interpretation should be the only one allowed. * * Given a continuance of the opportunities which now exist in consequence of our drowsiness and indifference, and who shall say that there may not come a time when the empire of ecclesiastical Rome shall flourish over the ruins of the fairest and most prominent republics that ever existed."

GOLD DUST.

Upright simplicity is the deepest wisdom, and perverse craft the merest shallowness.—Barrow.

The great ends of life are best gained by him who in all his conduct is animated by the love of Christ.—McLeod.

Family prayer serves as the edge and border of the day, to preserve the web of life from unraveling.—Robert Hall.

The Christian is not one who looks up from earth to heaven, but one who looks down from heaven to earth.—Lady Powerscourt.

When you are reading a book in a dark room, and come to a difficult part, you take it to a window to get more light. So take your Bibles to Christ'—McCheyne.

The Church has creed enough and orthodoxy enough; what she wants is to fill up the measure of her creed with a clear, clean, Christ-like life.—Ormiston.

Largely Thou givest, gracious Lord;
Largely Thy gifts should be restored.
Freely Thou givest; and Thy word
Is, "Freely give;"
He only who forgets to hoard
Has learned to live. —Keble.

God does not love us because Christ died; for Christ died because God loved us. God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son.

Experience is the Lord's school; and they who are taught by him usually learn by the mistakes they make that they have no wisdom, and by the slips and falls they meet with, that they have no strength.—John Newton.

By putting on Christ you will put off the love of this world; you will live above the world while you live in it. If Christ be in the heart, the world will be in its proper place. If you are clothed with the sun, the moon (all subluuary things) will be under your feet.—John M. Mason.

The great difficulty is so to feel the reality of both worlds as to give each its due place in our thoughts and feelings—to keep our mind's eye, and our heart's eye, ever fixed on the Land of Promise, without looking away from the road along which we are to travel toward it.—Hare.

With things of earthly sort, with aught but God,
With aught but moral excellence, truth, and love
To satisfy and fill the immortal soul!
Attempt, vain inconceivably! attempt,
To satisfy the Ocean with a drop,
To marry Immortality to Death
And with the unsubstantial shade of Time,
To fill the embrace of all eternity. —Pollok.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

Gleaned from Exchanges:

During the last year the Gospel was preached in one thousand towns and cities in China where it had not been previously heard.

The Porte has substantially accepted the proposals of the Vatican for the diplomatic representation of the Holy See at Constantinople.

The meeting at Manchester in behalf of the Wesleyan thanksgiving fund has just been held, and was most successful, upwards of £9,000 having been promised.

Up to midsummer Dr. J. Cochran, Presbyterian missionary in Persia, had treated 3,000 patients since December. There is no other skilful physician within 120 miles, and some patients came a journey of three or four days to see him.

The Pope has sanctioned rules for the guidance of the bishops and clergy in Switzerland, which, while enforcing the canon law, make certain exceptions in order that the bishops and clergy may not be impeded in the exercise of their ministry.

Bishop Colenso has issued an address to the "Christian people" of Britain to aid him in inducing the government to depose "John Dunn, the polygamist Englishman," who has been made "King of the largest of the thirteen satrapries into which Zulnland is divided."

At the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sabbath it was announced that a letter had been received from the Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, now sojourning at Mentone, stating that he had been overtaken by a similar attack of rheumatic gout to those which had before brought him so low. He trusted, however, that by the advantages of a genial climate he would soon rally, and be able to return to his church at the appointed time in full vigor of health.

One of the wealthiest noblemen of Belgium, the Comte de Grimbergen, has died at Brussels. Before dying he had to invoke the intervention of the public authorities to be disembarrassed of relations who wanted to compel him to die with the rites of the Roman Catholic religion. The fortune left by him is estimated at about 20,000,000 francs. Among his legacies is one of 500,000 fr. for the construction of a seaside residence for the children of the public schools.

On Tuesday evening a very large congregation assembled in St. Paul's Cathedral, occupying all the available space from the western portals to the south-eastern limit of the edifice. Spohrs oratorio, "The Last Judgment," constituted the principal part of the service. The object, it was stated in a pamphlet issued to the congregation, was not to gratify the ear or the taste; it was intended to suggest to Christians, and indeed to all men and woman present, some of the most solemn realities of existence. The service throughout was choral, and occupied nearly two hours.

Mr. Walter, M. P., read a paper on "Reading and Preaching" in the St. Paul's Chapter House on Tuesday. Having referred to the defective elocution of most of the clergymen of the Church of England, and said they should endeavor "to get rid of gabbling and sing-song," he inferred that much of this monotonous delivery was due to the fact that they were a privileged class, never meeting with hostile criticism. He recommended preachers to speak instead of reading their sermons, and suggested the establishment of a special order of eloquent ecclesiastics.

A lady named Elizabeth Tocock was summoned to the Hampstead police court on Wednesday, for "vexing, troubling and disquieting the clergyman conducting the service at St. John's parish church, Hampstead. The vicar complained that the defendant had disturbed him excessively for a long time past by her manner of singing, her voice being pitched in a shrill key and time not being kept. The defendant strenuously protested against the charge. She said she had attended the church for twenty-seven years, her whole heart was in the service, and she thought a church was a place for singing and worship. The Bench said the defendant was liable to imprisonment for two months, but they adjourned the summons to see if the annoyance ceased.

A suggestion in connection with the proposed amendment of the marriage laws is made by the Rev. E. H. Bickerstith, vicar of Christ church, Hampstead. The reverend gentleman urges that the legal hours for marriage, now from 8 to 12 in the forenoon, should be extended so as to embrace ten hours, from 8 in the morning till 6 in the evening. He contends that this alteration would be a benefit, not only to the working classes, but to those above them in social rank. Sobriety and publicity were, he says, probably the objects aimed at in so closely restricting the legal hours, but experience proves that the limit of the forenoon is in itself no security for either; nor are inebriate or clandestine marriages more common in countries where there is no such restriction.

A notable instance of the duplicity of Papal diplomacy is announced from Belgium. The Belgian Government had complained to the Pope of the open rebellion of the bishops, of the unchristian conduct of the cures, who refused absolution to dying tutors and governesses of the public schools, and who excommunicated a son for attending the funeral of his mother, an instructress in a public school. The Minister read to the Belgian Parliament the Pope's assurance of his disapproval of the conduct of the bishops, who had greatly exceeded their duties. Yet it was publicly proclaimed at a large meeting at Brussels, last week, that the Pope had privately patted the bishops on the back, bidding them fight on manfully; and the bishops admit having received communications from Rome essentially differing from the official documents sent by the Belgian Minister accredited to the Pope. How are free and fair-spoken Governments to deal with Powers which use these double-edged swords which cut both ways? The difficulty imposed upon the Belgian Government is enhanced by the false position in which her Constitution has placed her before Rome. The Belgian Constitution contains two contradictory principles. The Government abdicates all control over the Church—any interference in its administration, or in the nomination of cures or bishops; to whom, on the other hand, the State engages to pay liberal salaries. The Church has thus all the advantages of separation from the State with none of its attendant disadvantages. It enjoys an uncontrolled autonomy and independence, whilst the State is bound to endow it with liberal revenues.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN, - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1879.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

CHRISTMAS.

Christmas once again, dear friends! And we send our greetings to many Presbyterian homes, where our face is welcomed, and our words of cheer and comfort, of sympathy and counsel, are received with smiles.

To many friends, where mirth and gladness reign, we bear our joyous message. The distant ones have come home. The children with their children gather round the familiar hearthstone, and the good old days come back with so much freshness and delight, that hearts are softened and tears gleam upon happy faces, and the voice trembles, even amidst most joyous utterances. A big wood pile, plenty of lightwood, nuts and goodies, cooing babies and romping children, dogs, guns, rabbits—oh! what a jolly time is this festive week in many a country home in our happy Southland! Who cares for gray olonds, and sleet, and snow, and cold winds, and dark days, when Christmas comes! "It is not always spring," nor Christmas either. Be happy, kind friends, and "let your moderation be known unto all men." "In all thy ways acknowledge Him."

But it is too true—

"Into each life some rain must fall,
Some days must be dark and dreary."

Some may read these lines with aching hearts. "The saddest season of all to me," says Heine, "is the season when all nature rejoices and I am crushed; when every heart but my poor heart is merry." The deserted home, the scattered family hindered by dire necessity from gathering together again, the hovel of destitution, misery and wo, these find Christmas but a mockery and a grief. To you, too, kind friends, comes the sweet song of choral hosts: "Peace on earth, good will towards men." The Child that was born in Bethlehem, the Christ that is, not "the Christ that is to be," for He is "the same yesterday, to-day and forever," not only hath borne our sorrows, but bears them still. Blessed be His name!

The very contrast, however, wakens the tenderest feeling, the profoundest sadness. The prattle of little lips is hushed; their dear and trifling anxieties for our happiness have ceased. Oh! how empty the home, and how full the heart! To come back to the ohamber made precious and holy by the happy life and patient suffering and early death of those dearest to us—this is "sorrow's crown of sorrow." To leave the dust so cherished far away from us to the tender care of earth, and wind, and nature, to the watch of quiet stars and the good God above! What can our poor hearts do?

"The wintry snows will soft enfold,
Spring's sweetest violets dress the mould,
And the sun clothe with rarest gold,
The grave where our loved one sleeps."

Here Nature is dumb, and Reason is blind. But the voice of Faith utters: "This mortal shall put on immortality." Glory to God in the highest. Christ has come in the flesh. He has triumphed over the grave. He is with the living and the dead.

On this day of holiest memories, let hearts estranged be drawn together; let the absent be remembered and cherished; let the loving rejoice and kindle anew by treasured token and loving greeting the flame of enduring affection; let the poor be made glad; let the widow's heart be caused to sing for joy; let the heavy burdens be lifted, the burdens of want, of care, of grief. And in all LET GOD BE GLORIFIED!

Well may Christmas be called "the Children's Day." Their very helplessness and dependence appeal to us. Let us make them wisely happy. In sight of the Father of us all, we are but little children, helpless and dependent. How good is He! how considerate of our weakness, how forgiving of our shortcoming! Thus remember the little ones, whom He never forgets. We give you, too, little children, our most cordial greeting. God bless every little child that reads the PRESBYTERIAN. God bless every home to which our message comes!

SPEAK OUT.

The discussion opened up in this paper on the question "What is the Matter?" and which has been widely read, and, we have good reason to think, as to its terms, highly approved, has been receiving consideration in a very earnest, practical and masterly manner from our contemporaries of the Central Presbyterian and Southern Presbyterian. We are pleased to note it, because it is the pressing subject before us as a Church at this time. It is a vital question, indeed, and we trust that the discussion will continue on the part of those and other journals in the same friendly spirit which has thus far characterized it. But thus far the views advanced are mainly on one side. Our desire is to awaken the Church to the importance of the subject, and to draw out the various views and opinions of our people, that by comparison, or even friendly collision, the best plan for promoting the growth of Presbyterianism may be evoked. Beyond this we disclaim all zeal.

We know that some persons believe that the disparity in numbers between Presbyterianism and other denominations can be sufficiently accounted for by the greater care taken in receiving members into our communion. We know, too, that some regard the preparation of our candidates for the ministry as unnecessarily extended and elaborate, at least that we might in some cases advantageously lower the requirement of scholarship and reduce the term of training.

Allowing, as we do, a large measure of force to the former proposition, we cannot accept it as accounting for our numerical disparity; nor are we prepared to accede to the advisability of the latter proposal.

We do not propose to debate the question here, but again offer our columns to those who will use them in throwing light upon the matter at issue, the only condition being that the subject, not the writers, will be discussed. Let the brethren speak out freely.

HOW TO GET A BIBLE.

A pastor of one of our churches writes as follows:

"Some while ago an offer was made by some parties or party at the North, perhaps New York, to send any child a copy of the Bible if a minister of the Gospel would write them a line that the child had memorized the Shorter Catechism and repeated it verbatim. Do you know the address of the party or parties? I feel sure you would find this an interesting topic for a few editorial lines. Let the public know through your columns if the offer is still made."

We presume the offer is still open, and trust that many of our Sabbath school children will avail themselves of it.

The address asked for is, SPENCER & FRELINGHUYSEN FUND, Station M, Bible House, Astor Place, New York.

The application must be accompanied by a certificate from the minister in charge, that the party for whom the application is made recited perfectly and at one time the whole of the Westminster Shorter Catechism, and ten cents must be sent to defray the expense of postage.

CHANGE OF EDITOR.

Rev. L. Tenny takes charge as editor of the Texas Presbyterian, Rev. Dr. R. F. Bunting having retired that he may devote himself to pastoral work. The paper will be published hereafter at Waco, Texas. Our best wishes go with Dr. Bunting in his future labors, and to Mr. Tenny we cordially extend the right hand of fellowship, and wish him all success.

OUR RULING ELDERS.

The following, from an "Address to the Ruling Elders of the Presbyterian Church," by a correspondent of the Southern Presbyterian is well worth laying to heart by those addressed:

"DEAR BRETHREN: You stand on an equal footing with ministers in the presbytery. There all are rulers. You are responsible for every measure adopted by that body. You ought, therefore, to dispute every single measure that you do not fully approve. You are solemnly bound as the guardians of God's Church to assert your place and your importance in the presbytery. Rest in God's word and in our standards as the reliable exposit of that word, and you will be intrenched and invulnerable.

The presbytery is a "holy convocation." It is the Church of God assembled in her representatives. The Spirit of God is in the presbytery. "Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven" has its own precious and beautiful sense in our presbyteries and General Assembly. When the early apostolic council rose and sent off Paul and Barnabas with their pastoral to the churches it contained these wonderful words: "For it seemed good unto the Holy Ghost and to us." The days of inspiration are past, and the days of infallible decisions are past. But the days of the Holy Ghost are not past, and the nearest thing human on this earth to infallibility is a council of the Church solemnly and prayerfully resolving. "Lo! I am with you," said Jesus; and if Jesus is with us "let us rejoice with trembling." Let us act worthy of our Guest. Oh, how much out of place is levity and petulance in a presbytery; hilarity or rancor! Dear rulers, you quench the Holy Spirit in the presbytery by tardiness, by strolling, by neglecting her hours of prayer. You lean too much on the ministers, too little on God. You are not spectators, you are rulers in a consistory of rulers. Woe worth the day when you shall congratulate yourselves that all this important work is done by ministers and you relieved; when slight business excuses shall have quieted your feelings of responsibility because the ministers will discharge your part. Here is the danger of to-day. You are absorbed in your secular calling. You flatter yourselves that, like mothers, the ministers will keep the house while you are making the money to support it. You go to your presbytery or your session without a measure or suggestion on your heart. With blank curiosity you await the motion of your minister, who, all on fire with zeal, proposes some measure of improvement or discipline. It will do, and while yet just on the margin of the question you vote it, your principal responsibility, as you suppose, being in the store or on the farm. Is it possible for spiritual rulers to divide work thus, giving to the minister all the spiritual part, and you content with the secular part? Do you not make the acceptability of your minister responsible for initiating measures of discipline? Will your apparent tardiness and want of interest make it convenient for you to escape the responsibility of an unpleasant sessional action? Will you pile responsibility on your minister? Is he alone able to do all the ruling and teaching? To prepare the sermon and the lecture, to read and study thereunto, to visit all the sick, to win all the strangers, to hear the stories of the troubled, to attract the worldly, and in addition to all this to do the ruling? ruling in its widest sense? Nay, my brethren, you are in more immediate contact with the people than your minister. You know their religious condition better. You know what pulpit subjects would best suit that condition. You know where your minister is wanting, where he is losing ground, where his preaching is too theoretical. It is yours to prompt him, to give him the help of your counsel. The holy office of the ministry, sprung from yours, like a goodly branch more comely than the parent stem, tends to loftiness and distance from the people. The man of God of modern days is still a "Nazarite unto God," an abstinent, yet social; a man of manners, yet of no class; in sympathy with all, yet identified with none; holy, without isolation; free and accessible, without contamination. The minister occupies a very peculiar position. You, dear brethren, are in many respects, his medium of contact with the world. Church power, lodged with him, would miss its mark in visionary and transcendental schemes. You are his ballast. Your wisdom is necessary to him in the presbytery, in the session and in all the pastoral work. Neither the minister nor the church can prosper without you. O, ruling elders, come back to your pristine position and hold it."

CURE FOR DRY PREACHING.

There is doubtless a great deal of very dull preaching in our pulpits. It would be strange if there were not. Just think of it. Twice or three times every week the preacher, unless he is really sick, must appear before his congregation and speak upon substantially the same theme to the same audience. It matters not what his condition of body, mind or soul may be; it matters not how he may have been occupied during the preceding week. He may have had many extra call upon his time and his attention; sickness and bereavement or other hindrances may have greatly interfered with his preparation, but when Sunday comes and the bell rings he must be at his post prepared to address his people. Can it be expected that he will always be fresh, striking or even interesting in his remarks? Where is the profession upon which such demands are made? Hence it must be expected that even the most faithful, diligent and even able ministers will be dull sometimes.

But to our "cure." It has been given to us as an authentic incident. In a certain congregation there was great and universal complaint made of the sermons of the preacher. He was dry and uninteresting to a painful extent. The leaders of the congregation talked the matter over and discussed plans by which they might effect a change in the pastorate, but they could not make up their minds to wound the feelings of their preacher to whom they were all personally attached. At last they resolved that every member of the congregation should pray earnestly for the pastor.

The result is said to have been electrical. The preaching improved greatly and steadily, a deep interest pervaded the whole community, the congregations were largely increased and a glorious revival of religion blessed the church.

Are you afflicted with a dry preacher? Try our remedy. There is no patent on it, and you are welcome to it.

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

A quadrilateral fight has been going on between some of our contemporaries. The Independent, in a discussion on the subject of evolution, in which, by the way, it was put hors du combat by the Central Presbyterian, made the following statement:

"We are all taught in our best schools, by our scientific authorities, almost without exception, and we, laymen in science, are therefore compelled to believe that man was—at least so far as his physical structure is concerned—evolved from irrational animals."

The Herald and Presbyter raised a doubt as to the correctness of the assertion, and the Independent rejoined that it would be well to inquire. The New York Observer promptly wrote to several leading colleges and received replies from Yale, Princeton, Amherst, Williams', Lafayette, Hamilton, Brown University, Union and Rochester, that no such doctrine is held or taught by them. It is now the Independent's turn if it wants it.

The many friends of Dr. P. L. Murphy, formerly of this city, will be pleased to hear of the honors conferred upon him in his new home. He is now an officer in the Asylum for the Insane at Staunton, Va. The Staunton Vindicator, from which we copy the following is at fault in making Dr. Murphy a native of Wilmington. He was born in Sampson county, N. C., we are very sure.

There were ten applicants for the position.

"Dr. P. L. Murphy who was elected Third Assistant Physician, is a native of Wilmington, N. C., and a son of a (former) prominent lawyer there. He left a lucrative practice to come to Virginia, in which State he married, and where he has resided for a year, the past six months being occupied as assistant at the Asylum. He was warmly recommended for the permanent post by the assistant physicians of the institution."

The Reidsville Times says:

"'Speaking of towns,' said a Raleigh man the other day, 'the people of Milton beat all for praying I ever saw.' 'How's that?' 'Well, I was there on a visit and went home with Miss S. from church, and her father had prayers before I left, then I called by Mr. W.'s to say good-bye, and there we had prayers again, and then I went with young H. home to spend the night and we were called in to prayers before going to bed. It was more praying on a Sunday than I had ever heard before. But they are Presbyterians, you know."

Complimentary to the Presbyterians, we call that.

Rev. Enoch Cobb Wines, D. D., a member of the Presbytery of New York, died at his home in Cambridge, Mass., on 10th instant. Dr. Wines spent the greater part of his life in teaching. In 1854 he was made Professor of Ancient Languages in Washington College, Pennsylvania, and in 1863 became President of the City University of St. Louis. In 1862 he was appointed Secretary of the New York Prison Association. His name deserved to be enrolled high on the scroll of fame, for his labors in behalf of reform in the management of prisons and in efforts to secure the reclamation of prisoners.

We append from the Christian Intelligencer:

"Dr. Wines was strongly interested in prison reform and in the reclamation of prisoners, and it was mainly through his efforts that the National Prison Association was formed at Cincinnati in 1870. Of this society he was Secretary. He went to Europe in 1871 to attend the meeting of the International Penitentiary Congress in London, which he had done much to promote, and at which twenty-six governments were represented. He was Chairman of the Permanent International Commission which met at Brussels in 1874, and at Bruchsal in 1875. Dr. Wines was the author of various reports of philanthropic bodies to which he belonged. He also published, in 1832, "Two Years and a Half in the American Navy" (2 vols.); in 1852, "Commentaries on the Laws of the Ancient Hebrews," and in 1858, "Adam and Christ." He was the author of other educational works, including "Hints on a System of Popular Education."

Our readers will not misunderstand us by supposing that we would give any countenance to the notion that our Saviour was born on the 25th of December. The exact date is entirely unknown, and the probabilities are against the day selected; nevertheless there seems to be no impropriety in setting apart one day for the proper Christmas festivities. The error to be guarded against is that we do not invest the day itself with any sacred significance.

"Calvin," in the Philadelphia Presbyterian brings forward a new process, and one not to be commended, for admitting members into the Presbyterian Church:

"In a recently published account of the organization of a Presbyterian church in Missouri, we are told that three persons without letters, but who were known to have formerly been members of a Presbyterian church, and to have been in good standing at the time of their removal from it to their present homes, were admitted to the new organization by acclimation. This reveals a new and somewhat easy process of admittance to church membership. How long the acclimating process lasts down in Missouri, and what its dangers are, are matters which we would like to see explained."

The journal above referred to finds another novelty:

"We have heard of many qualifications which are demanded of pastors in our time—some singular and some ludicrous. Above all things, in the popular estimate, a minister must be a "live" man, or as some put it, a man with "snap in him," who can "run" a church, &c. But a new claim has just been put in for a vacant Universalist pulpit in Philadelphia, for which a correspondent of an exchange asks the question, "Hasn't New England a persuasive, woman eyed,' manly man to take the place?"

We seldom meet a happier retort than the following:

Rev. Mr. Bland, blandly declared recently, from his Cambridge pulpit, "If you tell people any sort of a lie about religion, they will believe it," adding, "Both the Catholic and Evangelical churches teach that belief will save a man, no matter what he does." The Congregationalist thinks the latter remark must have been designed to test and illustrate the former.

Rev. B. R. Hall, during the past two years or more, pastor of the Fifth Street Methodist church of this city, has removed to Statesville to assume the pastorate there. At times during Mr. Hall's residence in this city, we had the pleasure of co-operating with him in Christian work, and we can heartily commend him to our friends in Statesville as a courteous gentleman and an earnest worker in the common cause of Christ.

The New York Herald says:

"It is an effete delusion that the clergy in city or country disapprove of Sunday newspapers. The experience of the Sunday Herald always has been that clergymen and their families are its most eager and appreciative readers."

If this be true it does not prove that the issuing of Sunday papers is right, but that the clergymen and their families are wrong.

But there is another side. The post master of New York assigns as a reason for not delivering Sunday mails:

"We tried the experiment once before, and found such energetic and widespread opposition to it that we had to abandon it. Clergymen as well as laymen called on me, in perfect delegations, to protest against the 'desecration' of the Sabbath, and many people either refused to receive their letters at their houses or wrote to me that they did not wish any Sunday delivery at all."

The Christian Herald produces the above and adds: "There is never such a thing as a Sunday issue of the daily papers in London."

If we are not misinformed the law of North Carolina with regard to capital executions, provides that they shall be private, unless the county authorities order otherwise. Yet we do not remember to have heard of a single private execution since the passage of the law. A criminal is to be hung in Wilmington on the 9th prox., and we learn that this execution will be private. In the interest of good morals we heartily trust so.

The following, from the Wilmington Star, may prove of interest to some of our readers:

"There has lately been a raffle beom in Newton. The boys, says the Enterprise, got into a raffling way last Saturday, and went it lively. A set or two of silver-plated knives and forks, a silver pitcher, clock, &c., were raffled off, and things boomed. Men of all ages, sizes and professions went a beau or two. But it stopped short, never to go again, when a J. P. got a copy of Battle's Revisal, and read the law on lotteries. Then followed a refunding of money, a gnashing of teeth, a mumbling of words, a lot of lit up faces—the fellows who had lost—and the day's sport was at an end.

The New York World gives this. We would like to have the change in the world generally accepted. It is both reasonable and right;

"You remember, sir, you married me many years ago," said a gentleman to a distinguished preacher in Charlotte, N. C. "No, don't say I married you," was the reply, "but that I married you," and thereupon he explained to the satisfaction of the married man that this was the word that ought to be used, whether it was in the dictionary or not, and now he defies any one to prove that according to analogous formation in the language the word is incorrect. It means to make married, and that's what the preacher does."

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

CLIO CHURCH ORGANIZED.

Rev. P. P. Winn writes us:

"On Saturday, November 29th, the committee appointed by Concord Presbytery to organize a church at Clio Academy met for that purpose. The committee, consisting of Rev. W. A. Wood, D. D., Rev. P. P. Winn and Elder J. M. Alexander, found a good congregation assembled. Letters of dismission were presented by twenty-six persons, eighteen from Concord (Iredell), five from Bethany, two from Taylorsville and one from Shelby. These were then organized into the church of Clio. Messrs. Chas. King and John O. McLelland, formerly elders in Concord (Iredell), were installed as elders over the new church. Mr. Robert Hill, formerly a deacon in the same church, was installed as deacon over the new church, and Messrs. Hill, Brown and Clarke were elected trustees. Miles Hill, Esq., to whom the old Clio Academy property legally belongs, will make a deed of it to the church. By putting on a new roof and ceiling the old Academy will make a very comfortable church, capable of seating about 250 persons. These repairs the people propose to make soon. They are very much encouraged and are now endeavoring to secure regular monthly preaching. With the Lord's blessing, we will doubtless have here a strong church. It is an old Presbyterian neighborhood, where all confess a church ought to have been organized fifty or seventy-five years ago."

CONCORD CHURCH, IREDELL.

From the same source we have the following:

"On Saturday and Sabbath, December 6th and 7th, we had a delightful meeting at Concord (Iredell) church. On Saturday Bro. Wood of Statesville preached an excellent sermon from 2 Cor. v: 17. After preaching, the session met and received a large number of our young people to the communion of the church. On Sabbath morning several more were received, and it was a goodly sight, causing joy in our hearts and "joy in heaven," when all of these young people, thirty-three in number, stood in front of the pulpit to make a public profession of their faith in the Saviour, and then for the first time united with God's people in the communion of the Lord's Supper."

Rev. R. A. Miller has left the cheerless paths of bachelorhood and become duly enrolled among the benedicts. Our marriage columns tell the rest. We wish all joy to the united pair.

CAMERON AND CYPRESS.

Rev. G. M. Gibbs writes:

"Have just closed communion meetings at two of my churches—Cameron and Cypress. Had very pleasant meetings at both churches, but no special interest. At Cameron we received four members, three by certificate, and one by examination. These, with three received on a previous occasion by examination, give us an addition of seven to our little church organized last spring.

At Cypress we received four members also, one by letter and three on examination. For these blessings we feel thankful and ascribe all the praise to God.

THE STATESVILLE CHURCH.

Mr. Editor: During the recent Synod in Statesville, we had more preaching than is usual on such occasions. The Word was in power. God set his seal on the message which the brethren brought to us. This was so manifest, that I resolved to continue the meeting. Brothers Chester, Cook and Mebane remained and preached for us till Thursday after Synod. Brother Winn then came in and preached about two weeks. At the close of the meeting Brother Taylor Martin was present and preached for us. All these brethren were evidently guided by the Lord. There was a fitness in every word spoken. There was the most earnest attention to the last. The members of the church were greatly revived. God gave to His people the spirit of prayer. Sixteen persons have been received into the church—some of them between fifty and sixty years old. There are others, who, I trust, are prepared to make a public profession of their faith. The Methodist brethren also had a meeting about the same time, and many were added to that Church. Yours truly, W. A WOOD.

December 19, '79.

On Sabbath, 21st inst., at the First Presbyterian church of this city, Mr. B. F. Hall was ordained to the office of Ruling Elder, and Col. John D. Taylor and Messrs. H. H. Munson, James Alderman and W. R. Kenan to the office of Deacon. They were installed as officers of the First Presbyterian church at the same time.

Rev. Dr. Wilson happily improved the occasion to trace in a very concise, but clear and satisfactory manner, the principle and practice of Presbyterianism (i. e. Elderism) from the family of Abraham, through the Jewish Church into the Church as re-organized in the days of the Apostles. The exercises were in accordance with the provisions of the "Book of Church Order."

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

OLD TIMES AND NEW.

"Fortune favors the" busy, sometimes. Your correspondents have often kept you and your readers advised of what goes on in Raleigh. But an unexpected pleasure was afforded me this week, as business detained me in Raleigh over last night (Friday, Dec. 12th). The choir of the First Presbyterian church, under the competent training of Professor Baumann, of the Peace Institute, and some of the young ladies of the Institute, gave a concert,—if two concerts can be called one—in the Institute chapel.

The first part was the Old Folks Concert, in which "Meune Singers and Womenne Singers," in the quaint costumes and customs of the olden time, regaled an eager and delighted audience. The music of a hundred years ago is hard to beat: songs of love, of home, of patriotism—songs that went to the heart. Amusement, too, was furnished, not only by mirth-provoking choruses, but by a capital burlesque reading.

The second part was a sudden change to the age of the phonograph and the electric light. I had often heard of Professor Baumann's matchless skill in showing off (not himself but) his scholars, in training voice and finger to the most perfect musical expression. I was glad to have the opportunity of seeing and hearing for myself. May I give my impressions?

First. The programme struck me. Here were arrayed gems from Liszt, Verdi, Mendelsohn, Rossini, and scarcely less distinguished composers, to be rendered by school-girls and amateurs. Diluted arrangements of these master pieces, I supposed they were, leveled down to the estimated capacity of the average performer and singer. But I discovered that they were by no means either simplified, weakened or watered. Professor B. levels up his pupils to the masters—not the masters down to them.

Second. The rendition fully equalled the programme. Two long selections, one from "Il Trovatore," the other from "Stabat Mater," led by solo voices and sustained by full rich choruses, were superior to anything I ever heard, and I have heard much good music. The vocal solos were also admirable; and indeed all was. No piece on the programme but was well chosen and as well performed. I shall mention no name, but I must speak of the exquisite execution of Liszt's "Lucia," by the accomplished daughter of a prominent Presbyterian minister. I did not suppose it was within the range of one less competent than a renowned artist to render a piece so difficult and elaborate, with such brilliance, power and delicacy—and that too without a sign of a note before her—and with such artless ease and grace!

The second part was enriched, too, by a recitation, showing the careful and successful training of the teacher of elocution, Miss Mattoon. The accomplished elocutionist enchained attention from the first syllable uttered to the last. The articulation was exceedingly distinct: the voice rich, full and varied—manner natural and graceful, and the representation of the changeful and intense feelings of the poem recited, "The Polish Boy," perfect.

So pleasant an evening I have rarely spent; and what a delicious close to the growl of the street, and the hot air of offices! Business before pleasure, always; but could we have such pleasure after business, life might be too dear.

VISITOR.

ACKNWLEDGEMENT.

Our brethren in Wilson acknowledges, with many thanks, the receipt of the following sums for building their church:

Anonymous, Greensboro, $2 50; anonymous, Castalia, $7 00; W. S. Moore, Greensboro, $5 00; Mrs. Grant and Miss Mitchell, Statesville, $5; Ladies' Home Mission Society of First church, Raleigh, $70 00. Total, $89 50.

JOHN W. PRIMROSE.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Our American Artists. $2. From D. Lothrop & Co. Boston. 1879. This is a superb quarto, in handsome dress of black, green and gold, on elegant paper, richly illustrated, and with entertaining and instructive letter-press. It is not only fitted for a most charming present, but it will give acquaintance with American art, foster a taste for such pursuits in our children and allure them to success by happy examples.

Christmas Pie. 1879: D. Lothrop & Co., Boston. Postpaid $1 50. This is a handsomely gotten up book, with six engravings, for the larger girls and for bright Christmas. A cheery family gathers around the old shining oak table in the long dining room with a royal Christmas pie. How lips will smack as from its ample depths busy thumbs pull out plums. It would be a study to watch the faces as plum number one, number two, &c., appear. We like the book.

Scribner's Monthly for January at hand. Appears to be a capital number.

Blackwood's Magazine for December, published by Leonard Scott & Co., New York. Contents: The atrical Reform; The "Merchant of Venice" at the Lyceum; Reata, or What's in a Name; Progress; Bush-Life in Queensland; Old Squires and New; The Roads and Rivers of Norfolk and Suffolk; A Liberal Address; Political Rabies; The Late John Blackwood.

As an eclectic magazine containing the choicest and most varied selections from the standards of periodical literature of this country and Europe Littell's Living Age probably stands first. It is published weekly by Littell & Co. of Boston for $8 a year, and each number contains over sixty pages.

Lippincott's Magazine for January, contains: Sargent's Rodeo; Summerland Sketches; An Unthrift; Umilta; From a Corner; Forty Years Ago; From the Farm to the Shop; Adam and Eve; The Bull Fight; A Little Piece of Heaven; International Copyright; About Mary Ann; The Duc de Morny; Our Monthly Gossip; Literature of the Day. J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The church at Yorkville, S. C., has invited the Rev. S. Taylor Martin, of Hendersonville, N. C., to become its pastor.

A friend writes us: "Mr. H. C. Fennel was ordained and installed pastor of the Liberty Springs (Cross Hill) church, December 5, by a commission of Enoree Presbytery, consisting of Revs. F. Jacobs, D. D., J. Y. Fair, A. P. Nicholson, and Ruling Elder S. R. Todd. This church, which has hitherto been very much divided, is most happily united in Mr. Fennel. His preaching and his personal intercourse with the people of his charge are highly acceptable. There is every reason to hope that his ministrations will be blessed to them. The call for Mr. Fennel's services, from this church, is for only half his time; the other half is engaged by Rocky River church, in South Carolina Presbytery."—Southern Presbyterian.

The Portland Avenue Church, of which Rev. James H. Morrison is pastor, received five additions on Sabbath, 14th inst. The pastor is greatly encouraged in his labors by the success which has attended them.

A series of meetings, following the November communion, has just closed in the church at Paris, Ky. The pastor, Rev. L. H. Blanton, was assisted for more than two weeks by Rev. J. M. Evans, of Augusta, Ky., who preached with great earnestness and acceptance twice every day. At the close of the meeting, Rev. J. W. Pratt, D. D., delivered four sermons of wonderful eloquence and power. As a result of the meeting, the church has been revived, and seventeen souls have been added to the membership.—Christian Observer.

A correspondent of the Courier Journal thus writes of a meeting at Hopkinsville, Ky.: "The meeting which commenced at the Presbyterian church last week is still (Dec. 8th) in progress. Rev. J. C. Tate, the pastor of the church, is assisted by Rev. W. E. Keller, of Bloomfield, Ky. Mr. Tate, who has been in our midst about nine years, is held in the highest esteem. He is an able speaker, and an agreeable, social companion. Mr. Keller was connected with Gen. Morgan's command, afterwards became a lawyer, then a judge, and is now a most eloquent preacher of the Gospel. He made a heavy raid Sunday night upon infidelity. His keen-edged logic was particularly scathing to Ingersoll, and seemed to be relished by the large audience in attendance, the body and gallery of the church being crowded. Drs. Keen and Brewer, of the Baptist and Methodist Churches, gave up their usual Sunday evening services in order to hear this able and eloquent divine."

On Sabbath, 7th inst., Rev. W. R. Coppedge was installed pastor of Sinking Creek, Va. Rev. R. R. Houston preached and presided, and Rev. A. H. Price delivered the charges.

We learn the Rev. J. W. Sexton has already entered upon his new field of labor at Bryan. His people gave him a very cordial welcome, and he is much encouraged at his prospect for usefulness and success. His address is changed from Huntsville, Texas, to Bryan, Texas.—Texas Presbyterian.

The Galveston News says that during Dr. McNeilly's ministry of nearly two years there have been collections of nearly $11,000; members admitted, 114; baptisms, 50; net gain in members, 80; total membership 237; sermons preached 300.

Rev. J. A. Smith has been pastor of the Presbyterian church at Princeton eight months, during which time there have been seven addition to the church. At the last communion two persons were received on profession of faith.

Rev. Leroy R. Johnson, colored, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church (Southern), Lynchburg, Va., has accepted a call to the colored Presbyterian church of Greensboro, N. C., which is connected with the Northern Assembly. Mr. Johnson is connected with Montgomery Presbytery, and is an able and useful minister.—Central Presbyterian.

At a recent meeting of East Hanover Presbytery, Rev. J. C. Painter was allowed to resign the pastoral charge of Hartwood church, and was dismissed to Chesapeake Presbytery. He is invited to supply Waddell and Rapidan churches in that Presbytery. Mr. Painter's postoffice address is Rapidan, Culpeper county, Va.—Central Presbyterian

Rev. C. M. Howard writes to the Christian Observer, Dec. 12th, from Campbell C. H., Va.: "The ice has been broken in this Gospel-hardened town. We have been meeting at the throne of grace in our closets at 5 a. m. every morning, and selecting individuals to pray for, till we have such a revival as was never seen here before. There are now a very large number of inquirers, and country people around for miles are coming in and overflow the church. Everything is very quiet. Much time is spent in silent prayer, but conviction seems to be very deep, largely among middle-aged men of influence in the community, whom none of the numerous meetings before have moved. Those prayers you asked for in your paper (for which I thank you) have been answered. May they keep on ascending. I expect to leave here in a week or so for Old Concord church, near Concord Depot, A. M. & O. railroad, nine miles from here."

The church building of the First Presbyterian church of Houston, Texas, has become so unsafe that Rev. Dr. McNeilly would not venture to preach his farewell sermon in it. Another house of worship will have to be built.

On a recent visit of Rev. W. S. Johnson, evangelist, to Graham Presbyterian church in Texas, six were added on examination and one on certificate.

NORTHERN.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The late William Bee of Ashland, Ohio, by will, bequeathed to the Board of Home Missions the sum of $800, to the Board of Foreign Missions $500, to the Board of Relief $500, to the Committee on Freedmen $500, and to the American Tract Society, New York, $800.—Presbyterian.

The First Presbyterian church in Quincy, Ill., reared the walls of a building in 1855, but it was soon strewed into ruins by a violent storm. Only a year ago, January 3, 1879, a house of worship just completed on the same spot was swept away by a terrible fire. On the last Sabbath of November the people were gathered in a new church building more beautiful than any which has preceded it, which they joyfully dedicated to God.—Presbyterian.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

St. Luke's church, the only Protestant Episcopal church in Montclair, N. J., is to be sold under foreclosure on January 3, unless the congregation raise the amount necessary to pay off the mortgage, the original amount of which was $15,000, but since increased to $16,000.

REFORMED EPISCOPAL.

The Reformed Episcopal church of Denver is now an established fact. The organization was perfected Sunday by the election of wardens and vestrymen. The name decided upon is "Trinity Reformed Episcopal Church of Denver, Colorado."

FRIENDS.

The Indiana Quakers report that eighty-one had to be disowned during the past year, while 113 resigned. They, however, have gained six over last year.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN.

A pastor, writing from Lowell, Ohio, to the United Presbyterian, says: "Yesterday (Thanksgiving), before our service at the church began, one of my elders, Mr. J. C. McFarlane, whom the Lord hath blessed with a goodly amount of this world's goods, and with a heart of love for the Saviour and His cause in the world, came to me and placed in my hands a "thank-offering for the Lord." It was done up in three parts—two thousand dollars for the Home Mission, two thousand dollars for the Church Extension Boards, two thousand dollars for the Freedmen's Mission—in all six thousand dollars.

CONGREGATIONALIST.

The thirty-first annual meeting of the First church in San Francisco, Cal., Rev. A. L. Stone, D. D., pastor, held November 24th, showed the present membership to be 350, of whom 373 are women. For salary of pastor, interest on the church debt and taxes, $15,000 have been raised the past year.—Christian Intelligencer.

The estate of Mrs. Josephine M. Ellis, late of Milford, N. H., has been settled, and the residuary legatees, the American Board and Home Missionary Society, have received $36,410 81 each.

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

General Joseph E. Johnston was lately in Raleigh and a gentleman asked him rather pointedly why the Southern army did not take Washington after the first battle of Manassas. Rising on his toes, he replied: "There were two reasons—myself and the Potomac river. I had reached that age that I knew that an American soldier could not ford a river a mile wide and eighteen feet deep."—News.

Mr. Burwell Ellington, of this county, was found dead in a turkey "blind," on the 16th inst. He was quite a noted huntsman, and had gone that morning to a "blind" that he had prepared for wild turkeys, and it is supposed that while watching there he died from heart disease.—Pittsboro Record.

A telegram from London, Dec. 9th, says: "Mr. James MacLean, of Saint Rollox Chemical Works, has informed the Glasgow Philosophical Society that, after experiments since 1866, he has succeeded in obtaining crystallized forms of carbon which Professors Tyndall and Smith, and Mr. Maskelyne, of the British Museum, do not doubt are diamonds.

A Brooklyn wife sues the owner of a drinking shop for $10,000 damages, because she says her husband has squandered fully that amount there for drink. The case will be tried under the civil damage act of New York. Such suits are frequent in the West, with the verdicts nearly always for the plaintiff.

Fish are killed in the streams of Georgia by exploding cartridges of dynamite under water. So general has this practice become that fears are expressed that in many places the fish will be entirely destroyed.

The Earl of Aberdeen is about to build, at a cost of $175,000, a line of railroad, ten miles in length, through his Scotch estates.

The Irish servant girls of the cities of New York and Brooklyn, during the year 1879 sent home to their parents, brothers and sisters, the enormous sum of $1,350,000.

Nellie Grant Sartoris wears a fine miniature of Queen Victoria, set in precious stones, which the queen gave her a few years since, when they first met.

There are to be constructed in New York city by Cornelius Vanderbilt one house which will cost him $750,000; by William K. Vanderbilt one, the expense of which will be $200,000; and by William H. Vanderbilt two together, which will aggregate $700,000—in all, $1,650,000.

MARRIED.

☞ No notice of a marriage or death will be inserted unless accompanied by a responsible name, which is wanted not for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.

At "The Maples," near Woodlawn, Gaston county, by Rev. R. Z. Johnston, on the 17th of December, Mr. K. S. FINCH and Miss SUSIE S. NIMS.

At the residence of Mr. E. R. McCormic, near ... Church, on the 18th inst., by Rev. A. N. Ferguson, Mr. DANIEL F. WEBSTER and Miss LIZZIE McCORMIC, all of Richmond county, N. C.

At Tarboro, December 16th, by Rev. John W. Primrose, Mr. JOEL H. BROWN and Miss SUSAN McCULLEN.

In Barbecue Township, Harnett county, on the 3rd inst., by L. McN. McDonald, Esq., JOHN A. McDONALD and Miss KATE, eldest daughter of Daniel Darroch.

On December 11th, by Rev. P. P. Winn, Prof. H. BURKE of Concord, (Iredell) Academy, and Miss M. AMANDA STEVENSON, all of Iredell county.

In Barbecue Township, Harnett county, on the ... ult., by Rev. James McQueen, M. E. CAMERON and Miss EFFY CLARK.

In Upper Little River Township, Harnett county, on the 11th inst., by Rev. A. Campbell, NEILL McLEAN and Miss MARY ANN, eldest daughter of Wm. W. Salmon, Esq.

In Wilkes county, at the residence of the bride's father, by Rev. Thomas G. Thurston, on December 4th, Mr. J. H. SPEARS, of Cabarrus county and Miss MARY A. WELBORN.

In the Presbyterian Church at Whiteville, N. C., on the 17th inst., by Rev. H. B. Garriss, Rev. R. A. MILLER, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Monroe, N. C., and Miss ELLA BROWN.

DIED.

☞ Obituary notices must be paid for in advance. The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

In Gaston county, December 12th, Mrs. LOUISA WRIGHT, in the 58th year of her age. There were ... months between her death and that of her husband, Capt. James Wright.

She had been for many years an exemplary Christian member of New Hope Church. Her three surviving daughters have the sweet consolation that their mother is in heaven, enjoying that rest that remaineth for the people of God. PASTOR.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

The Session of Sharon Church adopt the following minute as a last tribute to the memory of our worthy and esteemed Brother, Dr. C. N. HUTCHISON, who, in the providence of God, has been taken from our midst in the meridian of his life and usefulness. Aged 34 years and 6 months.

He was born of pious parents; but was deprived of parental care at a very tender age; yet doubtless the prayers of a pious mother, and the Christian training of an affectionate step-mother brought him at a very early age to know and love the truth as it is in Jesus. In his youth he was never known to quarrel with a playmate: and his Christian character, his love of peace, gentle reproof, and kind admonitions to the wayward, caused him to exert a salutary influence over all with whom he came in contact. While a student at college the same spirit of piety marked his life. And some of the most profane were brought by his influence to attend the young men's prayer meeting, and are now ministers of the gospel.

His purpose in seeking an education was that he might become an Ambassador for Christ. But that insidious disease, consumption, laid its withering hand upon him, and failing health caused him to give up the cherished object of his life. He then turned his attention to the study of medicine. But by the time he had qualified himself for its practice, the disease had made such inroads upon his constitution that he was again forced to abandon his pursuit and retire to private life. For several years before his death his health was so feeble that to him his life seemed rather a burden than a pleasure, though forced to abandon every Christian privilege, yet he was never heard to utter a murmur. And his unfailing cheerfulness amidst his sufferings was a constant surprise to all who knew him. In his Christian character he has left us a noble example which all should strive to follow. He was indeed, a living epistle of Christ, known and read of all men. As an elder he was faithful and conscientious in the performance of every duty. The prosperity of the Church and the salvation of souls was the burden of his prayers. And, perhaps, few men have lived so constantly in an atmosphere of devotion. In view of this record the Session would resolve,

1st. That the death of such a man is a loss to any community; and in his death we have lost a beloved brother in Christ, and a devoted and efficient co-laborer.

2nd. That while we are filled with sadness because we shall see his face no more, yet we rejoice to know that our loss is his eternal gain.

3rd. That while we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, our prayer should be, "Help, Lord, for the godly man ceaseth, for the faithful fail from among the children of men."

4th. That in token of our sympathy, a copy of this minute be sent to his bereaved family, and that it be spread upon our minute book in the usual manner, and that a copy be sent to the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN for publication.

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE.

At a meeting of the Session of McPherson Church on November 9th, 1879, Mr. J. A. McArthur and Dr. A. McDougal were appointed a committee to prepare a memorial on the death of our beloved elder DANIEL CURRIE. They submitted the following, which was adopted unanimously, and ordered to be published in the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN:

The ruthless hand of death has removed from our midst our beloved brother and ruling elder Mr. Daniel Currie. He had been for several months greatly afflicted, confined to his room and deprived of church privileges, which to him was a sore trial, and also of attending the Sabbath School, of which he had been a faithful and untiring Superintendent for many years, and in which he was so deeply interested that even in the decline of life, and under the infirmities of old age, he seldom failed to be at his post. During his long affliction, although at times his sufferings were great, no murmur was ever heard to escape his lips. He bore his affliction with Christian fortitude, and calm submission to the will of God, often saying, when friends would offer their sympathy, "It is all right; it is the Lord's doing." But his work is done and his sufferings ended. The Master has taken him from the Church militant to the Church triumphant, where, freed from all the cares and troubles, and sufferings of this life, he received that happiness for which he labored and ... to a better and brighter world above.

Mr. Currie was born of Christian parents, about the year 1797, and departed this life on the 23rd day of ... 1879, in the 82nd year of his age. He professed Christ in early life, and was elected elder of McPherson church in the year 1864, which office he faithfully up to the time of his last sickness. Few men were ever more faithful and conscientious in the discharge of every duty. We mourn his loss, but are comforted by the assurance that our loss is his eternal gain. It is the Lord: let Him do what seemeth to Him good.

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, we ... feel a deep sense of the great loss which ... sustained by the death of such a man. A loss to our community and to our Church, as well as to his bereaved family. For the loss of one so ... in the discharge of every duty, as a neighbor, as a Christian, and as an office-bearer in the Church of God, we can but mourn.

Resolved, That while we extend to the bereaved family our most sincere and heart-felt sympathy in their irreparable loss which they have sustained, we would rejoice with them at his peaceful end. That in his last days he was enabled to realize so fully the comforting assurance that all was well. That death was completely robbed of its sting, and boasted none of its victory. He is not lost, but gone a little in advance to occupy those mansions prepared for him by that blessed Saviour whom he so ardently loved and served.

Resolved, That a copy of the above be sent to the bereaved family, and one also to the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN for publication, and that this tribute be transcribed in our Sessional Records.

By order of Session.

J. A. McARTHUR, } Committee.
DR. A. McDOUGAL, }

Polk Miller & Co:
... Pocket Cure is of tried virtue. I have seen dyspepsia cured completely by it. It seems to be an antidote to our "National Disease." The ingredients are not kept by the apothecaries, and have been difficult to get.—Editor Richmond Christian Advocate

OUR PAPER.

We do not forget that the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN is read not only by Ministers, who by reason of training and study are specially fond of profound discussions of religious philosophy, but by both sexes, and by all classes and conditions of persons. Consequently it is our aim to present such a variety of moral and religious reading that the paper will commend itself to all as a popular vehicle of such information and instruction as not only ought to be read, but as will be read by young and old, rich and poor, clergy and laity, learned and unlearned. We present no elaborate prospectus. Any who may desire to know more of the paper, are referred to its friends, who may be found in almost any community, or we will gladly send sample copies on application.

OUR PREMIUMS.

We invite special attention to the premiums we are offering with the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN for the ensuing year:

To any subscriber, the paper one year, and Kitto's Cyclopedia ($5 00 edition) for $4 75.

The paper one year and Smith's Bible Dictionary ($4 50 edition) for $4 50.

The paper one year and Cruden's Unabridged Concordance for $4 00.

To any one sending us THREE new subscribers at $2 65 each we give
SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY,
OR
THE LIFE OF ST. PAUL

As a premium for TWO new subscribers, at $2 65 each, we give
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.

To every New Subscriber at $2 65 we will give a MAP OF PALESTINE, 28x42

We have sent this Map to a large number of persons and feel justified in saying it gives entire satisfaction. The publisher's price is $1 00.

The Cyclopedia and the Bible Dictionary are very cheap—exceedingly cheap. And
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE,
COMPLETE—UNABRIDGED.

Being an index to every important word in the Scriptures and the Apocrypha—with full definitions of the Theological and Scriptural meanings of words, and having the texts indicated with the respective meanings. We say this Concordance—the best probably in the world is a marvel of cheapness. No Christian family—or other family—should be without it.

WE SPECIALLY OFFER
The Paper one year with the
CONCORDANCE,
To any new Subscriber for $3 50.
In all cases we prepay postage.

One pair of boots or shoes saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Metalic Heel Stiffeners.

Our State has very fine schools. Our columns just now contain advertisements of several and more will be added, for we do not pretend that all are in. This week we introduce to our readers the FINLEY HIGH SCHOOL, the HORNER SCHOOL and the LAURINBURG HIGH SCHOOL, which are of the best. While on the subject of schools we call attention to Mr. J. W. Gilmer's call for a Classical Teacher. The University of North Carolina is just in.

Ladies, Delicate and Feeble.

Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its former elasticity, driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can be easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once while the special causes of periodical pain are permanently removed. Will you heed this? See "Truths."

What is the best and safest preparation to turn gray hair to its natural color, but not dye it? Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer.

FOR BRONCHIAL, ASTHMATIC, and Catarrhal Complaints and Coughs and Colds, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" manifest remarkable curative properties. Imitations are offered for sale, many of which are injurious. The genuine "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are sold only in boxes.

The Phonographic Piano.

A recent invention of an eminent Swiss musician. It plays any tune in the most melodious and pleasing manner, and is preferable to the most expensive music-box. A child can operate it, and the low price at which it is sold will insure a sale in every music-loving household.

WHOLESALE PRICES.

☞ These quotations represent the wholesale prices.

ARTICLES.	PRICES.
BACON—Western Smoked—
Hams	10 a	12
Sides, per lb	0 a	7½
Shoulders	a	6¾
Dry Salted—
Sides, per lb	0 a	7¾
Shoulders	0 a	6½
CHEESE—Northern Factory, per lb	0 a	11
Dairy, cream per lb	00 a	14½
State, per lb	00 a	10
COFFEE—Rio, per lb	18 a	18
Laguayra, per lb	18 a	20
CORN MEAL—per bush in sacks	80 a	82½
DOMESTICS—Sheetings, 4-4, per yd	a	7
Yarn, per bunch	00 a	85½
FLOUR—Fine, per bbl	0 00 a	5 00
Super, Northern, per bbl	5 50 a	6 00
Extra do. " per bbl	6 25 a	6 50
Family " per bbl	7 50 a	9 00
City Mills Extra Super, per bbl	0 00 a	7 25
" Family, per bbl	0 00 a	7 75
" Extra do., per bbl	0 00 a	8 25
GLUE—per lb	14 a	16
GRAIN—Corn, in sacks, per 56 lbs from store—white	77½a	80
CORN, wholesale, in sacks	72½a	75
Corn, mixed, wholesale in sacks	70 a	72½
Corn, Cargo, per 56 lbs, bulk	68 a	70
Oats, per bushel from store	60 a	62½
Peas, Cow, per bushel	60 a	65
HOOP IRON—per ton	90 00 a	95 00
LARD—Northern, per lb	9½ a	10
North Carolina, per lb	10 a	11
LIME—per bbl	0 00 a	1 00
MOLASSES—West Indies, old crop	00 a	30
" " bbls	00 a	32½
" " new crop	35 a	37
" " bbls	37 a	39
New Orleans	28 a	50
Sugar House, hhds, per gal	00 a	23
" " bbls., per gal	00 a	24
Syrup, bbls., per gal	40 a	55
NAILS—Cut, 4d to 20d, per keg	00 a	3 75
OILS—Kerosene, per gal	13½a	15
Lard, per gal	1 00 a	1 10
PEANUTS—per bushel	75 a	1 05
PORK—Northern, City Mess	12 00	12 50
SALT—Alum, per bag of 2 bushels	75 a	1 00
Liverpool, per sack	90	95
Liverpool fine, per sack	a	1 75
SUGAR—Cuba, per lb	8½a	10½
Porto Rico, per lb	0 a	7½
A—Coffee, per lb	0 a	11
B— " per lb	9 a	11½
C— " per lb	8½a	9
Ex. C— per lb	0 a	9¾
Crushed, per lb	00 a	11½
SOAP—Northern, per lb	5 a	7
Crampton's N. Y. Palm Soap, per box 100 lbs., ½ bars	0 00 a	4 20
TIMBER—Shipping, per M	12 00 a	18 00
Mill Prime, per M	9 00 a	11 00
Mill Fair, per M	6 50 a	8 50
Inferior to Ordinary, per M	3 00 a	5 00

WILMINGTON MARKET
DURING WEEK
ENDING DECEMBER 24.

THE attention of all persons interested is called to the fact that strict personal attention is given to the collection of the necessary information, and the careful preparation of our MARKET REPORT, so as to give a correct general review of transactions and prices, for the week ending each Tuesday morning.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—The market has ruled steady throughout at 38 cents per gallon.

ROSIN—The sales for the week appear to have been confined almost exceedingly to Good Strained, and were sometimes for spot delivery, but principally for delivery at buyer's option either to January 1st or 15th, and always at $1 20 per barrel.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—Sales reported on Wednesday last at $1 70 for Hard and $2 70 for Yellow Dip. All sales since at $1 65 and $2 65 respectively, until Monday, when price dropped to $1 60 and $2 60. Tuesday no change.

TAR—Receipts taken as offered day by day at $1 10 per barrel.

COTTON—On Wednesday official quotations were nominal at 12 cents for Middling, being ⅛ cent advance on figures of the day previous. On Thursday and Friday sales were made at 12 cents for Middling. Saturday market very quiet and nominal at 11⅞ cents. Monday sales at 11⅞ cents.

CORN—Receipts are light and demand good. We refer to table for quotations.

TIMBER—Sales of 3 rafts Common at $5, 2 do. do. Mill at $6 50, 1 do. Prime Mill at $9 50; 1 railroad lot small sizes and long lengths at $10 50; 1 raft large sizes and long lengths, extra sizes, at $13.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative power in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. SHERAR, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, New York.

HOMES
in Western Arkansas.

The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway offer for sale the best LANDS in the West or South-West, with healthy climate, fertile soil, and not affected by drouth. Easy terms of sale. Full information.
Apply to W. D. SLACK, Land Com'r,
dec 24-624-13t Little Rock, Ark.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!

WE ask the attention of our friends and customers to our large and handsomely selected stock which is our

Fourth Purchase this Season.

Consisting of Dress Goods in all colors and prices, Cassimeres, Jeans, Flannels, Blankets, Shawls, Balmoral Skirts, Tickings, Domestics, Sheetings,

READY-MADE CLOTHING,

Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes.

Don't forget we sell the best Shirt in the City for the money. Wool Shirts and Vests for Ladies and Gents underwear.

Call and get one of our $1 Umbrellas, which is as good as you ever bought at $1 25.

Notwithstanding the advance in prices, we are still selling many of our Goods at old prices.

Orders solicited.
T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opp. Charlotte Hotel, Tryon st., Charlotte, N. C.
dec 24 624 tf

THE DEAF HEAR
THROUGH THE TEETH!
PERFECTLY, all Ordinary Conversation, Lectures, Concerts, etc., by NEW Channels, to the Nerves of Hearing, by a wonderful New Scientific Invention, THE DENTAPHONE. For remarkable public tests on the Deaf—also on the Deaf and Dumb—see New York Herald, Sept. 28; Christian Standard, Sept. 27, etc. It displaces all Ear-trumpets. Size of an ordinary Watch. Send for our FREE pamphlet. Address AMERICAN DENTAPHONE CO., 297 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio

PEACE INSTITUTE,
For Young Ladies,
RALEIGH, N. C.

THE Spring term commences on the 16th of January 1880, and closes the 1st of June following. The total expense of a boarding pupil for one term is $120, payable in advance. This amount will include board, with washing, fuel, lights, furnished room and servant's attendance, tuition in English branches and Latin, Calisthenics, Text Books and Stationery used for school purposes. For $150 all the above, with Instrumental Music and use of Piano.
For circular containing particulars as to terms, Course of Study, &c., address
REV. R. BURWELL & SON,
dec 24-624-3m Raleigh, N. C.

HORNER SCHOOL,
OXFORD, N. C.

INSTRUCTORS—J. H. Horner, A M, J. C. Horner, A. M, R. W. Winston, A. B. (Univ of N. C.)

The Spring Session will begin January 19th, 1880. Board and Tuition per session of five months, $100.
For circular, address
dec 24-1m J. C. HORNER.

FINLEY HIGH SCHOOL,
Lenoir, Caldwell Co., N. C.

THE Spring Term will begin January 14th, 1880. Tuition per term, from $16 to $25. Board, in good private families, per term, $50. Washing and lights extra.
For further particulars, send for circular.
E. W. FAUCETTE, Principal.
dec 24 624-3t

University of North Carolina,
CHAPEL HILL N C, December 22, 1879.

THE exercises of the University will be resumed on the first Monday of January, 1880.
For catalogues apply to
KEMP P. BATTLE, President.
dec 24 624 2t

LAURINBURGH HIGH SCHOOL.
A Classical, Mathematical, and Commercial Academy.

W. G. QUAKENBUSH, (Bingham School and University of Va.) Principal.
H. W. MALLOY, (Davidson College) Assistant.
Charges per session of 20 weeks—Tuition $30; Contingent Fee $1; Board $50.
The second session will begin Monday, January 19, 1880. For circulars and further information, address the Principal, Laurinburg, N. C.
dec 24 624-4t

WANTED!
A Classical Teacher Wanted.
Address me at Greensboro, N. C.
J. W. GILMER.
dec 24 624-3t

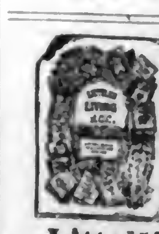
READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN
If you like to be satisfied deal with
W. J. MOTT,
—Dealer in—
BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.

Keeps on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain his reputation in this regard. I will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,
W. J. MOTT,
North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.
P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult me either by mail or in person.
nov 19 619-tf

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.

THE SPRING TERM of 1880 opens Thursday, January 15. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks.
Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.
Address MRS. E. N. GRANT, Principal.
feb 20 528-1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.



THE GREATEST LIVING Authors, such as Prof. Max Muller, Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone, Jas. A. Froude, Prof. Huxley, R. A. Proctor, Edw. A. Freeman, Prof. Tyndall, Dr. W. B. Carpenter, Frances Power Cobbe, The Duke of Argyll, Wm. Black, Miss Thackeray, Mrs. Mulock-Craik, Geo. MacDonald, Mrs. Oliphant, Jean Ingelow, Matthew Arnold, Henry Kingsley, W. W. Story, Turgenief, Carlyle, Ruskin, Tennyson, Browning, and many others, are represented in the pages of

Littell's Living Age.

Jan. 1, 1880, THE LIVING AGE enters upon its 144th Volume, admittedly unrivalled and continuously successful. A weekly magazine, it gives more than double-column octavo pages of reading-matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its great amount of matter, with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a satisfactory completeness attempted by no other publication, the best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical Literature.

THREE AND A QUARTER THOUSAND

It is therefore invaluable to every American reader, as the only satisfactorily fresh and COMPLETE compilation of an indispensable current literature,—indispensable because it embraces the productions of the

ABLEST LIVING WRITERS

in all branches of Literature, Science, Politics and Art.

"It covers the whole field of literature, and covers it completely, thoroughly and impartially."—Times, Cincinnati.

"It affords the best, the cheapest and most convenient means of keeping abreast with the progress of thought in all its phases."—North American, Philadelphia.

"Gives the best of all at the price of one."—New York Independent.

"It is, by all odds, the best eclectic published."—Southern Churchman, Richmond.

"It so fully supplies the wants of the reading public that through its pages alone it is possible to be as thoroughly well informed in current literature as by the perusal of a long list of monthlies."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"To read it weekly is a liberal education."—Zion's Herald, Boston.

"With it alone a reader may fairly keep up with all that is important in the literature, history, politics and science of the day."—The Methodist, New York.

"There is no other way of procuring the same amount of excellent literature for anything like the same price."—Boston Advertiser.

"It is INDISPENSABLE TO EVERY ONE who desires a thorough compendium of all that is admirable and noteworthy in the literary world."—Boston Post.

"The prince among magazines."—New York Observer.

"The best literature of the day."—New York Times.

THE LIVING AGE is published weekly at $8.00 a year, free of postage; or for $10.50 THE LIVING AGE and either one of the American $4 Monthlies (or Harper's Weekly or Bazar) will be sent for a year, both postpaid; or, for $9.50 THE LIVING AGE and the St. Nicholas, or Appleton's Journal.

Now is the time to subscribe, beginning with the New Year.

☞ EXTRA OFFER FOR 1880. ☜

To all new subscribers for 1880 will be sent gratis the numbers of 1879 which contain, besides other interesting matter, the first chapters of two new serial stories recently begun in THE LIVING AGE from advance sheets, viz.: "HE WHO WILL NOT WHEN HE MAY," by MRS. OLIPHANT, and "ADAM AND EVE," by the author of those remarkably attractive stories, "Dorothy Fox" and "Hero Carthew."

Address, LITTELL & CO., Boston.

Proverbs.	Proverbs.
"For sinking spells, fits, dizziness, palpitation and low spirits, rely on Hop Bitters."	"The greatest appetizer, stomach, blood and liver regulator—Hop Bitters."
"Read of, procure and use Hop Bitters, and you will be strong, healthy and happy."	"Take Hop Bitters three times a day and you will have no doctor bills to pay."
"Ladies, do you want to be strong, healthy and beautiful? Then use Hop Bitters."	"Hop Bitters builds up strengthens and cures continually from the first dose."
"$500 will be paid for a case that Hop Bitters will not cure or help."	"Fair skin, rosy cheeks and the sweetest breath in Hop Bitters."
"Clergymen Lawyers, Editors, Bankers and Ladies need Hop Bitters daily."	"Kidney and Urinary complaints of all kinds permanently cured by Hop Bitters."
"Hop Bitters has restored to sobriety and health, perfect wrecks from intemperance."	"Sour stomach, sick headache and dizziness Hop Bitters cures with a few doses."

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

G. H. GRAVES,
—WITH—
YEARGAN, PETTY & Co
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Notions, &c.
RALEIGH, N. C.

Would be glad to have his friends and everybody else to call. He guarantees to sell them goods cheaper than they can be bought elsewhere in the city. Orders are solicited from Merchants and all others.

Messrs. Yeargan, Petty & Co. keep an assortment of RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS and DRESS GOODS.

Special attention is asked to their line of Hamburg and Nainsook Edgings and Insertions, Silk Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Ladies' Dress Shoes, &c.
dec 10 622-1m

Nice Books
—FOR—
HOLIDAY PRESENTS.

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE, $1 50;
TEACHER'S BIBLES from $1 50 to $8 00;
CHURCH HYMN BOOKS from $1 00 to $3 00;
CHATTERBOX, 1879, $1 00;
WILLIAM, THE BAPTIST, 2d edition, $1 00;
DABNEY'S THEOLOGY, sheep, 2d edition, $5 00;
PROPHECY; A Series of Lectures by Rev. A. P. Foreman, $1 50;
BALM FOR WOUNDED SPIRITS, by W. S. Plumer, D. D., Paper covers, 10 cents;
ASSURANCE OF GRACE AND SALVATION, By Same, Paper, 10 cents;
HAPPY THOUGHTS FOR CHRISTMAS. Beautifully Illustrated, 30 full page engravings, $1 00;
MEMOIR OF REV DR. DAVID COULTER. With Reminiscences, Letters, Lectures and Sermons $1 50;
A Thousand other Beautiful Books for Christmas Presents and Sunday School Libraries.
Send for approved Lists to
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va.
Or, 207 N. 8th St, St. Louis, Mo
dec 10 622 tf

Oratory! Pathos! Humor! Fun!
100 CHOICE SELECTIONS
No 17 NOW READY.
P. GARRETT & Co.
708 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

This number is uniform with the Series, and contains another HUNDRED splendid Declamations and Readings. 180 pp. Price, 30 cts., mailed free. Sold by Booksellers. Every boy who speaks pieces, every member of a Lyceum who wants something New to recite, should get the Whole Set. Club rates, and Full List of Contents Free.
dec 10 622-4t

SALT. SALT. SALT.

21,000 Sacks

Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!

Factory Filled Fine Table,
AND
Liverpool Ground Alum.
Full Weight Guaranteed.

"WILLARD'S,"
NORTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
dec 17 623-tf

Lynch's Select School,
HIGH POINT, N. C.

An English, Mathematical, Classical, Commercial and Scientific Academy,

MAJ. W. B. LYNCH, A. M., Principal.
B. P. PRICE, A. B., Assistant.

Spring session of 1880 begins January 21st. Board and Tuition $80. For circulars address the Principal.
dec 17 623-6t

NOWHERE IN THE STATE

CAN A MORE STYLISH CUTTER BE FOUND than the new one at

MUNSON'S.

300 Different kinds of Goods to select a suit from, which, made up in CURRAN'S best style, will enable you to spend

A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.
dec 17 623-2t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.

WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.

Our Trimming Department is Complete,

and comprises the leading styles.

Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.

We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.

Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.

The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.
N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.
nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.

THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the

Latest and Most Approved Style.

To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.

"First Come, First Served."

MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
apl 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

THOS. A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.
McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.

Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 593 1y.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
Charlotte, N. C.,

KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will

Compete in Prices,
—EITHER—
WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,
With any Market.

All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods
VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.

We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.
BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 185.

INSTITUTE FOR TRAINING OF COLORED MINISTERS
Under the care of the General Assembly.
Located at TUSKALOOSA, ALA.

THE FOURTH SESSION, of ten months, will commence on the 1st day of September next, under the instruction of Rev. D. C. Rankin, Professor, who has the best testimonials of fitness for the work; in his deep interest in the colored people and his past labors in their behalf, his ample scholarship, and his aptness to teach.

All the branches necessary to fit candidates for the Gospel Ministry will be taught. Some acquaintance with the early branches of English will be required for entrance. Candidates must come recommended by their Presbyteries or Committees of Education; and if of other denominations, must have similar credentials.

No charge for tuition. Board can be had on reasonable terms.
C. A. STILLMAN, Superintendent.
july 23 602-tf

DeROSSET & NORTHROP,
FIRE AND MARINE
INSURANCE AGENTS,
REPRESENTING } Standard American AND English Companies.
28 North Water Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
nov 19 619-tf

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER.
Send your orders by mail.

THE GOLDEN LIGHT,
A SONG BOOK FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS,
PUBLISHED BY
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO'Y.,
1001 Main St., RICHMOND, Va., or
207 North 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, Mo.

Single copy by mail 10 cents; per dozen $1 00—by mail $1 10; per hundred $7 50—by mail $8 50.

This number will be followed every six months by similar publications, each containing twenty-five or thirty new and choice pieces of music, and about the same number of standard Sunday School Hymns.
dec 10 622 3m

SELECT BOARDING
AND
DAY SCHOOL,
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.

Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.

THE SPRING TERM of 1880 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE. Board and Tuition $100.
Circulars forwarded on application.
466-*jan.1.'79

BINGHAM SCHOOL,
MEBANEVILLE, N. C.,

Is now PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys.

The 171st Session ending Dec. 17th, 1879, has been the most prosperous in the eighty-six years of the School's history. The 172d Session will begin January 14th, 1880. Board $12 per month. Tuition $50 per Session. For catalogue giving full particulars address, MAJ. R. BINGHAM, Sup't.
dec 17 623-1m

COTTON!

IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants

For the Sale of Cotton,

Which they are prepared to do

On the Most Economical Charges.

They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.
ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,
Wilmington, N. C.
September 3d, 1879. 608

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.
LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.

Children's Merino Under Suits---A great comfort and convenience.

CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.

LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.

PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,

In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.

A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.
OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.
Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.
dec 8 621-1y

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847) S. W. WHITING.

R. B. ANDREWS & CO.

Men and Boys — Extra Large Sizes

CLOTHING, CLOTHING,
A Specialty.

Dress Shirts, Cuffs,
TIES, SCARFS,
Half Hose, Suspenders,
Gloves,
Handkerchiefs, Underwear,
Trunks, Valises, &c.

HATS AND CAPS,
A Large Assortment.

We give special attention to orders from a distance.

LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.

NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh. N. C.

THE PHONOGRAPH SET TO MUSIC.

The Phonographic Piano.—A Most Wonderful Invention.

The Phonographic Piano has been called the most marvellous mechanical invention of the age. It will play any tune that ever was written, in a melodious and pleasing manner. Difficult and simple music produced in a masterly style, and it can be played by a child as well as by a grown person, and will furnish music for singing schools and social gatherings of any description, playing hour after hour, without any knowledge of music being required in the operation. The most wonderful of all musical inventions; a machine which in a purely mechanical manner produces the most difficult and exquisite music, Waltzes, Polkas, Marches, &c., &c., without any practice or knowledge of music whatever; far superior to any music-box, even though it costs thousands of dollars; for their is no limit whatever to the number of tunes it will play. This instrument is on the principle of the wonderful Phonograph. It has just been perfected (the accompanying cut showing it in its improved form), and is having the largest sale ever obtained by a musical instrument in the country. It has solid metal cases in imitation of green bronze; the notes or bars (the music producers) are metal, on same principle as a tuning-fork, which produce the clearest and most melodious notes, and never get out of tune; the bars are struck by strikers, the same as the wires are in a Piano, only they work automatically instead of by the fingers. The strip of prepared paper in which the tune is stamped or perforated, is about 10 inches wide, and as it passes through the rollers and over the keys the strikers spring through the perforations in the paper and strike the right note; this is all done automatically without any assistance from the operator (except turning the rollers), and the tune is played as perfectly as by the most expert musician. It would be one of the most appropriate presents to make anyone, especially where there is no Piano. In point of execution and fineness of tone, it will compare favorably with a fine music-box, and its capacity is unlimited. We predict for this instrument a most wonderful sale. It is going faster than any musical instrument ever invented. Its action is perfectly marvellous. The music is superb, and everybody delighted. No knowledge of music required, and a child can operate it and furnish music for any occasion. Make your child a sensible present, one which will amuse and instruct not only the child but the whole household. The price of the Phonographic Piano is only $5, and a selection of popular tunes goes with each instrument. Boxed free, and sent to any address on receipt of price. Address The Massachusetts Organ Co., 48 Washington Street, Boston, Mass., U. S. A.

Fall and Winter Goods
—AT—
M. M. KATZ'S,
86 MARKET STREET.

BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.

Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.

DRESS GOODS,—Satin Melange, Cashmere Sole, Brocade Persan, Persan Raye, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.

MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Ete, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.

CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS. Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets. The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.

MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c., &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to oct 22 M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

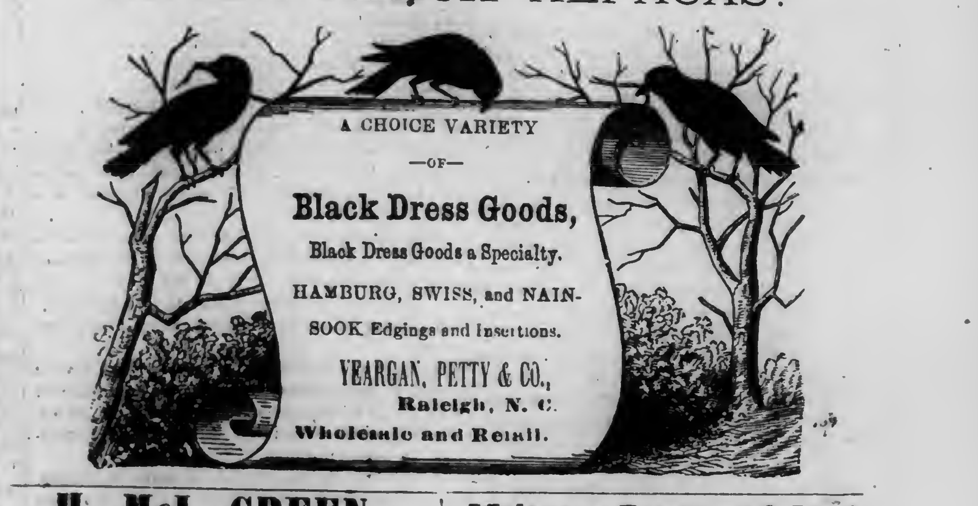
RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS!



H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments.
oct ...

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of

BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,

For the purpose of carrying on a

General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,

AT THE OLD STANDS,

5, 7 and 8, North Front Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.

JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 3, 1877.
oct 10 509-

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.

BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.

LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.

The Remington Sewing Machine,

A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.

Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.
Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.
GEO. A. PECK.
dec 10 25 South Front Street. 622-tf

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.

200 Hhds and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses. 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., 218 Fulton St. N. Y.
oct 8 413-26t

HALL & PEARSALL

OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of

100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER,
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.
sep 3—606-tf

AGENTS. READ THIS

We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.

Fresh Arrivals.

100 Boxes CREAM CHEESE,
50 Tubs LARD,
10 Tierces Fairbanks' LARD,
100 Boxes SOAP,
100 Boxes POTASH and LYE,
200 Bags SHOT,
BAGGING AND TIES,
10 Tierces good cheap HAMS.

For sale low by
HALL & PEARSALL.

KERCHNER &
CALDER
BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

FOR THE FAMILY

Never Out of Sight

I know a little saying,
That is altogether true;
My little boy, my little girl,
The saying is for you.
'Tis this, O blue and black eyes,
And gray—so deep and bright—
No child in all this careless world
Is ever out of sight.

No matter whether field or glen,
Or city's crowded way,
Or pleasure's laugh or labor's hum
Entice your feet to stray;
Some one is always watching you,
And whether wrong or right,
No child in all this busy world
Is ever out of sight.

Some one is always watching you,
And marking what you do,
To see if all your childhood's acts
Are honest, brave and true;
And watchful more than mortal kind,
God's angels pure and white,
In gladness or in sorrowing
Are keeping you in sight.

Oh, bear in mind, my little one,
And let your mark be high!
You do whatever thing you do,
Beneath some seeing eye;
Oh, bear in mind, my little one,
And keep your good name bright,
No child upon the round, round earth.
Is ever out of sight.

—Northern Advocate.

A Bible Definition.

A friend of ours, who was one day hearing his little six-year old Alice say her "definitions," asked her the meaning of "earthquake" and "volcano."

"I know, father. God tells us in the Bible what they are." "Does He? Why, where, Allie?" "In the 104th Psalm, 32d verse." Now turn to that passage, and see if this little student of the Bible didn't make a good answer.—Youth's Companion.

Paul Warner's Christmas.

BY MRS. J. B. MOORE BRISTOR.

Frederick Lindsay opened his eyes Christmas morning on all that was comfortable and beautiful. His room was artistic in the way of elegant furnishing; the mossy carpet, like a green, velvety patch from the woods, enamelled with flowers; here and there in the gilt and crimson paper that covered the walls a little gem of landscape, a sweet face, or a group full of character, carried you away in thought, bringing before you dreary coast scenes on the storm-washed shore of Maine, or the peaceful Isle of Wight; winter views, also, from the pencil of celebrated artists, in which gusts and eddies of snow blinded the eyes of the wagoner toiling up the lonely road, covering every twig of hemlock and pine with pearl and ermine. In others the moon shone, showing the bare branches of trees spreading over the roof of the house, from the window of which a cheering light shown brightly over the snow. There fine engravings, a well-filled book case, two or three statuettes, an easy chair near the cosiest of grates, over which was laid the very suit he had admired at one of the down-town clothing houses—a silky granite cassimere, with stylish rolling collar and newest scarf, and by it a brown Melton overcoat, fitting perfectly, easy and elegant. Mamma must have laid them there when her boy slept, as a happy surprise that bright morning. In the bellows pocket was a portemonnaie, with a twenty dollar goldpiece and a note from papa, "My dear son Frederick, with your father's best love, and his wish that the coming year may be the most useful, and therefore the best of your life." Below were the words, "Freely ye have received, and freely give." The beauty of the gifts, the words of the loving, and the divine command, coming in the first freshness of that morning touched his heart.

His father and mother had always sought to throw round him all that was cheerful and beautiful, and at fifteen years few had seen so little of the sharp, the really sad side of life as he. We must all come in contact with it some time, and the way we deal with it will determine much of our character and usefulness. We should be roused by the sight to a knowledge of the great end and object of life—useful service. Too often we pass by on the other side, avoiding what should call out sympathy.

Frederick's father determined that all this Christmas should not be a vision of unmingled happiness, and after breakfast called him to ride with him to a back street in a poor part of the city. How the narrow streets—alleys really—contrasted with the spaciousness of Broad street, the darkness of these little rooms, so closely overshadowed by the neighboring walls, with the lightness which came from that open garden, with its statues, evergreens and summer fountain. Into one of these small houses, and up a pair of narrow stairs, he followed Mr. Lindsay. The little room was almost filled with the bed, stand, stove, bureau and chairs. Two little windows looked into the alley below, or rather into opposite windows. On the sill of one of the windows a board was nailed, covered with pots, in which grew some cinnamon geraniums, a drooping vine, and a chrysanthemum, now faded; a few wood prints cut from newspapers were pinned to the wall, and on the stand were a few books, bottles of medicine and a candlestick. The only cheerful thing was the fire in the little stove. On the bed was a boy of Frederick's own age; much older in the face however, for there were lines of care and pain on the brow and round the mouth. Only his head and arms moved; his lower limbs had been paralyzed for years. He put out his hand to grasp Frederick's and his bright eyes beamed at the sight of the handsome lad in his elegant outfit, for Paul had a keener love for beauty than Fred, who had had it round him all his life. Mostly those who came to see Paul were old people, men and women. Boys of his own age, light-hearted and happy, avoided that sick room and patient sufferer; and company of this kind the poor boy craved. "Paul has been crippled in this way eight years, Frederick," said Mr. Lindsay, sadly; "he needs all the cheerfulness you can bring him." In his own circle of friends Fred had a kind, winning way that made him very popular. Paul soon felt its charm as he listened eagerly to stories of that outside world of which he knew little, and in which he took no part.

When Mr. Lindsay looked at his watch and said he must go, what keen disappointment passed over Paul's wan face. It was so seldom he had a treat of the kind, and in his whole life he had never seen any boy so pleasant as this new, bright acquaintance of an hour. Yet what could he offer of cheer or attraction to one like Fred, to whom all life must be full of sunshine? He could judge by the elegance of his clothes that he must live in a world which to Paul would seem like fairy land. The bright happy look went out of his eyes. His mother had rarely ever seen it there in those long years of pain, and there was a feeling of bitterness in her heart now, as she looked at Frederick, in his healthful beauty, with life all bright before him, and contrasted his probable future with that of her own suffering Paul.

"Will you ever come again?" asked Paul, doubtfully, his sensitive mouth quivering as he spoke. He did not like to show how very much he longed for his company, when he was not sure that it was enjoyed by his more favored friend.

"Indeed I shall, and very soon to spend a whole afternoon," answered Fred, heartily. Paul's eyes brightened again, and his mother choked down the rising bitterness, and felt her aching heart warm towards Fred. It is thus that the rich should draw to them the hearts of the poor.

"Papa," said Fred, as they rode home together, "would you mind much if I were to go and see Paul for two hours this afternoon? You know I will be home after that, and I would like to take him some things. Besides, you know, I should like to make some one happy on Christmas Day."

"I should be very glad to have you go," said Mr. Lindsay. "I never saw Paul's face wear that radiant look before. To be able to call out the love of any human being, is a gift; one which God means us to use for good. Every power, talent, influence, or endowment; even bright eyes, winning faces and manners, are given us that we may be more useful."

When Frederick and his father were gone, Paul lay quite still for awhile, thinking over that morning's brief happiness. What a happy world there was, into which he had never penetrated. But if he had been well, he never would have known Fred. Their paths lay too far apart. They would never have met.

Then he began to wonder when he would come again. And by and by, having lain awake the night before, thinking sadly of his own lonely lot, he fell asleep. Mrs. Warner left him, to answer a low knock at the door, finding a servant there with a warm Christmas dinner, abundant enough to last the widow and her son for several days, and a note in Fred's boyish hand.

"Dear Paul, I want to give you as happy a Christmas as I can, so I am coming to spend two hours with you this afternoon. I shall bring some books and games, and we will have a good time. Your friend, Frederick Lindsay."

Long after that, when Paul's suffering life was closed, and his mother with blinded eyes looked over his few things, trying to think of the eternal joy into which he had entered, yet longing with an agony of pain to clasp him in her arms once more, she found in a memorandum book this bit of Fred's writing, thus marked by Paul: "Dear Fred's first note."—Presbyterian Journal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

From $400 to a University.

So many munificent private charities distinguish this age that it seems as if Providence had chosen certain men of money-making aptitude to carry out its beneficent designs.

They toil for years, raking gold from a thousand streams. Then they transfer their accumulations into some philanthropic or educational channel, and, for centuries minister to mind and body.

These gold-rakers may be conscious or unconscious of the divinity which shapes their ends. That matters not, save to themselves, but they, nevertheless, execute the divine purpose.

One of these chosen ones was Johns Hopkins, of Baltimore. His contribution to the catalogue of munificent charities was the university and the hospital which bear his name.

He was brought up on a Maryland farm, associated with a rare deed of philanthropy. On it Johns' grandfather had, before the Revolution, emancipated one hundred slaves. After seven years of hard labor in a grocery store Johns began his business career, at twenty-four, with a capital of four hundred dollars.

He had, however, in addition to this sum, that which some young men neglect to consider ready assets but which old merchants view as substantial capital—experience gained by hard service and an aptitude for business. When he died, fifty-four years after he opened his little store, he was worth several millions of dollars, and every cent of it was made honestly.

One of the peculiarities of the young grocer is worthy the consideration of those beginning a business life. He was willing to start in a small way. Keeping within the limits of his capital and credit, he opened a small store, put in it a small stock, and spread out on the counter many samples.

If a customer desired two bags of coffee instead of the one Johns had in stock, he hurried off to the importers, and in a few minutes the bag was in the store.

What he bought was always paid for on the day the bill was due. He gained a reputation for promptness and for that square dealing which never evades the plain sense of a bargain.

Another peculiarity, one which caused him to be misunderstood, was that he habitually declined to sign subscription papers for charitable objects. His friends, even, did not know that he was saving his money for a special purpose, then incubating in his mind.

"My money is not intended for you," was his answer, when asked to give money to advance other people's plans. "It is not mine. I did not make it. It merely rolled up into my hands, and I know what for. I must keep to my own work."

Yet Johns Hopkins gave away a good deal of money to those whom he thought would use it wisely. He frequently forgave a debt, or advanced capital, or pointed out a good investment to deserving men.

A poor widow was trying to make a living. Johns Hopkins was one of five persons who loaned her one hundred dollars each to stock a small shop. Two years afterward the loan was returned with interest, and four of the five lenders accepted their shares. Johns Hopkins refused his, saying: "I don't want it. Keep it and lend it again in the same way."

After his death an engraved likeness of the rich man was found hung in many counting-rooms. In each case it hung there because Johns Hopkins had done the firm some signal service.

Shortly before his death he divided eight hundred thousand dollars equally among sixteen nephews and nieces. "Whatsoever is more than this cometh of evil," he said. His beginning life with a capital of four hundred dollars emphasized the apothegm.

With the rest of his fortune he fulfilled the destiny under whose shadow he had toiled.

That destiny was to found a university, a hospital and a colored orphan asylum. The university provides free scholarships for young men from Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina. The hospital, connected with which is a training school for nurses, cares for the wealthy and the poor of the black and the white. The asylum is for destitute orphan colored children, who will be provided for until they reach a self-supporting age, when they are to be apprenticed to some trade.—Youth's Companion.

The Floating of a Loan.

The first step taken when a foreign state—let us say Egypt, for example's sake—has applied to some well-known financial house whose name is a power of itself, is the drawing up of a secret "contract" between the Government wanting the money and the London backers, who will on the faith of the anticipated success of the loan give advances on terms profitable to themselves. A prospectus is then made ready by some competent firm of London solicitors, setting forth in as glowing terms as possible the advantages which will accrue to investors if they lend their money in return for the bonds of the said foreign government. Copies of this prospectus are forwarded several days in advance to an advertising firm having wide connections, which undertakes to do the advertising for a consideration. But these agents in London do a great deal more than the advertising. Most of them keep their "literary man," whose business it is to write a series of paragraphs which set forth the good points of the forthcoming loan, and which paragraphs are dispatched to the city editor, together with the advertisement, usually late in the afternoon of the day preceding the date of issue of the loan. The prospectus duly appears next morning in the newspapers, and simultaneously in the city article there appear those commendatory notices, either as furnished, or re-written by the city editor or his clerk upon their model. So far, then, the means for creating the condition of a favorable reception for the loan have been provided. The manipulations of the outside world have been provided for, and now the manipulations commence inside the Stock Exchange. Two or more "jobbers" who deal in the particular market the loan is connected with—foreign, American or London—are secretly employed by the "contractors" to bid for the bonds 1 to 1½ premium; that is £1 or £1 10s. above the price at which the loan is nominally issued—the price, that is, named in the prospectus. The fact of this being done superinduces the belief that these new bonds must be a valuable security, seeing that habitual dealers on the Stock Exchange have already offered more than the government which is responsible for them itself asked for. Outsiders are induced to apply to the contractors for a number of the bonds, in the expectation of securing the premium by afterward selling at the higher price already quoted in the market. Thus, by the help and with the co-operation of stockbrokers and "jobbers," the loan is gradually worked off upon the public; and British investors and capitalists give their hard-won earnings to construct some impracticable railway in the wilds of South America, to feed the cravings of semi-barbarous Oriental monarchs for Western luxuries, or to do something still more wasteful. The vast sums that have been lost in foreign loans of late years show that this is no exaggerated picture, though of course many of their number are perfectly legitimate, and the proceeds may be applied to useful purposes.—Scottish American Journal.

Costume of an Eastern Bride.—Jer. ii: 32.

Van Lennep, describing present day Oriental costumes, says:

"The costume of the bride is deemed a matter of the highest importance, since much may depend upon the effect produced by the first sight of her, which her husband is supposed to obtain. She sometimes wears the very bridal suit which her mother wore before her, and, in some instances, that of her mother-in-law, but usually a new outlay is made for the occasion at the expense of the bridegroom. The friends of the bride's family take this opportunity to show their good will by sending presents, which, with the rest of the trosseau, are exhibited in a room set apart for the purpose during the week preceding the wedding. Orientals are celebrated for their love of display and magnificence, and some of the costumes prepared for such occasions are rich and gorgeous beyond expression. The following description of a bridal entary or wedding robe was given us by an Oriental tailor who had often seen, as well as assisted in making, such a dress. It should measure six yards from the shoulder to the end of the train, and the long sleeves must sweep the floor. One of the finest he described was of rose-colored silk: It was spread out upon a carpeted floor, while seven women skilled in embroidery worked upon one side of the long breadths and seven upon the other side, under the direction of an embroiderer-in-chief of their own sex, who designed the work and appointed to each one her work. The first layers of embroidery with gold thread had already been wrought by men, and the women were now putting on the finishing touches by sewing on golden spangles and pearls. The sum paid to the directress alone for superintending the needle work on this single robe was five hundred dollars, while the charge for the work done by her subordinates was two thousand five hundred dollars. In speaking of it she said, in a depreciating tone, 'Ten years ago I used to make such dresses for the Sultan's slaves, and now he has grown so economical that I make them only for his wives.' The entire cost of the robe, materials and all, was estimated at ten thousand dollars. Indeed these garments are often priceless, for they are embroidered in diamonds and other precious stones in clusters or bouquets, the buttons from the throat to the waist and sleeves consisting of diamond 'solitaires.' These are worn, not by princely and royal personages alone but also by the wives and daughters of grandees and bankers in Constantinople, Cairo, Damascus and all the chief cities of the empire."

SECULAR NEWS.

We learn that the Orphan's Friend will make its appearance sometime early in January.—Torchlight.

Gen. R. B. Vance has presented to Congress a petition of citizens of Western North Carolina that the place of holding the United States District Court be changed from Statesville to Morganton, N. C. Referred to Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. J. P. Caldwell, who has presided over the editorial columns of the Charlotte Observer, and Mr. J. L. Chambers, local editor of the same paper, have purchased the Statesville Landmark and will transfer their labors to its columns. These gentlemen have made their mark as editors of the Observer and will doubtless achieve pronuiery success in their new enterprise. Our good wishes go with them.

The great tunnel through the Blue Ridge has been finished, and a train carrying the Governor and the State Board went through, and the whistle could be heard plainly in Asheville. The barrier has been safely penetrated, and the people of North Carolina breathe freer.—Southern Home.

Gen. Grant has completed his tour. He arrived in Philadelphia on the 16th inst. and was received with the most demonstrative enthusiasm. It is estimated that there were 30,000 persons in the line of procession, including a military force of about 7,000, and an equal number from the Grand Army of the Republic. At night the city was brilliantly illuminated.

The Bank of Wilmington, N. C., has made a final settlement of its financial affairs, and the surplus remaining will be distributed among its stockholders to the extent of thirty-five cents per share, payable on application to Col. Wm. L. Smith, trustee. This, although a small amount, will greatly relieve the stockholders from any future responsibility. This is the only bank in North Carolina doing business during the war that has made any returns to its stockholders.—Wilmington Star.

Last week Matthew Jones of Gates county, aged 65 years, married his fifth wife, a young girl aged 16 years, his fourth wife being dead only three weeks on the day of his marriage.—Elizabeth City Economist.

The lumber for the new hotel which will be built at Morehead City next summer, to take the place of the wrecked Atlantic, is now being sawed at Kinston. It is contemplated to make the hotel a winter as well as a summer resort, and make it headquarters for the Northern hunters to pass the winter.—Raleigh Observer.

The Charlotte Chamber of Commerce gave an elegant entertainment last Friday night to the gentlemen who have located in our midst for the establishment of mining and various other industries. Speeches were made by a number of gentlemen, and a most generous and cordial welcome given to men who are not dead beats, to settle among us.—Southern Home.

Bogus Certificates.

It is no vile drugged stuff, pretending to be made of wonderful foreign roots, barks, &c., and puffed up by long bogus certificates of pretended miraculous cures, but a simple, pure, effective medicine, made of well known, valuable remedies, that furnishes its own certificate by its cures. We refer to Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See "Truths" and "Proverbs," in another column.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.
An Enlarged View of the Pad.
Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs
Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago, Ill

45 Years Before the Public.
THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
CELEBRATED
LIVER PILLS,
FOR THE CURE OF
Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,
DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.
Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.
The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.
Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

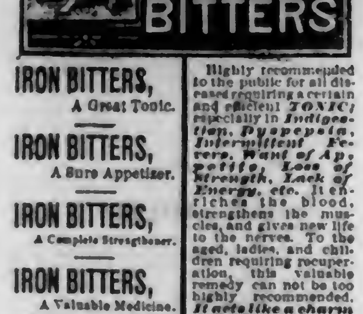
Benson's Capcine
POROUS PLASTER
Celebrated the World Over.

The manufacturers were awarded the highest and only medal given rubber plasters, at both the Centennial and Paris Expositions.

FAR SUPERIOR TO

common porous plasters, liniments, the so-called electrical appliances, &c. It is the best known remedy for Lame and Weak Back, rheumatism, Female Weakness, Sciatica, Lumbago, Diseased Kidneys, Spinal Complaints and all ills for which porous plasters are used. Ask your druggist for Benson's Capcine Plaster, and see that you get nothing else. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25 cents.

Mailed on receipt of price by SEABURY & JOHNSON, 21 Platt Street, New York dec21-1m



IRON BITTERS, A Great Tonic.
IRON BITTERS, A Sure Appetizer.
IRON BITTERS, A Complete Strengthener.
IRON BITTERS, A Valuable Medicine.
IRON BITTERS, Not Sold as a Beverage.
IRON BITTERS, For Delicate Females.

Highly recommended to the public for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient TONIC; especially in Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Intermittent Fevers, Want of Appetite, Loss of Strength, Lack of Energy, etc. It enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. To the aged, ladies, and children requiring recuperation, this valuable remedy can not be too highly recommended. It acts like a charm on the digestive organs. A teaspoonful before meals will remove all dyspeptic symptoms.

TRY IT.

Sold by all Druggists.
THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO.
BALTIMORE, Md.

dec 10 622-1y-eow

NEWEST
SABBATH SCHOOL MUSIC BOOKS
60,000 Already Sold.
HEAVENLY CAROLS
By Rev. I. Baltzell and Rev. E. S. Lorenz.

Including an improved Elementary and Practical Department on the Theory of Music, by J. H. Kurzenknabe. 176 pages Board cover. Single copies, by mail, 35 cents. Per dozen, by mail, $4. Per dozen, by express, $3 60.

GOLDEN SONGS,
For the Sabbath School.
NO BETTER BOOK IN MARKET.
150,000 Sold.
By Rev. I. Baltzell.

Including an Elementary and Practical Department on the Theory of Music, by J. H. Kurzenknabe. 176 Pages. Board Cover. Single copies, by mail, 35 cents. Per dozen, by express, $3 60 or $4 per dozen by mail, postage paid. Address
W. J. SHUEY, Dayton, Ohio.
dec 17 623-4t

ORGANS New 7-stop Organ, $46. New 13-stop Organ, only $68. 16 days' trial. Catalogue free. U. S. PIANO CO., 163 Bleecker st., N. Y.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.
1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

An Elegant Holiday Present.—A Gilt Bound Autograph Album, with 48 beautifully engraved pages and 47 select quotations, all for 15c post-paid. Stamps taken. Agents wanted. RAY & CO. West Haven, Ct.
nov 19 619-4t eow

SAWING THE LOG.

THE GREAT SUCCESS OF THIS WONDERFUL IMPROVED Labor Saving RIDING SAW MACHINE is fully demonstrated by the number in use and the present demand for them. It saws Logs of any size. One man can saw more logs or cord wood in one day and easier than two men can the old way. It will saw a two foot log in three minutes. Every Farmer needs one. Township agents wanted. Send for Illustrated Circular and Terms.
Address W. W. BOSTWICK & CO., 178 Elm St., Cincinnati, O.
oct 29 616-4teow

PRIZE MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

MAKE and SAVE MONEY BY USING THE CELEBRATED MODEL PRINTING PRESS

Any smart boy can readily manage it and do hundreds of dollars worth of work every year. It will save BUSINESS MEN all their printing bills. Presses for Business Printing $6 to $27. Card Presses as low as $3. Rotary foot and steam power presses $100 to $160. 7,000 now in use. Send 10 cents for handsome illustrated 124-page Instruction and Specimen Book, entitled and copy of MODEL PRINTER'S GUIDE, with all the particulars. J. W. DAUGHADAY & CO., Inventors and Manufacturers, 723 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.
HOW TO PRINT
"The Model Press surpasses anything we ever expected. It has about paid for itself in two weeks.—BENSON & McGILL, Hartwell, Ga." "I would not take $100 and be without the Model Press. It has netted me in less than three months over $200.—J. H. STARR, Hartford, Conn." "No investment will pay as well as a Model Press. In my own business I have saved about $100 a year by its use.—B. J. BICKNELL, Memphis, Tenn."
nov 5 617-4teow

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,
MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,
1879—'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's-day, into two Terms.

The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.

There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:

1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.

A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.

Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.

Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.

For Catalogues and other information apply to
REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D., President.
jan 16-532-

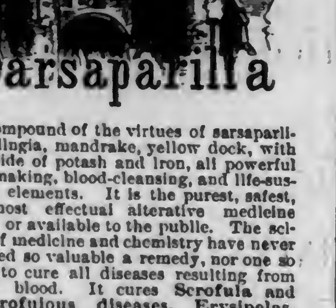
Customers Wanted.

We are now receiving our Fall stock of

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, BOOTS, SHOES, Groceries, Hardware, COTTON BAGGING, TIES, &c.,

All of which we are offering low.

Highest cash prices paid for COTTON, NAVAL STORES, and all kinds of country produce.
BRYAN & CO., Jonesboro, N. C.



Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ring-worm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions, promotes energy and strength, restores and preserves health, and infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial.

It is folly to experiment with the numerous low-priced mixtures, of cheap materials, and without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been widely used for forty years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. DR. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.
nov 19 619-13t

ALTAFFER & PRICE
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Woodwork and Builder's Hardware.

We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.

Church Windows Doors Pew Ends

CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles.

Factory foot of Walnut St
Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross } Wilmington, N. C. apl 16 588-1y

CHEESE,
200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,
For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL
HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF
Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish
Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,
COTTON BAGGING and TIES.

We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.

HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
68-1y

BUY THE BEST.

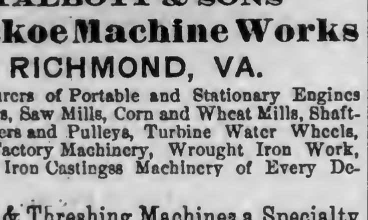
WE HAVE now on hand finished.
35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.

Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.

Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.
A. A. McKETHAN & SONS, Fayetteville, N. C.
Oct. 21. 354-t

TO THE TRADE
—AT—
Low Prices.

400 Boxes D. S. and SMOKED SIDES,
1000 Bdls GRIP TIES,
2000 Bdls ACME TIES,
1000 Bdls PIECED TIES,
1000 Whole and Half Rolls BAGGING,
500 Kegs NAILS,
300 Bales HAY,
5000 Bush CORN,
250 Bbls SUGARS,
250 Bags COFFEE,
1000 Bbls FLOUR, following brands: La Rose, Blanche, Jack Frost, Plant's Extra, Paragon, Princess, &c.
WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.



TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.

Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings Machinery of Every Description.

Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.

TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER.
The Invention of the Age.

It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.

JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.
JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS, PUBLISHERS,
AND
BOOK BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.

GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.

We are prepared to execute in the very best style,
ALL KINDS OF
JOB PRINTING
SUCH AS

Business Cards,	Statements,	Catalogues,
Visiting Cards,	Handbills,	Manifests,
Wedding Cards,	Posters,	Bills Lading,
Show Cards,	Notices,	Receipts,
Bill Heads,	Checks,	Labels,
Letter Heads,	Notes,	Tags,
Note Heads,	Drafts,	Envelopes,
Account Sales,	School Circulars,	Pamphlets,

and in fact, every description of
RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING
AT THE
LOWEST HARD TIMES PRICES.

We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed. Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS WANTED For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1,018 Pages, 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & Co., 66 N. 4th St., Phil'a., Pa.
oct 15 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO — New Organs 13 Stops, 3 set Golden Tongue Reeds, 5 Oct's, 2 Knee Swells, Walnut Case, warnt'd 6 years, Stool & Book $98. New Pianos, Stool, Cover & Book, $143 to $255. Before you buy be sure to write me. Illustrated Newspaper sent Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.
oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.
CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
63 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.
SAMPLES SENT FREE!
Also, to their
DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.

Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.

All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 12-1y

McMILLAN BROS.
MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN
SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS

15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS
FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.
Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes, Still Doors & Grate bars

As we have four Copper-smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only

Regular and Reliable Establishment

where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing
D. G. McMILLAN, Supt. Fayetteville, N. C.
feb 12

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.
HAVE FOR SALE.

2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.
Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.
Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.
Nov. 19 468-1y

ADRIAN & VOLLERS
CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present,

SMOKED BACON,
in hogsheads and boxes,
HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKGS.
Breakfast Strips,
Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,
SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,
Molasses and Syrup
OF ALL KINDS.
FLOUR of all Qualities,
and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries.
nov 19 551-1m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
36 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md.
Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c.
mch 28 481-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES
OF THE
GENERAL ASSEMBLY,
OF THE
Presbyterian Church in the United States.

THE CLERKS.

Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D., Richmond, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.

President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq., Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md.

PUBLICATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va.
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION.

Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D.D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn.

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January.
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September.
6. Education—First Sabbath in November.

WE KEEP
PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR, FAIRBANK'S LARD,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FINE N. O. SYRUP,
And other Standard articles.
Orders solicited.
HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents. Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XII—No 625.] WILMINGTON, DECEMBER 31, 1879. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXII—No. 1,245.

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

One copy one year, in advance.....$2 65
If payment be delayed six months.....3 15
One copy six months, in advance.....1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each New subscriber of $2 65.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procurred without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

[ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.]

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE LATE SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

Mr. Editor: Your correspondent S. H. C. (issue of Dec. 10) gave an interesting account of the late meeting of the Synod of South Carolina, and of the discussion there had concerning a constitutional question as to certain deliverances in thesi. Dr. Girardeau (whom your correspondent rightly describes as "an orator in the highest sense of the word, no mere word painter but a reasoner as well") proposed for the adoption of the Synod an overture to the Assembly requesting it to modify its last deliverance touching worldly amusements, so as to avoid what he held to be a serious error as to its in thesi deliverances. It is much to be regretted that so many members of the body—one-half nearly—took their departure before the question was settled. The eloquent orator, who is as universally and deservedly beloved by his brethren as he is gifted with intellect and with speech, carried his point, but only by a vote of 36 to 17 with 8 non liquets, several of these last being of the most sober thinkers of the body. The question was on the adoption of the overture, and there were 25 in the depleted Synod who could not agree to it, notwithstanding the two hours and more of earnest advocacy devoted to it by this most popular, able and influential leader. As to the 36 who agreed to it, one might safely conclude that some of them voted for the paper without having the very fullest or completest comprehension of the nice constitutional question it involved, believing confidently, as was quite natural, that their trusted and admired friend and teacher could not mislead them. Then again, one member of the Synod, having published that the object was to have the Assembly reaffirm its former decision that dancing is a sin, I am led to suppose also that this impression prevailed with several, and that it accounts for more than one of the votes given. Certainly, however, this was an error. The distinguished leader never works by indirection. That is not his style. Upon no such questions as whether dancing is or is not a sin, did Dr. G. enter at all, nor could he have sought in this way to gain a condemnation of it by the Assembly. But some, it would seem, hoped for such a result to grow out of the overture and therefore voted for it. Be this as it may, Dr. Girardeau discussed simply the constitutional point which your correspondent has stated with adequate exactness, viz: whether the Assembly has not the right "not to make laws but to declare what is law, and to declare it authoritatively as well by a deliverance in thesi as by a judicial decision." His position, if I understood him, was that the deliverance in thesi has the very same binding force and is to be used in the same way as the judicial decision. It is law to be enforced by judicial process. There is no difference between these two kinds of decision by our highest court. This, if I mistake not, and so your correspondent seems also to have supposed, was the position of the eloquent pleader. Whether he would have actually said that the Louisville Assembly ought to have answered the Atlanta Presbytery's question affirmatively instead of negatively, declaring that the deliverances of 1865, 1869 and 1877 are to be enforced as law by judicial process, it is not for me to decide. Dr. Adger propounded that very question to him but an interruption occurred and the question was not answered. But this much appears to be certain, viz: that Dr. G. maintained that the Louisville Assembly, in adopting Dr. Peck's paper, declared that the only deliverances of the body which have any binding force are its judicial decisions while all the others have but advisory force like those of a council amongst the Congregationalists.

I understand Dr. Adger to deny that this was a fair interpretation of the Assembly's words. He insisted that the question from Atlanta was a specific one and the answer not less specific and related only to the three differences. This, I am forced to believe, is a ground too narrow, and that it cannot be deliberately maintained with success. Your correspondent is certainly correct in the more general statement that the Assembly did "unquestionably deny as a proposition that its in thesi deliverances can have the force of law." But at the same time Dr. Adger was clearly right in affirming which was the more important point, that the inference drawn from the Assembly's words was not a just one. That inference certainly was that the Assembly denied that its deliverances in thesi have any binding force at all, or any more force than the advice of a Congregationalist council. Now, what Assembly could ever say, what Presbyterian ever did hold that any deliverances of your highest court can be without binding force and are to be considered mere advice? This was a man of straw set up by Dr. Girardeau against which, after he had set it up, he proceeded to level all his artillery for two mortal hours, and which, of course, he completely demolished. His speech was both able and eloquent, and, what is more, his positions, for the most part, were cordially accepted, no doubt by all those who voted against his paper, their chief objection to it being that they deemed it irrelevant to any utterance of the Louisville Assembly.

The question put to the late Assembly was whether the three deliverances were to be enforced as law by judicial process. These were the emphatic words. The question was certainly precise, and the answer not less so. It was in the negative, and three reasons were given for this answer: The first because these deliverances do not require judicial procession expressly, and could not, without violating the spirit of our law; the second, because none of them were made in a strictly judicial capacity but were deliverances in thesi, and therefore only didactic, advisory and monitory; the third because the Assembly has no power to issue orders to institute process except in one of the four ways provided for bringing cases before it. These, as it must appear, I think, to your readers generally, were good reasons why the Assembly should declare that these deliverances were not to be enforced as law by judicial process, but they justify no man in saying that that high court claimed for any of its deliverances a mere advisory influence. It was hardly fair for the distinguished speaker to single out that one word "advisory" and ring the changes on it, passing over the two accompanying words "didatic and monitory." And so it was hardly fair to compare the Louisville Assembly to a Congregationalist or a New School body. Our late Assembly, as Dr. Adger pointed out, did exercise its grand didatic and monetary power, uttering a solemn testimony against the great and growing evil of worldly conformities. It lifted no voice against even the sternest discipline judged to be necessary in such cases by the lowest courts. It claimed for even the individual church officer the rights of "inspection, inquest, remonstrance, rebuke and private admonition." Not one of these belongs to even a council, much less an individual officer, among the Congregationalists. The comparison made was therefore invidious, and for one I, as a member of the Synod, regret that it should have adopted a paper in which any such comparison of the Assembly is to go before that body at Charleston. The Assembly has been invited to come to South Carolina, and I am sorry the Synod of South Carolina is to give it any such compliments as this.

The General Assembly certainly has the right to declare what is law, and to declare it as authoritatively by a deliverance in thesi as by a judicial decision, and yet these two kinds of decision have not the same sort of binding force, and are not to be used in the same way. In ecclesiastical, as in civil courts, there is a great and manifest difference in the character and use of deliverances in thesi and judicial decisions of particular cases. Our courts of law would be no bulwarks of liberty if this difference were not jealously guarded and constantly insisted on. And it will be a sad day for our Church if ever a deliverance by a mere accidental majority of votes in our Assembly is to be acknowledged as having the very same force and to be capable of the very same applications with a strictly judicial decision; and, if ever such a mere expression of abstract and general opinion is to be enforced as law by judicial process, Presbyterians love law and order, but they are, and ever have been, lovers also of liberty and defenders of the right of private judgment. We are not to be tried except in accordance with the strict provisions of our Church's constitution, and these get all their force and power through being derived from the very Word of God.

A judicial decision binds by deciding authoritively a particular case. Beyond that circumstance it binds only as all the other deliverances of our Church courts bind, and that is whenever they are, and because they are, proper and true interpretations of God's Word.

Now, if I remember rightly, it was one of the chief objections of Dr. Girardeau to the Louisville deliverance that it made a difference between these two kinds of decisions. But a difference there certainly is. Dr. G. evidently interprets the Assembly as signifying that the judicial decision is the binding one, but the other only advisory. The design, he supposes, was to belittle the one sort while magnifying the other. But no such design can be ascribed to our highest court. No necessity lay upon it to honor one sort and to dishonor another sort of its decisions. All it had to do at Louisville, and all it did, was to signify that the two sorts of decision in question are different in nature and to be used differently.

Your readers, I hope, Mr. Editor, will not count me tedious. The question is one which must interest us all. Synods and councils may err and have often erred. We all have the right, and it may be the duty, of sitting in judgment on their judgments.

Rock Hill.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

PRESBYTERIANISM DEFENDED.

In some "revivals" of religion the kind of truth that is needful to produce a genuine conviction of sin, is withheld, except when it is partially and incidentally conveyed in the prayers that are offered, and error is substituted in its place. Sinners are not shown by the light of God's Word the depth of the depravity of their hearts. They are not taught that their hearts are by nature no more capable of producing the good fruits of faith and repentance than an evil tree is capable of producing good fruit; that by reason of the desperate wickedness of their hearts they will never believe and repent, unless God, in His mercy, convert them by the putting forth of an almighty power, which, in His sovereignty, He may give or withhold as he pleases. By those who do not believe this humbling doctrine, and by some who do, it is thought that to tell a sinner of his utter helplessness after such a style as that—that is, to tell him, without any concealment, HOW LOST he is,—would discourage him from seeking the salvation of his soul. (They are afraid that God either cannot or will not make alive a dead sinner, unless that sinner renders God the needed assistance.) And the sinner by nature hates such a soul humbling doctrine. Man cannot convince him of its truth. He can be convinced of it only by the Holy Spirit.

On the other hand, he is told that he can repent and believe with the power God has already given to all men, and that if he will do so then God will save him. But God does not convert the man who has converted himself. And the reason why any are converted under such teaching is because God is greater than man, and counteracts the influence of the error, and by means of the truth makes some sinners see their truly lost condition. When religious teachers probe slightly the wounds of sin, and slightly heal them, they may expect to see a speedy breaking out of old sores.

Again. The impression made upon an anxious sinner that he is a "penitent" while he is confessedly still an unbeliever, is a false impression, and eminently calculated to induce a spurious conversion. There never was an unbelieving sinner who was truly penitent for his sins. The anxious sinner upon whom such a false impression is made thinks better of himself than he ought to think, and is on the direct road to a false profession of religion, from which road God, in his mercy, may turn him. Being deceived in the matter of repentance, he is likely to be deceived in the matter of his faith. (Mr. John Wesley, after describing the "repentance not to be repented of," says to the sinner who has exercised it, "Thou art not far from the Kingdom of God. One step more, and thou shalt enter in. Thou dost repent. Now believes the Gospel." See his "Sermons on Several Occasions," vol. i, sermon vii.

To Presbyterian readers I need not go into an argument to prove that if a man is penitent for his sins they are all forgiven, and that a forgiven sinner cannot be an unbelieving sinner: that no sinner ever repented without believing, nor believed without repenting. If an anxious, yet still an unbelieving sinner, who is told that he is penitent for sin, becomes truly converted, it is because he believed, not the human testimony, but the testimony of the Holy Spirit, who impressed upon his mind the truth that he had not repented, and that he must repent or perish.

Sometimes an anxious sinner, surrounded by a number of mourning and rejoicing souls, is told by his spiritual adviser that he has "got religion" and that it is his duty to rejoice in the Lord. In every such case the adviser presumes to take the place of the Holy Spirit and to inform the sinner of the state of his heart in the sight of God. How fearfully dangerous is such tampering with an immortal soul!

A certain celebrated female preacher, who, during a certain revival of religion, had been instrumental in the professed conversion of more than a hundred sinners, after a short conversation with a certain man, said to him, "Now you are all right; get up and shout." He believed her statement, and, as a natural consequence, followed her advice with great alacrity and joy of heart. Such "instruction" cannot be too severely condemned. That woman was guilty of the presumption of assuming the prerogatives of God, who alone can know the heart. The man believed upon human testimony that he was "all right"—that is, that his sins were forgiven. If, in that fearful crisis of his soul, his informant made a mistake, then he believed a lie; and if he should never be undeceived, that woman will be Satan's instrument in his eternal damnation.

There is reason to believe that "instruction" of this kind is often given especially when new converts are employed to "instruct" the anxious. Is it any wonder that Presbyterian parents refuse to suffer their children to be subjected to the dangers attending such instruction?

Now it is evident that when, in a "revival" of religion, such manners are used and such instructions are given as I have alluded to, there will be a greater number of spurious conversions than when the Word of God alone is relied on as the Spirit's agency for the conviction and conversion of sinners.

Several years ago a prominent minister of the Gospel in North Carolina stated it as his belief and the result of close observation that not more than one in ten of the professed converts in the Church to which he belonged gave evidence of a genuine change of heart. Mr. John Wesley suggests the doubt whether out of fifty thousand Methodists in his day, five hundred were genuine Christians, and says that those who were not, were "two-fold more the children of hell than ever they were before." (See his sermon 120, vol. ii.) One Christian out of a hundred professed converts! I think Mr. Wesley was mistaken. The proportion of true Christians in his Society must have been much greater than he thought. But suppose the average proportion to be one in ten. "Where are the nine?" By the testimony of Christ, their last state is seven fold worse than the first. (Matthew xii: 43-45.) It is possible, but not probable that they will ever be converted. If their souls are ever again brought under sympathetic religious impressions, they will doubtless take the same path as before, to the same termination—a spurious conversion.

Is it not better to use God's appointed means only, namely, the preaching of truth which, though repugnant to the "carnal mind," the Holy Spirit uses to convert sinners, and thus save one or more, than to save one and make nine seven fold more the children of hell than before, without the seventh part of a probability of their salvation?"

Dr. Archibald Alexander says: "The Church is not always benefitted by what are termed revivals; but sometimes the effects of such commotions are followed by a desolation which resembles the track of the tornado. I have never seen as great insensibility in any people as in those who had been the subjects of violent religious excitement; and I have never seen any sinners so bold and reckless in their impiety as those who had been loud professors, and foremost in the time of revival. If I had time, I might illustrate this remark by a reference to the great revival of the West, which commenced about the close of the year 1800 in the south part of Kentucky, and by which the Presbyterian Church in that region was for many years broken and distracted and prostrated; but I must forbear. When people are much excited their caution and sober judgment are diminished, and when preachers are ardently zealous in revivals people do not suspect them of holding errors, or of entertaining the design of subverting the truth."

P. T. Penick.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

"DON'T WORRY."

It is doubtful if there is philosophy enough in the world, even if it were impartially distributed, to put a stop to worry. Some people would begin to fret, the next day after such a distribution of the antidote, that they hadn't got their share. And then some things are as much stronger than philosophy as blood is thicker than water. Temperament is one of them. Inherited mental traits, or habits that have crystalized into disposition, are more of the same sort. A man who has the elements so mixed within him that he naturally borrows trouble, and crosses bridges before he gets to them, and permits things small or great to fret him, is bound to worry. He may as well attempt to alter his complexion, or change the thickness of his skin, as to stop worrying. The most he can do is to control the expression of his mental state within himself,—and that is often more wearing to him than to give vent to his feelings. Speech is the safety valve for constitional worriers, and they are truly blessed if they have a friend with a willing ear and a buoyant heart on whom their poured-out troubles have no more effect than a summer-shower on a silk umbrella.

To this class of unfortunates it is quite useless, and sometimes little short of impertinence or cruelty, to keep forever saying: "Don't worry." One might as well say to the wind, "Don't moan," or to water exposed to zero weather, "Don't freeze." The only thing to do, is to remove the cause of the worry,—or, if that be impossible, to divert the attention to more pleasant subjects for a time. The worrying of the world is not wholly in vain, it is well to remember. The troubled and perplexed people, other things being equal, often have the foresight to perceive and the prudence to avert troubles over which the care-free and merry-hearted might stumble and fall. Until we get our millennium in something more tangible and universal than spots and splices, it won't do to be too uncharitable toward worry.

But if there ever should be organized a Society for the Prevention of Worry, we think it might find a field for useful and hopeful labor in combating the habit of idle and pointless complaining, and chronic fretfulness, which blights so many homes. It could warn young people to beware of forming the habit. It could encourage the victims of it to stop and count ten before uttering a fretful word as some people have to do to prevent outbreaks of temper. It would teach overwrought mothers and over-active fathers to take more sleep—to breathe a better air—to stop over-loading their stomachs—and thus abolish many of the strictly physical causes of a disagreeable habit of unamiableness. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, in this matter; for the descending steps of the scale are: worry, fret, growl, bite. And when one has reached that depth, philosophy won't save him. Reform has as hopeless a job in tackling him as it has in dealing with an old-back politician. Conversion—the real, old-fashioned conviction of sin, repentance, and a new birth—will alone do the job.—Golden Rule.

THE PRAYER-MEETING.

Time, the hour after tea, on a breezy winter evening. It has grown colder since sundown. The stars glitter like diamonds in the steel-blue sky. The dead leaves drift before the wind. People button up their coats tightly, and walk fast to keep warm. Inside, the house never looked cosier. The fire burns cheerily, and the pleasant sitting-room fairly shines with brightness and comfort.

The sound of a church-bell is heard. Enters Aunt Sophia, with her things on.

"Who is going to prayer-meeting?"

"Not I," says Emily, from the sofa.

"Nor I," responds Eliza, from the piano stool. "Maria and I are just about to try our new duet."

"I suppose I'll have to go," father answers, laying aside his evening paper with an air of resignation, while mother, with a rather reluctant "I suppose I ought," rolls up her fancy-work and goes after her bonnet and shawl.

This scene, or one like it, is not an unusual one. It is enacted often in many homes. The majority of church going people are not fond of attending the weekly prayer-meeting, however loyally they may wend their way thither. It is distinctly duty, in their minds, and as distinctly not pleasure, which urges their steps. Else why are ministers so constantly drumming up their forces to this particular work? Why, when the assembly-room is pleasantly warmed, pleasantly lighted, and comfortably furnished, as it usually is, should it be but thinly filled with guests on the evening? Why should any need urging to go there? When we remember the object of the prayer-meeting, and the character of those who compose it, we should rather wonder why it is that it seems necessary in most churches to remind the members not to neglect it. Surely, an hour spent in united prayer must be so fruitful of spiritual good, so restful to the weary soul, and so helpful to all who are marching heavenward, that none will stay away who can possibly go. The ideal prayer-meeting is very near that land of Beulah described by the almost inspired pen of John Bunyan.

But the real prayer-meeting, with which we are familiar, far too frequently has too little of the heavenly atmosphere about it. Women attend it, devoutly and regularly, and almost invariably they outnumber the men who are, like Abdul, faithful found. Possibly the reason is that women are by nature and training more patient than men with gloom, inconsequence, and religious platitudes, perfunctorily expressed. Far be it from us to criticise all prayer-meetings in this general way. Of some, better things can be written. Unfortunately, too many are, to speak plainly, so insipid and uninteresting—not merely to the unconverted, but to the thinking and cultivated among Christians—that it requires heroism to go to them. One puts down the book which is suggestive and stimulating, and leaves the friends who are sympathetic and congenial, with something like regret, and the conviction that the evening will be given up for no adequate purpose. There are good people to whom the prayer-meeting is a fetich, and who are happy if only there. We do not refer to them, but to those whose time is precious, and who regard all time as a sacred gift from the Father's hand.

To make our prayer-meetings more profitable, is there anything which common sense can suggest?

In the first place, less talk about the Jews and Gentiles, about Abraham and David, and what this apostle and that one did, and more about ourselves and our needs, and Christ's power to help us now, would be a great gain. Everywhere we want Christ. We need to cluster close around Him in our blended gatherings for prayer. In one way, we cannot have too much of the Bible, nor dip too deeply into its old well, but when it is used to introduce vague generalities, pious assertions, and incoherent rhapsodies, which leave out of sight the fact that we are tempted and tried, sinful and weak to-day, the Bible is misused. We have all heard prayers which were scriptural in their phraseology, and yet which violated the whole idea of prayer. They informed the Lord of current events in this world. They introduced the speaker's personal prejudices. They roamed all over the field of missions, of politics, and of literature, but forgot that penitent, tired, famishing souls had come to the throne of grace to be pardoned, rested and fed.

O! how many times do we need to bear in mind the pattern, so simple, so comprehensive, that the Master gave us when He said, "After this manner pray ye," and then repeated, "Our Father who art in heaven!" How much richer than patriarchs and prophets are we, who have been taught that divine prayer from our cradles!

By entering heartily into the spirit of the meeting, singing cheerily, and inciting those who can well do so to take part in the exercises, and, above all, by praying for the meeting at home, we may do something to make it more attractive and profitable.—Christian at Work.

A PRESBYTERIAN TREE.

THE TRUE SUCCESSION.

We published about a month ago an article designed to show the faithfulness of God in giving effect to His declaration that "the promise is to you and your children," and to present, moreover, a refutation of the oft-repeated calumny that the sons of ministers are worse than other boys. We propose in the following family tree to give another practical illustration of what was then stated:

William Smith was born in the county of Gloucester, Va., and settled in Powhatan county (then part of Cumberland) about 1743, having married a lady of the same surname, whose relatives resided near one of Mr. Davies' preaching places in Hanover or New Kent. On a visit to her relatives she first, and not long after on another occasion he, became subjects of grace under Mr. Davies' preaching. He became an elder of the Cumberland church:—then covering in its bounds Cumberland and part of Prince Edward counties. He reared a family of nine children, nearly all of whom became the pious progenitors of other Christian households. His residence, Rontrow, still in the family of the third and fourth generations, became, and for over one hundred years continued to be, the scene of daily family worship—often the home of ministers, and always the place of sojourn for them and other pious residents of Prince Edward and Richmond on their occasional journeys. Five of his children became the ancestors of ministers and ministers' wives to the number of thirty-four.

1. His daughter Anne, married Rev. Drury Lacy. Father and mother (the L's) both died, he in Philadelphia and she at home near Hampden Sidney, each ignorant of the other's death, in 1815, leaving three sons and two daughters, neither of whom were at that time professors of religion. The oldest son, Wm. S. Lacy, on becoming pious entered the ministry, and is still living in Arkansas, nearly ninety years of age. One of his sons is Rev. B. T. Lacy, D. D., of Missouri. His next son, Horace, became a pious physician and an elder. He has left a son in the ministry, Rev. M. L. Lacy, of Lewisburg, W. Va. The youngest son, Rev. Drury Lacy, D. D., of Raleigh, did not become pious till he was over twenty-five years of age. He also has a son in the ministry, Rev. William S. Lacy, Jr., of Fayetteville Presbytery. His oldest daughter married Rev. Davies Hoge, and became the mother of Revs. Drs. Moses D. Hoge and William J. Hoge. Her daughter married Mr. Marquiss, and is the mother of Rev. William H. Marquiss, of Missouri, and of the wife of Rev. George T. Lyle, of Virginia. Mr. Lacy's youngest daughter married Rev. James H. Brooks, and became the mother of Rev. James H. Brooks, D. D., of Missouri.

2. Another daughter of Mr. Smith married Maj. Jas. Morton, of Prince Edward, long known as an Elder. His (Major M.'s) oldest daughter married Rev. J. H. Rice, D. D., but left no children. His oldest son became an Elder. Another daughter married Rev. James Wharey, and became the mother of Rev. Thomas Wharey, D. D., and Rev. James Morton Wharey. Two of the daughters married one Rev. Archibald Currie, and became the mother of Rev. James L. Currie, of North Carolina, and another married Rev. H. G. Hill. Major Morton's third daughter married Mr. James McNutt, of Augusta, and her daughter married Rev. Henry Brown and became the mother of Rev. J. Merrison Brown.

3. The youngest son of William Smith was Josiah Smith, father of the Rev. Dr. B. M. Smith, of Union Theological Seminary, who, as stated in the Central Presbyterian of the 19th ult., has three daughters (grandchildren of Wm. Smith,) who married, respectively, the Rev. P. P. Flournoy, Rev. J. W. Rosebro, and Rev. J. A. Preston. Another son is and Elder and a daughter married an Elder.

4. Mr. S.'s oldest daughter married Mr. Pleasants, and their oldest daughter married Rev. Moses Waddell, D. D., father of Rev. Isaac W. Waddell and Rev. Dr. John N. Waddell, and grandfather of Rev. Geo. Waddell, of Texas.

5. The youngest daughter married Mr. Wm. S. Smith, of Henrico, an Elder, and her daughter became the wife of an Elder, and mother of Rev. H. H. Hawes, and of a daughter who married Rev. E. P. Terhune, D. D.

Such is the genealogy of William Smith's lineal male and female descendants. Such a record is a subject for reflection. We doubt not that when all secrets are revealed the history of the Church will exhibit many similar correspondences between the lines of natural and spiritual descents from the one great spiritual Father Abraham, and "heirs according to the promise." And what a lesson is impressed as to the value of parental faithfulness in the spiritual training of their children. There are few of the "money kings" of this world in the line we have given; but William Smith left to his children and their descendants an inheritance that will prove infinitely precious in the progress of "the ages upon the ages."—Central Presbyterian.

DISCOMFITED.

The sceptical Mr. Bradlaugh was once lecturing in a village in the north of England, and at the close challenged discussion. Who should accept the challenge but an old, bent woman, in the most antiquated attire, who went up to the lecturer and said, "Sir, I have a question to put to you." "Well, my good woman, what is it?" "Ten years ago," she said, "I was left a widow, with eight children utterly unprovided for, and nothing to call my own but this Bible. By its direction, and looking to God for strength, I have been enabled to feed myself and my family. I am now tottering to the grave; but I am perfectly happy, because I look forward to a life of immortality with Jesus in heaven. That's what my religion has done for me. What has your way of thinking done for you?" "Well, my good lady," rejoined the lecturer, "I don't want to disturb your comfort; but—" "O! but that's not the question," interposed the woman; keep to the point, sir. What has your way of thinking done for you?" The infidel endeavored to shirk the matter again, the feeling of the meeting gave vent in uproarious applause, and Mr. Bradlaugh had to go away discomfited by an old woman.—Presbyterian.

GOLD DUST.

Oh, many a shaft at random sent,
Finds aim the archer little meant,
And many a word at random spoken
May soothe or wound a heart that's broken.
—Sir Walter Scott.

Let us take care how we speak of those who have fallen on life's field. Help them up, not heap scorn upon them. We did not see the conflict. We do not know the scars.—John Todd.

The providence which watches over the affairs of men works out of their mistakes, at times, a healthier issue than could have been accomplished by their wisest forethought.—Froude.

When I see a man with a serene countenance it looks like a great leisure that he enjoys, but in reality he sails on no summer's sea. This steady sailing comes of a heavy hand on the tiller.—Thoreau.

Oh hearts of love! Oh souls that turn,
Like sunflowers, to the pure and best,
To you the truth is manifest:
For they the mind of Christ discern
Who lean, like John, upon the breast.

The shortest and surest way to live with honor in the world is to be in reality what we would appear to be; and, if we observe, we shall find that all human virtues increase and strengthen themselves by the practice and experience of them.—Socrates.

He that hath many things to trust to is in suspense which he should take hold of; but where there is but one left, with what greediness will he clasp hold of that. God cuts down worldly props that we may make Him our stay.—Charnock.

Without earnestness no man is ever great, or does really great things. He may be the cleverest of men; he may be brilliant, entertaining, popular; but he will want weight. No soul-moving picture was ever painted that had not in it depth of shadow.—Peter Bayne.

Every day
A little life, a blank to be inscribed
With gentle deeds, such as in after time
Console, rejoice, where'er you turn the leaf
To read them.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

Gleaned from Exchanges:

The rabbi of the Jewish synagogue at Strasburg has become a convert to Christianity.

Rev. Charles Scott gives the following statistics of ministers in Great Britain: Episcopal 25,163, Congregational 5,246, Presbyterian 4,051, Methodist 3,969; total 39,349.

Dr. V. M. White of London publishes statistics to show that Catholicism is declining, relatively, in the United Kingdom. In 1841 the Catholics formed 27 per centum of the population; now their proportion is 18 per centum. He thinks, however, that the political influence of the Church of Rome has increased.

An Old Catholic priest, who recently made a tour through Eastern and Central France, reports that he was astounded at the evidence of a change in the religious sentiment since he was a priest in France. Everywhere the people declared they were ready to throw off Ultramontanism and organize Old Catholic communities.

The Samoan Islands have been entirely Christianized. Out of a population of about 40,000 some 35,000, or seven-eighths, are connected with Christian churches. The London Missionary Society reports 26,493, the Wesleyans 4,794, the Roman Catholics 2,852 and the Mormons 126.

Native Christians on the Mortlock Islands who were heathen two or three years ago are now building large church edifices and school houses, and meeting all the expenses of their teachers. On one of these islands every adult is a professed follower of Christ.

Mr. Stone has given $25,000 to the Armenian College at Harpoot. The Prudential Committee of the American Board have also made appropriations out of the Otis estate to other Mission Colleges: $10,000 each to Jaffra Collage in Ceylon, to Central Turkey College in Aintab, and to Armenia College at Harpoot.

The Jesuits have arrived at the Court of Mtesa, in Uganda, Africa. The mission of the Church Missionary Society of England is likely to be broken up, evidently by the intrigues of the Jesuits. Some of the missionaries have left, and those who remain can do little.

Rev. Hunter Corbett writes from China that a native pastor, in connection with the English Baptist Church, has lately received 130 members. Of this number sixty-five are women. Some of the women traveled twenty-five miles on wheelbarrows in order to be buried in baptism. In many villages there are little bands of inquirers who meet on the Sabbath to worship God and study the Scriptures.

Henry Keet, who died a short time ago in England, was a Wesleyan minister whom the Bishop of Lincoln years ago refused to deal with—the disputes leading at last to a suit at law against the Bishop to establish Mr. Keet's right to place the title "Rev." before his name on the tombstone of his daughter. Mr. Keet gained a decision in his favor and the "Rev." was ordered to be placed on the stone. At his funeral the other day when an attendant was about to let fall the usual handful of earth on the coffin the vicar of the parish, who was present, stooped down and himself performed that little service.

A letter written by Miss Helen Blair, of Prince Mission, Caffraria, to a member of the Foreign Sunday School Association, states that there has been a Sunday school conducted at the mission for six years, some of its older scholars going out into the bush and holding a mission for the children there. At the home school there is an attendance of 100, and a collection averaging fifty cents is taken every Sunday and devoted to distribution of tracts in the Kaffir language among the mission scholars. A children's meeting is held every Wednesday, at which the audience is represented as deeply attentive. There is also an industrial school at the station, established by a gift of $2,400 from Mr. Ross, of Scotland. Mrs. S. B. Armstrong writes of the sudden accession of spiritual interest in Pampluna, a town of Navarre, where not long ago "the word Protestant meant a demon from hell," but where now there are twelve children in the Sunday school and many attending the meetings. A new mission has recently been opened in Vacencia by an Englishman. The inundations of Murcia seem to be having a softening effect on the working classes.

The recent promise of the Emperor of Austria to the deputation of the Evangelical Alliance that he would investigate the cases of persecution and see that justice is done, will in due time bear fruit. While it is true that his Cabinet decided some two weeks ago that the long-persecuted believers in Stupitz, a village near Prague, should now have the right to hold house worship, "Hausgottesdienst," with invited guests, it is equally true that the people in question have not received this decision. The rumor that a similar right had been granted to Rev. Mr. Adams, of the American Board, and others in Prague is as yet only a rumor. The following facts show the continued intolerant spirit of the local authorities. Not long ago, six or eight Baptists met for prayer in the house of a postman in one of the suburbs of Vienna. They were dispersed by the police. The postman was informed that he could have little or no hope of a pension if he continued to allow such meetings in his house. On a recent Sunday the police found their way into a house in another part of Vienna. The fifteen people there assembled for prayer were dispersed, and the males ordered to appear, at 3 o'clock of the same day, in police court. In a Bohemian village, some time ago, a married couple for conscientious reasons left the Romish Church. Recently, at the birth of their first child, they applied within the term prescribed by the law to have the birth entered in the State register expressly provided for parties belonging to religious communities not recognized by the State. The application was refused, and the parents were ordered to have their child baptized by the Romish parish priest, on the ground that a child must have some religion and that the parents had none. During the present month Rev. Mr. Balzar, a self-educated Bohemian and an earnest preacher of the gospel (Reformed, but not connected with the State Church,) has been forbidden to hold any more meetings. Mr. Balzar has been suffered by the authorities—that is, they have not stopped him—to preach in Northeastern Bohemia some ten years. He has gathered about him a company of true Christians, and is doing a good work. All this in the face of Art. XIV. of the Fundamental (Austrian) State Law of Dec., 1867, which guarantees full religious liberty to [illegible] in the realm.—Christian Union.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN. - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1879.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

THE LAST DAY.

The date of this issue is suggestive. For the last time the familiar date of 1879 meets our eye. The morrow brings new duties, new hopes, new trials, with its new and strange figures. But our thenghts now are of this last day of 1879.

Trite words of counsel and sage advice fall from the lips, and trite reflections are uttered as we are halted in life's highway and made to contemplate the flight of time. The shortness of each fleeting year, the neglected duties silently reproaching us, the sundered friendships and parted families—the sad breaches in many monrning households—these and kindred thoughts fill the mind and soften the heart. In the busy world we do not like to be forced to such reflections. The crowded present, the more absorbing future push from our meditations the fading past. Well is it that something gives us pause, even thongh it be the empirical mark of the closing year.

It is a day of busy memories—many "mournful and pleasant to the soul," and others full of bitter reproaches and burning regrets. How the aged saint turns with sad eyes to the pages of the past! Life's morning was so sweet and fair! But silken tresses are dust, and lisping voices are hushed forever.

"The mossy marbles rest
On the lips which he has pressed,
In their bloom;
And the names he loved to hear
Have been carved for many a year
On the tomb!"

Yet the same servant of God may say of the loved and lost: "Gone before." And the golden sunset of life "gives promise of a goodly day" in the morrow of eternity.

But those of middle age, and even the young also, are compelled to grow sad as a loved year passes away, no more to be recalled. The last day has come. The things left undone must lay over now till the next year. Forgotten duties, unimproved privileges, squandered moments, all have gone beyond our reach forever. The friend that brought us such priceless treasures—three hundred and sixty-five caskets crowded to the brim—has retreated. And, alas! how have we trampled some of his choicest gifts beneath our careless and guilty feet!

When it is forever too late—when the golden moment has fled—then we bewail with useless tears our shortcomings. Let us live henceforth so as to show that our penitence is not fruitless.

The contemplation of the last things must fill the soul with seriousness. "I feel a serene pleasnre,' said an aged and dying servant of God, "in thinking that this is the last time I shall need this or that thing—the last time I shall need a sup of water—the last time I shall need medicine, or the doctor's care. This is my last day on earth."

Should this be the last day of life, instead of the last day of the year, to any of us, would it bring serene pleasnre? Let us so live henceforth that such would be the certain and blissful result. A consciousness of The Last Day, a present conviction of its certain coming, would help much to this end. A living of each day as if it were the last would make each life useful, serious and happy, and life's close peaceful and blessed, as when one

"Lies down to pleasant dreams."

THE NEW YEAR.

A story from Denmark, in the days when she was queen of the seas, tells us that two Danish barques riding a stormy main, passed each other in mid-ocean, both so borne along by wind and tide that only the briefest salutation could be exchanged. Said one captain to the other, amid the tempest and storm, "What news?" The voice of the other rang like a clarion over the raging sea, "God reigns!" And the two vessels drifted away on their trackless journey to meet no more. It was all that could be said. It was enough.

Like two great ships in mid-ocean, the Old Year and the New have met, exchanged a word of greeting and parted. They touch each other no more, until moored side by side in the presence of the King, they give report of their voyage. But the message of the passing to the coming year is that of the stern Danish Captain, "God reigns!"

The past teaches it. How plain the governing power of a Mighty Ruler, in the events of history. No more signal proof that the Assyrian King was the rod of His wrath, than that other kings and rulers have been used by Him for the chastisement of Israel. His chosen people were led with flaming clouds and mighty power through the wilderness. And with equally marked and magnificent guidance does He control and bring forward His church to-day.

This ringing assurance gives hope for the future. All the marvelous appliances of this busy, practical and aggressive age, God can utilize for the advancement of His plans. All the mighty foes arrayed in hostile phalanx against Zion, He can thwart and defeat. The poorest recruit in His service, and the humblest resources of His people, He can use in the great conflict, and teach us, as He has so often done, that it is "not by might nor by power." God reigns! God reigns!

As the march of time leads us then to reflection; to regret for past shortcomings and earnest resolve for future fidelity and diligence; let us enter upon our work with cheerfulness and hope. There is every reason for both joy and encouragement. The race is not to the swift nor the battle to the strong. Let our past failnres but make us the more diligent. The soldier who has shirked, must be more than ever alert, brave and constant, to prove his renewed allegiance. The Captain can do without him, but it is a part of His plan, for many wise reasons, to use him. The victory is certain, but it is to be won by hard fighting. Let no one think there is nothing for him to do. The fact that God reigns is reason for every one's fidelity.

And let the work be done with gladness. "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver," and giving is but one and one of the most delightful forms of service. We may be sure it is not transcending the Scripture to say "The Lord loveth a cheerful worker." Indeed the Psalmist says "serve the Lord with gladness." And the great Example for us has said, "I delight to do Thy will, O God."

"Ah, well is it for those who have the privilege of work in God's kingdom," says one who wearily lies on a bed of pain. "To me comes no such delightful service." But even to you, kind reader, to whom God appoints wearisome days and sleepless nights, to you comes the blessed comfort of the assurance "God reigns." And if this year, like the last, is to be one of enforced idleness, of suffering, disappointment, and worse than helplessness—positive trouble to those to whom you would spare all trouble if you could—think you not that God knows best? So out of the gloom of the fast receding year, hear the ringing voice speaking bravely and cheerily to you, "God reigns."

Many changes will come. But the day follows the night as surely as night comes. And even the night wears on her ebon brow starry jewels, and gems of light.

"We feel and know that we can go Wherever God leads the way."

With brave heart and true, rejoicing in the knowledge that God reigns, let us greet the New Year, with its duties and responsibilities, and pass the words and the hopes that cheer and sustain us to those that follow.

Happy New Year to all!

PATRIOTISM(?) RUN MAD.

In the Philadelphia Presbyterian of the 13th inst., is published a Thanksgiving Sermon by Rev. Chas. Wadsworth, D. D., in which occurs the following unseemly glorification of the United States flag:

"O brave banner! Even the wise men of the East have seen thy star—thy stars—shining out of their firmament, and have brought forth kingly treasures—gold, and frankincense, and myrrh."

Now we have not a word to say against celebrating the honor and glory of our national flag. Its fame is not hid in a corner; ready homage and welcome meet its proud folds in every clime, and millions are ready to defend its purity with fortune and with blood. But we would not have expected so good a man as Dr. Wadsworth to descend to such reprehensible, sensational, extravaganza, as to run a parallel between the American flag, no matter what its worth, and our adorable Redeemer, in the homage paid to each. We have no sympathy with any such unwarranted language anywhere; and none, especially, when used in the church of the living God, where the Gospel of grace is to be proclaimed to lost sinners. Far distant be the day when any such comparisons shall be heard from pulpits anywhere in this broad land!

DONATIONS.

A goodly number of persons there are, widows of deceased ministers, and others, who would be glad to have the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN, but who are utterly unable to afford the luxury. Any one desirous of helping us to supply the paper in such cases may send such sums as they choose to us. We will furnish the paper at $2. It is always best to send names and addresses of those whom the donor would bless, but it is not essential.

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

We assure the Christian Observer that in saying that the report of its correspondent as to the editorship of the Texas Presbyterian was unfounded we meant nothing offensive. We confess, however, that to have said the correspondent was mistaken would have been better.

There is no truth in the report that Rev. Dr. Moran, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has been ordained as a priest of the Reformed Episcopal Church. In fact, if we are not at fault, the latter Church does not recognize the priesthood. It accepts the sound scriptural doctrine on that subject, that under the Christian dispensation there are no priests.

The Christian at Work says:

It was the late gifted Dr. Guthrie who spoke of a shipbuilder who paid him the greatest compliment by saying: "During the preaching of most ministers, be they short or long, I generally contrive in my own mind to lay the keel and build the ship from stem to stern; but during your sermon I cannot lay a single plank." There is a sight of business done sitting in the pew, and he is a rare minister who can drive dollars and cents out of the head of Mr. Onepercent while preaching.

"Three-thirds of those who receive sprinkling and pouring for baptism carry a guilty conscience." So said a colored preacher of Florida to Dr. Marston. How near that brother was to the truth we shall never know. —Biblical Recorder.

Arcades ambo! Sometime since the Recorder stated in positive terms that Presbyterians in preaching Pedo-baptism did not believe what they asserted; now it seems to have found a negro preacher way down in Florida to pipe a responsive strain.

Our Secretaries report an income during November, 1879, from Ladies' Missionary Associations of $101 79 over same month last year. The gifts from all ordinary sources from April 1st, 1879, to December 1st have increased about $1,000. Enconraging, but let us press on till the cause of missions is free from all embarrassment. The Missionary ought to be in every Christian family. Any number is worth the price of a year's subscription, which is only fifty cents. Let sessions appoint some one in every congregation to present its claims and the subscription will be increased by thousands.

Our friends have latterly been cheering us greatly by their expressions of kind appreciation, and by their assurances of their active exertions in our behalf.

One, enclosing a favor, writes: "Am glad to help in the extension of the circulation of the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN. Think it is a blessing to our church."

A ministerial brother writes from another Synod:

"I don't know of any paper in our church I would prefer to the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN. It is a real live, interesting and instructive paper."

On Christmas Day we received from one who has been working for the paper in his congregation, aided by his pastor, nineteen new subscribers—and these words of encouragement: "Hope to be able to send a few more names next week."

Other brethren have sent us names of new subscribers, as an earnest of more to come. Thanks for all.

Last, but by no means last in esteem, is the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN, the friend of every good work and the discerner of the signs of the times. Each one of these papers has its peculiar tone and its peculiar sphere of action. All of them are first class. As an humble member of the fraternity, we rejoice in the success of these great Church papers, and confess to an honest pride in them as exponents of the Southern Presbyterian denomination and the truth as it is in Jesus.

We clip the above from Our Monthly, a pamphlet published by the boys of the Thornwell Orphanage at Clinton, S. C. The kindly notice of the various Southern religious papers, exhibited, we think, a nice and an appreciative discrimination of the characteristics of each. To say that each paper has its peculiar tone and its peculiar sphere is true and is of itself a compliment to each. The NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN claims its individuality and asks no higher compliment than that it is "wide awake." By the way Our Monthly has improved vastly of late and has become a newsy little paper. Better things yet are promised and will be apt to come. We wish the boys all manner of success.

The poem on our fourth page from Rev. Oliver Crane, M. D., was first published in the New York Observer. Dr. Crane has been favoring other religious papers, notably the Christian Secretary, of Hartford, the editor of which is a poet of repute, but we have reason to hope that we shall soon again be enabled to class him as a regular, at least a very frequent, contributor to our columns.

North Carolinians, everywhere, will thank Hale's Weekly, of Raleigh, for the following relative to the famous song, "The Old North State:"

Our New York correspondent asks about Judge Gaston's song. The facts about it are these: About the year 1840, a band of strolling Tyrolean musicians passed through Raleigh, and our old friend, Mrs. Mary J. Lucas, now of Charlotte, but then teaching music in Raleigh, caught one of the melodies to which they sang one of their national songs and played it by ear on the piano. The venerable and venerated Mrs. James F. Taylor took a fancy to the tune and asked Judge Gaston to compose a song for it, which he did. The Supreme Court (Ruffin, Daniel, and Gaston) usually met for consultations, in Judge Gaston's office, on the corner of Hargett and Salisbury Streets, and it was during a consultation one afternoon that Judge Gaston wrote the song, writing it at intervals during the session of the Court.

PRO RE NATA.

At the request of the Rev. Messrs. Dalton and Watkins, and of Messrs. W. S. Primrose and A. R. Ledoux, elders, I hereby call a pro re nata meeting of Orange Presbytery, in Greensboro, N. C., at 10 o'clock a. m., Jan. 8, 1880 (Thursday).

The object of this meeting is to act upon a call from Chapel Hill church to the Rev. Jas. L. Currie. C. H. WILEY, Moderator.

Winston, N. C., Dec. 26, 1879.

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

DISSOLUTION OF PASTORATE.

Rev. J. A. Ramsay writes:

"At a 'Call Meeting' of Concord Presbytery, held at Mooresville, N. C., Dec. 20th, the pastoral relation between Rev. P. T. Penick and Prospect Church was dissolved. The state of Brother P.'s health would not permit his retaining that Church in connection with Mooresville. He will, for the present, at least, give his whole time to Mooresville."

HARMONY PRESBYTERY.

At an adjourned meeting of the Presbytery of Harmony, held during the Session of Synod at Rock Hill, S. C., the committee appointed to organize a church in the Fork of Black river, reported that duty performed, and New Harmony church, with twenty members, was added to the roll of churches.

Rev. W. W. Mills was dismissed to the Presbytery of Bethel. W. A. G.

We are glad to learn from the Chapel Hill Ledger that Rev. Dr. Charles Phillips, is improving very rapidly at his new quarters in New York.

BURGAW CHURCH.

At a meeting of the congregation of Burgaw church, Dec. 19th., Rev. J. S. Black was requested to serve the church in future. Mr. Black asked time for consideration. On the night of the 26th inst., the same congregation held a Dime Party. The sum of $49 05 was realized and with this they hope to place their house of worship in condition for use.

PETERSBURG, VIRGINIA, ITEMS.

A friend sends us the following:

Second Presbyterian Church, Providence permitting, will celebrate the regular quarterly communion on the first Sabbath in January, at which time some of the children of the Church are expected to "put on Christ," not by baptism, as we sometimes hear, but by a public profession of faith in the Saviour, and to take upon themselves the vows which their parents made for them in their infancy. The pastor, Rev. S. K. Winn, is preaching earnest gospel sermons twice on Sabbath and during the week.

The manse built on the Church lot is now finished. The building is one of great architectural beauty and a model of convenience, and quite an ornament to that part of the city. Churches contemplating building a manse would do well to examine it before commencing their work.

Dr. Witherspoon, of Tabb Street Church, is delivering an interesting course of lectures Sabbath evenings on the Prophets, a copy of which he furnishes to boys of the Sabbath School for publication in the Cheirogram. Should any of your readers have occasion to spend Sabbath nights in the city, they would do well to go and hear the doctor.

The Rev. Alfred Jones who preaches to two other churches in the country, is working faithfully to build up this Church—the old Street Presbyterian Church—in the western part of the city. In his work he has the sympathy of all the Presbyterians in the city. Tabb Street Church is the mother of the enterprise and lends material aid in the work of Mr. Jones.

HIGH POINT, N. C., Dec. 23, '79.

Dear Brother McLaurin:

Chapel Hill church made out a unanimous call for Brother Jas. L. Currie on last Friday night for half his time. They call him to live with them, and offer him $500 for two Sabbaths a month. P. H. D.

[It is fair to presume that Mr. Currie will accept the call, as a meeting of Orange Presbytery has been called to consider the subject. —ED.]

IONA PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

ROBESON COUNTY, N. C., Dec. 20, '79.

Dear Editor:

Rev. Mr. Kenedy, a blind Presbyterian, preached at this church to-day, Sabbath, to a large congregation. Though on short notice a purse of $16 was made up for him. One liberal-souled church officer, whose name is withheld, gave $5. He made a good impression by his sojourn among us as well as by his sermon. He is on a short tour among the churches of Fayetteville Presbytery.

McI.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE THREE PRIZE ESSAYS.

MR. EDITOR: I have finished the perusal of three little volumes. They are prize essays. Some six or seven years ago the Hon. Richard Fletcher, LL. D., of Boston, died, and provided in his will for a special fund from which $500 was to be offered every two years for the best essay on what may be termed the best method of counteracting worldliness among Christians, and better exhibiting or exemplifying religion and increasing the efficiency of Christianity, &c. The first Fletcher prize essay was awarded to Rev. D. W. Faunce, a Baptist minister, in 1874, and in 1875 it was published, entitled, "The Christian in the World." It is a 12mo. of 236 pages. The second Fletcher prize essay appeared in 1877, entitled "The Children of Light," by a Northern Presbyterian minister, Rev. Wm. W. Faris, a 12mo. of 312 pages. The third Fletcher prize essay appeared in 1879. This prize of $500 was awarded Nov. 1st, 1878, to our own brother, Rev. A. F. Dickson of Tuscaloosa, who died January 8th, 1879, perhaps before the volume was issued by the Congregational Publishing Society of Boston. The title of Bro. Dickson's essay is "The Light: Is it Waning?" It is a 12mo. of 156 pages, considerably smaller than either of the two preceding. About a year ago, Dec. 19th, 1878, there appeared a book notice of this little essay, which (as I have since read Bro. Dickson's essay) I unhesitatingly pronounce unjust. The reviewer, I feel pretty certain, had not read the book with care nor in a good spirit. He seems, too, not to have known who the author was, and says, "The author looks through blue glasses, and all things appear to him ghastly and sombre. We do not know how five hundred dollars could be put to a worse use than by publishing the opinions of the prize hypochondriac of New England" !!! I was mortified and surprised to see this in the Chicago Interior. I am satisfied that the writer of that book notice wrote before reading it, or after a very careless and superficial perusal. It deterred me, however, very nearly a year from getting the book, and now I want to commend it, to urge its circulation, especially among ministers and pastors. It deserves the premium awarded it. Few books so small contain so much that is striking, important, practical, able and well put. The second prize essay is also very good, but inferior, I think, to Mr. Dickson's and to Mr. Faunce's. There is something stilted and stumpy in his style. His sentences are short and he makes but little use of any punctuation marks except the period. The reading fatigues like walking over railroad ties, and there is something artificial in his classification of topics under the word "Light," but still there is a great deal, that is very good and suggestive. My criticism is more against his manner than his matter. Very unexpectedly there is a hearty Christian tribute on page 267 to the name and worth of Stonewall Jackson. The first essay, by Mr. Faunce, I have just read. He is a very clear, forcible and eloquent writer. It is an earnest and practical appeal for a higher standard of Christian living. It addresses the Christian in his business and social relations, in his daily duties and recreations, and tells him how he is to be a "Christian in the world" and a blessing to his race. It seems to me that the wide distribution and careful perusal of these little books would be of great benefit to our ministry and membership. They are generally sound, earnest, practical and suggestive. J. HENRY SMITH.

Greensboro, N. C., Dec. 23, 1879.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE ANNUAL COLLECTION FOR SUSTENTATION.

OFFICE OF HOME MISSIONS,
BALTIMORE, Dec. 24, 1879.

Dear Christian Friends: The collection to be taken up on the first Sabbath of January for Sustentation is one of the most important which has ever been asked from the churches. At no time have the demands of the work been more extensive or importunate. This was so manifest to the last General Assembly that it sanctioned an effort to raise at least $40,000, and requested Presbyteries to take steps to secure this amount from the churches. If the movement to obtain this large sum is to be successful, all the friends of the cause will have to concur with unusual liberality in the effort. Not only will it be necessary for a collection to be taken up in all the churches, but our Christian friends will each have to give more largely than heretofore. There is need, too, that the Ladies' Societies and Sabbath schools shall come generously to our help, and that our brethren who have been accustomed to make special gifts shall not fail to do so at this time.

The particular objects embraced under the head of Sustentation are (1) aid of feeble churches in the support of their pastors; (2) aid to weak congregations in securing houses of worship; and (3) aid for the Presbyteries in prosecuting the work of evangelization among the colored people. It will thus be seen that in reality three great departments of work are embraced under this one branch of Home Missions, and as each of these separate spheres of effort is in need of much, and largely increased fostering care, the appeal made to you for generous assistance comes with threefold intensity. There are several hundred of our churches which cannot have the Gospel preached to them without aid in the support of their ministers; there are nearly a hundred churches which are in immediate need of houses of worship which cannot obtain them unless they are assisted, and there are some millions of colored people within our bonds whose knowledge of the Gospel is very inadequate and whose views of truth and duty are far below the standard marked out in the Bible as requisite from those who shall be saved. We present these simple statements as our argument addressed to you as Christians and Presbyterians, to show you that you ought to do what you can and all you can for the promotion of these important objects. We beg you to ponder them, to pray over them, to ask yourselves what you can and ought to do to help forward these precious interests of the Church, and then with a "ready mind" to do what seems to be right for the glory of God in the upbuilding of His Church.

With Christian regards,

Most truly yours,
RICHARD MCILWAINE,
J. LEIGHTON WILSON,
Secretaries.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.

The following is the programme recommended by the Evangelical Alliance to the churches of the United States for the observance of the coming Week of Prayer:

Sunday, Jan. 4.—Sermons on the "Fullness of Christ's Salvation."

Monday, Jan. 5.—Thanksgiving for the blessings of the past year and prayer for their continuance.

Tuesday, Jan. 6.—Confession of sin, and humiliation before God.

Wednesday, Jan. 7.—Prayer for the Church of Christ, its ministers, its growth in grace, and its enlargement; and for revivals of religion throughout our country.

Thursday, Jan. 8.—Prayer for Christian education; for the family and institutions of learning: for Sunday schools and Christian Associations.

Friday, Jan. 9.—Prayer for nations, rulers and people; for peace and religious liberty.

Saturday, Jan. 10.—Prayer for Home and Foreign Missions; for the outpouring of the Spirit upon all flesh, and the conversion of the world.

MONTHLY REVIEW OF MISSIONS.

A letter from Rev. Allen Wright, of the Choctaw Mission, of the 19th of November, states: "Our meetings have all been well kept up during the fall, owing to the very pleasant weather we have had. Almost every communion season has some interest to us, as there are usually one or two additions and some backsliders return to their first love, and oftentimes there are many inquiring for the way of life in Him who so loved them that He gave His life for them."

A letter from Rev. J. C. Kennedy, laboring near Green Hill, states that nine persons had been received to the communion of the Church at that place, and that there were a number of others that would probably be received at an early day.

A letter from Mr. Reid, of Spencer Academy, of the 2nd of December, mentions that there had been less sickness at Spencer during the present session than at any time since he had been there.

A letter from Rev. A. T. Graybill, published in our present issue, furnishes a very encouraging account of affairs in the Matamoras mission. He and Senor Leandro had performed a tour up the Rio Grande and had very attentive audiences at every place where they preached. At San Juan, a place which they had visited a number of times before, a church was organized with an elder and a deacon, and thirty persons sat down to the communion table for the first time.

Miss Ronzono's letter, published in our present issue, written in her peculiar style, will be read with much interest. In a noiseless way she is performing an important work, the full results of which will become more manifest in the course of time.

It will be seen from a letter from Dr. Kalopothakes, published below, that a most important achievement has been realized in Greece in consequence of an order by the government to have the New Testament Scriptures in modern Greek read in all the schools. This is an important step towards establishing a more literal sentiment among the people, and we anticipate from it the most important results.

From China, we have intelligence as late as the 17th of October. At Hangchow the missionaries and their families were in better health than usual. Miss Safford had got back to Soochow from Northern China, and was in better health than she had enjoyed for years past. Mr. Davis was busily engaged in getting his translation of the Gospels and the Acts through the press. All were in good health at Soochow.

A letter from Miss Kirk, of the 31st of October, shows that she is actively engaged in missionary work at Sao Paulo, and though not connected with any particular missionary Society, she is, nevertheless, doing an important work, especially in connection with female education, at her own charges. She deserves the sympathies and prayers of all who love the cause of Christ.—Missionary.

Rev. H. W. Woods of Carrollton, Ky., has accepted an invitation to supply the church at Joplin, Mo., and removes to that field at once.

ECLECTICISMS.

RICKETTY.

Presbyterian:

No man or woman will have vital piety who economizes with starving rigor towards the church. We have never known a single instance where such persons did not get morally flabby, careless, and callous, and in Christian influence become generally ricketty.

BOTH WRONG.

Southern Presbyterian:

A religion which is ever laid aside for anything is not worth having; and a religion which cannot be carried into every department and employment and experience of life, is only a form, and has no real lodgment in the heart. When a man folds up his religion and puts it away as something that he cannot mingle with his daily occupations, and which he cannot reconcile with his occasional enjoyments, he plainly confesses either that his religion is wrong, or else that his business and his pleasures are wrong. It will probably be found that both are wrong.

HONEST HEART.

Southern Churchman:

It is the lack of the "honest" heart that causes the gospel to fail in so many instances. But as no one likes to take all the blame upon himself, he casts about for excuses, and always finds them. The gospel is such a dull thing, or he cannot understand it, or there are so many difficulties in it, or they who profess it are no better than those who do not, or it may not be true, or it is certainly false. There never has been any difficulty about finding excuses; but the one real difficulty with mankind is, they lack the "honest" heart.

MEDITATIVE AND ACTIVE.

Baltimore Episcopal Methodist:

The meditative and the active in religion act and react upon each other, and are equally important. It is in private communion with God, and by the diligent study of his Word, we are to be equipped and fortified for the daily strife and the daily work. Not only spiritual growth, but spiritual success depends upon these secret exercises. It is to these the "open reward" is promised. He who neglects his closet to meet his public engagements, even of a religious character, will decline in all the true elements of vital piety, and fail in achieving any great results for God or man.

LITERARY CONTRIBUTIONS.

Christian Observer:

Another suggestion is, that the most effective articles are those whose style and dress are carefully attended to. An article that is well finished is far more likely to win the editor's favor at the first reading than one which has to be studied to understand it.

Variety and novelty in subjects is an important item. Our best preachers try to weave into every sermon some fact or some shading which they have learned during the week of preparation. What is new and interesting to them is more likely to be interesting to others. Our readers like to read on varied subjects, and to find such thoughts as will make them think.

Not too much sensitiveness is an important feature in a contribution. No man is a good judge of his own productions, and often the editor, do the best he can, judges wrong. Therefore, if disappointed by not seeing its early appearance, suspect either that the article would not read as well in type as you thought, or that the editor has made a mistake in judgment, or that matter of immediate importance is occupying the columns.

DRAW THE LINE SHARP.

Central Presbyterian:

Sharp—sharp ought the line to be drawn between the world and the church. The early Christians saw the necessity of this; and the very moment any church undertakes to toy with the pomps and vanities of this wicked world—be it in billiard-rooms, bar-rooms, ball-rooms, theatres, or in the way of Sabbatarian compromises, or by trying to popularize religion—as if it was a drug to be taken in some kind of treacle—then that church will get her white robes besmirched, and it will cease to be a godly church, and become a worldly church, where religion will be cultivated in its "mildest form"—among the roses.

THE MORAL DRAMA.

Christian at Work:

It is about time to put the foot squarely down upon all projects having in view the bringing of the Church and the theatre to a common place. The gospel plan doesn't include Harlequin or Columbine, foot-lights or flies, Pinafore or Pantomime. Such proceedings do the theatres no good, and they do secularize religion. The "moral drama" is a moral humbug, and is a device of old Satan to capture weak heads and gushing hearts by the fanfares and paraphernalia of the stage and its accessories. While the Sermon on the Mount remains, and the Bible is in the hands of the young, and while the flood-tide of a pure and wholesome literature continues to invite the thirsty to stoop down and drink, the theatre may be left to its peculiar vocations. Using the accessories of the theatre for the promotion of religion is a good deal like seeking the inspiration of the whiskey-bottle for the purpose of offering an edifying prayer.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Dr. R. McInnis may be addressed for the present at Llano, Texas.

Rev. J. B. Morton's post office address has been changed from Lexington, Ga., to Elberton in the same State.

On Sabbath, 21st inst., Mr. David J. Rogers and Mr. J. J. Irvine were ordained as ruling elders in this church.

Rev. L. Tenney having assumed the editorship of the Texas Presbyterian, his post-office address will hereafter be Waco, Texas.

Rev. John F. Baker's postoffice address is changed from Ashley, Pike county, Mo., to Hickory Plains, Prairie county, Ark. His correspondents will please make a note of this.—St. Louis Presbyterian.

On the fifth Sabbath in November a church was organized at Camilla, Ga. At the organization there were eighteen members. Capt. H. P. Townsend, Mr. E. B. Burns and Mr. J. C. Turner were elected ruling elders and Mr. T. R. Bennett, deacon.

The church at Spring Hill, Maury county, Tenn., under the pastoral care of Rev. F. A. Thompson, was recently greatly encouraged by twenty additions to its membership—a very large addition to a church which previously reported only seventy members.—Christian Observer.

A correspondent writes to the Christian Observer from St. Albans, December 15th: "At the last sacramental meeting held in Lebanon Church, Va., Rev. C. L. Hogue, pastor, there were five additions on profession of faith. There have been but few sacramental meetings during the last four years at which there have not been additions to this church on profession of faith in Christ."

A new church has been organized recently at Lake Berceford, in Volusia county, Florida. Twelve members including Mr. A. H. Stockton, a ruling elder, were received from the Euterprize Church and five were admitted on profession of faith. Mr. Benj. F. Colcord, Mr. David A. Felt and Mr. A. H. Stockton were elected ruling elders of this church. The last was installed, and the two first named were ordained and installed. The church is in the mission field of Rev. T. D. Latimer.

A correspondent writes to the Central Presbyterian of Harper's Ferry church: "Since the death of the lamented Dr. Dutton this church has been without any settled pastor. For a time it was supplied by the Rev. C. W. Hollis and W. P. Douney. Last spring, however, Presbytery determined to occupy the field permanently, and for that purpose sent W. C. Campbell, of the last class graduated at Union Seminary. The field has now been occupied about six months, within the time three additions have been made to the church, two by examination and one by certificate. The congregation has been steadily growing, and now seems to have the best attended morning service in the place."

Rev. D. S. Sydenstricker writes to the Central Presbyterian from Academy, W. Va., Dec. 15th: "Last Sabbath I closed a protracted meeting which was commenced on the 21st of November. Brother W. F. Wilbeck, of Lewisburg, was with me eleven days and preached very acceptably. After he left, the services were continued, and I was assisted by Rev. V. W. Wheeler, of the Methodist Church. Brother Leps, of Frankford, was with us three days, and preached for us. The effects of this outpouring of God's Spirit are not only seen in our midst, but they are felt and spoken of in all the surrounding country. As a present result twenty persons have been received into the communion of our church on profession of their faith in Christ, of whom seven are heads of families. This makes thirty persons that have been added to this church since the first of last April—twenty-five on profession of faith and five by certificate. To God be all the glory.

NORTHERN.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Dr. P. H. Fowler, a member of the Presbytery of Utica, died recently, aged 63.

Of the amount necessary for expenses of the Presbyterian Council which is to assemble in Philadelphia in 1880, $5,000 are still unprovided. Churches are requested to send to George Junkin, Esq., corner of Sixth and Walnut, at as early a day as practicable what amount they will raise.

By the will of S. S. Ward of Hartford, Conn., the sums of $5,000 each are bequeathed to the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, the American Home Missionary Society, the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions and the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Lane Theological Seminary was celebrated December 18th by the dedication of a new addition to the buildings, which cost $20,000. The installation of the Rev. Dr. Ellis to the chair of Sacred Rhetoric and Pastoral Theology took place at the same time.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

The widow of Henry M. Parker of Boston, who was one of the chief supporters of the Ritualistic Episcopal Church of the Advent in Boston, has entered the Roman Catholic Church. At the ceremony there was present Dr. Saltar, once a pillar of the Church of the Advent but now a Romanist, and also the widow of Rev. Dr. Croswell, who was received a short time ago. The remark is made in a Roman Catholic paper that the postulants who come from that Church are remarkably well grounded in all the principal truths of the Catholic religion.—Presbyterian.

REFORMED EPISCOPAL.

The Rev. Mason Gallagher has accepted a call to become associate pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Chicago, with Bishop Fallows. In addition to his pastoral duties he will also be connected editorially with the Appeal.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

The R. G. H. Anderson, formerly a Methodist minister, and Rev. J. B. Moore, formerly a Baptist clergyman, have been made deacons in the Episcopal Church.

At the twenty-fifth anniversary of the consecration of Dr. T. M. Clark as Bishop of Rhode Island the offerings amounted to $18,000, and were devoted to the completion of the Episcopate fund, which is thereby increased to $60,000, the sum originally desired.

BAPTIST.

Thirty years ago the Spruce Street Baptist church was probably the leading church in the city of Philadelphia. Its contributions to home expenses and benevolence was about $40,000 a year. It has been much depleted by emigration and colonization, but it has no debt; it owns a fine parsonage; it has an excellent pastor and a good meeting house.

LUTHERAN.

The Lutheran church of the Holy Communion, at Broad and Arch streets, Philadelphia, of which Dr. J. A. Seiss is pastor cost $220,000. To complete the tower and frescoe the interior will require about $15,000 more. It has a debt of $80,000.

Mr. Messersmith, a deceased member of St. John's Lutheran church of Reading, Pa., bequeathed $500 to that church, and $500 to the Orphan's Home, Germantown.

METHODIST.

Mrs. Cornelia Nutter, of Waterloo, Iowa, has given $39,000 to the Garrett Biblical Institute of Iowa, to endow a Chair of Practical Theology.

The Year Book of the Methodist Episcopal Church just published, gives the following statement of the strength of that church on July 1st, 1879: Conferences, 96; itinerant preachers, 11,453; local preachers, 12,85[illegible] lay members, 1,697,837; church edifices, 15,721; parsonages, 5,599; value of church edifices, $66,639,990; value of parsonages, $1,603,293; Sunday-schools, 19,925; Sunday-school teachers and officers, 214,698; Sunday-school scholars, 1,543,386; infant baptisms during the year, 55,076; adult baptisms, 64,531; presiding elders, 444.

CONGREGATIONALIST.

The Rev. S. J. Stewart, who resigned the pastorate of the United Presbyterian Church in Zanesville, because he found his views no longer in harmony with the principles of that organization, and accepted a call to a Congregational Church in Fitchburg, Mass., has now discovered that he is no longer in accord with the doctrines of that denomination, and has tendered his resignation.

The Vermont Chronicle thinks that while it has been the custom to ridicule ladies' sewing societies the one in connection with the South church in St. Johnsbury, Vt., deserves something better. This society has earned in the last ten years $2,700, of which $700 was spent for carpets in the church, $46 for chairs and $378 for a piano. Of the remainder, $1,525 was devoted to benevolent work.

REFORMED (DUTCH.)

The will of the late Mrs. Martin M. Fitts, of Newport, R. I., contains a number of public bequests of from $100 to $1,000 also one of $5,000 to the Dutch Reformed Church of Coytville, N. J.

SECULAR NEWS.

The colored people of Halifax county own 16,001 acres of land.

On December 26th, Mr. Howard, of the Louisiana Lottery Company, at 819 Broadway, New York, was arrested and committed for further examination.

Jas. A. Barnes, of Hartford, Conn., and N. E. Nash, of Westerly, Rhode Island, who have been shooting wild fowl in Currituck sound for some weeks, left to spend Christmas at home. They killed six thousand head of game in two weeks—two hundred geese in one day.—Elizabeth City Economist.

On Monday last Mr. Wm. Revell, who attends to Capt. R. H. Gatlin's mill and gin at Killquick, in this county, was crushed to death in the most horrible manner by the machinery.—Tarboro Southerner.

Mr. Huske, of the State Fish Hatchery, passed down Friday with a large lot of young salmon for the south fork of the Catawba river.—Piedmont Press.

We are in the midst of half a dozen factories, in full operation, and three others are in the course of construction by those already manufacturing.—Alamance Gleaner.

Ex-marshal Bazaine, of France, who had been sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment for treason, but escaped from jail, applied for permission to return and settle some business affairs, but was refused.

There was an interesting sale of old furniture and curiosities a few weeks ago at a picturesque villa near Genoa. The gem of the collection was a bronze Mercury, rather under life-size, of the sixteenth century, a reproduction of which is in the museum of the Louvre. This is attributed by some to Benvenuto Cellini, and it was purchased for $20,000 for a museum in Germany. A picture by Meissonier, about 10x15 inches, a single figure of a cavalier playing a guitar, brought $5,100; a white elephant in Dresden china, bearing a clock, went for $3,400; a Salvator Rosa sold for $3,000, and two very handsome carved oak cabinets, panels and figures of old carving, put together a perfect match, brought $1,800. Among the curiosities was an old Venetian spinet with inscriptions, and a gorgeous sedan chair, formerly used by the Duke of Parma.

The Spanish Senate have passed a bill for gradual emancipation of slaves in Cuba.

Thursday last W. W. Medford, a farmer who resides near Richland Institute, four miles from Waynesville, was killed by a falling tree. He and his brother were felling timber, and being a little deaf, he did not hear his brother's warning and the descending tree, which was fourteen inches in diameter, crushed him to the earth, broke his neck, smashed in the rear of his skull and broke one of his thighs in three places.—Asheville Journal.

David Meisenthaler, stockman of Whitestone, Kansas, lately, while driving his cows to the barn early in the morning, was struck by an aerolite and instantly killed. The stone is described as about the size of a common water bucket, and it was formed of iron pyrites.

A lake with an India rubber bottom has just been discovered fifteen miles northwest of Reno, Nevada. The Gazette of that town describes the soil in the bottom and around the margin of the lake as "of a grayish color, quite tenacious and with a hard, smooth surface, over which a carriage rolls as smoothly and as noiselessly as over a carpeted floor. When a ball made from the soil is thrown down it will rebound like rubber."

A Constantinople dispatch dated Dec. 26 says: "A Mussulman priest has been sentenced to death for assisting to translate the Bible into the Turkish language. Sir Austin Layard, the British ambassador, has demanded the priest's release, and it is believed that Germany will support the demand."

Of Christian trees proper about 115,000 were delivered in New York city during the fortnight before Christmas. Of this number about 43,000 came from Maine and rather more than 60,000 from the Catskill region.

THE ELECTROGRAPH.—We have tested this simple copying-press, furnished by J. C. O. Redington, General Manager, 27 Park Place, New York. It is perfectly simple, and admirably effective. The apparatus is perfectly simple; and the tablet easily cleaned by a sponge and water, when it is ready for use. Not only is it invaluable for the business man, but pastors and Sabbath School teachers, will find this electrograph most serviceable in their work, in multiplying addresses, songs, lesson-illustrations, &c., and at a trifling cost, in their own handwriting.

HEALTH.—The poor man's riches, the rich man's bliss—is found in Ayer's Medicines, after a fruitless search among other remedies. A word to the wise is sufficient.

MARRIED.

☞ No notice of a marriage or death will be inserted unless accompanied by a responsible name, which is wanted not for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.

At Mill Bridge, N. C., December 23d, by Rev. J. Alston Ramsay, Mr. M. MONROE MILLER and Miss LAURA J. CARRIGAN.

In New Hope congregation, Orange county, by Rev. P. H. Dalton, Mr. OSCAR O. HOGAN to Miss LAURA J. KIRKLAND, daughter of Mr. S. C. Kirkland.

On the 26th of November, by Rev. J. L. Currie, Mr. J. T. WILSON and Miss CLARA D. PARKER, All of Orange county.

On the 17th of December, by Rev. J. L. Currie, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. DALLAS MALONE, of Orange county, and Miss LAURA WHITED, of Alamance county.

On the 23d of December, by the Rev. J. L. Currie, Mr. JOHN L. TATE, and Miss HENRIETTA A. HALL. All of Orange county.

On the 25th of December, at the residence of W. A. Turner, near Lake City, Fla., by Rev. W. H. Hunt, Mr. A. W. CROMARTIE, of Bladen county N. C., and Miss SALLIE E. DRIVER, of Columbia county, Fla.

Christian Observer please copy.

DIED.

☞ Obituary notices must be paid for in advance. The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

DEATH OF BRYANT N. WILLIAMS.

In Duplin county, on the 11th instant, Bryant N. Williams departed this life, aged 61 years. He had been sick for several months though not confined to his bed. As a husband, father, neighbor and friend, he was an exception—kind, frank, sincere, generous; and though not a member of any church, his purse was open to the promotion of God's word.

The deceased was a plain, unassuming man, an old school gentleman, and one of the most successful farmers of the county. He possessed eminently a well-balanced mind and correct judgment. His influence as a citizen is a great loss to his county, for it is such men as he was that give life and prosperity to a country. He leaves a wife, ten children and many friends so mourn his loss. C. J. W.

At the father's residence, near Buffalo church, Moore county N. C., LILLA McINTOSH, child of George A. and Mrs. Melissa F. McIntosh, died September 13th, 1879, aged one year, four months and six days.

Lent for a little while to cheer and gladden the hearts of fond parents, God has called back to His home this lamb of His fold. So much of joy came with the loved child, and so much of sadness with its early departure! The smiling face is still and cold, and the home is filled with grief and sorrow. But "the Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away." May those so sorely bereaved be able to say, "Blessed be the name of the Lord."

BETHEL ACADEMY, at Davidson College, N. C., comes to the front this week in our advertising columns, as another of the North Carolina schools well deserving support.

OUR PAPER.

We do not forget that the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN is read not only by Ministers, who by reason of training and study are specially fond of profound discussions of religious philosophy, but by both sexes, and by all classes and conditions of persons. Consequently it is our aim to present such a variety of moral and religious reading that the paper will commend itself to all as a popular vehicle of such information and instruction as not only ought to be read, but as will be read by young and old, rich and poor, clergy and laity, learned and unlearned. We present no elaborate prospectus. Any who may desire to know more of the paper, are referred to its friends, who may be found in almost any community, or we will gladly send sample copies on application.

OUR PREMIUMS.

We invite special attention to the premiums we are offering with the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN for the ensuing year:

To any subscriber, the paper one year, and Kitto's Cyclopedia ($5 00 edition) for $4 75.

The paper one year and Smith's Bible Dictionary ($4 50 edition) for $4 50.

The paper one year and Cruden's Unabridged Concordance for $4 00.

To any one sending us THREE new subscribers at $2 65 each we give
SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY,
OR
THE LIFE OF ST. PAUL

As a premium for TWO new subscribers, at $2 65 each, we give
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.

To every New Subscriber at $2 65 we will give a MAP OF PALESTINE, 28x42.

We have sent this Map to a large number of persons and feel justified in saying it gives entire satisfaction. The publisher's price is $1 00.

The Cyclopedia and the Bible Dictionary are very cheap—exceedingly cheap. And
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE,
COMPLETE—UNABRIDGED.

Being an index to every important word in the Scriptures and the Apocrypha—with full definitions of the Theological and Scriptural meanings of words, and having the texts indicated with the respective meanings. We say this Concordance—the best probably in the world is a marvel of cheapness. No Christian family—or other family—should be without it.

WE SPECIALLY OFFER
The Paper one year with the
CONCORDANCE,
To any new Subscriber for $3 50.
In all cases we prepay postage.

FOR RELIEVING THROAT TROUBLES, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" have a world-wide reputation, and as they contain nothing that will injure the system, they can be used without fear of bad results.

Messrs. Polk Miller & Co.:
About twelve years I suffered from Dyspepsia. Falling in with Vest Pocket Cure, I gave it a fair trial. After its use I could eat anything with impunity. I am sure I am indebted to this medicine for what of health and physical comfort I have had for the last sixteen years. I have known many since to be relieved by its use.
REV. B. F. WOODWARD, P E, Va. Conf.

WILMINGTON MARKET
DURING WEEK
ENDING DECEMBER 30.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—On Wednesday and Friday 38 cents strong; on Saturday sales were made successively at 38½, 39 and 40 cents. Price advanced on Monday to 41½ cents per gallon.

ROSIN—Firm at $1 20 for Strained and Good Strained till Monday, when Strained brought $1 20 and Good Strained $1 25.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—Prices have ruled steady: $1 60 for Hard and $2 60 for Yellow Dip and Virgin, report closing Monday.

TAR—Receipts day by day at $1 10.

COTTON—Business was materially checked by the holidays. The market has remained steady throughout at 12 cents for Middling CORN—Demand sufficient for supply, which is light. One cargo, 2,000 bushels, received and sold at 68¾ cents.

TIMBER—Sales of 5 rafts Common at $4. 1 do. do. Mill at $6, 1 do. do. at $6 50, 2 do. Fair Mill at $7 25, 1 do. do. at $7 50, 1 do. Good Mill at $8, 1 do at $9, 3 do. Prime Mill at $10.

WHOLESALE PRICES.

☞ These quotations represent the wholesale prices.

ARTICLES.	PRICES.
BACON—Western Smoked—
Hams	10 a 12
Sides, per lb	0 a 7½
Shoulders	a 6½
Dry Salted—
Sides, per lb	0 a 7¾
Shoulders	0 a 6½
CHEESE—Northern Factory, per lb	0 a 11
Dairy, cream per lb	00 a 14½
State, per lb	00 a 10
COFFEE—Rio, per lb	18 a 18
Laguayra, per lb	18 a 20
CORN MEAL—per bush in sacks	80 a 82½
DOMESTICS—Sheetings, 4-4, per yd	a 7½
Yarn, per bunch	00 a 85½
FLOUR—Fine, per bbl	0 00 a 5 00
Super, Northern, per bbl	5 50 a 6 00
Extra do. " per bbl	6 25 a 6 50
Family " per bbl	7 50 a 9 00
City Mills—Extra Super, per bbl	0 00 a 7 50
" Family, per bbl	0 00 a 8 00
" Extra do., per bbl	0 00 a 8 50
GLUE—per lb	14 a 16
GRAIN—Corn, in sacks, per 56 lbs from store—white	77½a 80
CORN, wholesale, in sacks	72½a 72½
Corn, mixed, wholesale in sacks	70 a 72½
Corn, Cargo, per 56 lbs, bulk	68 a 70
Oats, per bushel from store	60 a 62½
Peas, Cow, per bushel	60 a 65
HOOP IRON—per ton	90 00 a 95 00
LARD—Northern, per lb	9½ a 10
North Carolina, per lb	10 a 11
LIME—per bbl	0 00 a 1 00
MOLASSES—West Indies, old crop	00 a 30
" " bbls	00 a 32½
" " new crop	35 a 37
" " bbls	37 a 39
New Orleans	28 a 50
Sugar House, hhds, per gal	00 a 23
" " bbls., per gal	00 a 24
Syrup, bbls., per gal	40 a 55
NAILS—Cut, 4d to 20d, per keg	00 a 4 00
OILS—Kerosene, per gal	18½a 15
Lard, per gal	1 00 a 1 10
PEANUTS—per bushel	75 a 1 05
PORK—Northern, City Mess	14 50 15 00
SALT—Alum, per bag of 4 bushels	75 a 1 00
Liverpool, per sack	90 95
Liverpool fine, per sack	a 1 75
SUGAR—Cuba, per lb	8½a 10½
Porto Rico, per lb	0 a 7½
A—Coffee, per lb	0 a 11
B— " per lb	9 a 11½
C— " per lb	8½a 9
Ex. C— per lb	0 a 9½
Crushed, per lb	00 a 11½
SOAP—Northern, per lb	5 a 7
Crampton's N. Y. Palm Soap, per box 100 lbs., ½ bars	0 00 a 4 20
TIMBER—Shipping, per M	12 00 a 18 00
Mill Prime, per M	9 00 a 11 00
Mill Fair, per M	6 50 a 8 50
Inferior to Ordinary, per M	3 00 a 5 00

One pair of boots or shoes saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Metalic Heel Stiffeners.

Ladies, Delicate and Feeble.

Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its former elasticity, driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can be easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once while the special causes of periodical pain are permanently removed. Will you heed this? See "Truths."

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative power in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. SHERAR, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, New York.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

BETHEL ACADEMY,
DAVIDSON COLLEGE (P. O.) N. C.
Rev. L. K. GLASGOW, A. M. Principal
Miss ELLA W. FLEMING, Assistant.

NINTH semi-annual session begins January 26, 1880. Boarders in Principal's family pay in advance for all expense except books, per quarter (10 weeks) $80
For circulars containing testimonials from well-known educators and from patrons, address the Principal. dec 31-tf

50 Gilt, Motto, Lily, Scroll, and Marble Cards, 10 cents. 60 Agents' Samples, 10 cents. U. S. CARD Co., Northford, Ct. dec 31-625-13t

IS DAVIS A TRAITOR, OR WAS
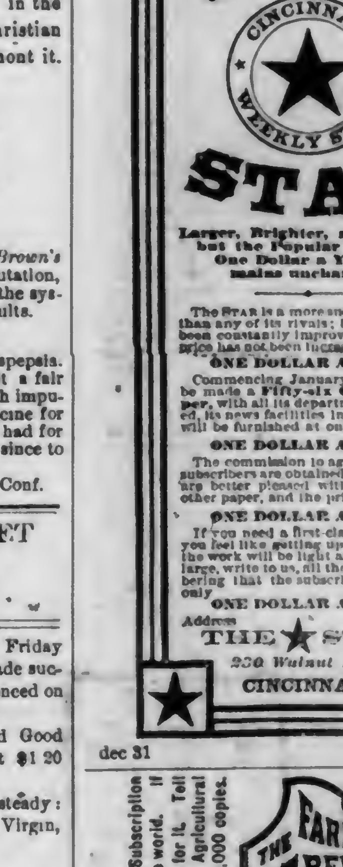
Secession a Constitutional Right
PREVIOUS TO
The War of 1861?
BY
Albert Taylor Bledsoe, A. M., LL.D.,
Late Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia, and editor of the "Southern Review."
Second Edition. Price $1.25.
Address orders to
LOGAN D. DAMERON, Manager,
No. 113 N. Eigth St. St. Louis, Mo.
dec 31 625-1t



dec 31 625-2t

dec 31 625-2t

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!

WE ask the attention of our friends and customers to our large and handsomely selected stock which is our

Fourth Purchase this Season.

Consisting of Dress Goods in all colors and prices, Cassimeres, Jeans, Flannels, Blankets, Shawls, Balmoral Skirts, Tickings, Domestics, Sheetings.

READY-MADE CLOTHING,
Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes.

Don't forget we sell the best Shirt in the City for the money. Wool Shirts and Vests for Ladies and Gents underwear.
Call and get one of our $1 Umbrellas, which is as good as you ever bought at $1 25.
Notwithstanding the advance in prices, we are still selling many of our Goods at old prices.
Orders solicited.
T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opp. Charlotte Hotel, Tryon st., Charlotte, N. C.
dec 24 624 tf

THE DEAF HEAR
THROUGH THE TEETH!
... THE DENTAPHONE. ...
AMERICAN DENTAPHONE CO., ... Cincinnati, Ohio
dec 24 624-13t

PEACE INSTITUTE,
For Young Ladies,
RALEIGH, N. C.

THE Spring term commences on the 16th of January 1880, and closes the 1st of June following. The total expense of a boarding pupil for one term is $120, payable in advance. This amount will include board, with washing, fuel, lights, furnished room and servant's attendance, tuition in English branches and Latin, Calisthenics, Text Books and Stationery used for school purposes. For $150 all the above, with Instrumental Music and use of Piano.
For circular containing particulars as to terms, Course of Study, &c., address
REV. R. BURWELL & SON,
dec 24-624-3m Raleigh, N. C.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

HOMES
in Western Arkansas.
The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway offer for sale the best LANDS in the West or South-West, with healthy climate, fertile soil, and not affected by drouth. Easy terms of sale. Full information.
Apply to W. D. SLACK, Land Com'r,
dec 24-624-13t Little Rock, Ark.

HORNER SCHOOL,
OXFORD, N. C.
INSTRUCTORS—J. H. Horner, A. M., J. C. Horner, A. M., R. W. Winston, A. B. (Univ. of N. C.)
The Spring Session will begin January 19th, 1880. Board and Tuition per session of five months, $100.
For circular, address
dec 24-1m J. C. HORNER.

FINLEY HIGH SCHOOL,
Lenoir, Caldwell Co., N. C.
THE Spring Term will begin January 14th, 1880. Tuition per term, from $16 to $36. Board, in good private families, per term, $50. Washing and lights extra.
For further particulars, send for circular.
E. W. FAUCETTE, Principal.
dec 24 624-3t

University of North Carolina,
CHAPEL HILL N. C, December 22, 1879.
THE exercises of the University will be resumed on the first Monday of January, 1880.
For catalogues apply to
KEMP P. BATTLE, President.
dec 24 624-2t

LAURINBURGH HIGH SCHOOL.
A Classical, Mathematical, and Commercial Academy.
W. G. QUAKENBUSH, (Bingham School and University of Va.) Principal.
H. W. MALLOY, (Davidson College) Assistant.
Charges per session of 20 weeks—Tuition $20; Contingent Fee $1; Board $50.
The second session will begin Monday, January 19, 1880. For circulars and further information, address the Principal, Laurinburg, N. C.
dec 24 624-4t

WANTED!
A Classical Teacher Wanted.
Address me at Greensboro, N. C.
J. W. GILMER.
dec 24 624-3t

READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN
If you like to be satisfied deal with
W. J. MOTT,
—Dealer in—
BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.
Keeps on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain his reputation in this regard. I will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,
W. J. MOTT,
North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.
P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult me either by mail or in person.
nov 19 619-tf

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.
THE SPRING TERM of 1880 opens Thursday, January 15. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks.
Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.
Address MRS E. N. GRANT, Principal.
feb 20 528-1y

THE GREATEST LIVING Authors, such as Prof. Max Muller, Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone, Jas. A. Froude, Prof. Huxley, R. A. Proctor, Edw. A. Freeman, Prof. Tyndall, Dr. W. B. Carpenter, Frances Power Cobbe, The Duke of Argyll, Wm. Black, Miss Thackeray, Mrs. Mulock-Craik, Geo. MacDonald, Mrs. Oliphant, Jean Ingelow, Matthew Arnold, Henry Kingsley, W. W. Story, Turguenief, Carlyle, Ruskin, Tennyson, Browning, and many others, are represented in the pages of

Littell's Living Age.

Jan. 1, 1880, THE LIVING AGE enters upon its 144th Volume, admittedly unrivalled and continuously successful. A weekly magazine, it gives more than double-column octavo pages of reading-matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its great amount of matter, with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a satisfactory completeness attempted by no other publication, the best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical Literature.
THREE AND A QUARTER THOUSAND
It is therefore invaluable to every American reader, as the only satisfactorily fresh and COMPLETE compilation of an indispensable current literature,—indispensable because it embraces the productions of the
ABLEST LIVING WRITERS
in all branches of Literature, Science, Politics and Art.
"It covers the whole field of literature, and covers it completely, thoroughly and impartially."—Times, Cincinnati.
"It affords the best, the cheapest and most convenient means of keeping abreast with the progress of thought in all its phases."—North American, Philadelphia.
"Gives the best of all at the price of one."—New York Independent.
"It is, by all odds, the best eclectic published."—Southern Churchman, Richmond.
"It so fully supplies the wants of the reading public that through its pages alone it is possible to be as thoroughly well informed in current literature as by the perusal of a long list of monthlies."—Philadelphia Inquirer.
"To read it weekly is a liberal education."—Zion's Herald, Boston.
"With it alone a reader may fairly keep up with all that is important in the literature, history, politics and science of the day."—The Methodist, New York.
"There is no other way of procuring the same amount of excellent literature for anything like the same price."—Boston Advertiser.
"It is INDISPENSABLE TO EVERY ONE who desires a thorough compendium of all that is admirable and noteworthy in the literary world."—Boston Post.
"The prince among magazines."—New York Observer.
"The best literature of the day."—New York Times.
THE LIVING AGE is published weekly at $8.00 a year, free of postage; or for $10.50 THE LIVING AGE and either one of the American $4 Monthlies (or Harper's Weekly or Bazar) will be sent for a year, both postpaid; or, for $9.50 THE LIVING AGE and the St. Nicholas, or Appleton's Journal.
Now is the time to subscribe, beginning with the New Year.
☞ EXTRA OFFER FOR 1880. ☜
To all new subscribers for 1880 will be sent gratis six numbers of 1879 which contain, besides other interesting matter, the first chapters of two new serial stories recently begun in THE LIVING AGE from advance sheets, viz.: "HE WHO WILL NOT WHEN HE MAY," by MRS. OLIPHANT, and "ADAM AND EVE," by the author of those remarkably attractive stories, "Dorothy Fox" and "Hero Carthew."
Address, LITTELL & CO., Boston.

Nice Books
—FOR—
HOLIDAY PRESENTS.

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE, $1 50;
TEACHER'S BIBLES from $1 50 to $8 00;
CHURCH HYMN BOOKS from $1 00 to $3 00;
CHATTERBOX, 1879, $1 00;
WILLIAM, THE BAPTIST, 2d edition, $1 00;
DABNEY'S THEOLOGY, sheep, 2d edition, $5 00;
PROPHECY; A Series of Lectures by Rev. A. P. Foreman, $1 50;
BALM FOR WOUNDED SPIRITS, by W. S. Plumer. D. D, Paper covers, 10 cents.
ASSURANCE OF GRACE AND SALVATION, By Same, Paper, 10 cents;
HAPPY THOUGHTS FOR CHRISTMAS. Beautifully Illustrated, 30 full page engravings, $1 00;
MEMOIR OF REV. DR. DAVID COULTER. With Reminiscences, Letters, Lectures and Sermons, $1 50;
A Thousand other Beautiful Books for Christmas Presents and Sunday School Libraries.
Send for approved Lists to
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va.
Or, 207 N. 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.
dec 10 622-tf

Lynch's Select School,
HIGH POINT, N. C.
An English, Mathematical, Classical, Commercial and Scientific Academy,
MAJ. W. B. LYNCH, A. M., Principal.
B. P. PRICE, A B, Assistant.
Spring session of 1880 begins January 21st. Board and Tuition $80. For circulars address the Principal.
dec 17 623-6t

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. DR. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.
nov 19 619-13t

CHEESE.
200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,
For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.

WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.

Our Trimming Department is Complete,
and comprises the leading styles.
Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.
We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.
Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.
The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.
N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.
nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.
THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the
Latest and Most Approved Style.
To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.
"First Come, First Served."
MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
apl 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

THOS. A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.
McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.
Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 593 1y.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
Charlotte, N. C.,
KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will Compete in Prices,
—EITHER—
WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,
With any Market.
All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods
VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.
We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.
BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 185.

INSTITUTE FOR TRAINING OF COLORED MINISTERS
Under the care of the General Assembly.
Located at TUSKALOOSA, ALA.
THE FOURTH SESSION, of ten months, will commence on the 1st day of September next, under the instruction of Rev. D. C. Rankin, Professor, who has the best testimonials of fitness for the work, in his deep interest in the colored people and his past labors in their behalf, his ample scholarship, and his aptness to teach.
All the branches necessary to fit candidates for the Gospel Ministry will be taught. Some acquaintance with the early branches of English will be required for entrance. Candidates must come recommended by their Presbyteries or Committees of Education; and if of other denominations, must have similar credentials.
No charge for tuition. Board can be had on reasonable terms.
C. A. STILLMAN, Superintendent.
July 23 602-tf

DeROSSET & NORTHROP,
FIRE AND MARINE
INSURANCE AGENTS,
REPRESENTING Standard American AND English Companies.
28 North Water Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
nov 19 619-tf

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER.
Send your orders by mail.

THE GOLDEN LIGHT,
A SONG BOOK FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS,
PUBLISHED BY
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO'Y.,
1001 Main St., RICHMOND, Va., or
207 North 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, Mo.
Single copy by mail 10 cents; per dozen $1 00—by mail $1 10; per hundred $7 50—by mail $8 50.
This number will be followed every six months by similar publications, each containing twenty-five or thirty new and choice pieces of music, and about the same number of standard Sunday School Hymns.
dec 10 622-3m

SELECT BOARDING
AND
DAY SCHOOL,
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.
Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.
THE SPRING TERM of 1880 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE Board and Tuition $100.
Circulars forwarded on application.
466-*jan.1,'79

BINGHAM SCHOOL,
MEBANEVILLE, N. C.,
Is now PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys.
The 171st Session ending Dec. 17th, 1879, has been the most prosperous in the eighty-six years of the School's history. The 172d Session will begin January 14th, 1880. Board $12 per month. Tuition $50 per Session. For catalogue giving full particulars address, MAJ. R. BINGHAM, Sup't.
dec 17 623-1m

COTTON!
IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants
For the Sale of Cotton,
Which they are prepared to do
On the Most Economical Charges.
They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.
ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,
Wilmington, N. C.
September 3d, 1879. 606

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.
LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.
Children's Merino Under Suits—A great comfort and convenience.
CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.
LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.
PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,
In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c, for Circulars
A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels
OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.
Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.
dec 3 621-1y

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847) S. W. WHITING.
R. B. ANDREWS & CO.
Men and Boys CLOTHING,
Dress Shirts, Cuffs,
TIES, SCARFS,
Half Hose, Suspenders,
Gloves,
Handkerchiefs, Underwear,
Trunks, Valises, &c.

Extra Large Sizes CLOTHING,
A Specialty.
HATS AND CAPS,
A Large Assortment.
We give special attention to orders from a distance.
LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.
NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh. N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods
—AT—
M. M. KATZ'S,
36 MARKET STREET.
BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.
Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.
DRESS GOODS,—Satin Melange, Cashmere Soie, Brocade Persan, Persan Raye, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.
MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Ete, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.
CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS. Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets. The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.
MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c, &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to oct 22 M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

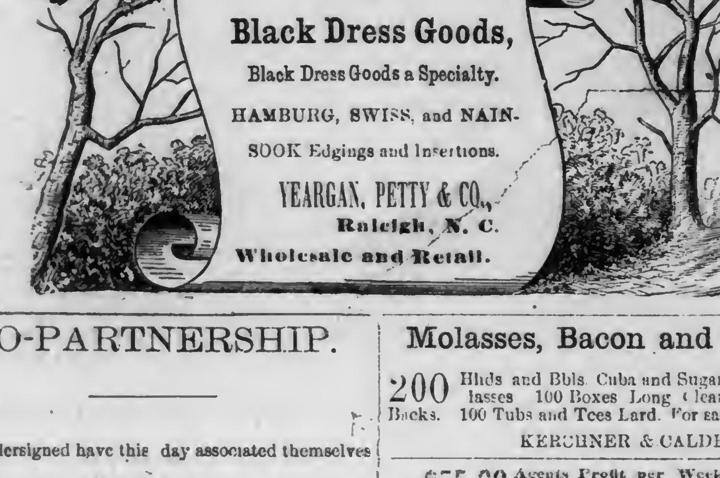
RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS!



CO-PARTNERSHIP.
The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of
BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,
For the purpose of carrying on a
General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,
AT THE OLD STANDS,
5, 7 and 8, North Front Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.
JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT.
THOS. H. McKOY.
Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 3, 1877.
oct 10 509

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.
BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.
LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.
The Remington Sewing Machine,
A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.
Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.
Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.
GEO. A. PECK,
25 South Front Street.
dec 10 622-tf

Oratory! Pathos! Humor! Fun!
100 CHOICE SELECTIONS No 17 NOW READY. P. GARRETT & CO. 708 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.
This number is uniform with the Series, and contains another HUNDRED splendid Declamations and Readings. 180 pp. Price, 30 cts., mailed free. Sold by Booksellers. Every boy who speaks pieces, every member of a Lyceum who wants something New to recite, should Get the Whole Set. Club rates, and Full List of Contents Free.
dec 10 622-4t

SALT. SALT. SALT.
21,000 Sacks
Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!
Factory Filled Fine Table,
AND
Liverpool Ground Alum.
Full Weight Guaranteed.
"WILLARD'S,"
NORTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
dec 17 623-tf

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.
200 Hhds and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO. 218 Fulton St. N.Y.
oct 8 413-26t

HALL & PEARSALL
OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of
100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER,
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.
sep 3 – 608-tf

AGENTS, READ THIS
We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.
nov 19 619-6m

Fresh Arrivals.
100 Boxes CREAM CHEESE,
50 Tubs LARD,
10 Tierces Fairbanks' LARD,
100 Boxes SOAP,
100 Boxes POTASH and LYE,
200 Bags SHOT,
BAGGING AND TIES,
10 Tierces good cheap HAMS.
For sale low by
HALL & PEARSALL.

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

G. H. GRAVES,
—WITH—
YEARGAN, PETTY & Co
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Notions, &c.
RALEIGH, N. C.
Would be glad to have his friends and everybody else to call. He guarantees to sell them goods cheaper than they can be bought elsewhere in the city. Orders are solicited from Merchants and all others.
Messrs. Yeargan, Petty & Co. keep an assortment of RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS and DRESS GOODS.
Special attention is asked to their line of Hamburg and Nainsook Edgings and Insertions, Silk Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Ladies' Dress Shoes, &c.
dec 10 622-1m

FOR THE FAMILY.

Training a Child.

He who checks a child with terror,
Stops its play and stills its song,
Not alone commits an error,
But a grievous moral wrong.

Give it play, and never fear it,
Active life is no defect;
Never, never break its spirit;
Curb it only to direct.

Would you stop the flowing river,
Thinking it would cease to flow?
Onward must it flow forever;
Better teach it where to go.

In Debt.

Browning M—— is not at all brown, but very fair, with blue eyes, and the most flaxen of tresses. Neither is he one of the imaginary beings sometimes so called, but a real live boy, eight year's old, with all a boy's fondness for fun and frolic.

One evening his father noticed a very sober look on his son's face usually so careless and merry.

"What is the matter, my son?" he asked, as the boy hung around him with a wistful, persevering air, which said, as plainly as words could, "I wan't something but don't like to ask for it."

But in reply to his father's question he said: "I want twenty-five cents, papa."

"Twenty-five cents," repeated Mr. M—, "and what will you do with it?"

"Why you see, papa, I borrowed a quarter of a dollar of Fred when I bought my dominoes, and I want to pay him back," said Brownie, in a voice that trembled with tears.

Fred is Brownie's elder brother, who has lately begun keeping an account book, of which he is not a little proud. Looking up from the book he was reading, he exclaimed:

"I'll tell you, papa, why Brown is so anxious all at once to pay me. I showed him his name in my book to-day, where I have him down for twenty-five cents, borrowed money."

"Ah!" said the father, "is that it?"

"Yes," answered Brownie, "he has me on his book. I don't want to be on anybody's book, so please give me the money."

"Well, my son, I hope you will always have such a hatred of debt as to make you always unwilling to have your name in a creditor's book," was the reply of the father, as he put a shining silver quarter into the little boy's hand. Brownie, with a bright, happy face, passed the coin over to his brother, and then bounded lightly away to his play.

But that night as he was preparing for his sleep, the mother, who had overheard the whole, said, "So you do not like being in debt, do you?"

"No, mother, it made me feel dreadfully to think my name was in a book as a debtor, and I couldn't take pleasure in anything till it was paid, for something seemed to keep saying 'You are in debt, in debt.' And papa said he hoped I would always feel so about it."

"I hope so, too, Brownie, but are you sure you are now out of debt?"

"Why, yes, mother, I didn't owe any one but Fred, and now that I have paid him I feel as light as a feather," in proof of which assertion Brownie capered up and down the room in a very lively manner. His mother waited until he became quiet and then said:

"Brownie, who gives you every day food to eat and clothes to wear? Who gives you health and strength, and cares for you day and night?"

"It is God, mother," answered the boy, reverently.

"And who gave His Son to die for us, and His Word to guide us in the way of Salvation? Do you not owe your Heavenly Father something for all these precious blessings and others too many to be counted?"

"But I thought these were gifts, mother and that God asked nothing in return for all He does for us, and that we never could pay Him for all his benefits to us, never."

"True, my son, yet there is one thing which He requires us to give in payment for His great sacrifice."

"What is that, mother?"

Mrs. M— turned over the leaves of the Bible which lay beside her, and then placed her finger on a passage which Brownie read aloud, "My son, give me thy heart."

The boy was silent for a few moments, and then said: "But what does that mean, mother, and how can we do it?"

"It means, my son, that our best and warmest love must be given to God, and that we must play, work and study, sing and pray, as He has told us to do, because we love Him so much that it is our delight to please our kind Father in Heaven who does so much for us."

"But how can we ever feel so?" asked Brownie, in a doubtful tone.

"Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and love to God are His gifts, which all may have for the asking. He, only, can give us hearts that love to do His will. When we give to Him the love of our hearts, the work of our lives, all we have, and are, to be used in His service, then, and not till then, are we out of debt."

"Well then, all persons who are not Christians are in debt, are they not, mother?"

"Yes, my dear boy, all who have not given God what He requires in the verse you read. Many persons, who, like you, cannot rest under a debt to a fellow creature, and who think they are unwilling to remain for a moment under obligations to others, are yet content to take and use God's gifts without giving what He asks for them. More than that, they claim heaven as a reward for their honesty toward their fellowmen. But God's Spirit causes the conscience to whisper, 'In debt, in debt.' No rest is given till the debt is paid, by surrendering the heart and life to Him, giving up our wicked feelings and desires, and having the mind that was in Christ Jesus."—Canada Presbyterian.

Which is Best?

"Oh, dear!"

Little Nan opened her eyes and stretched out her arms with a sleepy yawn, as the summer morning, all rosy and sweet, peeped into her garret chamber.

"I wish I didn't have to get up so soon! I wish the fire would make itself, and a Pitcher Fairy would bring the water from the spring, and a Broom Fairy would sweep the kitchen and grind the coffee, and a good Brownie would bring us a lovely breakfast already cooked! I'm tired of sifting cinders and washing dishes. I wish I was a lady like Miss Anastasia!"

But she wasn't a lady, and Pitcher Fairies and Brownies didn't grow in her neighborhood; so little Nan had to shake off her sleeplessness and jump up to her work. The sun was just coming over the edges of the rosy clouds; the robins and the orioles were singing with all their might; the morning glories had hung out a thousand pink, and purple, and sparkled bells, to welcome the sunshine; and the pinks and mignonette in the garden were sparkling with dewdrops. How sweet they smelled, and how lovely everything was in the cool, fresh, beautiful summer morning!

Little Nan came back from the spring with her cheeks like roses and her eyes as bright as stars. She danced about her work as lightly as any Broom Fairy ever did; and the fire was made, the breakfast cooked for grandmother, and the dishes washed up afterward, long before Miss Anastasia raised her drowsy head from her great, soft feather pillows. When she did, the sun was streaming across her pillow, hot and bright. The flowers on her dressing table drooped in the heat; the dew was dried up on the roses outside.

Miss Anastasia stretched herself, "Oh, dear, how hot it is! How tiresome to have to get up and dress one's self! I won't do it. I'll have my breakfast in bed."

And so she lounged amongst her pillows, and drank her coffee, and nibbled at her toast, and had no appetite, and complained of the heat, and sighed and fretted like a person oppressed with grief. She had nothing in the world to do but amuse herself and take her ease, and now nothing amused her: and she tossed about on her fine bed, and did not find half the rest there that little Nan took on her hard cot in the garret.

If only she had some useful work to do, how much better she would have felt! She missed all the dew and freshness of the morning; she loses all the purest pleasures of life. For no one can be happy that walks through the world with idle hands and a selfish heart.

Little Nan had the best of it; for honest work brings a double blessing, and we serve God best when we do our duty to men.—Baptist Weekly.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The "Mouse Cure."

This name has been given, and correctly enough, to a new remedy for lockjaw. The account of it sounds more like waggery than fact, but the New York Times tells it "bona fidely" of an ingenious French physician who was called in to prescribe for a lady suffering from tetanus.

Her family doctor had tried every known remedy without effect.

The patient was lying on her back with her mouth tightly closed and the muscles of her jaws and throat rigid, so that she could not utter a sound.

The new physician went out and procured a live mouse, and attached a strong horse hair to its tail.

Placing the mouse at the foot of the bed, he allowed it to creep over the patient the entire length of her body.

She soon felt the creature, and noticing what it was, sprang up and screamed, "Take it off! take it off!" and scolded the doctor very glibly for a "horrid, heartless wretch!"

The doctor laughed, and so did his attendants, for all saw that the mouse had completely broken the lady's lockjaw. One nervous shock had been cured by another.

She had no return of the tetanus symptoms, and the doctor was so well convinced of the value of his four-legged homœopathy that he went on trying it for other nervous diseases, and it is said that he has made the "mouse cure" a success every time.—Christian at Work.

Three Miles of Bookshelves.

Some idea of the capacity of the British Museum Library may be gained from the statement that it contains three miles of bookshelves eight feet high, and, taking them all at the ordinary 8vo. size, there are twenty-five miles of shelves. The dome of the reading-room is the second largest in the world, the diameter of that of the Parthenon Rome, exceeding it only two feet, while St. Peter's, being only 139 feet, is less by one foot. We have here an instance of the value of iron; for, while the piers of the British Museum dome occupy 200 feet, those of the Parthenon fill 7,477 feet of area.

Gladstone.

Mr. Gladstone's personal appearance is thus sketched by a London correspondent of the Philadelphia Press:

"In personal appearance Mr. Gladstone is an active, lithe, muscular man, rather tall, and of well-proportioned frame. His face and figure have that clear-cut contour which generally indicates several generations of intellectual activity and personal leadership. Mr. Gladstone is the descendant of a long line of Scottish lairdmen of small wealth and limited possessions, but accustomed to stand first in their community, to think and to lead. The face is scholarly, cultivated, its outlines boldly defined by the meagreness of muscle which distinguishes the intellectual athlete. There is not an ounce of superfluous flesh on it. The thin lip and wee cut mouth and chin betoken firmness, determination and endurance. Seventy summers have sat lightly on him, but the years have brought their blessing of rest, and his face in general wears the repose of strength and experience, strongly lined with the record of struggle and thought."

How Bar-Room Liquors are Made.

There may be seen daily on Chestnut street, says the Philadelphia Bulletin, a man dressed in faultless apparel, with a great diamond on his breast vainly endeavoring to out-glitter the magnificent solataire on his finger. In a German university he learned chemistry; and not even Liebig knew it better. His business is the mixing and adulterating of liquors. Give him a dozen casks of deoderized alcohol and next day each of them will represent the name of a genuine wine or popular spirit. He enters a wholesale drug store bearing a large basket on his arm. Five pounds of Iceland moss are weighed out to him. To raw liquors this imparts a smoothness and oleaginousness that gives to imitation brandy the glibness of that which is matured. An estringent catechu that would almost close the mouth of a glass inkstand is next in order. A couple of ounces of strychnine, next called for, are quickly conveyed to his vest pocket, and a pound of white vitriol is as silently placed in the bottom of the basket. The oil of cognac, the sulphuric acid, and other articles that give fire and body to liquid poisons are always kept in store. The mixer buys these from various quarters. They are staples of the art. —Christian Union.

An Eccentric British Peer.

The death is announced by cable of one of the most eccentric of British noblemen, William John Scott Bentinck, fifth Duke of Portland. He was born in 1800, and never married; so the title and most of the estates pass to a cousin, Colonel Bentinck, formerly of the 7th Dragoons. For many years past the late Duke suffered from a painful malady, and long lived in almost absolute seclusion. His passion for privacy became so great that it led him in London to construct ground-glass screens around his court yard beyond which he could walk, seeing but unseen, and caused him to construct on his favorite estate of Welbeck a wilderness of subterranean retreats and apartments, all lighted however by ingenious devices. Amongst these apartments was a magnificent library. The lodges and boxes for the servants on the estate, all of stone, and as handsome as substantial, had their kitchens and offices beneath the earth. In every direction the grounds were honeycombed by tunnels, lofty and spacious, lighted by gas (from four huge gasometers hidden in huge mounds covered with rhododendrons) with here and there shafts which let in the sunlight. These tunnels are lined with stone, and are perfect as to dryness and ventilation. One of the greatest marvels of this magnificient estate is the "Folly," a tunnel—or rather a covered way—a mile and a half long, thoroughly lighted and ventilated. There was a path across Welbeck to which the public had a right of way. The fifth Duke resolved that if people must pass there they should not see him, and so he built the covered way, which was then turfed and masked with rhododendrons and other shrubs. A lake and a subterranean church were among the other curiosities of the place, from which all strangers were jealously excluded. His Grace possessed several large estates in Scotland, principally in Ayr and Caithness shires, but paid little personal attention to them. In Caithness he owned the finest deer forest in Great Britain, but he never fired a shot in it. The only persons to whom he threw it open were his neighbors, the last and the present Viscount Galway. The late Lord Galway, who married a sister of Lord Houghton, and who was a perfect model of the best type of English hunting and riding men, always at the outset of the shooting season received from the Duke an invitation for himself and his son to shoot over the forest in Caithness, and Serlby Hall, the old family seat of Lord Galway, is full of the finest trophies of Caithness shire. With all his eccentricities the Duke was in reality one of the kindest hearted of men, and hundreds of stories of his goodness of heart could be told. In his dealings with his numerous tenants he was frank, straightforward, and considerate, and they all loved and honored him.—Scottish-American Journal.

A Life-Saving Station.

In the year 1847 the United States organized fifty-four life-saving stations between Montauk Point, which, you know, is on the end of Long Island, and Cape May. In 1872 the system was extended still further. New stations were located, tasteful buildings were put up and provided with all the apparatus necessary for the purpose, and a corps of resolute, hardy surfmen appointed which should patrol the coast from Passamaquoddy Bay to Cape Hatteras. Of these stations there are now 104; of which Maine has five, New Hampshire one, Massachusetts fourteen, Rhode Island three, Long Island thirty-one, New Jersey forty, Virginia three, North Carolina seven. Since the service was first established, in 1847, nearly 6,000 lives have been saved by its aid, and property has been preserved amounting to more than $1,000,000.

It was one of these stations that the Professor visited. Fortunately the captain was at home, and when the Professor arrived was already showing a party of ladies the objects of interest.

When the Professor came to look around, the first thing he saw was a very brightly polished brass cannon—not a large one—and near by a number of curious looking cone-shaped leaden balls. There was also a box with a number of pegs in it and a long rope coiled carefully about the pegs. When it storms out at sea and ships are driven in shore, and become wrecked and helpless, it often happens that the water is too rough to let a boat live in it. If the big lifeboat which stands in the middle of the house should be rolled down to the beach and launched, the waves would break it in pieces in a minute. So the only way for the captain and his surfmen to reach the vessel is by a rope. Now you know a man couldn't swim in such a heavy sea to carry the rope, and nobody has strength enough to throw a rope 1,200 feet, which is often the distance by which the ship is separated from the shore. So the captain or one of his men takes the rope that is coiled so loosely about the pegs that it will run off without a hitch, and ties one end of it to the ring in the end of one of these lead balls. Then he takes the brass cannon and sets it on the beach, pointing it so that it will carry a ball just over the vessel, and loads it with powder and this ball having the line tied to the end. Then he fires the gun. Bang goes the gun; out goes the ball; away goes the line, uncoiling itself so fast from the pegs that you can scarcely see it move. In a second it slackens and stops, and then the Captain knows it has fallen on the deck of the vessel. Pretty soon it begins to move again—slowly this time; and now the captain knows the people on the ship are pulling it. So he ties two ropes to his end of the line—one a little larger than the line itself, and the other a great, stout cable—and attaches to these a piece of wood with painted directions on it, telling the people on the ship just what to do. In a few minutes these ropes have been pulled on board, and the big one, looking like the cable of a suspension bridge, has been made tight at both ends. On this cable is then hung a sort of covered boat, called a life-car, large enough to hold four people, and the small rope being tied to one end of it, the people on the ship begin to pull. Very shortly it has been pulled along the cable until it reaches the ship. Then it is filled with people and the surfmen on shore pull it back again. And so it is pulled back and forth, from shore to ship and from ship to shore, until everybody is landed, and the old ship is left to go to pieces. —Professor's Chair, in Christian Union.

How Candies are Made.

It is an easy matter to drop a luscious chocolate cream or crystal candy into one's mouth, but the process by which the morsel is produced is not so small a matter. Take a chocolate cream for instance. First, a half barrel of sugar is put into a caldron with a little water, and placed over a slow fire until it assumes a paste-like consistency. Then it is placed on a marble slab and worked, like butter, until it is smooth and plastic. That paste forms the basis of all cream candies. The flavoring is put in afterward—vanilla, orange, lemon, strawberry, pineapple—anything, in fact, that may be desired. The chocolate used comes in huge cakes, is melted, and the creams covered with it by dipping them in rapidly.

The crystalizing of candies requires more work, and it is in this that an especially prepared apparatus is used. First, the form of the candy is secured by mouldings in finely-ground starch. Then the candy, flavored and prepared according to taste, is reduced to a syrup and poured in the moulds and placed in a closet to cool slowly. These closets are kept at a certain temperature, and it requires from three hours to several days to bring the candy to the right consistency. When it is taken out the starch is removed with a brush, and the candies are ready for sale. Each kind requires a different mode of treatment.

SECULAR NEWS.

A stalk of tobacco, eight feet in height, is shown in the Agricultural Museum. It was sent from Granville county. The diameter of the stalk is an inch and a half.—Hale's Weekly.

Edison is said to have perfected his electric light. It will be cheaper than gas, or even oil, and the machinery for its manufacture of the simplest and most inexpensive kind. Since the perfection of the invention gas stock has fallen considerably in New York.

It is now stated that the Western Insane Asylum, at Morganton, will cost $300,000. Already $160,000 has been appropriated for this purpose, of which $10,000 remain unexpended.—Charlotte Observer.

Superintendent Mills stated to us that the affairs of the Orphan Asylum were in better condition than for sometime previous. The aid from the people is becoming more systematic. The Masonic Order are doing themselves great credit in so nobly sustaining this institution.—Henderson Review.

Prof. Simonds, of the University, is calling attention to the flora of North Carolina by very valuable magazine articles.—Chapel Hill Ledge.

The sheriff of New Hanover county, according to his custom, gave a Cristmas dinner to the prisoners in the county jail.

The president of the Dismal Swamp Canal Company has favored us with a copy of the report for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30. The revenue amounted to $10,492 being $1,900 over that of the previous year. The number of vessels passing through were 1,291, and the number of passengers 3,298. The canal is advertised for sale on the 15th of January.—Elizabeth City Carolinian.

Bogus Certificates.

It is no vile drugged stuff, pretending to be made of wonderful foreign roots, barks, &c., and puffed up by long bogus certificates of pretended miraculous cures, but a simple, pure, effective medicine, made of well known, valuable remedies, that furnishes its own certificate by its cures. We refer to Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See "Truths" and "Proverbs," in another column.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.

An Enlarged View of the Pad.

Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs. Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago, Ill.

THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated American
WORM SPECIFIC
OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a knawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,

DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

—:o:—

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

Benson's Capcine POROUS PLASTER
Celebrated the World Over.

The manufacturers were awarded the highest and only medal given rubber plasters, at both the Centennial and Paris Expositions.

FAR SUPERIOR TO common porous plasters, liniments, the so-called electrical appliances, &c. It is the best known remedy for Lame and Weak Back, rheumatism, Female Weakness, Sciatica, Lumbago, Diseased Kidneys, Spinal Complaints and all ills for which porous plasters are used. Ask your druggist for Benson's Capcine Plaster, and see that you get nothing else. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25 cents.

Mailed on receipt of price by SEABURY & JOHNSON, 21 Platt Street, New York. dec21-1m

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY
CURATINE
A VEGETABLE MEDICINE FOR THE BLOOD, LIVER & KIDNEYS.

CURATINE, For Blood Diseases.
CURATINE, For Liver Complaints.
CURATINE, For Kidney Diseases.
CURATINE, For Rheumatism.
CURATINE, For Scrofula Diseases.
CURATINE, For Erysipelas, Pimples, Blotches, etc.

A medicinal compound of known value—combining in one preparation the curative powers for the evils which produce all diseases of the Blood, the Liver, the Kidneys. Harmless in action and thorough in its effect. It is unexcelled for the cure of all Blood Diseases such as Scrofula, Tumors, Boils, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Rheumatism, Mercurial Poisoning, also Constipation, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Retention of Urine, etc.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR IT.
THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO.
BALTIMORE, Md.

dec 17 633-eowly

NEWEST
SABBATH SCHOOL MUSIC BOOKS
60,000 Already Sold.
HEAVENLY CAROLS
By Rev. I. Baltzell and Rev. E. S. Lorenz.

Including an improved Elementary and Practical Department on the Theory of Music, by J. H. Kurzenknabe. 176 pages. Board cover. Single copies, by mail, 35 cents. Per dozen, by mail, $4. Per dozen, by express, $3 60.

GOLDEN SONGS,
For the Sabbath School.
NO BETTER BOOK IN MARKET.
150,000 Sold.
By Rev. I. Baltzell.

Including an Elementary and Practical Department on the Theory of Music, by J. H. Kurzenknabe. 176 Pages. Board Cover. Single copies, by mail, 35 cents. Per dozen, by express, $3 60 or $4 per dozen by mail, postage paid. Address
W. J. SHUEY, Dayton, Ohio.
dec 17 623-4t

ORGANS New 7-stop Organ, $46. New 13-stop Organ, only $66. 16 days' trial. Catalogue free. U. S. PIANO CO., 163 Bleecker st., N. Y

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.

1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.

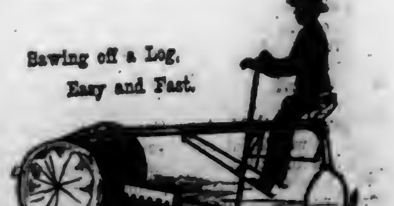
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.

5000 Sacks Salt.

For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

AGENTS WANTED For the handsomest and CHEAPEST BIBLES Ever furnished Agents. Extra Terms and Large CASH PREMIUMS. FORSHEE & McMAKIN, Cincinnati, O.

oct 8 618-13teow



Sawing off a Log, Easy and Fast.

Our latest improved sawing machine cuts off a 2-foot log in 2 minutes. A $100 PRESENT will be given to two men who can saw as much in the old way, as one man can with this machine. Circulars sent free. W. GILES, 741 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

nov 19 619-4t eow

THE IMPROVED DEMAS

A turning lathe and bracket saw combined. So low in price as to come within the reach of all. Boxed free and delivered to Express Co. with all extras on receipt of $8.00. The Improved 1880 Holly Scroll Saw, $3.00. Lester, New American, Fleetwood, Dexter, and all leading machines at manufacturers' prices. Send Stamp for Illustrated Catalogue. Address J. J. WATROUS, 38 Arcade, Cincinn'ti, O.

nov 19 619-4teow

BLYMYER M'F'G CO. BELLS.

Church, School, Fire-alarm, Fine-toned, low-priced, warranted. Catalogue with 1500 testimonials, prices, etc., sent free. Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.

dec 8 621-eow-1y

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

Proverbs.	Proverbs.
"For sinking spells, fits, dizziness, palpitation and low spirits, rely on Hop Bitters."	"The greatest appetizer, stomach, blood and liver regulator—Hop Bitters."
"Read of, procure and use Hop Bitters, and you will be strong, healthy and happy."	"Take Hop Bitters three times a day and you will have no doctor bills to pay."
"Ladies, do you want to be strong, healthy and beautiful? Then use Hop Bitters."	"Hop Bitters builds up strengthens and cures continually from the first dose."
"$500 will be paid for a case that Hop Bitters will not cure or help."	"Fair skin, rosy cheeks and the sweetest breath in Hop Bitters."
"Clergymen, Lawyers Editors, Bankers and Ladies need Hop Bitters daily."	"Kidney and Urinary complaints of all kinds permanently cured by Hop Bitters."
"Hop Bitters has restored to sobriety and health, perfect wrecks from intemperance."	"Sour stomach, sick headache and dizziness, Hop Bitters cures with a few doses."

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,
MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,
1879—'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's-day, into two Terms.

The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.

There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:

1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.

2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.

3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.

A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshmen Class, is in successful operation.

Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.

Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.

For Catalogues and other information apply to
Rev. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D., President.

jan 16 592-

ALTAFFER & PRICE
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Woodwork and Builder's Hardware.

We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.

Church Windows Doors Pew Ends
CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles.

Factory foot of Walnut St. Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross } Wilmington, N. C.

apl 16 586-1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL.

HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF
Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish
Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,
COTTON BAGGING and TIES.

☞ We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.

HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
63-ly

BUY THE BEST.

WE HAVE now on hand finished.

35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.

Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.

Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.

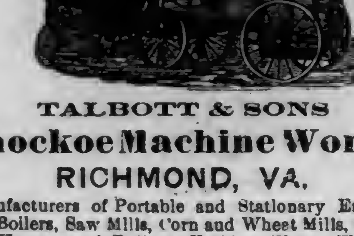
A. A. McKETHAN & SONS,
Fayetteville, N. C.

Oct. 21. 354-t

TO THE TRADE
—AT—
Low Prices.

400 Boxes D. S. and SMOKED SIDES,
1000 Bdls GRIP TIES,
2000 Bdls ACME TIES,
1000 Bdls PIECED TIES,
1000 Whole and Half Rolls BAGGING,
500 Kegs NAILS,
300 Bales HAY,
5000 Bush CORN,
250 Bbls SUGARS,
250 Bags COFFEE,
1000 Bbls FLOUR, following brands: La Rose, Blanche, Jack Frost, Plant's Extra, Paragon, Princess, &c.

WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.



TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.

Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings Machinery of Every Description.

Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.

TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER.
The Invention of the Age.

It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape.)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
☞ Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.

JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.

JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS, PUBLISHERS,
AND
BOOK BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.

GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.

We are prepared to execute in the very best style,
ALL KINDS OF
JOB PRINTING
SUCH AS

Business Cards,	Statements,	Catalogues,
Visiting Cards,	Handbills,	Manifests,
Wedding Cards,	Posters,	Bills Lading,
Show Cards,	Notices,	Receipts,
Bill Heads,	Checks,	Labels,
Letter Heads,	Notes,	Tags,
Note Heads,	Drafts,	Envelopes,
Account Sales,	School Circulars,	Pamphlets,

and in fact, every description of
RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING
AT THE
LOWEST HARD TIMES PRICES.

We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed. Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS WANTED For the Pictorial Bible Commentator, 1,018 Pages, 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & Co., 66 N. 4th St., Phil'a., Pa.

oct 15 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO New Organs 13 Stops, 3 set Golden Tongue Reeds, 5 Oct's, 2 Knee Swells, Walnut Case, warnt'd 6 years, Stool & Book $98. New Pianos, Stool, Cover & Book, $143 to $255. Before you buy be sure to write me. Illustrated Newspaper sent Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.

oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.
CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
68 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.

SAMPLES SENT FREE!

Also, to their
DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.

Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.

All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 12-1y

McMILLAN BROS.,
MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN
SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS

15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS
FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.

Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes, Still Doors & Grate bars.

As we have four Copper-smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only

Regular and Reliable Establishment

where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing

D. G. McMILLAN, Supt.
Fayetteville, N. C.

feb 12

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.
HAVE FOR SALE.

2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.

Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.

Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.

Nov. 19 463-1y

ADRIAN & VOLLERS
CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present,

SMOKED BACON,
in hogsheads and boxes,
HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKGS.
Breakfast Strips,
Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal.
SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,
Molasses and Syrup
OF ALL KINDS.
FLOUR of all Qualities,
and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries.

nov 19 551-12m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
36 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md.

Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.

Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c.

mch 28 481-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES
OF THE
GENERAL ASSEMBLY.
OF THE
Presbyterian Church in the United States.

THE CLERKS.

Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.

Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D. Richmond, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.

President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.

Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq. Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.

Secretary Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.

Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md.

PUBLICATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va.

Treasurer—O. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION.

Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D.D., Memphis, Tenn.

Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn.

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September
6. Education—First Sabbath in November

WE KEEP

PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR, FAIRBANK'S LARD,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FINE N. O. SYRUP,
And other Standard articles.
Orders solicited.
HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

END OF

YEAR

Microfilmed by

North Carolina Department of Archives and History

Division of Archives and Manuscripts

Raleigh, North Carolina

MICROFILMED BY
MAR 13 1969
N. C. DEPT. OF ARCHIVES & HISTORY
J.A.L.-728

THE NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN WILMINGTON WEEKLY 1880

1880

FILMED FROM ORIGINALS FROM THE

UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY, RICHMOND, VA.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

NEW SERIES—VOL. XIII—No 6 | WILMINGTON, JANUARY 7, 1880. | [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXIII—No. 1,246.

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

If not in the year, in advance $2 65
If payment be delayed six months 3 15
If only six months, in advance 1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is inconvenient for the Minister to act, some other suitable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each New subscriber of $3 65.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procured without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

PRESBYTERIANISM DEFENDED.

In confirmation of what I have said concerning the importance of Scriptural measures and instructions in times of religious interest, and the injurious tendencies of certain unscriptural measures and instructions, I will, in this article, quote the opinions on this subject of some distinguished ministers of the Gospel.

Rev. Dr. Griffin, late president of Williams College, after having alluded to eight revivals of religion which occurred in the college within the space of twenty-six years, says:

"The means employed in these revivals have been but two—the clear presentation of divine truth and prayer, nothing to work upon the passions but sober, solemn truth, presented as far as possible, in its most interesting attitudes, and closely applied to the conscience. The meetings have been still and orderly with no signs of emotion in the hearers than the solemn look and the silent tear. We have been anxiously studious to guard against delusive hopes and to expose the workings of a deceitful heart, forbearing all encouragement except what the converts themselves could derive from Christ and the promises, knowing that any reliance on our opinion was drawing comfort from us and not from the Saviour. We have not accustomed them to the bold and unqualified language that such a one is converted, but have used a dialect calculated to keep alive a sense of the danger of deception. For a similar reason we have kept them back from a profession of religion about three months. . . . . Much has been done of late to lead awakened sinners to commit themselves in order to get them over that indecision and fear of man which have kept them back, and to render it impossible for them to return with consistency. For this purpose they are called upon to request public prayers by rising to come out into the aisle in token of their determination to be for God, to take particular seats, called in bad English anxious seats, to come forward and kneel in order to be prayed for, and, in very many instances, to give themselves to religion at once. . . . I have seen enough to convince me that inquirers are very apt to place a self-righteous dependence on this act of commitment. 'I have taken one step, and now I hope God will do something for me,' is langnage which I have heard more than once."

Rev. Ashbel Green, D. D., late president of Princeton College, after speaking of the "excesses" and the "new measures" connected with the "great religious excitement in Kentucky" in 1801 and 1802, says:

"Cumberland Presbyterianism, Shakerism, Universalism, and Deism, reaped a large part of the harvest that grew up from the seed which was sown by the exclusive revival men at that time. Kentucky has not yet fully recovered from the injury which was done to her religious interests at this memorable period. It was followed by an open avowal and general prevalence of infidel principles, with all their mournful consequences, beyond anything that had previously appeared. I cannot attempt to enumerate all, nor the half of the errors broached, and the abuses committed in the name of religious excitement which have occurred in our country. The distinguishing doctrines, and the ecclesiastical order of our church, have, at such periods, always suffered. The doctrines of God's sovereignty, original sin, the entire dependence of the sinner on the special influence of the Holy Spirit for the work of regeneration and conversion, justification solely by the righteousness of Christ imputed to the believing penitent, and received by faith alone, have almost invariably been either denied or perverted and misrepresented in a manner that was equivalent to a denial."

Dr. Porter, in his "Lectures on Homiletics," speaks of Dr. Nettleton as "the minister of Christ, whose experience and success in such seasons (revivals) have been greater than those of any other man in modern times," and then quotes Nettleton as saying, "I have seen Churches run down by repeated excitements in which there was emotion merely, without instruction. In the first stage of a revival, while depravity is yet ascendant, and conscience asleep, I would preach the Law, with its awful sanctions and solemn claims on sinners to be holy, and that immediately. But when the first moments of a revival are past, and sinners are settling down on presumptuous confidences I would preach Election. Conscience is then roused enough to make a cord which sinners cannot break. Their own convictions are on my side, so that they cannot escape."

The following views of Dr. Nettleton are decided and suggestive:

"In every case of clear conviction there is in the mind of the sinner a painful sense of obligation to repent, and a fearful apprehension that he never shall repent. In this state he sometimes inquires, 'Do you think there is any hope in my case? Do you think I ever shall become a Christian?' The proper answer to these inquiries is, 'I do not know; it is altogether uncertain. One thing is certain, however great your sins may be, if you repent, they shall be pardoned, but whether you will ever repent is altogether uncertain. Sinners as anxious as you and perhaps more so have returned to stupidity, and their last state has become worse than the first.' When sinners are in this state of mind their friends are exceedingly prone to flatter them. 'O, don't despair; be patient, wait God's time, you will doubtless find relief.' Such language is exceedingly dangerous. Every word takes it for granted that the sinner's concern for his soul is without foundation. One of two things is true: either such directions are wrong, or the sinner is not under conviction, for if he is under real conviction the Spirit of God is showing him his true condition; his apprehensions are well founded, and if we attempt to remove these apprehensions we directly counteract the operations of the Holy Spirit. . . . . I have often been struck with this circumstance in the mode of preaching that nothing was heard of the danger of a spurious conversion. For months together the thought never seemed to be glanced at that there was any such thing as a satanic influence in the form of religion, but only as openly waging war against all religion. Such a character as an enthusiastic hypocrite or a self-deceived person seemed never once to be dreamed of. . . . These ministers who do not discriminate between true and false zeal, true and false affections, in their preaching and conversation, and make that difference and hold it up to the view of the world, if possible, clear as the sun, heartily approving of the one and as heartily and as publicly condemning the other, will turn out to be the greatest traitors to the cause of revivals. They become responsible, not only for the sentiment in question but also for all the corruptions which prevail in consequence of this neglect. The neglect of ministers to correct these evils for fear of doing mischief, or of being denounced as carnal and cold hearted, or as enemies to revivals, is extremely puerile and wicked. The sentiment in question would, if carried out into all its consequences, defend every abomination in religion that could be named. It would soon come to this: that the only evidence that ministers are cold, and carnal, and stupid, is that they cannot approve of every art, and abominable practice in laymen, women and children, in their attempts to promote a revival. And their approbation of all these abominations would be taken as a good sign, and as an evidence that they are awake, whereas none but carnal and cold-hearted ministers would be influenced by such mean motives. It is only a trick of the devil to frighten the watchman of Israel from his post that he may get possession of it himself, or, what he would like still better, by such base motives to entoil and enlist him in his service by compelling him to adopt his own measures. So did not Paul. His two Epistles to the Corinthians contain little else than a humbling disclosure of abominable practices and quarrels about men and measures in promoting a revival.

P. T. PENICK.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

PRAYER FOR THE STUDENTS AT OUR SEMINARIES.

It has occurred to me that in the devotional meetings of the Church it is strange that we seldom hear a petition offered in behalf of our theological students. We often hear, and very properly, too, earnest prayer made for all that are in the Gospel ministry, but not for those in preparation for the work. My object in this article is to call the attention of our churches to this matter. I hope you will do so in your editorial columns. We Presbyterians believe in the Divine sovereignty—certainly we do—it is as plainly taught in the Bible as that "God created the heavens and the earth." "He will have mercy on whom He will have mercy, and whom He will He hardeneth," is what the great Apostle to the Gentiles says on that subject, or rather the Holy Ghost by the mouth of His servant says it. But no one ever saw an intelligent Presbyterian that did not believe as firmly in the duty and efficacy of prayer, for the Scriptures also teach that doctrine just as plainly. Allow me to say, by the way, that it is the very opposite of the truth that the doctrine of God's sovereignty discourages prayer and active effort for the cause of Christ. It encourages both. We pray for just what God has promised to give, and that is the reason we do pray. You remember the remark of Luther—"Prayer is the Christians 'big gun,' with which he doth bombard heaven, and the promises of God must be the shot which is to be sent against the gates of the Celestial City."

Our Church has lost ground in many parts of the country, especially in the rural districts, not only for the want of ministers, but for want of efficiency on the part of our ministers. Let the Church commence now and form the habit, in all their meetings for prayer, of asking God's blessing upon those who are to be the future leaders of the host of God's elect, that by His Holy Spirit He would give His young servants some just appreciation of the dignity and importance of the work to which the Church, and as we hope, the Spirit, has called them. Surely to be an embassador of that King, who is the King of Kings, is the highest honor that can be bestowed upon a sinful man. That He would make these men of earnest faith and prayer; give them a longing for the salvation of souls, and great zeal for the glory of their Divine Master. Let the professors be remembered, too, in all the prayers of God's people, that they may have, themselves, clear perceptions of the plan of salvation, and have the Spirit's aid in teaching it to the young men. I do believe, Mr. Editor, that if this matter was properly in the minds and hearts of our Church, we would soon see in the increase of efficiency of our preachers the happy results of it. I.

For the N. C. Presbyterian

"ARAMANCHY" vs. "ALLEMANDE."

A few weeks ago the reporter of Rev. C. H. Wiley's Historical Addidress on Alamance Church, represented him as deriving the name Alamance from Allemande, referring to a body of German settlers who originally occupied a section on that stream. This etymological derivation is plausible, and would be satisfactory, were there not historical evidence for another derivation. In Colonel Byrd's "History of the Dividing Line" (between Virginia and North Carolina), he mentions the Saxapahaw river, and says: "Not far from thence the (Trading) path crosses Aramanchy river, a branch of Saxapahaw, and about forty miles beyond that, Deep river." (Hist. Div. Line, p 85) The path is described as passing through Haw old fields, between Eno and Saxapahaw. There is no doubt that "Aramanchy" is the same stream as Alamance. The Dividing Line was run in 1728, and Colonel Byrd died in 1744. This history was composed, probably soon after 1728—certainly before 1744, the date of his death. Now the evidence is that the first settlers, both German and Scotch-Irish, began to settle in that region between 1740 and 1750. Thence the name is older than the settlement, and could not be derived from "Allemande."

As to the change of "a" into "l," Mr. Lawson, in his History of North Carolina, says: "As for the two consonants 'l' and 'k,' I never knew them in any Indian speech I have met withal" (p. 378) The change of the letters was probably made by the English, as being more euphonious than the Indian pronunciation. I have no clew to the meaning of the word "Aramanchy." J. R.

A DEADLY SERPENT.

Some time ago a party of sailors visited the Zoological Gardens. One of them, excited by the liquor he had taken, and as an act of bravado to his companions, took hold of a deadly serpent. He held it up, having seized it by the nape of the neck in such a way that it could not sting him. As he held it the snake, unperceived by him, coiled itself round his arm, and at length it got a firm grasp, and wound itself tighter and tighter, so that he was unable to detach it. As the pressure of the snake increased the danger grew, and at length the sailor was unable to maintain his hold on the neck of the venomous reptile, and was compelled to loose it. What did the snake then? It turned around and stung him, and he died. So it is with the appetite for strong drink. We can control it at first, but in a little while it controls us. We can hold its influence in our grasp for a while, so that it shall be powerless; but afterwards "it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

THE YEAR OF CHRIST'S BIRTH.

In the current reckoning the birth of our Saviour is placed too late from three to five years. Such is the opinion of all chronologists now. A sort of average has been usually adopted, and it is commonly said, in general terms, that it is four years too late, i. e. a medium between the extreme of three and five which different chronologists have fixed upon; but it is not certainly known whether it was three, or four, or five years, though there is little question but that it was at least four years.

How happened this mistake in the vulgar reckoning? In the following way: The birth of Christ was first made an era from which to reckon dates by Dionysius Exignus, about A. D. 532. He supposed that Christ was born on the 25th of December, in the year of Rome (A. U. C.) 753 in the consulship of Lentulus and Piso. His reckoning and this era were adopted by the Anglo Saxons in England about A. D. 600; afterward, in the latter part of the eighth century, by the Frank kings, Pepin and Charlemagne. So it soon passed into general use.

But Dionysius Exiguus mistook the year, and probably the day and the month. As to the year, Christ was certainly born before the death of Herod the Great (see Matt). Now Herod the Great died in the year of Rome 749 or 750. Some chronologists have attempted to make a nearer approximation to the year of Christ's birth by the help of Luke's remark (iii: 2-23) that Jesus was about thirty years old in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar. Tiberius became sole emperor, August, in the year of Rome 767. Add the fourteen years of Tiberius' reign, and it appears that Christ was about thirty years of age in the year of Rome 781. But there is some reason to think that Augustus made Tiberius partner in the government two years before, that is, in 765 p'us 14. In this case Tiberius' fifteenth year would be 779 of the year of Rome. Now, if our Saviour was about thirty years old in the year of Rome 781, He was born about the year of Rome 751. If in the year of Rome 779, then He was born about the year of Rome 749.

But the remark of Luke does not serve to fix the year precisely, for he says "about thirty years of age," to say nothing of the uncertainty whether he reckoned Tiberius' reign from the death of Augustus or from two years before. We have to fall back on the death of Herod the Great, and that fixes the date of Christ's birth at least three or four years before the vulgar era.

But this historical uncertainty as to the precise day of Christ's birth does not essentially affect the interest of our precious Christmas celebration. The event we celebrate is a reality, and the day which the Christian world agrees upon for the celebration of the event, we all unanimously accept and improve for that commemoration.—Christian at Work.

THE PLEASURE OF DOING GOOD.

There is a satisfaction in the thought of having done what we know to be right, and there is a discomfort amounting often to bitter and remorseful agony, in the thought of having done what conscience tells us to be wrong. This implies a sense of the rectitude of what is virtuous. There is instant delight in the first conception of benevolence; there is sustained delight in its continued exercise; there is consummated delight in the happy, smiling and prosperous result of it. Kindness, and honesty, and truth, are of themselves, and irrespective of their rightness, sweet unto the taste of the inner man. Malice, envy, falsehood, injustice, irrespective of their wrongness, have, of themselves, the bitterness of gall and wormwood.—Scottish-American Journal.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE NEW SONG.

REVELATION v 9-13.

VERSIFIED BY REV. OLIVER CRANE, M. D.

Worthy the Lamb to interpret the pages
Writ with the Trinity's counsel sublime:
Worthy to open the seals that for ages
Shrouded the destinies future of time:
Worthy to take the book,
Worthy thereon to look,
Worthy the name He took,
Worthy forever the Lamb who was slain.

Worthy the Lamb who was slain to redeem us,
Washing our sins in His pardoning blood:
Worthy the Lamb who has deigned to esteem us,
Making us kings and as priests unto God:
Worthy angelic lays,
Worthy redemption's praise,
Worthy in all His ways,
Worthy forever the Lamb who was slain.

Worthy the Lamb who, from every nation,
Out of each kindred, and people, and tongue,
Gathered and loved us and gave us salvation,
Worthy the anthem adoringly sung:
Worthy the crown to own:
Worthy of heaven's throne,
Worthy all homage shown,
Worthy forever the Lamb who was slain.

Worthy the Lamb His dominion possessing,
Worthy of riches and wisdom and strength,
Worthy of honor, and glory, and blessing,
Worthy the highest hosannas at length:
Worthy a choral strain,
Worthy the new refrain,
Worthy to rule and reign,
Worthy forever the Lamb who was slain.

"INSOLE CHRISTIANS"

Are a class of persons whose only ambition is to escape danger and trouble, and who hope to be borne by the ordinances of the church easily through this world and safely into the next. To "endure hardness," to "rough it," to march in the face of storms, and look into the eye of the foe, is no part of their desires.

The epithet, though homely, is very expressive. Inside the shoe and out of the wet, it is used to fill up when there is waste-room, occupying a humble but not uncomfortable place, quite different from the outer leather, a passive, though not always a useless appendage. They never become the earnest Christian workers, the faithful servants of Christ, whose constant endeavor is to advance His kingdom and who look for His coming.—Christian Herald.

ALONE WITH GOD.

BY THE REV. RAY PALMER, D. D.

No one can have a very dear friend without at some time desiring to enjoy his society alone. It is only when all others are withdrawn, and a stranger intermeddleth not, that two loving human hearts can so entirely come in contact that the interchange of sympathy between them shall be unlimited and perfect. If one has many attached friends, he may find great pleasure occasionally in friendly intercourse with several of them at once. This intercourse, however, will neither be so intimate nor so heartful and unrestrained as that which is found when only one of them shares the secluded hour. Such is the experience—the common law—of social life.

It holds equally in the life of God which the Christian believer lives. To share with others of his children who are in living sympathy with him his conscious presence, as in seasons of united praise and worship, may afford a high enjoyment. But the true-hearted disciple has always desired and sought opportunities of communion with God with none to witness or share the interview. The Saviour himself was wont to retire, not only from His public labors and from the multitude, but from the chosen twelve, that He might be alone with the Father. He so felt the need of this that He not only excluded the favored three, but even the beloved disciple himself from those hours in which His spirit would open itself to its most secret depths and seek that consciousness of vital contact, that perfect and ineffable communion, the nature of which can be learned only by experience. The Christian history of all ages testifies that very generally among faithful souls the same necessity has been felt.

Undoubtedly the great want of the Christian world to-day is augmented spiritual power. It has intellectual power enough for the task of repelling the bold assaults of the latest forms of unbelief; and the men who have set themselves to convert the wonderful discoveries of modern science into weapons to be used against revealed religion are already finding themselves recoiling from the vigorous defenses of Christian truth which they have so called forth. But the most effective and noblest vindication of Christianity is to be found in the spiritual life and power and beauty and joy which it, and it alone, brings ont of the moral death and weakness and ugliness and misery which the irreligious world presents. It is in the undeniable fact that love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance—all elements, in short, of the very highest type of character—are produced wherever Christianity in its true import is heartily received, that the religion of Jesus Christ makes an appeal to the conscience and hearts of men which compels them to accept it as indeed divine. These admirable graces of the divine spirit only germinate and grow in proportion as the soul habitually abides in conscious communion with him, and is quickened and molded by his power.—Christian Union.

A MOTHER.

A touching incident occurred a few weeks ago at the distributing of prizes in the English School of Sciences and Arts at Keighley.

The Bishop of Manchester gave the prizes. To the pupils and most of the large audience, the bishop occupies the place of a father to his children; not only revered as a man of God, but as a liberal, practical thinker, one of the leaders of opinion in England in all matters which influence the elevation of humanity.

Surrounded by the boys, and their parents, the good bishop suddenly was led to speak of his own mother, and told the story of how she, "not a clever managing woman," had been left a widow with seven children; how her great love and trust in God had helped her to live, sacrificing not only luxury, but comfort, to make a home, bare of all but the most meager necessaries, bright and happy as that House Beautiful, whose chambers were called Peace, and from which could be seen hills of heaven. Most of her children through her efforts have risen to positions where they could help to make the world wiser and better. "She is now," said the bishop, with broken voice, "in my house, paralyzed, speechless and helpless; and when I looked at her sweet face this morning, I thanked God, Who had given her to me. I owe to her all that I am."

Goethe, it is said, always declared that to his mother he owed not only all his genius, but his strength.

There is a period in the life of most boys when they feel themselves immeasurably wiser than their mothers; the little knowledge they have acquired from books intoxicates them like new wine. Probably they find the good woman at home who gave them life and has sacrificed herself for them daily, is ignorant of their hobby—mathematics, Latin, or base-ball—and they are too apt to show their contempt in rude disobedience.

When a man reaches the position of Goethe or the Bishop of Manchester, he is wise enough to appreciate a mother's unselfish love at its real value.—Youth's Companion.

HEIRSHIP IN SUFFERING.

One who has more than once looked on the gates of death, and again stands before them in humble submission to the Divine will, says, "I have suffered very greatly, but no doubt I have deserved it all." There is no repining, no murmur of injustice, no feeling of irritation against God, but a quiet bowing of the head to a will not understood, and a patient bending of the shoulders to smitings for sins unknown. In the deep sense of the sinfulness of our nature, in the consciousness of unworthiness, there is a full vindication of God's providence, although it has watered life's way with tears.

Another, who has also rejoiced in the hope of glory, whose life has been blessed by the assurance of adoption into the family of God, when called to pass through long, and sore trial says: "I cannot see why God so deals with me. If I am a child of God, why do I suffer so much? Have I forfeited his favor? Has he withdrawn his love from me? Why do I suffer thus?"

Seemingly these sufferers have directly opposite experiences, the one showing patient submission and the other a rebellious spirit in time of affliction. And yet they have so much in common that they really differ but little. They both possess the grace of God, and are in truth his children. They are both conscious of faith in the Lord Jesus and of the new life within them. One bows to the sovereign will and accepts the chastisement for sins unknown; the other, not conscious of special transgression, by the same logic, draws from the fact of great suffering the conclusion of doubt as to a personal interest in Christ. Both fail to comprehend all that is included in being the children of God, and therefore fail to enjoy the peculiar comfort His grace is designed to give, and the full measure of Christ's peace.

We never weary of reading, "If children, then heirs." With a delight that grows to amazement, we ponder the several parts of the sentence. From the simple fact of our relation to God as children, we are heirs without any qualifying condition as to the degree of our obedience or the number of our years of grace. We are children, therefore heirs—"heirs of God," possessing an interest in every part of our Father's vast estate; "joint heirs with Christ," heirs together with Him, sharing with Him whatever he inherits from the Father. The heart leaps with a joy that is only restrained by the seeming impossibility of such a Divine inheritance. We may not limit the words of the Spirit, and we rejoice with a joy unspeakable. The very greatness of this assurance closes our eyes to the words inseparably joined—"if so be we suffer with Him, that we be also glorified together."

This is to say, our being the children of God unites us with Christ in the whole of his life. Our heirship to the glory is conditioned on our heirship to the suffering. If we would bear the image of the heavenly we must also share the earthly. If we would be crowned with honor and glory with Him, we must pass through suffering and death with Him. And therefore it is that the Apostle says, "I now rejoice in my sufferings for you, and fill up that which is behind of the affliction of Christ in my flesh." Afflictions were not painless to him, but he rejoiced in them because he was thus more conformed to the life of Christ; his experience was filled up nearer to the measure of Christ's experience, and therefore he would know more of his peace here and enter more perfectly into his glory hereafter.

In this view we can understand the love of God in afflictions. Being children, we are heirs to it, and His love does not permit Him to withhold the blessing. There is a degree of peace, a fullness of joy, a height of glory, which can be attained only through suffering in Christ. If God lifts before us the cross, He also uncovers the crown; the Lord Jesus from the cross beside us says, "We shall also be glorified together." Afflictions are part of God's great work of grace, and are sent upon us because we are children whom He loves and whom He thus lifts up into the fullness of Christ's joy. The sense of unworthiness remains, but God's love is thereby exalted; the agony of the suffering remains, but it brings us nearer the cross and leaves in us the marks of the Lord Jesus. Looking beyond the seen trials to the unseen relation to God as His children and to the joy set before us, the afflictions work in us both grace and glory.—United Presbyterian.

A LIVING GOD.

Did you ever, I ask you, hear a religious man say, as years went on, that his religion had disappointed him? Nay, the life of our God is continued even now upon earth; and where that life is, there is the full, unending, irresistible power by which God will lead us from strength to strength, until at length we come to appear before our God in Zion. We worship no absent God. We serve no lifeless abstraction. We devote ourselves to no mere idle idea. We are buoyed up by no mere inflated enthusiasm. We serve a God living—a God present—a God who loves—a God who acts—a God who bids us trust Him to the uttermost, as we patiently pursue the path from whose end, even now, He is beckoning us, whispering to us the while, as our minds are dark, and our hearts are cold, and our fears are great, these rich words of most abundant promise, "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now."—Canon Wilberforce.

GOLD DUST.

God gives us love. Something to love
He lends us; but when love is grown
To ripeness, that on which it throve
Falls off, and love is left alone.
—Tennyson.

Christian union is well, but no courtesies between two regiments ever yet defeated the other army.—Phillips Brooks.

To be able to bear provocation is an argument of great wisdom; and to forgive it, of great mind.—Tillotson.

Feelings come and go like light troops following the victory of the present; but principles, like troops of the line, are undisturbed and stand fast.—Richter.

He who thinks he has no need of Christ, has too high thoughts of himself. He who thinks Christ cannot help him, has too low thoughts of Christ.—J. Mason.

They come and go, the blessed days of peace;
No cloud glooms down, but sunshine trembles through,
And doubt stays not where patient faith looks up
And takes the good each sweet day holds in store.
So on, and on, toward the sunset land
His strong arm leads and clears the tangled way,
While from His hand unstinted bounty falls,
And undawned splendor brightens far beyond.
—Selected.

We should often have reason to be ashamed of our most brilliant actions if the world could see the motives from which they spring. La Rochefoucauld.

We cannot skip the seasons of our education. We cannot hasten the ripeness and the sweetness by a single day, nor dispense with one night's nipping frost, nor one week's blighting east wind.—F. W. Robertson.

A tender conscience is like the apple of a man's eye—the least dust that gathers into it affects it. There is no surer and better way to know whether our consciences are dead and stupid, than to observe what impression small sins make upon them.—Samuel Hopkins.

The damps of Autumn sink into the leaves and prepare them for the necessity of their fall; and thus insensibly are we, as years close around us, detached from our tenacity of life by the gentle pressure of recorded sorrow.—Landor.

"In the depths of the sea the waters are still; the heaviest grief is that borne in silence; the deepest love flows through the eye and touch; the purest joy is unspeakable; and the most impressive preacher is the silent one whose lips are closed."

In heaven ambition cannot dwell,
Nor avarice in the vaults of hell;
Earthly these passions as of earth,
They perish where they have their birth,
But love is indestructible.
—Southey.

INSPIRATION OF LIFE.

In a little town in the woods in one of the Western States, at the close of a conference missionary meeting, a pale, weary-faced woman came forward, and taking the hand of the President, said, "This woman's missionary work is an inspiration to my life. From month to month, when I send my little to the treasury, I feel that, with my own hand, I am unlocking forces which will speedily bring the kingdoms of this world to our Lord and to His Christ." In another church, too poor to sustain regular preaching, where a woman's foreign missionary society was organized, one of the women, who had joined the society by the payment of a small sum, exclaimed, "I am no longer simply a part of this village. By this act I am made conscious of my relations to the whole world."—Presbyterian.

A PICTURE.

In the London exhibition there was once a beautiful painting, representing a mother on her knees in her desolate chamber, beside the body of her little child. Her face rose to just such a height that she looked across the edge of the coffin straight towards an open window, through which the western sun was streaming rays of lustrous twilight, kindling the whole sky with supernatural silver, purple, violet and gold. Her eyes were arrested with the wonderful sunset; and the legend underneath the picture was what perhaps she might have been repeating to herself: "The sun shall be no more thy light by day; neither for brightness shall the moon give light unto thee; but the Lord shall be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory. Thy sun shall no more go down; neither shall thy moon withdraw itself; for the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended."—Dr. C. S. Robinson.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

Gleaned from Exchanges:

The Hawaiian church is not only self-sustaining, but has its Foreign Missionary Board.

The Muller Orphanage, near Bristol, has recently received a legacy of near £10,000 from the estate of the late Mr. Alexander Botefeure, of Bayswater, London.

An innovation on the present system of preaching has been introduced by the Rev. G. J. Cowley Brown, of St. Edmund's Church, Salisbury, who has commenced reading a course of Bishop Jeremy Taylor's sermons, on the ground that parochial clergy have not time to prepare the necessary weekly sermon.

A contemporary says the mitre about to be presented to a Roman Catholic ecclesiastic, and which can be seen in a West End silversmith's shop, is partly the produce of the sale of an enthusiastic young lady's jewelry. The lady recently went over to the Roman Church, and her rings and baubles, when broken up, fetched about £500.

The Pope has not yet succeeded in getting as much of his own way at Constantinople as the Vatican desires, and consequently he has suspended the nomination of Monsignor Vannutelli as his representative at the Porte until he receives more explicit declarations from the Turkish Government that full liberty will be enjoyed by the Catholic Church in the Ottoman Empire.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, as President of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, has addressed a letter to the Colonial Secretary in reference to the statement that missionaries are to be excluded from Zululand, and asking consideration for the missionaries of the Society. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, in reply, says that the Government has not received accurate official information, but promises every attention to the request.

A correspondent writes: "The Pope may be personally good, wise and peaceable; but he is powerless in Belgium, as the educational conflict has shown. His spiritual authority, in any personal sense, is as fully gone as his temporal authority, and he is compelled to be a mere Mikado to the Jesuit Tycoon. In Belgium the Popish Tycoon has all but flung down defiance to the mild Papal Mikado, who is told by the Belgium Cardinal that he is only infallible under certain conditions."

The Journal du Protestantisme Francaise says that M. Paschkoff has become the instrument of an important Protestant evangelization movement in St. Petersburg. At first he attempted to gather together the droschky drivers and coachmen of the capital, many of whom were converted. Thence his work has gradually extended until now he has at his house, every morning and evening, public reunions at which people of all ranks of society are to be met, and the prefect of police has authorized him to distribute the Scriptures and tracts in the streets of the capital.

The Pope received a few days ago 500 representatives of the League of the Apostolate of Prayer—an organization which promotes devotion to the Sacred Heart. He eulogised that devotion as in the front rank of means of salvation, remarking, "The heart of Jesus is a perfect model of the most sublime virtues; it is the inexhaustible source of the richest treasury of Heaven; everybody may find in it peace of heart, relief of suffering, blessing on enterprises, a sweet refuge in life, and especially at the hour of death. This is what we are told and assured by the heroine of the Sacred Heart, the blessed Marguerite Alacoque."

Among other things brought to the Sydney Exhibition was the smallest sea-going vessel in the world, the missionary canoe Evangelist, owned by the Rev. F. C. B. Fairey. This tiny vessel was built in London, under the supervision of Mr. John Macgregor, M. A. (Rob Roy), and made her first great voyage in February of last year, carrying her owner 300 miles round the iron-bound north and east coasts of Tasmania. The vessel weighs only 79 pounds, is 12 feet long, 28 inches wide and 12 inches deep. Considerable interest was excited in Tasmania and Victoria by her remarkable voyage. In addition to being fitted for a yacht at sea, the canoe has been adapted to become a home on shore, locker, waterproof cabin, and patent cooking stove being provided.

A meeting has been held at the office of the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, under the presidency of the Archbishop of Canterbury, with a view of meeting the urgent and repeated entreaties for instructors which Christians in Kurdistan (commonly, but as it appears improperly, called Nestorians) have addressed to the Church of England. Two gentlemen were named to the meeting and accepted. The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel has promised an annual subscription of £250, and the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge has conditionally promised a like amount. A letter has been received by the Archbishop from the Foreign Office stating that no objection existed to this mission, the headquarters of which would be at the Mesul and Oroomia, and that every protection would be afforded to the missionaries.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN, - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 7, 1880.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

OUR XXIII VOLUME.

In entering upon another volume we desire first to record our gratitude, inadequate necessarily, but we trust sincere, to God for his abounding goodness throughout the days that are past, and to express our heartfelt thankfulness to the numerous friends who have stood by the paper through all its vicissitudes of good or ill.

Nearly three years ago the present writer, full of misgivings as to the result of the adventure, bought the PRESBYTERIAN and assumed its editorial control. These misgivings arose from the certainty that if the brethren of the ministry and of the laity should withhold their moral influence; if they should fail to use their pens in its behalf; if its patrons should withdraw their pecuniary support; if, for any reason, the love of the people had chilled toward the paper and could not be reanimated, failure total and disastrous must be the result. The burden was heavy, but, thanks be to God, from first to last friends stood by it manfully. Never had enterprise firmer, truer, nobler, more self-sacrificing friends. Self-glorification is not our theme, and now that the brighter day dawns upon us, and the revival of general prosperity is bringing forward those always willing, yet until now unable to assist us, we heartily accord to those who have so freely and so generously aided by their contributions, editorial and other, to those who have actively exerted themselves through many discouragements to maintain and increase its circulation, to those who have offered their purses if need be to sustain the paper, and to patrons all, the credit which may be due for the fact that the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN enters upon its twenty-third volume with brighter prospects than for many years past.

We do not forget that for all these friends, and that for all these friends have done, our gratitude should be to Him who hears and answers prayer. And now, humbly acknowledging Him to whom, for the future as in the past, we must look for guidance, and success if such shall be His will, we ask the prayers of His people that the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN may be an instrument in the building up of His kingdom upon the earth, and in thus promoting His glory.

THE TWO EXTREMES.

Minds there are that seem to luxuriate in passivity. Chameleon-like they take their color from the minds surrounding. Their happy possessors know nought of brain toil, whatever else they know. An impression, too faint to be an opinion, is made by the first strong nature with which they come in contact, and retained until another, strong as he, sponges it off and imprints his own. They live and laugh and loiter along, but the world is none the better, nor wiser, nor stronger for them. Harmless they are as enemies, because they lack the energy of hate; useless they are as friends, because they cannot command intensity of affection. They receive our tolerance, but they cannot inspire our respect.

Quite in contrast with these is the touchy man. He is sometimes likened to a powder magazine. The simile is perfect in respect that either is easily fired and will blow you up in a twinkling. But the magazine blows itself up, and that, unfortunately, the touchy man never does. The magazine goes off and is gone, like "Graudfather's Clock," never to go again; but the human combustible doesn't, except metaphorically; you wish he would; you would go off yourself if you could. He stays awhile and gives you a bit of his mind. Generous soul! You cannot complain of short measure, but the weight is very scant, and the quality far below average.

But the touchy man is aggressive. He is apt to be a reformer, and delights in his mission. The world is all, and always, wrong; he never is. He delights in candor, so called, when exercised toward others, and finds innumerable opportunities for the display of his distinguishing virtue. He is fond of reproving in proportion as he dislikes to be reproved. He believes in the fitness of things and excels in saying unpleasant things unpleasantly. He cannot be loved, but he may well be feared. And yet, if we must take our choice, commend us to the touchy man.

THE PRESENT NEED.

We may be allowed to doubt whether the Church of the present day—Christianity—suffers so much from enemies without as from so-called friends within; from those who, as champions of the much vaunted sceptical philosophy boldly attack the citadel of truth, as from those who spike the guns pointed at the foe, or silently but persistently undermine the foundations of the fortress.

Dropping all figure the scepticism born of the principle of the natural heart that men would have it so, has lost the support which scientific men would fain have given it, and its chief apostles, still clinging to the hope that their theories may yet be proved, are forced to the admission that demonstration is wanting, and if wanting, all is mere conjecture. But the foes within the Church are those who having the form, or yet with scarce the form, still lack the power of godliness—lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God.

The great lack of the Church is spirituality. This is an eminently practical age, rather ought we to say, an unquiet, restless, active age. Everything rushes on and sober reflective thought finds no countenance. Never in the history of the world has there been so much doing and such tangible results achieved. But are we building surely? Are the foundations secure? Are the walls well cemented and strong? When we look abroad and take in the scope of Christianity in the world our spirits rise, but taking a narrower view the heart grows faint. Is the Church the world and the world the Church? Where is the line broad and deep that should separate the two?

The minds of thoughtful, earnest, godly men are turned to this subject, and here is ground for hope. Various are the methods proposed for correction of the spirit of worldliness in the Church of God. But the disease is deep seated and chronic. It reaches to the heart and is settled there where none but the Spirit of God can reach it. Let us use what measures we may to correct this manifestation of the spirit of worldliness or that, we but heal the wounds without removing the cause of the disorder. We may palliate, but do not cure. Worldliness in various forms pervades the Church and the case looks desperate; from a human point of view the case is desperate. Yet over all God reigns. He has but to breathe upon us the spirit of life and the Church will awake from the slumber of spiritual death and go forth rejoicingly in its work. The hand of God can lift us up, and that hand will be outstretched at the call of prayer. The need is, of all time, now, for that spirit of earnest importunate prayer which is based upon, which is, the soul's sincere desire for God's blessing, with acknowledgment of Him and His mercies, with that confession of sin which proceeds from repentance and full purpose of future obedience, and all in the name of Christ. In answer to prayer we may have, we assuredly will have, that baptism of the Holy Spirit that will drive out from the courts of the Lord the spirit of this world, and bring us to find the pleasure beyond all pleasures, of serving the Lord in holiness and rejoicing in His love.

GENERAL CHARLES P. KINGSBURY.

Brigadier General Charles P. Kingsbury was born in Wayne county, New York, in 1816. When quite a small boy his uncle, the late Russell Kingsbury, of Oxford, brought him to his home where he remained until he entered West Point in 1836. He was graduated in a large class in 1840, in which there were many men who became greatly distinguished in subsequent years, among them Generals Thomas and Sherman, and he led them all. He took the second place, a man from Louisiana having the first, although it was held by the cadets generally that cadet Kingsbury was much his superior. He served with distinction in the Mexican war, was Gen. Taylor's aid at the battle of Buena Vista, and is specially mentioned by him in his official report. Belonging to the Ordnance Department, his opportunities for distinction in active operations were few. He was, however, a very able man, a very brilliant and pungent writer, and of very studious habits and varied attainments. He wrote largely at one period of his life for the leading magazines and reviews of the country, and left two or three volumes in manuscript. The New York Times, in a touching and just tribute to Gen. Kingsbury, said:

"He was a veteran of two wars, and a faithful servant of his country. Quiet and severely studious of habit, slightly austere of manner, a rigid Presbyterian of the Old School, and a singularly skilful soldier in that branch of the military profession to which he was attached, Gen. Kingsbury was one of those public servants whose rule of conduct always is the strict performance of duty; his highest reward the consciousness of duty well done."

His health failed him during the late war. He was devotly attached to North Carolina, and although he felt it his duty to follow the flag of his country and to thus cut himself off from many of his nearest kin, he never ceased in the midst of war to pray that God's protecting shield should be extended over his adopted mother. In letters of his that came through the lines there were always to be found passages in which he invoked God's blessings upon North Carolina.

He wrote in his early life a Treatise on Artillery Tactics, which was long a text book at West Point. He married Miss Mary McMillan of Fayetteville, where he was stationed in his early manhood when a lieutenant of ordnance. He was for full thirty years a member of the Presbyterian Church. He was a thorough disciplinarian, and our impression is that he never received a demerit during his four years at West Point. He had been in declining health for three or four years, and on Christmas day, 1879, this distinguished and faithful soldier of his country and devout soldier of his risen Lord and Saviour, died at his home, 16 Hancock street, Brooklyn, New York. He was a man of not only uncommon abilities but of singular modesty. His dying request that his obsequies should be conducted without any military display was characteristic of the man. The Brooklyn papers contained long accounts of the impressive ceremonies at Dr. Cuyler's church, as did some of the New York papers. Among the pall-bearers were six Generals of the army, Generals Hancock, Slocum and Casey being of the number. General Sherman and General McClellan were also present, we think. He was Chief of Ordnance on Gen. McClellan's staff during all his campaigns. We close this imperfect notice with the following extract from an abstract of Rev. Dr. Cuyler's remarks at the church. The report in the Brooklyn Eagle says:

He spoke of the character of the deceased, and alluded to the fact that for eight years he had been a member of that church, and had always been one of its most devoted members. The pastor alluded especially to the regularity with which General Kingsbury attended upon the services of the church. He was always present at the weekly prayer meetings when he was in the city, and although his native modesty and diffidence did not permit him to speak, yet his conduct and character was a bright and shining example. In speaking of this phase of General Kingsbury's religious character, Dr. Cuyler alluded to the incident which occurred recently at one of the prayer meetings of the church, when, in company with General Kingsbury, there were Generals Casey and Patrick, and all three occupied the same seat—three white haired soldiers—who had been companions in arms in Mexico and elsewhere, and were likewise comrades in the service of Christ. All were West Point graduates and it was not a common sight to be seen in their prayer meetings. Both Generals Casey and Patrick spoke upon the occasion with force and power.

The deceased was a man strong in his convictions upon every point, and this trait of his character shows with especial brilliancy in all matters connected with his religious life. He was firm and well-grounded in his faith, and had a reason for it the same as he did in everything else upon which he formed an opinion.

Dr. Cuyler spoke at length upon the character of the deceased in connection with the church which he loved so well and where he was so constant an attendant. His life afforded a bright example, and was worthy of all emulation by those whom he left behind.

Dr. Cuyler spoke with great feeling and earnestness.

ALEXANDER STUART.

Alexander Stuart, junior member of the firm of R. L. & A. Stuart, died in New York city on the 23d ult., on his 70th birthday. He amassed great wealth in the business of sugar refining. Of late he had retired from all active business and lived on his income from rentals. His style of living was plain and his manners unostentatious. He was exceedingly liberal to enterprizes looking to the good of his fellow men, especially to Presbyterian enterprizes. He sometimes contributed as much as $100,000 in a single year. One of his last acts of munificence was the purchase of a magnificent estate at Princeton, N. J., which, after refitting the mansion upon it and making ample provision for its maintenance, he presented as a private residence to Dr. McCosh, President of Princeton College.

The New York Observer pays him the following tribute:

"As riches increased he did not set his heart upon them. He knew that he was a steward, to whom was committed a great responsibility, and he discharged that trust with a fulness and sufficiency, as men see, such as is rarely known among men in active business life. His own private wants being few, his style of living simple and unostentatious, he gave his money largely, but with careful discrimination as to the objects to receive his charities. To enumerate the several noble benefactions of this benevolent man would be impossible, and not the least beautiful feature of his benevolence was his unwillingness to have it known. To buy and give a church to a feeble congregation, to extinguish a church debt, to endow a chair of theology, to present a mansion completely furnished to the head of a college, to found a hall for a theological seminary, to replenish the exhausted treasury of a board, of the church or of a benevolent society, to relieve the necessities of Christian ministers, to give away in a year sometimes his whole income and more, drawing, as he would playfully say, "from his principal from principle," he made his money yield riches for others in the extension of the kingdom of God, the comfort of the poor and the welfare of man."

SUSTENTATION.

We hope our churches will do their very best on Sustentation. The appeal of our Secretaries, published last week, puts the case in vigorous shape, but not more strongly than justly. $40,000 are wanted from the Southern Church and certainly, by a strong pull, that ought to come. More than one single church in North Carolina can raise $1,000 if the mind to do is not wanting, and many churches in our Assembly can give double or triple the amount.

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

A correspondent asks that we call attention to the importance of prayer for the students of our Seminaries. The subject is one very likely to be overlooked, and assuredly is deserving of attention. We refer our readers to the article.

The article under the caption, "The Presbyterian Church," published by us on first page of issue Dec. 24th should have been credited to the Southern Presbyterian Review instead of London Weekly Review. It was a portion of an article from the pen of Rev. Dr. Frierson, of Anderson Court House. We decidedly prefer crediting our own Review, and are obliged to the correspondent who called attention to the error.

We adopt the Pittsburg Banner's paraphrase: "The Covenant reminds Col. Ingersoll, who tauntingly says that 'the preachers in the United States cost us $12,000,000 every year,' that the lawyers in this country cost the people about $70,000,000, and the criminals $40,000,000, and that the liquor bill amounts to about $600,000,000. According to this there are some things that cost a good deal more than the preachers, among which is the profession of which Col. Ingersoll is a member. The charge of the expensiveness of the ministry has been so often made and so often refuted, is so unfounded and so silly that he must be hardly pressed who will bring it up again."

A friend sending us a goodly number of new subscribers says: "So you see we have fully doubled our list. Thus the PRESBYTERIAN will become a welcome visitor to every Presbyterian family in our bounds." Another friend, heretofore the only subscriber at the postoffice from which he writes sends us four new subscribers; and another under similar circumstances sends two, and saying that his religious privileges are limited, as he lives twelve miles from his church, adds that the visits of the PRESBYTERIAN are therefore very refreshing. With a knowledge of the Shorter Catechism and the help of the PRESBYTERIAN I try to keep 'orthodox.'" A lady in Alabama, a loue subscriber, sends a new name, and a very aged lady in Pennsylvania, far away as she is, manifests her kind appreciation by adding another. And so they come, and are welcome all.

Our ministers, as we hear, not from themselves but indirectly, are urging their people from their pulpits to the support of the paper. Very grateful we trust we are for all such exhibitions of generous kindness to our paper—theirs and ours.

The Biblical Recorder and the Covenant (Reformed Episcopal, of Philadelphia,) do not stand in very great awe of THE CHURCH (?). Here is the way they empty their batteries. The amiability of our nature requires us to stand off and listen.

The Biblical Recorder correspondent in his puzzlement says:

"Now who are the dissenters, and who the Church in North Carolina? The Episcopalians number 56 clergymen and 5,544 communicants.

"And yet these 56 Episcopal preachers in North Carolina (the largest number, too, that they have ever had in the State) claim to be the only people who have the right to preach the Gospel to the 1,070,000 people of this good old Commonwealth. They call their little denomination of 5,544 communicants 'the Church,' and their two religious overseers 'THE Bishops of North Carolina.' All others are 'schismatics' and dissenters."

And the Covenant advises patience:

"Let our brother possess his soul in patience. Does he not know that 'not he who commendeth himself is approved; but whom the Lord commendeth?' While He owns the ministry of 'Dissenters,' it will not hurt much to be called dissenters!"

Unhappy indeed is the case of those ministers of the Gospel, who have pandered to the appetite for sensationalism among their auditors until its cravings have become insatiable. Having conjured up the foul spirit, they must satisfy its demands or fall victims to its rapacity. Rev. Henry Ward Beecher is in such a case. His latest effort is an attack upon the American Bible Society. Mr. Beecher charges that the "Society prints a Bible notoriously false in some parts which the Society knows to be false."

The American Bible Society prints the authorized version known as King James' Bible. About twenty years ago a revision by Rev. Dr. Storrs and others was adopted, in which obsolete words, or words the meaning of which had been essentially changed, were dropped and others more properly expressing the sense, as to readers at the time of revision, were substituted. Rev. Dr. R. J. Breckenridge called up the subject and questioned the right of the Society, under its constitution, to make the changes, and the revision had to be dropped. King James' Bible as now in common use, is printed as beforesaid. The Plymouth preacher finds ready friends among the secular press to circulate his attacks on the Bible, but the last sensation will soon have to be succeeded by another. Fortunately little damage can come from such a source.

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

Rev. Dr. Charles Phillips is steadily improving at the Presbyterian Hospital in New York city, and so far has every reason to hope for restoration to health, in time.

The Goldsboro Messenger says the Presbyterian church was well filled on Sunday evening, Dec. 28th, by an attentive and visibly affected congregation, drawn thither to hear the farewell sermon of the late pastor, Rev. B. F. Marable.

The Rev. Dr. W. S. Plumer has been preaching in the 2nd Presbyterian church of Baltimore. On a recent Sabbath he was attacked with vertigo and sank unconscious in the pulpit. He soon recovered, however, and concluded the services. On the next Sabbath evening while on his way to the same church to perform service, the pavements being very slippery from a light fall of snow that had frozen upon them, he slipped and fell, cutting his face and receiving other injuries. We condense the above from the Philadelphia Evening News' account. At Dr. Plumer's time of life such injuries are very serious.

The Providence congregation is in as healthy a spiritual condition as it has been for years. It is gradually increasing in numbers, though constantly weakened by removals. The contributions to benevolent objects are perhaps larger than ever before. This is owing partly to the influence of the Ladies' Missionary Society, which contributes about fifty dollars yearly. Recently the Society appointed a committee of three to solicit aid from the young men. At the next monthly meeting one reported $10, another $7 50, the third was not prepared to report. This shows what can be done where there is a will. Hope our contributions will be largely increased the coming year. G. S. R.

December 26, 1879.

Our brethren of the ministry in North Carolina seem to have been assaulted from all quarters and in quite a variety of ways. They shall tell their own tales each in his own way:

HAWFIELDS.

On Christmas eve the home of Rev. C. N. Morrow was covertly assaulted by the good old lady Mrs. St. Nicholas, as agent of the Hawfield people. She emptied her wagon of its stores and a rap at the door called us out to see many good things piled on our porch and around it. She refused to be recognized, reined up her ponies and quickly left us surrounded with many valuable and sensible tokens of love from the Hawfield people. We are glad and our hearts bless them.

MILL BRIDGE, N. C., Jan. 1, 1880,

MR. EDITOR: While sitting quietly in my study on New Year's morning, I was informed that Mr. ——— wished to see me, and on going out I found the said Mr. ——— sitting in his wagon, which was loaded with the free will offerings of members of Back Creek church. There were handed out such substantials as flour, bacon, chickens, butter, eggs, &c. Not even was the pastor's horse forgotten, for there were some sacks of corn for his special service. I suppose special thanks are due the ladies of Back Creek for a handsome carpet which accompanied the eatables. Nor is this the only time these good people have remembered their pastor and his companion; for recently a Christmas tree was planted by them, and on it grew for the pastor and his wife such comfortable and substantial things as rocking chairs and blankets, accompanied by some in the ornamental line. These are the things which, as some one has said, are "not in the contract;" and which serve to show the esteem in which the pastor is held. As they are enriching him "in basket and in store," his prayer is that they may be abundantly enriched with spiritual blessings. J. A. R.

HILLSBORO, N. C., Jan. 2, '80.

BRO. MCLAURIN: I do not like the word "parsonage;" it sounds as if the main use which a congregration has for its occupant is to perform the marriage ceremony when such service is needed. Some of the best persons I have ever known were never married: The name of Hannah More will live, as long as men admire deep piety, sound intellect and womanly discretion. But I have not a word to say against the marriage institution. Some of the best persons I have ever known were married: It was given to man while he was in a state of innocency, and the Lord sanctified it by His personal presence when He was on earth, and also "He took" little children, "up in his arms, put his hands upon them and blessed them." This is a somewhat long introduction to the information that, on yesterday the "Manse" of the Hillsboro congregation was invaded by the married and unmarried, and many sweet children, bringing with them, in much profusion, creature comforts, to be enjoyed by him who now writes. The many articles left with him have a value of their own, which is fully trebled, as the expression of the kindly feelings of a beloved people. That all of those who have so kindly remembered their servant may share largely in the priceless blessings which it is the prerogative of the Lord alone to bestow, will ever be the prayer of a grateful pastor.

Very truly your brother,

JAS. H. FITZGERALD.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

Christmas is generally a merry season in a minister's family; but when it is made unusually so by the special efforts of the members of his congregation, it is well to "make a note of it."

We would here return our heart-felt thanks to our many kind friends who sent us such substantial proofs of their good wishes. To one and all, especially to those whose thoughtful kindness secured for their pastor's family an unusually "merry Christmas," we wish many happy returns of the New Year, each bringing fresh supplies of both temporal and spiritual blessings.

If the pounding I have just received from my people be a return for the many pound-ings I have given them during the past year, it is pleasing to me to know that they were taken so kindly and have produced such fruits. May I not hope that they are also bringing forth the fruits of righteousness?

In this connection I will send you a few lines suggested by the acts of kindness above alluded to, but not composed by myself.

P. T. PENICK.

"Sugar and spice, and all that's nice,
And things that are always in season;
Turkeys and chickens, meal butter and eggs
We enjoy, for the very best reason.
Potatoes to boil, and potatoes to bake,
Potatoes for pies, and handsome iced-cake.
Coffee to roast, and coffee well-roasted,
Ground and prepared in a pot highly toasted.
Soda, to make the house-keeper glad,
By making her bread neither heavy nor sad.
Pepper for seasoning, and pickles—so sweet,
Excellent sauce for our Christmas fresh meat.
Bananas and oranges from the far sunny South,
Apples stewed into butter, and fresh for the mouth.
Pears, raisins and candy, and nice jelly-cake,
With pictures and vases, for variety's sake.
Cigars for the preacher, and lamp for his light,
Socks for his comfort, which fitted just right.
Flannel and dresses, for use and for beauty,
Last, but not least, as approval of duty,
(In hope of the music expected to follow,)
Were the gloves which contained the "almighty dollar."*
With thanks for the merry Christmas we spent,
And for all the nice things our good people sent,
We wish one and all a "Happy New Year,"
Crowned with Heaven's best blessings, and all kinds of cheer.

*A handsome present, in silver dollars, to the Organist.

SANTA CLAUS.

Something unusual but by no means unpleasant has just happened at the Providence manse. Old Santa Claus was so well laden with good things for the pastor and his family that it required three days and three different visits to unburden himself. And as the first visit had to be made from a distance and fearing he would be too late for the initiatory merriment of the holidays, he took time by the forelock, and so put in his appearance late on Christmas Eve, when the pantry was left well supplied, both with the necessities and dainties of life. Even the little one was not overlooked in his kind offices of love and appreciation, and while the little fellow eagerly seized and appropriated his portion, we could not but think of the tiny little hands who gently placed them there for his special enjoyment. But this did not satisfy the generous heart of Mr. "Santa," for early next morning he again put in his appearance, laden with rich stores. And again to-day when we saw the old gentleman slowly approaching, bowed down with his load, and surrounded with baskets, we knew the good time was not yet over. And now the greatest trouble is, where shall we store away all these munificent presents? The pantry is now so well filled that it will need no more supplies for many days. In the bestowal of these gifts there was no concert of action, but each one, prompted by his own feelings of gratitude, dispatched a messenger to the parsonage, loaded with such things as they knew were needed. And we would take this method of returning our sincere and heartfelt thanks to all the donors for their kind remembrances. They know how to appreciate the labors of a pastor, and how it encourages him to let him know their appreciation. And while these are a source of great pleasure to us they have the assurance that it is more blessed to give than to receive. G. S. R.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

SUSTENTATION IN ORANGE PRESBYTERY

Churches requiring aid in supporting their ministers, during the current year, will forward their applications to the undersigned before the 15th of February next.

In your applicantious state: 1. What part of the minister's time is desired; 2. What amount is raised by your church, and if it is all that could reasonably be expected; 3. What amount of aid is needed; and 4. How long your church has been receiving aid.

It is necessary that the agent know the whole amount of salary received by the minister in his entire field.

The churches should bear in mind that the support of their minister must come almost entirely from themselves. The sum to be distributed within our bounds, is very small. Judging from the present indications, the churches and fields needing aid, will be larger this year than last. Therefore unless our churches should contribute to this fund more liberally than they have usually done, the amount received by any church or association of churches must be but nominal.

We take this opportunity to call the attention of all our churches to the collection to be taken up for sustentation during this month. Our secretaries tell us, that this is the most important collection that has ever been asked from the churches. The last Assembly sanctioned an effort to raise $40,000. Of this amount we desire to raise at least $1,000, in Orange Presbytery. In order to do this it will be necessary for each church to contribute more than three times as much as it did last year. Is there a single church on our roll that will fail to make an earnest effort?

We ask for this important cause the best attention of all our ministers, church officers and ladies' aid societies.

Yours fraternally,

JAS. C. ALEXANDER,
Agent of Home Missions.

Greensboro, N. C., Jan. 3, '80.

CIRCULAR.

To the Delinquent Churches of Fayetteville Presbytery:

Although the day appointed for the collection for Foreign Missions had past months before our fall meeting of Presbytery, still many of our churches failed to report contributions.

To those in charge of these delinquent churches we address this circular, to remind you of your duty and responsibility, hoping that you will not let the year pass without doing for this cause. When those in charge of churches fail to call on their congregation for their contributions, they are responsible for keeping out of the Lord's treasury just what the congregation would give if called on.

As there is more money in the hands of God's people, so there should go more money into the Lord's treasury. "As the Lord prospers us" is the rule for giving.

"There is that scattereth, and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, and it tendeth to poverty."

Many grow poor by robbing the Lord of tithes and offerings. M. MCQUEEN, Agt.

ALICE KERR.

ONE OF OUR GIRLS.

DIED.—In Raleigh, at 10:30 o'clock on Tuesday morning, December 16, 1879, Alice Spencer Kerr, eldest daughter of Prof. W. C. Kerr, our State Geologist.

The above announcement will convey to strangers only the ordinary tidings of the death of a young girl, while friends will linger upon it as the knell of the brightest and sweetest hopes of their lives. Alice Kerr was but twenty years old when the fatal disease which a year later was to close her short day, first appeared. Yet in that twenty years she secured the undying regard of many friends, and developed a character of exceptional promiuence.

It is good to linger upon the rare and admirable traits of friends who are gone,

For the holiest talisman that time on human hearts can shed,
To sanctify and shield them, is the memory of the dead.

To Alice Kerr's young friends especially is this tribute to her dedicated. May they keep her memory green.

We knew her from childhood—self-contained, reticent, and quiet; remarkable chiefly for the ardor and enthusiasm which flashed out from under this calm demeanor in all that engaged her interest; her plays, her friendships, her studies. As she grew older this vividness became associated with a power of sustained and successful application, very rare indeed in a girl. Pure and artless and clear-sighted, no mists or confusion ever rose between her and the truth. She apprehended at once and as if by intuition, so that study was a pleasure instead of a task. Whatever was set before her to do she did with all her might, and did well. At home, at school, in society she everywhere made the same impression of intense vitality and of abilities that placed her easily and quickly foremost.

Had Alice been forewarned that her time was to be short she could not have more effectually redeemed it. As we look back upon her life it seems a swift race. "So run that ye may obtain," may have been her motto. An exquisite water-color painting of ferns, by her hand, hangs before me now—the ferns arranged as a crown—with those words beneath.

At home, what depth of love, and loyalty, and unselfishness, and vivid sympathy with every member of the family, are now gone forever. It is impossible to do justice to this part of her character without an appearance of exaggeration, for not many knew Alice as she appeared among those she loved best. What devotion to her parents, what generous ardor in every relation. I have been looking over a package of her letters to a beloved friend—the handwriting, even, entirely characteristic, delicate and yet firm, finished and perfectly legible. Full they are of vivacity, gaiety, good sense and serious thoughts of duty. A life pure and innocent, and full to the brim of cheerful energy and forbearance.

When Alice was fifteen years old she became a member of the Presbyterian church by profession. The outward and visible sign of the inward grace given her was simply an increased attention to every task, and a more conscientious discharge of every duty. Reticent here, as in other things, there was never any talk of her feelings, or her trials. Her inner life was hid with Christ.

Little we thought, who watched the gradual expansion of these blossoms of promise, that no fruit would be gathered from them on earth. While we predicted and anticipated a career of more than ordinary brilliance and usefulness for her, the messenger sent to call her to come up higher was already on his way. A slight cold taken in the summer of '78 soon developed into that dread disease, the white death of America, which slowly but surely withdraws so many loved and lovely ones from among us. For thirteen months it was Alice Kerr's lot to languish, each day substracting something from her strength and her enjoyment of life. All that love or skill could devise, all that nature offers on the sea or among the mountains, in sweet resting places where love and friendship hovered round with anxious care, all was done in vain.

Quietly as was her wont, she assured herself that she must die, while youth and hope and love still called her to stay. Without a murmur, without one impatient word through all the sad months she trod "the common road," striving ever to be herself, to give no trouble, to cheer the dear ones who in silent anguish watched her, to help them to bear it. One by one she patiently relinquished the accomplishments in which she had excelled, the pursuits that had so delighted her. Her piano was untouched, the painting lay unfinished, the crotchet work, the book, the letter. "I am not afraid to die," she wrote to one dear friend, "what I dread most is to have to go alone." "Alone"—was she alone when the supreme hour arrived? Could she have passed so calmly, so heroically through the deep waters of mortal agony without His presence who never yet has failed to meet His redeemed ones there? Passing again and again through a fearful struggle with the last enemy, and conscious to the last moment of existence, she was so supported as to come off more than conqueror, and serene and undismayed she whispered consolation and loving farewells to the anguished hearts that were near. Her last words were of assuring peace and hope.

And so Alice Kerr died, and has left her superior among contemporaries, and not many her equals, in truth and purity and constancy of character, or in vigor of intellect. "Bright without spot she was, and cannot cease to be."

Think of it, young friends who read these lines. You who have obtained like precious faith, see that your lights be trimmed and burning with clear and steady flame. Live to some purpose, be earnest, be thoughtful, unselfish, live to do good, to be useful in the kingdom of your Lord and Saviour. The time is short. And you who as yet own no such allegiance, think what if He should come and find you unready.

The literature of all lands and of every age is full of mourning for the early dead. We know how the great Roman orator bewailed his young daughter Tullia; how Martin Luther wept for his Elizabeth; how Evelyn lamented his Mary, "most dear and desirable child." "Such loss is common to the race." The year that has just begun will see many a blooming form laid low. Think of it. Alice Kerr's death might be more blessed than her life would have been, if any of you who loved her were to be led by such thoughts to imitate her example and live not for yourselves, but for others, and for Him who died for you.

C. P. S.

Chapel Hill, January 1, 1880.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

James Vick, seedman and florist, Rochester, N. Y., certainly excels in bringing his business attractively before the public. Not only so, for he serves the flower-living public and the vegetable-eating public as well. It is one thing to buy seeds and quite another to judiciously select them, to know how properly to grow and to cultivate them, and to exhibit correct and refined taste in the arrangement of flowers in the garden. Vick's Floral Guide contains nearly one hundred pages with several hundred very accurate and finely executed illustrations on calendered paper, the whole prefaced with a superb colored plate of choice roses. Five cents will get the Guide. The plate itself is worth the money.

North Carolina Medical Journal for December, 1879, completes the fourth volume of this issue. Twenty-seven out of the thirty contributors for the past year are North Carolina doctors, and the original matter has largely preponderated over the selected matter, showing a degree of scientific medical activity which could only exist with the aid of a professional periodical.

This Journal has done excellent service during the year in pushing forward what in this State is new work—that of sanitary reform—and, in fact, we do not see how the State Board of Health could have had a better auxiliary. We infer from the appearance of this Journal that it has had a good year, and it speaks well of the condition of the medical profession that they are so heartily its supporters.

We have received from the Western Sunday School Publishing Company, John Fairbanks, Manager, 46 Madison street, Chicago, Ill., the following Sunday school helps, which seem to be excellent in both style and matter.

1. Illustrated Bible Studies; monthly; for teachers and older scholars; January, 1880.
2. The Bible Studies Quarterly.
3. The Little Folks' Quarterly.
4. Heavenly Tidings, and the Little Visiter for Infant Classes; both pictorials.

The Sanitarian. November, 1879. A. N. Bell, A. M., M. D., editor. New York. $3 a year.

Burning of the printing establishment has delayed the appearance of this excellent monthly. Among its articles of interest and importance we note Dr. Bell's Marine Hygiene, The Late Pest in Russia, National Legislation on Trial, and Unbolted Flour.

Astronomical Etiology: or Star Prophecies concerning Coming Disasters on the Earth from 1881 to 1885. From Thomas Wilson, 188 Monroe street, Chicago. This is an interesting and amusing attempt to connect the prevalence of malign cosmical events and pestilences with the periodical excess of planetary attraction, especially of the four great planets, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, in perihelion, and when there is a conjunction of perihelia. Prof. Colbert pricks the astronomical presumptions very effectually.

The Fortnightly Review. December, 1879. $2 25 per annum. George Munro, 17 Vandewater street, New York.

We welcome the Contemporary Review for December from Geo. Munro, publisher, New York. $2 25 a year. Contents: The Lord's Prayer and the Church; India Under Lord Lytton; On the Utility to Flowers of Their Beauty; Where are We in Art? Life in Constantinople Fifty Years Ago; Miracles, Prayer and Law; What is Rent? Buddhism and Jainism; Lord Beaconsfield; Contemporary Life and Thought in France; White Wings.

The Nineteenth Century, from the same publisher, is a very good number.

Catholic Presbyterian for December is at hand. Contents: Religion in Holland, by Prof. J. V. Van Oosterzee, D. D.; The Transvaal Boers, by the late David Livingstone, LL. D., D. C. L.; The Legitimate Province of Biblical Criticism, by J. R. W. Sloane, D. D.; Metrical Versions of the Psalms, by Robert Gossip, Esq.; Samson Agonistes, or Individualism in Religion; Theologians of the Day: Luthardt, by Rev. Alexander Stuart, M. A.; Recent Episcopalian Writers on Church Government; Calvin's Hymn to Christ; Notes of the Day; General Survey; Open Council; Letter from Dr. Dabney; Notes and Queries. Ansou D. F. Randolph & Co., New York. $3 a year.

The Eclectic Magazine for January has its usual fine variety of selections from the choicest of English magazines.

Wide Awake is in from D. Lothrop & Co. A capital number.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN.

PRESBYTERIAN.

During the last two months ten communicants have been added to the church in this city under the pastoral care of the Rev. Dr. Joseph B. Mack—three on profession of their faith and seven by certificate.—Southern Presbyterian.

During the same period, eight communicants have been added to the church at Hernando, Miss., which has recently been supplied by the Rev. J. C. Carothers.—Southern Presbyterian.

Rev. George L. Wolfe is ministering to the churches of Alma and Van Buren, Ark., and his postoffice address has been changed from Charlottesville, Va., to Van Buren, Ark.

Permission has been granted by the Presbytery of Macon to the church at Columbus, Ga., to prosecute a call for the pastoral services of Rev. Eugene Daniel, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Memphis, Tenn.

The following officers were elected for the Brunswick church, (Brunswick county, East Hanover Presbytery,) on the 21st of December, 1879: Ruling Elders—Jacob M. Flournoy, Peter M. King, and William H. Rawlings. Deacons—Reuben B. Hicks, James Rawlings and B. B. Wilkes, Jr. Their ordination was appointed for the third Sabbath of January. There have been eight accessions to this church since the 1st of October.—Central Presbyterian.

The following items we quote from the Christian Observer:

Of the Third church, Knoxville, Tenn., Rev. W. A. Harrison writes: "Yesterday was our communion Sabbath. There were eighteen additions to the church."

Rev. Jerry Witherspoon, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Maysville, Ky., has accepted the call from the Presbyterian church, Jackson, Tenn., and if the way be clear, expects to remove there within the next few weeks.

Rev. John F. Baker's postoffice address is changed from Ashley, Pike county, Mo., to Hickory Plains, Prairie county, Ark. Correspondents will please note change.

A correspondent tells us that the evangelist of Presbytery organized a church at Magnolia Depot, Tenn., on the first Sabbath of this month, with nine members.

On Sunday, December 21st, a Colored Presbyterian church was organized in Atlanta, Ga., by a committee of Atlanta Presbytery, consisting of Rev. J. H. Martin, Rev. J. L. Rogers, and Ruling Elder Wm. A. Moore. In the absence of Rev. Mr. Rogers, Rev. N. Keff Smith acted in his stead. Two ruling elders, already ordained, were elected and installed. The minister in charge of this new enterprise is Rev. Allen A. Jones, an ordained colored preacher. The church will be under the care of the above named Presbytery.

Rev. O. B. Caldwell writes from Ennis, Texas; "Three additions to Ennis church on Sunday, the 21st."

At the late meeting of the Presbytery of Paris a call was presented from the church at Paris for the services of Rev. J. DeWitt Burkhead. On Sunday, the 7th, he was installed pastor. Rev. W. R. Marshall preached, Rev. O. P. Stark gave the charge to the pastor, and Rev. Dr. Boude the charge to the people.

The new Presbytery of Paris held its first meeting at Paris, December 5th. Rev. W. N. Dickey was elected moderator, and Prof. J. D. Anderson temporary clerk, and subsequently stated clerk and treasurer. The following were appointed chairmen of the standing committees: Sabbath Schools, Prof. J. D. Anderson; Home Missions, Rev. O. P. Stark; Publication, Rev. J. D. Burkhead; Education, Rev. H. A. Boude, Foreign Missions, Rev. T. H. Skidmore; Evangelistic Work, Rev. W. N. Dickey.

The Presbytery of Paris adopted an overture to the next Assembly to name the new Synod in Texas, Synod of North Texas, instead of Synod of Red River.

The next meeting of Paris Presbytery is to be at Bonham, Thursday, April 18, 1880.

At a communion service in the church at Hot Springs, Ark., of which Rev. J. L. McKeehan is pastor, held December 21st, the church received twenty additions. Two adults and one infant were baptized. Forty-three members have been added to this church, under the present pastorate, since last spring.

The postoffice address of the Rev. John Boyle has been changed from Campinas to Mogy Mirim, Provincia de Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Rev. Dr. J. R. Bowman declines the call to a church in Missouri and will remain in charge of the church at Harrisburg, Va.

We clip these items from the St. Louis Presbyterian: "The Etna congregation in the Presbytery of Palmyra, have built a neat house of worship at Granger, on the M. I. & N. R. R., at a cost of $800. The plastering and painting have been deferred until the milder weather of spring. No debt so far. Rev. M. G. Gorin of Memphis, Mo., preaches to the Etna church once a month.

"Rev. C. M. Atkinson, D. D., has removed from Morgan City, La., to Thibodeaux, La. His field remains the same. He goes from a hired house into a manse which his people at Thibodeaux, after much toil, self-denial and prayer, have just completed. Correspondents will please note the change of his postoffice."

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

Gen. Grant and his party are being courteously received on their tour at the various cities of the South.

Shares in the Edison Electric Light Company have risen from $100 to $3,500 and are held for $5,000.

Santa Claus put into the stocking of the poor $100. The ladies' Aid Society hung it up at Tusker Hall.—Raleigh Observer.

Miss A. Moore, who has been traveling for some months, giving concerts in the interest of the orphans of yellow fever victims, gave a very pleasing entertainment at Opera Hall, Monday evening.—Carolina Watchman.

A most horrible railroad accident has occurred in Scotland. A bridge, considered one of the finest in the world, over the Frith of Tay, was swept away before the train reached it, and the train plunged in water 45 feet deep. Seventy-five persons are supposed to have been drowned. The passengers, after the European fashion, were caged in and not one escaped a watery grave.

Dr. R. M. Eames, superintendent of the Copper Knob Mining Company, at Gap Creek, Ashe county, passed through our town a few days ago. He reports the work of developing the mines as progressing rapidly. He is sinking on the vein at the bottom of the old shaft, taking out ore as he goes. The vein increases in richness as depth is gained.—Wilkesboro Index.

MARRIED.

☞ No notice of a marriage or death will be inserted unless accompanied by a responsible name, which is wanted not for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.

At Davidson College, Dec. 24th, 1879, by Rev. J. Latimer, Mr. CALDWELL ALEXANDER and Miss MARY WALLACE.

By Rev. Joseph Evans, of St. Paul's, on the 17th of December, 1879, at the residence of Mrs. F. Roberts, of Cumberland county, N. C., CLARENCE S. WILLIS, Esq., of Maysville, N. C., and Miss FLORENCE ROBERTS.

By the same, on the 18th of December, at the residence of Mrs. Eliza McMillan, of St. Paul's, N. C., Dr. JOHN D. McMILLAN, of Lumberton, N. C., and Miss SARAH McMILLAN.

By the same, on the 24th of December, 1879, at the residence of Daniel Shaw, Esq., of St. Paul's, T. R. E. BETHUNE, Esq., of Kershaw, S. C., and Miss ELIZA SHAW.

In Mecklenburg county, at the Hopewell manse, on the 18th of December Mr. T. N. HUNTER and Miss BETTIE A. VANCE, Rev. W. E. McIlwain officiating.

By the same, at the same time and place, Mr. J. P. PUCKET and Miss MAGGIE HUNTER.

In Mecklenburg county, at the residence of Jas. S. Henderson, Esq., the bride's father, Miss ANNIE L. HENDERSON and Mr. WILLIAM A. JAMISON, Rev. W. E. McIlwain officiating.

On the 3d inst., by Rev. J. M. Atkinson, at the residence of Dr. R. A. Patterson, the bride's father, Mr. J. H. NORMAN and Miss ANNIE P. PATTERSON. All of Halifax county.

At the residence of the bride's father, Mr. James H. Cardwell, on Dec. 23d, by Rev. C. Miller, Mr. JOHN D. MEADORS and Miss KATE E. CARDWELL. All of Rockingham county.

In Madison, on Dec. 25th, by Rev. C. Miller, Mr JAMES M. APPLE and Miss ELLA M. McGEHEE.

In Orange county, Dec. 23d, 1879, by Rev. C. N. Morrow, Mr. JAMES J. PRATT and Miss REBECCA A. TATE. All of Orange county.

On 31st ult., at Davidson College, N. C., by the Rev. B. W. Mebane, Mr. F. P. RAMSAY, of Columbia, S. C., and Miss MARY E. MEBANE, sister of the officiating minister.

Christian Observer please copy.

At the residence of the bride's father, in Rutherford county, Dec. 23d, 1879, A. P. CAMP, of Spartanburg county, S. C., and Miss ADDIE McFARLAND, Rev. W. M. McGilvary officiating.

In Robeson county, N. C., Dec. 31st, 1879, by Rev. Hector McLean, Rev. DUGALD MUNROE of Knoxville (Tenn.) Presbytery, and pastor of the Presbyterian church at Soddy, Hamilton co., and Miss NANNIE, daughter of Neill Bale, Esq.

On Jan. 1st, 1880, by the same, Mr. MALCOM H. McPHAUL, of Georgia, and Miss SALLIE McL., daughter of Dr. Angus Bethune, of Smith's township, Robeson county, N. C.

On the evening of 31st December, 1879, by Rev. E. A. Yates, at the residence of the bride's parents, in this city, Mr. LAUCHLIN WILBUR McLAURIN and Miss JULIA EVELYN BAGG, daughter of Mr. Horace Bagg. All of Wilmington.

DIED.

☞ Obituary notices must be paid for in advance. The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

At Huntersville, N. C., Dec. 4th, 1879, of diphtheria, CARRIE MAYHEW HOLBROOKS, aged 6 years, 9 months and 16 days.

This was a child of the covenant. She had been dedicated to the Lord and He claimed her as His own. "The Lord gave, and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord." L.

Mrs. REBECCA MONTGOMERY DICKSON at Milford, Texas, December 11th, 1879, in the 71st year of her age.

In February, 1859, she was married to Rev. Michael Dickson (second marriage), and after his death, in 1874, she made her home with his children; and her room was a bright and cheerful spot for young and old.

OUR PAPER.

We do not forget that the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN is read not only by Ministers, who by reason of training and study are specially fond of profound discussions of religious philosophy, but by both sexes, and by all classes and conditions of persons. Consequently it is our aim to present such a variety of moral and religious reading that the paper will commend itself to all as a popular vehicle of such information and instruction as not only ought to be read, but as will be read by young and old, rich and poor, clergy and laity, learned and unlearned. We present no elaborate prospectus. Any who may desire to know more of the paper, are referred to its friends, who may be found in almost any community, or we will gladly send sample copies on application.

OUR PREMIUMS.

We invite special attention to the premiums we are offering with the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN for the ensuing year:

To any subscriber, the paper one year, and Kitto's Cyclopedia ($5 00 edition) for $4 75.

The paper one year and Smith's Bible Dictionary ($4 50 edition) for $4 50.

The paper one year and Cruden's Unabridged Concordance for $4 00.

To any one sending us THREE new subscribers at $2 65 each we give SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY, OR THE LIFE OF ST. PAUL

As a premium for two new subscribers, at $2 65 each, we give CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.

To every New Subscriber at $2 65 we will give a MAP OF PALESTINE, 28x42

We have sent this Map to a large number of persons and feel justified in saying it gives entire satisfaction. The publisher's price is $1 00.

The Cyclopedia and the Bible Dictionary are very cheap—exceedingly cheap. And CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE, COMPLETE—UNABRIDGED

Being an index to every important word in the Scriptures and the Apocrypha—with full definitions of the Theological and Scriptural meanings of words, and having the texts indicated with the respective meanings. We say this Concordance—the best probably in the world is a marvel of cheapness. No Christian family—or other family—should be without it.

WE SPECIALLY OFFER

The Paper one year with the CONCORDANCE,

To any new Subscriber for $3 50.

In all cases we prepay postage.

WHOLESALE PRICES.

☞ These quotations represent the wholesale prices.

ARTICLES.	PRICES.
BACON—Western Smoked—
Hams	10 a	13
Sides, per lb	0 a	7½
Shoulders	a	6½
Dry Salted—
Sides, per lb	0 a	7¾
Shoulders	0 a	6½
CHEESE—Northern Factory, per lb	0 a	11
Dairy, cream per lb	00 a	14½
State, per lb	00 a	10
COFFEE—Rio, per lb	18 a	18
Laguayra, per lb	18 a	20
CORN MEAL—per bush in sacks	80 a	82½
DOMESTICS—Sheetings, 4-4, per yd	a	7½
Yarn, per bunch	00 a	85
FLOUR—Fine, per bbl	0 00 a	5 00
Super, Northern, per bbl	5 50 a	6 00
Extra do. " per bbl	6 25 a	6 50
Family " per bbl	7 50 a	9 00
City Mills—Extra Super, per bbl	0 00 a	7 50
" Family, per bbl	0 00 a	8 00
" Extra do., per bbl	0 00 a	8 50
GLUE—per lb	14 a	16
GRAIN—Corn, in sacks, per 56 lbs from store—white	77½a	80
CORN, wholesale, in sacks	72½a	72½
Corn, mixed, wholesale in sacks	73 a	73½
Corn, Cargo, per 56 lbs, bulk	68 a	70
Oats, per bushel from store	60 a	62½
Peas, Cow, per bushel	80 a	85
HOOP IRON—per ton	90 00 a	95 00
LARD—Northern, per lb	9½ a	10
North Carolina, per lb	10 a	11
LIME—per bbl	0 00 a	1 00
MOLASSES—West Indies, old crop	00 a	30
" " bbls	00 a	32½
" " new crop	35 a	37
" " bbls	37 a	39
New Orleans	28 a	50
Sugar House, hhds, per gal	00 a	23
" bbls, per gal	00 a	24
Syrup, bbls, per gal	40 a	55
NAILS—Cut, 4d to 20d, per keg	00 a	4 00
OILS—Kerosene, per gal	13½a	15
Lard, per gal	1 00 a	1 10
PEANUTS—per bushel	75 a	1 05
PORK—Northern, City Mess	14 50	15 00
SALT—Alum, per bag of 4 bushels	75 a	1 00
Liverpool, per sack	90	95
Liverpool fine, per sack	a	1 75
SUGAR—Cuba, per lb	8½a	10
Porto Rico, per lb	0 a	7½
A—Coffee, per lb	0 a	11
B— " per lb	9 a	10½
C— " per lb	8½a	9
Ex. C— per lb	0 a	9½
Crushed, per lb	00 a	11½
SOAP—Northern, per lb	5 a	7
Crampton's N. Y. Palm Soap, per box 100 lbs., 2 bars	0 00 a	4 20
TIMBER—Shipping, per M	12 00 a	13 00
Mill Prime, per M	9 00 a	11 00
Mill Fair, per M	6 50 a	8 50
Inferior to Ordinary, per M	3 00 a	5 00

Messrs Polk Miller & Co:

About twelve years I suffered from Dyspepsia. Falling in with Vest Pocket Cure, I gave it a fair trial. After its use I could eat anything with impunity. I am sure I am indebted to this medicine for what of health and physical comfort I have had for the last sixteen years. I have known many since to be relieved by its use.

REV B. F. WOODWARD, P. E., Va. Conf.

Will any preparation restore the hair to its original color and not injure it? Yes! Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer.

IN 1850 THE "BRONCHIAL TROCHES" were introduced, and from that time up to the present their success in Colds, Coughs, Asthma and Bronchitis has been unparalleled. No household should be without "Brown's Bronchial Troches," as by their early use most troubles of the Throat induced by cold can be overcome.

One pair of boots or shoes saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Metalic Heel Stiffeners.

Ladies. Delicate and Feeble.

Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its former elasticity, driving the bloom from your checks; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can be easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once while the special causes of periodical pain are permanently removed. Will you heed this? See "Truths."

WILMINGTON MARKET DURING WEEK ENDING JANUARY 6.

THE attention of all persons interested is called to the fact that strict personal attention is given to the collection of the necessary information, and the careful preparation of our MARKET REPORT, so as to give a correct general review of transactions and prices, for the week ending each Tuesday morning.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—Sales on Wednesday at 42 cents, and on Friday at same. On Saturday market opened firm at 42½ cents and advanced successively to 43, 43½ and 44 cents. Monday price still further advanced to 44½ and 45 cents. Tuesday firm at 45 cents.

ROSIN—Strained and Good Strained ruled steady at $1 25 until Saturday, when $1 30 was obtained for the better quality. Monday $1 27½ and $1 32½ respectively.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—Sales throughout at $1 60 for Hard and $2 60 for Yellow Dip.

TAR.—On Wednesday and Friday receipts were taken at $1 10, and on Saturday $1 15 was obtained At last figures steady to the close.

COTTON—Nominally price has ruled at 12 cents for Middling until Monday, but as usual during and immediately following the holiday season, little has been done. Monday better feeling and 12½ cents firm, was quotation.

CORN—Steady with fair demand and light receipts.

TIMBER—Very scarce indeed and in general demand. Hear of one sale only at $7 25 for Fair Mill.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

TOBACCO.

100 BOXES MANUFACTURED TOBACCO.

SPECIALTIES:

Uncle Ned's Twist.

Queen Bee Plug.

HALL & PEARSALL.

H. McL. GREEN,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF

Ton Timber,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments. jan 7-8m

WHAT A FARMER HAS TO SAY

To Other Farmers

About Corn, Potatoes and Hay. Send postal for circular fully describing pure white Horse-tooth Seed Corn; Second Crop Irish Potatoes, a new discovery in Potatoes; Pearl Millet Seed, 10 cents per lb., a great forage plant. Their cultivation and uses. Also describing some of the best farms in Virginia for sale. Address A. H. LINDSAY, jan 7-feb 4-18-mh8 Portsmouth, Virginia.

WE WANT YOU TO send for the best and cheapest Literary Paper ever published. [illegible] The Cricket on the Hearth [illegible] Silver Plated Tablespoons [illegible]

MOORE & WILSON, Publishers, 245 Broadway, New York

Will be mailed free to all applicants, and to customers without ordering it. [illegible] D. M. FERRY & CO., Detroit, Mich.

jan 7 636-4teow

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!

WE ask the attention of our friends and customers to our large and handsomely selected stock which is our

Fourth Purchase this Season.

Consisting of Dress Goods in all colors and prices, Cassimeres, Jeans, Flannels, Blankets, Shawls, Balmoral Skirts, Tickings, Domestics, Sheetings,

READY-MADE CLOTHING,

Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes.

Don't forget we sell the best Shirt in the City for the money. Wool Shirts and Vests for Ladies and Gents underwear.

Call and get one of our $1 Umbrellas, which is as good as you ever bought at $1 25.

Notwithstanding the advance in prices, we are still selling many of our Goods at old prices.

Orders solicited.

T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,

Opp. Charlotte Hotel, Tryon st., Charlotte, N. C.

dec 24 624-tf

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS

WHOLESALE GROCERS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS

WILMINGTON, N. C.

G. H. GRAVES,

—WITH—

YEARGAN, PETTY & Co

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN

Dry Goods, Notions, &c.

RALEIGH, N. C.

Would be glad to have his friends and everybody else to call. He guarantees to sell them goods cheaper than they can be bought elsewhere in the city. Orders are solicited from Merchants and all others.

Messrs Yeargan, Petty & Co. keep an assortment of RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS and DRESS GOODS.

Special attention is asked to their line of Hamburg and Nainsook Edgings and Insertions, Silk Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Ladies' Dress Shoes, &c.

dec 10 623-1m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

HORNER SCHOOL,

OXFORD, N. C.

INSTRUCTORS—J. H. Horner, A. M., J. C. Horner, A. M., R. W. Winston, A. B. (Univ. of N. C.)

The Spring Session will begin January 19th, 1880. Board and Tuition per session of five months, $100.

For circular, address J. C. HORNER.

dec 24-1m

FINLEY HIGH SCHOOL,

Lenoir, Caldwell Co., N. C.

THE Spring Term will begin January 14th, 1880. Tuition per term, from $10 to $20. Board, in good private families, per term, $50. Washing and lights extra.

For further particulars, send for circular.

E. W. FAUCETTE, Principal.

dec 24 624-8t

LAURINBURGH HIGH SCHOOL.

A Classical, Mathematical, and Commercial Academy,

W. G. QUAKENBUSH, (Bingham School and University of Va.) Principal.

H. W. MALLOY, (Davidson College) Assistant.

Charges per session of 20 weeks—Tuition $20; Contingent Fee $1; Board $50.

The second session will begin Monday, January 19, 1880. For circulars and further information, address the Principal, Laurinburg, N. C.

dec 24 624-4t

READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN

If you like to be satisfied deal with

W. J. MOTT,

—Dealer in—

BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.

Keeps on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain his reputation in this regard. I will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,

W. J. MOTT,

North side Market street, bet. 3d and 3d.

P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult me either by mail or in person.

nov 19 619-tf

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,

Statesville, N. C.

THE SPRING TERM of 1880 opens Thursday, January 15. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks.

Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.

Address MRS E. N. GRANT, Principal.

feb 20 598-1y

BINGHAM SCHOOL,

MEBANEVILLE, N. C.,

Is now PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys.

The 171st Session ending Dec. 17th, 1879, has been the most prosperous in the eighty-six years of the School's history. The 172d Session will begin January 14th, 1880. Board $13 per month. Tuition $50 per Session. For catalogue giving full particulars address, MAJ. R. BINGHAM, Supt.

dec 17 623-1m

Lynch's Select School,

HIGH POINT, N. C.

An English, Mathematical, Classical, Commercial and Scientific Academy,

MAJ. W. B. LYNCH, A. M., Principal.

B. P. PRICE, A. B., Assistant.

Spring session of 1880 begins January 21st. Board and Tuition $80. For circulars address the Principal.

dec 17 623-6t

SELECT BOARDING AND

DAY SCHOOL,

HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.

Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.

THE SPRING TERM of 1880 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE Board and Tuition $100.

Circulars forwarded on application.

466-*jan.1.'79

BETHEL ACADEMY,

DAVIDSON COLLEGE (P. O.) N. C.

Rev. L. K. GLASGOW, A. M. Principal.

Miss ELLA W. FLEMING, Assistant.

NINTH semi-annual session begins January 26, 1880. Boarders in Principal's family pay in advance for all expense except books, per quarter (10 weeks) $80.

For circulars containing testimonials from well-known educators and from patrons, address the Principal. dec 31-tf

THE CINCINNATI WEEKLY STAR

Larger, Brighter, and Better, but the Popular Price of One Dollar a Year remains unchanged.

[illegible]

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

[illegible]

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

[illegible]

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

[illegible]

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

Address THE ★ STAR, 230 Walnut Street, CINCINNATI.

dec 31 625-2t

dec 31 625-2t

CHEESE.

200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE.

For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.

WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.

Our Trimming Department is Complete,

and comprises the leading styles.

Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.

We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.

Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.

The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.

N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.

nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.

THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the

Latest and Most Approved Style.

To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.

"First Come, First Served."

MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,

apl 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

THOS A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.

McNEILL & McNEILL,

Attorneys at Law,

LUMBERTON, N. C.

Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 598 1y.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,

HARDWARE MERCHANTS,

Charlotte, N. C.,

KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will

Compete in Prices,

—EITHER—

WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,

With any Market.

All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods

VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.

We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,

oct 29—616-1y. P. O. Box 185.

DeROSSET & NORTHROP,

FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE AGENTS,

REPRESENTING } Standard American AND English Companies.

28 North Water Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

nov 19 619-tf

Nice Books

—FOR—

HOLIDAY PRESENTS.

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE, $1 50;
TEACHER'S BIBLES from $1 50 to $8 00;
CHURCH HYMN BOOKS from $1 00 to $3 00;
CHATTERBOX, 1879, $1 00;
WILLIAM, THE BAPTIST, 2d edition, $1 00;
DABNEY'S THEOLOGY, sheep, 2d edition, $5 00;
PROPHECY; A Series of Lectures by Rev. A. P. Foreman, $1 50;
BALM FOR WOUNDED SPIRITS, by W. S. Plumer, D. D., Paper covers, 10 cents.
ASSURANCE OF GRACE AND SALVATION, By Same Paper, 10 cents;
HAPPY THOUGHTS FOR CHRISTMAS. Beautifully Illustrated, 80 full page engravings, $1 00;
MEMOIR of REV DR. DAVID COULTER. With Reminiscences, Letters, Lectures and Sermons, $1 50;

A Thousand other Beautiful Books for Christmas Presents and Sunday School Libraries.

Send for approved Lists to

PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.,

1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va.

Or, 207 N. 8th St, St. Louis, Mo

dec 10 623-tf

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER.

Send your orders by mail.

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES,

BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.

LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.

The Remington Sewing Machine,

A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.

Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.

Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.

GEO. A. PECK.

25 South Front Street.

dec 10 622-tf

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., 218 Fulton St. N.Y

oct 8 413-26t

HOMES

in Western Arkansas.

The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway offer for sale the best LANDS in the West or South-West, with healthy climate, fertile soil, and not affected by drouth. Easy terms of sale. Full information.

Apply to W. D. SLACK, Land Com'r, Little Rock, Ark.

dec 24 624-18t

[illegible] HEAR [illegible]

dec 24 624 13t

PEACE INSTITUTE,

For Young Ladies,

RALEIGH, N. C.

THE Spring term commences on the 16th of January 1880, and closes the 1st of June following.

The total expense of a boarding pupil for one term is $120, payable in advance. This amount will include board, with washing, fuel, lights, furnished room and servant's attendance, tuition in English branches and Latin, Calisthenics, Text Books and Stationery used for school purposes. For $150 all the above, with Instrumental Music and use of Piano.

For circular containing particulars as to terms, Course of Study, &c., address

REV. R. BURWELL & SON,

dec 24 624 3m Raleigh, N. C.

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.

HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.

Children's Merino Under Suits---A great comfort and convenience.

CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.

LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.

PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,

In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.

A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.

OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.

Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.

dec 3 631-1y

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847.) S. W. WHITING.

R. B. ANDREWS & CO.

Men and Boys CLOTHING,

Dress Shirts, Cuffs,

TIES, SCARFS,

Half Hose, Suspenders,

Gloves,

Handkerchiefs, Underwear,

Trunks, Valises, &c.

Extra Large Sizes CLOTHING,

A Specialty.

HATS AND CAPS,

A Large Assortment.

We give special attention to orders from a distance.

LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.

NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh, N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods

—AT—

M. M. KATZ'S,

36 MARKET STREET.

BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.

Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.

DRESS GOODS.—Satin Melange, Cashmere Sole, Brocade Persan, Persan Raye, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.

MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Ete, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.

CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS, Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets. The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.

MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c., &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to oct 22 M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS!

Cheapest Weekly Newspaper IN THE U.S.

THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS, now in its seventeenth year of publication, is a general family newspaper, unsurpassed in all the requirements of American journalism. First and foremost, it is a newspaper in the completest sense of the name. Its telegraphic service is unsurpassed by any other publication in the country. Having the advantage of connection with the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, it publishes all the dispatches of both the WESTERN ASSOCIATED PRESS and the NATIONAL ASSOCIATED PRESS, besides a very extensive service of special dispatches from all important points. It is INDEPENDENT IN POLITICS. It presents all political news free from partisan bias or coloring, and absolutely without fear or favor as to parties. The events of the coming year in the world of politics are of such peculiar, and even personal, interest to every American citizen, as to render it of paramount importance that fair and unvarnished statements of every political event or question should be at the command of all who desire to know the truth, rather than the distorted versions of interested party organs. It seeks to furnish the reader facts, the possession of which shall qualify him to form his own opinions. It is a FAMILY paper. Each issue contains SIX COMPLETED STORIES, an altogether novel feature in a NEWSPAPER proper, and these have won for it, wherever it is known, an enviable popularity in the home circle. Besides this, each number contains a rich variety of condensed notes on art, literature, science, industries, fashions, etc., which are of common interest in the household. The paper is pure in tone, and nothing objectionable is ever permitted to appear in its columns, a characteristic of the very first importance in a journal that assumes to meet the requirements of a family paper. Its MARKET REPORTS are complete and trustworthy. THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS is the CHEAPEST newspaper in the United States. SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS A YEAR—postage included. A dollar bill pays for sixteen months. It is, in the truest sense, A PEOPLE'S PAPER in character and price. Address

VICTOR F. LAWSON, Publisher, 123 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill.

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of

BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,

For the purpose of carrying on a

General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,

AT THE OLD STANDS,

5, 7 and 8, North Front Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.

JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,

THOS. H. McKOY.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 8, 1877.

oct 10 509.

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.

nov 19 619-13t

COTTON!

IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants

For the Sale of Cotton,

Which they are prepared to do

On the Most Economical Charges.

They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.

ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,

September 3d, 1879. Wilmington, N. C. 608

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.

200 Hhds and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses. 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by

KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

HALL & PEARSALL

OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of

100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,

25 Bbls New MESS PORK,

15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER,

450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,

3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,

30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,

50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.

sep 3—608-tf

AGENTS READ THIS

We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.

nov 19 619-6m

SALT. SALT. SALT.

21,000 Sacks

Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!

Factory Filled Fine Table,

AND

Liverpool Ground Alum.

Full Weight Guaranteed.

"WILLARD'S,"

NORTH WATER STREET,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

dec 17 623-tf

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine

FOR THE FAMILY.

The Only Choice.

I know a heart that sits upon its throne,
Yet makes its kingdom poorer day by day;
A queen unblest, in that it blesses none,
And far too poor to give itself away.

And one I know hath all its sweetness given,
A flower left empty by the thankless air,
Yet in its losing finds its only heaven,
Fed by the fountains of divine repair.

Ah! who can weigh our wealth against our death?
Where is the justice fine of sight and touch?
So light the things we dream have dearest worth,
And those we hold for nothing worth so much.

How shall I dare, then, for this joy to pray,
Lest when it come it prove a grievous loss?
Or how implore that grief may pass away,
Lest thus I spurn a flower-bearing cross?

Oh, blessed tears, that cleanse the eyes for morn!
Oh, costly gains, wherein our all we lose!
Oh, rose of peace, so white with many a thorn!
Choose thou, my heart, be strong at last, and choose.

Not yet, not yet! I cannot ask for pain,
And dare not ask the joy that bindeth me.
I cannot choose; my Father, I would fain
Ask Thee for that which looks like joy to Thee.

—Frances Louisa Bushnell in Scribner's Monthly for December.

Jim's Story.

BY MRS. MARY BRADLEY.

"He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life."

"It ain't much of a story to tell," says Jim, getting up quietly when the superintendent nodded to him that it was his time to speak.

"It was along of Micky Doolan that it all began. Micky an' me was kind o' pardners like. We didn't neither of us have any fathers or mothers to speak of. Mine was dead, and Micky's ole woman use to get drunk an' pitch into him; so he didn't hang around her much, an' we used to pick up a living anyways we could. Sometimes it was shovelin' snow, and sometimes it was cold victuals at the basement doors, an' more times it was hookin' at the corner groceries. We used to hide behind the bar'ls and grab potatoes 'n' turnips, 'n' apples, when there was customers inside, an' nobody watchin'. You know all about that!

"Well, one night Micky says to me, 'Jimmy,' says he, 'I'm starved as a rat.' 'An' that's true for you, Micky,' says I. We hadn't never hooked anything before but wittles an' such; but to-night we was up to anything, an' when Micky see his chance all of a sudden to cut into one o' them dinin' rooms before the folks came down to dinner, an' grab a whole lot o' the silver, I didn't have anything to say against it.

"'Serve 'em right for not keepin' their doors locked,' says Micky. An' we streaked it round the corner an' was out of sight an' hearin' long before them spoons was missed. We lived high on 'em for a week, an' when the money was gone, we thought it was a easy way to get more. Micky was as spry as a flea, he was, and he did the grabbin' mostly. But for all his limber legs, an' my sharp eyes to help him, he came to grief. It was along of a gold thimble, that he spied in a work basket on a window sill, an' just as he was makin' off with it a servant gal comes into the room and sees him. Well, she screeches, an' Micky cuts; but the gal cuts after him, yellin' 'bloody murder,' an' then there's a crowd, an' a pleeceman, an' Micky tries to git acrost the avenue, where there's cars coming both ways to onst, and the next thing I knows he's down amongst the horses' feet. I seed the cop carryin' him off with his legs an' arms a hangin'; an' that was the last I see of Micky for weeks an' weeks to come.

"They didn't know I b'longed with him, ye understand. I kinder got mixed in with the crowd, an' sneaked out of it, cos what was the good of gettin' took? I knew they would be takin' Micky to the hospital, cos of his gettin' hurt, an' I waited round an' watched my chance to git in an' see him. But it was weeks and weeks, as I told ye, afore I could even find out where he was. An' then, when at last I did get in, sure it wasn't Micky at all, jist the ghost of himself that was lyin' there in one of them little white beds. I wouldn't have believed it was him of it hadn't been for the eyes of him, an' the voice. That was Micky, for all it was so wake.

"'Jim!' says he, 'Oh Jim! is it there you are at last? I thought you was never coming to see me till I died.'

"'Wot you talkin' about dyin' for?' says I, 'I'd like to ketch you goin' for to die, an' leavin' me!'

"'But I am,' says he. 'You can ask the doctor, if you don't b'lieve me. I'm going to die, Jim. But I don't mind it much, now you've come. I didn't want to go till I'd told you something,' says he. 'Come close to me, Jim; I can't speak loud.'

"'Wot is it, Micky?' says I, gettin' up as close I could. 'Ef it's a secret I'll never tell.'

"'But it ain't a secret, that's the beauty of it, Jim,' says he, with his eyes ashinin' like stars. 'I got religion! An' I'm so happy I do'no' what to do.'

"When I heard Micky say that you might uv upset me with a feather.

"'I knew you'd be surprised, but it's true, Jim. I'll tell you all about it.'

"An' with that he begins, an' makes the beautifullest story ever I listened to in my life; all about how Mr. Duncan here had been awaitin' him in the hospital, an' bringin' him fruit an' flowers, an' showin' him pictures, an' readin' to him. An' one day he asked him if he knew that Jesus was his Saviour, and Micky didn't know 'nothin' about it—how should he know? So Mr. Duncan he told him, an' it's no use me repeatin' wot he told Micky, nor wot Micky told me about it, cos you've all had a chance to hear Mr. Duncan for yourselves. But Micky wasn't afraid to die, ner nothin', but being so happy himself, he couldn't rest easy till I'd found out the comfort of it too.

"I says to him, 'Micky,' says I, 'wot's the use av talkin' to me? How'm I goin' to get a livin' if I stop hookin' an' how'm I goin' to get religion if I don't?'

"'You can trust the Lord for the livin',' he says, 'an' Mr. Duncan he'll help you, too. He said he would, an' I want you to promise me, Jim, true an' sacred, cos I'm goin' to die. I want you to promise right now, Jim, that you won't never steal again, nor tell lies, nor do nothing wicked any more. Jim, I want you to come to heaven, too, when you die.'

"And then he holds on to my hands, an' talks to me like a preacher, and the tears come streamin' down his poor little cheeks, an' I git to blubberin' too—how can I help it, would you please to tell me? And it all ends in my promisin Micky I'll do as he says, leastways I'll try. By this, the nurse came along, an' says Micky musn't talk no more. So I had to go, an' that was the last time I laid eyes on him. He put up his arms to hug me when I was goin' away. 'And don't you forget what you've promised, ef I never see you again,' he says.

"I didn't think I wouldn't have another chance to talk to him, an' it was hard lines when I cum to the hospital next day an' found he was dead. I tell ye, boys, it seemed like a lonesome sort of a world to me when Micky wasn't in it

"One night Billy Kelly—he was the biggest bully of 'em all—he comes to me and wants to know wot I mean by it? 'You're a skulkin' he says, 'you ain't actin' square; wot's the meanin' of it all?' So I up an' told him I was goin' to quit, that I was tired of takin' risks, an' I meant to try for a place somewheres, an' earn my livin' honest. He didn't believe me, an' no more did the other fellows. And Bill Kelly set 'em on to duck me for lyin' to 'em. Well, af it hadn't been for Mr. Duncan you wouldn't a heard this story, I reckon! He comes along an' got me out o' their hands, just when I was a gaspin'.

"Mr. Duncan helped me. I couldn't ha' done nothin' without him. But he got me work, so as I needn't have to steal for my wittles; an' he showed me the way to find Jesus. I don't say as I've got religion as confident as Micky did, but I'm tryin' and Mr. Duncan says the Lord don't ask no more of nobody."—Presbyterian Journal.

Bridal Costumes of Fernando Po.

As with us, the Fernando Po bride is clad in white—not the gauzy, flowing robe, however, but a plastering of earthy paste resembling plaster of Paris. She wears a bridal veil, too, composed of tiny white shells, strung together, and which covers the face from forehead to chin, while her plentifully pomatumed tresses are surmounted with an enormous helmet made of cowhide. The Fernando Po bridegroom is even more elaborately decorated. It is a work of time as well as of art to make the young gentleman ready to take the necessary vows before the two mothers—his own and his intended's—who act the part of priests. Like his bride, he is thickly plastered over with the white tola paste, and he wears on his head an enormous disc of fine bamboo plait skewered to his hair with long pins with blue and red beads. His marriage raiment is of strung shells, and it being notorious that the instant a young man commences to make himself ready for marriage malicious evil spirits are in close attendance, and on the alert to baulk his laudable intent, as an antidote against their malevolence he carries in his hand the whole time, and never takes his eyes off, a piece of a yam shaped like a heart, and in which the red feather of a parrot is stuck. The marriage ceremony is the essence of simplicity. The mother-priests place an arm of each round the neck of the bride and bridegroom and deliver a short address to them on their respective duties, after which the calabash of palm wine is produced, and the contracting parties ratify the condition by drinking the one to the other, after which the officiating mothers-in-law pledge each in the remainder, and the ceremony is at an end.—London Globe.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Carlyle, Tennyson and Ruskin.

It is now twenty-five years since Mr. Bayne published a series of critical articles which found their way to a wide circle of readers by virtue of their intellectual enthusiasm and their pictorial style. The writer appeared rather in the guise of an interpreter than as a critic. The most striking quality of his writings was their sympathy with noble ideals and standards of thought or life, with aspiration in whatever form of art it clothed itself, and with beauty and power of style. In his earliest critical efforts Mr. Bayne revealed the governing principle of his method of critical examination; the judgment of literary works and men in vital connection with actual life. To him art is not a thing apart from the interests of the great mass of humanity, living in a sphere and under laws of its own; it is rather the pure and lasting impression which human life makes from age to age upon its finest minds. His method is not, therefore, strictly intellectual and critical; it is rather sympathetic and humane. He learns more by bringing his mind into sympathetic relations with the writer whose secrets of method and power he endeavors to discover than by cold, judicial scrutiny. Mr. Bayne excels as an interpreter of the great minds he has studied. He brings us into close and intelligent intercourse with them, and without lessening our admiration for genius makes us feel those bonds of a common humanity which bind the greatest men to their fellows.

This humanity is so marked a trait in Mr. Bayne's character that we are not surprised to find him grouping Carlyle, Tennyson and Ruskin in the same volume. However these writers differ in mental character and artistic purpose, they have this in common: that they have stood in some vital relation to the times in which they lived. They have not been mere intellectual workmen, cultivating their art for its own sake; they have each written from strong conviction, and the sources of their power are to be sought in the profound earnestness with which each, after his own fashion, has sought to solve the perplexing problems of the age. Pope commanded the intellectual suffrages of his time; Tennyson has won the hearts of his contemporaries; Addison wrote charmingly of society vices and gently satirized the fashionable foibles of the day; Carlyle has grappled with the most difficult problems of mind and character; Sir Joshua Reynolds found audience with the cultured few; Ruskin has educated a generation, not in the technicalities of painting, but in comprehension of the beauty which underlies and is the soul of art. In his own way each of Mr. Bayne's Masters has been an original power in the world.

Each, too, in his own way, has been a master of the art of writing. It is urged against Tennyson that he has studied too closely the forms and niceties of expression, and certainly none will deny that in English poetry no songs have been sweeter or more harmonious than his. Ruskin has made English prose almost as poetic as English verse, strong in feeling, rich in color and melodious as music itself. His descriptions of nature are unrivalled in any language, and they are not artistic arrangements of musical sentences merely; they embody the results of a wonderfully intelligent and keen observation of natural effects. And whatever may be justly charged against the extravagances of Carlyle's later style his earlier compositions are masterly, the essay on Burns having eloquence at once profound and pathetic.

Of the three, it can be said of only one that years have increased his power and added to his fame. Tennyson has grown into more complete mastery of his art without losing his hold upon nature or his audience, and the throng of younger poets have not obscured his work or imperiled his place. Carlyle and Ruskin, on the other hand, have withdrawn themselves from the deeper currents of modern life. Their great services find no less hearty recognition and admiration on account of this, but the fact remains that we read their earlier rather than their later works, and we go to them for intellectual suggestion and stimulus rather than guidance. They will take their places in our literature as wonderfully vigorous and aggressive minds who largely influenced their age by their freedom, earnestness and loyal devotion to truth in life and art.—Christian Union.

The Scotch Minister and His Fiddle.

In all ages and all localities have existed clergymen having many traits of fine feeling, masterly attainments in their pulpit ministrations, and yet addicted to frequent touches of eccentricity of character. Possessing all the qualifications of a popular minister was the Rev Mr. W. W——, who filled one of the Secession pulpits in G——, yet music seemed to be the ruling passion in his life. When in a more than ordinary strain of eloquence, he would begin a long sentence on the lowest note of the gamut, and would in a semiquaver style run to the top of the scale where, pausing a moment, he would descend the scale in the slowest and most marked mood: as if descending a stair, step by step, he would dunt down word by word till he reached his starting point. With his fine flexible voice and finely tuned musical ear, the effect was rather pleasant and very noticeable by a stranger. Mr. W—— was beloved by his congregation generally, but his passion for fiddling gave offence to some of the strait-laced old burghers, lineal descendants of the Puritans. His proficiency on the violin was equalled if not excelled, by Mrs. W——'s performance on the pianoforte. It was a treat of no ordinary kind to hear husband and wife wailing out some of the old Highland coronachs similar in pathos to the "Wounded Hussar." No other word of reproach was raised against the dear, good man by the unco guid, but aye the cuckoo cry, "He's far o'er fond o' the feedle." The frequency of these croakings were beginning to attract the notice of the elders, so, to put to silence the voice of these disguised friends, a meeting of session was convened privately, at which it was agreed a deputation should wait on Mr. W——, and give a gentle remonstrance and hint to be less demonstrative in his musical proclivities. Friday evening ensuing was appointed for the performance of this delicate task, but a deputation could not be formed to face the trying ordeal. After denials and proposals, it was ultimately arranged that the whole session go.

Ere Friday came some kind friend apprised Mr. W—— of the whole scheme, and, as "a warned man is half armed," Mr. W—— was prepared for the emergency. Precisely at eight o'clock a friendly tinkle sounded at the door-bell. Ready waiting to receive his guests, though they knew not a spy (supposed to be the bedrel) had forestalled the deputation, Mr. W—— seemed surprised to see so many dear friends, and expressed the pleasure it gave him to have all his session at once as visitors. Mr. L—— took speech in hand, and said—"We were almost afraid to call; hearing music when we came forward, we thought you had company." Laughingly, Mr. W—— said—"Yes, we have company—a goodly company of good company. The wife has recently got a present of some new music from grandpa, and we were just running over it together. We'll just let you hear a few pieces; we think it very fine." Without waiting for assent to his proposal, the reverend gentleman brought his cremona. Mrs. W—— sat down to the piano, and for fully an hour the company of elders, or remonstrants, were with coronachs, Highland wails, operatic music, reels, and strathspeys kept entranced When a pause was made the pleased listeners looked from one to the other, as much as to say, now's your chance to speak. As if divining the thoughts of his dumb-stricken session, Mr. W—— again produced his fiddle, and setting the string on a peculiar key, gave them a fine imitation of the Highland bagpipe, and followed with a charming selection of operatic overtures, marches, patriotic music such as "Scots wha ha'e." Reverting in a moment from grave to gay he gave the then popular street air in the mouth of every gamin, "Pop goes the weasel," and, as a finale, he gave them, in a style that made the most of them beat time with their heels, their heart's being in unison with the fiddler's, "De'il among the tailors." They came away as they went in, and, when the story got abroad, the minister was praised and the croakers laughed at. Truly it may be said, he gave the elders a cordial welcome in, and fiddled them out well pleased with the entertainment, but heartily despising themselves for their want of courage to discharge the duty, the cause of their visit. Pity 'tis that more of the clerics don't resort to the fiddle as a pastime.—Scottish American Journal.

Cross-Breeding Among Fish.

Mr. Robert B. Roosevelt, so well known in connection with fish breeding, is responsible for some surprising assertions with regard to the inter-crossing of distinct species of fish. Some two years ago the eggs of a shad were placed in a pan of fresh water which could not have contained any milt of the male shad. This done the eggs were mixed with the milt of a striped bass and they were immediately fertilized. They were then placed in the shad-hatching boxes, and fully 10,000 cross-breeds were the result. They were turned into the river at the proper time, and it is not yet time for them to return, if they follow the customs of their mother.

That the hybrids are likely to thrive and breed is thought probable after the perfect success that has followed the crossing of the California salmon and the common brook trout. Mr. Roosevelt says: "We have crossed fifteen or twenty different breeds, and all successfully. This would account for what is called the 'land-locked salmon' which is found in lakes having no communication with the sea. The object of this crossing and breeding is to improve the fish, just as they cross neat cattle and horses, and even fruits and flowers. The result will be to make fish food plenty, and to add a large number of 'queer fish' to the number already in existence."

Jean Armour at Her Husband's Grave.

On the authority of a Carnwarth gentleman, Gilfillan relates a rather touching story connected with Burns. In the spring after the poet died, Thomas Nimmo, a native of Carnwarth, having received his discharge from the army in England, was traveling home with a comrade. Passing through Dumfries they inquired the way to St. Michael's churchyard, to visit the poet's grave. Following a footpath through the wilderness of tombstones which deck that famous burying ground, they looked round for a stone to tell them where he slept. Not finding anything of the sort, they made up to a female in deep mourning who was sitting on the ground a little further on. Nimmo thus addressed her: "Mistress, we are strangers, and would feel obliged if you would show us the grave of Burns." Pointing to the narrow mound at her feet, and bursting into tears she said, "That, soldiers, is his grave, and I am his widow." The poor fellows apologized for disturbing her sorrows, and went on their way. "It were a good subject," says Gilfillan, "for a painter—Jean Armour at the grave of Burns, while no monument marked the spot."

SECULAR NEWS.

Christmas night the weather was so warm in this section that it was really uncomfortable to sit in the house while the windows were lowered. Before day the next morning snow was falling.—Newbern Nut Shell.

A negro man near Wilson recently purchased a farm for $1,100, paid $900 in cash, and raised tobacco last year to the value of $800. He now has ten large barns ready for the warehouse. He sold his most inferior barn this week for $75.—Raleigh News.

About 150 exodusters from Kinston, La Grange, Falling Creek and Rocky Mount went North last night by the midnight train. Accommodations on the Atlantic road had to be refused to many because their baggage could not be stored.—Raleigh Observer.

On yesterday we were shown some white spiræa in full bloom, an amaryllas, a pansy, a white hyacinth, golden bell, violets, and winter honeysuckle. When it is remembered that all these blossomed in the open air without extra protection, it is remarkable.—Newbern Democrat.

Burglars entered the store of E. Turner & Sons, at Whitaker Station, on the night of the 25th ult., and made an unsuccessful attempt to break open their combination safe. They then took clothing, hats, boots and other goods to the amount of $150 or $200, and left for parts unknown.—Shelby Aurora.

Miss Julia Jackson was presented last Wednesday by ex-Confederate soldiers in Baltimore with a handsome silver pitcher, inscribed, "To Gen. Stonewall Jackson's daughter, from Confederate soldiers in Maryland, Christmas, 1879." The presentation was made in a quiet manner at Miss Cary's school, where Miss Jackson is a pupil. Mrs. Jackson was present.—Charlotte Observer.

Bogus Certificates.

It is no vile drugged stuff, pretending to be made of wonderful foreign roots, barks, &c., and puffed up by long bogus certificates of pretended miraculous cures, but a simple, pure, effective medicine, made of well known, valuable remedies, that furnishes its own certificate by its cures. We refer to Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See "Truths" and "Proverbs," in another column.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.

An Enlarged View of the Pad.

Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs.
Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO. Chicago, Ill.

45 Years Before the Public.
THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
CELEBRATED
LIVER PILLS,
FOR THE CURE OF
Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,
DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them A FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.
Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression Dr. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.
The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.
Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

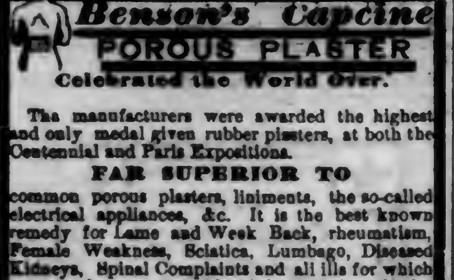
Benson's Capcine
POROUS PLASTER
Celebrated the World Over.

The manufacturers were awarded the highest and only medal given rubber plasters, at both the Centennial and Paris Expositions.

FAR SUPERIOR TO

common porous plasters, liniments, the so-called electrical appliances, &c. It is the best known remedy for Lame and Week Back, rheumatism, Female Weakness, Sciatica, Lumbago, Diseased Kidneys, Spinal Complaints and all ills for which porous plasters are used. Ask your druggist for Benson's Capcine Plaster, and see that you get nothing else. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25 cents.

Mailed on receipt of price by SEABURY & JOHNSON, 21 Platt Street, New York dec24-1m



IRON BITTERS, A Great Tonic.
IRON BITTERS, A Sure Appetiser.
IRON BITTERS, A Complete Strengthener.
IRON BITTERS, A Valuable Medicine.
IRON BITTERS, Not Sold as a Beverage.
IRON BITTERS, For Delicate Females.

Highly recommended to the public for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient TONIC; especially in Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Intermittent Fevers, Want of Appetite, Loss of Strength, Lack of Energy, &c. It enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. To the aged, ladies, and children requiring recuperation, this valuable remedy can not be too highly recommended. It acts like a charm on the digestive organs. A teaspoonful before meals will remove all dyspeptic symptoms.
TRY IT.
Sold by all Druggists.
THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO.
BALTIMORE, Md.

dec 10   62-1y-eow

NEWEST
SABBATH SCHOOL MUSIC BOOKS
60,000 Already Sold.
HEAVENLY CAROLS
By Rev. I. Baltzell and Rev. E. S. Lorenz.

Including an improved Elementary and Practical Department on the Theory of Music, by J. H. Kurzenknabe. 176 pages. Board cover. Single copies, by mail, 35 cents. Per dozen, by mail, $4. Per dozen, by express, $3 60.

GOLDEN SONGS,
For the Sabbath School.
NO BETTER BOOK IN MARKET.
150,000 Sold.
By Rev. I. Baltzell.

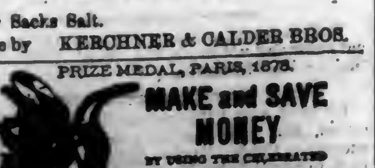
Including an Elementary and Practical Department on the Theory of Music, by J. H. Kurzenknabe. 176 Pages. Board Cover. Single copies, by mail, 35 cents. Per dozen, by express, $3 60 or $4 per dozen by mail, postage paid. Address
W. J. SHUEY, Dayton, Ohio.
dec 17   623-4t

50 Gilt, Motto, Lily, Scroll, and Marble Cards, 10 cents. 60 Agents' Samples, 10 cents. U. S. Card Co., Northford, Ct.   dec 31-625-13t

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.
1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

PRIZE MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.



MAKE and SAVE MONEY BY USING THE CELEBRATED MODEL PRINTING PRESS

Any smart boy can readily manage it and do hundreds of dollars worth of work every year. It will save BUSINESS MEN all their printing bills. Presses for Business Printing $[illegible] to $[illegible]. Card Presses as low as $3. Rotary foot and steam power presses $[illegible] to $[illegible]. 7,000 now in use. Send [illegible] cents for handsome illustrated [illegible]-page Instruction and Specimen Book, entitled and copy of MODEL PRINTER'S GUIDE, with all the particulars. J. W. DAUGHADAY & CO., Inventors and Manufacturers, 723 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

—HOW TO PRINT—

"The Model Press surpasses anything we ever expected. It has about paid for itself in two weeks.—BENSON & McGILL, Hartwell, Ga." "I would not take $[illegible] and be without the Model Press. It has netted me in less than three months over $[illegible].—J. H. STARR, Hartford, Conn." "No investment will pay as well as a Model Press. In my own business I have saved about $[illegible] a year by its use.—B. J. BICKNELL, Memphis, Tenn."

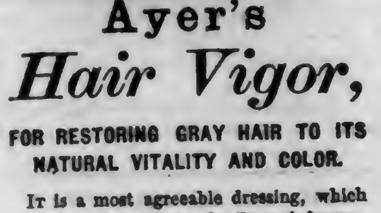
nov 5   617-4teow

An Elegant Holiday Present.—A Gilt Bound Autograph Album, with 48 beautifully engraved pages and 47 select quotations, all for 15c post-paid, Stamps taken. Agents wanted. RAY & CO. West Haven, Ct.
nov 19   619-4t eow

SAWING THE LOG.

THE GREAT SUCCESS OF THIS WONDERFUL IMPROVED RIDING SAW MACHINE is fully demonstrated by the number in use and the present demand for them. It saws Logs of any size. One man can saw more logs or cord wood in one day and easier than two men can the old way. It will saw a two foot log in three minutes. Every Farmer needs one. Township agents wanted. Send for Illustrated Circular and Terms. Address W. W. BOSTWICK & CO., 178 Elm St., Cincinnati, O.

oct 29   616-4teow



Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

Proverbs.	Proverbs.
"For sinking spells, fits, dizziness, palpitation and low spirits, rely on Hop Bitters."	"The greatest appetizer, stomach, blood and liver regulator—Hop Bitters."
"Read of, procure and use Hop Bitters, and you will be strong, healthy and happy."	"Take Hop Bitters three times a day and you will have no doctor bills to pay."
"Ladies, do you want to be strong, healthy and beautiful? Then use Hop Bitters."	"Hop Bitters builds up strengthens and cures continually from the first dose."
"$500 will be paid for a case that Hop Bitters will not cure or help."	"Fair skin, rosy cheeks and the sweetest breath in Hop Bitters."
"Clergymen, Lawyers, Editors, Bankers and Ladies need Hop Bitters daily."	"Kidney and Urinary complaints of all kinds permanently cured by Hop Bitters."
"Hop Bitters has restored to sobriety and health, perfect wrecks from intemperance."	"Sour stomach, sick headache and dizziness. Hop Bitters cures with a few doses."

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,
MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,
1879—'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's-day, into two Terms.

The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.

There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:

1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.

A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.

Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.

Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.

For Catalogues and other information apply to
REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D.,
President.
jan 16-622.

ALTAFFER & PRICE
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Wood-work and Builder's Hardware.

We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.

Church Windows Doors Pew Ends
CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles.

Factory foot of Walnut St
Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross } Wilmington, N. C.
apl 16   588-1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL.   OSCAR PEARSALL.

HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET.
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF
Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish
Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,
COTTON BAGGING and TIES.

☞ We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.

HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
63-1y

BUY THE BEST.

WE HAVE now on hand finished.
35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.

Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.

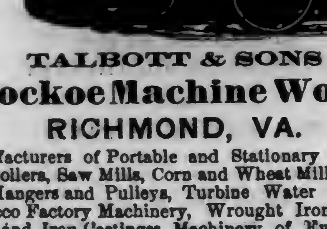
Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.

A. A. McKETHAN & SONS,
Fayetteville, N. C.
Oct. 21.   854-t

TO THE TRADE
—AT—
Low Prices.

400 Boxes D. S. and SMOKED SIDES,
1000 Bdls GRIP TIES,
2000 Bdls ACME TIES,
1000 Bdls PIECED TIES,
1000 Whole and Half Rolls BAGGING,
500 Kegs NAILS,
300 Bales HAY,
5000 Bush CORN,
250 Bbls SUGARS,
250 Bags COFFEE,
1000 Bbls FLOUR, following brands: La Rose, Blanche, Jack Frost, Plant's Extra, Paragon, Princess, &c.

WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.



TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.

Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings Machinery of Every Description.

Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.

TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER
The Invention of the Age.

It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape.)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
☞ Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.

JAMES W. JACKSON.   BENJAMIN BELL.

JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS, PUBLISHERS,
AND
BOOK BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.

GOOD WORK.   LOW PRICES.

We are prepared to execute in the very best style, ALL KINDS OF
JOB PRINTING
SUCH AS

Business Cards,	Statements,	Catalogues,
Visiting Cards,	Handbills,	Manifests,
Wedding Cards,	Posters,	Bills Lading,
Show Cards,	Notices,	Receipts,
Bill Heads,	Checks,	Labels,
Letter Heads,	Notes,	Tags,
Note Heads,	Drafts,	Envelopes,
Account Sales,	School Circulars,	Pamphlets,

and in fact, every description of
RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING
AT THE
LOWEST HARD TIMES PRICES.

We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed. Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS WANTED For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1,018 Pages, 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & Co., 66 N. 4th St., Phil'a., Pa.
oct 15   614-1y

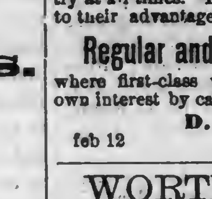
ORGAN BEATTY PIANO
New Organs 13 Stops, 3 set Golden Tongue Reeds, 5 Oct's, 2 Knee Swells, Walnut Case, warnt'd 6 years, Stool & Book $98. New Pianos, Stool, Cover & Book, $143 to $255. Before you buy be sure to write me. Illustrated Newspaper sent Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.
oct 15   614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.
CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
63 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,
would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.
SAMPLES SENT FREE!
Also, to their
DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.

Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.

All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order.   mch 12-1y

McMILLAN BROS.,
MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN
SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS



15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS
FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.

Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes, Still Doors & Grate bars

As we have four Copper-smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only

Regular and Reliable Establishment

where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing

D. G. McMILLAN, Supt.
feb 12   Fayetteville, N. C.

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.

HAVE FOR SALE.

2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.

Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.

Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.
Nov. 19   463-1y

ADRIAN & VOLLERS
CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present,

SMOKED BACON,
in hogsheads and boxes,
HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKG'S,
Breakfast Strips,
Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,
SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,
Molasses and Syrup
OF ALL KINDS.
FLOUR of all Qualities,
and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries
nov 19   551-12m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
86 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md.
Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies, &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c.
mch 28   481-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES
OF THE
GENERAL ASSEMBLY
OF THE
Presbyterian Church in the United States

THE CLERKS.

Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D. Richmond, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.

President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq. Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md.

PUBLICATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va.
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION.

Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D.D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn.

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September
6. Education—First Sabbath in November

WE KEEP
PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR, FAIRBANK'S LARD,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FINE N. O. SYRUP,
And other Standard articles.
Orders solicited.
HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XIII—No 6.] WILMINGTON, JANUARY 14, 1880. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXIII—No. 1,247.]

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

One copy one year, in advance.....$2 65
If payment be delayed six months..... 3 15
One copy six months, in advance..... 1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each NEW subscriber of $2 65.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procured without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

[ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.]

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

MONEY FOR THE HEATHEN.

The Annual Report for Foreign Missions, for the year ending April 1, 1879, is an interesting study. The resources of the committee were $46,000. Of this $6,000 was "Miscellaneous," leaving $40,000 from churches, Sabbath schools and ladies' associations.

The following table shows the relative proportion among the Synods:

SYNODS.	DOLLARS	COM.	AVERAGE.
Virginia	13,394	25,700	52 cents
Kentucky	4,132	9,350	44 "
South Carolina	4,535	11,200	40 "
Alabama	2,240	6,100	37 "
Mississippi	2,560	8,400	30 "
North Carolina	4,922	17,700	28 "
Arkansas	908	3,350	27 "
Georgia	2,234	9,050	24 "
Memphis	1,329	5,800	23 "
Missouri	1,707	7,500	22¾ "
Nashville	1,456	9,150	17 "
Texas	841	5,600	15 "

The General Assembly asks for 75 cents per member. Thus all fall short from 23–60 cents.

Among the "Miscellaneous" we note "Virginia Friend, $1,400," for the travelling expenses and outfit for the Rev. Mr. Sampson. O! that there were many like-minded, to equip and send forth a missionary! Or that two, five or ten friends of means would unite in the undertaking. "Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another."

The Saul in statue among the churches is Franklin Street, Baltimore, with $2,350 for missions. More than any one of the Synods of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Memphis, Missouri, Nashville, Texas. More than any one of the sixty-four Presbyteries, save East Hanover. One seventeenth of the whole amount. In 1876 this church contributed to Foreign Missions $1,280 more than this year. Baltimore is entitled to the committee, as the churches and friends in that city contribute $3,600. This within a few hundred dollars covers the entire expenses for salaries, clerk hire, printing, traveling, office expenses, postage, exchange, and the Missionary, so that the other churches can rest assured their money goes direct to the heathen field.

CHURCHES CONTRIBUTING OVER $200.

CHURCHES.	DOLLARS.	COM.	AVERAGE PER MEMBER.
Baltimore, Franklin St	2,350	510	$4 60
Norfolk, 2nd	443	106	4 06
Nicholasville, Ky.	337	125	2 70
Charleston, Globe St.	617	268	2 31
Selma, 1st	498	230	2 16
Lexington, Va.	514	250	2 06
Mt. Zion, Sumter, S. C.	207	107	1 94
Norfolk, 1st	475	263	1 80
Charleston, 2nd	430	252	1 70
Baltimore, Franklin Sq'r	403	242	1 67
Lexington, Ky.	505	328	1 54
Columbus, Miss.	265	168	1 57
Statesville, N. C.	249	181	1 38
Charlotte, N. C., 1st	387	286	1 35
Bethel, Va.	228	170	1 34
Wilmington, 1st	312	241	1 29
Richmond, 2nd	659	523	1 26
Tinkling Springs	291	238	1 22
Clarksville, Tenn.	274	238	1 15
Charlottesville, Va.	208	182	1 14
Paris, Ky.	305	270	1 13
New Orleans, 1st	784	700	1 12
Raleigh, 1st	226	216	1 05
Fredericksburg	201	197	1 02
Danville, Ky.	204	212	96
Augusta, Ga.	360	375	96
Columbia, S. C.	208	221	94
Louisville, 2nd	441	538	82
New Orleans, Prytania St.	216	273	79
Montgomery, Ala.	253	330	77
Memphis, 2nd	209	326	64
Richmond, Grace St.	203	320	63
Petersburg, Tabb St.	211	405	52
Richmond, 1st	204	490	46

These thirty-four churches contribute $13,-960, or over one-third of the whole. In almost every case it is due to the Ladies' Associations. How blessed it would be if some of these large churches would send forth a missionary of their own! Joanna and Susanna ministered to Christ, Macedonia and Achaia to the poor saints at Jernsalem, sending their contribution through official hands, the Philippians equipped Paul. Perhaps if there were a directness, it would not be difficult for one church, or two or three contignons ones, to increase their gifts to $1,000, and the missionary could occasionally send an epistle to the "church which communicated with him concerning giving and receiving."

HIGH AVERAGES.

Cotton Plant, Ark., per member, $2 75; Valdosta, Ga., $2 33; Newbern, N. C., $3 14; Union Springs, Ala., $3 00; Salem (B. R.), S. C., $3 00; Abbeville, S. C., $1 93; Fernandina, Fla., $1 90; Gainesville, Ala., $1 76; Washington, Ga., $1 66; Central, Washington, D. C., $1 50; Dublin, Va., $1 50; Memphis, Lauderdale Street, $1 29; Chester, S. C., $1 25; Cheraw, S. C., $1 16; Spartanburg, S. C., $1 12; Hopewell, Marion county, S. C., $1 03.

These seventeen churches of 1,000 members contribute about $2,000, or an average of $2. As these are not the "rich city churches" (save rich in faith and good works), but the ordinary town and country churches, ought not the General Assembly to ask for this amount from each member?

The following table shows in each Synod, the number of non-contributing and contributing churches—how many give under $5, and how many from $5 to $10.

SYNODS.	NON-CON'G.	CON'G.	UNDER $5.	$5 TO $10.
Alabama	37	73	34	16
Arkansas	36	43	21	12
Georgia	35	83	28	31
Kentucky	47	78	30	20
Memphis	60	67	23	24
Mississippi	89	90	28	29
Missouri	72	66	14	23
Nashville	30	75	26	20
North Carolina	42	160	62	53
South Carolina	32	118	43	31
Texas	67	56	25	14
Virginia	42	217	53	67

In the five Synods of Georgia, Memphis, Mississippi, Missouri and Texas, the non-giving out-number the giving. Thus 667 give nothing, and 688 from 50 cents to $10; or about $3,500. Evidently there was no general collection; perhaps mostly given by the ministers family. To some feeble flocks the Master would say, "Well done;" to others it must be said, "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly." Cannot the sessions of these 94 churches in North Carolina see that there is a better report next time? Most of the non-contributing are small, but the chief lack arises from the small gifts of the many.

The following churches in this Synod are not mentioned in the report:

Gibh's Mission, Shiloh, Tabor, Bethphage, Drusilla, Jefferson.

Mt. Carmel, Barbacue, Sherwood, China Grove, Sharon, Rockingham, Longstreet, Mizpeh, Flat Branch.

Machpelah, Caldwell, Bethel, Hepzihah, Waynesville, Mills River, Henderson, Hiwassee, Red Oak.

Grassy Creek, Henderson, Oakland, Stony Creek, Mt. Airy, Milton, Yanceyville, Mehanevillo, Horeb, Long's Mills, Lonisburg, Warrenton, Murfreesborough, Speedwell.

Pike, Newport, Whitehall, Topsail, Mt. Zion, Clinton, Mt. Horeh, North River.

"Why staud ye here all the day idle? Go ye also into the vineyard. So when the even was come, the lord saith, Call the labourers." Accounts close April 1.

There is reported a doht of $9,500. Some four years ago the collections fell off $15,000, and so crippled the committee. Dr. Robinson onco proposed that fifteon of the large churches raise $1,000 each, and thus cancel the debt. The plan succeeded only partially. Why should the Great Commission be in debt? From 95 dopors, $100 each, it would be no more. Might it be suggested that the churches which have already contributed liberally make a special effort during the next two months to extinguish it, so that the report to the Charleston Assembly may be free from debt.

Many loving hands have brought their gifts to the altar. For these we often pray that "He that ministereth seed to the sower both minister bread for your food, and multiply your seed sown, and increase the fruits of your righteousness." H. C. D.

Soochow, Nov. 26, 1879.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

PRESBYTERIANISM DEFENDED.

In defending the Presbyterian clergy against the charge of hindering the conversion of sinners, I will proceed to show that the preaching of the distinctive doctrines of grace held by them has been eminently promotive of revivals of religion. There are many in these last days who believe that it is only by the methods and the kind of teaching to which I have objected, that the world is to be converted to God. They have either never heard, or have forgotten that it was through these distinctive doctrines of the Presbyterian Church that the wonderful and glorious revival of religion in the sixteenth century was produced; a revival which spread over Germany, and France, and Switzerland and Holland, and England and Scotland, &c. All the great Reformers of that time, as Calvin, Melancthou, Luther, Beza, Zwingle, Knox and others, believed and preached what is now called Calvinism. That it may be clearly seen that the celebrated Martin Luther not only believed but preached these doctrines, I will give the following quotation from his writings: "Where is either the necessity or utility of preaching predestination? God Himself teaches it, and commands us to teach it; and that is answer enough. We are not to arraign the Deity, and bring the motives of His will to the test of human scrutiny; but simply to revere both Him and it. . . . . However, let us, for argument sake, go a step farther. I will venture to assign, over and above, two very important reasons why these doctrines should be publicly taught: 1. For the humiliation of our pride and the manifestation of divine grace. God has assuredly promised His favor to the truly humble. By truly humble I mean those who are endued with repentance and despair of saving themselves; for a man can never be said to be really penitent and humble until he is made to know that his salvation is not suspended in any measure whatever on his own strength, machinations, endeavors, free-will, or works; but entirely depends upon the free-pleasure, purpose, determination and efficiency of another; even of God alone. Whilst a man is persuaded that he has it in his power to contribute anything, be it ever so little, to his own salvation, he remains in carnal confidence; he is not a self-despairer, and therefore he is not duly humble before God: so far from it that he hopes some favorable juncture or opportunity will offer, when he may be able to lend a helping hand to the business of his salvation. On the contrary, whoever is truly convinced that the whole work depends singly and absolutely on the will of God, Who alone is the author and finisher of salvation; such a person despairs of all self-assistance; he renounces his own will and his own strength; he waits and prays for the operation of God; nor waits and prays in vain. For the elect's sake, therefore, these doctrines are to be preached; that the chosen of God, being humbled by the knowledge of His truths, self-emptied, and sunk as it were into nothing in His presence, may be saved in Christ with eternal glory." (Luther's work entitled (De Servio Arbitrio.) Every one who has read of Luther knows that he himself preached what he believed ought to be preached.

The following, according to the affirmation of Toplady, was the language of Bucer, one of the Reformers: "The blessings which God bestows on man are not to be suppressed, but insisted and enlarged upon; and if so, surely the blessing of predestination unto life, which is the greatest blessing of all, should not be passed over."

Melancthon, in his "Common Places," says: "A right faith in God, and a true confidence in Him can be learned more assuredly from no other source than from the doctrine of predestination."

If any one doubts whether Calvin and the other great Reformers—"Revivalists"—preached Calvinism, I am ready to prove the fact. Thousands of the converts under such preaching proved the genuineness of their conversion by submitting to the fires of martyrdom.

Arminius did not begin to preach his peculiar doctrine until the beginning of the seventeenth century. John Wesley was not born until a hundred years afterwards.

The great Jonathan Edwards, the chief instrument of God in the great revival of religion in New England in the eighteenth century, was an uncompromising Calvinist, and hesitated not to preach the faith which he held.

Dr. A. Nettleton, who, at the beginning of the nineteenth century, was instrumental in the conversion of thousands of souls, presented prominently in his sermons the doctrines of total depravity and election.

And who at the present time preaches a more pronounced Calvinism than Rev. C. H. Spurgeon? And who in all Christendom is more successful in winning souls to Christ than he?

Many reasons have been given why, in the increase of her membership, the Presbyterian Church has not kept pace with some other Evangelical Churches. The main reason has not been given. The fact that that Church is more particular than most other churches in receiving members into full communion, and does not receive any "on probation," and does not generally retain on her published roll of members those who "fall from grace," may partly account for the smallness of her numbers as compared with some other Churches. But the main reason of this comparatively slow growth of the Presbyterian Church, in my humble judgment, is that so many of her ministers neglect, for some cause or other, to present and explain to the people the distinctive doctrines of that Church. At least, no prominence is given to these doctrines as distinguished from the contrary doctrines taught by other Churches. The consequence is that the mass of the members do not know the difference between the doctrines of their own Church and the doctrines of other Churches. True they know that their Church believes in "Predestination" and "Election;" but they know these doctrines only by name, or at most, the caricature of them. And there are other important distinctive doctrines of that Church besides these, which they hardly know by name. The impression is made upon the minds of many Presbyterians that doctrines which ought not to be preached, except at long intervals, because they confuse rather than enlighten the minds of the hearers, ought not to be believed. The Methodists are taught to love that their peculiar methods, and to steadfastly believe that the doctrine of Predestination, in the language of Mr. Wesley, "is full of blasphemy, and represents the Most Holy God as worse than the devil, as both more false, more cruel, and more unjust." The "Baptists" are taught to love their peculiar opinons about Baptism; to hold, and if need be, die for their faith in water. But what are Presbyterians in these days, taught to love as distinguishing them from other sects? Nothing. Many of them are led to believe that the other Evangelical Churches are as good as, if not a little better than their own. Hence, there is better material in the Presbyterian Church to make proselytes of, than in any other Church. There is a grain of truth in the charge I have heard made that half of our members do not believe our doctrines, and the other half are afraid of the result of preaching them. Until we go back to the "old paths," and thoroughly indoctrinate our children and church members, at home, in the Sabbath School, and from the pulpit, in the distinctive doctrines of our Church, we must expect them to be carried about by every wind of doctrine.

P. T. PENICK.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

ASSEMBLY DELIVERANCES.

MR. EDITOR: I am glad to have been the occasion of drawing out so interesting a communication as the one from your correspondent "Rock Hill." I wish, however, to correct what I have since discovered to be an erroneous statement on my part, namely, that the Assembly's deliverance denies, as a general proposition, that its deliverances in thesi can have the force of laws. Your correspondent has been led into the same error. What it denies as the author of the deliverance has pointed out, is that its deliverances touching the matter of "offenses" can have the force of laws. This reduces the question in debate to one of the Assembly's jurisdiction. We might agree fully with all that has been said to prove that the Assembly's deliberative acts should be authoritative and binding in reference to all matters coming properly before it, and yet stand by the Louisville Assembly in the position it takes that this matter of declaring in thesi what is law on moral subjects is put by the constitution outside the sphere of its jurisdiction. This is the question before the Church, and I shall not attempt to discuss it until better informed on it than at present.

Two members of a certain presbytery, who had been noted for years for being on opposite sides in every discussion, one day found themselves advocating the same side. One of them approached the other and said, "Well, Bro. ——, you and I voted the same way on this question." "Yes," said he, "and on entirely different grounds."

Possibly, when my dogmatic consciousness comes to be formulated on this question I might vote the same way as your correspondent, but at present I think it would be on entirely different grounds. S. H. C.

THE HOLY SPIRIT.

BY REV. OLIVER CRANE, M. D.

O Holy Ghost divine,
Upon our darkness shine
And light our way;
Bid every doubt remove,
Our bosoms fill with love,
And lift our souls above
To realms of day.

A joy serene impart,
Infuse in every heart
Faith's calm repose;
More love for Jesus shed,
Who for our ransom bled,
And death a captive led,
When He arose.

Here countless foes assail,
And we before them quail,
With baffled aim;
O by Thy strength sustain,
And help us bear the strain,
Till we the victory gain
In Jesus' name.

In all our pilgrim-state,
Our souls upon Thee wait,
And trust Thy power;
Be Thou our stay and guide,
O'er all our steps preside,
And keep us near Thy side,
In peril's hour.

O Comforter unseen,
On Thee our souls would lean
Through death's dark vale;
Then, though in dread we grope,
Yet by Thine aid we hope,
That, when with death we cope,
We shall prevail.

Firm still! Thy promise stands,
And Thou wilt take our hands
Amid the gloom—
Wilt by Thy presence cheer,
And whisper in our ear:
"Fear not, for I am near
To waft you home."

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

INTERCOMMUNICATION.

There is in all creation an attribute which may be called Sentiency, or a mode of perception adapted to the peculiar circumstances of the occasion. Thus for instance, in the mineral kingdom, each and every mineral takes on a peculiar and certain form of crystalization, in which the particles of matter locate themselves according to invariable rules. Likewise in the vegetable kingdom every plant adopts a certain form of leaf, of flower, of fruit, according to its kind. The creeping vine even throws out its tendrils to the right or left by invariable rule. The sensitive plant (noli me tangere) closes on being touched.

In the animal kingdom this attribute is enlarged and increased in a remarkable degree. Now this Sentiency is no longer confined to the individual, but extends to intercommunication with each other. We verily believe every living organization has some mode of communicating with its fellows. As for instance, the insect: the butterfly, by its antennæ. The mammalia by their five senses, their voices, their loves, their gregariousness.

And lastly we come to man. We shall endeavor to give an outline of some of the various modes of intercommunication between man and man. First, in a primative or extreme savage state the first intercourse or communication is by signs, vocal explotives and social expressions, not yet leading to words. Imagine a mother cooing with her infant, and with tender embraces showing her love and affection. Next comes names and words, which soon form language. Then came music, painting and hieroglyphics.

After these manuscript or writing, which led to and was followed by printing, which, next to language, is most valuable of all. This was preceded or followed by signalization, which includes communication by signal fires, balloons, carrier doves, lights, flags and swords. In process of time, light and electricity were harnessed and ended in communication by telegraph, photographs, phonographs, &c. We might also mention in this connection mesmerism as a more rare and uncertain mode of intercommunication. But of all modes of intercommunication, which influence and sway not only nations but individuals, for time and eternity, I will mention oratory. A few men are so gifted in language, that with a magic influence, they take possession, as it were, of body and soul, and carry the individual unconsciously by their will, wherever they please. This is often noticed in the bar, the pulpit and the political arena. As, for instance, among the ancients: Demosthenes and Cicero. Amongst the moderns: Clay, Henry and Prentiss. Oratory has its uses and abuses. The clergy, God's messengers between the living and the dead, between time and eternity, between our materialistic surroundings and the future, are our most valuable accessories of intercommunication; and are partly responsible for the future destiny of mankind. Great is their responsibility. They require much more than mere oratory, viz: the Spirit of Love, earnestness and truth, and an outpouring of the Holy Spirit, whereby to influence men to seek after salvation.

The world is yet in its nascent state of existence, and intercommunication when perfected, will perhaps put us on an equality with the angels of light. "For the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light. (Luke xvi: 9.") The soul of man is an emanation from the hand of God, as well as the angels, and although he was created a little lower than the angels, he is capable of endless progression towards perfection. His incentive to intellectual and spiritual growth from his inferior state of probation is two-fold: First, to be relieved of physical disabilities, and then to increase in moral perfection. The children of light, being free from physical disabilities, have the less motive to increase their powers. Intercommunication is therefore the vehicle of all intellectual and spiritual excellence and, through its attrition we are polished and improved. X.

WAYSIDE MINISTRIES.

There are two ways in which all of us work, and two classes of results which flow from our lives. There are the things we do purposely, that we deliberately plan to do. We take pains to do them. Perhaps we spend years in fitting ourselves to do them. They cost us thought and care. We travel many miles, perchance, to perform them. They are the things we live to do.

Then there are other things we do that have formed no part of our plan. We did not set out in the morning to accomplish them. They are unplanned, unpurposed things. They are the wayside ministries, the little things we do between the greater things. They are the seeds we drop by chance, in the path, as we go out to the broad field to sow. They are the minor kindnesses and courtesies that fill up the interstices of our busy days. They are the little flowers and lowly plants that grow in the shade of the majestic trees, or hidden away like violets, under the taller plants and shrubs. They are the smaller opportunities of usefulness which open to us as we are bearing our great and solemn burdens and responsibilities. They are mere touches given as we hasten by, words dropped as we pass along, influences shed forth unconsciously. We set almost no store by this part of our work. We pride ourselves on our master pieces, and point to them as the things which fitly represent us, and in which we hope to live.

And yet, oftentimes, these unpurposed things are the holiest and most beautiful things we do, far outshining those which we prize so highly. It is said that when Thorwaldsen, the Danish sculptor, returned to his native land, with those rare and wonderful works of art which have made his name immortal, chiseled with patient toil and glowing inspiration in Italy, the servants who unpacked the marbles scattered upon the ground the straw which was wrapped around them, and the next summer flowers from the gardens of Rome were blooming in the streets of Copenhagen, from the seeds thus borne and planted by accident. While pursuing his glorious purpose, and leaving magnificent results in breathing marble, he was, at the same time, unintentionally and unconsciously scattering other beautiful things in his path, to give cheer and gladness to others.

And so in all true living, while men execute their greater plans, they are ever, without intention, performing a series of secondary acts, which yield most beneficent results. There is a daily wayside ministry made up of countless little courtesies, gentle words, mere passing touches on the lives of those we meet casually, impulses given by our salutations, influences flowing indirectly from the things we do and the words we speak—a ministry undesigned, unplanned, incidental, unnoted. And yet it is impossible to measure the results of these accidents of usefulness.

We go out in the morning to our round of duties, and perform them with more or less faithfulness and effectiveness. But during the busy hours of the day we find opportunity for doing many minor kindnesses. We meet a friend on the street whose heart is heavy, and we stop a moment to speak a word of thoughtful cheer which will sing in his heart all day, like a bar of angel's song. We ring a neighbor's door bell, as we return from dinner, to inquire after his sick child; and there is a little more brightness in that sad home all the afternoon, because of this gentle thoughtfulness. We walk a few steps with a young man who is in danger of slipping out of the way, and let fall a sincere word of interest, which he will remember, and which even may save him from his peril.

All sorts of people come to us on all sorts of errands. We cannot talk much to each, and yet we may drop into the heart of each a word of kindness which shall prove a seed of beauty. We meet people in business relations. We cannot always talk to them on religious themes; this may be neither practicable nor expedient. And yet there is not one of them to whom we may not minister in some way. One man has had sorrow in his home. His face carries the marks of sore struggle and inward pain. By a gentle beaming, a mellowed speech, a warmer hand-grasp, and a thoughtful expression of the sympathy and interest we feel, we send him away strangely comforted. Another is staggering under financial burdens, and a hopeful word gives him courage to stand more bravely under his load. We are writing business letters, and we put in a personal sentence, or a kindly inquiry, revealing a human heart, even amid the great clashing, grinding wheels of business, and it carries a pulse of better feeling into some dingy office and to some dreary treadmill life, far away. Not one of these things have we done with any consciousness or intention of doing anything beautiful; and yet, like the flower seeds the sculptor hero back amid the wrappings of his marbles, they yield loveliness and fragrance, to brighten many a hare and toilsome path.—Sunday School Times.

UNSUCCESSFUL WORKERS.

Desponding Christians do not make successful workers or valiant soldiers. "Feeble hearts" and "ready to halts" and "little faiths" win no battles and wear no crowns. They are so occupied with themselves, with their own experiences, their own evidences, their changing moods and feelings, that they have no time for manly, noble service. They are so busy in trying to perform "acts of faith," and having performed them, they are so intent on analyzing them, in order to ascertain whether they be all of the exact quality and quantity that will recommend them to God, that they have no space for "joy in believing," and no room for the free, large-hearted labor which such joy cannot fail to lead to. Tossed up and down on the waves of unbelief, like Paul's ship in Adria, they are in perpetual fear of shipwreck, and have no heart to work. Shutting their eyes against the light, they grope their way uncertainly, and cannot run the race. Afraid to believe, but not afraid to doubt; afraid to trust, but not afraid to distrust; doubting themselves, and making that a reason for doubting God; putting away peace, but giving full scope to gloom; refusing light, but letting darkness reign within them; they are not in condition to do hard work—nay, to do any work. Strength comes from joy, and of that joy they have none. They refuse both food and medicine, and they become lean and sickly. They are fitter for the hospital than the battle field. They seem, too, to get more and more emaciated, though the food provided is abundant. Laboring under what physicians call atrophy, the more they eat the less they seem to be fed. —Horatio Bonar.

KINDLINESS A BEAUTIFIER.

A beautiful person is the natural form of a beautiful soul. The mind builds its own house. The soul takes precedence of the body and shapes the body to its own likeness. A vacant mind takes all the meaning out of the fairest face. There is no sculptor like the mind. There is nothing that so refines, polishes, and ennobles face and mien as the constant presence of great thoughts. The man who lives in the region of ideas, moonbeams though they be, becomes idealized. There are no arts, no gymnastics, no cosmetics, which can contribute a tithe so much of the dignity, the strength, the ennobling of a man's looks, as a great purpose, a high determination, a noble principle, an unquenchable enthusiasm. But more powerful still than any of these as a beautifier of the person is the overmastering purpose and pervading disposition of kindness in the heart. Affection is the organizing force in the human constitution. Woman is fairer than man because she has more affection than man. Loveliness is the outside of love. Kindness, sweetness, good will, a prevailing desire and determination to make others happy; make the body a fair temple of the Holy Ghost. The soul that is full of pure and generous affections fashions the features into its own angelic likeness, as the rose which grows in grace and blossoms into loveliness which art cannot equal. There is nothing on earth which so quickly transfigures a personality, refines, exalts, irradiates with heaven's own impress of loveliness as a pervading, prevailing kindness of the heart. —Presbyterian Journal.

GOLD DUST.

Where greatness is, a patient spirit dwells.
They least repine who bear and suffer most.
—MacKellar.

Faith is simple, it is to believe; faith is sublime, it is to be horn again.

No man preaches his sermon well to others if he does not first preach it to his own heart. Owen.

It is vain to think we can take any delight in being with Christ hereafter if we care not how little we are in His company here.

There are some men so exquisitely selfish that they go through life not only without ever being loved but without even wishing to be.—Richter.

Such is the constitution of things that unwillingness to goodness may ripen into eternal voluntary opposition to it.—Julius Muller.

How vain are all hereditary honors,
Those poor possessions from another's deeds,
Unless our own just virtues form our title,
And give a sanction to our fond assumption!
—Shirley.

Whoever looks for a friend without imperfections will never find what he seeks. We love ourselves with all our faults, and we ought to love our friends in like manner.

The gold of the sanctuary must be tried before it is accepted; and is thrown into the fire, not because it is of no value, but because it is so precious.—Lady Powerscourt.

Whoe'er amidst the sons
Of reason, valor, liberty, and virtue,
Displays distinguished merit, is a noble
Of nature's own creating. Such have risen Sprung from the dust; or where had been our honors?
—Thomson.

It is not falling into the water, but lying in the water that drowns. It is not falling into sin but lying in sin that destroys the soul. If sin and thy heart are apart, Christ and thy heart are one.

As in nature, as in art, so in grace; it is rough treatment that gives souls, as well as stones, their lustre. The more the diamond is cut the brighter it sparkles; and in what seems hard dealing, there God has no end in view but to perfect His people.—Dr. Guthrie.

THOROUGHNESS.

The defect of our American hurrying life is its sketchiness. We do not take time to master things thoroughly. Here and there a woman does take time, and perseveres at an art or study, and then she reaps the rewards which are given only to the thorough. Let me give you an example. Many of you have listened to the silvery voice of Miss Emma C. Thurshy, a voice which has enchanted two hemispheres. Those who have not heard her name, and know that it represents not a great artist only, but a beautiful, brave, charming and amiable gentlewoman, as lovely in private life as she is gifted in public. One day, not long ago, a lady was spending some hours in the house with the cantatrice, and the time came for her daily severe practice, which she never omits. She was asked to intermit it for the hour to take a drive, or engage in some other pleasure, but she declined. "I should have just so much to make up," she said.

Now, girls, if one who has reached an elevation which is enviable, as well as real, cannot afford to relax her efforts, the question for you to consider is, Can you? Can you afford to half learn things, to sew up seams and leave ends loose, to sweep and neglect the corners, to make sour bread, to smooth over where you should shake up, &c.? Can you afford it?—Christian at Work.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

From London Weekly Review:

Mr. Leo Laxil, an eminent French writer, has been excommunicated for a free-thinking book, a copy of which he sent to his Holiness the Pope.

Dr. Mandelstamm, the Russian savant and translator of the Bible, is now on a visit to this country. He has finished a Hebrew commentary on the Bible, which he will publish in Germany or Franco.

The Rev. Dr. Payne, Vicar of St. George's, Deal, has refused a donation of £5 from the late Mayor (James R. Lush, Esq.), on behalf of the Deal Dramatic Club, for distribution in coals, on the ground that he did not approve of the means by which it was obtained.

King John of Abyssinia, according to communications received by the Vatican, will shortly set at liberty the Bishop of Massaia, vicar apostolic in the Gallas country. All the European Governments are stated to have interested themselves in the matter, in consequence of the Pope's representations.

A Decree of the French President has been published, condemning the Bishop of Grenoble as guilty of abuse in executing a decision of the Pope that the Church of La Salette should be made a minor basilica, and that the statue of the virgin of La Salette should be crowned.

The Dean of Grahamstown has had sentence of excommunication passed upon him, which will be enforced unless he submits to the diocesan court within fifteen days. A proposal has been made to the effect that Bishop Colenso's Church and the followers of the Dean of Grahamstown should unite in forming a Church of South Africa, to be called the Established Church.

A "pome" is the last new requirement for High Church celebrations. As we scarcely imagine any of our readers will know what this is, we may inform them that it is a hollow ball with a screw top, and is to be filled with boiling water to warm the hands of the celebrant at early communion.

Although John Dunn has declared that he did not object to missionaries in his dominions, none of these has yet ventured to visit him. He declared that the missionaries, should they come his territory, must be subject to his control, and evangelists do not think their reception would be very cordial.

The agents of the Church Missionary Society in Ceylon have forwarded a memorial to the Archbishop of Canterbury dealing with the difficulties they have had to encounter in that island since the appointment of the present Bishop of Colombo, and the Primate has signified his willingness to do his best to bring about a satisfactory solution. With this object the Archbishop has requested the four senior members of the English Episcopal Bench (the Archbishop of York and the Bishops of London, Durham and Winchester) to consider with him the memorial of the missionaries, with a view to advising the bishop on the points at issue.

Herr von Puttkamer, Dr. Falk's successor as Minister of Public Instruction at Berlin, willing to do the Ultramontanes a pleasure, "has permitted the priests who, at a precious stage of the ecclesiastical struggle, may have been forbidden to give religious lessons in elementary schools, to be reappointed to this office if they have lately abstained from agitation against the government." The Parliamentary leader of the Ultramontanes lately announced that a light concession on the part of the government would suffice to conciliate the party whom Prince Bismarck and Dr. Falk at one time considered inveterate enemies of the empire who required to be vigorously "stamped out."

Mr. Spurgeon's health appears to be but little improved. In a letter to the members of his congregation he says that he has been altogether laid aside, without either brain to think or heart to write. He, however, considers it right that he should thus be periodically rendered useless; but he still wishes to be trusted with the privilege of constant activity. Some tools, observes Mr. Spurgeon, were not well enough constructed to be kept in constant use—much of their time must be spent in being repaired. Mr. Spurgeon will be unable to resume his duties in London on the first Sunday in January as was arranged. He is in a semi-prostrate condition, at Mentone, where he had resorted for the purpose of recruiting his strength, and he has been unable to write his usual weekly letter to his Church and congregation.

"Elijah, the Prophet, with his prophetic robes of sheepskin, has been creating a sensation at Bournemouth. He paraded the principal streets, blew frequent blasts on his trumpet, and announced a lecture on the following evening on the lost tribes of Israel. At the pier, where the "lecture" was to be given, a considerable crowd listened patiently for some time, but then determined to have some fun out of the situation. Crackers were lit and thrown at the prophet. An irreverent member of the mob mounted beside the "prophet" and began a mock anotion of his clothes; another sang a comic song, which made the prophet laugh, it seems. But a policeman here made his appearance, and, though the crowd prepared to protect him from arrest, "Elijah" thought it more prudent to beat a hasty retreat.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN, - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 14, 1880.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

ALONE WITH GOD.

The subject of death is one which we drive from our thoughts, as not only abhorent, but uninstructive, and therefore not necessary to be considered, but do we act wisely in so doing? God gives us an illustration of death each day, as night draws down upon us and disrobing ourselves we lay us down and pass away in sleep—of the separation of soul and body, as the will unhinges from the mental faculties—of the reuniting of body and spirit as the reciprocal action of mind and will is restored on awakening—of the glorious resurrection as refreshed and renewed we rise to greet the bright beams of the morning sun chasing away all clouds and darkness. The idea is Goulburn's. Is it not worth our thought that once every day, hundreds of times in a year, thousands of times in a life, God teaches us the lesson of life, death and the resurrection?

Another thought: At the moment that the truth fastens on the soul that mortal life means hours only—very few—minutes perhaps; when the hold on the world is lost, and friends, fortune, fame, count nothing—at that moment the solemn fact forces itself upon the dying man that he is alone, absolutely, supremely alone with God.

The moment must needs be one of the most awful solemnity. Whether it be fraught with terror or filled with joy will depend largely upon the life that is then upon review. Bravery is often manifested even in seeming coolness, along with a dash or excitement that precludes thought upon the fearfulness of one's situation; but at the approach of Death, coming with steady tread, thought the most intense is unavoidable. No mere physical courage can avail aught now. What then can?

It is needed to be able to meet God as a Father, and that one may so meet him and may so recognize Him it is well to be oft alone with God. "Enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut the door, pray to thy Father which is in secret."

One desideratum in prayer is, that he who prays should be enabled to shut out the world and stand before God, precisely as when the world has receded from him he shall stand alone with God. In our prayers it is all-important to know, and to realize, that God is present. Too often we pray to Him as in the heavens afar off. It is all-important to shut out all and everybody else, so as to feel, even in public prayer, that God alone is present. Only thus can we really pray in the highest sense. The special desideratum in any prayer, we repeat it, is to be alone with God. This does not touch the question of preparation for the meeting thus with God, nor the nature of the petitions which shall be presented, as a child would ask of the Father, nor the basis of our relation to God as accepted only through Christ, nor indeed any contingent or reciprocal ideas or truths bearing on the subject, and which our readers may find it profitable to study out. We confine ourselves to the point that the basal element of prayer is the meeting of the human soul with God, and the being absolutely, despite all surroundings, alone with God.

Only when the sense of being utterly alone with the reconciled and infinitely loving Father—only when this sense comes over the soul, suffuses it, pervades it, can the depth and fulness of the joy that the stranger intermeddleth not with be fully realized. Only when this intimate nought-dividing relation between Father and child exists can the preciousness of God in Christ be known, and the boundlessness of His love flow in as a conscious reality upon the soul.

What a power would be the Church of God if each member of her communion was accustomed thus to be often alone with God.

Shall we not seek it? Shall we not teach it?

GLADSTONE.

Probably no man, not even Bismarck, occupies a greater share of public attention at the present time than Hon. William Ewart Gladstone. This prominence is due mainly, perhaps, to the vigor with which he is arraigning the foreign policy of Great Britain, and is essentially enhanced by the disfavor engendered by the government's lack of success in the East. But apart from this Mr. Gladstone is a remarkable man; remarkable by reason of talent and by reason of such a combination of circumstances as have raised him to a point which, by his talents alone, he could never have reached. His early opportunities were the best. His father removed from Glasgow to Liverpool and acquired a large fortune in the West India trade. In Liverpool William Gladstone was born. He exhibited remarkable brilliancy at school and college, and graduated from Christchurch College, Oxford, as double first class, being the very highest honor and one seldom attained. Under the patronage of the powerful Duke of Newcastle he entered Parliament in his 23d year, and served successively for fourteen years. Honors were heaped upon him by the Peel ministry, and he was placed in positions requiring rare financial ability. In 1834, being then in his 25th year, Sir Robert Peel made him a junior lord of the treasury. He held successively the vice presidency of the board of trade and master of the mint, presidency of the board of trade and chancellorship of the exchequer. He became Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1852, and held the office some years. His administration of this office and his whole policy exhibited such profound acquaintance with the principles of finance and such skill in their application as to win the admiration of continental governments. The parliamentary experience of Mr. Gladstone has not been one of unvaried success. He has not been always a consistent politician, rather his views have not been constant, but they do not appear to have been regulated or seriously affected by a desire for popularity. During his later years he has been classed as an advanced liberal, and under his administration the disendowment of the Irish Church, the Irish land act, the abolition of property confiscation in penal law, the abolition of the purchasing of army commissions, and other important reforms or transactions were consummated.

But his defeat and that of his party was complete in 1874. Since, he has been in opposition and his attacks upon the policy of the government upon the Eastern question have been vigorous, both from his seat in Parliament and by his pen. Time has been found, however, to deal with ecclesiastical questions of the discussion of which he is very fond, and in dealing with which he is very able. His views have considerably changed since, in his early manhood, he published his work on Church and State. In this work he took what were then considered exceedingly High Church views. The masterly and crushing criticism of Macaulay, aided by a ripened experience, and judgment improved with age, may have induced his change of views. The Protestant world at least owes him their gratitude for his recent exposures of the ruinous tendencies of Romanism as holding that all citizens and subjects owe allegiance primarily to the Pope of Rome.

His energy is indomitable and his arraignment of the foreign policy of the British government is represented as terrific.

Mr. Gladstone is represented as a man of large frame, compact and muscular, with no superfluous flesh. His countenance is intellectual, the lines of his face expressing the power of intensity of thought and the capacity to sustain it. Thin and compressed lips convey the impression to an onlooker of firmness and strength of purpose. His general expression indicates repose of power and experience.

Mrs. Gladstone frequently comes foward as a character in the scene where her honored husband is portrayed. She is said to attend him on his tours and provides for his comfort and health as tenderly as a mother would for an invalid son. Mrs. Gladstone's hand is clearly seen in the accompanying sketch, which appears in an exchange:

"There is not much of the dandy about Mr. Gladstone. Last session it came to pass that he appeared in Parliament with a white hat, a blue necktie, a pair of really well-made trousers and one lavender kid glove. He was never seen with more than one glove; he had probably dropped the other, after being carefully dressed at home and sent to the House. His appearance created great sensation, and he maintained the disguise for nearly a week. Then he gladly got rid of his new clothes and returned to the familiar garments which date back 'a many years ago.'"

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.

How far the "Week of Prayer" was observed we have no means of knowing—at the South we presume not very generally. There has been marked indifference on the subject latterly and many fear that the dangers arising, or to arise, from the appointment of set days for prayer overbear its advantages. In very truth every day should be a day of earnest prayerfulness and of godly living. We need not appoint a day or a season to meet the Holy Spirit of the Living God. He is always ready and waiting to be gracious. The "Danger of Sacred Days" is well set forth by the Interior:

"There is manifest a tendency in church life toward a sacred calendar. It worked mischief in the Church once. It filled the Romish year book with feasts and fasts and festivals, dry and dead as winter leaves. It helped to convert spiritual religion into a cold and lifeless formality. Unless accompanied by a keen and resolute spirit of true devotion, it may drift us toward the same peril now. Let it be noticed how the appointment of days devoted to particular ideas has latterly increased. We have a "Week of Prayer" for the whole world. Then we have days devoted to institutions of learning, days for young men's associations, days for temperance, and so on. In addition, almost every meeting of synod is inclined to set apart some particular day or days for fasting and prayer and special and united religious effort.

"Now these are good just so long as they are thoroughly vitalized by a spirit of true devotion. When that ceases they are sources of formality and all the dangers that come in its train. We have been in religious and ecclesiastical gatherings in which resolutions setting apart a particular day for humiliation and prayer were voted as mechanically and indifferently as a motion to approve the minutes. That was cold formality, in the guise of piety, and it seems to us, it must be abhorrent to God, and should be to the Church. If we do not mean days of special service, let us beware how we appoint them. Of course if we are in such a fervor of zeal, or prayer as to convert the days into seasons of spiritual reality, we cannot have too many of them. It were well if we could make all days sacred, and write over the glittering forehead of every morning, "Holiness unto the Lord." But a day cannot be sanctified by resolution, and the empty form of it is as dishonoring to God as it is shackling to our own souls.

"The Episcopal Church often plunges from the last day of Lent into the amusements of the world with a zeal that proclaims Lent to have been mainly a form. The Week of Prayer is a beautiful idea. Heartily observed, it is the most potent of all the weeks of the year. But when from it the Church plunges with avidity into the business or pleasures of the world, a hollow sound rises portentously from those sacred days. It ought to be difficult for a church that for a week has been with God on the Mount to get down again to the place where people wrangle around their golden calves. The influence of it ought to stream through other days, if not in formal service, at least in the sustained elevation of daily life and feeling. Where the transition is sharp and decisive, it suggests that the living spirit of godliness is being smothered in the sacred robes of a lifeless form. Let us not make our religious calendar faster than the light of the Church life can irradiate and vitalize the days. And when we once have vowed unto the Lord in the consecration of time, let it be heartily, believingly, faithfully kept, for it is better not to vow than to vow and not to perform."

THE TOMBS.

Very few, if any, of our readers have been in the "Tombs"—that is, the New York city prison of the name (we speak seriously, for the subject has a very grave side to it,)—and they will therefore be the more interested, perhaps, in the following very short note of that place. The article is from Rev. S. G. Law, formerly of this city and now chaplain of the "Gospel Mission to the Tombs:"

"To those who have passed the city prison of New York its gloomy and frowning front has no doubt impressed their minds with the eminent propriety of its name. Its high and massive walls, and its heavy Egyptian architecture, with its deep, dark porch (deep yet high, as reached by a flight of stone steps both long and broad), its roof supported by huge stone columns, well blackened near the base by the hands of the class that mostly flow into it, suggest the ideas of a buried past and an awful mystery and hopelessness within.

"In this front building, however, the courts of justice are held. And while it seems proper that the mind of the wrong doer should be impressed by the awfulness of the justice into whose presence he is first summoned, yet it seems equally proper that the inevitable gloom of his imprisonment itself should be, as much as possible, alleviated. So, upon entering by a side street through the doors leading to the prison, the visitor is surprised to find himself in a large and pleasant open courtyard, with grass, and shrubs, and flowers, and a fountain playing, with little birds and pigeons clustering around it. There are several departments of the prison—the main building for the men, being a long, plain stone building, containing about 140 or 150 cells in four tiers.

"The stay of the prisoners is usually very short. Every two or three days the prison van appears to take away a company of men, who have received their sentences, either to Blackwell's Island, penitentiary, or to the different State prisons or reformatories of the State.

"It is said that there is a yearly average of about thirty-eight thousand commitments. What a tide of human misery and criminality flows through those cold stone walls!

"Some of the prisoners serve out the whole term of their imprisonment, say of ten, fifteen or twenty years, here. But others have been held for trial for months, and others still, who have been condemned but have obtained some stay of proceedings with a view to a new trial, have been kept here for several years.

"The cases of most general interest now in the Tombs are those of Chastine Cox, condemned for killing Mrs. Hull, in this city, last winter, and also of the Manhattan Bank burglars, and also of several persons accused of forgery."

THE SOUTH CAROLINA ACT.

At our request, considering that it would interest our readers, Rev. Dr. J. B. Mack, of Columbia has sent us the following copy of the Act relative to Sabbath Desecration by Railroad Companies:

An Act to Prohibit the Running of Freight Trains, and to Regulate the Running of Passenger and Mail Trains on Sunday:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representative of the State of South Carolina, now met and sitting in General Assembly, and by the authority of the same, that, from and after the passage of this act, it shall be unlawful for any Railroad Corporation to load or run any train on any of the Railroads of this State on Sunday; except such trains as carry the United States mail.

Sec. 2. That for each violation of the provisions of this act, the Railroad Company so offending shall forfeit to the State not less than five hundred dollars, to be collected in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Approved 23d day of Dec., A. D. 1879.

W. D. SIMPSON, Governor.

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

The poem on first page, which originally appeared in the New York Observer, was crowded out until this issue.

Pardon us, but this strikes us as too high a compliment to be withheld. It is from an elder who has proved by his works that he means just what he says:

"Our experience is that the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN is doing much good here in the building up of our church. Our members who read it are more zealous and work harder. Besides, the premiums you offer are worth, to any one who would advance in Christian living, more than we can well calculate in figures.

Brother McDiarmid, of the Lumberton Robesonian starts in the new year with a new head. It fits the old place nicely.—Wilmington Star.

Which leads us to inquire: How did Bro. McDiarmid dispose of his old head? Which, by the way, was a very good head and a very clever head, though not remarkably handsome of course.

In writing of General Charles P. Kingsbury, last week, the following circumstance was unintentionally omitted: Upon the resignation of General D. H. Hill (we give present titles) from the Professorship of Mathematics at Davidson College, on his earnest recommendation General Kingsbury was invited to the chair. This was before the late war of course, and during the presidency of Rev. Dr. Lacy. General Kingsbury did not remain long, preferring his post in the U. S. army to the professorship.

In this issue Rev. P. T. Penick closes his serial, "Presbyterianism Defended." As a rule serials are not popular either with editors or with readers, but these articles, we think, have increased in interest as they came forward, and they have been warmly commended by different persons. One of the most eminent lawyers of North Carolina wrote to us expressing a desire to have them issued in pamphlet form.

Christian at Work:

A writer in the Richmond Religious Herald answers the question, "How many members are essential to the constitution of a church?" by saying, "Two or three. "Where two or three are gathered together in My name, there am I in the midst of them.'" This is the litera scripta method with a vengeance! We have an idea a "church" of "two or three" would do well to join itself to some other church of from fifty to five hundred members at the earliest possible convenience. There are already quite too many baby churches in the country that have to be nursed and coddled to keep the breath of life in them, and there is no occasion for adding to the number.

We regret to learn that the Rev. Dr. J. B. Adger has met with a sad affliction. His only son has recently had both legs broken by an accident the particulars of which we have not heard. We extend our sympathy to both father and son.

We have not a dollar from friends, to aid us in sending the paper to persons deserving but unable to get the paper except by donation. But we have letters asking us to send the paper to persons whom the parties writing recommend. Now we would like everybody to have the PRESBYTERIAN, but it is clearly impossible for us to give it to all who would appreciate it but cannot pay for it.

The Herald and Presbyter quotes approvingly the Rev. Phillips Brooks in his strictures on the misuse of Scripture:

There is a creature," he says, "who ought to share with the clerical cheat the abhorrence of the people. I mean the clerical jester. He lays his hands upon all sacred things. He is full of Bible jests, and he talks about the Bible with jests that have come down from generation to generation. The principles, which, if they mean anything, mean life and death to the soul, he turns into material for jest."

Those who oppose the mixing of politics and religion have a hard hard time of it just now down in Maine:

"In one town," says a correspondent of the New York Observer, "one-fourth of the members of a Congregational church were about to go over in a body to the Episcopalians, in order to get away from a political preacher, but to their disgust the rector appeared as a speaker at one of the indignation meetings; 'so they are now without any spiritual place to lay their heads.'"

And the Christian at Work:

Charles F. Brush, of Cleveland, has just sold his English patents for electric lighting apparatus to a large incorporated company in London for, it is said, $150,000. The Brush electric light is the only one which has been brought into practical and valuable use in this country. Mr. Brush is said to be the leading electrician of the country now, so far as the problems of induction are concerned, and his lights having been found practical, about eight hundred of them are now in regular use in factories, warehouses, theatres, etc., in the United States.

A matter very likely to be overlooked, and yet a matter of supreme importance, is what are our children to be taught. The following from the Central Presbyterian ought to be seriously pondered:

It is high time parents, sending their children off to college, or to high schools, were enquiring as to the text-books used. As set forth in an article published elsewhere from the New York Journal of Commerce, this question may not arise in the primary schools where the elements (reading writing and arithmetic,) are taught; but when we come to historical and scientific studies, we are confronted at once with the stand-point from which the history, the physiology, the mental philosophy, the geology, the chemistry, is written.

We would not put a history of the American Revolution by an Englishman in hands of our boys. A Frenchman would not put a work written by a Prussian into the hands of his child, if he wanted him to learn about the Franco-Prussian war. Now, are works in the department of moral or physical science written by men who do not believe in God, or which practically exclude Him from the universe, to be tolerated by Christian parents? A Protestant parent would be very much shocked if his son were taught the history of Europe from a work written by a Jesuit; and yet our sons and daughters are this day using as text-books works which teach that the doctrines of Christianity are mere fables, worth no more than the fables of Greek or Egyptian mythology.

It seems we are not quite out of the woods with regard to the electric light. The Christian Union has this to say:

According to popular announcement, Mr. Edison has at last succeeded in solving the electric light problem with pieces of paper. The new lamp consists of a small glass globe, from which the air has been exhausted, containing a horseshoe-shaped bit of carbon obtained by calcining a similarly shaped piece of paper. Through this carbon the electric current flows, and, meeting with considerable resistance, is converted into heat, causing the little lamp to shine with a pure white glow. So far, so good; but let us see wherein lies the long-looked-for great invention. The lamp is simply a heated strip of carbon in a vacuum, nothing more. This form of apparatus is not at all new. It has been repeatedly invented in France, Russia and America during the last fifteen or twenty years. The Sawyer Mann Electric Light Company have for a year or so past been manufacturing lamps of this kind that would burn for 1,500 hours as purely and softly as any of Mr. Edison's. Yet all of these carbon lamps fail after a time. To be sure, it is averred that the Menlo Park lamps will last, yet it is seriously to be questioned whether they will stand, or ever have stood, the 1,500 hours' test given to the Sawyer Mann lamp. Mr. Edison's invention seems then to dwindle to the mere manufacture of the carbon from a bit of paper, which is doubtless a very good way to make it. We have great faith in the eventual success of the electric light, at least for our great cities, churches, factories and the like; but the men in London who sold out their gas stock in such a hurry last week on the strength of the Menlo Park illumination would have done well to wait at least a week or two longer.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

PRO-RE-NATA.

At the request of Rev. Messrs. J. H. Smith and J. C. Alexander, and of Messrs. C. G. Yates and Thomas M. Kirkland, Elders, I hereby call a pro-re-nata meeting of Orange Presbytery, in Greensboro, N. C., at 10 a. m., on Thursday, the 22d inst. The object of the meeting is: First to fill out the Executive Committee on Education. Second, to consider the cases of certain of our candidates. Third, to consider applications of any new candidates for the ministry.

C. H. WILEY, Moderator.

Winston, N. C., Jan. 5, 1880.

Rev. W. T. Thompson has removed to Shelbyville, Tenn., from Mars Bluff, S. C., and his address has been changed accordingly. The members of his old charge, Hopewell church in Harmony Presbytery, recently made him several presents by way of testifying their affection.

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

INVITATION ACCEPTED.

Rev. C. E. Chichester has accepted an invitation to the Florence church, Presbytery of Harmony, S. C. G.

One person was received by profession and two by certificate, into the First Presbyterian church of this city on last Sabbath.

The Statesville Landmark says that Fifth Creek church has applied for one-fourth of the time of Rev. W. A. Wood, D. D., pastor of the Presbyterian church of Statesville, N. C.

STONY CREEK.

On the fourth Sabbath of December four persons were received on profession of their faith into the church of Stony Creek, in Orange Presbytery. Rev. W. B. Tidball is the pastor.

ALAMANCE.

At the fall communion of Alamance church, of which Rev. W. B. Tidball is in charge, eight persons were received on examination. On the occasion there was one individual and one household baptism.

We clip from the Robesonian of the 7th inst: We are requested to state that Rev. Jos. Evans will preach in Lumberton next Sunday night. Till further notice he will preach on the night of the second and morning of the third Sabbaths in every month.

GOLDSBORO CHURCH.

GOLDSBORO, N. C., Jan. 9, '80.

Mr. Editor: Our congregation last night, in meeting assembled, made a unanimous call to Rev. R. C. Reed, of Charlotte Court House, Va., to the pastorate of this church. The call will be forwarded to him in due course and form. Yours, T. B. H.

SUBSTANTIAL EXPRESSIONS.

Rev. E. F. Rockwell and family are under many obligations to the members of his Bethany congregation, for their late substantial expressions of affection and esteem, by sending various articles of provisions of great value in the family. May the Author of all good abundantly reward them in spiritual blessings as well as the precious fruits of the earth.

January 5, 1880.

Rev. J. B. Mack, sends us the following item: Since the meeting of the Synod of South Carolina, when it was officially declared that Columbia Theological Seminary would be closed if funds to meet the deficiency in its current expenses were not furnished by the churches, over twelve hundred dollars have been received by the treasurer. Also a gift of one hundred dollars for the endowment fund, which was sent through the Rev. Dr. J. Leighton Wilson.

Rev. C. H. Wiley, writing January 9th, informs us that at the pro-re-nata meeting of Orange Presbytery, held on the day previous, eight ministers and two elders were present. The call from Chapel Hill church to Rev. L. Currie, for one-half of his time, was placed in his hands and accepted by him. Arrangements were made for his installation. Another pro re-nata meeting is called by Orange Presbytery to meet at Greensboro on the 22d inst.

SECOND CHURCH, WILMINGTON.

MR. EDITOR: On the evening of the 7th inst., the annual congregational meeting of the Second Presbyterian church of Wilmington was held. Reports of the pastor, treasurer and Sunday School superintendent were read. They are very satisfactory and encouraging. The pastor's salary for the year has been paid up; and contributions to the committees on missions, &c., &c., have been recorded. The only impediment to these contributions being larger is because of the debt still hanging over the manse, or minister's residence. The congregation, therefore, are about to address themselves vigorously to the work of paying off this incumbrance, and they sincerely trust, with the help of their friends, to accomplish this desirable object.

[We add to this that the church is greatly prospering under the ministration of the pastor, Rev. C. M. Payne, who is greatly endeared to the congregation.]

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.

The good people of Alamance church, on the morning of the 30th ult., gave their pastor and his wife a pleasant surprise, by driving in their buggies, carriages and jersies, and bringing in from them rich stores of substantials to feed and warm the body, besides many luxuries that would have tempted the appetite of an epicure. When the dinner hour arrived an elegant dinner was spread by the ladies on a table in the grove, and we all ate to our heart's content. Such tokens of appreciation made us happy. The heavens smiled, and all nature seemed to rejoice with us. The day was beautiful, the sky cloudless, and the little birds sang as on a spring morning. Some that were not present at the time have since given substantial evidence that their absence was not from a want of willingness or good feeling on their part. May a bountiful Providence reward them.

M. L. T.

MORE KINDNESS.

DEAR BRO. MCL.: The brethren outside of the Synod of North Carolina look upon her rapid growth with wonder; relatively greater than any of her sister Synods. The increase of her population does not give us a solution of the problem. In this respect she has not surpassed others. But in proportion to the increase of population the number of her ministers has grown more rapidly than any of her sisters, and in the per cent. of their increase, more rapidly than any, except the great State of Texas. Now why is this? "Them that honor me I will honor," saith the Lord. Where a people treat with due respect and affection the embassadors of the Lord, and thus honor their Master, we should not wonder when the honor is acknowledged. Being a stranger in this Synod, and knowing more of some others than of this, I speak advisedly when I say none surpass North Carolina in the affectionate care and kindness shown the ministers of the gospel as we see from your excellent paper, and especially from what we know from brethren who do not choose to let the church at large know what their individual churches are doing for them. I presume the average salaries in this Synod will compare favorably with any other, additional is the portions they get from the larders and wardrobes of their very kind and considerate people. Now we may all easily say these "pounding" are simply intended to supplement a deficient salary, and that we had rather receive the amount in money. I formerly reasoned thus. The assertion is not strictly true. Besides there is a spiritual aroma from these deeds of kindness that does not exhale from simply, in a business way, paying money over to the minister. The laborer can work with a better heart when he is cheered. Such tokens of affectionate regard are cheering. This dear people have kept us thus encouraged ever since we came among them. Not a spasmodic but a continual benefaction. The salary is promptly paid besides. The Master will always supply such churches with ministers and bless them also. Yours, &c., A. M. WATSON.

Lexington, N. C.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

HOME MISSIONS IN FAYETTEVILLE PRESBYTERY.

A most important step was taken by Fayetteville Presbytery at its last fall session. It undertook to raise the needful funds for Home Mission work within its own bounds, in both its departments of Sustentation and Evangelization. It furthermore determined to co-operate with the Assembly's committee to the extent of giving fifteen per cent of its gross receipts for both these objects, to be used by that committee in aiding feeble presbyteries. Two persons were appointed to visit certain portions of Moore county and two others were directed to explore some parts of Montgomery and report to the spring meeting of Presbytery information that may lead to a judicious location of an evangelist in the region mentioned. Two or three feeble charges within our bounds will need help in sustaining their ministers, and can get it only by our own Christian people and stronger churches furnishing the funds by the collections of January and February. No help from the Assembly's Sustentation fund can or should be asked by as strong a presbytery as ours. On the contrary, fifteen per cent of our own contributions for Sustentation must be sent to the Assembly's treasury to aid hundreds of feeble churches outside of our bounds in securing Gospel ordinances and houses of worship. Besides several white charges needing assistance we have two colored churches under our care that must be aided if they are to retain the services of their present ministers or have any edifying preaching. Let, then, liberal contributions for Sustentation come from all our churches during the months of January and February, and the collections be forwarded promptly to the Presbyterial treasurer, Rev. J. P. McPherson, by the first week in March. The second week in March the Presbyterial Committee of Home Missions will meet to consider applications for aid, and to make appropriations. They can appropriate only what the churches furnish, minus the fifteen per cent apart for the Assembly's treasury.

Due notice of the meeting of this committee will be given, and not only Sustentation but Evangelization and other interests committed to their care by Presbytery will receive attention at a future time. H. G. HILL, Ch'mn Home Mission Com.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THOUGHT AND SYMPATHY.

Sometimes there is more thought than sympathy in the pulpit, and sometimes there is more sympathy than thought in the pew. During the holidays the young people in Shelby, N. C., took the Presbyterian minister there in hand till he felt very badly for not having tried to feel more interest in them. It is good to be made to feel so. When Socrates was told that the children in the streets of Athens were laughing at his singing, instead of scolding or throwing stones, he said: "Well, then, I must sing hotter." And so, when the "major" commanding these Shelby youths arose and told the aforesaid minister that they were advancing upon him, he threw up his hands and promised (himself) that, if spared, he would not run away, but do better, and never preach a sermon that will not contain something to attract and hold every young man and maiden that hears it, in the humble hope that an Unseen Power may pull their hearts upward and onward.

The kind offices of Presbyterian families in many other places have done much to awaken more sympathy in the pulpit. But for the thoughtful sympathy of some in almost every Presbyterian community, whose offerings are in secret, their ministry could not live. The angels of the Lord keep guard around these Presbyterian homes. Many of them have been festive with brides, for the sweetest daughters, the subjects of anxious care, loving watchfulness and domestic joy, will think tenderly of a gallant lover and the altar where two are made one. And there are other honny young maidens in such homes who will make the noblest wives, and as long as there are young men gallant and wise enough to ask their hand, they will be thoughtful and sympathetic enough not to say, No.

Christmas (oh, how bright and gladsome with children's abounding joys and the old folks' freshened memories!) softens the heart and whispers peace and good will to all.

R. Z. J.

ECLECTICISMS.

NOTHING GAINED.

Christian at Work:

Moderation in speech is an excellent thing, and it is well to remember that no enemy is ever converted into a friend by affixing upon him a stigma or giving him an ignoble epithet.

REVIVALS ASSERT THEMSELVES.

Covenant:

And just as a revival of business manifests itself in greater activity along all the lines of production and trade, so a revival of religion asserts itself, at every point of contact between the Truth of God and our daily life before men.

THE PICNICKY STYLE.

United Presbyterian:

Precisely in proportion as religion is given up to the frivolous and picnicky style of worship and entertainment will it lose in real spiritual power. Its earnestness all gives way under such treatment, and religion without earnestness is nothing. It requires rare skill to so manage the disposition to mingle social enjoyment with religious devotion to that there shall not be austerity on the one side, or volatility on the other.

A SUCCESSFUL MINISTRY.

Zion's Herald:

That ministry is a success which draws the church together and into holy consecration to Christ, which develops the speaking and working talents of the membership, which sets the church forth into active duty and charity throughout the vicinity, which secures spirited and spiritual social meetings, which makes the progress of Christ's kingdom upon the earth paramount, and His cause dearer than even the personal presence of a beloved pastor, and which is constantly bringing into the fold and nourishing lambs of the flock.

NOT A REAL CHURCH.

Southern Presbyterian:

The world has no objection to joining the Church, if it may continue to be the world. A low standard of membership, or even a high standard applied with a slack hand, will bring in numbers. But what are they worth when they come in? If they understanding is that they can enjoy Church privileges on any or no terms, and live as they have lived and as they may still choose to live, the larger a Church thus becomes, the weaker it is. Indeed, a society constructed on such principles is not a real Church; it is not a body called out of the world; it is only a part of the world, under a new name.

PREACH TO YOUR CONGREGATIONS.

Biblical Recorder:

A celebrated divine wrote to a young minister as follows: "You laid your plan well; your divisions and subdivisions were natural and proper; but there was no application of your matter till you came to the conclusion. Now, to ho useful there must be an almost perpetual application. The people need arousing; they must be shown the bearing everything has upon their particular case, and thus he made to feel through the whole discourse the personal interest they have in every part." The advice is sound and is greatly needed by many. We are not to preach before our congregations but to them, aiming always at their hearts.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. R. B. Morrow preached his farewell sermon to the congregation of the church at Braudon, Miss., on the 28th ult. He goes to Durant, Miss.

At the recent communion in the Third church of this city (Rev. Mr. Scott) four persons were added to the church, three on profession, one by certificate. Mr. Scott is making some effort among she seamen down at Rockett's, and there were a couple of captains and some five or six seamen in attendance on his morning and evening services on Sunday last.—Central Presbyterian.

Rev. Dr. Plumer, whom we referred to last week as having been, it was feared, seriously hurt, has returned home in his accustomed health.

Correspondents of Rev. W. M. Stratton are requested to address him at Potosi, Mo.

Rev. A. L. Kline has fully recovered from malarial fever and is ready for work. He resides with his son at Enterprise, Miss.

During the sessions of Synod at Fort Worth the Presbytery of Central Texas held a meeting by order of Synod, and received under its care the first church of Coleman, organized in Coleman city by Rev. O. F. Rogers. Mr. Rogers having been dismissed to the Presbytery of Central Texas, now resides at Coleman City, and is engaged in an effort to build a church there.—Texas Presbyterian.

Items from the Christian Observer:

"The postoffice address of Rev. J. S. Frierson is now Marion, Perry county, Ala., instead of Decatur, Ala.

"Correspondents are requested to note that the address of Rev. H. McDonald is changed to Hillsboro, Texas.

"Ten members have been added to this church upon profession of faith within the past two weeks—the result of a meeting, all of the fruits of which are not yet gathered—in which Rev. J. M. Evans aided the pastor, Rev. George Summey.

"Rev. W. S. Cochrane has accepted a call to the pastoral charge of the church of Somerville, and entered upon the duties of pastor on the first Sabbath of the new year. His postoffice address is changed from Bolivar, Tenn., to Somerville, Tenn.

NORTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

The Rocky Mountain Presbyterian says that "Mr. William W. Wickes, an elder in Dr. Cuyler's church, has just erected a building for Sabbath worship in the new settlement of 'Wickes'—near Jefferson City—in Montana. He also employs the missionary who officiates, and there is good promise that a Presbyterian church will soon be organized. To this flourishing new mining town of Wickes belongs the unique distinction of being the only settlement in Montana which has opened a house of worship before it has opened a drinking saloon."

The Broadway Tabernacle, Dr. William M. Taylor, pastor, will raise this year not less than $4,000 for foreign missions. This will be twice as much as it contributed last year.—Christian at Work.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The number of Congregational churches in Minnesota is now 135, with a membership of 6,617, a net gain of 479 for the year.

A young lady of Westfield, Mass., has commenced a suit against the First Congregational Society of that town for $5,000 damages. About two years ago she attended a meeting in the church, and a hanging door connecting the vestry with the audience-room fell upon her, as she was sitting beneath it, in consequence of the ropes giving way, and severely injured her. She offers to compromise for $1,000, and the society will hold a meeting to decide what to do.—Cheistian Intelligencer.

BAPTIST.

The Philadelphia Baptists at a recent Ministerial Conference adopted a resolution disapproving the course of Dr. Magoon in permitting the Rev. Chauncey Giles to use his church for two lectures on the Swedenborgian faith.

METHODIST.

The trustees of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Baltimore, the Rev. A. E. Gibson, D. D., pastor, has just paid $20,000 on their debt. They have a magnificent property, valued at $160,000, on which a debt of $40,000 remains.—Presbyterian.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

Mrs. H. Sibley, of Rochester, N. Y., has erected a Protestant Episcopal church in North Adams, Mass., at an expense of $25,000.

The vestry of St. Peter's Episcopal church of this city, have called to the pastorate of that church, Rev. Geo. K. Mason, of Virginia, and he has accepted the call.—Southern Home.

According to a recent essay of the Rev. D. S. Miller, D. D., of St. Mark's church, Frankford, Pa., there are 525 unemployed Episcopal clergymen of the 3,300 in the United States, and only 2,000 hold rectorships.—Presbyterian. [Commended to the Church Messenger.]

REFORMED EPISCOPAL.

The debt of Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal church, Newark, N. J., has been raised. Ten thousand dollars in all were subscribed through the labors of Mr. Kimball, and $12,500 of indebtedness was assumed by a friend of the church.

LUTHERAN.

The Lutheran Church in this country, in all its branches, comprises 3,087 ministers, 5,376 congregations and 689,195 communicants, thus making it sixth or seventh in rank as respects numbers.

REFORMED CATHOLIC.

Mr. McNamara, the reformed Roman priest, has baptized in Cambridgeport, Mass., the child who was refused the rite by the priest Scully.—Presbyterian.

GENERAL.

The last Sunday in the year bids fair to become permanently established as Hospital Sunday, so far as this city is concerned. The sum of $25,000 was taken up for the hospitals, in the various churches and in the boxes placed for the purpose through out the city. —Christian at Work.

The will of Maria M Fritts, of Newport, R. I., gives $5,000 to the Dutch Reformed church of Coytville, N. J., $1,000 each to the Shiloh Baptist church of Newport, United Congregational church, Newport, and the Sunday school library connected with the United Congregational church.—Christian Intelligencer.

A NEW METHODIST PAPER.—Rev. Frank H. Wood proposes to begin the publication of the Methodist Advance at Durham, N. C., on the 20th inst. He announces that it will have an able corps of contributors.

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

The Landmark, under the editorship of Mr. Joseph P. Caldwell, comes out fresh and vigorous. The salutory is manly and sensible, and bespeaks ability in the future conduct of the paper.

Mr. Allen Connelly, of Linville township, raised the finest crop of cabbage ever produced in Burke county. He can show a cabbage head that will weigh 21 pounds.—Morganton Blade.

In the list of Georgia lawyers who have received big fees, the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution puts Senator Ben Hill first. He received in one case a fee of $140,000, of which $60,000 were paid in cash.

Mrs. Elizabeth Comstock, of Michigan, the widely known Quaker missionary, has visited 115,000 prisoners, and of this number she finds that 105,000 were brought to prison through strong drink.

A fungus, similar to that which Dr. Salisbury first noticed in the blood of persons suffering from malaria, is now announced as constantly present in the blood of consumptives, and therefore suspected as being the cause of the dreadful malady.

Mr. H. C. Dixon, lately one of the assistants of the Finley High School in Lenoir, has taken charge of the Academy at Dallas. Mr. Dixon has had experience in teaching, and is said to be a fine disciplinarian. He deserves patronage and success.—Southern Home.

Gen. Roger A. Pryor, now a New York lawyer, has received from a Virginia friend a curious relic of the war. It consists of two bullets that evidently met in the air over some battle-field, and, happening to strike each other on their conical points, were firmly welded together.

According to the returns of the department of agriculture dogs cause a direct loss to the sheep owners of the country of a million dollars a year. Reports from 500 counties, representing about one-quarter of the sheep of the Western States, show that 79,285 sheep were killed in 1874, in some States the loss being from 4 to 11 per cent. of the value of the sheep kept.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and Throat and Lung, Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative power in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. SHERAR, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, New York.

"You Don't Know Their Value."

"They cured me of Ague, Billiousness and Kidney Complaint, as recommended. I had a half bottle left which I used for my two little girls, who the doctors and neighbors said could not be cured. I am confident I should have lost both of them one night if I had not had the Hop Bitters in my house to use. I found they done them so much good I continued with them, and they are now well. That is why I say you do not know half the value of Hop Bitters, and do not recommend them high enough."—B., Rochester, N. Y.

It is with pleasure that we call the attention of our readers to a very attractive advertisement, headed "Found at Last," in another part of this paper. When such men as Pres. Pendleton, Pres. Graham, Dr. H. A. M. Henderson, Dr. Milburn, and a score of others like them, give to a remedy their name and personal influence, absolute and implicit confidence can be placed in the remedy. Therefore we unhesitatingly advise all who are afflicted with Catarrh, Neuralgic or Nervous Headache, Colds, &c., to send to the Proprietors, Dobyns & Mitchell, North Middletown, Bourbourn Co., Ky., or some of their Agents, procure this wonderful remedy called "Dobyns' Sure Cure" and be cured. The Proprietors are sterling honest Christian gentlemen, and we heartily recommend them and their great remedy.—Am. Ch. Review.

We call attention to advertisements of schools of Rev. H. W. Reinhart and Messrs. Frontis & Leazer, and while on the subject to the advertisement of eggs, &c., by A. S. Caldwell.

SOLID GOLD MEDAL.—Mr. Emmet C. Fisher, a North Carolinian by birth, but for the past fifteen years a resident of Chicago, Ill., offers a solid gold medal to the pupil of Maj. W. B. Lynch's school who shall make the highest average in his studies during the year. The offer is made for ten years.

Messrs. Polk Miller & Co.:

About twelve years I suffered from Dyspepsia. Falling in with Vest Pocket Cure, I gave it a fair trial. After its use I could eat anything with impunity. I am sure I am indebted to this medicine for what of health and physical comfort I have had for the last sixteen years. I have known many since to be relieved by its use,

Rev. B. F. WOODWARD, P. E., Va. Conf.

One pair of boots or shoes saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Metalic Heel Stiffeners.

TAKE AYER'S PILLS for all purposes of a purgative, for Consumption, Indigestion. Headache and Liver Complaint. By universal accord, they are the best of all purgatives for family use.

CURE FOR COUGH OR COLD.—As soon as there is the slightest uneasiness of the Chest, with difficulty of breathing, or indication of Cough, take during the day a few "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

MARRIED.

☞No notice of a marriage or death will be inserted unless accompanied by a responsible name, which is wanted not for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.

By Rev. W. B. Tidball, on October 16th, at the house of Col. W. M. Young, Mr. SAMUEL D. DICK and Miss ELLIOTT SHAW BAKER, all of Guilford county.

By the same on December 17th, at the residence of Robert S. Stewart, Esq., the bride's father, Mr. WM. C. KIRKMAN and Miss NANNIE C. STEWART, all of Guilford county.

By the same, assisted by Rev. J. R. Ball, on December 18th, at the house of Edward Kirkman, the father of the bride, Mr. DANIEL H. COBLE and Miss DONNIE V. KIRKMAN, all of Guilford county.

In Cumberland county, December 24th, by Rev. David Fairley, assisted by Rev. Dugald Monroe, Mr. MALCOM J. BLUE and Miss MAGGIE G. MONROE, only daughter of Peter Monroe, Esq.

Near Cool Springs, Iredell county, by Rev. E. F. Rockwell, on the 31st ult., at the home of J. E. Adams, Esq., father of the bride, Mr. JAMES LELAND SHEPHERD and Miss MARY FLORENCE ADAMS, all of Iredell county.

At the residence of Mr. M. B. Smith, in Richmond county, on the 7th inst., by Rev. A. N. Ferguson, Mr. JOHN A. McNEILL and Miss SAPHRONA J. SMITH, all of Richmond county.

At Sanford, N. C., Dec. 18th, 1879, by Rev. Wm. S. Lacy, THOMPSON E. WHITE, formerly of Warren county, and Miss CLAUDIA V. BLAND, daughter of Henry A. Bland, Esq., all of Sanford.

In Oakland township, Chatham county, near Egypt, N. C., December 25th, 1879, by Rev. Wm. S. Lacy of Jonesboro, C. E. McIVER of Moore county and Miss ELLEN B. GILMOUR, daughter of Nathaniel Gilmour, Esq., of Chatham county, N. C.

At the residence of the bride's father, near Jonesboro, N. C., on January 7th, 1880, by Rev. Wm. S. Lacy, Rev. WILLIAM B. DOUB, pastor of the Methodist church in Washington, N. C., and Miss JOSEPHINE S. BRYAN, daughter of N. R. Bryan, Esq.

DIED.

☞Obituary notices must be paid for in advance. The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

IN MEMORIAM.
ALICE KERR.

The world's great waves, its treasures deep forget,
And careless human ships their sails unfurl;
But to the eye of love thou art a pearl
So pure, and soon, more brightly to be set,
Than sister pearl in princely coronet.
Or Venus, when she beckons on the day,
And, warning, waves the clust'ring stars away,
So lonely in her majesty. Or yet—
Than glitt'ring Pleiades on Evening's breast,
Emblem of plate by Jewish high priest worn,
When, in the robes so holy, he was drest.
And graven gems, bore on atonement morn.
But place more honored far there shall be given
To thee, than gems of earth or stars of heaven.
Raleigh, Dec. 27, 1879. S. P. A.

In Washington, N. C., on Monday night, the 22d ult., in the 22d year of her age, ANNIE, youngest daughter of A. C. Latham and wife of J. M. Gaskill.

It is rare that so many hopes are blighted, so many plans are frustrated, and so much joy buried in one grave. Young, bright and beloved, she had but a few months before entered upon married life with the congratulations of a large circle of attached friends; a marriage, too, which gave promise of more than usual happiness. The attractiveness of her affectionate, sunny disposition made her dear to all and doubly dear to him of whose heart and home she was the light and joy. She was a child of the covenant, reared in a pious home, and had given herself to the Saviour and made a public profession of her faith about five years before her death. Her life was consistent with this profession. She was a regular attendant upon all the services of the sanctuary, was active in church and Sabbath school work, and gave promise of a life of usefulness in the Master's service.

On Christmas eve we laid her to rest, our sorrow rendered even more sorrowful by contrast with the gayety of the season, but we sorrowed not "as those who have no hope."

"There is a world above
Where parting is unknown,
A long eternity of love,
Formed for the good alone;
And faith beholds the dying here
Translated to that glorious sphere."

PASTOR.

In Charlotte, on Jan. 6th, Mr. JACOB A. RAMSEUR, aged 72 years.

His body was taken to Lincolnton and buried beside his son, the late Gen. S. D. Ramseur. The funeral service was conducted in the Presbyterian church by Rev. E. H. Harding, D. D., assisted by the pastor. An old landmark has fallen. His death will awaken tender memories in many Presbyterian houses, of which his was once a model.

WILMINGTON MARKET
DURING WEEK
ENDING JANUARY 13.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—On Wednesday 45 cents, weak at close; Thursday 44 cents principally, but later in day 42½, and closing quiet; Friday and Saturday nominal; Monday sales at 43 cents, closing quiet and steady.

ROSIN—Strained and Good Strained ruled at $1 27½ and $1 32½ respectively until Friday; $1 27½ and $1 30 since.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—$1 60 for Hard and $2 60 for Yellow Dip throughout.

TAR.—Wednesday $1 20; Thursday and Friday $1 30; Saturday and Monday $1 40.

CORN—Receipts by rail sufficient for demand. We make no change in prices.

COTTON—The market ruled steady at 12½ cents until Monday, when sales were made at 12½ cents, and later reached and closed firm at 12¾ cents.

TIMBER—In consequence of low stage of river very little comes in, and for want of stock no sales are made. We report sale of one raft Fair Mill at $7 00.

Egg Machines.

BROWN LEGHORNS — Mature Earlier. Lay Earlier. Produce More Eggs Are Most Happy. Are Most Profitable Of All Fowls

Eggs from Premium Stock, $2 for 13. Can supply Partridge and White Cochin, Dark Brahma, Imp, P. Rock, White Leghorn and Bronze Turkey Eggs, from Best Strains. Stock acclimated. Order early, and save heavy express charges by ordering from

A. S. CALDWELL, Charlotte, N. C.

Jan 14 627-4t

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

This POPULAR and widely circulated JOURNAL of SCIENCE, MECHANICS, MANUFACTURES, ENGINEERING, ELECTRICITY, CHEMISTRY, MACHINERY, NEW PATENTS and DISCOVERIES will be greatly enlarged on the 1st of January next, when a new volume begins. Each number is fully ILLUSTRATED WITH ENGRAVINGS.

SPECIMEN COPIES SUPPLIED.

THE SCIENTIFIC NEWS does not encourage Religious Skepticism in Science.

Cash and other valuable premiums offered for clubs New volume begins January 1st. Now is the time to subscribe Terms $1.10 a year, postage prepaid. Remit by postal order, registered letter, or bank draft to the order of

S. H. WALES & SON., 10 Spruce Street, New York.

The trade supplied by the American News Company and its branches, and for sale by all newsdealers.

Jan 14 627-1t

THE MARVEL COPYIST.

NO COPYING PRESS REQUIRED. Most simple process invented. One hundred copies of circulars, letters, price-lists, plans, drawings, music, church reports, Sunday school lessons, &c., taken from a single writing. This process can be repeated for thousands of copies. Copies made on any kind of paper; also on linen, leather, &c Nothing to get out of order. Agents wanted. Note size $1 50; Letter, $3.00; Legal, $4.00; Postal, $1.00.

A. S. CALDWELL, Charlotte, N. C.

Jan 14 627-4t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL,

Representative Newspaper of the South.

A GOOD PAPER FOR ALL SECTIONS.

THE WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL

Will be sent one year, postage free, for Two DOLLARS, which amount will include a handsome premium in the shape of a book or a knife or various articles of use and beauty, as may be selected from our printed lists. A sample copy of the Weekly Courier-Journal and a circular containing the full list of premiums will be sent on application.

THE COURIER-JOURNAL is a combination (made in 1868) of three old Louisville papers, viz: the JOURNAL, established 1830; the COURIER, 1843; and the DEMOCRAT, in 1844. Its reputation is national as well as its circulation, and it is pronounced one of the ablest and best arranged papers in the world; its matter being especially adapted to the Merchant, the Farmer and the Family Circle

The Weekly Courier-Journal without premiums, will be sent to clubs of five or more persons at $1.50 each, postage free, and for every club of five the club raiser will be entitled to a copy sent to any address free for a year.

Daily Courier-Journal, $12 a year, postage free. Sunday Courier Journal, $2 a year, postage free

For specimen copies, circulars, etc., address

W. N. HALDEMAN,
President Courier-Journal Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

STORY-SERMONS,

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

NO. 1.	Sick and in Prison	Price,	3 cts
" 2	And I will give you rest	"	3 "
" 3.	On Our Side	"	5 "
" 4.	Not Afraid to Die	"	3 "
" 5	Sister Maria; or Where Do the Birds Build and the Foxes Burrow	"	3 "

Sent by Mail on Receipt of Price.

T. S. ARTHUR & SON,

jan14-2t 227 S. Sixth Street, Philadelphia, Pa

Frontis & Leazar's School,

MOORESVILLE, IREDELL COUNTY, N. C.

S. FRONTIS, A. M., A. LEAZAR, A. M., } Principals.

The Seventh Session of this School opened Jan 5, 1880, under very favorable auspices, sixty pupils having reported the first week.

The healthfulness of the locality is unexcelled. Cresswell's Springs one mile distant. System of instruction thorough and exhaustive Two Departments—Male and Female. The Sexes occupy different Halls. Superior advantages for Religious Instruction Board $7 to $8 per month. Tuition $1, $2, $3, $4, and $4 50 per month, according to the degree of advancement. For particulars address

FRONTIS & LEAZAR,
67jan14-tf Mooresville, Iredell County, N C.

THOMASVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE, N. C.

THE SPRING TERM WILL BEGIN JANUARY 14, 1880. The new building furnishes additional facilities of a fine Chapel 40x72, Dining Room 42x50 and accommodations for 108 Boarders. A First Class School at Lowest Rates. Pupils taught to speak French and German. Eight Teachers. Board per month $10. Tuition $2 50, $4, and $5. For Catalogue address, H. W. REINHART, President.

67jan14-3t

Begin the new Year with the PRAYER MEETING MANUAL

Containing a Theme with References, Thoughts, and an appropriate Hymn for each week in the year. 72 Pages. Price 10 cents, or $1 00 per dozen. Mailed free. P. GARRETT & CO., 708 Chestnut st., Philadelphia, Pa.

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.

200 Hhds and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by

KERCHNER & CALDER BROS

HALL & PEARSALL

OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of

100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER,
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.

sep 3—608-tf

AGENTS. READ THIS

We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.

nov 19 619-6m

SALT. SALT. SALT.

21,000 Sacks

Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!

Factory Filled Fine Table.

AND

Liverpool Ground Alum.

Full Weight Guaranteed.

"WILLARD'S,"

NORTH WATER STREET,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

dec 17 623-tf

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of

BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,

For the purpose of carrying on a

General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,

AT THE OLD STANDS,

5, 7 and 8, North Front Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.

JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 8, 1877

oct 10 509

AGENTS WANTED For the handsomest and CHEAPEST BIBLES Ever furnished Agents. Extra Terms and Large CASH PREMIUMS Forshee & McMakin, Cincinnati, O.

oct 8 613-13teow

BLYMYER M'F'G CO. BELLS.

Church, School, Fire-alarm, Fine-toned, low-priced, warranted. Catalogue with 1500 testimonials, prices, etc., sent free. Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.

dec 3 621-eow-1y

BINGHAM SCHOOL,

MEBANEVILLE, N. C.,

Is now PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys.

The 171st Session ending Dec. 17th, 1879, has been the most prosperous in the eighty-six years of the School's history The 172d Session will begin January 14th, 1880. Board $13 per month Tuition $50 per Session. For catalogue giving full particulars address, MAJ. R. BINGHAM, Sup't.

dec 17 623-1m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

HORNER SCHOOL,

OXFORD, N. C.

INSTRUCTORS—J. H. Horner, A. M., J. C. Horner, A. M., R. W. Winston, A. B. (Univ of N. C.)

The Spring Session will begin January 19th, 1880. Board and Tuition per session of five months, $100.

For circular, address

dec 24-1m J. C. HORNER.

LAURINBURGH HIGH SCHOOL.

A Classical, Mathematical, and Commercial Academy,

W. G. QUACKENBUSH, (Bingham School and University of Va) Principal.

H. W. MALLOY, (Davidson College) Assistant.

Charges per session of 20 weeks—Tuition $20; Contingent Fee $1; Board $50.

The second session will begin Monday, January 19, 1880. For circulars and further information, address the Principal, Laurinburg N. C.

dec 24 621 4t

READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN

If you like to be satisfied deal with

W. J. MOTT,

—Dealer in—

BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.

Keeps on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain his reputation in this regard. I will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,

W. J. MOTT,

North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.

P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult me either by mail or in person.

nov 19 619-tf

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,

Statesville, N. C.

THE SPRING TERM of 1880 opens Thursday, January 15. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks

Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.

Address MRS. E. N. GRANT, Principal.

feb 20 528-1y

Lynch's Select School,

HIGH POINT, N. C.

An English, Mathematical, Classical, Commercial and Scientific Academy,

MAJ. W. B. LYNCH, A. M., Principal.
B. P. PRICE, A B., Assistant.

Spring session of 1880 begins January 21st. Board and Tuition $80. For circulars address the Principal.

dec 17 623-6t

SELECT BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL,

HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.

Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.

THE SPRING TERM of 1860 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE Board and Tuition $100.

Circulars forwarded on application.

466-*jan.1.'79

BETHEL ACADEMY,

DAVIDSON COLLEGE (P. O.) N. C.

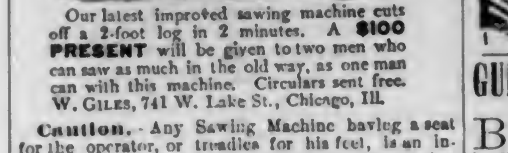
Rev. L. K. GLASGOW, A. M. Principal.
Miss ELLA W. FLEMING, Assistant.

NINTH semi-annual session begins January 26, 1880 Boarders in Principal's family pay in advance for all expense except books, per quarter (10 weeks) $30

For circulars containing testimonials from well-known educators and from patrons, address the Principal.

dec 31-tf

Sawing off a Log, Easy and Fast.



Our latest improved sawing machine cuts off a 2-foot log in 2 minutes. A $100 PRESENT will be given to two men who can saw as much in the old way, as one man can with this machine. Circulars sent free. W. GILES, 741 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

Caution.—Any Sawing Machine having a seat for the operator, or treadles for his feet, is an infringement on our patents, and we are prosecuting all infringers, so beware who you buy of.

jan 14 627-4teow

CHEESE.

200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,

For sale by

KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.

nov 19 619-13t

COTTON!

IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants

For the Sale of Cotton,

Which they are prepared to do

On the Most Economical Charges.

They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.

ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,
Wilmington, N. C.

September 3d, 1879. 608

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.

WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.

Our Trimming Department is Complete, and comprises the leading styles.

Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.

We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.

Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.

The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.

N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.

nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.

THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the

Latest and Most Approved Style.

To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.

"First Come, First Served."

MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
apl 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

THOS. A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.

McNEILL & McNEILL,

Attorneys at Law,

LUMBERTON, N. C.

Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 593 1y.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,

HARDWARE MERCHANTS,

Charlotte, N. C.,

KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will

Compete in Prices,

—EITHER—

WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,

With any Market.

All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods

VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.

We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 185.

DeROSSET & NORTHROP,

FIRE AND MARINE

INSURANCE AGENTS,

REPRESENTING } Standard American AND English Companies.

28 North Water Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

nov 19 619-tf

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER. Send your orders by mail.

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.

BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.

LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.

The Remington Sewing Machine,

A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.

Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.
Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.

GEO. A. PECK.
25 South Front Street.

dec 10 622-tf

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., 218 Fulton St. N.Y

oct 8 418-26t

PEACE INSTITUTE,

For Young Ladies,

RALEIGH, N. C.

THE Spring term commences on the 16th of January 1880, and closes the 1st of June following.

The total expense of a boarding pupil for one term is $120, payable in advance. This amount will include board, with washing, fuel, lights, furnished room and servant's attendance, tuition in English branches and Latin, Calisthenics, Text Books and Stationery used for school purposes. For $150 all the above, with Instrumental Music and use of Piano.

For circular containing particulars as to terms, Course of Study, &c, address

REV. R. BURWELL & SON,
dec 24-624-3m Raleigh, N. C.

FOUND AT LAST!

"DOBYNS' SURE CURE!"

Has NEVER Failed to

CURE CATARRH

Neuralgic and Nervous Headache,

COLD IN THE HEAD, STOPPAGE OF THE NASAL PASSAGES, DEAFNESS, DIZZINESS, DIMNESS OF SIGHT, AND ALL KINDRED COMPLAINTS ARISING FROM NEGLECTED COLDS AND EXPOSURE.

It is used as a Snuff and is always ready and convenient for use, without extra trouble or additional expense. Contains no injurious ingredients; children of five years may use it with perfect safety. One box will last one month, and has frequently effected a complete cure.

Something Impostors can not and do not Show

To convince the poor sufferer that we are honest and thoroughly responsible for all statements made by us, we append the following:

TO THE AFFLICTED:—We have known A. T. Mitchell and Sam T. Dobyns, who compose the firm of Dobyns & Mitchell, and are proprietors of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" for a number of years. We know them to be gentlemen in whose honor and integrity implicit confidence can be placed; and we unhesitatingly say that the patrons of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" can rest assured that said firm are peculiarly good and responsible for, and will faithfully carry out, any and all promises made by them. C. Alexander, Cashier Northern Bank, Paris, Ky.; Henry Spears, Cashier Agricultural Bank, Paris, Ky.; Matt Turney, Judge of the Bourbon Co. Court; J. M. Hughes, Clerk of the Bourbon County Court.

Many Testimonials as to its great virture and curative powers have been received, but the remedy itself is its best recommendation.

The Late ELD. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,

The gifted evangelist, and earnest, true-hearted Christian gentleman, says of this great Remedy, in the American Christian Review, of October 29th, 1878:

"We call attention to 'DOBYNS' SURE CURE' as a voluntary thing, and not for pay. We have been troubled with Catarrh of the head for the last ten years, and now, after using the 'SURE CURE' about three months, can truly say that we feel about free from the entire trouble in the head. We have also given the 'SURE CURE' to others—as we have been in public nearly all the time—and it has invariably given relief."

"I know that I am doing a public favor to the thousands who are suffering from Catarrh by adding my testimonial to its value." (Elder) W. K. PENDLETON, Pres. Bethany College, W. Va.—Nov. 3, 1879.

"It will afford me unfeigned pleasure to recommend your "SURE CURE" to my friends". (Elder) ROBERT GRAHAM, Pres. Bible College, Lexington, Ky.—Aug. 14, 1879.

"I have been using your "SURE CURE," and it will do all you claim for it. I recommend it wherever I go. (Elder) D. T. WRIGHT, Chillicothe, Mo.—Nov. 4, 1879.

"Believing in its excellency, as I do, I shall recommend it everywhere I go." (Rev.) W. H. MILBURN, Jacksonville, Ill.—Oct. 4, 1879.

"I have given your "SURE CURE" a thorough trial, and am now ready to personally recommend it." (Elder) C. C. CLINE, State Sunday School Evangelist, Louisville, Ky.—Nov. 17, 1879.

"Five years ago I paid a Cincinnati Physician fifty dollars for treating that which your dollar box has already completely mastered. I advise the afflicted to send on for the "SURE CURE" at once." THOMAS MUNNELL, Mt. Sterling, Ky.—Oct. 9, 1879.

OVER 18,000 SUCH TESTIMONIALS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED by us, and will be cheerfully shown to anyone.

OUR TERMS:—We express or mail "DOBYNS' SURE CURE" to any part of the United States for One Dollar per Single Box, or three Boxes for Two Dollars. Druggists and dealers will be furnished with wholesale price list on application.

In ordering, please write your, Name, Post-office, County, and State PLAINLY, and send money by Post-office Money Order on Paris, Ky., or by Registered Letters. We will not be responsible for money sent in any other way. Address all orders to the Proprietors. ☞Circulars free to all applicants.

DOBYNS & MITCHELL, North Middletown, Bourbon County, Ky.

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.

HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.

Children's Merino Under Suits—A great comfort and convenience.

CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.

LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.

PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,

In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.

A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.

OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.

Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.

dec 3 631-1y

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847.) S. W. WHITING.

R. B. ANDREWS & CO.

Men and Boys CLOTHING, Dress Shirts, Cuffs, TIES, SCARFS, Half Hose, Suspenders, Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Underwear, Trunks, Valises, &c.

Extra Large Sizes CLOTHING, A Specialty. HATS AND CAPS, A Large Assortment. We give special attention to orders from a distance. LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.

NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh. N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods

—AT—

M. M. KATZ'S,

36 MARKET STREET.

BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.

Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.

DRESS GOODS,—Satin Melange, Cashmere Sole, Brocade Persan, Persan Raye, Raye Broche, Corolo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.

MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'E'e, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.

CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS. Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.

MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c., &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to oct 22 M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS!

BUFFALO LITHIA WATERS

TRADE MARK—PATENTED.

FOR AGGRAVATED DYSPEPSIA, WITH SUPPRESSION OF THE MENSTRUAL FLOW.

THE PATIENT GAINS FORTY-ONE POUNDS IN TWO MONTHS.

Case of Miss ——, stated by Dr. William B. Towles, Demonstrator of Anatomy in the Medical Department of the University of Virginia

BUFFALO LITHIA SPRINGS, July 17, 1879.

On July 17, 1878, Miss ——, aged about fourteen years, consulted me as to the use of the Lithia Waters She was pale and greatly emaciated, weighing only sixty seven pounds, and suffering from severe dyspepsia of some two years' duration The usual symptoms of long-continued dyspepsia, in an aggravated degree, were present—want of appetite, acid eructations, gastric pain after ingestion of almost any article of diet, nausea, constipation, extreme languor and muscular feebleness, hypocondriasis, frequent headaches &c In addition to the dyspepsia, there had existed also total suppression of the menstrual flow for twelve months She was put upon the use of waters of Spring No. 2 and directions given her as to her diet. Her improvement, though slow at first, was decided and continuous, and she left the Springs after a sojourn of two months, weighing one hundred and eight pounds, and fully restored to health, both as regards dyspepsia and the menstrual trouble.

WILLIAM B. TOWLES, M D.

These Waters, at the Springs, in cases of one dozen half-gallon bottles, $5 per case. Agents: Dr. J. H. McAden, Wilson & Burwell, Charlotte, N. C, Williams & Haywood, and William Simpson, Raleigh, N. C., Green & Flanner, Wilmington, N. C.

THOMAS F. GOODE, Proprietor.
Buffalo Lithia Springs, Virginia.

NEW BOOKS

For Sunday School and Ministers Libraries. Send for Catalogue containing names of over 1200 Approved Books.

The only safe way to select books for your

SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES

Is to order those which have been read and approved by some competent person.

Our DISCOUNT to MINISTERS and SUNDAY SCHOOLS is the largest offered by any Publisher or Bookseller in the United States

Address orders for all Sunday School Supplies to

PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va.
Or, 207 N. 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

What Old Subscribers Say

About the "Chicago Weekly News" When They Renew Their Subscriptions.

R. Cogley, Lolus, Union County, Ind., says: "I think the NEWS the best weekly extant, and do not wish to do without it."

D. M. Savage, Flint City, Mich., says: "We can not do without the WEEKLY NEWS. We are taking three other papers beside, but we get more news in your paper than the rest all put together."

Wm. McCallum, Cabot, Ark., says: "It just suits me; can't do without it."

The Rev. J. Hoberg, Monroe, Oregon, says: "I have been a subscriber to the CHICAGO NEWS for a number of years. The NEWS is certainly one of the best newspapers of the land. On account of the hard times, and my limited income (I am a Methodist preacher), I thought of doing without the paper, much as I like it. But wife and children give me no rest till I send for it again, so I inclose 75 cents."

Willis J. McKinney, Milburn, Ky., says: "I think your WEEKLY is one of the best papers published in America, and is not confined entirely to political news."

H. F. Wellborn, Snake Prairie, Bastrop County, Texas, says:

"Please send me a few copies of your paper (weekly) and I will get you a club. I consider it the cheapest and best newspaper in the United States."

Lawrence Welsh, LeMars, Iowa, says:

"You will find inclosed $1 for sixteen months' subscription to the WEEKLY NEWS. I would not be without the WEEKLY NEWS if it cost $2 a year."

Noel Couturier, Provement, Leeland County, Mich., says:

"I send you the within inclosed $1 for sixteen months' subscription for the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS. I have taken papers from every direction in the United States, and have found the paper I want at last. I think everybody else ought to like it. Why there's nothing like it for 75 cents a year!"

An anonymous subscriber writes expressly to state his satisfaction with the NEWS, "for," he says, "I want a paper that treats both political parties fairly."

The above extracts are sufficient to show in what esteem the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS is held by its old subscribers. It is a FAVORITE FAMILY NEWSPAPER, because it gives all the news, is independent and impartial in its presentation of political intelligence, publishes six completed stories in every issue, has correct market reports, and generally furnishes a complete, trustworthy and pure family journal AT THE LOWEST PRICE IN THE UNITED STATES—SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS A YEAR, postage included. A dollar bill pays for sixteen months. Address, VICTOR F. LAWSON, PUBLISHER, 123 FIFTH AVE, CHICAGO, ILL.

HOMES

in Western Arkansas.

The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway offer for sale the best LANDS in the West or South-West, with healthy climate, fertile soil, and not affected by drouth. Easy terms of sale. Full information.

Apply to W. D. SLACK, Land Com'r, Little Rock, Ark.

dec 24 624-13t

THE DEAF HEAR

THROUGH THE TEETH!

PERFECTLY, all Ordinary Conversation, Lectures, Concerts, etc., by NEW Channels, to the Nerves of Hearing, by a wonderful New Scientific Invention, THE DENTAPHONE. For remarkable public tests on the Deaf—also on the Deaf and Dumb—See New York Herald, Sept. 28, Christian Standard, Sept. 27, etc. It displaces all Ear-trumpets. Size of an ordinary Watch. Send for our FREE pamphlet. Address AMERICAN DENTAPHONE CO., 307 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio

dec 24 624-13t

FOR THE FAMILY.

Slowly, Surely.

BY KATE SUMNER BURR.

Slowly, slowly, the oak doth grow,
Surely, surely, its rootlets spread
Deeply, deeply, unseen below
To the source of strength where its life is fed.

Gently, gently, the waters glide
Over hillsides afar, unknown;
Flowing ever, with added tide,
Till deep and strong hath the current grown.

Silent, silent, but never still,
Nature's forces resistless move;
Mighty, wonderful works do fill
Earth beneath and the heavens above.

Quiet, constant, but mighty too,
Spirit forces their powers unite,
Deeply hidden from earthly view,
Yet most clear to the spirit sight!

Trusting, trusting, my soul looks up
Ever, ever my strength is near;
Slowly, surely groweth my hope,
Since His love dispels my fear.

Findeth ever my soul in prayer
Fountain sources of life and love;
Blessed, blessed beyond compare
Who rise to the fullness of life above.

—Selected.

The Iron Egg and Four Diamonds.

There was an Oriental prince who once sent a love present to his betrothed, and when she opened the love present to her surprise it was an iron egg—an ugly, rough iron egg—and so she dashed it upon the ground, feeling angry that her prince should send such a thing as that. But as it fell on the ground the egg opened, and out of the egg came a silver yolk, and on examining the silver yolk it also opened, and out of the silver yolk there came a ruby crown, and on examining the ruby crown curiously it opened, and out of the ruby crown there came a diamond ring, and that was the token of love.

Now I want to put a ring on your finger to-day which I trust you will never lose; and it is made of the purest gold, for it is made of the love of Jesus; and it contains four diamonds, and the first diamond is true wisdom, for if you love Him you are wise unto salvation; and the second diamond is true strength, for if you love Him you will be stronger than Samson, able to conquer every ill, to die, and vanquish death in dying. The third is true loveliness—true beauty. Other beauties are like a fading flower, but this beauty, the beauty of holiness, never fades. It is the beauty of the heart, the beauty of the mind, the loveliness of a redeemed spirit. The fourth diamond is true peace; for if you love Jesus you will have the peace of God in your heart that passeth all understanding.

And in order to make sure that you keep this diamond ring with its four precious stones, I will give you a guard, a golden ring to put over it, and inside that gold guard ring you read these words: "Be true." You will never be good or great or useful in the world unless you are true. Though I had the most sparkling gems in my hands just now, if they were not real jewels they would be of no value; and though I had ever so many shining pieces of metal the color of gold and the shape of sovereigns, they would be of no value unless they were genuine.

And then you also read, "Be tender-hearted," and especially you girls. Oh, take care of the tender heart; cherish loving sympathy toward all around you! The world will have a hardening influence upon you; but I trust you will keep loving in spirit, loving all around. And then be teachable. Be true-hearted, be tender-hearted, be teachable, and make the Word of God your guide from the beginning of life to the end of it, and then you will get the golden token of love that I have been speaking of out of this rough and hard life of yours.

Your heavenly Father has sent you His love present in the gift of your present life, and though it may seem hard, like the rough iron egg, in its cares and toils and crosses, if you love Christ and trust in Him, and take the Word of God as your guide, you will rejoice in His love forever.

When Dr. Phillips went to visit an African chief he found him sitting on the ground. He was an old man, and for many years he had been stone blind. Not long before he did not know he had a soul, but now he knew, and rejoiced in hope; and gathering up some of the dust from the floor with his hands he said: "In a little while I shall mingle with this dust, but in this flesh I shall see God. I am blind; I see not the light of day, but by the light of faith I shall see Jesus at the right hand of God ready to receive my spirit."—Christian Herald.

Winning and Losing.

"At last"—as the boys said—Percy and Rob had quarrelled. Jim Downing "knew they would," and he had done his best to bring the quarrel about. He had tried running Bob down to Percy, and telling mean tales of one to the other, but his plans had failed. Either boy would flare up if his friend's character was attacked, and when mean tales were told one of the other he went at once to his friend and asked if it were true, and was ready to excuse and forgive.

But what jealousy and meanness could not do was unfortunately accomplished through pride and ambition. A new teacher had taken the village school—quite a young man—who, anxious to urge the boys to study, promised prizes for the best lessons. The prize in mathematics could only be gained by one, and all knew that either Percy Grahame or Robert Parr would be the winner. The contest was so close that both boys grew eager, and even Mr. Truesdell, the teacher, watched their progress with curiosity.

On the last day of school when he announced the prizes, Mr. Truesdell said, "Percy Grahame wins the prize in mathematics, the last problem being correctly solved by him alone; with that exception, Robert Parr stands equal with him."

Percy went forward to receive his prize amid a round of applause, and walked back with a proud and happy look; but instead of any congratulations from Robert, he heard an angry whisper: "You sneak! you couldn't have done that sum alone."

Percy colored from anger—Robert thought the blush meant guilt—and turned to the other boys to show them his book and be congratulated. He was deeply hurt, and determined not to speak to Rob until he apologized, but he missed his friend's sympathy, and he felt no pleasure in his triumph.

"Why, Percy," said his mother as she took the book, "here is just what you and Rob have been longing to read—'Around the World in Sixty Days.'"

"Oh, I don't care a cent for it; you may keep it. I'm going for a long walk."

Mrs. Grahame looked up in surprise, but the boy was gone. "Off for Rob," thought the mother, never thinking they had quarrelled.

Meanwhile, Rob had his angry feelings nursed by Jim Downing.

"I'd have showed you the way to do the sum if I'd been Percy; then you could have drawn for the prize." Mr. Truesdell told the minister that Percy was the best scholar he had; I heard him."

Yes, Jim had heard that; but he might have told all. Mr. Truesdell said, that Percy and Robert Parr were his two best.

At last Jim had to leave Rob, and he, too, angry and feeling himself ill-treated, started for a walk. He had said that Percy cheated, and now he really began to believe it, and, as he detested cheating, he made himself think he was only being very virtuous to feel angry with his friend.

"I wouldn't ask any one to help me," he said to himself, "and if I'd found out the answer I'd have told Percy. It's just as Jim says, Percy takes every chance he can of getting ahead of me."

"Rob! Rob!" called a boyish voice that Rob had often heard in those very woods. "Rob, wait a minute; I want to tell you I'm very —" But Percy heard some one coming, and he stopped short; he did not wish any one else to hear him say he was sorry.

"Well," asked Rob, sulkily, "I suppose you are going to say you are sorry you didn't show me how to cheat? No, thank you!" and thrusting his hands in his pockets the boy was going to pass his friend, when Mr. Truesdell came in sight. He saw that there was some quarrel afloat, and remembering how close the contest had been over the prize, he stopped and said, pleasantly, "Well, boys, you had a close race between you; which has really won?"

Both looked up in astonishment; had not he given Percy the prize that very day?

"I mean which of you has won the contest over self? Can you, Robert, honestly rejoice in your friend's success? Are you, Percy, thinking as much of Rob's disappointment as if it were your own?"

The boys looked down with shame. "He says I cheated, sir,, said, Percy at last.

"Well, can't you prove to him that you did not?"

Percy had not thought of that. To be sure, he could work over the example and explain it. Besides, now that he thought of it he was sorry that he had not shown Rob how to do it.

"Boys," said Mr. Truesdell, "I want you to remember that no prize is so great as the heart of a true friend. Don't let anything break up your friendship; forgive again and again, but don't give up your friend unless you are sure he is not worthy of your love. Now, Parr, what makes you think Grahame cheated?"

Robert looked at his friend's clear, bright eyes and said, "I don't think so; another fellow said so first, and I was mad and said it myself, and pretended I thought so. But Grahame never cheats, sir."

"And I might have shown Rob my example;" said Percy, throwing his arm over Robert's shoulder. "My heart was so set on the prize that I didn't care for any one. Do you think prizes are good things, sir?"

"They are excellent things to teach you give up sometimes. Life is full of prizes, my boys, and every one don't win them; but the noblest are those who, having done their best, can wait patiently without envying more successful friends, knowing that at last they shall receive the best prize, and hear the great Teacher say, 'Well done!'"

The boys stood quite still—it is not easy to talk at such times—but I know they must have resolved to be among those "noblest" people, for never again have they quarrelled, though sometimes one, and sometimes the other, is the most successful; and when they see others gaining what they have striven for Percy says, "Ah, Rob, we don't fret, do we? We'll hear the great Teacher's voice at last."—Hope Ledyard.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The "Conch Pearl."

Many of the readers of the Scientific American have doubtless frequently seen and admired the delicately tinted, pink-faced shells which are extensively used in the United States for bordering garden walks and other ornamental purposes, but few probably are aware that in the conch which forms and inhabits this shell is occasionally found a very lovely gem, known to lapidaries as the conch pearl. When perfect the pearl is either round or egg-shaped and is somewhat larger than a pea, of a beautiful rose color, and watered, that is, presenting, when held to the light, the sheeny wavy appearance of watered silk. It is, however, a very rare circumstance to find a pearl which possesses all the requirements that constitute a perfect gem, and when such does happen, it proves an exceedingly valuable prize to its fortunate finder. A good pearl is very valuable indeed, some having been sold in Nassau for no less a sum than four hundred dollars. Although many of these pearls are annually obtained by the fishermen in the Bahamas, not more than one in twenty proves to be a really good gem, and hence probably their high price.

Pink is the most common and only desirable color, although white, yellow, and brown pearls are occasionally found. Even among the pink ones there is usually some defect which mars their beauty and materially injures them; some are very irregular in shape and covered apparently with knobs or protuberances; others are too small, while many lack the watering, which gives them their great value and chief beauty.

The conch abounds in the waters of the Bahamas, and thousands of them are annually obtained and destroyed for their shells, which form quite an article of commerce, but not in one conch in a thousand is a pearl found. When this is taken into account, and the other fact, that not more than one in twenty of pearls found turns out to be perfect, it will at once be seen that a good conch pearl will always be a rare and costly gem. In fact their value within the last few years has almost doubled, and the demand for them is steadily increasing.

Most of the conch pearls found in the Bahamas are exported to London, where they are readily sold. A few have been sent to New York, having been purchased in Nassau by an agent of Messrs. Tiffany & Co., the well known jewelers.

Like everything else that is valuable, the conch pearl has been imitated, and some of the imitations have been sold as the genuine article. Many years ago an ingenious American visited Nassau and conceived the idea of making conch pearls. He succeeded admirably in cutting out of the pink portion of the shell some very creditable imitations. To make success doubly sure, he procured a number of the live shell fish, carefully inserted the spurious pearls in the position in which the genuine pearl is usually found, and placed the fish in an inclosed place in the water. At the expiration of a month or more, the fish were again removed, and, of course, pearls found in them, several of which were sold to inexperienced persons before the fraud was detected. It was detected, however, and the perpetrator received prompt and deserved punishment.—Scientific American.

Crossley's Microphone.

Since the discovery of the microphone numerous attempts have been made to apply it in some way to the transmission of speech. As yet, however, these have been rather unsuccessful, owing to the extreme sensitiveness of the instrument, which, while it would send conversation without difficulty, transmitted in addition every jar and rustle to such an extent as to be very confusing. An English experimenter, Mr. Crossley, has contrived an instrument containing four carbon pencils, and has so arranged, in rather a complicated manner, the circuit, as to nearly if not quite obviate this confusion. With the telephone it is necessary to place the mouth close to the instrument, while with Mr. Crossley's instrument conversation a few feet away is readily conveyed. For some months past an interesting and highly successful operation has been made every Sunday. One of these transmitters is fixed in the pulpit of one of the Halifax churches. Its position is not over-favorable, being half hidden so as to escape attention, and thus, to some extent, it is rendered inefficient. In the nether regions, where the organ-blowing apparatus is found, a Clamond's thermo-electric pile is placed, and one of the first duties of the sexton on Sunday morning and evening is to light a gas-jet under the pile. In this way a sufficient supply of electricity is obtained to work exceedingly well, at a cost of less than ten cents per Sunday in gas consumed. On the outskirts of the town several houses have telephones in the secondary circuit, one of these belonging to an invalid lady, and the service, from the opening voluntary to the parting benediction, is heard plainly by every one. The rendering of the music is especially fine, sounding to the observer, at ease in an arm-chair, as if proceeding from a neighboring room with the door slightly ajar.—Christian Union.

Old Folks on the Farm.

The tenacity with which the veteran farmers stick to their farms not only, but to the actual work on them, is one of the most interesting subjects for the student of social characteristics. A "retired" farmer, living on a small income in a country village, with nothing to do but to higgle over his purchases and growl at the taxes, is a proper object of pity.

Happy the man whose younger kinsmen will carry on the old farm, and let him work or not as he pleases—giving him an easy chair by the warmest corner of the fire place in winter, and a shady nook on the verandah wherein to nod over his newspaper and play with his grandchildren in Summer. Thrice happy the good farm wife whose daughter, or daughter's daughter reserves the best ground-floor room for her, and carries on the work herself—all the while pleasing "mother" with the belief that she is still doing it as she did for half-a-hundred years. How sweet and placid the dear old face, as she goes with the feeble steps to kitchen and dairy "looking arter things!" She knows how many chickens there are, and when the speckled hen ought to come off; she passes judgment on the new cow, and gives that finishing touch to the butter which won the first premium at the county fair so many years ago—before "help" was known in the farm house. She "goes to meetin'" with a regularity that shames her children, and passes gently down the farther slope of the hill of life serenely happy amid accustomed scenes and familiar faces. What hampered village existence would be so good for her as that? It is poor work, transplanting old trees.

There is, we think a danger that the old men on the farm will work too much. The gritty American farmer gives up hard; and in the hurry of work, or from thoughtlessness of younger men, the old frames are often overtaxed. Enforced idleness is often the beginning of the end with men whose whole lives have been spent in activities. But "taking it easy" won't hurt them. Make "laying off," and lighter cares around the house so natural and easy for them that they will never know it was planned. The younger generations should take good care of the elder, for from the present outlook, it is doubtful if grandparents are so plenty fifty years hence.—Golden Rule.

New Ocean Piers.

Two new ocean piers, at Long Branch and Manhattan Beach—the first built in America—are in successful operation. These piers may make a revolution in ocean commerce. If an artificial breakwater or harbor can be made on an exposed coast why should vessels sail a hundred miles inland to find a harbor? Already there is talk of building ocean piers at Cape May and Atlantic City, so that coasters can carry passengers from New York and leave them at all the watering places along the coast.

These piers, which may make a revolution in ocean navigation, are easily and cheaply made. These are simply the elevated railroad extended out into the ocean. They are merely a lace-work of iron, which does not resist the waves or swells. They comb the water but do not resist it. The piers at Brighton, England, are made in the same way. The whole structure, 600 feet long at Long Branch and 1,000 feet at Coney Island, rests on long, spindling iron piles, ten inches in diameter.

"We have made one great discovery which every railroad and bridge builder in the West ought to know about," said the engineer.

"What is it?" I asked.

"Well, we used to drive the piles, but we discovered that we can sink them better by hydraulics. That is, we now place a steel hose on the lower end of the pile, then start the engine, and the stream of water tears up the sand and gravel, and the pile drops of its own weight fifteen feet into the ground. Once there nothing can move it. Now, this is the way to place piles in the lakes and rivers out West. Why, with this discovery I can bridge a river as cheaply as I can make the same distance of elevated railroad. No more suspension bridges except over high streams, after this. No more Howe-truss bridges either. Why, I can bridge the Mississippi for $100,000 with a bridge that will look like a piece of iron lace hanging in the air."—Banner.

Humorous.

"Edward," said Mr. Rice, "what do I hear? that you have disobeyed your grandmother, who told you just now not to jump down these steps?"

"Grandma didn't tell us not to, papa; she only came to the door and said, 'I wouldn't jump down these steps boys;' and I shouldn't think she would—an old lady like her!"

Sir George Campbell, in his book on the United States, says: "I heard a story of my friend, Mr. Holmes, the member for Paisley, who made a tour in the United States, and when he got to Chicago he was very anxious to see a typical American, with his slouched hat, big boots, belt with revolver in it, and so on. He could not find one for a long time. At last he found a man who exactly came up to his ideas, and entering into conversation with him he said, "Have you been long here?" "Na," was the answer; "I'm jist a month frae Glasca."

SECULAR NEWS.

John B. Hussey, of North Carolina, has been appointed Librarian of the U. S. House of Representatives

Leonard Case, worth three or four millions of dollars, and said to be noted for his benefactions, died a few days since under the suspicion of suicide.

Capt. R. P. Paddison, we learn from the Wilmington Star, expects to put a boat on the Neuse river in the spring to run between Newbern and Whitehall.

Mr. Robert L. Steele has collected great quantities of Indian relics, such as weapons, cooking utensils, &c., and now has one of the finest collections in the South.—Rockingham Bee.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Aid Society gave a "hot" supper at the Grand Central Hotel on the evening of the 30th ult. In the dining room a splendid repast was prepared by the ladies.—Durham Recorder.

The Christmas tree in the college chapel on Christmas eve night was "a thing of beauty." It was estimated by some that $400 would not cover the gifts that adorned its glittering boughs and made glad the hearts of the old folks, grown young again.—Monroe Enquirer.

At a recent meeting of the officers of the First Presbyterian church a resolution was passed, which was read to the congregation by the pastor, Sunday, declaring that hereafter no one should be admitted into the church building to witness wedding ceremonies unless by card, and in no instance should more than 300 persons be allowed in the church to witness such ceremony.—Charlotte Observer.

Gen. Ransom's force is now at work near Broadhurst's Landing in this county, and all who wish to see monster logs tossed out of the river should make good use of the opportunity. Capt. D. J. Broadhurst says it looks marvelous to see huge monster logs dug up and thrown upon the river banks, and yet it is done so nicely. The men in charge of the work know what they are about.—Goldsboro Messenger.

NEVER RETURN.

It is stated that one out of every four real invalids who go to Denver, Col., to recover health never return to the East or South except as a corpse. The undertakers, next to the hotel keepers, have the most profitable business. This excessive mortality may be prevented and patients saved and cured under the care of friends and loved ones at home, if they will but use Hop Bitters in time. This we know. See other column.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS

An Enlarged View of the Pad.

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUST'NG BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.

Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs. Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago, Ill.

THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated American
WORM SPECIFIC
OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a knawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,

DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

—:o:—

DR. C. McLANE'S
LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

NATURES OWN REMEDY
CURATINE
A VEGETABLE MEDICINE FOR THE BLOOD, LIVER & KIDNEYS.

CURATINE, For Blood Diseases.
CURATINE, For Liver Complaints.
CURATINE, For Kidney Diseases.
CURATINE, For Rheumatism.
CURATINE, For Scrofula Diseases.
CURATINE, For Erysipelas, Pimples, Blotches, etc.

A medicinal compound of known value—combining in one preparation the curative powers for the evils which produce all diseases of the Blood, the Liver, the Kidneys. Harmless in action and thorough in its effect. It is unexcelled for the cure of all Blood Diseases such as Scrofula, Tumors, Boils, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Rheumatism, Mercurial Poisoning, also Constipation, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Retention of Urine, etc.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR IT.

THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO. BALTIMORE, Md.

dec 17 623-eowly

G. H. GRAVES,
—WITH—
YEARGAN, PETTY & Co
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Notions, &c.
RALEIGH, N. C.

Would be glad to have his friends and everybody else to call. He guarantees to sell them goods cheaper than they can be bought elsewhere in the city. Orders are solicited from Merchants and all others.

Messrs. Yeargan, Petty & Co. keep an assortment of RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS and DRESS GOODS. Special attention is asked to their line of Hamburg and Nainsook Edgings and Insertions, Silk Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Ladies' Dress Shoes, &c.

dec 10 622-1m

ALTAFFER & PRICE
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Woodwork and Builder's Hardware.

We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.

Church Windows Doors Pew Ends

CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles.

Factory foot of Walnut St
Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross } Wilmington, N. C.

apl 16 588-1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.

1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Has been in constant use by the public for over twenty years, and is the best preparation ever invented for RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOR AND LIFE.

It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off, and thus AVERT BALDNESS.

It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.

The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS will change the beard to a BROWN or BLACK at discretion. Being in one preparation it is easily applied, and produces a permanent color that will not wash off.

PREPARED BY
R. P. HALL & CO., NASHUA, N. H.
Sold by all Dealers in Medicine.

Proverbs.	Proverbs.
"For sinking spells, fits, dizziness, palpitation and low spirits, rely on Hop Bitters."	"The greatest appetizer, stomach, blood and liver regulator—Hop Bitters."
"Read of, procure and use Hop Bitters, and you will be strong, healthy and happy."	"Take Hop Bitters three times a day and you will have no doctor bills to pay."
"Ladies, do you want to be strong, healthy and beautiful? Then use Hop Bitters."	"Hop Bitters builds up strengthens and cures continually from the first dose."
"$500 will be paid for a case that Hop Bitters will not cure or help."	"Fair skin, rosy cheeks and the sweetest breath in Hop Bitters."
"Clergymen, Lawyers, Editors, Bankers and Ladies need Hop Bitters daily."	"Kidney and Urinary complaints of all kinds permanently cured by Hop Bitters."
"Hop Bitters has restored to sobriety and health, perfect wrecks from intemperance."	"Sour stomach, sick headache and dizziness, Hop Bitters cures with a few doses."

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,
MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,
1879–'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's-day, into two Terms.

The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.

There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:

1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.

A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.

Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.

Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.

For Catalogues and other information apply to
REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D., President.

jan 16-592.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!

WE ask the attention of our friends and customers to our large and handsomely selected stock which is our

Fourth Purchase this Season.

Consisting of Dress Goods in all colors and prices, Cassimeres, Jeans, Flannels, Blankets, Shawls, Balmoral Skirts, Tickings, Domestics, Sheetings,

READY-MADE CLOTHING,
Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes.

Don't forget we sell the best Shirt in the City for the money. Wool Shirts and Vests for Ladies and Gents underwear.

Call and get one of our $1 Umbrellas, which is as good as you ever bought at $1 25.

Notwithstanding the advance in prices, we are still selling many of our Goods at old prices.

Orders solicited.

T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opp. Charlotte Hotel, Tryon st., Charlotte, N. C.
dec 24 624-tf

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

TOBACCO.
100 BOXES MANUFACTURED TOBACCO.
SPECIALTIES:
Uncle Ned's Twist.
Queen Bee Plug,
HALL & PEARSALL.

H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments. jan 7-3m

50 Gilt, Motto, Lily, Scroll, and Marble Cards, 10 cents. 60 Agents' Samples, 10 cents. U. S. CARD Co., Northford, Ct. dec 31-625-13t

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL

HALL & PEARSALL,
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF
Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish
Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,
COTTON BAGGING and TIES.

☞ We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.

HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
63-1y

BUY THE BEST.

WE HAVE now on hand finished.

35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.

Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.

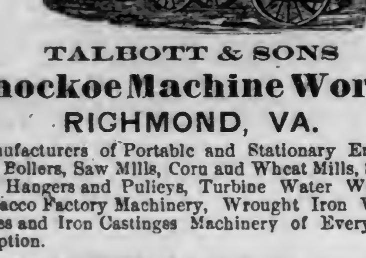
Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.

A. A. McKETHAN & SONS, Fayetteville, N. C.
Oct. 31. 854-t

TO THE TRADE
—AT—
Low Prices.

400 Boxes D. S. and SMOKED SIDES,
1000 Bdls GRIP TIES,
2000 Bdls ACME TIES,
1000 Bdls PIECED TIES,
1000 Whole and Half Rolls BAGGING,
500 Kegs NAILS,
300 Bales HAY,
5000 Bush CORN,
250 Bbls SUGARS,
250 Bags COFFEE,
1000 Bbls FLOUR, following brands: La Rose, Blanche, Jack Frost, Plant's Extra, Paragon, Princess, &c.

WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.



TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.

Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings Machinery of Every Description.

Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.

TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER.
The Invention of the Age.

It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable. as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
☞ Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.

JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.

JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS, PUBLISHERS,
AND
BOOK BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.

GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.

We are prepared to execute in the very best style,
ALL KINDS OF
JOB PRINTING
SUCH AS

Business Cards,	Statements,	Catalogues,
Visiting Cards,	Handbills,	Manifests,
Wedding Cards,	Posters,	Bills Lading,
Show Cards,	Notices,	Receipts,
Bill Heads,	Checks,	Labels,
Letter Heads,	Notes,	Tags,
Note Heads,	Drafts,	Envelopes,
Account Sales,	School Circulars,	Pamphlets,

and in fact, every description of
RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING
AT THE
LOWEST HARD TIMES PRICES.

We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed.

Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS WANTED For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1,018 Pages, 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & Co., 66 N. 4th St., Phil'a., Pa.
oct 15 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO
New Organs [illegible] Stops, 3 set Golden Tongue Reeds, [illegible] Oct's, [illegible] Knee Swells, Walnut Case, warnt'd 6 years, Stool & Book $98. New Pianos, Stool, Cover & Book, $143 to $255. Before you buy be sure to write me. Illustrated Newspaper sent Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.
oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.
CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
68 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,
would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.
SAMPLES SENT FREE!
Also, to their
DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.

Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.

All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 12-1y

McMILLAN BROS.,
MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN
SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS

15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.

Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes, Still Doors & Grate bars

As we have four Copper-smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only

Regular and Reliable Establishment

where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing

D. G. McMILLAN, Supt. Fayetteville, N. C.
feb 12

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.
HAVE FOR SALE.

2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.
Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.
Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.
Nov. 19 463-1y

ADRIAN & VOLLERS
CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present.

SMOKED BACON,
in hogsheads and boxes,
HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKGS,
Breakfast Strips,
Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,
SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,
Molasses and Syrup
OF ALL KINDS.
FLOUR of all Qualities,
and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries
nov 19 551-12m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS
DUFUR & CO.,
86 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md.
Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies, &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c.
mch 28 481-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES
OF THE
GENERAL ASSEMBLY
OF THE
Presbyterian Church in the United States

THE CLERKS.

Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D. Richmond, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.

President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq. Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md.

PUBLICATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va.
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION.

Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D. D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn.

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January.
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September
6. Education—First Sabbath in November.

WE KEEP
PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR, FAIRBANK'S LARD,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FINE N. O. SYRUP,
And other Standard articles.
Orders solicited.
HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XIII—No 628.] WILMINGTON, JANUARY 21, 1880. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXIII—No. 1,248.

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

One copy one year, in advance.....$2 65
If payment be delayed six months..... 3 15
One copy six months, in advance..... 1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each New subscriber of $2 65.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters. Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procurred without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

MRS. MOON AT LAURINBURGH.

Mr. Editor: On the first Sabbath in the year, having learned that the Quakeress, Mrs. Moon, was to commence a meeting on the following Sabbath in the Methodist church in this place, I called the attention of my congregation to the action of Synod with reference to woman preachers. I thought I was doing my duty, and supposed that the Synod was competent to express an opinion entitled to some consideration among respectable people. The lady has come, and it now appears that the Synod was entirely mistaken, that it really misapprehended the meaning of the Scriptures, and committed a most egregious blunder in applying to the interpretation of God's Word a principle which is now utterly obsolete and no longer admissible. The coming of this godly woman has been the means of bringing to the front, not indeed a new but really a very convenient and serviceable principle of interpretation, one that is altogether satisfactory to the advocates of preaching by women and more easy, versatile and elastic than the old way of understanding Scripture. And I write not to say anything about the lady, who, I hope, is a sincere and well meaning woman, however much deluded and out of place I may think her to be, but to call attention to the grand method of ascertaining Christian duty from the Bible, as it is practiced by the more advanced and more enlightened among our Methodist brethren here.

The principle in question is this: A commandment of the Lord is not to be considered as binding the conscience, if there is room for a reasonable doubt that the commandment does not mean what it says. In other words: It is out of binding force if a person is able to raise a doubt in his mind as to what it means. A "reasonable doubt" is a doubt which the doubter judges to be reasonable, a doubt satisfactory to the doubter. If a person is not exactly satisfied that a commandment of the Lord means just what it says, then he is at liberty to make it mean anything whatsoever that he wants it to mean. This is the principle, the very latest improvement in the sphere of Biblical interpretation.

The great and superlative advantages of such a simple and agreeable system must be apparent to the most superficial person. Not to mention other things in which it excels the old way, it relieves the mind of all anxiety about what God's will really is, for, according to this principle, His will is not what He says it is in plain words, but what we understand it to be; then it makes room for the largest liberty: If we are not satisfied with the plain meaning of the word—if that is not what we think it ought to be—we are at liberty to suppose that the Sacred Writer did not understand the genius and spirit of Christianity as well as we do, and to look about us for a construction or explanation which accords with our superior judgment, or which is the same thing with our godly inclination. And then it is absolutely incomparable in the matter of removing difficulties and solving knotty questions. We have only to suppose that the Sacred Writers did not understand exactly what sort of Christianity would suit this enlightened nineteenth century; or, if that is not convenient or advisable, we have simply to inquire whether the mind is fully satisfied that the passage means what it says. If not satisfied (as it is easy to be dissatisfied when one is inclined to be so), then we are free to believe that it does not mean what it says, and to construe it according to our pious judgment or more enlightened wisdom. Thus by this admirable principle, dexterously applied, the knottiest questions and the most embarrassing difficulties melt away like candy vanish like a mere mist. No doubt it costs something like a pang to cut loose from the old way and to handle a holy apostle, as one handles the face of an india-rubber doll baby, so as to press him into any and all sorts of expressions, but there is nothing like making up one's mind to a thing, and when the mind is once made up the whole thing is accomplished. It must also be apparent to the most superficial that this principle, like the pavilion in the Arabian Nights, is capable of indefinite expansion, or of universal, infinite application, and that it possesses a harmonizing power that is absolutely without a parallel in the annals of human ingenuity, reducing all things, even the most inconsistent, to the most beautiful consistency, bringing order out of chaos, and giving shape to that which shape has none.

I confess, Mr. Editor, that I am becoming somewhat of an enthusiast on the subject. Having observed for some days the operation of this principle, its remarkable pliability, its wonderful oiliness, rendering it so smooth and easy and flexible, and having witnessed its harmonizing power in bringing things totally different into the most perfect sameness, although the differences remained as before, enabling people holding different views to agree perfectly, without changing their views, having seen so much of the beauty of the thing, I confess that my very soul is almost lost in wonder and amazement. Is it not a grand thing to rise to such a sublime height of improved Christianity that the difference between what God says in His Holy Word, and what he does not say, vanishes? Is it not a glorious thing to be so enlightened and advanced in the refinements and subtleties, that we can make words mean what they don't mean, or make them not mean what they mean? Is not a principle of such extraordinary capabilities worthy of a somewhat enthusiastic consideration? Are not those excellent persons, the pious and godly men who have brought this principle to such a pitch of perfection justly deserving of some notice?

It is a pleasant thing to live and learn. I had thought that the status of woman in the Church was fixed definitively by the Word, and fully recognized by all Christians, Quakers excepted. In my simplicity I had supposed that she is constitutionally adapted to the sphere assigned her, and that in His Word God shows respect for the nature with which He endowed her, and does not require of her a service from which the feelings and sensibilities of a refined, pure, modest woman would recoil; that He did not endow her with these qualities, and then lay upon her a burden too heavy for her, requiring her to disregard the native modesty of her soul. Accordingly, I had supposed, that those Scriptures which command her to "keep silence in the churches" were in accordance with her wishes, and were to be understood according to their plain and natural import, as declaring not merely the matter of propriety but as founded also in the nature of things, and being thus founded that they are binding as long as the relation between the sexes which God instituted, continues; as long as woman retains the peculiarities of soul which the Maker gave her. I thought that the effect of Christianity was, not to destry these feminine qualities, in which all her beauty and loveliness and usefulness are wrapt up, but to develop them fully, refine and purify and hallow them. Holding these views, I was anxious to know how the advocates of woman preaching would reconcile their position with what seemed to me, the plain and indubitable Word of God—that they would reconcile it and make the connection somehow, I had not the least doubt. But the question was, how? Well, I ventured, in a quiet way, to call upon some of them for information on the subject; and in the light of their luminous interpretations, it appears that I had been entirely mistaken, and was really as far out of the track as the church itself, Quakers excepted. The question was, What saith the Scripture?

The first gentleman I approached, is a man of great penetration of intellect, and withal an excellent sort of man. I said, "You believe in the divine authority of God's Word." He replied, "I do," with emphasis. I read the Word: "Let your women keep silence in the churches;" "It is not permitted unto them to speak;" "It is a shame for women to speak in the church;" "Let the woman learn in silence with all subjection;" "I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence;" "Do not these Scriptures plainly forbid women to preach?" I inquired. "I am not exactly satisfied," he said, "but that they may mean something else." "Well, what do they mean?" "I cannot say exactly," he replied, "but I am satisfied there is room to doubt that they do not mean just what they say." "Well, what do you think of the woman preacher?" "I cannot say; when I hear her I can decide." As I walked away I was filled with wonder at the glorious liberty of the "principle," and its amazing fertility of resources. I could but think "what an easy time that man's conscience has of it—the meaning of a divine command, a Christian duty in the matter of obedience, all to be determined by whether he is pleased or not with the woman!" Admirable liberty to determine what God's Word means by the way it pleases us!

The next man I met was a devout and godly person, and I expected something from him. But he was perfectly non-committal. He was evidently hoping for grand results from the meetings, but seemed afraid to say much about it. He seemed like a man halting betwixt two opinions, and, as a friend of mine expressed it, uncertain as to whether the Bible might not turn out to be mistaken after all.

After this I fell in with a man of most extraordinary capabilities (in the way of being on both sides of a fence at once). "O, yes, Paul says so plainly; it is there." "What do you think about it?" I inquired. "Well, sir, it is a delicate question." On the one hand, is the commandment of the Lord, admitted to be plain and positive, on the other hand, is a big meeting presided over by a woman, admittedly, doing that which God forbids? and yet it is a delicate question! and why? The results of the meeting and the numerous spoils hoped to be brought in impart to the question the element of delicacy! The end justifies the means. We may disregard God's Word, or explain it away, with impunity, provided we get up a sensation and gather the people into the church. God will smile and not frown. He will approve of the results and overlook the means, i. e., connive at the breaking of his commandments! And here is the difficulty. We are not to do evil that good may come. To disobey God is evil. If the Bible forbids women to preach she disobeys God every time she preaches. But she is doing good, converting souls, and it cannot be that she is disobeying God. Therefore the Bible cannot mean what it says. It applied to the apostle's times, but not to ours. He simply forbade women to disturb the church by wrangling. This woman is not preaching. She is prophesying, as if prophesying did not imply inspiration. It is in vain to remind them that Paul enjoins "silence" on women in the church. Advanced enlightenment discards all that. The "principle" has delivered us from the shackles of ages, and we are free now. "Yes, thank God, we are free!"

I was anxious to know what "our new preacher" thinks about it, but was told that he is reticent, saying nothing one way or the other. He is certainly, however, in the advanced wing, in entire sympathy with the improvement. The argument by which he gets over the obstacle which Paul has placed in his way, is alike profound and lofty. Indeed, he seems not to realize that it is any obstacle at all. "Why," he is reported as saying, "if that Scripture applied to our day it would forbid women to teach in the Sunday school." Modern enlightenment, I suppose, sees no difference between a Sunday school and the Church, or between a class of children and the Church. Our brother's position amounts to this: "Paul did not allow women to speak in the Church, but I do!"

Now, Mr. Editor, is not this "principle" a sovereign balm for the conscience? How easy is it to obey, yea, to render a perfect obedience! Obedience has reference to the Word, not exactly to what it says or means, but as to what in our opinion it may be understood to say or mean. Here is the highway to Christian perfection. Paul says, "If any man think himself a prophet or spiritual let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord." John says, "He that knoweth God heareth us (the apostles); he that is not of God heareth not us"—regardeth not what we write. Here is the test: Submission to the infallible authority of the apostles is the test of conversion (or used to be). But we are outgrowing all that. When they get the Lord's Prayer and the Sermon on the Mount improved so as to breathe the spirit of moderned Christianity I will send you a copy of the improvement. But "if the foundations be destroyed what can the righteous do?" Nevertheless, "the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, the Lord knoweth them that are His, and "they FOLLOW"—not a Will o' Wisp, but they follow Him. J. H. Coble.

Laurinburgh, N. C., Jan. 14, 1880.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

A MINISTER'S WORK—WHAT CONSTITUTES IT?

Mr. Editor: A great deal is said at the present day, and I think rightly, of talents and learning as important in the Christian ministry. These advantages are sought by churches and congregations, in those whom they choose for pastors and teachers; and it is right when this inquiry for high talents is secondary to that for exemplary piety. I have seen men in the ministry whose talents and learning were in high reputation, but whose piety was less prominent; who had cultivated their minds more than their hearts; who had rejoiced in their strength to run the race of competition in intellectual pursuits, more than to run with patience the Christian race set before them; who have dazzled rather than instructed and edified; have been admired, rather than followed in the way of Christ's steps; have stood erect and tall among men, but have not soared heavenward in fervor of holiness; and who, if so happy as to arrive in glory, will be found sitting, not by the side of Paul, but among "the least in the kingdom of heaven."

I have also seen the Gospel minister, who had talents fitted to command respect, and attainments the result of conscientious industry; but whose pretensions were modest, and whose retiring disposition forbade the sounding of the trumpet of popular applause before him. The thoughtless man of the world, who enters his place of worship, from curiosity perhaps, goes away thinking him quite an ordinary preacher because he has not "played well on an instrument." And yet there are some facts respecting this preacher deserving notice. Let the fastidious hearer, fond of display, judge and pronounce upon him as he pleases; there are conversions of sinners from the errors of their ways occurring in his congregation, it may be every week. Almost every season for the administration of the Lord's Supper finds two, five, ten, and even more, "confessing Christ before men." Hundreds sit down to the table at which he dispenses the memorials of a Saviour's love. A church of intelligent, exemplary, prosperous Christians has grown up under his ministry, and is exerting an influence upon those around it. You see an attentive assembly in the sanctuary; a thoughtful silence is observed by them as they retire to their homes, Sabbath after Sabbath; the deportment of such as you meet during the week is marked with the sobriety of consideration; and the moral habits of those among them who make no profession of religion are manifestly influenced by some powerful cause. Putting these and other like things together, you ask—What is the secret? You will know in that great day of revelation of secret things, when He who searches the heart and all hidden things, discloses the secrets of that minister's study and closet, and by the light of that day introduces you into the sacred, and now unknown interior of his character. Men of the world know little about these "princes" who have "power with God."

Let me take another case, for there are such—a man who stands confessedly high on the catalogue of great and learned men, and whose piety equals, perhaps exceeds, his talents and learning, and whose influence and usefulness are in proportion. After estimating properly the instrumentality of his talents and learning, I undertake to say still, that his piety is the main spring of his usefulness. Are his reasonings cogent? it is because he puts forth in them the wisdom derived from above. Are his conceptions clear and distinct? it is because he is taught by the Holy Spirit, and because God's high thoughts, set before him in the word of inspiration, and made clear to his mind by the teachings of Divine grace, are the matter of his conceptions. Is he eloquent? it is because "his lips have been touched as with a live coal from off the altar." Is he successful in winning souls to Christ? it is not the talented, learned and eloquent man, so much as the man of humble piety, to whose instrumentality this is to be attributed. It is on the wings of the Heavenly Dove that he rises; and with the strength of faith that he soars toward heaven.

These things I regard as true. A minister may be a man of ordinary talents and attainments, and yet be eminently holy and useful. And a minister may outstrip thousands in attainments and usefulness, from these primary causes, that his piety outstripped both their talents and his own.

Ministers, then, are not to be estimated mainly on the ground that they are admired by men of the world, as talented and learned. I knew a gentleman who said to his friend: "Why did you take me to hear that old Dr. —— yesterday? He seems to be what you would call a good man, but he is certainly a very common preacher, and there was little or nothing in his sermon." The week had not passed before it appeared that the underrated preaching of that day was instrumental in the awaking and conversion of six or eight persons, who were listening to the "old Dr. ——" at the same time with this caviller. The estimation of a preacher by his ability merely, to hold a man of the world entranced for an hour with admiration of his talents simply, is injustice to the sacred office, and to Him who has sent ministers to be his ambassadors. It hinders also the efficacy of truth on the hearer who makes such estimation; renders his seasons in the sanctuary profitless; and tempts the devil to "catch away the word sown in his heart;" till he has spent his Sabbaths in his life—thrown away all the precious offers of salvation, and only fitted himself to die a death of utter hopelessness and horror.

Furthermore: a minister's worth cannot be fairly estimated from his appearance on the Sabbath and in the pulpit. What is he out of it—on every other day in the week, in his social intercourse with his people, in his use of opportunities to do them good by his private counsel, in his labors in the Sunday school and at the prayer meeting, and in his use of special providences, as occasions and means of instruction? Does he preach out of the pulpit as well as in it? and with the emphasis which a holy life gives? Does his walk and conversation during the week furnish a commentary to help his people understand what he preaches on the Sabbath? There are numberless situations in which a minister is to be looked at and estimated, when he is not and cannot be the great man; when retired, unostentatious, industrious, affectionate usefulness is to be exercised, which will be seen and known by his Omnipresent Lord, and by the family circle in which he takes his seat for an hour, or perhaps, only by some one individual, on whose heart he urges the solemn instruction of God's Word. In situations such as these, are to be exercised the faithfulness of Christian affection, and of earnest desire to perform duty and do good; the discretion and judgment of one wise to lead souls in the way to heaven; the instructiveness of one who has drank deep at the fountain of divine wisdom—the "Scripture of Truth." Who thinks of a minister in such circumstances as a great man? He is greater in the simplicity and fidelity of a Christian pastor seated at the prayer-meeting, or on a pastoral visit, than Cæsar, or Napoleon on his throne. The impression of his counsels Christian tenderness, and his earnest, solemn worship, give no opportunity for the hearer to think of the man. It will be true greatness which causes him to think of God, truth, heaven, hell, eternity; and to feel, repent, believe and secure eternal life.

The estimate of ministerial character and worth, then, is to be made principally by the holy devotedness he manifests in his Master's service, as seen in his whole manner of "watching for souls," and for the advancement of the glory of Christ's Kingdom. He whose holiness before God has been the main spring of his usefulness; elevating his aims, improving every talent, making sacred every attainment; and who has laid down all his honors from men, at the foot of the cross; his crown at last will be the brightest, his harp of praise the loudest and sweetest, and his joy the loveliest, while he stands before the throne and casts his crown at the Redeemer's feet, and bows and sings and shouts his praises forever. D. L.

PERSONAL SYMPATHY.

If the causes of poverty were simply of a business nature, the return of business activity would remove them, and bring back prosperity and happiness. The revival of business does indeed drive away want from many doors and bring joy to many hearts, but with many destitution and misery remain. The principal causes of their suffering are moral—have their source and power in the sinfulness of nature and in sinful habits. All work for their relief is superficial until they are brought to Christ and hear from Him the words spoken to the poor paralytic laid before Him, "Thy sins be forgiven thee."

In the economy of grace God uses the personal agency of His people in this work. They are His witnesses and the bearers of His light. They are to offer His blessings in all their fullness to the suffering everywhere and in whatever condition. This is individual responsibility, and organized work, however good in itself and necessary, does not relieve us of the duty of personal service to the poor, who, in God's providence will always be with us.

Sympathy rests on the knowledge of the suffering. When this knowledge is through others it cannot affect us as when it is direct and personal. We may deeply feel the thrilling story if told by one deeply moved, but when we see the destitution and need, when we come in personal contact with the misery that is hid from general view, our sympathies are most deeply affected. Looking at a distance on the mass, knowing them only through others, we may be affected by the gross and repulsive view presented; but when we come near, and get personal knowledge of the lives of individuals—know their temptations and trials, know the bitter agony, often so much worse than death even, not only is sympathy awakened, but love, and works of relief, go out through them to all the classes of which they are to us but types.

Charity is much more than giving alms; it is love. The pittance or the large donation may be given without a serious thought for the poor, out of a selfishness that will not make the slightest sacrifice of personal comfort for others. It may carry food and clothing to the hungry and the naked, but it is not given from a sympathy for the deeper woes, and does not reach the heart hunger and soul nakedness of those to whom it is given. The keenest suffering the world knows is beyond the reach of money, and can be found and relieved only through the personal efforts of those who know heart needs, and out of warm love can meet them. This love, so manifested, opens the door of hearts locked against mere money givers, and gives a direct power for effective soul aid and heart comfort never possessed by those whose charities are known only in their cash books.

It was this personal sympathy that made Christ's life so dear to the suffering. In this He gives the key to all charitable work, and is the model for all who labor for the good of their fellow-men of all classes.—United Presbyterian.

EDITORIAL SERENITY.

It is often asked, "Do editors ever get angry?" Well, newspaper men are usually the calmest people in the world and take things as they come, without much complaint; but sometimes they are sorely tried. A contemporary, speaking of the self-control of editors, says:

"If you happen in about the time when one puts the paste on the wrong side of the clipping, you will discover that they become agitated sometimes."

There are other occasions when at least some degree of emotion may be observed in the editors of even religious newspapers. When some one sends a long letter, postage only half paid—sometimes even less—detailing matters of no interest to the public, and then asking that if published a copy of the paper should be sent to the writer, habitual serenity is likely to be somewhat disturbed in the editorial rooms. When a minister, elder, or some other person sails in with a long series of resolutions concerning the ability, faithfulness, success and lovely character of a retiring pastor, adopted by a congregation which has starved him out or compelled him to leave because his preaching was disturbing their consciences, it is best for no one to come around asking any special favors for at least one hour. The combined meanness and hypocricy are almost more than even the editorial stomach can endure. When a minister sends a marriage or death notice and writes the name of one or more parties almost illegibly, and the compositor rushes to the foreman, the foreman to the mailing clerk, the mailing clerk to the book-keeper, and at last the book-keeper to the hapless editor, to find out what the scrawled hieroglyphics really are, it is not to be expected that the highest degree of good humor can prevail thereabout.

To delay the notice of an ecclesiastical or religious meeting two or three weeks and then when every line of space is used up and two or three columns laid over to the following week to demand immediate insertion, is not helpful towards mental equilibrium and kind feeling. The fact is this rather disturbs the calm equipoise which should be habitually maintained, and which it is a high object of editorial effort to promote. To send a long communication demanding that the whole or none be published, is well adapted to make the editor say he will do just as he pleases. If there is anything in the article that will suit his purposes he takes just as much of it as he likes, and consigns the remainder to the waste-basket; although in most cases when such an order comes along the whole concern goes in that direction, accompanied with snudry jerks and glances which are certainly not indicative of extraordinary affection towards the writer, or indeed any one else at that time.

When a lengthy article, crabbed, teeming with ill nature, making insinuations against institutions, churches or ministers, and then asking that the writer's name and all possible clue to it shall be suppressed both now and hereafter, leaving the editor to assume all responsibility, comes along, there is a shuffling in the chair, a contraction of the eyebrows and a compression of the lips not agreeable to look upon, making the impression that the feelings within are not in that calm state favorable for devout or long continued contemplation.

As we are only mortal we hope that all who have a regard for our placidity of temper and general welfare, will avoid all such things as we have indicated and leave us free to enjoy that serenity and buoyancy of mind and heart so necessary to successful work and that will enable us to do our part in promoting the same delightful feelings in others. In this request all editors of religious journals will unite.—Banner.

GOLD DUST.

Faith is the subtle chain
That binds us to the Infinite; the voice
Of a deep life within, that will remain
Until we crowd it thence.
—Mrs. E. Oakes Smith.

What we are afraid to do before men we should be afraid to think before God.

Modesty is to worth what shadows are in a painting; she gives to it strength and relief.

Let friendship creep gently to a hight; if it rushes to it, it may soon run itself out of breath.—Fuller.

There is just now a great clamor and demand for "culture;" but it is not so much culture that is needed as discipline.

Death is the crown of life:
Were death denied, poor men would live in vain;
Were death denied, to live would not be life;
Were death denied, even fools would wish to die.
—Young.

Christ came into the world to take away my sin by taking it upon myself; and if I go to Him with it, my comfort is that it cannot be too great for Him.—Rev. T. Adams.

We need to keep fixed times and appointed rounds of observances as truly as to be in holy impulse; to have prescribed periods in duty as truly as to have a spirit of duty; to be in the drill of observance as well as in the liberty of faith.—Horace Bushnell.

No man has a right to complain of his lot, or the times, or to call upon society to help him, until he has done all he can to help himself by industry and fidelity in the place and calling where he is. And he who does this will seldom have cause to complain.—Joseph P. Thompson.

Christianity is the only true and perfect religion, and in proportion as mankind adopt its principles and obey its precepts, they will be wise and happy. And a better knowledge of this religion is to be aquired by reading the Bible than in any other way.—Benjamin Rush.

How beautifully is it ordained, that as many thousands work for one, so must every individual bring his labor to make the whole. The highest is not to despise the lowest, nor the lowest to envy the highest; each must live in all and by all. Who will not work, neither shall he eat. So God has ordered and men, being in need of each other, should learn to love each other and bear each other's burdens.—A. G. Sala.

There's music ever in the kindly soul,
For every deed of goodness done is like
A chord set in the heart, and joy doth strike
Upon it oft as memory doth unroll
The immortal page whereon good deeds writ;
And heaven gives nothing sweeter to the mind
Than memories of the acts that bless our human kind.
—MacKellar.

ALL THINGS TO ALL MEN.

Paul did not become like other men in their sinful pursuits, but he cultivated that spirit of adaptation by which he was enabled to suit himself to the circumstances in which he was placed and the people among whom he moved. He did not needlessly offend prejudice; but wherever he could do so without either sinning himself or seeming to countenance others in their sins, he conformed to the manners and customs of the society in which at the time he moved. Within certain limits, therefore, it is right to be like the world. But our motive in being so must be that of the apostle, "that I might by all means save some." The passion for usefulness, next only to the desire for holiness, and as the result of our determination everywhere to please Christ, should be our master motive.

In order to benefit men, the believer must be in some respects like them. He should be courteous, gentlemanly, polite, in his intercourse with them. Paul did not think it beneath him to use language of the greatest respect to Agrippa, and he called Festus "most noble." He was in the highest sense of the word a gentleman, and whether you find him on the deck of the storm-tossed ship, or in the judgment hall, or on the sea-shore with the elders of Ephesus, you see in him the same self-adjustment to the circumstances of men which won to him the hearts of all; and this he did not for his own sake, but that he might bring them to the Lord.

But in taking thought of the courtesy, do not forget the great end which as Christians you ought to have in view. You are in society to benefit it. You are made all things to all men "that you may by all means save some." Therefore you should enter society for the good that you can do; but even in seeking that, you must be upon your guard against repelling where you desire to attract. Do not drag religion into your talk with others in such a way as to make the whole matter distasteful. Cultivate the art of incidental allusion, and if you make a transition in the conversation, make it naturally, so that your companions may not be jolted into silence. Find out what your friends are interested in, and descending to their level therein, you will be able to lift them more easily to that which you wish to put before them. You have heard the story of Edward Irving, while he was the assistant of Chalmers, in St. John's parish, Glasgow, and the infidel shoemaker, who, knowing him to be a minister, seemed resolutely bent on refusing to hold any communication with him. Going up to his "seat," Irving lifted a piece of patent leather, which was then a recent invention, and as his father was a tanner he knew so much about it that he was able to speak intelligently regarding it. The "sutor" continued at his work, preserving silence as long as he could, until, exasperated by what he thought the pretention of the minister, he asked: "What do ye ken aboot leather?" Irving in reply went into the whole subject, and after a time, won by his acquaintance with the matter of his craft, the shoemaker said: "You're a decent kind o' fellow; where do you preach?" On the following Sabbath the vanquished cobbler made his appearance for the first time at church, and became a regular attendant on Irving's ministry, excusing himself to those who wondered at his conduct by saying, "He's a sensible man, you; he kens aboot leather." Thus by the method of indirectness he entered into the man's heart, and took possession of it for his Lord; and by his example we may be instructed. To succeed in this work requires great wealth of resources, but it needs more specially that habitual spiritual-mindedness which is holding fellowship with Christ everywhere. And so we come again to that counsel which is the beginning, the middle and the end of all Christian advice. Keep near to Christ—the nearer the better—and your very proximity to him will remove all obstacles, will solve all difficulties and will give you that heavenly magnetism by which you will be enabled to draw souls to yourself, that you may be their minister, offering them up to God, an acceptable sacrifice, being sanctified by the Holy Spirit. —Extract from Sermon by Rev. Dr. W. M. Taylor.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

From London Weekly Review:

Miss Leigh's Home in Paris for Distressed Englishwomen, founded just seven years ago, has received nearly 2,000 inmates and about 30,000 visits from those needing advice or assistance, while its free registry has been the means of procuring situations for upwards of 2,000 young women.

A number of Greek monasteries on Mount Athos are being purchased by Russian monks, notwithstanding an order issued to the contrary by the Œcumenical Patriarch. So great is the number of foreign ecclesiastics who have taken up their quarters in the district that the Mount already wears the aspect of a Muscovite colony.

The last will and testament of Luther, the one which he wrote with his own hand, is in the Library at Heidelberg, where it is kept in a glass case for the inspection of visitors. The will in possession of the Hungarian Evangelicals, though written in a hand very closely like Luther's is one of his followers, Honterus, who introduced the Reformation into Transylvania and made a true copy, even to the very character of the last will and testament of his master.

A sum of money has been given to the Roman Catholic clergy of Natal by her Majesty the Empress Eugenie, as an acknowledgment of what they did in rendering the last honors to the remains of the late Prince Imperial, and the bishops and clergy have agreed to give the money towards the erection of a tower on the spot where the body of the Prince was deposited to be embalmed. The tower will be near the church intended to be erected there, and will be called the Napoleon Tower.

The celebration of the Robert Raikes Centenary, in commemeration of the 100th year of the establishment of Sunday schools, is to be held in the week of June 28 to July 4 inclusive, 1880. It is expected the commemoration will be observed throughout the kingdom, in small as well as large centres of population. The Archbishop of Canterbury and the Archbishop of York have signified their approval of the movement, which is being mainly organized and directed by the Church of England Sunday School Institute.

The London Missionary Society have been relieved of their anxiety respecting the Ujiji Mission. After a long delay, satisfactory letters have at length been received from the party, who have been engaged in explorations on Lake Tanganyika. They have visited the Lukuga creek and have seen for themselves the waters of the lake rushing down it to the so-called Lake Kamoloudoo, which is in reality the river Lualaba. It is therefore clear that, at any rate in the rainy season, the Lukuga Creek does not form the outlet of Lake Tanganyika, so that after all Commander Cameron was right and Mr. Stanley was clearly wrong in this much-vexed question.

The Pope has sent instructions to the Bishops and other collectors of Peter's pence to forward what they may have in hand, as the large calls upon his resources, arising from the hardness of the times, have left him without the means of satisfying further demands. The Obolo will, this year, produce about six millions of francs, five of which had come in by the end of November. This is about one-third more than last year. Unlike his predecessor, Leo XIII. puts by nothing. All the receipts of 1879 have been already spent in assisting schools, poor churches, alms, and the restoration of ecclesiastical works of art.

The War Cry is the new journal of the Salvation Army. This strange body has now fourteen stations in London, and over a hundred more in the provinces, in Wales, and in Scotland. Edward Freeborn was charged at the Thames Police Court on Saturday with annoying the members of a sect styling themselves the Salvation Army, while on their way to their chapel in Charles street, Millwall. Mr. Lushington told him that, whatever dislike he had to the manner in which the complainants conducted their religious service, he had no right to interfere with them, and fined him 40s. The money was instantly paid.

At the Field Lane Refuges and Ragged Schools, Vine street, Clerkenwell road, the annual Christmas dinner was given to eight hundred of the most destitute of the population. The morning was devoted to religious services, held in the smaller rooms of the building, at the close of which the company adjourned to the large school room, which was tastefully decorated with texts and evergreens. Here they all found comfortable accommodation. Ragged and miserable, pale with care, and pinched with want, it was a pleasant sight to see such an assemblage sit down to partake of a substantial meal. The provisions consumed were as follows: 250 lbs. hot roast beef, 640 lbs. plum pudding, 784 lbs. potatoes, 150 quartern loaves, 800 oranges. In addition very poor but deserving families were supplied with dinners in their own homes. The entire expenses were defrayed by special contributions for the purpose.

The receptions of the season have begun at the Vatican with all the ceremonial which has been neglected of late years, but all political allusions are banished from the addresses and the replies. Some very remarkable words fell from the Pope at his reception of the Cardinals last week. Addressing each Cardinal, Leo XIII insisted on the urgent necessity of concord and perseverance, because days of hard trial were yet to be expected, when the Pontiff would need all the support and enlightenment of the Sacred College. Much discussion took place subsequently among their Eminences anent the precise signification of the Pope's words. Subsequently his Holiness said the general situation was such that from one day to another a social cataclysm might be expected. Affairs in France are said to be greatly occupying the mind of the Pope, who is persuaded that new measures hostile to the Church would lead to grave mischief in other countries also. The exchange of telegrams between the Nuncio at Paris and the Vatican is extremely active.

NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN. - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 21, 1880.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

WHAT IS THE MATTER?

With this article we expect to close the discussion of this important question, at least for the present, and until some response shall be made to what has been said. We have been looking and hoping for suggestions from other quarters, and our desire has been that the subject might be as fully and as widely ventilated as possible. This is still our desire.

In continuing the enumeration of causes for the relatively inferior growth and prosperity of our Church we notice next the readiness of Presbyterians for and along with this a readiness to make the controversy a matter of chief importance, in the presence of which plans and work for the growth of the Church are neglected. It is not a little remarkable that we, who are so pacific and patient towards others, should be so warlike among ourselves. But it is so. Let any one who doubts the statement cast his eye over the history of our Church for the last three-quarters of a century. During that time we have passed through three great controversies, each of which has left an enduring impression upon our history. Early in the present century the Presbyterian Church began to grow with unexampled rapidity in what was then the West. This was especially true in Tennessee and Kentucky. A blaze of revival seemed spreading over all that region and to be going East and South and North. Churches were multiplied faster than ministers could be educated to take charge of them. Then, under the exigency of the times, untrained men were called and ordained. And then came the preaching of doctrines alleged to be inconsistent with our system, and then charges of heresy and the controversy came, in the progress of which the Cumberland Presbyterian Church went off. It has long been the habit among us to refer to this movement and the evils attending it as illustrating the dangers attending certain features which are often prominent in revival movements.

CONTROVERSY AMONG THEMSELVES,

To our mind it is an illustration of the evils of bitter religious debate. For as the controversy grew the revival died away, and the spirit of scoffing and infidelity took its place. Still, though the enemies from without were assailing the Church, the strife went on within, and ministers and people were engaged as hotly, and the Church was rent by a strife as dangerous and unseemly as that of the Jews when the Romans were besieging Jerusalem. During this period of bitterness plans of church work were laid aside and an intense and absorbing interest in the matters at issue took possession of the mind of the Church. It is a reasonable conclusion that prayer for the presence and influence of the Holy Ghost was less frequent and earnest. What wonder that the growth of the Church was arrested!

We have long held the opinion that wise and patient dealing might have averted that controversy, and at the same time prevented the spread of the objectionable tenets held and taught by some of those who went out from us.

Then came a period of refitting after the storm and prosperity began again. But the New School controversy broke out and another secession came on, and before the tumult of that conflict had fairly died away the slavery agitation was threatening the peace of the Church. The war came and ended, and the controversy between Northern and Southern Presbyterians became the absorbing question of the time, and continued to vex us for years.

A review of our history—even as brief and imperfect as this—shows that a large part of the time and energy of Presbyterians have been spent in internal strife. The strength and time thus expended would surely have given large and happy results if they could have been devoted to the more congenial work of winning souls for the Master. If the wisdom and piety of our leading men, and of the whole Church, had been directed to the questions of practical importance which are now confronting us; if the questions with which they dealt had been those which we are now obliged to meet—who can doubt that they would, with greater ease, have met and provided for these pressing and clamorous problems that are besetting us now. If the Alexanders and Breckinridges and Rices, if Baxter and Hodge and Thornwell had been out of the din of conflict and had given the time to practical questions of policy and work which they gave to the controversies of their day, we must believe that the result would have been most happy. It may be that when these conflicts came they were wholly unavoidable, though we take leave to doubt it; but whether they were or not, they were not, in either case, the less unfortunate. But if from them the Church of this generation shall learn well the lesson of wisdom, patience and prudent forbearance it may be worth all we have lost.

But some man will say that all this is aside from the true presentation of the case; that if we were consecrated to our work as we ought to be we should find the Lord ready to scatter pentecostal blessings all through the years of our history. That is doubtless true. Though we must bear in mind that our God sends His gifts at His own good pleasure. Still it is, in general terms, true that He makes the work of a consecrated Church to be prosperous and successful in the salvation of sinners. And it is also true that in all the Churches and in all ages the great defect in the members and in the ministry has been this to the service of God. If that were present with us then all methods would be made efficient. The fire of divine love would put energy and efficiency into the dullest and most inactive, and life, labor, sacrifice, all that any of us saw to be needed, would be given, and that with joy to the work. The Church would grow, both in numbers and in grace. But even then defective measures would trammel the workers and hinder the work. If, on the other hand, the hindrances were put away, and if, in addition, the Spirit of Grace should meet and answer our prayer for His coming, then, with added zeal, with freedom and energy in all her movements, our noble and scriptural Church would move at once to the front, ahead of the foremost in the home field as she now is in the foreign field. May the Lord hasten the day!

LACK OF FULL CONSECRATION

May we now say a word on this point to our ministerial brethren:

We do not know of any great forward movement of the Church in any age that was not begun and carried on by the instrumentality of the ministry. It belongs to you to lead in this work. And we never knew a Church to be largely revived while its ministry remained cold and careless. Let the removal of hindrances, let the deeper consecration begin with you, and the Master will doubtless show you the way into the larger and more fruitful life, for which we are looking and longing.

We have now finished the task we set for ourselves. It has been so imperfectly done that it disdains apology. It would have been earlier done but for many imperious interruptions. We ask our brethren not to let the subject drop. Keep it before our Church. It is the vital question of the day.

SUNDAY RAILWAY TRAINS.

We copy from the Southern Presbyterian the history of the work to get the Sabbath law relating to railroads passed through the South Carolina Legislature. The law, which is very like the North Carolina law on the same subject, we published last week:

"At the late meeting of the Synod of South Carolina, the Presbytery of Enoree overtured the Synod "to petition the Legislature of this State to pass an act prohibiting the running of freight trains on the Sabbath day."

The Synod in reply passed the following:

Resolved, That in response to the overture of Enoree Presbytery, praying the Synod to petition the State Legislature to pass an act prohibiting the running of freight trains on the Sabbath day, a committee be appointed to confer with other religious bodies in the State as to the desirableness of this action."

"Rev. J. B. Mack, D. D., Rev. J. L. Girardeau, D. D., and Elder W. A. Clark were appointed this committee."

Soon after the adjournment of Synod, Hon. Jerome P. Chase, a representative from Darlington county, introduced into the House of Representatives a bill to prevent the running of any trains on the Sabbath, except one train to carry the United States mail and express matter.

This was reported on unfavorably by the Committee on Railroads, but Mr. Chase insisted that the bill should be placed on the Calendar. When it came up for the second reading there was opposition to it mainly for the reason that the Air Line Railway had two daily trains carrying the mail and express matter. But the motion to kill the bill by striking out the enacting clause was voted down by 66 to 29.

When it came up for the third reading, a motion was made to re-commit the bill to the Committee on Railroads, but this was voted down by such a large majority that it was not deemed necessary to call the yeas and nays. The bill then passed its third reading in the House and was sent to the Senate.

The Committee on Railroads in the Senate reported unfavorably on the bill; but the Hon. I Donnom Witherspoon, the Senator from York county, earnestly urged its adoption. He presented a memorial asking for the passage of such a law, signed by the ministers of the Methodist, the Episcopal, and the Lutheran churches of Columbia, and also by a majority of the Executive Committee of the State Convention of the Baptist churches, and the above committee of the Synod of South Carolina.

The motion to kill the bill by striking out the enacting clause was also in the Senate voted down by a majority of more than two to one. The bill was then amended by its friends so as to be more full and definite; and then passed its second and third readings in the Senate; after which it was sent back to the House.

The House promptly concurred in the amendment; it was ratified in due form by both Houses; it was signed by the Governor, and thus became the law of the State."

WHY?

Why does not Jesus appear in the gospel history from the time He was twelve years old until He was thirty? (Luke iii: 23.) No mention was made of Him at all. Why did He not enter upon His work at twenty-one? Why was He not baptized until He was thirty? Must not the age of thirty have had something to do with it? But where is there any restriction in the Bible about thirty years? Is there any? One only. A priest could not enter upon his office until he was thirty. Is it not plain then that Christ's baptism was His installation into His priestly office? And if that be the meaning of it, has it anything whatever to do with our baptism under a dispensation that had not then even been set up? And was a priest ever immersed?

DELIVERANCE ON DANCING.

One of our younger churches—a church growing in strength and influence, and located in a town where dancing is a very popular amusement—recently made the following deliverance:

The session of this church, desiring to prevent all occasion for stumbling from any uncertainty as to its views and position on the subject of indulgence by professed Christians in certain worldly amusements, including that of public dances, and having in view the repeated and solemn testimony of the highest court of the Church to the sinfulness and injury to the church of such indulgence by its communicants, and the injunctions on the sessions to be watchful in the premises, and sincerely anxious, in the exercise of its authority to deal with such cases, to do so in tenderness and charity, after full opportunity by all concerned, to come to a knowledge of the truth, and with an eye single to the glory of God in the promotion of the honor, purity and well being of the Church of Christ purchased with his own blood, unanimously resolve:

1. That we regard it as sinful in the view of God's Word, contrary to our standards and harmful to the church, for its communicants to engage in public balls and dances.

"2d. That the pastor be requested to read this action to the congregation, and after due notice to preach a sermon on the subject for the instruction and affectionate and earnest warning of all concerned."

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

We very heartily again welcome the Orphan's Friend of Oxford to our exchange list. It is our clear conviction that the publication of the paper is essential to the prosperity of the Orphan Asylum, and no one better qualified for its management than Mr. J. H. Mills can be found in North Carolina or elsewhere.

The following, clipped from an exchange, will be pleasant reading to the numerous friends of General Hill in our State:

"Gen. D. H. Hill writes that the Arkansas Industrial University, of which he is president, has now 420 students, and will probably have 500 before the close of the session."

The Herald and Presbyter advises how to dispose of "ecclesiastical grumblers," which are to be found in almost any church:

"Tell such grumblers the fable of 'Bell-Clapper.' The bell in which it was hung was cracked, and the clapper was always complaining of its said fate in being hung in such a bell. A good many unsophisticated people pitied the clapper, and condoled with its sad lot. At length the spirit of Diogenes, the old cynic, who could not endure shams of any kind, came along. He heard of the clapper's complaint, and said: 'Before you make any more fuss about the bell remember two things: First, you cracked it; and, second, nobody would know that it was cracked if you did not tell them.' The moral is obvious, but those who need to ponder it will be the last to see it."

From the Herald and Presbyter:

"The Evangelist has some remarks on journalism which will bear reprinting. They are a reply to certain politely couched insinuations of editorial timidity. Many persons fail to distinguish between wise prudence and cowardice. They demand that an editor shall at once express decided convictions on every possible subject and that these convictions shall be on their side. They delight in slashing articles, and crave witty sentences spiced with slang. This craving the Evangelist declines to satisfy, with a nearer approach than it often makes to the thing condemned. It says:

"'This "slang-whanging" style is the easiest thing in journalism. It costs but small ability, and no judgment at all, to "pitch in" on all occasions, and "thrash around," dealing blows right and left. But the hardest thing in journalism, or in life, is to be simply just—to speak truth and to do no man wrong. An editor of a religious paper who is always "pitching in" is a bull in a china-shop; he is a pest and a nuisance; he is a meddler and a busy-body in other men's matters, and a mischief-maker in the Church of God.'"

Bismarck has been remarkably quiet of late, and when the Count is not moving around lively there is apt to be some mischief brewing. The Christian Union thinks it has found the trail:

"We begin to get a little light on the recent mysterious movements in Europe. It looks as though Bismarck, having succeeded in solidifying the German provinces and kingdoms into one empire, and having annexed Schleswig-Holstein despite the resistance of Austria, and the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine despite France, is now preparing to annex the Baltic provinces of Russia, which are largely German in population. This would account for the otherwise singular and hitherto unexplained coldness and almost open rupture between Germany and Russia. The public notification to France that Germany wants no alliance between her and Russia, the almost ostentatious expression of satisfaction of Bismarck in the avowed foreign policy of the new French cabinet, which does not look toward any close relation with the most despotic government of Europe, the apparent willingness to pick a quarrel with Russia—which can ill afford just now to quarrel with any one—illustrated by her recent demand that Russia explain her concentration of troops in Poland, all look as though the next European war would be between Germany and Russia, and as though it were possibly not far off. It is very certain that the wisest observers of European politics are in constant expectation of a European war, and one of not insignificant dimensions."

George H. Stuart has lost his fortune. He deserves sympathy and we are glad to copy the following: First the Christian at Work:

"Very general regret will be felt at the news that the philanthropist and friend of all good things, Mr. George H. Stuart, of Philadelphia, has lost his entire fortune by endorsing. Indeed, so complete is the sweep that Mr. Stuart has given up all his property, and now lives in a house which he rents. Mr. Stuart has made such noble use of his means while he had it, that we trust he may yet live to acquire another competency. The sympathy for Mr. Stuart will be general, extending far outside of his immediate acquaintance."

And the Christian Union:

"The financial disasters which have overtaken Mr. George H. Stuart, of Philadelphia, are good cause for public sorrow. He was one of those rare men who used large means as a trust for the benefit of their fellows. His fortune was a public fund to which suffering and want found ready access; he being only the laborious steward whose duty it was to watch for opportunities to spend what the Lord had given him in the Lord's work. His private charities have been so numerous that for very number his right hand has probably forgotten the gifts of the left, but they are held in grateful remembrance by the multitude to whom they gave new chances of life. Mr. Stuart's work as the head of the United States Christian Commission was invaluable. His tireless activity laid the whole country under contribution for the comfort and happiness of the camps in the South. In money alone over $6,000,000 was disbursed. To such services, and to a character which has been more than equal to the demands of these great opportunities, the country owes a debt which can only be partially discharged by the most sincere sympathy with the troubles which have come upon Mr. Stuart, and which have been caused by his own kindness of heart in endeavoring to assist his friends."

The Christian at Work thus administers to Prof. Proctor:

"Mr. R. A. Proctor contributes to the Herald an interesting paper on "The Star in the East" although he tells us nothing new. From the array of dates given us as to the historic conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn—he uses Eckne's computations—it is clear there was such a conjunction in the year which under the received chronology would be designated as B.C. 7—two years before the birth of Christ. Astronomically the conjunction theory of the star falls to the ground; and there are other reasons equally fatal to the theory. The Star—not a proximate conjunction of two stars a full degree apart—was a miraculous creation; there can be no doubt of that. It "went before" and "stood over the house where the young child was,"—it is not after the fashion of planets to stand over people's houses: and more could be said on this point, but it is not necessary. But Professor Proctor touches a matter outside of the domain of astronomy: he must have his little say touching the slaughter of the innocents, and this is it:

"The prophecy of Micah had, it would seem, to be fulfilled, and it was so. That its fulfilment should have caused the slaughter of the innocents, when (as we might imagine) the same result might have been brought about without that unsatisfactory episode, is a point which the theologian and not the student of science is entitled to explain.'

"No doubt Mr. Proctor would manage things for the better. He would have given us a world without floods to destroy life, the Chicago fire would never have broken out, and on a late Summer the potato bugs would not have had a grand walk over the potato vines while the farmers were asleep. Of course he would have fulfilled that prophecy—if we may be allowed the term—in such a way as to prevent the destruction of the innocents; but how, with a cruel, bloodthirsty monster on the throne, he would give that tyrant volition and liberty, while yet preventing him from exercising his passions in the harming of any one—Mr. Proctor does not inform us, and we do not know. The mistake which Mr. Proctor and those thinking with him make, is in assuming that God is the Creator of Evil,—which He is not.—Volition and liberty, if Mr. Proctor pleases, go together; you can't have one without the other. Evil came into the world, not sent of God, but introduced by man when he voluntarily, and in the exercise of his freedom, disobeyed God's command. God—and we say it reverently—no more caused the slaughter of the innocents in the fulfilment of the prophecy in Micah, than He is to be charged with the burning of Chicago, because, aons before, He created the inflammable gases by which the conflagration was possible."

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

The Piedmont Press says: The children of the Presbyterian Sunday School of Lenoir (N. C.,) presented their pastor, Rev. B. L. Beall, with a handsome set of chairs, also a set of glassware, as a Christmas present.

We are glad to note that arrangements have been made by which the Presbyterian pulpit in this place will be filled once every month. Rev. Mr. Watson, of Lexington, has consented to meet this sadly-felt need of the church.—Ashboro, (N. C.) Courier.

WINSTON.

Rev. F. H. Johnston writes:

"At our communion in December we received one addition on profession of faith by baptism and several by letter. Bro. McKinnon of Concord, preached several times for us, adding much to the interest of the occasion by his clear and impressive presentation of the gospel.

Christmas passed with the customary festive observance. One feature connected with its enjoyment was a large Christmas tree, beautifully decorated and hanging full of oranges and sweetmeats for the children of the Sabbath School. It was a very pleasant gathering of children, parents and teachers."

In our last we mentioned the acceptance by Rev. James L. Currie of the call to Chapel Hill church, which was placed in his hands by Orange Presbytery. At the same meeting Mr. Currie's relation as pastor to Fairfield church was dissolved, and the installation at Chapel Hill arranged to take place on the fifth Sabbath in February. Rev. J. H. Fitzgerald will preside and preach the sermon, and Rev. J. S. Watkins will deliver the charge to both pastor and people. Mr. Currie will reside at Chapel Hill, and give half of his time to work in this important field.

The Board of Deacons of the First Presbyterian church of Wilmington, have prepared and published, through the treasurer, Mr. James Sprunt, an official exhibit of receipts and expenditures during the year 1879. The total amount received and expended is $20,794.66. This includes a special collection of $14,652, by which the debt which had been hanging over the church for years was fully paid, and $793 required for erecting a new lightning rod and repairing the church spire. The contributions of the church to benevolent causes general and local are included in part only. The exceptions being large amounts forwarded directly to our Assembly Treasurer by one or more individuals, and the contributions of the Ladies' Missionary Society of the church which did not pass through the hands of the treasurer. The church is now free of debt.

NEWBERN, N. C., Jan. 12, '80.

Mr. Editor: DEAR BRO:—We feel very much indebted to you for the publication of the editorial in your paper November 26th, 1879. We reduced the editorial to circular form, and sent one to each of our churches in the Synod of North Carolina, and we do hope that the brethren will not lay them aside, but will at least, send us the modest sum of one dollar, if no more. We feel very much encouraged in the enterprise. We are poor, it is true, but we are helping ourselves according to our ability. I am pleased to say that we made a payment on our lot to-day of $35, which amount was raised among ourselves. Our great drawback has been the lack of a plain and suitable house of worship; but we do hope and trust now, by the help of the Lord, and the assistance of the good brethren, to be able to begin the erection of a plain church building soon, and then there will be no cause to doubt that Presbyterianism will be found penetrating to the hearts of our people even in this part of the Lord's vineyard. A. A. SCOTT.

ANOTHER STORM.

On evening of 13th, the Winston parsonage was stormed by the congregation, and for the space of two hours held in absolute possession. At least 100 persons affected an entrance making themselves completely at home, and their surprised captives feel, if that were possible, more at home than ever. Every one brought a valuable contribution to the store room, the pantry, and the wardrobe, the more valuable because it was a spontaneous offering of warm and appreciative hearts and willing hands. The inmates of the manse had not been forgotten during the Christmas or New Year holidays, at which time, not a few tokens of thoughtful kindness were sent in with the compliments of the season; and therefore the demonstration, en masse, last Tuesday night was as unanticipated, as it was overwhelming.

The undoubted effect of all such demonstrations of considerate kindness is a wholesome one both upon pastor and people, provided they are not intended to supplement the lack of duty in payment of a stipulated salary, &c. It has been the good fortune of the writer never to have served a church that came short at any time in its pecuniary obligations to himself. He is gratified to see that his former charge at Lexington where he began his ministry twenty years ago, still preserves its fidelity in this matter. A church that is faithful in this respect will never lack for the ministry of the word. The writer's present charge owes its steady enlargement and growing influence and prosperity largely to its promptness in discharging the conditions of the call to the pastor. Where this is the case, the free-will offerings, and the poundings, and this demonstration of a people's interest in, and affections for their spiritual teachers, exhale an aroma sweeter than any flower, and all the spices of "Araby the blest." They cheer the pastor in his work, and the people have a rich experience of the truth of our Lord's saying, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Yours fraternally,

F. H. JOHNSTON.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

INFORMATION WANTED.

The first nine volumes of "Records of the Presbytery of Mississippi" are missing. These volumes are invaluable, as containing the only records of the proceedings of the Presbytery prior to 1848. It is hoped that they are still in existence, as so large a series of volumes could hardly all have been lost by mere neglect or carelessness.

There is a rumor that a former stated clerk loaned them to a clergyman, Rev. Mr. Moore, or More, now residing in Pennsylvania, to aid him in some biographical or historical researches.

The Presbytery will be thankful for information which may aid in the recovery of the volumes.

Presbyterian papers will confer a great favor by giving this notice an insertion.

J. WOODBRIDGE,
S. C. Presbytery Mississippi.

Wesson, Miss., Jan. 10, 1880.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE CAUSE OF EDUCATION.

To the Churches which have not contributed to the Cause of Education this year:

BRETHREN: We have over ninety students enrolled, about forty in the seminaries and the rest in colleges. To give those in the seminaries $125 each will require about $5,000 and about the same amount for those in colleges, $10,000 in all. Up to this date (Jan. 1) we have received about $5,000 and have remitted to students $3,320. The next remittance will exhaust our treasury. But we want it filled up again and kept so from month to month.

These, brethren, are the facts. God has blessed our country with returning prosperity. He has blessed our Church with a larger number of candidates (under our care) than last year. They are trusting to your promises and liberality. They are in great need of help, and we are anxious to send it to them. But there are a great many churches which have sent us nothing. This cause lies at the foundation of all causes. If the supply of ministers fails every other cause must fail. Brethren, we ask you for a prompt and liberal contribution.

Will the brethren of the ministry see to it that their churches have an opportunity speedily to respond to this appeal?

E. M. RICHARDSON, Sec. Ed.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The South Atlantic. The December number of this magazine is out. The contents are: Carmelita, by W. H. Babcock; Who was Robin Adair; Athens to Trieste, by W. C. Johnstone; Trial of Titus Oates, by John W. Snyder; Unreturning, by J. L. Gordon; Notes of Southern Literature; Thiers, by Th. Von Jasmund; His Only Love, by A. L. Bassett; A Legend of the Roanoke, by P. Copeland; Editorial; The American Cyclopædia; Recent Literature. Price $3. Single copy 30 cents. Mrs. Cicero W. Harris, Wilmington, N. C.

The London Quarterly Review for the last quarter reached us very late, but it is the best of the year. Contents: Pascal and his Editors; College of Physicians; Albert Durer; The Founder of Norwich Cathedral; Joseph De Maistre on Russia; Froude's Cæsar; The Weather and its Prediction; Henry IV. of France; The Submission of the Clergy; Principles at Stake.

The British Quarterly has Adolph Monod: a Biographical Sketch; Irenæus—his Testimony to Early Conceptions of Christianity; Dr. Johnson; The Vatican and Civilization; What is Religion; Political Prospects of Italy; University Education in Ireland; Contemporary Literature.

The North American has vanished from our table. We had it and it is gone. We have searched for it therefore in vain. It is a number of fully average ability, and we hope the borrower will bring it back soon.

The London Quarterly and the British Quarterly are both re-prints from the Leonard Scott Publishing Company, and the North American Review is issued by D. Appleton & Co.

Good Company, No. 5, is at hand. The articles are all original. Good Company will have no other. The writers in this number are: Elaine Goodale, Edward Eggleston, E. S. Gilbert, Emily T. Wheeler, Rose Terry Cooke, Sidney Lanier and many others. Springfield, Mass. $3 a year.

The Princeton Review for January, 1880, presents the following attractive articles: Historic Forces; The Inspiration of the New Testament; Fulfilment of the Berlin Treaty; Recent Progress in Solar Astronomy; Rationalism in the Free Church of Scotland; Spelling Reform; The Old Roman Spirit and Religion in Latin Christianity. $2 a year. 37 Park Row, New York.

St. Nicholas for January. This prince of magazines is again before us. We have room only to note a few of its contents: The Proud Little Grain of Wheat; Japanese Top; Spring; The Dolls' Baby Show; Jack and Gill; and a host of other fine ones. $3 a year. Scribner & Co., New York.

From Messrs. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, we have Thoughts that Breathe. From Dean Stanley. Price $1.

Dean Stanley is recognized everywhere as one of the wisest and most helpful of Christian teachers. His writings are full of the vivid interest belonging to religious themes treated in a pointed, clear, practical and comprehensive manner, and accompanied by copious illustrations. This is the first volume of the Spare Minute Series. Under this general title the Messrs. Lothrop have in preparation for American young men a very valuable and helpful class of books. The significance of the name of the new series is seen from the fact that the present volume, for instance, has three hundred pages, and contains two hundred and seventy-three separately numbered and independent extracts.

Messrs. D. Lothrop & Co., also send us the Little Folks' Reader. A nice little publication for little folks. Price 75 cents per year.

Scribner's Monthly for January at hand. We give a few of the contents: The U. S. Life-Saving Service; Success with Small Fruits; Young Artists in New York; The Acadians of Louisiana; The Spider's Lesson; Thirza; Hymn to the Sea; House and Society. Scribner & Co., New York.

We verily thought that we had seen the perfection of floral catalogues in our notice of last week, but here we have the Seed Annual of D. M. Ferry & Co. of Detroit, Mich., which just heads all. We copy this because it expresses our mind:

"If you want to buy 'good seeds'—and who wants bad?—get them from D. M. Ferry & Co., the great seedsmen of Detroit, Michigan. We are not seed growers, but we are printers, and if their seed is as good as their Annual Catalogue for 1880, just issued free to all who apply for it, then you will get the very best from them, for a better publication and a cheaper was never issued by any house in the country. We can recommend their Catalogue and we know that will recommend their seed."

A History of Bristol Parish, Va., with Genealogies of Families connected therewith and Historical Illustrations. By Rev. Philip Slaughter, D. D. Second edition. 1879. J. W. Randolph & English, Richmond, Va.

Important Discoveries, among which are The Long Lost Old and New Testaments and Their Principia. By John C. Addington of Norfolk, Va. $1. 1879. From Randolph & English, Richmond, Va. This is the most absurd, illogical, presumptuous and impudent book we ever read. Its author seems to belong to that class of men with some natural talents, and an "indigesta moles" of reading, not learning, controlled by marvellous idiosyncracies, which distort every subject they handle. He accepts the Bible, but says a man in becoming a Christian ceases to have common sense, and the Bible has been so mistranslated, wrongly divided into Old and New Testaments, and so perverted by these "diabboloi," that he comes to restore it to its integrity.

A THEATRE-GOING MINISTER.

Rev. W. Haslam, an earnest evangelical pastor of London, relates the following solemn incident:

A young man in England was brought under deep conviction of sin after hearing an awakening Gospel sermon. When he reached home his parents saw that he was not happy, and, instead of taking him by the hand and praying with him, and showing him the blessedness of the state of conviction—that it was the next best thing to conversion—they left him alone; and the young man, unhappily, tried to amuse himself, and to shake off thus his convictions.

Soon after this there came an invitation from some worldly friends to visit them in London. The young man was pleased at this opportunity of escaping from the reflections he disliked, and, his parents consenting, he determined to go to the modern Babylon. Here he was rather too much freed from religion and religious services. He heard of nothing, from morning till night, but the world and its pleasures.

One day it was proposed to go to a theatre. The young man trembled at this, for he had never been to one, and he knew his father would not like to have him go; so he declined. His so-called friends laughed at him, and teased him about being such a saint. So he said he would go part of the way with them. When near the building they got into a crowd of people who were all pressing forward toward it, and it was difficult to retire. So he said he would just enter and see the inside of a theatre, and come away when the crowd had done pressing in.

He sat down and looked about, but did not feel happy. His companions tried to divert his mind and make him laugh, but he felt more like crying; till at last he rose, and determined to go out at once. He did so; and as he was walking out he recognized, with surprise, a person in one of the boxes of the theatre. The young man could hardly believe his own eyes. It was the very minister who had preached the awakening sermon in the country! So the young man thought, "If such a good man as that sees no harm in a theatre, why should I?" And so his fears and anxieties all fled from him that moment, and he sat down to give his attention to the performance, and thought he liked it very much indeed, and he would just like to go again very soon.

When he returned from London to his own home, his parents saw a great change in their son. He thought the country was a very slow place—there was no place like London. Whatever religious impressions and thoughts he may have had before were all gone now, and he was all for the world and its amusements and pleasures, particularly in London.

Soon after this he was taken ill, and grew worse and worse, and it became evident that he could not recover. On being told this he became alarmed. He had no peace of soul, and his conscience condemned him.

Poor young man! he had no rest in his bed, and nothing but an awful foreboding before him. His parents sent for the awakening preacher to come and visit him, and sent again, because their son was very ill. He came, and entered the room, little suspecting what kind of a reception awaited him. As soon as the young man saw him he screamed out, "Take him away! take him away! he has murdered my soul!" The poor lad shuddered and trembled to have that man in the room, and they were obliged to ask him to retire, and the minister himself felt ashamed and did not return.

The dying man pointed at the preacher and said, "I went to a theatre in London, and I was afraid, and was going out, till I saw you there; and then my fears went away, and now I am lost! I am lost! God has given me up! Go away; go away; you cannot do me good any more!". It remains to say the young man died without hope, without pardon, without peace. Seeing the preacher in the theatre was the stumbling-stone over which the poor boy fell, never, it appears, to rise again.—Watchword.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.

To the Editors of the Christian at Work:

A few weeks ago the "Church of the Holy Cross," a new Roman Catholic church edifice, was dedicated in our thriving city with the processions and ceremonies. Such, of course, attracted a great crowd of worshippers and spectators. Archbishop Gibbons, of Baltimore, who is endorsed by the newspapers as a "learned and eloquent divine," preached the opening sermon, and in the midst of it announced that "in support of the doctrines taught by the teachers in his church, 235,000,000 of people were steadfast in the faith, believing in one faith, one God and one baptism." This assertion, which I read in the Lynchburg Daily News, startled me and led me to turn to the latest denominational statistics that I could find, and in them it is stated that the numerical strength of the so-called Holy Catholic Church is estimated at 170,000,000. These statistics were published in 1875. [1] Have the Romanists increased fifty-five millions in the last three or four years? [2] Does the Bishop include in his 225,000,000 who are "steadfast in the faith" all the babies and all the miscellaneous people who occasionally visit the Roman Catholic places of worship? [3] Or does he include in the term Holy Catholic the members of the orthodox Greek Church, which protests against the absurd claim of the Pope of Rome to be obeyed as rightful head of the whole Christian Church? Will any one, editor, bishop, priest or layman tell us how that 225,000,000 of Catholics "steadfast in the faith" is made up? INQUIRER.

LYNCHBURG, VA., Sept. 29, 1879.

[1] The Roman Catholics number about 175,000,000, as nearly as can be ascertained—more than one-half the Christian population of the globe, although far behind the Protestant nations in intelligence, enterprise and energy. [2] The Roman Catholic Church holds that all baptized children are members of the Church and that Christ's spiritual headship extends to them by His covenant. The statistics therefore include all ages. [3] The statistics do not include the orthodox Greek Church, which numbers eighty millions; and is behind both the Protestants and Roman Catholics in intelligence, activity and influence upon history. Our Roman Catholic friends are somewhat given to exaggerating their numbers: in this instance if Archbishop Gibbons is not indebted to his own, he is clearly indebted to some one's else imagination for his facts.—EDITORS CHRISTIAN AT WORK.]

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

From the Christian Observer: Louisville Presbytery has dismissed Rev. Dr. J. D. Matthews to the Presbytery of Northern Texas, and Rev. H. W. Woods to the Ozark Presbytery.

Rev. W. M. Stratton requests his friends to address him at Potosi, Mo.

At the communion of Second Presbyterian church, Louisville, Ky., on 11th inst., six or eight persons were announced as having been admitted to membership.

The pastor of Portland Avenue Presbyterian church, Louisville, Ky., Rev. J. H. Morrison writes to the Christian Observer that at the first communion season of this new year, he was assisted by Rev. C. W. Robinson, of Glasgow, Ky., Rev. Messrs. J. J. Cook, E. L. Warren, and the venerable Rev. Hiram A. Hunter, of this city. Though in the eightieth year of his age, this servant of God preached with the fervor and vigor of a man of twenty-five. There were five additions to the church; three parents, two young ladies. A very full attendance of communicants was the marked feature. God grant the "spirit of prayer and of supplications" to all his children.

The Presbytery of Muhlenberg, in consideration of the vigorous protest of his congregation, have declined to dissolve the pastoral relations between Rev. J. L. Caldwell and the church at Bowling Green, Ky. Mr. Caldwell had received a call to the Second Church of Newport.

From the South-Western Presbyterian we learn that at a pro-re-nata meeting of Louisiana Presbytery, held on 1st inst., the Presbytery, under protest, concurred in the decision of the Synod of Mississippi, which sustained the appeal of Rev. S. P. Linn against the action of the Presbytery in suspending him from the gospel Ministry. To this concurrence one minister and two ruling elders recorded their dissent.

From the Texas Presbyterian: A congregational meeting was held in Waxahachie Presbyterian church on the 28th ult., and the following action was taken. Rev. W. S. Johnson was called to the chair.

It was determined to make up, at once, the deficiency due Rev. S. M. Luckett of salary for 1879 for his services as Stated Supply for one-fourth of his time

It was determined to invite Rev. S. M. Luckett to devote his whole time, hereafter, to the Waxahachie church, and a committee was appointed to see what could be raised for his support, and also to correspond with Mr. Luckett and be ready to report to the congregation on the second Sabbath in January.

The opinion was confidently expressed that Mr. Luckett could be supported and a flourishing church built up.

NORTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

The Clinton Street Presbyterian church, of Brooklyn, which Rev. Dr. H. J. Van Dyke is pastor, has paid off a debt of $85,000.

During the year 1879 there were organized in the State of Nebraska twenty new Presbyterian churches, with an aggregate membership of three hundred and forty, or an average of seventeen members to each church.—Presbyterian.

METHODIST.

The St. George's Methodist church of Philadelphia, recently celebrated its one hundred and tenth anniversary. It has had during its existence one hundred and twenty-eight pastors, and its total membership has been over 15,000 persons.

A lady of New York has lately given $50,000 to the Clark University, near Atlanta. The University is owned by the Northern Methodist Church.

BAPTIST.

Provided other friends of the University will add an additional $100,000 to its permanent monied endowment, John H. Drane will give $50,000 to the University of Rochester, to be a perpetual fund, the income of which shall be applied from year to year to the higher education of such sons of Baptist ministers as prove to have the necessary good character and scholarship. Mr. John B. Trevor, the banker has subscribed $25,000 toward the $100,000.—Presbyterian.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The Atlanta University, owned by the Congregationalists North, and now supported by the State, has just received a donation of $60,000 from Massachusetts.—Presbyterian.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

The officers of Christ church, Alexandria, Va., are endeavoring to sell the Bible used by General Washington. They want to pay a church debt.

GENERAL.

Some time ago Mr. William Niblo, proprietor of Niblo's Garden, died and bequeathed the residue of his estate, after paying a number of legacies, for a library for the Young Men's Christian Association in New York. This residue is now found to be about $150,000, and the surprise is so great that the Association is not agreed as to how the sum may be best expended.—Presbyterian.

Mr. A. O. Van Lennep will give a course of four exhibitions of Oriental Life, illustrative of Bible Manners and Customs in the Bethlehem Presbyterian church, Broad and Diamond streets, Philadelphia, on the evenings of Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, January 19–22 next. Mr. Van Lennep is a native Turk, having been born in Smyrna, Asia Minor, and therefore competent to speak upon oriental and scriptural customs. These lectures, given by Mr. Van Lennep in the full costume of the East, will be specially helpful to Bible students.—Ibid.

ECLECTICISMS.

DIFFICULTY.

Christian at Work:

Difficulty, to a true minister of God, means something to be surmounted by God's help, and he will account it unreasonable to expect a place where there are no discouragements.

YOU MUST THINK.

Central Presbyterian:

Again, you must think; you must take time to think. You must live and keep near to God throughout the day. Your mind must ever be as it were in contact with God. Is this too grave a business for you? Then you have no desire to be holy; you do not wish to be conformed to the image of Christ; and you are in fact in a very doubtful position.

WHAT IS RELIGION?

The Covenant:

What is religion? A creed? No! A dogma? No! Church membership? No! Sacramental Grace? No! It is just the tie that binds men to God in Jesus! This alone can control the life; build up character after the mind of Christ, and make the lowliest station radiant with the beauty of holiness.

THE TRUE GLORY.

Zion's Herald:

This is the true glory of the Church, the power to save those for whom Christ died. And loyalty to a church does not consist in continually contending for those peculiarities in which it differs from other churches, for these are non-essentials, but in showing to the world that its labors are attended by the power of the Divine Spirit in renewing and saving the souls of men.

THE PROBLEM.

Presbyterian:

One Congregationalist minister has made a confession to which many other ministers will add an assent. He said that he "felt as helpless to influence a church sociable as he did a political caucus." The young people would dance and get up plays, and would draw the church into the whirl of worldly amusement, and a protest passed them by as the idle wind. The church must needs be in the world—but the world insists on getting within the church, and the problem is how to prevent that deadly infection which is aptly termed—worldliness.

RESTRAINING POWER.

Christian Intelligencer:

There can hardly be found a single man who is under the influence of scepticism who does not know and feel the power of the essential truths of Christianity. The general morality around him is that which has been produced by the Scriptures and Christian example. He is controlled by it to a large degree. The existence and nature of God, the government of God, the retributions of the future, the Cross of Christ, and all the meaning and power Christians claim for it, the work of the Holy Spirit, all these truths are known by him and have their power over him much as he may oppose and even deride them. So scepticism lives under conditions produced and maintained by the Word of God, is restrained, modified and controlled by them, and does not bear fruit after its kind.

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

Three mountain wagons went south with apples last Saturday. They refused to sell for less than two dollars per bushel.—Shelby Aurora.

The Wilmington Star reports the visit of a seal to the government works at the mouth of Cape Fear river. An attempt to capture him failed.

Geese are raised in Texas for their feathers, one goose averaging one and a half pounds, worth fifty cents per pound. One ranch has already 3,000 geese.

German newspapers state that Prince Bismarck has bought 40,000 seedlings of the American maple, which he proposes to plant in his forests in the Sachsenwald.

Mr. Soule of Illinois has, it is claimed, 300,000 dozen frogs of all ages, on an acre and a quarter of land, which he is breeding for the Chicago and Cincinnati market.

Paper-making machinery is in such demand, owing to the marked improvement in the market and prices for paper, that machine makers cannot fill their orders fast enough.

Boxes sent to individual orphans should not contain anything liable to spoil on the way. The freight on them should be paid by those who send them.—Oxford Orphan's Friend.

The two houses of the Maine Legislature elected Joseph L. Smith Governor. The Supreme Court sustains the Republicans and indications point to their being admitted and having largely the control of the Legislature.

Mr. S. G. Worth passed down the road on the 14th inst with 15,000 young salmons for South Carolina waters. Mr. Huske went down the day before with 20,000, which were put in the Yadkin river.—Piedmont Press.

On Thursday a young man named Harrington, teaching school a few miles from Monroe, while playing with some of his students, suddenly fell down dead. He is supposed to have been attacked with heart disease.—Wilmington Star.

The Committee on Military Affairs of the U. S. House of Representatives recommend the restoration of General Fitz John Porter to the service with the rank of colonel, and award him $75,000 in lieu of all back pay to which he might have been entitled.

There are not sufficient safeguards to prevent passengers from falling from the station platforms on the elevated railways in New York city upon the pavements below. During the year 1879 no fewer than fourteen persons were killed in this way.

A colony of Swedes located in Orange co., Fla., has been successful, and many of them have accumulated considerable property. The gentleman who started that colony is seeking to introduce Italians into Florida for the purpose of growing olives, figs and grapes.

Mr. James P. R. Mann of Levick's Mill, Randolph county, Mo., has recently patented a self-dropping corn planter. It has several advantages over other corn planters, such as ungearing one wheel that it may turn around as on a pivot. This planter, operating by an eccentric wheel, causes the corn to be planted with absolute precision, and saves the additional labor and weight of one hand.

The citizens of Wilmington are indebted to Dr. Thomas F. Wood, Secretary to the North Carolina Board of Health, for his indefatigable exertions in pushing forward investigations as to the quality of the drinking water of the city, and to Dr. A. R. Ledoux, chemist of the Board, for analyses of the water. The results, as published in the Wilmington Star prove that much of the water drank is highly prejudicial to health.

A Northern man, living on the line of the Raleigh & Gaston railroad, is engaged in growing asparagus and tomatoes under glass for the Northern markets. Last February he sold asparagus at $1 per bunch, four inches in diameter, and he has recently sold tomatoes at 50 cents per pound. He is now constructing a building 55x112 feet in size, which will require 16,500 panes of glass and 450 feet of flues, having 1,000 feet of heating surface. This building will be filled with asparagus and tomatoes.—Raleigh Observer.

New Biographical Dictionary.

Prominent among the valuable features of the the New Edition of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, just issued, is the "New Biographical Dictionary," comprising about 10,000 names of ancient and modern persons of renown, including many now living. It gives us the pronunciation of these names, the nationality, profession or occupation, date of birth, and if known, the date of death of each person. From its conciseness and accuracy it supplies a want long felt in this direction, and adds very greatly to the value of this always valuable work.

Messrs. Polk Miller & Co:

I have used Vest Pocket Cure in my family for ten years, and have taken it for a Dyspepsia Colic, which threatened my life, and was cured, eating any diet without hurt. I have recommended it to other sufferers with happiest results. It is the best tonic and corrective I ever knew. For protection from Dyspepsia or Liver Disease it is invaluable.—Rev. ROBERT W. WATSON, A. M., Va.

FOR ALLAYING HOARSENESS and Irritation of the Throat it is daily proved that "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are a mild remedy yet very efficacious.

Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer is endorsed by the first medical authority. Its intrinsic merit alone introduces into general use.

Nothing is uglier than a crooked boot or shoe; straighten them with Lyon's Heel Stiffeners.

15 Pounds Gained in Three Weeks, and CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

Messrs. Craddock & Co., 1032 Race street, Philadelphia, Pa.

GENTLEMEN:—Please send me twelve bottles of DR. A. JAMES' CANNABIS INDICA, one each of Pills and Ointment, for a friend of mine who is not expected to live; and as your medicines cured me of CONSUMPTION some three years ago, I want him to try them. I gained fifteen pounds while taking the first three bottles, and I know it is just the thing for him.

Respectfully, J. V. HULL, Lawrenceburg, Anderson Co., Ky.

This remedy speaks for itself. One bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. There is not a single symptom of CONSUMPTION that it does not dissipate at once, and it will break up a fresh cold in 24 hours. $2 50 per bottle. Address CRADDOCK & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and Throat and Lung, Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative power in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. SHERAR, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, New York.

"You Don't Know Their Value."

"They cured me of Ague, Billiousness and Kidney Complaint, as recommended. I had a half bottle left which I used for my two little girls, who the doctors and neighbors said could not be cured. I am confident I should have lost both of them one night if I had not had the Hop Bitters in my house to use. I found they done them so much good I continued with them, and they are now well. That is why I say you do not know half the value of Hop Bitters, and do not recommend them high enough."—B., Rochester, N. Y.

MARRIED.

☞No notice of a marriage or death will be inserted unless accompanied by a responsible name, which is wanted not for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.

On the 14th inst., at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. John W. Rippy, of Company Shops, N. C., Mr. R. S. TROLINGER and Miss EMMA L. RIPPY. Rev. B. W. Mebane officiating.

On the 13th inst., in the South Street Presbyterian church, Morristown, N. J., by Rev. Oliver Crane, assisted by Rev. Albert Erdman, EDWARD C. LYON, Esq., to Miss CARRIE H. CRANE, daughter of officiating minister. All of Morristown.

In Robeson, Blue Spring Township, N. C., by Rev. Hector McLean, ARCHD. A. GRAHAM, of Cumberland county, and Miss S. J. McBRYDE, daughter of John McBryde, deceased.

In Moore county, at the residence of the bride's father, on the 8th inst., by Rev. M. McQueen, Mr. WM. A. WADSWORTH and Miss FLORA CAMERON, daughter of W. P. Cameron, Esq.

In Yanceyville, N. C., on the 23rd of December, 1879, by Rev. H. T. Darnall, Mr. A. E. HENDERSON and Miss ALICE F. JOHNSON.

DIED.

☞Obituary notices must be paid for in advance. The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

Near Yanceyville, N. C., December 20, 1879, Mr. JAMES PARISH, in the 74th year of his age. He had been for fifty years an humble and consistent member of the Presbyterian church, and died in great peace.

October —, 1879, WILLIAM LESTER, son of Wm. and Frances McCall, aged 4 years. His disease was cancer on the eye. The organ was removed without effect. The poor little patient sufferer, after excruciating and protracted pain, was relieved by death. He was a child of the covenant.

Not gone from memory, not gone from love,
But gone to the Father's house above.

At the residence of Mr. Hugh McArn, in Richmond county, on the 29th of November, EDWARD McNAIR, aged about 80 years.

The deceased had for a number of years suffered more or less from cancer on the eye, which, we suppose, was the final cause of his death. His departure was sudden. He retired in about his usual health, and before morning was found dead in his room.

"Be ye therefore ready also; for the Son of Man cometh at an hour when ye think not."

Near Galatia church, Cumberland county, N. C., on October the 15th, 1879, at the residence of his brother, Mr. Archibald Ray, JAMES RAY, in the 84th year of his age.

Mr. Ray was for many years a member of Long Street church, and was highly esteemed by those who knew him. He was a quiet, peaceable and useful citizen and neighbor.

At his residence, near Galatia church, December 16th, 1879, Mr. ARCHIBALD RAY, brother of Mr. James Ray, in the 78th year of his age.

Mr. Ray was for many years an acceptable and useful member of Galatia church, and was well known and highly esteemed by the community. He was a regular attendant on the means of grace, and loved the house of God. His church and the community will greatly miss him, and especially his bereaved family. A. FRIEND.

In Robeson, Smith's Township, N. C., January 5, 1880, in the 25th year of her age, Miss MARY McCALLUM, daughter of James McCallum, a ruling elder in Philadelphus church.

The illness of this amiable and pious young lady was brief, exciting no apprehension of danger till the second day before her death. During an extensive revival in this church, several years ago, when quite young, she made a public profession of her faith in Christ, and well did she exemplify subsequently the power of saving grace in the heart.

WILMINGTON MARKET
DURING WEEK
ENDING JANUARY 20.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—On Wednesday and early on Thursday sales at 41 cents; later Thursday, price fell to 40½ cents, and at these figures has continued steady since. Closing on Thursday very quiet.

ROSIN—The market has been steady and generally firm, at $1 27½ for Strained and $1 30 for Good Strained, closing Tuesday very firm. Sales of Extra No. 1 at $3 75, and Low Pale at $4 25.

CRUDE TURPENTINE has sold as received at $1 60 for Hard and $2 60 for Yellow Dip throughout.

TAR has steadily declined since last report. Wednesday and Thursday $1 35; Friday and until Tuesday $1 25; Tuesday $1 20. Quiet.

COTTON.—Throughout the market has been firm at 12¼ cents for Middling, until Monday, when without change in figures, there was less firmness. On Thursday 40 bales were reported as sold at 12⅜ cents.

CORN—Some 8,000 to 10,000 bushels have been received either by rail or sail on order. One cargo, 2,000 bushels, brought 67½ cents, and at time of closing report a small cargo was on market unsold.

TIMBER has been in very great demand, owing to scarcity. Sales of one raft very Inferior, at $4 00; one do, Common Mill, at $6 50; one each, Fair Mill, at $8 00, $9 00, $9 25 and $9 50.

OUR PAPER.

We do not forget that the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN is read not only by Ministers, who by reason of training and study are specially fond of profound discussions of religious philosophy, but by both sexes, and by all classes and conditions of persons. Consequently it is our aim to present such a variety of moral and religious reading that the paper will commend itself to all as a popular vehicle of such information and instruction as not only ought to be read, but as will be read by young and old, rich and poor, clergy and laity, learned and unlearned. We present no elaborate prospectus. Any who may desire to know more of the paper, are referred to its friends, who may be found in almost any community, or we will gladly send sample copies on application.

OUR PREMIUMS.

We invite special attention to the premiums we are offering with the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN for the ensuing year:

To any subscriber, the paper one year, and Kitto's Cyclopedia ($5 00 edition) for $4 75.

The paper one year and Smith's Bible Dictionary ($4 50 edition) for $4 50.

The paper one year and Cruden's Unabridged Concordance for $4 00.

To any one sending us THREE new subscribers at $2 65 each we give
SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY,
OR
THE LIFE OF ST. PAUL

As a premium for two new subscribers, at $2 65 each, we give
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.

To every New Subscriber at $2 65 we will give a MAP OF PALESTINE, 28x42

We have sent this Map to a large number of persons and feel justified in saying it gives entire satisfaction. The publisher's price is $1 00.

The Cyclopedia and the Bible Dictionary are very cheap—exceedingly cheap. And
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE,
COMPLETE—UNABRIDGED,

Being an index to every important word in the Scriptures and the Apocrypha—with full definitions of the Theological and Scriptural meanings of words, and having the texts indicated with the respective meanings. We say this Concordance—the best probably in the world is a marvel of cheapness. No Christian family—or other family—should be without it.

WE SPECIALLY OFFER
The Paper one year with the
CONCORDANCE,
To any new Subscriber for $3 50.

In all cases we prepay postage.

WHOLESALE PRICES.

☞These quotations represent the wholesale prices.

ARTICLES.	PRICES.
BACON—Western Smoked—
Hams	10 a	12
Sides, per lb	0 a	7½
Shoulders	a	6½
Dry Salted—
Sides, per lb	0 a	7½
Shoulders	0 a	6½
CHEESE—Northern Factory, per lb	0 a	11
Dairy, cream per lb	00 a	14½
State, per lb	00 a	10
COFFEE—Rio, per lb	18 a	18
Laguayra, per lb	18 a	20
CORN MEAL—per bush in sacks	80 a	82½
DOMESTICS—Sheetings, 4-4, per yd	a	7½
Yarn, per bunch	00 a	85½
FLOUR—Fine, per bbl	0 00 a	5 00
Super, Northern, per bbl	5 50 a	6 00
Extra do. " per bbl	6 25 a	6 50
Family " per bbl	7 50 a	9 00
City Mills—Extra Super, per bbl	0 00 a	7 50
" Family, per bbl	0 00 a	8 00
" Extra do., per bbl	0 00 a	8 50
GLUE—per lb	14 a	16
GRAIN—Corn, in sacks, per 56 lbs from store—white	77½a	80
CORN, wholesale, in sacks	72½a	72½
Corn, mixed, wholesale in sacks	70 a	72½
Corn, Cargo, per 56 lbs, bulk	68 a	70
Oats, per bushel from store	60 a	62½
Peas, Cow, per bushel	60 a	65
HOOP IRON—per ton	90 00 a	95 00
LARD—Northern, per lb	9½ a	10
North Carolina, per lb	10 a	11
LIME—per bbl	0 00 a	1 00
MOLASSES—West Indies, old crop	00 a	30
" " bbls	00 a	32½
" " new crop	35 a	37
" " bbls	37 a	39
New Orleans	28 a	50
Sugar House, hhds, per gal	00 a	23
" " bbls., per gal	00 a	24
Syrup, bbls., per gal	40 a	55
NAILS—Cut, 4d to 20d, per keg	00 a	4 00
OILS—Kerosene, per gal	13½a	15
Lard, per gal	1 00 a	1 10
PEANUTS—per bushel	75 a	1 05
PORK—Northern, City Mess	14 50	15 00
SALT—Alum, per bag of 4 bushels	75 a	1 00
Liverpool, per sack	90	95
Liverpool fine, per sack	a	1 75
SUGAR—Cuba, per lb	8½a	10½
Porto Rico, per lb	0 a	7½
A—Coffee, per lb	0 a	11
B— " per lb	9 a	11½
C— " per lb	8½a	9
Ex. C— per lb	0 a	9½
Crushed, per lb	00 a	11½
SOAP—Northern, per lb	5 a	7
Crampton's N. Y. Palm Soap, per box 100 lbs., ½ bars	0 00 a	4 20
TIMBER—Shipping, per M	12 00 a	18 00
Mill Prime, per M	9 00 a	11 00
Mill Fair, per M	6 50 a	8 50
Inferior to Ordinary, per M	3 00 a	5 00

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

jan 21 628-5t

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED.
NEW EDITION.
Now added, a SUPPLEMENT of over 4600 NEW WORDS and Meanings.
ALSO ADDED, A NEW Biographical Dictionary of over 9700 NAMES.
A NATIONAL STANDARD.
Webster's is the Dictionary used in the Government Printing Office. Jan. 1879.
Every State purchase of Dictionaries for Schools has been of Webster.
Books in the Public Schools of the United States are mainly based on Webster.
Sale of Webster's is 20 times as great as the sale of any other series of Dictionaries.
Thirty-two thousand copies have been placed in the public schools of the U. S.
Engravings,—contains 3000, nearly three times as many as any other Dictionary.
Recommended by State Sup'ts of Schools in 35 States, and by 50 College Pres'ts.
Is it not
THE NATIONAL STANDARD?
Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass.

75 CENTS A YEAR. THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS. CHEAPEST weekly newspaper in the U. S. SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS A YEAR, postage included. Seventeenth year of publication. It is especially complete as a newspaper, publishing all the dispatches of both the Western Associated Press and the National Associated Press, besides an extensive system of special dispatches from all important points. It is independent in Politics, presenting political news free from partisan coloring, without fear or favor. Every number contains Six Completed Stories. A favorite family paper. It is the Cheapest Weekly in the U. S. 75 cents a year. A dollar bill pays for sixteen months. Address, CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS, 123 Fifth Av., Chicago, Ill.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS
A GREEN-HOUSE AT YOUR DOOR
We will send free by mail, and guarantee their safe arrival in Good Condition, our choice ... NEW AND RARE ... STORRS, HARRISON & CO., Painesville, Ohio.
jan 21 628-4teow

CATARRH ... DR. J. K. ROSS, Centreville, Ind.
jan 21 628-4t

SALT
AND GUANO.

5,000 Sacks
LIVERPOOL SALT,
6,500 Sacks
Peruvian Cotton Guano,
Now landing and for sale low by
WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.

1880.

WHO Shall be President? Who Shall be Governor?
Subscribe for the
RALEIGH OBSERVER,
A Democratic Newspaper,
"The Old Reliable,"
SAMUEL A. ASHE, Editor and Owner.

Daily, per annum, $6. Weekly, per annum, $2.
Postmasters and agents allowed a liberal commission on all new subscribers they may obtain for THE OBSERVER.

The Editor of THE OBSERVER requests his friends in the various parts of the State to interest themselves in getting up clubs and otherwise extending the circulation and influence of THE OBSERVER during the campaign year of 1880. By their assistance he hopes to make THE OBSERVER still more acceptable and more useful to the cause of Democracy.
jan 21 4t

PROVERBS.

"Sour stomach, bad breath: indigestion, and headache easily cured by Hop Bitters."

"Study Hop Bitters books, use the medicine, be wise, healthy and happy."

"When life is a drug and you have lost all hope, try Hop Bitters."

"Kidney and urinary trouble is universal, and the only safe and pure remedy is Hop Bitters—rely on it."

"Hop Bitters does not exhaust and destroy, but restores and makes new."

"Ague, billiousness, drowsiness, jaundice, Hop Bitters removes easily."

"Boils, pimples, freckles, rough skin, eruptions, impure blood, Hop Bitters cure."

"Inactive kidneys and urinary organs cause the worst of diseases, and Hop Bitters cures them all."

"More health, sunshine and joy in Hop Bitters than in all other remedies."

Hop Cough Cure and Pain Relief is the best.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

First-Class TREES AND PLANTS

at very low rates. Apple Trees, 15c; Standard Pear, 30c; Dwarf Pear, 20c. Strawberry, Raspberry, Blackberry, and Grape Vines by the doz., 100, 1,000, or 10,000. Extra large stock Sharpless, Miner's Prolific, Albany, and other choice standard Strawberries. Queen-of-the-Market Raspberry. Descriptive Price-Lists Free. S. C. DECOU, Moorestown, Burlington county, N. J.

HORNER SCHOOL,
OXFORD, N. C.

INSTRUCTORS—J. H. Horner, A. M.; J. C. Horner, A. M., R. W. Winston, A. B. (Univ. of N. C.)

The Spring Session will begin January 19th, 1880. Board and Tuition per session of five months, $100.

For circular, address J. C. HORNER.
dec 24-1m

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., 218 Fulton St. N. Y.
oct 9 413-26t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.

WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.

Our Trimming Department is Complete, and comprises the leading styles.

Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.

We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.

Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.

The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.
N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.
nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.

THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the
Latest and Most Approved Style.
To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.
"First Come, First Served."
MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
apl 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

THOS. A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.
McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.
Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 593 1y.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
Charlotte, N. C.,

KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will Compete in Prices,
—EITHER—
WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,
With any Market.
All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods
VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.
We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.
BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 185.

DeROSSET & NORTHROP,
FIRE AND MARINE
INSURANCE AGENTS,
REPRESENTING Standard American AND English Companies.
28 North Water Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
nov 19 619-tf

HALL & PEARSALL

OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of
100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER,
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.
sep 3—608-tf

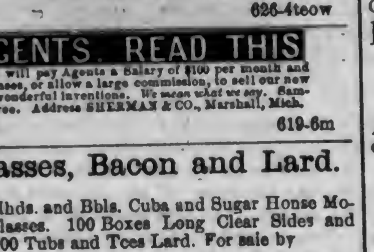
GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER. Send your orders by mail.

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.

BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.

LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.

The Remington Sewing Machine,
A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.
Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.
Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.
GEO. A. PECK.
25 South Front Street.
dec 10 632-tf



Will be mailed free to all applicants, and to customers without ordering it. It contains ... colored plates, 600 engravings, about 200 pages, and full descriptions, prices and directions for planting 1500 varieties of Vegetable and Flower Seeds, Plants, Roses, etc. Invaluable to all. Send for it. Address,
D. M. FERRY & CO., Detroit, Mich.
jan 7 626-4teow

AGENTS, READ THIS
We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.
nov 19 619-6m

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.

200 Hhds. and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses. 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

BETHEL ACADEMY,
DAVIDSON COLLEGE (P. O.) N. C.
Rev. L. K. GLASGOW, A. M. Principal.
Miss ELLA W. FLEMING, Assistant.

NINTH semi-annual session begins January 26, 1880. Boarders in Principal's family pay in advance for all expense except books, per quarter (10 weeks) $80

For circulars containing testimonials from well-known educators and from patrons, address the Principal. dec 31-tf

THE MARVEL COPYIST.

NO COPYING PRESS REQUIRED. Most simple process invented. One hundred copies of circulars, letters, price-lists, plans, drawings, music, church reports, Sunday school lessons, &c., taken from a single writing. This process can be repeated for thousands of copies. Copies made on any kind of paper; also on linen, leather, &c. Nothing to get out of order. Agents wanted. Note size $1 50; Letter, $3.00; Legal, $4.00; Postal, $1.00.
A. S. CALDWELL,
Charlotte, N. C.
Jan 14 627-4t

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.
LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.

Children's Merino Under Suits—A great comfort and convenience.
CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.
LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.
PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,
In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.

A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.
OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.
Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.
dec 3 631-1y

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847.) S. W. WHITING.
R. B. ANDREWS & CO.

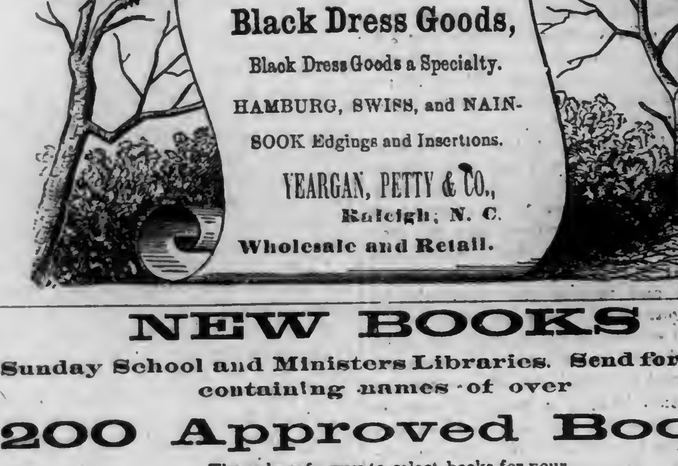
Men and Boys CLOTHING, Dress Shirts, Cuffs, TIES, SCARFS, Half Hose, Suspenders, Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Underwear, Trunks, Valises, &c.
Extra Large Sizes CLOTHING, A Specialty.
HATS AND CAPS, A Large Assortment.
We give special attention to orders from a distance.
LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.
NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh. N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods
—AT—
M. M. KATZ'S,
36 MARKET STREET.
BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.

Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.

DRESS GOODS,—Satin Melange, Cashmere Soie, Brocade Persan, Persan Raye, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.
MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Ete, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.
CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS, Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets. The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.
MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c., &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to
M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.
oct 22

RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS!



NEW BOOKS
For Sunday School and Ministers Libraries. Send for Catalogue containing names of over 1200 Approved Books.
The only safe way to select books for your
SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES
Is to order those which have been read and approved by some competent person.
Our DISCOUNT to MINISTERS and SUNDAY SCHOOLS is the largest offered by any Publisher or Bookseller in the United States.
Address orders for all Sunday School Supplies to PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO., 1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va. Or, 207 N. 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

HOMES
in Western Arkansas.
The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway offer for sale the best LANDS in the West or South-West, with healthy climate, fertile soil, and not affected by drouth. Easy terms of sale. Full information. Apply to W. D. SLACK, Land Com'r, Little Rock, Ark.
dec 24 624-13t

THE DEAF HEAR
THROUGH THE TEETH!
PERFECTLY, all Ordinary Conversation, Lectures, Concerts, etc., by NEW Channels to the Nerves of Hearing, by a wonderful New Scientific Invention, THE DENTAPHONE. For remarkable public tests on the Deaf—also on the Deaf and Dumb—See New York Herald, Sept. 28, Christian Standard, Sept. 27, etc. It displaces all Ear-trumpets. Size of an ordinary Watch. Send for our FREE pamphlet. Address AMERICAN DENTAPHONE CO., 287 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio
dec 24 624-13t

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. DR. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.
nov 19 619-13t

COTTON!

IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants
For the Sale of Cotton,
Which they are prepared to do
On the Most Economical Charges.
They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.
ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,
Wilmington, N. C.
September 3d, 1879. 605

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.
THE SPRING TERM of 1880 opens Thursday, January 15. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks.
Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.
Address MRS. E. N. GRANT, Principal.
feb 20 528-1y

PEACE INSTITUTE,
For Young Ladies,
RALEIGH, N. C.
THE Spring term commences on the 10th of January 1880, and closes the 1st of June following. The total expense of a boarding pupil for one term is $120, payable in advance. This amount will include board, with washing, fuel, lights, furnished room and servant's attendance, tuition in English branches and Latin, Calisthenics, Text Books and Stationery used for school purposes. For $150 all the above, with Instrumental Music and use of Piano.
For circular containing particulars as to terms, Course of Study, &c., address
REV. R. BURWELL & SON,
Raleigh, N. C.
dec 24-624-3m

READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN
If you like to be satisfied deal with
W. J. MOTT,
—Dealer in—
BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.
Keeps on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain his reputation in this regard. I will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,
W. J. MOTT,
North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.
P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult me either by mail or in person.
nov 19 619-tf

EGG MACHINES.
BROWN LEGHORNS
Mature Earlier. Lay Earlier. Produce More Eggs. Are Most Happy. Are Most Profitable. Of All Fowls.

Lynch's Select School,
HIGH POINT, N. C.
An English, Mathematical, Classical, Commercial and Scientific Academy,
MAJ. W. B. LYNCH, A. M., Principal.
B. P. PRICE, A. B., Assistant.
Spring session of 1880 begins January 21st. Board and Tuition $80. For circulars address the Principal.
dec 17 628-6t

SELECT BOARDING
AND
DAY SCHOOL,
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.
Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.
THE SPRING TERM of 1880 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE Board and Tuition $100.
Circulars forwarded on application.
466-*jan.1,'79

Eggs from Premium Stock, $2 for 13.
Can supply Partridge and White Cochin, Dark Brahma, Imp. P. Rock, White Leghorn and Bronze Turkey Eggs, from Best Strains. Stock acclimated. Order early, and save heavy express charges by ordering from
A. S. CALDWELL,
Charlotte, N. C.
Jan 14 627-4t

CHEESE.
200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,
For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN.

FOR THE FAMILY.

In the Last Pew.

She sits, bent o'er, with wrinkled face,
Poor and forlornly old; no grace
Smooths the sharp angles of her form,
Long buffetted by life's slow storm.
All else around is fine and fair;
The stained light falls, a golden glare,
In seeming mockery on her loose, gray hair.

The preacher, faultlessly arrayed,
Tells how our hearts afar have strayed,
And how all should be content
With those good blessings God has sent.
And one, of all that self-poised throng,
Hangs on his words nor deems them long,
And hmmbly thinks only her heart is wrong.

She meekly mumbles o'er the hymn
Her eyes with age and tear-drops dim;
What can the gay world hold for her—
This worn and weary worshipper!
Now, rustling down the aisles in pride,
They toss bright smiles on every side,
Nor does she know the hurts such fair looks hide.

And still she sits, with tear-wet face,
As loth to leave that sacred place;
The organ, with quick thunders riven,
Lifts her sad, trembling soul to heaven;
She feels a sense of blissful rest,
Her bony hands across her breast
She clasps, and lowly sighs: "God knoweth best!"

One day, within some grander gate,
Where kings and ministers must wait,
While she hopes humbly for low place
Far from the dear Lord's shining face,
Above the chant of heavenly choir
These words may sound with gracious fire:
"Well done, good, faithful servant, come up higher!"
—Good Words.

Our Magic Lantern.

BY THE OFFICE BOY.

When the Professor comes in late in the afternoon, leans back in his chair, peers over the top of his glasses, asks a puzzling question, smiles benevolently, and tries to look as much as possible like the portrait of Horace Greeley, we boys tremble, for there is no telling when the old gentleman will step talking and let us get away. Friday, when he came in, the first thing he asked was, "How did you get on, New Year's Eve, with the magic lantern which your grandfather sent you?" At first I thought of course he knew all about it. But he did not. And when I told him how we got over our difficulties he said, "Won't you write it down for the Professor's Chair?"

Well, you see, grandfather was in a hurry when he called in at Milligan's and bought our New Year's present, and so when it came to us, late on New Year's Day, but just in time for our children's party, we found it to be a capital lantern, that made a brilliant disc nearly covering the sheet we quickly fixed on the parlor wall. Mother farbade us to drive any nails into the paper, but she lent us the sheet, and Mr. O'Hara lent us six laths, which we nailed together so as to make three sides of a square. On this we stretched the sheet, and reared it up against the wall. Yet, search as we would among the shavings and crumpled paper that packed the box, we could not find any slides, and were obliged to conclude that grandfather in his hurry had forgotten to buy them; but on going to mother, as we always do when in trouble, she read part of his letter to her, which said that he had sent no slides, on purpose that we might learn to make them for ourselves; and said he, in a way that Jennie—who is in the normal school—and I considered not at all respectful: "The toys which children make themselves always please them best."

It was very fortunate that Cousin Dan happened in just then on a New Year's call, for he helped us out of our trouble at once. The lamp was already lit; but the round disc on the sheet was edged with colors. "They may be very pretty in a rainbow, but we don't want them here," he said; and, just by moving the lamp a little forward and turning the front tube, he succeeded in getting a broad, pure white circle that you could see looked really flat. Then he took a piece of glass, which he just scratched with his diamond ring the size of a slide and then snapped off. Taking a piece of soap he smeared the glass on one side and held it a moment over the flame of a candle, which quickly blackened it. With the point of a knitting needle he scratched it for a minute or two, pushed into the side holder of the lantern, and as he took his hand away from the nozzle—my! if there wasn't a comic picture of me larger than life, with the words "Never give up!" in white on a black ground. When they had done laughing at me—that is, the others, but I am not used to writing about these things, and the Professor can straighten this out if he wants to—we hunted the house for all the broken glass there was; and when Dan had discovered an old bottle of photographer's transparent varnish and a glue pot, he sent one of us out to get some Canada balsam and turpentine at the apothecary's at the corner. When he had come back Dan coated some of the glass with the photographer's varnish, and then traced different funny pictures upon it, not cutting through the glass, but copying them from old papers by laying the glass upon them. The outlines appeared on the screen quite dark, because the light is so much scattered from the surface; then others of the small pictures he coated with the Canada balsam and turpentine, mixed half and half, when they became quite transparent. He gave a coat of this mixture to some of the glass, and when it was dry placed the varnished pictures on it, face downward, when, of course, they stuck there, so that he could rub the paper off at the back with his wetted fingers and leave only the printer's ink sticking on the glass. These made capital pictures; and if we had not been in such a hurry we could have colored and made them even better than some of the slides sold in the shops. Dan had kept two pieces of glass, which he had separated by three thin strips of wood at each end and at the bottom, stuck on by varnish, puttied up and secured by thread round the outside. This, he said, was his aquarium; and when he caught a spider and a fly and put them between the glasses and stuck it into the lantern you had better believe there was a circus! In the end the spider got the better of the fly and the heat got the better of the spider, and as mother said Mr. Bergh would be after us we concluded not to try it again. On the whole, we had a first-rate time, and mother has just had a letter from the Professor saying that buckwheat is a capital thing to take oil spots out of carpets.—Christian Union.

A Peaceful Death.

Not long since, a youth of eighteen, son of a clergyman in the west of England, went out on the beach for a ramble in search of sea-weeds. Pursuing his walk, unconscious of all but his immediate object, he at length discovered that the tide had flowed in, and he was enclosed between the cliffs and the advancing waters. Taking out his pocket Bible, he wrote as follows:

"In danger—surrounded by water; if help does not speedily arrive, I must be drowned. But Jesus, to whom I gave myself five years ago, is with me. I am perfectly happy. May He bless and comfort my beloved parents, and bring my dear little brothers and sisters to himself, so that we may all meet in heaven!"

The body of the dear lad was discovered next day, and the Bible was taken from the pocket of his coat.

Have we given ourselves to Jesus when in health and safety? If so, death can never find us unprepared, and whether it come by flood or flame, by accident or disease, we shall die in the Lord, and see His face in peace when He appears.

A Story of Success.

We all like to hear of successful men. To know that a homeless, friendless young man has fought his way steadily upward, with bright, tireless energy, is a tonic full of subtle encouragement. No trade or calling, however hard and narrow, has failed to furnish examples of men who won success. It is a thought which should encourage every toiler. The stone-cutter has his Hugh Miller, the weaver his David Livingstone, the blacksmith his Elihu Burritt.

It is not, however, of men of great attainments and widely trumpeted fame that we would now speak, but rather of humble, honest success in founding a home in one of the central counties of this State. The story is full of hope and encouragement to the daily laborer; perhaps it has a warning for some whose wasted opportunities stand beside them as accusing angels.

In the year 1871 a young Norwegian landed at San Francisco, knowing only a few words of English, having little money and no acquaintances. He remained only one night in the city, and was soon in search of work among the farmers. Several weeks passed and he was still unsuccessful. He went to the house of a wealthy farmer, a man of shrewd but kindly character, and said to him in effect:

"I need work, and at any price, to make a beginning on. I can't lie idle; I am tired of tramping. Have you got room for one more hand?"

"No," said the farmer, "I am tired of tramps, and I have help enough."

"I am no tramp," said the man quietly, "and I will work, if you will let me, without wages, and for only my board and lodging until such time as there is a vacancy, or I can get work elsewhere."

This was the gist of what he said, translated, on the part of the Norwegian from his imperfect English, and the farmer told him to go to work, deciding in his own mind to see what sort of metal was in the tall, fair-haired Norwegian.

The days went by in toil and gladness, and the farmer found that his "free hand," as he called him, was the best man on the ranch. He was the earliest up, the busiest at all times, and in no sense an eye-server. Always merry, his folk-songs of home, and his stories of that weird northern land, grew more interesting as his knowledge of our language advanced. Moreover he was no eye-servant, but gave the working hours of the day to his employer with rare fidelity.

Two months went by in this sort of way. The farmer began to feel ashamed of himself for keeping without wages the man who was evidently the best workman in the neighborhood and the most careful of his employer's interests. "It pays to keep such a man," he said to himself, "it is absurd to think of letting him go at any time."

So the farmer paid him fair wages, dating from the day he stepped on the ranch, which was honorable back pay, and engaged him for one year, the bargain to terminate then unless the same satisfaction was given.

Our Norwegian remained no less than seven years on this one farm, making himself more and more necessary to the operations of agriculture. They ceased calling him "Gus;" he became "Mr. Peterson," in the neighborhood. Other laborers had come and gone. He was the sole representative of the men who were on the ranch when he came there. The most important gain, perhaps, was that he had a completa and practical knowledge of farms and farm work, of our soil, climate, limitations, and possibilities. Lastly, he had with stern self denial saved every cent he could, and it was invested in different ways.

So Mr. Peterson, after seven years of vacationless work, took a summer trip, rather unaccountably prolonged, to the Norwegian settlements of the Western States, and returned with a warm-hearted maidenly wife, for whom every one had a pleasant word. Then he went to the farmer and wanted to buy a piece of land.

"I would rather live near here and still work for you at odd times. I only want twenty acres," he said.

Twenty acres seemed so small a tract to the farmer accustomed to working his two thousand acres that he tried to persuade him to take more, but Peterson still clung to the conviction that fruit, flowers, vegetables, a windmill to lift water, a few cows, chickens and pigs with the close care which he so well understood, would make twenty acres a bright and self-supporting home. Finally, upon the farmer's earnest, friendly desire, he took forty acres at $50 per acre, paying $1,000 down, and letting the rest wait at ten per cent. interest.

With what earnestness and patience he has begun to toil, having now his own abode, or how faithfully his wife seconds his efforts, we have not space to relate. The goal is reached. The crops already on his forty acres will go far towards paying off the debt this fall. They spend little; they live within themselves; they desire to build up a loving and beautiful cottage home, full of peace, purity, restfulness. And they have gone about it in the way open to the mass of humanity—by simple hard work and self-denial.

This sketch is, except in names used, a transcript from actual occurrences. The man of whom we speak is a Norwegian, but the lesson is equally full of encouragement for hundreds of others. He has won some foothold, and so can other toilers. Ten years from now, if we keep track of our hero, we shall probably find him well known and respected everywhere, owning a highly cultivated farm, educating his children in our public schools, taking the best American papers, and in all respects a thoroughly well informed citizen. So we cannot help wishing, in conclusion, that we had more such men.—San Francisco paper.

Where Is Your Lantern?

Young Harry was sent on an errand one evening in early winter. After giving him his message his mother said, "Be sure you take the lantern with you, Harry."

"Bother the lantern!" answered the boy, gruffly and disrespectfully; and he started, muttering to himself, "What do I want with a lantern? I guess I know the way well enough."

Very soon Master Harry, in crossing the street, stumbled into a hole which had been made by a recent rain. By his fall he knocked the flesh from his shin-bone and covered his clothes with mud. On his way back he forgot the fence running along at the edge of the ravine. As he groped his way along the bank he fell over the bank and went sprawling to the bottom of the ravine. With much ado and after many bruises he got into the road once more, but when he finally reached his mother's door he looked more like a scarecrow than a living boy.

The lantern would have saved him all this. Was not he a foolish fellow not to take it? But what shall be said of those boys and girls who know the Bible to be the only lamp which can guide their feet safely through the paths of life to their home in heaven, and yet refuse to carry it? Are they not still more foolish? Are they not likely to suffer even more than the boy? You know they are.—Good Words.

Pictorial Anachronisms.

We find anachronisms in the works of almost every artist of every age. The aged Simeon has been painted with spectacles at the circumcision; Tintoretto, in his picture of the children of Israel gathering manna, takes the precaution to arm them with the modern invention of guns; in a representation of Abraham offering up his son, the patriarch, instead of stretching forth his hand and taking his knife, holds to Isaac's head a blunderbuss; in Verrio's picture of Christ healing the sick, the lookers-on wear periwigs; the angel who expelled Adam and Eve from the Garden of Eden is drawn by Durer in a fashionable dress with flounces; and the same hand has depicted, in the scene of Peter denying Christ, a Roman soldier smoking his pipe; Rebecca has been represented at the well with Grecian architecture for a background. One painter has shown us red lobsters before, not after, they were boiled, listening to the preaching of the gentle Anthony of Padua.—Magazine of Art.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Redeeming Mutilated Currency.

Whenever a national bank or legal tender note becomes mutilated; whenever anybody comes into possession of a worn out note; or whenever by accident any money of this character becomes so far destroyed that it will not pass; the owner may send it to the Treasurer of the United States. The mutilated currency goes to the redemption division of the Treasurer's office, and there judgment is passed on it. Of course every precaution is had against fraud. Quite often a woe-begone piece of a note will be sent in, and after the crucial test will turn out to be the relic of a counterfeit bill. Sometimes the affidavits accompanying a fragment of what was once a greenback are "manufactured."

One of the most remarkable cases that has ever come before the redemption division occurred recently: A Nebraska backwoodsman dropped his pocket-book, containing one hundred dollars, into the camp-fire. Before he could get it out the heat so acted upon it that the book had shrivelled up into a hard burnt ball. He did not attempt to open it, but sent it on with a statement of the facts. The ball was cracked, just as a hickory nut would be in order to get at its contents. Inside were found, intact and undamaged, the twenty and ten-dollar bills that went to make up the one hundred dollars.

A farmer living in Illinois distrusted the banks and always kept his money in the house or about his person. A short time ago he had $11,000 in ready cash, and carried it in his coat pocket. He went to bed, leaving his coat on a chair. His wife complained of the coldness of the room, and he got up to stir the fire. He had been back in bed but a short time, when the room filled with smoke and the odor of "something burning." He jumped up to find his coat-pocket burnt out, and his $11,000 a charred mass. Fortunately there was enough distinguishable about the notes to secure him, upon his sworn and attested affidavits of the fact, a new set completa.

A Tennesseean put $135 into a boot, and secreted his boot. When he went back for it he lost his bearings and could not find it. Six months afterward he stumbled across the old boot exactly where he had left it. The money inside had furnished nourishment for cockroaches and other vermin. A handfull of small pieces was all that was left to tell the tale. Sending them to the Treasury they were examined, and enough were identified to give the man $50.—Presbyterian Journal.

Bismarck's Country Home.

Ample acres, and all the appurtenances of a prosperous and well-kept landed estate surround the spacious Pomeranian mansion of the chancellor. The stables shelter many thoroughbreds, the kennels are crowded with Bismarck's favorite dogs. The conservatories teem with rare fruits and flowers; and in all these things the master takes a keen and watchful interest. But he is most often found at Varzin, as at Berlin, in his study. This is a six sided apartment, furnished with rugged simplicity. An enormous chimney and open fire-place fill in one of the corners; on either side of which rises a column bearing a coat-of-arms on an emblazoned shield. Bismarck is proud of his blood and of his ancestry. After the French war he added to his coat-of-arms the banners of Alsace and Lorraine, and chose as his motto, "Trinit te Rurb," —"My strength in trinity,"—an old family device. "And," suggested a friend, "it may also signify 'my strength in the three-in-one God.'" "Quite so," replied the prince, gravely. "That was what I meant." A bust of the emperor surmounts the chimney; while before it are placed two stiff high-backed chairs. The walls are adorned, as Bismarck everywhere is fond of adorning them, with many curiosities; there are Tunisian sabres and Japanese swords, Russian hunting knives and braces of pistols, military caps and quaint bits of armor. The furniture of the room comprises sofas, divans, and the chancellor's writing-desk covered with green cloth, and having upon it a white porcelain ink stand and a two-armed student lamp; on a small table at one side is a large Bible, evidently much used; everything is solid plain and substantial, like Bismarck himself. This feature of simple comfort is discernible, indeed, throughout the house. Nor is it without its mysterious staircase. Such a one leads from a corridor into unknown regions. "The castle keep?" once asked a friend, pointing to the door. "That is my sally-port," said Bismark; and he went on to explain that it led to a path in the woods, whither the great man was fain to retreat when threatened by a raid of unwelcome guests.

SECULAR NEWS.

Two new churches at Company Shops will soon be completed. The Lutheran is nearly finished, judging from an exterior view, and the Episcopal is under way.—Graham Gleaner.

The young wheat is represented as looking exceedingly promising, but from different parts of the county come reports of damage by the fly. One farmer tells that, settled upon his wheat in the early morning, they look like a fog.—Statesville Landmark.

The death of Col. John McRee of Fayetteville is announced. He died at the age of 87. Had been for a term of forty years, or nearly so, postmaster of Fayetteville, his strict integrity and faithfulness securing him the place during many successive administrations.

The falling off in tobacco in North Carolina in 1879, as compared to 1878, is about 1,000,000 pounds, and as compared to 1877 is about 7,000,000 pounds. We are reliably informed that the European demand for yellow tobacco is increasing with enormous rapidity.—Henderson Review.

Rev. A. W. Mangum writes to the Raleigh Advocate that Rev. Dr. Deems had placed in charge of President Battle and himself the sum of three hundred dollars as a memorial fund to bear the name of his lamented son, Theodore Deems. The appropriations of the gift will be appreciated when it is known that Theodore, who fell at Gettysburg, was born at Chapel Hill, while his father was a Professor in the University. The fund is to be used as a loan to aid in the education of young men in the institution.

Mr. Prentice Duke, a well known citizen at Cross Canal, about five miles from the village of South Mills, overseer for Messrs. John Roper & Co. of Norfolk, Va., while himself and a colored man were riding in a buggy Sunday evening on their way to Northwest look, was attacked by a furious bear on the road. The animal made a bold effort to get hold of Mr. Duke, but being foiled he attacked the gentleman's horse. Mr. Duke then drew his pistol and fired upon the animal, wounding him severely.—Elizabeth City Telegram.

NEVER RETURN.

It is stated that one out of every four real invalids who go to Denver, Col., to recover health never return to the East or South except as a corpse. The undertakers next to the hotel keepers, have the most profitable business. This excessive mortality may be prevented and patients saved and cured under the care of friends and loved ones at home, if they will but use Hop Bitters in time. This we know. See other column.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS

AN ENLARGED VIEW OF THE PAD.

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.
Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs.
Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago.!!!

45 Years Before the Public.
THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
CELEBRATED
LIVER PILLS,
FOR THE CURE OF
Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,
DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.
Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression Dr. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.
The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.
Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

IRON BITTERS, A Great Tonic.
IRON BITTERS, A Sure Appetizer.
IRON BITTERS, A Complete Strengthener.
IRON BITTERS, A Valuable Medicine.
IRON BITTERS, Not Sold as a Beverage.
IRON BITTERS, For Delicate Females.

Highly recommended to the public for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient TONIC; especially in Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Intermittent Fever, Want of Appetite, Loss of Strength, Lack of Energy, etc. It enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. To the aged, ladies, and children requiring recuperation, this valuable remedy can not be too highly recommended. It acts like a charm on the digestive organs. A teaspoonful before meals will remove all dyspeptic symptoms.
TRY IT.
Sold by all Druggists.
THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO.
BALTIMORE, Md.

dec 10 624-1y-eow

Frontis & Leazar's School,
MOORESVILLE, IREDELL COUNTY, N. C.
S. FRONTIS, A. M.,
A. LEAZAR, A. M.,
Principals.
The Seventh Session of this School opened Jan 5, 1880, under very favorable auspices, sixty pupils having reported the first week.
The healthfulness of the locality is unexcelled. Cresswell's Springs one mile distant. System of instruction thorough and exhaustive. Two Departments—Male and Female. The Sexes occupy different Halls. Superior advantages for Religious Instruction. Board $7 to $8 per month. Tuition $1, $2, $3, $4, and $4 50 per month, according to the degree of advancement. For particulars address FRONTIS & LEAZAR,
67jan14-tf Mooresville, Iredell County, N. C.

THOMASVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE, N. C.
THE SPRING TERM WILL BEGIN JANUARY 14, 1880. The new building furnishes additional facilities of a fine Chapel 40x72, Dining Room 42x50 and accommodations for 108 Boarders. A First Class School at Lowest Rates. Pupils taught to speak French and German. Eight Teachers. Board per month $10. Tuition $2 50, $4, and $5. For Catalogue address, H. W. REINHART,
67jan14 3t President.

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Begin the new Year with the PRAYER MEETING MANUAL Containing a Theme with References, Thoughts, and an appropriate Hymn for each week in the year. 72 Pages. Price 10 cents, or $1 00 per dozen. Mailed free. P. GARRETT & CO., 708 Chestnut st., Philadelphia, Pa.

50 Gilt, Motto, Lily, Scroll, and Marble Cards, 10 cents. 60 Agents' Samples, 10 cents. U. S. CARD CO., Northford, Ct. dec 31-633-13t

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.
1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms, which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, AYER'S AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of
BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,
For the purpose of carrying on a
General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,
AT THE OLD STANDS,
5, 7 and 9, North Front Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.
JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.
Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 8, 1877.
oct 10 509.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,
MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,
1879-'80.
THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's day, into two Terms.
The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.
There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:
1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.
A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.
Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.
Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.
For Catalogues and other information apply to
REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D.,
jan 16-532- President.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!
WE ask the attention of our friends and customers to our large and handsomely selected stock which is our Fourth Purchase this Season.
Consisting of Dress Goods in all colors and prices, Cassimeres, Jeans, Flannels, Blankets, Shawls, Balmoral Skirts, Tickings, Domestics, Sheetings,
READY-MADE CLOTHING,
Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes.
Don't forget we sell the best Shirt in the City for the money. Wool Shirts and Vests for Ladies and Gents underwear.
Call and get one of our $1 Umbrellas, which is as good as you ever bought at $1 25.
Notwithstanding the advance in prices, we are still selling many of our Goods at old prices.
Orders solicited.
T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opp. Charlotte Hotel, Tryon st., Charlotte, N. C.
dec 24 624-tf

ALTAFFER & PRICE
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Woodwork and Builder's Hardware.
We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.
Church Windows Doors Pew Ends
CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles.
Factory foot of Walnut St
Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross } Wilmington, N. C.
apl 16 582-1y

H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments. jan 7-3m

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL.
HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET
WILMINGTON, N. C.
WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF
Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish
Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,
COTTON BAGGING and TIES.
☞ We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.
HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
03-1y

BUY THE BEST.
WE HAVE now on hand finished,
35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.
Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.
Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.
A. A. McKETHAN & SONS,
Oct. 21. Fayetteville, N. C. 854-t

SALT. SALT. SALT.
21,000 Sacks
Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!
Factory Filled Fine Table.
AND
Liverpool Ground Alum.
Full Weight Guaranteed.
"WILLARD'S,"
NORTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
dec 17 623-tf

TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.
Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings. Machinery of Every Description.
Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.
TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER
The Invention of the Age.
It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
☞ Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.
JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.
JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.
GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.
We are prepared to execute in the very best style, ALL KINDS OF PRINTING,
SUCH AS
Business Cards, Bill Heads, Letter and Note Heads, Statements, Drafts, Notes, Checks, Account Sales, Tags, Envelopes, Labels, Bills Lading, Receipts, Notices, Show Cards, Posters, Manifests, Wedding Cards, Visiting Cards, Catalogues, Pamphlets, School Circulars, Reports,
and in fact, every description of
RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING
We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed. Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1,018 Pages, 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & Co., 66 N. 4th St., Phila., Pa.
WANTED
oct 15 611-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO
Cabinet Organs, $41 to $500. Upright Pianos, $125 to $1000. Sold for Cash or Easy Payments. Walnut Case, warranted 6 years, Stool & Book $505. New Pianos, Stool, Cover & Book, $142 to $355. Before you buy be sure to write me. Illustrated Newspaper sent Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.
oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.
CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
68 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,
would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.
SAMPLES SENT FREE!
Also, to their
DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.
Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.
All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 12-1y

TOBACCO.
100 BOXES MANUFACTURED TOBACCO.
SPECIALTIES:
Uncle Ned's Twist.
Queen Bee Plug.
HALL & PEARSALL.

McMILLAN BROS.,
MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN
SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS

15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS
FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.
Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes. Still Doors & Grate bars.
As we have four Copper smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only
Regular and Reliable Establishment
where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing
D. G. McMILLAN, Supt.
feb 12 Fayetteville, N. C.

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.
HAVE FOR SALE.
2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.
Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.
Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.
Nov. 19 463-1y

ADRIAN & VOLLERS
CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present,
SMOKED BACON,
in hogsheads and boxes,
HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKGS.
Breakfast Strips,
Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,
SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,
Molasses and Syrup
OF ALL KINDS.
FLOUR of all Qualities,
and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries.
nov 19 551-12m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
86 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md
Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies &c., Sleves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c
mch 28 481-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES
OF THE
GENERAL ASSEMBLY,
OF THE
Presbyterian Church in the United States
THE CLERKS.
Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D. Richmond, Va.
THE TRUSTEES.
President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq. Greensboro, N. C.
FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.
Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
PUBLICATION.
Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.
EDUCATION.
Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D.D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn
ANNUAL COLLECTIONS
1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September
6. Education—First Sabbath in November

WE KEEP
PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR, FAIRBANK'S LARD,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FINE N. O. SYRUP,
And other Standard articles.
Orders solicited.
HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents. Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XIII—No 629.] WILMINGTON, JANUARY 28, 1880. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXIII—No. 1,249.]

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

One copy one year, in advance.....$2 65
If payment be delayed six months.....3 15
One copy six months, in advance.....1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each New subscriber of $2 65.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procurred without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

"THOSE WOMEN" ONCE MORE.

MR. EDITOR: I have no apology to make for seeking a place in your columns again. The principles involved in preaching by women are really of grave import, and deserve serious consideration. The arguments by which such preaching is defended, and many well meaning persons led astray, require examination. In a former communication I attempted to point out the heresy which lies at the bottom and pervades this whole thing, viz: that God's will is not necessarily what he says it is in plain words, but what some doubter or partisan who has a position to defend may suppose it to be. I purpose now to examine the method by which the advocates of such preaching seek to justify their position. To expose their fallacy and set them forth in their true light I shall condense the underlying principles into the form of rules and show that they actually proceed according to the rules, and that the conclusion reached accords with the rules also:

Rule 1. A plain and positive declaration of Scripture is not to be regarded as meaning what it says, if its plain and literal meaning can be overturned by inferential explanations or suppositions.

Rule 2. No declaration of Scripture, however plain, unlimited or unqualified, is to be received as authoritative, if other passages can, by inference, be made to contradict it.

Rule 3. In case of contradiction between a plain and express declaration of Scripture and an inference from other passages the inference is always to be preferred.

Rule 4. A plain and positive declaration of Scripture is to be prononnced null and void if men are of the opinion that good will come from ignoring and disregarding it.

The reader is requested to turn to 1 Tim. ii: 11, 12, and 1 Cor. xiv: 34-37. These passages enjoin silence on women and forbid them to speak or teach in the Church. The first question is: Does the apostle here mean what he says? Not necessarily according to rule first, and not at all, if the plain meaning can be overturned by inference. The next question is: Can any inference or supposition be produced that will overturn the plain meaning in a satisfactory way? Well, there is evidence of the general fact that there were abuses in the Church at Corinth, and although it does not appear that the women were responsible for them, or were especially connected with them, yet, since the apostle commands them to be silent, we may suppose that one of the abuses in question consisted in the turbulent and disorderly wrangling of the women. This supposition is greatly strengthened by what the apostle says about "confusion," in the 33d verse. We may infer that there was "confusion," and as the apostle proceeds at once to enjoin silence on the women we may suppose that they were the authors of the "confusion," and that the apostle meant to say that they were to keep good order in the churches. We ought therefore to be entirely satisfied with the inference that he did not really mean to forbid them to speak or teach or preach in the Church. The plain and literal meaning of these passages being disposed of to our satisfaction, a third question arises: What is the real import of the passages? Well, according to the light thrown on them by our suppositions and inferences, it is manifest that they do not mean anything in particular. We are not to suppose that they really forbid a woman to preach the Gospel, nor will we venture to say that they authorize her to do so. We may infer that they have no real bearing on the subject.

These passages being the only ones that seem to throw any obstacle in the way of woman's preaching, and it having been shown that they do not mean what they say, the way is now open to the inquiry: Are there other passages which can, by inference, be made to authorize a woman to preach in the Church, and thus to contradict the plain meaning of the two passages which, in the letter, forbid it? If such can be found then our suppositions and inferences will be immensely strengthened, and we may consider our position as being established forever on an absolutely immovable foundation.

The reader is requested to turn to Romans xvi: 1, 2. Here we may ask: Does the apostle mean what he says? That may be; but he does not seem to express himself as fully and clearly as we could desire. We may infer, therefore, that he does not say exactly what he means. He evidently means that Phebe was a preacher. He does not say so, but the difficulty in 1st Corinthians and 1st Timothy being removed we can safely assume it. Therefore, undoubtedly, Phebe was a preacher.

Turn to Phil. iv: 3: "Help those women which labored with me in the Gospel." Here he means that women labored with him in the Gospel. But they could do this in no way whatever but by preaching. Therefore we may infer, with infallible certainty, that they were preachers.

See 1 Cor. xi: 5. Here women are spoken of as praying and prophesying, but they could do neither without speaking in the Church. Therefore the inference is unavoidable that when the apostle in this same epistle commanded them to be silent he could not possibly mean to enjoin silence upon them.

These incontrovertible inferences and suppositions are supposed to relieve the subject of all Scriptural embarrassment, and to remove every trace of doubt as to what God's revealed will really is in regard to this matter.

The reader will see that I have stuck to the rules, and that at every step I have been governed by the principles which they set forth. The conclusion reached is undeniably that arrived at by the Methodist advocates of woman preaching. The premise I start from is theirs. The argument is theirs. The substance is theirs. (I have the right to vary the form of expression in order to unmask the absurdity.) If the principles and the rules founded on them are sound then the reasoning is sound, and the conclusion impregnable. But nothing could be more unsound, and I cannot conceive of a more absurd or ridiculous burlesque on anything than the so-called "rules;" and the conclusion, viz: that a woman may preach, is, from a Scriptural standpoint, just as unsound, absurd and ridiculous as the principles and the rules.

They suppose that women wrangled in the Church at Corinth. They suppose that this wrangling produced confusion. They suppose that on this account Paul enjoined silence. From these suppositions they infer that he did not mean to forbid them to speak or preach in the Church. They suppose that Phebe was a preacher. They suppose that those women at Philippi were preachers. They suppose that those Corinthian women whom Paul commands to be silent, prayed and prophesied publicly in the Church. And from these half dozen suppositions and inferences they deduct the grand inference that the infallible Scriptures authorize a woman to preach the Gospel. Thus, it has come to pass that suppositions and inferences—purely human things—have more weight and authority with men who call themselves Christians, than the plain and positive declarations of God's Holy Word!

It cannot be denied that 1 Tim. ii: 11, 12, and 1 Cor. xiv: 34-37 do positively and without limitation, forbid women to speak or teach in the Church, and that they do enjoin unqualified silence upon them. The inferences and suppositions by which it is sought to set these Scriptures aside, have no foundation at all, in truth or in fact. Do the passages themselves suggest any inferences by which the plain meaning can be set aside? None: the declarations are absolute and unlimited. Does the context suggest any? None: it says not a word about women being turbulent babblers in the Church; it indicates nothing in their conduct that could serve as a ground or reason for enjoining silence on them, but supports the literal meaning. For, he it remembered, that the injunction of silence in 1 Cor. xiv: closes the Apostle's instructions with regard to speaking in the Church. He says, in verse 29, "Let the prophets speak," &c., and verse 31, "Ye all may prophesy," &c., but in verse 34, "Let your women keep silence," &c. The natural inference would be that this injunction is what it claims to be: (v. 37.) a commandment of the Lord, fixing the status of women with reference to speaking or teaching in the churches.

In Romans, xvi, Paul commends to the Christians at Rome, Phebe, a servant of the Church at Cenchrea, and exhorts them to receive her and assist her in her business. He does not say what her business was. She was no doubt an eminently pious and useful Christian lady, full of alms-deeds among the sick and poor. But suppose it be true that Paul recognized and commended her as a preacher. What sort of man was Paul? a good and holy man, an inspired and infallible apostle. Such a man could not be inconsistent with himself. Cenchrea was the Eastern seaport of Corinth, distant some seven or eight miles. Is it possible that Paul could have Phebe preaching under his authority at Cenchrea, and say to the Corinthians: "It is a shame for women to speak in the Church—let them keep silence?" It is not possible! The church at Cenchrea, being near Corinth, was no doubt one of "the churches" of the 34th verse. If so, Phebe was not one of "your women."

"Those women," at Philippi were earnest Christian workers, within woman's proper sphere, striving for the faith of the Gospel in every way that was consistent with the principles of the Gospel as taught by the apostles. If they were preaching then we are forced to assume, either that Paul does not mean what he says, 1 Tim. 2: 11, 12, and 1 Cor. 14: 34-37; or if he does, then he has them preaching at Philippi, and tells Timothy and the Corinthians, "I do not suffer a woman to teach (preach) in the Church." "Let them keep silence." "It is a shame for women to speak in the Church." The inference that "those women" were preachers, places the apostle in this dilemma: either he was trifling with Timothy and the Corinthians, or he was guilty of falsehood. Such an inference is worse than groundless.

The praying and prophesying in 1 Cor. xi: 10 is not relevant to the subject. In this same epistle, Paul speaking to these very women, says, "keep silence."

An inference must be just and necessary, in order to weigh against a positive declaration. The fallacy of all these inferences consists in their being drawn from false assumptions, e. g.: they must assume that the women at Philippi could not labor with Paul in any way but by preaching. But that is not true, and so the inference amounts to nothing. So of all the rest.

Every passage in the Bible harmonizes with our interpretation. We sustain our position without one inference. The other side begin, proceed and end with inferences. Against the women are two plain and indubitable declarations (in harmony with all Scripture) in which God the Spirit, speaking by the apostle, commands her to be silent. For her, are fallacious human inferences drawn from false assertions, but not one syllable in God's Holy Word!

Their position cannot be defended on Scriptural grounds. They are driven to Rule 4th, and must base their defence on the false principle that God's commandment is null and void, because forsooth, in their opinion good may result from ignoring it. So it has come to this! We have men who set themselves up as judges over God's Word, whose opinions and inferences are of more authority than what the Bible says in plain words. Truly, it amounts to this: Not God's will, but man's will is done! But the plea of doing good and saving souls is a mere subterfuge. I speak with reverence as in God's sight. Who knows how much good is being done by this woman? How much is due to her? Who can analyze it? Are the faithful and earnest labors of the pastor and the prayers and efforts of the people nothing? Are all the results due to this woman's exhortations? and to her bewitching smiles? If the same efforts were made would not as good results follow, though this woman were at her home in Indiana? She may be doing some good, but that does not compensate for the evil resulting from the subversion of God's Truth. The principles by which she is defended would overturn any declaration of Scripture, would subvert every truth in the Bible. If she may preach, then the Bible fixes nothing; there is no certainty about anything; and no infallible rule of faith and duty. But God's Word is sure: His truth endureth forever. False lights shall appear and mislead many, but they shall vanish. False inferences shall be drawn and deceive many, but they shall cease. But God's Holy Word is Truth and endureth forever.

J. H. CORLE.

Lauringburg, N. C., Jan. 22, '80.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

REASONS WHY.

MR. EDITOR: I am more than pleased to find that the prospects of our paper are more encouraging than they have been for years. This, I suppose is owing to two causes:

First, there seems to be a degree of activity and prosperity in the country such as has not been enjoyed for several years. With the good hand of our God upon us there has been general health among our people. The pestilence has not been permitted to walk in darkness, nor the destruction to waste at noon-day. The crops have been better than the farmers expected. The prices have been more remunerative than in some of the former years. So that money is more abundant than it has been.

Second, I think there is a growing feeling among our people to stand by our own institutions and support our own enterprises. While we wish to cherish a feeling of Christian affection for all who love the Lord Jesus Christ, no matter where they may live or to what denomination they may belong. And while we wish success to every good cause that aims at the glory of God, those feelings and those wishes are not at war with an increasing love for those things which are our own. It is said that North Carolina has less State pride than any of her sister States. Of all branches of the Church in this State, there is a widespread impression that there is less concert of action among Presbyterians than any other denomination of Christians. Those things ought not so to be. If our doctrines are true and our organizations more Scriptural than any other, we ought with one heart and one mind, to pray for the peace of our Jerusalem, and to labor for the prosperity of our Zion. And every institution that is intended to propagate the truth as we believe it should receive the moral and material support of all who claim to be Presbyterians; for if we do not take our own papers and support our own institutions we cannot expect others to come in and support them for us. The consequence will be that they must perish.

I hope that the disposition to provide for our own, and especially for those of our own household, is increasing, and that it will be seen and felt in the increasing prosperity of our institutions and enterprises. The N. C. PRESBYTERIAN has become a felt necessity in our Synod. In it we can see what our Church is doing and what she is wanting. In it we can see how our brethren are prospering, and when they are in trouble, so as to rejoice with those who rejoice and weep with them who weep. Thus we may be drawn together by the silver cords of love and affection, and made to feel that we are indeed brethren in the Lord.

W. W. P.

THE WORRY OF LITTLE THINGS.

BY THE REV. WILLIAM ALEXANDER, D. D.

We stood in the church porch after all the congregation had gone out, and were talking for a few moments in the line of the sermon. It had been about the cultivation of our spiritual nature, and how the mass of men forget and neglect it, and live largely and often as if there were no such thing belonging to them. Said my friend, as a tear glistened in her eye, "Does it not seem strange that so much of our life should be wasted in the perpetual thought of little things, while we have no time or strength to give to the larger ones? How many are toil-worn, their life one long struggle barely to live, the one supreme and necessary endeavor being to get enough to eat and be clothed with, or to feed and cover those dependent upon them! And then how this perpetual pursuit and occupation with small things sometimes seems to make us grow small."

"Yes," I replied, "it does appear so at times. To be watching the pennies, to be calculating whether or not you can afford to spend this quarter of a dollar, does, at first glance, seem as if it would make us grow little in soul. But look at it all around.

"Life is made up of small things—small breaths and short heart beats. Food and drink are necessary, and morsels make them. Yet it has often grieved me to spend on a piece of beef large enough to feed the family what would have been sufficient to buy a book full of noble thoughts—the one to vanish from human sight, the other to live forever. But the book cannot be eaten and the beef must be bought; so I have put the grief aside, paid the price of the dinner, and seen the great thoughts all lost in the merry chat of the table from which the beef has disappeared.

"But who shall say after all that this is not best? Dealing with larger interests does not make one grow large. A man who is in the habit of dealing with tens of thousands, and has no mood to watch a penny, often does watch it with a keener interest than even you or I ever regard it. Somehow, the large dealings have not made him large; he even seems to have shrunk as he touches them.

"And freedom from these little things of life, and leisure to give one's self entirely to higher things, do not practically tend to form nobler characters nor more beautiful lives. Look at monks or nuns. They have no care for what they shall eat or what they shall drink; the prior or abbot will take care of all that. They do not even have to think of what they shall wear; their clothes are provided for, and the fashion never changes. They have plenty of time to give to religious things, and yet how small they grow! Very much smaller than are we who are thrust out into the small worries of life.

"Nor does contact with these little things dwarf us. All is in the way we handle them. I think that I have seen greater things through my microscope than I have through a telescope.

"The little things, after all, have a lifting power. They are very small, but they are many a time so heavy that all we can do is to totter with them to God. They come so frequently that we have to carry them often, and so we are often brought near to Him. They have brought us. Surely this is something. And we would not have this experience so often if it were not for the little things. To be brought near to God is not to be made small but great.

"So I think that it is just as well as it is. Let the small things come, but let them beckon or even force us toward our Father in heaven. They are perpetual, and so they will make us perpetually near. We shall in that all-blessed contact expand; we shall not contract as we are concerned with them."

"God give us grace for that," my friend said as we left the porch.—Christian Union.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

GOD REIGNS.—Rev. xix: 6.

BY REV. OLIVER CRANE, M. D.

Before the birth of time
Jehovah fixed sublime
His government;
O'er all supreme He reigns,
And through His wide domains
His sovereign right maintains,
Omnipotent.

Let every creature bring
Hosannas to their King
With one accord;
Enthroned in holiness,
Let every heart confess,
And all devoutly bless
The Sovereign Lord.

He spake and it was done,
He doth His will, and none
His hand can stay;
His absolute command
Forever firm shall stand,
Though sky, and sea, and land,
Should pass away.

Let angels round His throne,
With saints, unite in one
To praise His name;
His power and grace adore,
The love to man He bore,
His goodness evermore
Aloud proclaim,

He will His chosen lead,
And bring them, in their need,
A sure release;
His arm is their defence,
Their trust His Providence,
His smile their recompense
In perfect peace.

In God, ye saints, rejoice,
And lift to Him your voice
In grateful strains;
Though tempted oft to fear,
Though trials seem severe,
O let this solace cheer,
Jehovah reigns

*See 2d editorial in N. C. PRESBYTERIAN of Dec. 31, '79.

THACKERAY ON THE CLERGY.

Mr. Thackeray writes as follows: "And I know this, that if there are some clerics who do wrong, there are, straightway a thousand newspapers to haul up these unfortunates, and cry, fie upon them! while, though the press is always ready to yell and bellow excommunications against these stray delinquent parsons, it somehow takes very little account of the good ones—of the tens of thousands of honest men who lead Christian lives, who give to the poor generously, who deny themselves rigidly and live and die in their duty, without ever a newspaper paragraph in their favor. My beloved friend and reader, I wish you and I could do the same, and let me whisper my belief, entre nous, that of those eminent philosophers who cry out against parsons the loudest, there are not many who have got their knowledge of the church by going thither often. But you who have ever listened to village bells, or have walked to church as children on a sunny Sabbath morning; you who have seen the parson's wife leading the sick man's bedside, or the town clergyman treading the dirty stairs of noisome alleys upon his sacred business, do not raise a shout when one of these falls away, or yell with the mob that howls after him."

REASONABLE ECONOMY.

We do not like stinginess. We do not like economy when it comes down to rags and starvation. We have no sympathy with the notion that the poor man should hitch himself to a post and stand still while the rest of the world moves forward. It is no man's duty to deny himself every amusement, every luxury, every recreation, every comfort, that he may get rich. It is no man's duty to make an iceberg of himself, to shut his eyes and ears to the sufferings of his fellows, and deny himself the enjoyment that results from generous actions, merely that he may horde wealth for his heirs to quarrel about. But there is an economy which is especially commendable in the man who struggles with poverty—an economy which is consistent with happiness, and which must be practised if the poor man would secure independence. It is almost every man's privilege, and it becomes his duty, to live within his means; not up to but within them. Wealth does not make the man, and should never be taken into account in our judgment of men; but competence should always be secured when it can be by the practice of economy and self-denial to only a tolerable extent. It should be secured, not so much for others to look upon, or to raise us in the estimation of others, as to secure to us the conscientiousness of independence, and the constant satisfaction which is received from its acquirement and possession.—Scottish-American Journal.

EXPERIENCE THE TEST.

Skeptics have sought in every age to undermine the faith of the Christian Church. Like industrious sappers and miners they have burrowed their way to her foundations and laid trains of philosophical objections, historical criticisms, and mythological theories close to her walls. Having exploded their blasts with much noise they have looked through the smoke expecting to see the object of their hatred toppling to the ground. Very much to their surprise, however, the fair fabric stands like a beautiful temple indestructible by human devices. Why is this? Largely because most of the objections to the Christian system rest more on the hatred of its critics than on a solid foundation of truth; but chiefly because Christian faith carries its own verification within itself. Said Jesus, "If any man will do His will he will know of the doctrine whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself." So long, therefore, as the divine origin of Christian truth is self-demonstrated in the experience of all who obey its precepts, skeptical criticisms, though hurtful to many, cannot overthrow Christianity. The delightful consciousness of the individual believer that his belief in its truths yields him peace that passeth understanding, joy that is unspeakable, inward purity and outward whiteness of life otherwise unattainable, is a shield which the sharpest shafts forged by skeptical hands can never penetrate. An unbelieving logic can never prevail against a believer's experience.—Zion's Herald.

TRUE CHARITY.

BY MRS. MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

True charity is the sweetest and most attractive of qualities. It smooths away the angles and rubs off the roughness and diminishes the friction of life. It adds grace to daily courtesies and makes burdens easier to be borne. The loving hand is the strong heart. The generous hand is the hand to cling to, when the path is difficult. There is room for the exercise of charity everywhere, in business, in society, and in the church; but first and chiefest is the need for it at home, where it is the salt that keeps all things sweet, the aroma which makes every hour cheerful, and the divine light which shines star-like through all gloom and depression.

Young people are often imperious in holding everybody rigidly to a severe standard. They have little patience with the tempted, scant pity for the erring, and little toleration for those who differ from them in opinion or action. Perhaps there is a gain in this, since it is the young who must fight in the hand battles of life, who must encounter defeat yet not be vanquished, and who must do the pioneer work of each generation. Had they the mellowness, the tenderness, and the compassionate spirit of maturity and of ripe experience, they might be less fitted for the special tasks which are laid upon them. And yet the influence for good of many young people would be greatly increased if they were broader, less disposed to censure too swiftly, and more given to the exercise of genuine charity.

That is real charity which instinctively girds itself for the defence of the absent, who, as the cynical French proverb avers, are always wrong, at least, if wrong on their part is insinuated, if they are maliciously accused, the absent cannot speak or explain—and it is cowardice to strike them then. There are many cowards in society, and none among them are meaner than those who descend to listening to or retailing unkindly gossip or baleful slander.

True charity has its place too, in caring for the reputation of our friends. Let friendship be strong as a thrice-twisted cable, strong enough to hold, though a great strain be put upon it.

Emerson says: "There is no beautifier of complexion or form or behavior, like the wish to scatter joy and not pain around us. 'Tis good to give a stranger a meal, or a night's lodging. 'Tis better to be hospitable to his good meaning and thought, and give courage to a companion. We must be as courteous to a man as we are to a picture, which we are willing to give the advantage of a good light."

The lower form of love and charity, which disputes alms and benefactions, never flowers out well except from the spiritual grace of which it is the visible sign. A selfish man may put his hand to his pocket and give a coin to the loathsome beggar or the pallid cripple, simply because the sight of pain is unwelcome to delicate sensibilities. An unselfish person may refuse to bestow alms, even upon wretchedness, until he has investigated its cause. There is no real Christian love shown by the richly dressed lady who is accosted by the squalid woman with a poor dragged babe in her arms, and who gives pence or silver with which to get to the dramshop. There is true love in the self-denial which takes a long walk on a bleak day, to a forbidding neighborhood, which climbs steep stairs, or descends to dim cellars, and leaves food and fire beside a cold hearth. There is real charity in the heart which counts no sacrifice dear if made for Christ's sake, and which sends its gifts and prayers across the world, wherever there is need.

Unless we practise this divine and benignant grace, we have need to fear that we are outside the fold. We must, at times, let a passive charity, as well as an active one, be shown by our lives. There are few people who are not, now and then, misunderstood, and wounded by those they love. Ah! how sorrowful to be wounded in the house of one's friends! Is there a hurt that goes deeper than that? Yet, even when thus grieved and troubled, the Christian should not, in speech or thought, suffer himself to retaliate. To pray for those who despitefully use us, is the best solace and the surest balm for an injured heart. And then, to go cheerily on the life-path, putting the sorrow out of sight, if not out of mind, and to hope all things, believe all things and endure all things, in humble dependence upon Him who is the everlasting Love, is to realize light in darkness and joy in adversity.—Christian Intelligencer.

TRUSTING GOD.

How often do we hear good men bemoaning the fate of the country, as they contemplate the evil days on which we have fallen! How sadly do we frequently see the patriarchs of the Church shaking their heads over the degeneracy of the times! Now we would not constitute ourself an apologist for whatever may be blameworthy, whether in Church or State. All we have to say, just here, is this: Groaning over it, and croaking about it, will be of no benefit to the subject of our despondency, and, least of all, to us.

When Whitlocke, in 1653, was about embarking for Sweden, it is said he was greatly distressed, as he rested at Harwick at night, while reflecting on the distracted state of affairs in England; so much so that he could not sleep. As he walked the floor in his excitement, his Christian servant said to him:

"Pray, sir, may I ask you a question?"

"Certainly," was the reply of the ambassador.

"Pray, sir, don't you think God governed the world very well, all the time before you came into it?"

"Undoubtedly," was the answer.

"And, sir, don't you think He will govern it just as well when you are gone out of it?"

"Certainly," said Whitlocke.

"Then, sir, don't you think you can trust Him to take care of it over night, and that it will be safe in His care, while you can go to sleep?"

It becomes us to realize that God rules, just as certainly as that He exists. Is there not enough in this to quiet our anxieties, and to banish all groundless and useless forebodings? After we have faithfully and humbly done our duty, may we not then leave ourselves, our families, our friends, the country, the Church—may we not leave all these with God, feeling, the while, that they are safe in His hands? Why should we be bending double under our burdens, when it is written for our comfort and help: "Cast thy burden upon the Lord!"—Canada Presbyterian.

GOLD DUST.

Faith builds a bridge across the gulf of death,
To break the shock blind nature cannot shun,
And lands thought smoothly on the further shore.
—Young.

The greatest of faults is to be conscious of none.—Thomas Carlyle.

No man is so insignificant as to be sure his example can do no hurt.—Clarendon.

Bear the load of thy neighbor's poverty and let him bear with thee the load of thy wealth. Thou lightenest thy load by lightening his.—Augustine.

'Tis one thing to have our sins worn away from the memory, and quite another thing to have them washed away at the Gospel fountain.—A. Fuller.

The friend
Who smiles when soothing down the lonely couch,
And does kind deeds, which any one can do—
Who has a feeling spirit—such a friend
Heals with a searching balsam. —Percival.

Be not afraid of diminishing your happiness by seeking that of others. Devise liberal things, and let not avarice shut up your hand from giving to him that needeth, and to promote the cause of piety and humanity.—Archibald Alexander.

It is not by a person's seeking his own happiness directly that it is attained, but by a forgetfulness of self, and a consecration of thought, feeling, property and time to the interest of others.—Mary Lyon.

The maelstrom attracts more notice than the quiet fountain; a comet draws more attention than the steady star; but it is better to be the fountain than the maelstrom, and the star than comet, following out the sphere and orbit of quiet usefulness in which God places us.—Dr. John Hall.

God is more pleased with those who think everything right in the world than with those who think nothing right. With so many thousand joys is it not black ingratitude to call the world a place of sorrow and torment?—Jean Paul.

For a long time I felt myself to be a lost sheep, not knowing on whom to rely; and now, with the deepest consciousness that I have at last attained rest, I exclaim, "The Lord is my Shepherd. What is there that can harm me?" And as I look forward into the future, I exclaim, with David, "I shall not want."—Tholuck.

A little philosophy inclineth man's mind to atheism, but depth in philosophy bringeth men's minds about to religion; for while the mind of man looketh upon the second causes scattered, it may sometimes rest in them and go no farther; but when it beholdeth the chain of them confederate and linked together, it must needs fly to Providence and Deity.—Lord Bacon.

The man who has a kindly heart is most
In pattern like his Lord; for where the law
Of kindness rules the heart, the virtues draw
Together in companionship, and post
Themselves around that citadel of love.
The kindly man doth always kindly prove:
He has a word of sweetness for the child—
Of pity for the poor—of sympathy
For all who mourn, and truly glad is he When through his generous care some sorrowing face has smiled. —MacKellar.

THE ALPINE HORN.

There was a wild romance in its notes which was characteristic, in a very high degree, of all around. This instrument is about eight feet long, and its farther extremity rests on the ground. It is used among these mountains, not merely for the herdman's call, but as an invocation for the solemnities of religion. As soon as the sun has shed his last ray on the snowy summit of the loftiest ridge the Alpine shepherd, from some elevated point, trumpets forth, "Praise the Lord God," while the echoes, roused from their slumbers at the sacred name of God, repeat "Praise the Lord God." Distant horns on lower plains now catch the watchword, and distant mountains ring again with the solemn sound, "Praise the Lord God," and other echoes, sounding from other rocks, reply, "The Lord God." A solemn pause succeeds. With uncovered head, and on bended knee, the shepherd's prayer ascends on high. At the close of this evening sacrifice, offered in the temple not made with hands, the Alpine horn sounds long and loud, and shrill "Good night," repeated by other horns, while a thousand "Good nights" are reverberated around, and the curtain of heaven closes on the shepherds and their flocks.—Notes of a Traveler.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

The following items are from the Christian Union:

The Bombay Guardian says there has been in Cabool for centuries a professedly Christian Church, descendants of a hundred Armenian and Georgian families brought there by Nadir Shah. But this church has been a very defective witness for the truth. On the altar of the chapel is a picture of the Virgin Mary, with candles burning before it, before which the congregation kneel when the service is read. No pictures but "such as have been consecrated at Palestine or in Armenia are admitted in the chapel."

The attempt to restore the monastic system in the Church of England does not prosper. Brother Ignatius, who some time organized a monastery, is again deserted. Father Dunstan has left the monastery at Llanthony and resigned. First he applied to the Archbishop of Canterbury, then he offered his services to the London City Mission. The next day he visited Mgr. Capel. Eventually he, and all the community, joined the Church at Rome; but as there were but three novices left, the movement is not very significant. Brother Ignatius and five choir boys are now left to carry on the experiment.

On the 16th of December, in a small city of Eastern Bohemia, thirty-one persons were fined $2 50 each for attending a Bible service not connected with the State Church. The leader of the meeting was fined $12 50. On the 14th of December the attempt of the few believers in Stupitz, near Prague, to hold a Bible service in one of their homes was frustrated by the police. On the 1st of November the Austrian Cabinet decided that the Stupitzers might hold house Bible services with invited guests, but the needed document has not reached these persecuted people. All this in Austria, whose Constitution grants religious liberty to all citizens.

The missionaries in Zuzuland deny Sir Garnet Wolseley's statement that they are all traders. Rev. H. Knck, of the Hermansburg Society, writing for himself and four others, says: "When we came to Zulnland and commenced building our stations, with the permission of Panda and Cetewayo, we wanted working people, and got them from among the Zulus. These workmen required food and wages, and, as they did not understand the worth of money and could not make use of it, we were obliged to buy goods and pay the working Kaffirs with blankets, picks, etc., as they liked. We required oxen for working our wagons and cattle for consumption, and these we purchased by goods. My brother missionaries or myself never went about buying cattle, nor did we send out our Kafirs for this purpose. All the cattle we bought of the Zulus were brought to us at our stations, and we did not buy them for selling, but for our own use."

The first evangelical service in the Tyrol in a recognized place of worship was held at the church of which the Rev. Julius Ergensinger is pastor, on the 1st of last November. The little body of Protestants which has, since 1869, claimed the right of freedom of worship from the Austrian government through its leading men, has at last obtained not only freedom of worship but a church and dwelling house for the pastor. The opening of the church for public worship was an event in the history of the Tyrol. In 1834 the last Protestants were turned out of the country, and only within the last few years have evangelical residents in the Tyrol formed themselves into small congregations. The founders of the little evangelical body at Innsbruck came together on the occasion of the dedication of this house and chapel. English visitors to the Tyrol are invited to encourage the congregations of Innsbruck and Meran, and their pastors, by attendance at their services.

Lieut. Cambier, chief of the first expedition sent to Africa by the International African Association (founded by King Leopold of Belgium) recently arrived at Karema, on the western shore of Lake Tanganyika. He has obtained from the king of Fipa a piece of land, where the first station will be formed. It was Stanley who designated this place as suitable for the colony now to be founded. Karema is situated in the angle of a quiet bay and the Vonafipas, who inhabit that coast, seem to be peaceful negroes, and amenable to reason. M. Cambier reached Karema alone. This expedition originally comprised seven white travelers (including four lieutenants, two doctors and a naturalist); three died, one had to return to Europe to avoid the same fate, and two, alarmed at the difficulties ahead, retired from their engagements. M. Cambier, undiscouraged by these deaths and desertions, the treachery of Mirambo, or the bad will of the Arabs, pushed on and reached his objects. A second expedition is en route to join him, headed by Captain Popelin. These have also had a cruel experience in the African climate. They have been recovering from fever at Inpwapwa, and the chiefs of the two expeditions are in communication. Good accounts are given of the Indian elephants used in the second expedition. They have perfectly resisted all fatigues and privations, continuing sometimes forty-two hours without water; and thirty-one hours without eating, and marching 27½ hours loaded with more than 500kg. each. With reference to the discovery of the sources of the Niger MM. Zweifel and Monstier have traversed the Hokko and Limbah countries, which, covered with forests on Winwood Reade's visit ten years ago, were now found very little wooded, the demand for the oily almonds of the palm tree having induced the natives to plant oil palms in the place of forests.

Absolute obedience, it is boldly declared, is due to the Pope, at the peril of salvation, not alone in faith, in morals, but in all things which concern the discipline and government of the Church. Thus are swept into the Papal net whole multitudes of facts, whole systems of government, prevailing, though in different degrees, in every century of the world.—W. E. Gladstone.

NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN. - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1880.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

HINDRANCES AND HELPS.

It is well sometimes to compare our thoughts on great subjects of common interest with those of our neighbors. In our book column will be found a notice of a lecture delivered at the opening of the Montreal Presbyterian College by Principal Macvicar, on "Hindrances and Helps to the Spread of Presbyterianism." We give a brief outline of this able discussion, because several articles on the subject have already appeared in our columns, and Dr. Macvicar is evidently a very wise gentleman, for he thinks and argues largely in our line of thought!

The first hindrance to the spread of Presbyterianism mentioned is, ignorance of its fundamental principls among ourselves and beyond ourselves. Many only know Presbyterianism by some gross travesty on some of its doctrines; e. g., through a story-book's picture of predestination as fatalism, and making God a cruel despot; or by some distorted picture of certain features of our discipline and worship, as Puritanic and Jewish, and crushing all liberty under canting hypocrisy. Others, in the Church, are there either by birth or circumstances, and not by conviction or intelligent understanding of the Confession of Faith and Catechisms. They have outgrown the wisdom of the Westminster divines.

A second hindrance arises from failure of Elders to come up to the scriptural ideal of their office, and hence comparative inactivity among their ranks. Ministers and people fail to grasp the full significance of the fact, that ours is a Church apostolic in that it is PRESBYTERIAN—instructed, edified and ruled, under Jesus Christ by Presbyters. The spiritual functions of the eldership are not appreciated; the elders do not embody the talent and sanctified business power of the Church; they do not feel that souls are under their charge, and often do not know the communicants in their church; but they simply hold their office and do little or nothing.

Third, there is an imperfect exercise of discipline by excess and by defect. Unwarranted ecclesiastical meddling with the rights of people tends to disintegration; but it is less likely to occur to-day than an indefensible laxness in careful watching and ruling the flock. Presbyterial supervision is often neglected, when ministers are continued in charges where it is well known their usefulness has ceased.

Fourthly, hindrance springs out of erroneous notions respecting the ministerial office; either by making too much of it, or making too little of it. An aspiring sacerdotalism, a lording it over God's heritage, has proved fatal to ecclesiastical purity, and is not Christ-like, but divisive. It is ruinous to reduce the pulpit to a stage; to "hire" a preacher as one who can make funny speeches, and run a church financially in hard times; or while the people live in comparative comfort, to compel the pastor to live on less income than a carter has.

Fifth, there is a lack of sufficient number of true ministers of Christ. Of a certain class, who lack enterprise and self-denial, and are looking for "good livings," there are men to spare. But owing to the low spiritual life of the Church; the lack of faith in Christ's great enterprise of saving the world; ungnarded and mischievous conversation in Christian homes; and wrong pictures of ministerial "shady" lives, there is a great lack of faithful and zealous Samuels and Timothys, who enter the ministry under pious dedication to that grand work by devoted parents.

Sixth. Formidable hindrances exist in defective and unscriptural financial management. Under this head are discussed the subscription list, pew-renting, bazaars, soirees, &c.

What helps are there? An abandonment of every unscriptural method. Meet wisely, according to the Bible constitution of our Church, each hindrance. Give scriptural and historical instruction by voice and press. Fill souls, by light of past triumphs, with vast possibilities of the future. Show that our Church is not bounded by national walls, but is catholic and progressive. Above all work with living faith, honest lives, solid arguments, and sermons that are a consuming fire, full of Divine truth touching man's sin, Christ's sacrifice, God's justice, and mercy, and love.

So in substance argues and pleads this earnest divine. It will help all to ponder at length such truths, thus urged by our Canadian brethren, in these "Tracts on Presbyterian topics," and we are glad to re-enforce our arguments by this resume.

HOW CAN IT BE REMEDIED?

"I was much pleased with the article, 'What is the Matter?' in the PRESBYTERIAN of the 10th ultimo. It so fully expressed views that I have entertained for years past that I take the liberty of writing you to thank the writer, whoever he may be, for it. I think the great barrier to the advancement of Presbyterianism, especially in country churches, is that young ministers—many, not all—after having been in college, then three years in a seminary in the midst of highly cultivated society, and having become familiar with literature and science, being transferred to a country charge, cannot let themselves down to the interests, habits and views of their parishioners. How different it is with ministers of some other denominations. I am decidedly in favor of an educated ministry; but have some doubts as to whether seminaries are a blessing to the Church or not."

The friend from whose letter we copy the above speaks out plainly, and we think, excepting the latter clause probably, expresses the views of very many persons in our Church. The seminaries are undoubtedly, we think, indispensable, but cannot the evil referred to be remedied? and if so, how? That is the question, and we would like to have it canvassed.

ULTRAMONTANISM AND GALLICANISM.

These terms, which for ages represented the divisions of the Roman Catholic Church into two distinct and well defined branches, have a signification precise and expressive. They are not, however, well understood, we believe, by many who find them constantly recurring in their reading. We therefore give a brief and hastily prepared sketch, designed to illustrate the application of the terms in the past, and define their meanings in the present.

The Council of Constance (A. D. 1414–1417) solemnly decreed that the authority of that body and of every other general council of the Roman Catholic Church, lawfully called, should be deemed superior to the authority of even the Pope himself, and any contemptuous denial of the authority of council by the Pope or any other person, it was declared, would subject the offender to merited punishment. From this point for ages the extent of power attaching and belonging to the Papacy and the councils of the Roman Church was a matter of dispute. The term "ultramontanes" was applied to those who contended for the absolute supremacy of the Popes, extending even to the dethronement of sovereign princes, the unlimited power of regulating and controlling the affairs of States, or of the Church within their borders, and of determining such doctrinal questions as might arise. Those who denied this power to the Popes, as unrestrained by the authority of councils or sovereigns, were called Gallicans, or the Gallican party. These last were strongest in Germany and France, though even in Italy ecclesiastics at times openly denounced the Papal authority. The decree of Papal Infallibility, passed by the Vatican Council, 1869-1870, placed the Ultramontanists in direct opposition on the question of civil allegiance, to all the courts of Europe, and indeed to all the governments of the world. Ultramontanists now claim for the Pope of Rome the obedience and subjection of all Roman Catholics, even over and above what may be due to any civil government.

France has always been a centre of Gallicanism, and the term is sometimes restricted to the Roman Catholic Church of that kingdom. At times the disposition to oppose the aggressions of the Papacy has been latent or, during the reign of weaker sovereigns, apparently suppressed, but with the French the spirit of nationality has always been intense. Gallicanism as an exhibition of this national spirit existed centuries before the assembling of the Council of Constance. Pepin, in the eighth century, by his victories over the Lombards and the forced abdication of the rights of the Greek emperor, obtained the power of disposal of the exarchate of Ravenna, with other territories of Italy, and surrendered them to the Roman pontiff. Charlemagne, the son and successor of Pepin, confirmed these grants. Thus was conferred upon the Popes of Rome that temporal power which they afterwards fraudulently claimed to derive by donation from Constantine. Yet Charlemagne never yielded to the Popes his independence; on the contrary he decided ecclesiastical controversies in his own right and required of the Pope submission to his decrees. In 1269 Louis IX. published a pragmatic sanction which among other things decreed that "the liberties, franchises and privileges accorded by kings to churches and monasteries shall be maintained and no import or exaction ordered by Rome shall force the Gallican churches to give money to the Holy See, without the approval of the sovereign."

The decrees of the Council of Constance and those of the Council of Basel were adopted and maintained with more or less firmness through the reigns of a succession of French kings. An assembly of estates adopted them in 1438, and Charles VII. by pragmatic sanction declared them the fundamental law of the Gallican church. Even when the kings were submissive to the Pope, papal authority was resisted by the French bishops and parliaments and provincial estates of France. Louis XIV. came to an open rupture with Innocent XI, and assembling the principal prelates of his kingdom had four articles known as Declarations of the French Clergy promulgated. These articles reaffirmed the decisions of the Council of Constance as the law of the Gallican church, and declared that "kings and princes are in temporal matters subject to no spiritual power." Louis indeed soon revoked these declarations, but is exercise they were allowed full validity in the French state and church. They were reaffirmed by Napoleon, who courted or opposed the Roman heirarchy as his interest prompted. An attempt by Louis XVIII. to enforce Ultramontanism in France was opposed by the Chamber of Deputies and thus failed of legal sanction. Since the revolution of 1843 Ultramontanism has been predominant among the French clergy. Napoleon III., in the attempt to strengthen his power, without giving the force of law to his acts, countenanced the papal claims, and the Gallican liberties became no more than a name. The failure of the French prelates to maintain their protest against the decree of Papal Infallibility destroyed the last vestige of the French Gallican Church. The spirit of resistance to Ultramontanism survives, however, in the Old Catholic Church, and even yet more hopefully and more intensely than before, in the government of France and in the breasts of the French people.

WISE ACTION.

Cincinnati has a mayor who is determined so far as in him lies, to protect and defend the morals of that city. He received a petition to license a place of amusement of very questionable morality. He summoned the petitioners and ascertained, first, that they did not consider the performances immoral, but further that they would not permit their wives and daughters to attend. It would do for other people's wives and daughters, but not for theirs. The Mayor erased their names, it is said, and left the petition without petitioners. He refused to license and an appeal has been taken to the courts.

MULTUM IN PARVO.

The writer of the following gives our readers a good variety of interesting news, and we lay it before them with pleasure:

GREENSBORO, Jan. 23, 1880.

MR. EDITOR: The Presbytery of Orange met here again on yesterday. Six ministers and one ruling elder were present.

Rev. D. E. Jordan was appointed to take Mr. Hines' place as Chairman of the Presbyterial Committee on Education until the regular meeting of Presbytery, which convenes in Washington, N. C., the last week in March.

Another matter respecting a candidate for the ministry was taken up, and will be concluded at the regular meeting.

As my sheet is unfilled, it may not be uninteresting to say that I returned Monday evening last from a very delightful visit to Raleigh, preaching for Brother Watkins, commencing Thursday night and closing Sabbath night. Our services Saturday night were abruptly brought to a close, a moment or two after announcing the text, by the near and thrilling cry of fire. A stable only a few rods from the church took fire and was burned. Of course it emptied the church and closed the exercises for that night. Brother Watkins has a large and growing congregation and from all that I saw and heard, I feel authorized to say that I never saw finer promise for our cause than there is now in Raleigh. The ladies specially are thoroughly organized and active; everything has a hopeful outlook. The new Second church is approaching completion. It will be commodious and beautiful when finished. I went over it and was pleased with its arrangement. I hope it will not be long before I shall have the pleasure of sitting with my brother Atkinson in this church and preaching the glorious Gospel of the blessed God.

While in Raleigh I visited the State Museum, and spent an hour under the guidance of Prof. Kerr. I cannot begin even to convey my impressions. I think an hour or two or a day or two spent in going round and examining the collected specimens of minerals, woods, &c., his own magnificent map of the State, and other things so admirably arranged and classified, and named, specifying the counties from which they come, will give more and better information about North Carolina than can be gotten in six months, if at all, in any library in the State. My time was so occupied that, to my great regret, I was unable to get over to Peace Institute, nearer than to Prof. Bauman's, where I dined one day with several friends. I heard in several places "the Cooking Department" of study and practice, under Mr. Campbell, most highly and enthusiastically praised.

I should like to name other matters of interest as they occur to me now in recalling my short and very pleasant visit. Some very delightful moments spent in social Christian intercourse with old friends and some new ones formed.

Raleigh seems to be growing rapidly, and improving in every direction, in the number and attractive finish of its residences and public buildings. But I must stop; perhaps I have run on too long already.

Yours, &c., J. HENRY SMITH.

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

A lady writes: "We find your paper such a comfort under trials and difficulties that I take it up next to the Bible."

A very serious typographical error occurred in our issue of the 14th. Rev. Dr. J. Leighton Wilson transmitted $1,000 for the Endowment Fund of Columbia Seminary instead of $100, as we gave it.

"G. Washington Jones" is publishing in the Biblical Recorder a series of articles in a humorous vein, which certainly make pointed thrusts and deal heavy blows at the follies and worse than follies of the times, as they are exhibited in the pulpit and the pews.

The Methodist Advance comes to us from Durham, N. C. The salutatory is well written, and the initial number contains a well chosen variety of selections. In wishing it success we must qualify by saying, not at the expense of our old friend the Raleigh Advocate. Methodism in North Carolina ought to sustain both papers handsomely.

When the "Cooking School," let me say rather the school for teaching the art and science of cooking, was started at Peace Institute, Raleigh, we stated that its developments would be looked forward to with interest. The school was then, and we believe is now, the only one in the Southern States. How is it progressing?

The Baltimore Presbyterian brings forward testimony to the value of the Shorter Catechism:

"We knew an Episcopal gentleman who once stated he would not part with his knowledge of the Shorter Catechism for six hundred dollars. President Hayes, of Jefferson-Washington College, in his recent address before the Presbyterian Association of this city, gave expression to a similar sentiment in regard to the value of this Presbyterian document. A man or woman thoroughly permeated with its teachings finds it better intellectual food for the mind than the utterances of much of our modern literature. Its teachings tend to develop intellectually strong men and women."

The Presbyterian says:

"The Churchman is quite jubilant over a list of twenty-six ministers who have joined the Episcopal Church during the last twelve months. But the Presbyterian Church received fifty-eight ministers from other denominations in the year 1879, and made no ado about it. Yet why may we not solace ourselves, as the Churchman does, with the thought that "our church is attracting more and more the attention of those who stand around her, and that as her position and character and claims are getting to be understood, she is exercising a growing, attractive power upon them?"

But from a previous number of the Presbyterian it would seem that it does not regard such accessions as clear gain. Here is what it had to say:

"The Presbyterian Church is fast becoming an estuary into which a deal of loose ministerial drift from other churches is fast finding its way. We are getting too popular with a class who are of little value in their own church connections. If valuable men from other churches would come we would have some compensation for the rubbish which floats into our Presbyteries. Occasionally a man of real convictions, who is uncomfortable in his ecclesiastical relations and is too honest to serve a church while hostile to her doctrines or policy, comes to us and gives us real service; but valuable men, as a rule, are comfortable at home, and have usually too much personal and traditional love for the church of their birth ever to leave it.

The Christian at Work says:

"Among the mysteries to be explained in the Heavenly Kingdom is the problem why Providence permitted some men to fill—no, assume—the office of the Gospel ministry. Take the case of the very irreverent Cave-Brown—who, it would seem, might have much better dwelt all his life in a brown cave. He is an Establishment clergyman of Crowborough, England. A lady of his church having extended aid toward the erection of a Methodist chapel, he denounced her from the pulpit as a schismatic. Not only so, but finding ill in her cottage a poor woman who had refused to allow him to christen her child, he compelled the girl having the child in charge to get some water, saying the child must be christened at once. Then, as he had no surplice, and could not act without one, he called for a towel and put it over his shoulders, and then, fearing the holy water he had consecrated would be put to a profane use after the christening, he drank it up! He told the mother her two unchristened infants were "little demons." Visiting the sick he sends all others out of the room, and then makes himself their confessor, asks strange and disquieting questions, nearly driving them out of their wits, and, as the keeper of their souls, insists on administering the sacrament, and says that if they don't receive it at his hands they will be subject to eternal torments. It is a pity that these mountebanks of all denominations—Episcopal, Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Congregationalist—could not be driven out of the pulpits which they disgrace. It is to be feared many a good clown has been spoiled in the making of some peculiar clerical specimens."

The Herald and Presbyter indulges in some pleasantry at the expense of the convocations:

"The Convocations of Canterbury and York, solemn, dignified bodies, did some things at which newspaper writers laughed. Still, so long as they confined themselves to the proper cut of ministerial clothing, and kindred subjects, no fault was found. An English paper, however, in full sympathy with their work, noted a dreadful blunder in one of the one hundred Rubrical Amendments to the Book of Prayer, devised by them, and recommended to Parliament for approval. It says:

"'In the baptismal service the priest is directed to take the child in his arms and dip it in the water, but there is no mention as to when he ought to give it back to the parents. The inevitable result must be that babies will accumulate inconveniently in his arms. It is singular that the Convocation should have omitted, among its many suggestions, to provide for the removal of these babies. When everything goes by rule the rule should be perfect.'

"An American paper not at all in sympathy with the Convocations, shows an omission even more dreadful than this. There is, it says, no direction even to take the child out of the water. The minister is directed to place it in the water, and there the rubric leaves the matter. It is hard for the babies, when there is so much puerility manifested by ecclesiastical tinkers, who often make mountains out of mole-hills, and in their attention to trifles overlook more serious matters. This certainly should be settled. We shudder to think of a poor innocent thrust into the water and held there while a new convocation is called to settle the proper method of taking it out.

A Baptist brother comes to our relief. He has spent much valuable time in the study of the verb 'to dip,' and assures us that when a thing is dipped it is not left in the water. Both Worcester and Webster seem to agree with him on this point. They define the word as, 'to insert in a fluid and withdraw again.' This seems an insurance against drowning, but it leaves the babies in the hands of the minister, while the mother's arms are empty. Surely, the Convocation should amend the amendment so that mothers who bring children for baptism can get them back."

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

FRANKLIN CHURCH.

Two persons united with the church at Franklin, Macon county, N. C., of which Rev. M. R. Kirkpatrick is pastor, at the quarterly communion, first Sabbath in January.

LINCOLNTON CHURCH.

We have the statement of the membership and of the financial operations of Lincolnton church for 1879. It shows that present and absent there were at close of report 70 members. During the past year 9 had been added, 4 removed and 2 died; six members were married and two baptised. There were 65 children in the Sabbath School.

The total amount paid by the congregation, as represented by this statement, was $50. This includes pastor's salary for half his time; contributions for causes of benevolence, $54; and miscellaneous, $47.

Rev. B. F. Marable, who recently resigned the pastorate of the Goldsboro church so much against the wishes of his flock, has removed to Mt. Olive, in Wayne county, N. N. Correspondents are requested to note the change of address.

Mr. Marable, though not now in charge of a pastorate, expects to do as much preaching as ever.

MORGANTON, Dec. 19, 1879.

Mr. Editor: I send a few items, some of which you should have had earlier:

Yesterday we ordained two more deacons in the church at Newton, viz: Mr. Moses Abernethy and Mr. Coulter.

In this church several weeks ago we added two new elders to our session and ordained a deacon also. The elders are Judge A. C. Avery and Mr. R. K. Presnell, and the Deacon Mr. R. C. Perkins.

The new house of worship at old Quaker Meadows is about ready for use.

Members of the Morganton and Newton churches have again indulged their propensities, this time by the present of an elegant carpet. Very truly, R. B. A.

A WELCOME SURPRISE.

On the 12th day of January, 1880, Rev. R. A. Miller, pastor of the Monroe church, and lady moved into their little home. On the 14th of January they had an unexpected visit from the lady members of his congregation, resulting in many useful and palatable gifts. It is with great pleasure and thankfulness we make public acknowledgement of the reception of the many valuable gifts presented by generous friends. We trust that the Lord, who put it into the hearts of our Christian friends to remember us as "new housekeepers," and load our table so bountifully, will reward them daily with his best gifts. To all those friends we say, "thank you!" Thanks to the Lord for this abounding grace in the church which in its poverty still finds ways to show its liberality! May it abound yet more and more. May this be the spring whence shall flow the river which shall make glad the city of our God! E. M.

GREENSBORO, N. C.

The annual congregational meeting of the Presbyterian church of Greensboro was held on Sunday evening, the 4th inst. The usual reports from the pastor, the treasurer of the deacons, the Ladies' Missionary and Aid Society and from the Sabbath school were read. Among many interesting items we learn the following facts: The ladies have raised in the two years past for alterations and improvements in their church about $800 or $900. The amount of money raised last year was $2,500. The average for the last four years has been $2,875. Dr. Smith made 372 pastoral visits, in 102 of which he held religious exercises with the sick and others. The membership of the church is 318, of which 260 are residents and 52 non-residents. During the year 1879 fifteen have been admitted to membership and to the communion. There have been 12 deaths, 4 adults and 8 infants. Dr. Smith preached 114 sermons, 81 in his own church and 33 at other places. His lectures at prayer meetings and to the children and youth at Sabbath school and children's meetings have been 59. During the past four years 100 have joined his church, and he has baptized during this time 83 persons, of whom 20 were adults and 63 were infants. The ladies of his congregation had sent him a handsome present of a suit of clothing, coat, vest and pants, just as he closed his annual pastoral report. He made reference to this New Year's gift in the following terms:

"For the very handsome and valuable memento sent me on New Year's morning from the ladies of this church, and for other indications of kind remembrance from other persons, I desire to express my most grateful appreciation of these mementoes as token of such kind remembrance and of their continued Christian love. May God reward them and bless us in all our mutual relations and duties as pastor and people." M.

HAMPDEN SIDNEY, VA.

Dr. Thomas Wharey, of Briary, Charlotte co., Va., began, on Sunday, Jan. 11, a series of special services in the church at Hampden Sidney, at the invitation of Dr. Atkinson, president of the college, and Mr. White, pastor of the church. The meetings continued more than a week, with constantly increasing interest and with results that should cause thanksgiving and rejoicing in the hearts of all God's people. Seventeen of the college students profess conversion, others are greatly awakened, and the Christians of this community are revived and aroused to more active, earnest and prayerful work for the Master's cause. We trust that these are genuine effects of the Spirit and that we have relied on no other power for this time of refreshing save his presence and blessing.

It was devoid of all the suspicious circumstances which often attend such services. Dr. Wharey, though mighty in exhortation makes no groundless appeals to the feelings. He presents the truth in beauty and simplicity. He explains the way of salvation according to the Scripture. He shuts up the sinner to this way and shows him in detail the causes of his rejection of it. He dwells on the evil of sin, the helplessness of the sinner, the power of almighty grace, the love and mercy of Christ. A man who is converted under such Biblical presentations of the truth will "be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh him a reason of the hope that is in him." In short this seems to have been a Scriptural Presbyterian revival.

The Seminary session will close in about two months and a half, and a class of twenty-one young preachers will be graduated. For the information of vacant churches it may be well to give the names of these, with their respective Presbyteries:

Weisel Beale, Winchester; Jas. R. Bridges, West Hanover; Wm. Chinn, Cheesapeake; A. R. Cocke, Montgomery; Charles Ghiselin, East Hanover; W. J. Graybill, Montgomery; F. P. Harrell, Fayetteville; L. A. McLean, Fayetteville; W. H. Ochiltree, Lexington; J. Phipps, Holston; J. G. Praigg, West Lexington; W. H. Robertson, Abingdon; William Raff, Lexington; J. A. Smith, Maryland; C. Stokes, West Hanover; A. Sydenstricker, Greenbrier; H. M. Sydenstricker, Greenbrier; J. N. H. Summerell, Concord; R. A. Wailes, West Hanover; T. P. Walton, West Hanover; Del. Wardlaw, Nashville.

Two of these have already been secured by the Committee on Foreign Missions: Mr. Phipps will be sent to Greece and Mr. A. Sydenstricker to China. Rev. B. F. Thompson, of the class of 1879, will shortly join the mission of Pernambuco.

The recent arrival of Mr. Julian, from Concord Presbytery, and Mr. Thom, from Orange, brings the number of theological students from North Carolina up to seven—three in the senior class, two in the middle and two in the junior. But the churches of our Synod do not supply as many candidates as they should. It is the strongest Synod but one in the Southern Presbyterian Church, and yet in the matter of furnishing ministers it now ranks only fourth. Would it not be well for the pastors of churches to press the claims of the Gospel ministry on the attention of the young men in their charges? How rarely is this done! If the true method of deciding the question of a call to the ministry were explained and better understood, we would have more ministers. The remarks on prayer for seminary students, in a recent number of the PRESBYTERIAN, were important and timely: "Brethren, pray for us;" and pray too that the Lord of the harvest will raise up and send from among you more candidates, that the company of those that publish salvation may be great. W. W. M.

In Colorado there are now thirteen churches having 1,400 members. The first Baptist church planted in the State had thirteen members.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE MINUTES OF SYNOD.

At the meeting of Synod in Statesville, I made public inquiry of the Synod, as to printing the Minutes for 1879, and without formal action, it was clearly the mind of the Synod that the contract should be made with the lowest responsible bidder. Acting under such unwritten instructions, I accepted the proposal most favorable, the terms being cash on delivery.

The minutes are now printed, bound and wrapped, ready for mailing, January 19th. But the Treasurer reports that not a cent has been paid into the Synodical Treasury since the meeting of Synod held at Goldsboro, October, 1878! There is no money to pay even the postage, (not including the amount for printing;) and neither the Treasurer nor the Stated Clerk feels called upon by the honors of his office to advance the requisite amount. And I could not call on the young and accommodating printers, who have done the work at the lowest living prices, and, the difficulties duly considered, have done it very well and very promptly; I say I could not call upon them to advance, besides their time, work and material, the postage needed to send the minutes out.

So it is—the minutes are ready for distribution, and are lying in the printing office, awaiting further orders.

The Presbytery of Wilmington is the only one which has paid the assessment for 1879, having paid in Goldsboro in 1878, what, under the new schedule of assessments, was sufficient both for that year and 1879. All of the other Presbyteries are delinquent for 1879, Fayetteville also for 1878; and Mecklenburg with an arrearage for other years.

The Treasurer adds these modest "remarks" to the clear report made to the Synod at Statesville:

"Were all the dues paid to this date, that is, Mecklenburg, $187 50; Fayetteville $40 00; and all for 1879, now due, except Wilmington, $180 00, we should have $407 50, which would pay all back debts and print the minutes of the present Synod and leave a small surplus."

I am sorry to bring these matters to the public eye and ear. But the report of the Treasurer to Synod, and letters written both by him and myself have as yet borne no fruit. It was his suggestion, and confirmed by the judgment of wise and prudent men, that I should over my own name make such a statement in the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN. It may be, the delay of the Treasurers of the Presbyteries is due to the delinquency of churches, and so this note may reach all concerned, and relieve the present embarrassment.

In justice to the printers, let me add, that though the contract was a "cash contract," they were willing that I should have mailed the minutes at once, feeling sure that the Synod would in time meet its engagement. But I did not have the money to advance for the postage And I could only tell them—I shall not say with what feelings—that as nothing had been paid into the Synod's Treasury since 1878, and it was already in debt more than $300 00, I could not assure them when the account could be met.

I leave these statements, which I make with great pain and embarrassment, with my brethren for their consideration. When the minutes are distributed I wish to say something about them, and the delay in their publication. WM. S. LACY,

Stated Clerk,
Synod of North Carolina.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 20, 1880.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

Dear Mr. McLaurin: It gives me inexpressible pleasure to write you of what a blessed privilege we have just passed through. Last night closed a succession of eleven most solemn, simple, earnest and eloquent sermons, by the Rev. Thomas Wharey, D. D., commencing a week ago last Sabbath morning, in College church. This community has been for many years a "mount of privileges." Every Sabbath the Gospel is preached twice, especially during the time the seminary and college are in session. Here there is much reading and studying the Bible. Here there are many prayer-meetings, and many opportunities are offered for advancing in the knowledge of the truth, for growing in grace, for advancing to deep Christian experience, and reaching eminent piety. But notwithstanding all these blessed privileges, man will be human and abuse them. Sometimes the state of piety seems to be deplorably low. This is not only the case in the surrounding community, but even in the Seminary itself, where men are equiping themselves to preach the everlasting Gospel of peace to dying men. Well might the people of our land have their attention called to the fact that our Theological Seminaries should be borne upon the arms of the faith of our whole church to a throne of grace. Our people do not realize how much they should pray for young men in these institutions of learning. They should ever pray earnestly that the church may be delivered from a dead, an unconsecrated ministry; that the young men who are preparing for this holy, sacred and responsible office, may be sanctified and wholly dedicated to the work.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

WHAT IS THE REMEDY?

Mr. Editor: I have met with many persons who were very much interested in your editorial series, "What is the Matter?" Will you now enlighten us further as to "What is the Remedy?" P.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The N. C. Medical Journal enters upon its fifth volume greatly improved in appearance. It is double its former size and printed on very much better paper. We wish it success.

Breakfast for Two. This is the title of a very nice and neatly bound book, edited by Joanna J. Matthews and published by D. Lothrop & Co. The volume takes its title from the opening incident, and is a story of two little street Arabs, who were taken in hand by a young lady, and were put in the way of becoming good and useful men. Price $1 50.

Appleton's Journal. The contents for February are: A Stroke of Diplomacy; The Comedy Writers of the Restoration; Miracles, Prayer and Law; Life in Brittainy; The Seamy Side; Teaching Grandmother; The Russian Gypsies; First Impressions of the New World; Editor's Table, etc.

Lippincott's Magazine. This excellent magazine for February has arrived, and among its contents may be found: A Day with the Ottawa Cohantiermen; Adam and Eve; A Future Capital of the United States; His Wife's Nearest Relation, and others.

From the Presbyterian Printing House, Toronto, Canada, we acknowledge three able pamphlets, 10 cents each: Hindrances and Helps to the Spread of Presbyterianism, by Rev. Principal Macvikar, LL. D.; Catholicity of the Presbyterian Church, by Rev. Professor Campbell of Montreal; A Catechism on the Doctrines of the Plymouth Brethren, by Rev. Prof. Croskery, of Magee College, Londonderry.

We have heretofore noticed and commended Spiritual Songs, 1,088 Hymns with 509 Tunes, Chants, &c., by Rev. Dr. Charles S. Robinson. Scribner & Co., New York.

D. Appleton & Co. send us several books: Sebastian Strome, a novel, by Julia Hawthorne; Manch, another novel, highly praised, of which Mary E. Bryan is the author.

Also Great Singers, a book we should suppose of very great interest to lovers of music and musicians.

Lord Macaulay: His Life, His Writings, by Charles H. Jones. We prize this book highly. It is one of the Handy Volume Series, price 30 cents. Intended to supply those admirers of Macaulay—and who is not an admirer—who are deterred by the bulk and price from purchasing Trevelyan's "Life and Letters." A carefully discriminated compend of that work and others, it answers a capital purpose. The Appletons deserve great credit for bringing out such books so cheaply.

The Art of Speech is another capital work on diction, idiom, style and kindred topics, in two volumes. Volume I. is before us and so far as we have been able to examine, pleases us exceedingly.

The Sanitarian for January, A. N. Bell, M. D., editor, New York, contains Prof. Cabell's Annual Address before the American Public Health Association at Nashville, and other important discussions.

The Popular Science Monthly for February contains: The Origin of Criminal Law; Sir Porta's World of Plants before the Appearance of Man; How Typhoid Fever is Conveyed; Hanoverian Village Life; Maps and Map Making before Mercator; Ancient Methods of Filtration; John Stuart Mill; Imperfections of Modern Harmony, and others. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

The Catholic Presbyterian for January has the following table of contents: Theologians of the Day: Canon Liddon, by Rev. Professor Gibb, English Presbyterian College, London; Count Delaborde's Life of Coligny, by Ed. de Pressense, D. D., Paris; Family Training in the Christian Church, by Tryon Edwards, D. D., Philadelphia; Recent Proceedings in the Hungarian Reformed Church, by Prof. Bologh, University of Debreczen; Schools of Theology and Theological Investigation, by the Editor; The Attractions of Foreign Service, by Rev. A. F. Douglas, formerly of New Zealand; What is Presbyterianism? by Wm. P. Breed, D. D., Philadelphia; Gleanings from the Burgh Records of Edinburgh During the Reformation, by Rev. James Kennedy; Notes of the Day; General Survey. Price $3. 30 cents per number. Anson D. F. Randolph & Co., New York.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

At the Second Presbyterian church, on the 18th inst., communion services were held by Rev. J. E. Booker, the pastor. Five members were admitted to the congregation. The quarterly voluntary offering at the morning service was $117. Rev. Alex. Sprunt assisted the pastor in the preliminary services on Friday and Saturday.—Staunton Vindicator.

Rev. G. T. Lyle of Greenbrier Presbytery has received an invitation to the pastorate of the church of New Providence, Hawkins county, Tennessee, and, as we hear, will accept.—Central Presbyterian.

Rev. W. E. Hill of Greenbrier Presbytery has asked Presbytery to dissolve his pastoral relations to the churches of Point Pleasant and Pleasant Flats, that he may accept a call to the churches of Newbern and Laurel Hill in Abingdon Presbytery. The church at Pleasant Flats was organized in 1872, Mr. Hill its first pastor, with seventeen members. It now numbers forty.—Central Presbyterian.

The postoffice address of the Rev. R. P. Taylor has been changed from Stone Mountain, Ga., to Yorkville, S. C., and that of Rev. R. B. Morrow from Brandon to Durant, Holmes county, Miss.

The following items are from the Christian Observer:

"The meeting at the Third church, Louisville, closed on the 16th inst. The church was truly revived, and eight persons were added to its membership. The pastor, Rev. J. H. Moore, was assisted by the Rev. E. W. Bedinger of Anchorage, and Rev. J. J. Cook of this city.

"At a congregational meeting of the church of Bardstown, Ky., held on the 18th inst. unanimous call was made for Rev. A. D. Mc-Clure of Oxford, Miss.

"Rev. A. W. Wilson writes from Rogersville, Tenn.: 'Nearly three weeks ago Rev. M. Honseholder, of the M. E. Church South, commenced a series of meetings in this place. He has been earnestly assisted by all the ministers of the place. The people of God have been revived, and more than 50 have professed faith in Christ. We hope this is only the beginning.'

"Rev. N. Keff Smith advises us that the telegraphic dispatch which announced the burning of the Third church, Atlanta, Ga., was an error. It was the building of the Fourth church that was burned. The congregation of that church is much scattered at present and without a regular organization.

At Gainesville, Fla., on Sabbath, January 11, Prof. E. P. Cater was ordained to the office of ruling elder and Messrs. J. C. Elmore and Philip Miller were ordained to the office of deacon. Several valuable additions have been made recently to the membership, amongst them an entire household—on profession of their face in Christ.

The following items are from the St. Louis Presbyterian:

"Rev. W. G. Wallace requests us to say that his postoffice is now Houstonia, Pettis county, Mo., instead of Sedalia, Mo.

"Rev. T. C. Barret of Cape Girardeau has accepted a call to the Mizpah church, in this Presbytery, and will remove thither without delay."

Rev. A. W. Milster writes to the St. Louis Presbyterian from Caledonia, Mo., Jan. 15, 1880: "Last Sabbath the Lord's Supper was dispensed in the Bellevue church. It will be gratifying to the friends of this, the oldest church in our Synod, to learn that she is still lengthening her cords and strengthening her stakes. Since our last stated communion 25 members have been received into her fellowship, all of them, save one, on profession of faith in Christ. Besides the regular Wednesday evening meeting a "young men's prayer meeting," conducted by the pastor, is held weekly, is well attended and promises much good fruit."

NORTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

Items from the Philadelphia Presbyterian:

"Ex-United States Senator Truman Smith was one of three persons who lately united with the Presbyterian church at Stamford, Conn., on profession of faith. He is eighty-eight years old.

"By the will of Mr. W. A. Drown, late of Philadelphia, the sum of $500 is bequeathed to the Presbyterian Hospital of Philadelphia."

BAPTIST.

Dr. J. C. Hiden has retired from the editorial chair of the Baptist Courier at Greenville, S. C.

Rev. T. R. Owen, pastor of the Baptist church at Wilson, N. C., has resigned, and will spend his remaining years in East Tennessee.

The whole number of Baptist churches in the State of New York is 872, with a total membership of 113,744, being seven fewer churches than were reported last year, and 377 more members. The baptisms are 4,133—874 less than the previous year.—Presbyterian.

Dr. D. M. Reeves, of the First Baptist church in Albany, has resigned his pastorate. It was the aim of Dr. Reeves to establish open communion in his church, or, as he says in the letter, "to bring our denomination back to the old basis of mutual toleration, set forth in the article of faith of 1689, on which all the original associations of this country were founded. That movement," he adds, "has failed." Although it represented the oldest orthodoxy of the denomination its advocates "have everywhere been pursued as heretics, and either driven to withdraw, recant or fall back into silence."—Christian Intelligencer.

UNITARIAN.

There was a decrease of twenty churches in this country during the last year, and of the 408 ministers 187 are not settled.—Presbyterian.

METHODIST.

The Alabama conferences are to have a paper of their own. It is to be called the Alabama Christian Advocate.

Collins Denny, a lawyer of Baltimore, has left the bar and entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Hon. Oliver Hoyt, the president of the board of trustees of Wesleyan University, has recently added $15,000 to his previous subscription for its endowment fund, thus making the amount $40,000.—Presbyterian.

A new denomination known as "The Methodist Church" has been organized at Philadelphia. Its doctrines are the same as those of the Methodist Episcopal Church, but its system is different. It has but one order in the ministry, that of elders, and to this order women are eligible. The only presiding officer is the President of the Annual Conference. The denomination has nine churches.—Christian at Work.

REFORMED EPISCOPAL.

The communicant roll of the Reformed Episcopal Church shows an increase of over 3,000 members during the last twelve months. There are now eight bishops and upwards of 100 clergymen, besides many candidates for the ministry.—Exchange.

LUTHERAN.

The Rev. E. A. Wingard has resigned the pastoral charge of the Lutheran church at Charlotte, N. C. He was induced to take that course owing to dissensions arising to his having worn a gown in the pulpit.

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

An artesian well near Brownwood, Texas, is 880 feet deep, and the auger has gone 800 feet through hard slate. The boring continues at the rate of four feet per day.

Another important old manuscript has been found in a famous Greek monastery on Mount Athos, which, it is believed, may throw some light on difficult passages in the Epistles of St. Paul.

We are informed that the cause of the resignation of Prof. A. R. Ledoux as State Chemist was his being tendered a position in New York with larger pay. There is a general expression of regret at the loss to the State of so talented and useful a gentleman.—Raleigh Observer.

Col. D. K. McRae delivered an admirable lecture in Wilmington on the evening of Friday last, the subject of which was Poetry. The large audience in attendance were highly gratified. This and other lectures which are to follow are delivered under the auspices of the Wilmington Library Association.

A gentleman from Boston, with some Wilmington capitalists, proposes to establish a glass factory in this city. The enterprise will be conducted on a large scale, and the work of erecting buildings be commenced very shortly.

The cotton factors hereabout claim that they have not made a cent on cotton operations this season. The fluctuations were too fast for them. Per contra, the farmers were never in better condition; they are not borrowing to any extent.—Raleigh News.

The idea of a branch railroad from this place to some point on the Richmond & Danville road at or near Concord is discussed among our business men. The idea is a good one and it seems to us, a very feasible one. The distance is only about thirty miles.—Monroe Enquirer.

Luther's wedding ring is on exhibition at the jeweler's, Herr Rothe, at Dusseldorff. The ring—which bears the inscription, "Dr. Martino Luthero Catherino von Bora, 13 June, 1525"—is a work of considerable art. On it is represented the passion of our Lord, the cross and the body of Jesus forming the middle, surrounded by all the chief tools of the carpenter's craft, a small sparkling ruby recalling the holy blood.

From the Wilmington Star we learn that Mr. D. M. Fennell of New Hanover county lost by fire his entire crop of corn and fodder and about one half of his crop of peas, the other half being of the latter being stacked in the field. He also lost all his farming utensils. He saved his horse and buggy, which were in the lower part of the building. The fire caught on the top of the barn and was unquestionably the work of an incendiary.

John Wesley's red cornelian seal is now the property of a collector in England. It is engraved with a Roman cross standing on a small mound or elevation, and surmounted by a five-pointed celestial or "martyr's crown." The motto which surrounds it is inscribed in English and in Roman type: "Be thou faithful unto death." The same collector owns the arm-chair of Dr. Watts; it is one of the quaint old diamond seated chairs.

The uniform of the late Prince Imperial has been recovered from the Zulus. The clothes are pierced in front with numerous holes, showing that he faced the savages bravely. His revolver was also recovered in a shattered condition. It appears he was first wounded by an assegai thrown from a distance of about ten yards. He emptied his revolver at his enemies, who closed too quickly to allow him to reload, so he threw his revolver at his nearest assailant and drew his sword to defend himself. The Zulus declare that they have not seen the Prince's watch. So nearly surrounded were the whole party the wonder is that they were not all killed or captured

ECLECTICISMS.

A WORD TO POLITICIANS.

Baltimore Presbyterian:

Straightforward honesty will, in the long run, pay politicians as well as the rest of mankind. There is not one code of ethics for the ruler and another for the subject. Clap-trap argument and dishonest trickery may thrive for a season, but in the end they will bring ruin upon the person or persons indulging therein.

THE PREACHER'S THEME.

Pittsburg Christian Advocate:

But what we wish to make emphatic is the power still of a preached Gospel; for all these works of charity and religion must cease, if the preacher's lips are closed, and no one stands in his place to do his work. And another thing we wish to make emphatic; the power of the preacher will be in proportion as he preaches the Gospel, and not something else. He is called to do that, and if he does it not, he is a fraud. And where it is preached with greatest fidelity, there it has greatest power. There doubts are fewest and unbelief the weakest.

THE HOLY SPIRIT ESSENTIAL.

Herald and Presbyter:

In the plan of salvation there are many instrumentalities. Among them man has his place. He is to sow seed and watch it, and to reap the fruit; but his sowing and reaping do not save souls. The seed itself must be given him. The soil must be prepared, not by his efforts, but by the Holy Spirit. The same power which makes the seed grow in the soil of the field, must operate on the seed in the heart. Unless God gives increase, there can be no increase; without his blessing, our work will be barren of results; without his life-giving power, the Church will be as dead as the compound by which Prof. Tyndall hoped to prove spontaneous generation.

Best Book for Everybody.

The new illustrated edition of Webster's Dictionary, containing three thousand engravings, is the best book for everybody that the press has produced in the present century, and should be regarded as indispensable to the well-regulated home, reading-room, library, and place of business.—Golden Era.

COUGHS.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are used with advantage to alleviate COUGHS, SORE THROAT, HOARSENESS, and BRONCHIAL AFFECTIONS. For thirty years these Troches have been in use, with annually increasing favor. They are not new and untried, but, having been tested by wide and constant use for nearly an entire generation, they have attained well-merited rank among the few staple remedies of the age.

IF PEOPLE WHO SUFFER from the dull stupidity that meets us everywhere in spring, and too often in all seasons of the year, knew how quick it could be cured by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purge the bile from their system, we should have better neighbors and clearer heads to deal with.

TRUTH AND SOBERNESS.

What is the best family medicine in the world to regulate the bowels, purify the blood, remove costiveness and biliousness, aid digestion and stimulate the whole system?

Truth and soberness compel us to answer, Hop Bitters, being pure, perfect and harmless. See "Truths" in another column.

Messrs. Polk Miller & Co:

I have used Vest Pocket Cure in my family for ten years, and have taken it for a Dyspepsia Colic, which threatened my life, and was cured, eating any diet without hurt. I have recommended it to other sufferers with happiest results. It is the best tonic and corrective I ever knew. For prostration from Dyspepsia or Liver Disease it is invaluable.—Rev. ROBERT W. WATSON, A. M., Va.

Nothing is uglier than a crooked boot or shoe; straighten them with Lyon's Heel Stiffeners.

MARRIED.

☞No notice of a marriage or death will be inserted unless accompanied by a responsible name, which is wanted not for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.

On the 20th of January, near Garibaldi, by Rev. R. Z. Johnston, Dr. W. W. DAVIS and Miss JULIA LEEPER, of Gaston county, N. C.

On the 20th inst., in Gaston county, by Rev. J. J. Kennedy, Mr. B. F. LENHARDT and Miss V. E. COX.

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 20, 1880, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. James L. Corbett, by Rev. K. McDonald, Mr. RUFUS F. HERRING and Miss KATE S. CORBETT. Both of Sampson county, N. C.

In the M. E. church in Elizabethtown, on the 22d January, by the Rev. A. McFadyen, Dr. GEORGE L. CLARK and Miss ALICE HENDON CROMARTIE, daughter of Mr. George Cromartie.

At the residence of Mrs. Sarah C. Miller, Jan. 14, by Rev. J. Alston Ramsay, Mr. D. R. RUSSELL and Miss JULIA JOSEPHINE MILLER.

DIED.

☞Obituary notices must be paid for in advance. The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

In Charlotte, N. C., on the 27th December, 1879, HENRY WHITE, youngest child of George E. and Mrs. Bessie W. Wilson, aged 17 months and 27 days.

So bright, so beautiful, so gentle, he was too lovely for this world, and our Father only lent him to us for a little while to brighten our lives. During the merry Christmas time, when hearts and homes are usually so happy, the angels came for our darling boy and carried him back to his heavenly home, where he will be forever "Safe in the arms of Jesus."

Jan. 20th, in Lumber Bridge township, Robeson county, N. C., in the 33d year of her age, Miss ANNIE ELIZA CURRIE, daughter of Alexander H. Currie.

She was an intelligent and pious young lady, whose influence in various ways, especially in the Bible class and in the literary institution, will long be remembered. There was sadness in many hearts when it was known that Annie was dead—she "being dead, yet speaketh."

WILMINGTON MARKET
DURING WEEK
ENDING JANUARY 27.

THE attention of all persons interested is called to the fact that strict personal attention is given to the collection of the necessary information, and the careful preparation of our MARKET REPORT, so as to give a correct general review of transactions and prices, for the week ending each Tuesday morning.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—Steady to dull throughout until Monday. On Monday sales at 39 cents.

ROSIN—Strained and Good Strained $1 27½ and $1 30 respectively throughout. Market generally firm.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—As for weeks past this article has been taken on arrival at $1 60 for Hard and $3 60 for Yellow Dip.

TAR—On Wednesday sales at $1 90 per barrel. On Thursday price fell to $1 10, and at these figures lots have been taken since as they reach the market.

COTTON—On Wednesday quoted without transactions, at 12½ cents per lb for Middling; Thursday nominal at 12 cents; Friday, sales at 12½ cents; Saturday and Monday quiet and nominal at figures last named.

CORN—Market quiet. White corn 68@69 cents.

TIMBER—Owing to the continued drought preventing timber from coming forward there has been little or none on the market. We hear of sales of but one raft Common Mill at $7 50.

OUR PAPER.

We do not forget that the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN is read not only by Ministers who by reason of training and study are specially fond of profound discussions of religious philosophy, but by both sexes, and by all classes and conditions of persons. Consequently it is our aim to present such a variety of moral and religious reading that the paper will commend itself to all as a popular vehicle of such information and instruction as not only ought to be read, but as will be read by young and old, rich and poor, clergy and laity, learned and unlearned. We present no elaborate prospectus. Any who may desire to know more of the paper, are referred to its friends, who may be found in almost any community, or we will gladly send sample copies on application.

OUR PREMIUMS.

We invite special attention to the premiums we are offering with the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN for the ensuing year.

To any subscriber, the paper one year, and Kitto's Cyclopedia ($5 00 edition) for $4 75.

The paper one year and Smith's Bible Dictionary ($4 50 edition) for $4 50.

The paper one year and Cruden's Unabridged Concordance for $4 00.

To any one sending us THREE new subscribers at $2 65 each we give

SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY,

OR

THE LIFE OF ST. PAUL

As a premium for two new subscribers, at $2 65 each, we give

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.

To every New Subscriber at $2 65 we will give a MAP OF PALESTINE, 28x42

We have sent this Map to a large number of persons and feel justified in saying it gives entire satisfaction. The publisher's price is $1 00.

The Cyclopedia and the Bible Dictionary are very cheap—exceedingly cheap. And

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE,

COMPLETE—UNABRIDGED,

Being an index to every important word in the Scriptures and the Apocrypha—with full definitions of the Theological and Scriptural meanings of words, and having the texts indicated with the respective meanings. We say this Concordance—the best probably in the world is a marvel of cheapness. No Christian family—or other family—should be without it.

WE SPECIALLY OFFER

The Paper one year with the

CONCORDANCE,

To any new Subscriber for $3 50.

In all cases we prepay postage.

WHOLESALE PRICES.

☞These quotations represent the wholesale prices.

ARTICLES.	PRICES.
BACON—Western Smoked—
Hams	10 a	12
Sides, per lb	0 a	7½
Shoulders	a	6½
Dry Salted—
Sides, per lb	0 a	7½
Shoulders	0 a	6
CHEESE—Northern Factory, per lb	0 a	11
Dairy, cream per lb	00 a	14½
State, per lb	00 a	10
COFFEE—Rio, per lb	18 a	18
Laguayra, per lb	18 a	20
CORN MEAL—per bush in sacks	80 a	82½
DOMESTICS—Sheetings, 4-4, per yd	a	7½
Yarn, per bunch	00 a	85
FLOUR—Fine, per bbl	5 00 a	5 00
Super, Northern, per bbl	5 50 a	6 00
Extra do. " per bbl	6 25 a	6 50
Family " per bbl	7 50 a	9 00
City Mills—Extra Super, per bbl	0 00 a	7 50
" Family, per bbl	0 00 a	8 00
" Extra do., per bbl	0 00 a	8 50
GLUE—per lb	14 a	16
GRAIN—Corn, in sacks, per 56 lbs from store—white	77½a	80
CORN, wholesale, in sacks	72½a	72½
Corn, mixed, wholesale in sacks	70 a	72½
Corn, Cargo, per 56 lbs, bulk	68 a	70
Oats, per bushel from store	60 a	62½
Peas, Cow, per bushel	60 a	65
HOOP IRON—per ton	90 00 a	95 00
LARD—Northern, per lb	9½ a	10
North Carolina, per lb	10 a	11
LIME—per bbl	0 00 a	1 00
MOLASSES—West Indies, old crop	00 a	30
" " bbls	00 a	32½
" new crop	35 a	37
" " bbls	37 a	39
New Orleans	00 a	50
Sugar House, hhds, per gal	00 a	28
" " bbls, per gal	00 a	34
Syrup, bbls., per gal	40 a	55
NAILS—Cut, 4d to 20d, per keg	00 a	4 00
OILS—Kerosene, per gal	13½a	15
Lard, per gal	1 00 a	1 10
PEANUTS—per bushel	75 a	1 05
PORK—Northern, City Mess	14 50	15 00
SALT—Alum, per bag of 4 bushels	75 a	1 00
Liverpool, per sack	0 00 a	95
Liverpool fine, per sack	0 00 a	1 75
SUGAR—Cuba, per lb	8½a	10½
Porto Rico, per lb	0 a	7½
A—Coffee, per lb	9 a	11
B— " per lb	9 a	11½
C— " per lb	8½a	9
Ex. C— per lb	0 a	9½
Crushed, per lb	00 a	11½
SOAP—Northern, per lb	5 a	7
Crampton's N. Y. Palm Soap, per box 100 lbs., ½ bars	0 00 a	4 20
TIMBER—Shipping, per M	12 00 a	13 00
Mill Prime, per M	9 00 a	11 00
Mill Fair, per M	6 50 a	8 50
Inferior to Ordinary, per M	3 00 a	7 00

The Paper for Mothers,

TEN-MINUTE SERMONS TO CHILDREN,

FOR

SABBATH AFTERNOON READING.

By W. W. Newton, J. G. Merrill, Frank Beard, B. T. Vincent, W. F. Crafts and Jas. M. Ludlow, in

THE CHRISTIAN UNION,

27 Park Place, New York.

Per annum, $3; clergymen, $2.50; sample copies free.

jan 28 — 969-1t

Every Lover of Stories should read THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS, for besides being an unexcelled general Newspaper, every issue contains Six Completed Stories, pure in tone, yet rich in dramatic interest and power. The Chicago Weekly News, now in its seventeenth year of publication, is a large 32 column paper, and costs only Seventy-five Cents a Year, postage included. The cheapest Weekly in the United States. THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS, 123 Fifth Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE DEAF HEAR THROUGH THE TEETH! ... THE DENTAPHONE ... AMERICAN DENTAPHONE CO., 301 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

dec 24 — 624-1 8t

FITS CURED PROMPTLY AND PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.

nov 19 — 619-18t

HOMES
in Western Arkansas.

The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway offer for sale the best LANDS in the West or South-West, with healthy climate, fertile soil, and not affected by drouth. Easy terms of sale. Full information. Apply to W. D. SLACK, Land Comr., Little Rock, Ark.

dec 24 — 624-18t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THOS. A. McNEILL. — FRANK McNEILL.

McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.

Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. — 598 1y.

AGENTS WANTED For the handsomest and CHEAPEST BIBLES Ever furnished Agents. Extra Terms and Large CASH PREMIUMS. FORSHEE & McMAKIN, Cincinnati, O.

oct 8 — 618-13teow

BLYMYER M'F'G CO. BELLS ... Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.

dec 3 — 631-eow-1y

Sawing off a Log,
Easy and Fast.

Our latest improved sawing machine cuts off a 2-foot log in 2 minutes. A $100 PRESENT will be given to two men who can saw as much in the old way, as one man can with this machine. Circulars sent free. W. GILES, 741 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

jan 14 — 627-4teow

CATARRH ... DR. J. K. ROSS, Centreville, Ind.

jan 21 — 628-4t

SALT
AND
GUANO.

5,000 Sacks

LIVERPOOL SALT,

6,500 Sacks

Peruvian Cotton Guano,

Now landing and for sale low by

WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.

1880.

WHO Shall be President? Who Shall be Governor?

Subscribe for the

RALEIGH OBSERVER,

A Democratic Newspaper,

"The Old Reliable,"

SAMUEL A. ASHE, Editor and Owner.

Daily, per annum, $6. Weekly, per annum, $2. Postmasters and agents allowed a liberal commission on all new subscribers they may obtain for THE OBSERVER.

The Editor of THE OBSERVER requests his friends in the various parts of the State to interest themselves in getting up clubs and otherwise extending the circulation and influence of THE OBSERVER during the campaign year of 1880. By their assistance he hopes to make THE OBSERVER still more acceptable and more useful to the cause of Democracy.

jan 21 — 4t

PROVERBS.

"Sour stomach, bad breath, indigestion, and headache easily cured by Hop Bitters."

"Study Hop Bitters books, use the medicine, be wise, healthy and happy."

"When life is a drug and you have lost all hope, try Hop Bitters."

"Kidney and urinary trouble is universal, and the only safe and pure remedy is Hop Bitters—rely on it."

"Hop Bitters does not exhaust and destroy, but restores and makes new."

"Ague, biliousness, drowsiness, jaundice, Hop Bitters removes easily."

"Boils, pimples, freckles, rough skin, eruptions, impure blood, Hop Bitters cure."

"Inactive kidneys and urinary organs cause the worst of diseases, and Hop Bitters cures them all."

"More health, sunshine and joy in Hop Bitters than in all other remedies."

Hop Cough Cure and Pain Relief is the best.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Lynch's Select School,

HIGH POINT, N. C.

An English, Mathematical, Classical, Commercial and Scientific Academy,

MAJ. W. B. LYNCH, A. M., Principal.

B. P. PRICE, A. B., Assistant.

Spring session of 1880 begins January 21st. Board and Tuition $80. For circulars address the Principal.

dec 17 — 623-6t

READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN

If you wish to be satisfied deal with

W. J. MOTT,

—Dealer in—

BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.

Keeps on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain his reputation in this regard. I will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,

W. J. MOTT,

North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.

P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult me either by mail or in person.

nov 19 — 619-tf

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.

THE SPRING TERM of 1880 opens Thursday, January 15. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks.

Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.

Address MRS E. N. GRANT, Principal

feb 20 — 528-1y

PEACE INSTITUTE,
For Young Ladies,
RALEIGH, N. C.

THE Spring term commences on the 16th of January 1880, and closes the 1st of June following.

The total expense of a boarding pupil for one term is $120, payable in advance. This amount will include board, with washing, fuel, lights, furnished room and servant's attendance, tuition in English branches and Latin, Calisthenics, Text Books and Stationery used for school purposes. For $150 all the above, with Instrumental Music and use of Piano.

For circular containing particulars as to terms, Course of Study, &c, address

REV. R. BURWELL & SON,
Raleigh, N. C.

dec 24 624-3m

$5.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., 218 Fulton St. N.Y.

oct 8 — 613-26t

EGG MACHINES.

BROWN LEGHORNS — Mature Earlier. Lay Earlier. Produce More Eggs. Are Most Happy. Are Most Profitable. Of All Fowls.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.

WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.

Our Trimming Department is Complete, and comprises the leading styles.

Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.

We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.

Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.

The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.

N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.

nov 5 — 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.

THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the

Latest and Most Approved Style.

To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.

"First Come, First Served."

MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

apl 23-tf

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
Charlotte, N. C.,

KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will

Compete in Prices,

—EITHER—

WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,

With any Market.

All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods

VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.

We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y — P. O. Box 185.

DeROSSET & NORTHROP,
FIRE AND MARINE
INSURANCE AGENTS,

REPRESENTING { Standard American AND English Companies.

28 North Water Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

nov 19 — 619-tf

HALL & PEARSALL

OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of

100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER,
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.

sep 3—608-tf

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER.
Send your orders by mail.

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.

BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.

LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.

The Remington Sewing Machine,

A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.

Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon,
Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.

GEO. A. PECK.
25 South Front Street.

dec 10 — 6?2-tf

AGENTS READ THIS

We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.

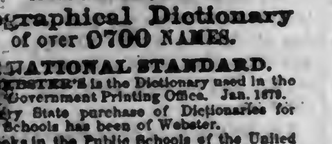
nov 19 — 619-6m

BETHEL ACADEMY,
DAVIDSON COLLEGE (P. O.) N. C.

Rev. L. K. GLASGOW, A. M. Principal.
Miss ELLA W. FLEMING, Assistant.

NINTH semi-annual session begins January 26, 1880. Boarders in Principal's family pay in advance for all expense except books, per quarter (10 weeks) $30.

For circulars containing testimonials from well-known educators and from patrons, address the Principal. — dec 31-tf



WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED.
NEW EDITION.

Now added, a SUPPLEMENT of over 4600 NEW WORDS and Meanings,

ALSO ADDED, A NEW

Biographical Dictionary

of over 9700 NAMES.

THE NATIONAL STANDARD.

WEBSTER'S is the Dictionary used in the Government Printing Office. Jan. 1879.

Every State purchase of Dictionaries for Schools has been of Webster.

Books in the Public Schools of the United States are mainly based on Webster.

Sale of Webster's is 20 times as great as the sale of any other series of Dictionaries.

THIRTY-TWO THOUSAND COPIES have been placed in the public schools of the U. S.

Engravings,—contains 3000, nearly three times as many as any other Dictionary.

Recommended by State Supt's of Schools in 35 States, and by 50 College Pres'ts.

Is it not

THE NATIONAL STANDARD?

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass.

THE MARVEL COPYIST.

NO COPYING PRESS REQUIRED. Most simple process invented. One hundred copies of circulars, letters, price-lists, plans, drawings, music, church reports, Sunday school lessons, &c., taken from a single writing. This process can be repeated for thousands of copies. Copies made on any kind of paper; also on linen, leather, &c. Nothing to get out of order. Agents wanted. Note size $1 50; Letter, $3 00; Legal, $4.00; Postal, $1.00.

A. S. CALDWELL,
Charlotte, N. C.

Jan 14 — 627-4t

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.

HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.

Children's Merino Under Suits---A great comfort and convenience.

CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.

LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.

PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,

In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.

A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.

OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.

Respectfully, — R. M. McINTIRE.

dec 3 — 631-1y

R. B. ANDREWS. — (ESTABLISHED 1847.) — S. W. WHITING.

R. B. ANDREWS & CO.

Men and Boys CLOTHING, Dress Shirts, Cuffs, TIES, SCARFS, Half Hose, Suspenders, Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Underwear, Trunks, Valises, &c.

Extra Large Sizes CLOTHING, A Specialty.

HATS AND CAPS, A Large Assortment.

We give special attention to orders from a distance.

LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.

NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh. N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods

—AT—

M. M. KATZ'S,

36 MARKET STREET.

BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.

Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.

DRESS GOODS.—Satin Melange, Cashmere Soie, Brocade Persan, Persan Raye, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.

MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Ete, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.

CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS. Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets. The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.

MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c., &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to

M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

oct 22

RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS!

NEW BOOKS

For Sunday School and Ministers Libraries. Send for Catalogue containing names of over

1200 Approved Books.

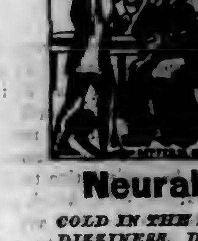
The only safe way to select books for your

SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES

Is to order those which have been read and approved by some competent person. Our DISCOUNT to MINISTERS and SUNDAY SCHOOLS is the largest offered by any Publisher or Bookseller in the United States.

Address orders for all Sunday School Supplies to

PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va. Or, 207 N. 8th St., St. Louis. Mo



FOUND AT LAST!
"DOBYNS' SURE CURE!"
Has NEVER Failed to CURE CATARRH

Neuralgic and Nervous Headache,

COLD IN THE HEAD, STOPPAGE OF THE NASAL PASSAGES, DEAFNESS, DIZZINESS, DIMNESS OF SIGHT, AND ALL KINDRED COMPLAINTS ARISING FROM NEGLECTED COLDS AND EXPOSURE.

It is used as a Snuff and is always ready and convenient for use, without extra trouble or additional expense. Contains no injurious ingredients; children of five years may use it with perfect safety. One box will last one month, and has frequently effected a complete cure.

Something Impostors can not and do not Show

To convince the poor sufferer that we are honest and thoroughly responsible for all statements made by us, we append the following:

TO THE AFFLICTED:—We have known A. T. Mitchell and Sam T. Dobyns, who compose the firm of Dobyns & Mitchell, and are proprietors of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" for a number of years. We know them to be gentlemen in whose honor and integrity implicit confidence can be placed; and we unhesitatingly say that the patrons of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" can rest assured that said firm are pecuniarily good and responsible for, and will faithfully carry out, any and all promises made by them. C. Alexander, Cashier Northern Bank, Paris, Ky.; Henry Speare, Cashier Agricultural Bank, Paris, Ky.; Matt Turney, Judge of the Bourbon Co. Court; J. M. Hughes, Clerk of the Bourbon County Court.

Many Testimonials as to its great virture and curative powers have been received, but the remedy itself is its best recommendation.

The Late ELD. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,

The gifted evangelist, and earnest, true-hearted Christian gentleman, says of this great Remedy, in the American Christian Review, of October 29th, 1878:

"We call attention to 'DOBYNS' SURE CURE' as a voluntary thing, and not for pay. We have been troubled with Catarrh of the head for the last ten years, and now, after using the 'SURE CURE' about three months, can truly say that we feel about free from the entire trouble in the head. We have also given the 'SURE CURE' to others—as we have been in public nearly all the time—and it has invariably given relief."

"I know that I am doing a public favor to the thousands who are suffering from Catarrh by adding my testimonial to its value." (Elder) W. K. PENDLETON, Pres. Bethany College, W. Va.—Nov. 3, 1879.

"It will afford me unfeigned pleasure to recommend your 'SURE CURE' to my friends." (Elder) ROBERT GRAHAM, Pres. Bible College, Lexington, Ky.—Aug. 18, 1879.

"I have been using your 'SURE CURE,' and it will do all you claim for it. I recommend it wherever I go." (Elder) T. T. WRIGHT, Chillicothe, Mo.—Nov. 4, 1879.

"Believing in its excellency, as I do, I shall recommend it everywhere I go." (Rev.) W. H. MILBURN, Jacksonville, Ill.—Oct. 4, 1879.

"I have given your 'SURE CURE' a thorough trial, and am now ready to personally recommend it." (Elder) C. C. CLINE, State Sunday School Evangelist, Louisville, Ky.—Nov. 17, 1879.

"Five years ago I paid a Cincinnati Physician fifty dollars for treating that which your dollar box has already completely mastered. I advise the afflicted to send on for the 'SURE CURE' at once." THOMAS MUNNELL, Mt. Sterling, Ky.—Oct. 9, 1879.

OVER 10,000 SUCH TESTIMONIALS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED by us, and will be cheerfully shown to anyone.

OUR TERMS:—We express or mail "DOBYNS' SURE CURE" to any part of the United States for One Dollar per Single Box, or three Boxes for Two Dollars. Druggists and dealers will be furnished with wholesale price list on application.

In ordering, please write your Name, Post-office, County, and State PLAINLY, and send money by Post-office Money Order on Paris, Ky., or by Registered Letters. We will not be responsible for money sent in any other way. Address all orders to the Proprietors. ☞Circulars free to all applicants.

DOBYNS & MITCHELL, North Middletown, Bourbon County, Ky.

COTTON!

IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants

For the Sale of Cotton,

Which they are prepared to do

On the Most Economical Charges.

They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.

ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,
Wilmington, N. C.

September 3d, 1879. — 608

CHEESE.

50 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,

For sale by

KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

SELECT BOARDING
AND
DAY SCHOOL,
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.

Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.

THE SPRING TERM of 1880 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE. Board and Tuition $100.

Circulars forwarded on application.

466-*jan.1.'79

Eggs from Premium Stock, $2 for 13

Can supply Partridge and White Cochin, Dark Brahma, Imp. P. Rock, White Leghorn and Bronze Turkey Eggs, from Best Strains. Stock acclimated. Order early, and save heavy express charges by ordering from

A. S. CALDWELL,
Charlotte, N. C.

Jan 14 — 627-4t

FOR THE FAMILY

Where Baby Joys Come From.

As I sat by my study table,
With my sermon strewing the floor,
My little sixteen-month darling
Came full sail through the study door.
He first bore away to the window,
Then veered to the bright hearthstone;
But soon in the farthest corner
Cast anchor, all alone.

First he rattled the quills in my pen box,
And then with the carpet he played;
Then he washed his hands in the sunshine,
And caught at the shadows they made.
One thing was as good as another,
For each gave a new surprise;
And the light of his childish gladness
Kept shining on out of his eyes.

As I wondered where all the joy came from,
This thought fell from heaven on me;
That when God and a babe are together,
A little fountain of glee
Must needs bubble up in the child's heart,
Because those waters are given,
And ever renewed, by the joy tides
Of the great cheerful heart in heaven

I had quite forgotten my sermon,
And my baby upon the floor
Was tearing the paper to pieces,
That were strewn from window to door;
But I knew that the thought he gave me
Was more than his hands could destroy—
For the love of the Father in Heaven
Had come to me through my boy.

—S. R. Calthrop, in Independent

Tim.

"I couldn't come; I hain't got no boots"

"Why, Tim, Miss Carrol gave you a pair a very short time ago. You must either be very careless or else very hard on your shoes to wear them out so soon."

Tim hung his head and kicked the black mud with his dirty bare toes, but offered no solution of the mystery as to the whereabouts of his boots; only reiterated the assertion that his being minus of boots caused his absence from Sunday school the previous Sunday.

"Well, Tim, if I get you another pair will you promise to come again and take better care of them than you did of the others?"

"He didn't do anything with them others," said another boy who attended the same mission school. "His mother sold 'em for whisky."

"Didn't do no such a thing," screamed Tim, his face red with rage. "My mother don't drink whisky; yours does, though, swears too."

"She does; she—." Tim raised his fist and Johnny was out of sight in a moment.

"Now, Tim," said his teacher, "that is very sinful. I thought you had promised me to be a better boy, and give your heart to Jesus. He wont love you if you give way to your temper in that way. Come, tell me all about your boots."

"Hain't got nothing to tel, and I can't be good when them fellows is always telling lies on me and my mother."

"You tell me the truth, Tim, and then I wont believe anything they tell me about you."

"Don't know nothing to tell," was the sullen answer.

Tim's teacher never could get in when she went to visit him. One day Tim, with his head out of the door, told Miss Carrie his mother was sick and asleep; then another time she was sure she saw the face of her scholar peering through the shutter, but there was no response to her repeated knocks at the front door, and she had a suspicion that Johnnie's story was true.

"I will give you a pair, Tim, but you must take care of them. Come to my house on Saturday and get them."

The homely, coarse face, all freckled and by no means clean, lit up, and Tim made his best bow, which was a most awkward one, as he said, "Thankee, ma'am," and scampered off, his old torn hat flapping in his face.

Saturday came and passed, and no Tim.

"I hope you are convinced that your paragon boy has deceived you at last," said Miss Carrie's fashionable sister. "He would rather play marbles or fly a kite on Sunday than go to your Sunday school. Pooh! Carrie, how can you bear to sit there in that room, inhaling the odor of soiled clothes and breathing the poor smell?"

Carrie smiled. "O, Belle, it is so sweet to work for Jesus, so precious to realize at the close of day that I have done a little, though it be but a mite, for the Master."

Miss Belle turned head and said, "What queer tastes some people do have!"

Sunday morning there was a timid ring at Mr. Boone's front door bell, and the servant told Miss Carrie a boy wished to see her. She left the breakfast table, and there at the hall door stood Tim, fixed up as neatly as his old torn suit would admit of, but with bare feet.

"Pl[illegible] can I have the boots now?" asked [illegible]

"Why didn't you come yesterday, Tim? I expected you."

"Co[illegible]"

"N[illegible] and go right to school," was Miss Carrie's parting injunction.

Tim darted around the corner, boots in hand. "That old Pat Reilly shan't have these nice boots," said Tim to himself. "I'll fix it so nobody can get them to sell for whiskey, or nothing."

School was dismissed, but Tim lingered and fidgeted about. Miss Carrie was engaged in conversation with the superintendent in regard to the mission work, and didn't notice him for some time. At last he pulled her dress, and hesitatingly asked her if she would mind keeping his boots at her house until the next Sunday. It was such an odd request that she looked her surprise.

"Well, ma'am, I thought as you have a big house you might find room for my boots."

"Yes, indeed, Tim, your boots shall stay at my house until next Saturday or Sunday."

"What's that dirty ragamuffin up to now," said Mr. Boone's stylish colored waiter, as he saw Tim standing in the elegant front hall, taking off his boots. "I declare! Miss Carrie is funny; she has taken that boy's boots up stairs herself!"

The mission school boy came every Sunday morning for his boots, and brought them back after school. This continued for several weeks, Tim keeping his counsel as to why he did so, and his teacher, respecting his silence, asked no questions. One Sunday he failed to make his appearance, so Miss Carrie made inquiry of Johnny as to the cause of his absence.

"Sick," was Johnny's reply. "He took sick with a fever last Sunday night, and he's awful crazy like."

The teacher hurried off to Tim's mother's directly after school, and found the sick boy feverish and very weak.

"Glad to see you, ma'am," said a coarse, red-faced woman. "Tim's been wanting to see you, but I told him I didn't like to send; that a grand lady like you wouldn't want to see such poor folks, decent ones, though, as we are."

The soft, white hand clasped the sun-burnt one of little sick Tim, and then gently smoothed the uncombed hair off the childish brow. Tim's eyes glistened with tears, and in a husky voice told her he was so glad she had come. Tim was going to die. The doctor, whom Miss Carrie sent to see him, said so, and the little fellow was near his end, his short life of eleven or twelve years was drawing to a close. Miss Carrie visited him daily, and provided him with comforts and luxuries.

"Teacher," said Tim, "I told you a lie once, about"—he hesitated a moment—"about her," pointing to his mother, who was nodding in a chair, her breath reeking with the fumes of whisky. "Do you think if I ask God to forgive me for it he will do so, if I don't tell you what the lie was about?"

"Yes, Tim, He will; you needn't tell me what it was about."

"Will he love me then, and take me up to heaven, and give me a crown, and a white dress, and let me drink of the water out of the river which the hymn says is always flowing there, and will he let me touch the gold in the streets with my bare feet?"

Miss Carrie wept and told yes, all things would be his if he would ask God to forgive him and give his heart to Jesus right there.

"I will, I will. Dear Jesus, forgive me for all my badness, and for that lie I told my teacher, and please make my mother a Christian, so she can go to heaven too."

Next day Tim told her he "felt so good," and Miss Carrie stooped down and kissed the face on which death had set his cold, gray seal. Another day and only the clay was there in the dirty, dingy room; the glorified spirit had fled Johnny had told the truth. Tim's mother was a bad, wicked woman. She sent him to the mission school to get clothes which she could sell or pawn for whisky, and little Tim was so loyal to her that he would not tell of her wickedness, even to his teacher.—Christian at Work.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Prof. Huxley on Snakes.

The opening lecture at the London Institution for the season was delivered by Prof. Huxley, F. R. S., to a very crowded audience, his subject being "Snakes," than which he said, there were in the popular apprehension few animals more symbolical of degradation and horror. Quoting the primeval curse in Genesis, he remarked that no creature seemed more easily destroyed by man, and few less able to defend themselves. Few wounds would be less harmful than a snake's bite, were it nothing more than the sudden closing of the teeth. Yet there were not many animals gifted with so many faculties.

It can stand up erect, climb as well as a ape, swim like a fish dart forward, and do all but fly in seizing its prey. The destructiveness of snakes to man was illustrated by the fact that 20,000 human lives are yearly lost in India by their poison; and it might safely be said that they are a more deadly enemy to our race than any other beast of the field. Prof Huxley spoke first of the three classes indigenous to our own climate: the ringed snake, the cornelia, and the viper. Of these the viper alone was venomous, which the differences between its structure and that of the harmless British snakes helped to explain.

It might be that the reason that there were no snakes in Ireland was the multiplicity of its other plagues. Everybody must be struck with the beauty of the harmless snakes, which formed the overwhelming majority—especially the grace with which they wreathed their bodies into circles, and their fine eyes. The venomous snakes were not so beautiful. None admired our native viper, with its yellowish scales. To adults its bite was far more seldom serious than to the young. Passing to snakes in general, of which there were many hundreds of distinct species, the lecturer illustrated in great detail the adaptation of their organization to its manifold work.

Very graphic was his description of the manner in which some of the more destructive snakes dart suddenly on their prey, twisting themselves round its body, crushing it into a shapeless and writhing mass, and at last swallowing it whole. He pointed out some very curious arrangements in the anatomical mechanism and jawbones illustrative of the statement that the snake cannot properly be said to swallow his prey; he holds on to it rather, gradually working it down his throat in a most leisurely manner, but never letting it go. He would take a sleep of six weeks before giving up his task, and if the morsel were too big would sometimes die in the effort to get it down. Of course the snake required a very fully developed and effective apparatus of salivary glands for this purpose.

The poison-bag of the venomous snakes was nothing but a modification of the salivary glands of the harmless species, the structure of both kinds being in almost all respects not only parallel throughout, but almost identical. As another instance of close relationship it was shown that the sharp channel needle which conveys the poison of the cobra, and its congeners, is nothing but the development of the tooth which these murderous reptiles possess in common with innocuous snakes. The fact that the salivary gland was the poison laboratory of the deadly snakes, as well as the known properties of the saliva of dogs or other living creatures affected with rabies appeared to Prof. Huxley to point out the direction of the solution of the difficult problem of the cause of snake poisoning and of a possible antidote against it. At present there was no man living who could heal the bite of the cobra, except by cauterization in very fresh cases.—London Times.

The Professor's Chair.

DIAMONDS.

Although the Professor is not so very intimate terms with these precious stones yet he knows a thing or two about them which may be interesting, especially since there is so much talk just now about making them by artificial means.

It is hard to believe that the diamond with its flashing light can be any relation to the piece of black, grimy charcoal with which you light your fire. In all the world there are not two things more unlike. But, strange to say, they are precisely the same. The charcoal is carbon and so is the diamond—carbon crystalized. What is it that makes the diamond so valuable when the charcoal is so cheap? Is it the crystalization? Well, not altogether. In 1821 a Frenchman named Latour really succeeded, as he thought, in manufacturing diamonds. That is, he succeeded in crystalising carbon. But he could not make the crystal scintillate light. It was hard enough to scratch glass and steel, and could not itself be scratched by other stones. It was crystalized carbon—there was no doubt about that. But it had no fire, it shed no rays, and people did not want it. It is this power of refraction that distinguishes the diamond from all other stones, and from all its imitations, and from all other forms of carbon, and gives it its great value; that makes the Koh-i-noor worth a million of dollars when you can buy a pailful of charcoal for three cents. The Professor once paid a visit to the Koh-i-noor. It reposes in a great glass cage strongly protected with iron bars in a stone-walled room, of the Tower of London, and is guarded by several soldiers. The Professor and his party were allowed to walk around the cage, and look at the jewels—there were others besides the Koh i-noor—as they walked. On no account were they to stop. It was very elegant, but the Professor did not feel in the least covetous. He would far rather Queen Victoria had it than himself, though if she ever has it broken up he wouldn't mind having two or three of the splinters for shirt studs.

This remarkable diamond, which is the finest, though not the largest in the world, was brought from India, where it belonged to the Great Mogul. Most of the great diamonds, indeed, which now belong to the kings and queens of France, came from that country, stolen in many instances, or appropriated as the spoils of war by the Dutch and English conquerors. Among these is the Mattam diamond, which once belonged to the Rajah of Borneo. It is pear-shaped, and was found in Borneo in 1760. On one occasion it is said to have caused a bloody war. Another of these Indian diamonds is the Orloff, which is set in the scepter of the Tsar of Russia. This stone once formed one of the eyes of an idol in a Brahmin temple, and afterwards was set in the throne of Nadir Shah, from which a Frenchman stole it one day when the Shah was drunk, and carrying it to Malabar sold it for $44,000. The purchaser, who was an American, afterwards disposed of it to the Empress Catharine of Russia for $340,000, a patent of nobility, and $15,000 a year for life. Still another is the Regent diamond, one of the French crown jewels, which was bought by the Duke of Orleans from Pitt, the Governor of Fort George, India, in the year 1717, for $675,000. Pitt said he bought the jewel in Golconda of a Hindoo merchant, but it was always believed that he stole it; an opinion which the poet, Pope, expressed in the lines:

"Asleep and naked as the Indian lay
An honest factor stole the gem away."

This diamond disappeared during the French revolution but was afterwards mysteriously restored, and during the Emperor Napoleon's reign was worn by him in the pommel of his sword.

How much money is invested in diamonds can only be guessed from the estimate that one-sixth of all the wealth of the world consists of precious stones, of which the diamond forms the largest and most valuable part. Every now and then some one announces that he is on the eve of an important discovery by which charcoal is to be turned into diamonds, but so far no one has met with any better success than the Frenchman, Latour. Just now an Englishman, Mactear, is working on the problem, but Mr. Maskelyne, of the mineral department of the British Museum, who has examined into his process, says that as yet there is no evidence of the existence of crystalline carbon among his specimens. Of course it is only the rarity of diamonds that keeps their price so high, and if a way could be found to manufacture them they would probably become so cheap that nobody would want them. This would be bad for the kings and queens who have so much money in them, but it wouldn't hurt the Professor a bit.

A more probable source of cheapening the diamond market, though, is the discovery of new fields. Formerly diamonds came only from India; in the eighteenth century they were discovered in Brazil and very lately fine fields have been found in South Africa. In the rough the stones are not all brilliant, and it is only when they are polished and cut with their own dust that they gain the fire that makes them the most beautiful and precious jewels in the world.—Christian Union

A Roman Treasure Trove.

Early in a recent morning a lad engaged in repairing the drain of the house No. 23 Via della Stelletta, found a little shiny piece of metal and put it in his pocket, waiting for the chance of showing it to some connoisseur. In the meanwhile a good deal of the dirt from the drain was carted away in the direction of Porta Angelica. The lad had his piece examined by a goldsmith opposite, and he was just receiving twenty francs for it when the head mason and the owner of the house, who had heard somehow of the affair, came to stop the bargain at the right moment. Search was made immediately on the spot, and 142 gold coins were found scattered between the drain and the walls of the house. Policemen were sent after the carts; they overtook them just outside Porta Angelica, examined the contents, and found 42 more coins, to the great amazement of the drivers, who had no idea they were removing gold from such an unexpected mine. The treasure numbers, consequently, 184 gold coins of the largest size, perfectly fresh, as if they had just been taken from the mint. The period to which they belong goes from 1450 to 1550; the earliest are of Pius II., the others of Innocent VIII., Alexander VI., Julius II., Leo X., Hadrian VI., Clement VII. and Paul III. Nearly one-third belongs to Clement VII., a few coins to the Viscontis of Milan and the Wladelaws of Hungary. I am sure some were engraved by artists worthy to vie with Donatello or Benvenuto; they are of exquisite beauty. The next day Mgr. Cesali, the owner, was offered 36,800 francs for the group. Of course he refused. The treasure was not concealed carefully in one single spot, the pieces lay scattered in more than 1,000 cubic feet of dirt.—Athenæum.

Curious Proposals.

When Lord Strangford sat down to criticise a book of travels by Miss Beaufort he little dreamed that before long he would write to the young authoress: "I was thinking the other day about a communication from the Emperor Akbar to the King of Portugal, which contained a request for copies of the holy books of the Christians, and in which the following sentence occurs: 'In the world of humanity, which is the mirror and reflection of the world of God, there is nothing equal to love or comparable to human affection.' For many years I have felt and known this, though I never said it till to-day, to any one. When you next write, please give me the possessive pronoun of the first person." Surely never was a declaration made in quainter fashion, saving, perhaps, by the Scotch beadle, who led the manse house-maid to the churchyard, and, pointing with his finger, stammered, "My folk lie there, Mary; wad ye like to lie there?" Or the lugubriously Irish lover who took his girl to see the family vault, and then and there asked her if she would like to lay her bones beside his bones?—Chamber's Journal.

SECULAR NEWS.

Prof. Henry E. Shepherd, a native of Fayetteville, N. C., but for some years resident in Baltimore, was last week re-elected Superintendent of Public Instruction for Baltimore.—Hale's Weekly.

Three ladies were burned to death near Danville, Va., recently by the explosion of a kerosene lamp. One overturned a kerosene lamp which exploded and set her on fire, and the other caught fire in attempting to extinguish the flames.

Rev. A. D. Betts asks us to "announce that the class of 1855 propose to meet at Chapel Hill next June. As they are scattered through many States, you will please request the press to give this call a notice. I wish the surviving members to address me at Kenansville, N. C."—Hale's Weekly.

A representative of a Wilmington house was in town Wednesday and bought from our merchants 5,000 rabbit skins, 2,500 of these from Messrs. Wallace Brothers. For these he paid 25 cents per dozen, making the revenue to our merchants from this source on Wednesday reach something like $105.00.—Statesville Landmark.

The Secretary of State informs us that the law allowing parties whose lands have been sold to the State for taxes to redeem the same upon the payment of ten per cent. expires on the 12th day of March, 1880. Delinquent tax payers will do well to settle at once, as they will have to pay 25 per cent. after that date.—Raleigh Observer.

The British P. O. Department has applied to the Court of Exchequer for an injunction restraining the Edison Telephone Company, and other telephone companies from operating, on the ground that telephones are telegraphs, within the meaning of the act by which the government obtained a monopoly in telegraphs.

Out on Church street, near the residences of Mr. W. A. Smith and Dr. J. P. Gibson, is something of a small Leadville, so far as gold mining goes. Mr. Smith came down town Saturday with a lump of gold weighing nearly half a pound, the result of a day's work with a small mill. The vein was opened out some time last December and proves to get richer as it is followed up.—Concord Sun.

GREAT MERIT.

All the fairs give the first premiums and special awards of great merit to Hop Bitters, as the purest and best family medicine, and we most heartily approve of the awards for we know they deserve it. They are now on exhibition at the State Fairs, and we advise all to test them. See another column.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.
Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs. Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago, Ill

THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated American
WORM SPECIFIC
OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a knawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE
will certainly effect a cure.
IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY
in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.
—:o:—

DR. C. McLANE'S
LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.
As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.
Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.
Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.
Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

NATURES OWN REMEDY
CURATINE
A VEGETABLE MEDICINE FOR THE BLOOD, LIVER & KIDNEYS.
CURATINE, For Blood Diseases.
CURATINE, For Liver Complaints.
CURATINE, For Kidney Diseases.
CURATINE, For Rheumatism.
CURATINE, For Scrofula Diseases.
CURATINE, For Erysipelas, Pimples, Blotches, etc.
A medicinal compound of known value—combining in one preparation the curative powers for the evils which produce all diseases of the Blood, the Liver and Kidneys. Harmless in action and thorough in its effect. It is unexcelled for the cure of all Blood Diseases such as Scrofula, Tumors, Boils, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Rheumatism, Mercurial Poisoning, also Constipation, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Retention of Urine, etc.
ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR IT.
THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO. BALTIMORE, Md.
dec 17 623-eowly

Frontis & Leazar's School,
MOORESVILLE, IREDELL COUNTY, N. C.
S. FRONTIS, A. M., } Principals.
A. LEAZAR, A. M., }

The Seventh Session of this School opened Jan. 5, 1880, under very favorable auspices, sixty pupils having reported the first week.
The healthfulness of the locality is unexcelled. Cresswell's Springs one mile distant. System of instruction thorough and exhaustive. Two Departments—Male and Female. The Sexes occupy different Halls. Superior advantages for Religious Instruction. Board $7 to $8 per month. Tuition $1, $2, $3, $4, and $4 50 per month, according to the degree of advancement. For particulars address
FRONTIS & LEAZAR,
67jan14-tf Mooresville, Iredell County, N. C.

THOMASVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE, N. C.
THE SPRING TERM WILL BEGIN JANUARY 14, 1880. The new building furnishes additional facilities of a fine Chapel 40x72, Dining Room 40x50 and accommodations for 108 Boarders. A First Class School at Lowest Rates. Pupils taught to speak French and German. Eight Teachers. Board per month $10. Tuition $3 50, $4, and $5. For Catalogue address, H. W. REINHART,
67jan14-8t. President.

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

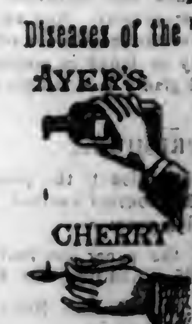
Molasses, Bacon and Lard.
200 Hhds. and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses. 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

50 Gilt, Motto, Lily, Scroll, and Marble Cards, 10 cents. 60 Agents' Samples, 10 cents. U. S. CARD CO., Northford, Ct. dec 31-625-13t

Bagging, Ties and Salt.
1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

THE BEST REMEDY
FOR
Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.



In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of
BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,
For the purpose of carrying on a
General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,
AT THE OLD STANDS,
5, 7 and 8, North Front Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.
JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.
Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 8, 1877.
oct 10 509.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,
MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,
1879—'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's-day, into two Terms.
The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.
There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:
1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.
A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.
Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.
Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.
For Catalogues and other information apply to
REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D.,
jan 16-593. President.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!
WE ask the attention of our friends and customers to our large and handsomely selected stock which is our Fourth Purchase this Season.
Consisting of Dress Goods in all colors and prices, Cassimeres, Jeans, Flannels, Blankets, Shawls, Balmoral Skirts, Tickings, Domestics, Sheetings,
READY-MADE CLOTHING,
Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes.
Don't forget we sell the best Shirt in the City for the money. Wool Shirts and Vests for Ladies and Gents underwear.
Call and get one of our $1 Umbrellas, which is as good as you ever bought at $2 25.
Notwithstanding the advance in prices, we are still selling many of our Goods at old prices.
Orders solicited.
T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opp. Charlotte Hotel, Tryon st., Charlotte, N. C.
dec 24 624-tf

ALTAFFER & PRICE
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Wood-work and Builder's Hardware.
We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.
Church Windows, Doors, Pew Ends
CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles.
Factory foot of Walnut St.
Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross. Wilmington, N. C.
apl 18 588-1y

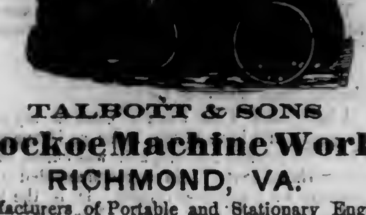
H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments.
jan 7-3m

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL.
HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET
WILMINGTON, N. C.
WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF
Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish
Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,
COTTON BAGGING and TIES.
We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.
HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
63-1y

BUY THE BEST.
WE HAVE now on hand finished.
35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.
Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.
Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.
A. A. McKETHAN & SONS,
Fayetteville, N. C.
Oct 31 354-t

SALT. SALT. SALT.
21,000 Sacks
Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!
Factory Filled Fine Table.
AND
Liverpool Ground Alum.
Full Weight Guaranteed.
"WILLARD'S,"
NORTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
dec 17 623-tf



TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.
Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings Machinery of Every Description.
Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.

TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER.
The Invention of the Age.
It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape).
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.

JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.
JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.
GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.
We are prepared to execute in the very best style,
ALL KINDS OF PRINTING,
SUCH AS
Business Cards, Bill Heads, Letter and Note Heads, Statements, Drafts, Notes, Checks, Account Sales, Tags, Envelopes, Labels, Bills Lading. Receipts, Notices, Show Cards, Posters, Manifests, Wedding Cards, Visiting Cards, Catalogues, Pamphlets, School Circulars, Reports,
and in fact, every description of
RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING
We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed.
Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS WANTED For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1,018 Pages. 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & Co., 66 N. 4th St., Phil'a., Pa.
oct 15 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO
[illegible] DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.
oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.
CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
63 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,
would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.
SAMPLES SENT FREE!
Also, to their
DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.
Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.
All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 13-1y

TOBACCO.
100 BOXES MANUFACTURED TOBACCO.
SPECIALTIES:
Uncle Ned's Twist.
Queen Bee Plug.
HALL & PEARSALL.

McMILLAN BROS.,
MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN
SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS

15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS
FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.
Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes, Still Doors & Grate bars
As we have four Copper smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only
Regular and Reliable Establishment
where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing
D. G. McMILLAN, Supt.
feb 12 Fayetteville, N. C.

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.
HAVE FOR SALE.
2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.
Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.
Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.
Nov. 19 463-1y

ADRIAN & VOLLERS
CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present,
SMOKED BACON,
in hogsheads and boxes,
HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKGS,
Breakfast Strips,
Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,
SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,
Molasses and Syrup
OF ALL KINDS.
FLOUR of all Qualities,
and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries.
nov 19 551-12m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS
DUFUR & CO.,
36 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md
Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c.
mch 28 461-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIE
OF THE
GENERAL ASSEMBLY
OF THE
Presbyterian Church in the United States

THE CLERKS.

Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D. Richmond, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.

President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq. Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md

PUBLICATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va
Treasurer—O. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION

Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D. D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September
6. Education—First Sabbath in November

WE KEEP
PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR, FAIRBANK'S LARD,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FINE N. O. SYRUP,
And other Standard articles.
Orders solicited.
HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents. Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XIII—No 630.] WILMINGTON, FEBRUARY 4, 1880. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXIII—No. 1,250.]

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

One copy one year, in advance.....$3 65
If payment be delayed six months.....3 15
One copy six months, in advance.....1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other suitable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each New subscriber of $3 65.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procurred without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

A NOBLE EXAMPLE.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: You and your readers doubtless rejoice in everything that advances the cause of Christianity, though the advance be not connected with your own Church. A few years ago there was no land owned in Soochow by foreigners. All the missionaries lived in rented houses. The first foreign house built in Soochow was erected by Rev. George R. Fitch, a missionary sent out by the Northern Presbyterian Church. During this month Dr. A. P. Parker, a member of the mission belonging to the Southern Methodist Church, has taken possession of his new house built on a lot which his mission owns.

On the same premises he has built a house in which he will conduct a boarding school for boys. The money used for erecting the school building was given to the Mission by a Christian gentleman in Kentucky, a member of the Methodist Church South. The amount was two thousand dollars. The same man gave in all six thousand dollars to be used in "strengthening the stakes" of the Methodist Mission in Soochow. Two thousand have been spent in building the school house just mentioned, and four thousand are to be devoted to the purchase of a lot and the erection of a church thereon.

The Southern Presbyterian missionaries in Soochow all live in rented houses. About three years ago the writer made an effort to raise money to be used in buying a lot on which to build a chapel. His object was to have a stake driven down—to have in Soochow a permanent possession for the Southern Presbyterian Mission. He wrote several hundred pages of note paper on the subject and the result was that about three hundred dollars were sent him by friends in North Carolina. Since that time he has made many efforts to purchase a suitable lot, but has not yet succeeded. The difficulty is just this: A preaching place must be on one of the busy streets, for on a quiet street there would be few passers-by that the missionary would have no audience. But the lots for sale on the crowded streets cannot be bought for three hundred dollars. They all have houses on them and the value of the site is increased by this fact.

If a good Christian in North Carolina would devote a thousand dollars to this cause he would be doing a great work. Is there in the whole State no Presbyterian with ready hand and noble soul and strong love to Jesus who will do for his Church what the Kentucky gentleman has done for the Methodist Mission? We want a permanent location in the great city. The writer proposes to continue his efforts to secure a firm foothold in Soochow. We must have it. And we must have a good place, too. There is no thought of acting rashly in the matter—nothing whatever of the desire to get a place just simply for the sake of owning it. We want a suitable situation where the preaching of Christ's Gospel will be attended by large audiences who will daily hear that which alone can save their souls. If we must wait and pray long before the blessing comes, then we will wait; but the thing must be done.

This letter is not written to influence any pastor or Sunday school teacher as such. The writer does not wish to draw upon the revenue of our excellent Committee of Foreign Missions. Let every pastor and Sunday school and woman's missionary society connected with our Church support the Committee. Is there not some private Christian in the Presbyterian Church in North Carolina who has soul enough to put his money in the bank that cannot fail, and which will eternally pay interest?

JOHN W. DAVIS.

Soochow, China, Dec. 22, 1879.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

RELIGION AND SCIENCE.

I wish, Mr. Editor, through your columns, to call the attention of the numerous theological scientists who did such noble service in pulpit and press in showing the world that Tyndal's "prayer test" was unscientific, to a recent development, the refutation of which will be a labor still more worthy of their genius. Jager, a German savant, propounds the theory, which religion must either overthrow or perish, that the soul of every man and animal is to be sought for in the characteristic odor exhaled in each case.

Duntzmaier, physiologist and metaphysician, formerly an opponent of the theory, has become an enthusiastic convert to it by means of the following experiment:

Reasoning that the emanations of odor, similar to those of light, might be fixed and treasured up by being thrown on an object sufficiently sensitively to them, he selected for this purpose the olfactories of a dog. A cage of twenty rabbits was placed in a room and a dog admitted. After being allowed to worry and stir up the rabbits about an hour the dog was instantly killed, the olfactory nerves and mucous membrane of the nose removed and rubbed up in a mortar with glycerine and water. This substance would contain, of course, that quantity of the rabbits' souls with which the dog's nose was impregnated, the characteristic quality of which would be timidity. Some of the mixture being administered to a cat it was found that she would run from a mouse instead of attacking it. A few drops of it given to a mastiff hypodermically rendered him afraid of the cat. A few drops of it taken by the experimenter himself rendered him so timid that he was afraid for a time to believe in his own discovery. This effect soon wore off, however. Another dog was treated by being allowed to smell, or rather inhale the soul of a lion, with corresponding results. Q. E. D. The soul is tracked to its home at last.

Mr. Editor, this is no joking matter. These gentlemen are learned scientists. The results of their investigations have been published in in the records of the "Transactions of the German Ozological Society." It is a question lying strictly within the domain of science and therefore theologians, as such, have no right to pronounce upon it. But let our theological scientists come forth. Let them meet this new enemy on his own ground. Let them do as they did with Tyndal's prayer test, prove the thing "unscientific." Let our ministers, especially in the rural districts, enlighten their people on the subject from the pulpit. Let us have a dozen or so review articles upon it. A small volume, if not of too costly a style, for extensive circulation, would be timely. I have sought to do my part by calling the attention of others to the matter.

Yours, truly, S. H. C.

THE FRIENDS OF KING WILLIAM III.

It was the singular fortune of King William III to have had for his two most intimate friends and advisers two of the most earnest ecclesiastics of Great Britain, both of them Scots. In the south, next to the Primate Tillotson, was Gilbert Burnet, Bishop of Salisbury; in the north the real Presbyterian Primate of the Church of Scotland, William Carstairs. Carstairs has left nothing in writing; but his life is filled full of strength and wisdom. His earliest public appearance was while undergoing the agonizing trial of the thumbscrew before the Privy Council in Edinburgh. All present, even his judges, were struck by the extraordinary fortitude and generosity of a man "who stood more in awe of love for his friends than of the fear of torture, and hazarded rather to die for them than that they should die for him."

Recommended to the Prince of Orange by this heroic courage, as well as by the singular sagacity which he showed on the same occasion in revealing to the judges only what was of no use to them and no harm to any one else, he accompanied William on his eventful voyage to England, and was the first to call down the blessings of heaven on the expedition by the religious service which he celebrated immediately on his landing at Torbay, after which the troops all along the beach, at his instance, joined in the cxviii Psalm. From that time he was William's companion to every field of battle—his most trusted adviser in all that related to the affairs of Scotland. "Cardinal Carstairs" was the name by which he was usually known, alluding to the saying of Cardinal Ximenes that he could play at football with the heads of the Castilian grandees. The king had one all-sufficing explanation of his influence:

"I have known Mr. Carstairs long; I have known him well, and I know him to be an honest man."

One famous instance of his power is recorded, unique in the history of princes and churches. An oath (the "oath of assurance," as it was called), extremely obnoxious to the General Assembly, had been intended by the English government to be imposed upon its members. The commissioner sent up an earnest remonstrance against it by a special messenger. There was just time for him to return to Scotland with the king's final determination on the night before the Assembly was appointed to meet. Carstairs was absent when the messenger arrived, and in that interval William, under the advice of his ministers, refused to listen to the remonstrance, and sent off his instructions by the messenger. When Carstairs arrived at Kensington he heard what had happened. He found the messenger setting off for Scotland, and demanded him, in the king's name, to deliver up the dispatches. It was now late at night, not a moment was to be lost. He ran to the royal apartment, and was told by the lord in waiting that the king was in bed. He insisted on entering, and found William fast asleep. He drew the curtains, threw himself on his knees by the bedside and awakened him. The king, startled, asked what had brought him, and for what he knelt.

"I am come to ask my life."

"What can you have done," said William, "to deserve death?"

Carstairs told what had occurred. The king was furious. Carstairs begged only a few words to explain. The king listened, was convinced, threw the dispatch into the fire, wrote a new one at the dictation of Carstairs, the messenger set off, and in consequence of this delay arrived only just in time, on the very moment of the fatal day. The crisis was averted, and the constitutional establishment of the Church of Scotland at this day is, humanly speaking, the result of that memorable night.

DEAN STANLEY.

A woman named Madelaine Casson has been arrested for stealing the Golden Crown of Thorns from the Chapel of the Holy Virgin at the Grotto of Lourdes.

WASTES OF THE SPIRITUAL SYSTEM.

In the body constant exhaustion and constant recuperation seem to formulate the law of life, somewhat as it is in mechanics, where action and reaction are equal. The brain tissue is being constantly exhausted, and the residue must be removed and replaced, or imbecility will surely take place. The body is constantly casting off its worn out particles, and as constantly the places are filled with new, on which the monster, existence, must feed. The very coatings of the eye, so liquid and almost intelligent, come off worn out and pass away, and the new comes and dispossesses the old, as the coming hud shoves off new by its springing vitality the sere leaf of last year.

So is it in our spiritual natures, which require constant supplies of spiritual life tissues, or moral imbecility and obliquity must ensue. This explains a world of strange doings. Men yield to temptation who have withstood it for years, whose integrity the world has ceased to question, and then come down as an oak that has stood the storms of centuries falls, to the surprise of all, in a dead calm. Supplies have ceased to come into the waste places, is the answer, and imperceptible decay has ensued. "Gray hairs are here and there upon him, and he knoweth it not." The most important consideration now is, By what means are our spiritual wastes to be repaired? Secret prayer is the recuperative force, or the instrument by which spiritual exhaustion is counteracted. It acts as a capillary force to supply the soul with its restorative tissues and energies, so that the waste shall not be beyond the supply. And in the light that these analogies suggest we see the peril of living out of communion with God in thought, and out of secret fellowship with him in the closet.

Secret prayer is as the ladder Jacob saw, with angels ascending and angels descending, going both ways for man's help and comfort. But if there be no ascending angels there will be very soon none descending. If there be no secret prayers, as the vapor of breath ascending to heaven, there will be no dews or rain coming down. And how many departures from God, ending in total shipwreck, have begun while we were absent from the closet, the place of our former fellowship with God! If we could only look into the inner records of some young man's life just from a Christian household, after he has seemed to have well begun his spiritual course, but has suddenly forfeited all, we would see an illustration of this. The answer to the surprise is that the angle of his deflection can be traced to neglect of that secret communion with God, so needful and essential, in which, depending on God, his strength is absorbed, as fragrance from the flower in the sanctities of home. His fatal fall was in the experiment to see if he could not do without what the Saviour himself could not neglect, and spiritual weakness came insensibly on in the time when no supplies were coming to build up the system; so the spiritual fortifications wasted and crumbled away. There is an erosion of soul constantly going on, spirit chafing against flesh, and flesh wearing away the spirit; and if man is to stand the exhaustion the spirit must build as fast as sin weakens and tears away, or, in its conflicts, consumes.

His disasters are all due to the fact that the hidden life of the soul, that which is hidden with Christ in God, was neglected, supplies cut off, the spiritual commissary was too far from the base of action, so that little blemishes of character, which once might have been easily removed, grew into huge faults; small sparks of temptation, which might have been quenched in the beginning, have flared into a conflagration, setting on fire the whole course of nature.—Presbyterian.

RELIGION AND BUSINESS.

In the course of a recent address to business men at Devonshire House, Bishopgate, the Rev. Dr. Oswald Dykes remarked:

In the heart of busy London stands the Londoner's cathedral church. It stands, like many an old minster in France, Germany and Italy, just in the town market place, where traffic need to gather densest, and the roar and chaffer of trade rang all day around the venerable walls. This is a better image of what we chiefly need; not the churchyard, but the minster in the market place. A higher life in business is the best security for the future life. We want God in our trade and commerce. It is a mere accident, but it is suggestive, that the only time this word "business occurs in the Gospels is in the first words recorded from Jesus' lips, "I must be about my Father's business." Business life is consecrated when you make this your motto! Bring God our Father into the office and the exchange, and treat trade as His work—to be done on His lines, for His ends, under His sanction—and you have the true alliance of religion with business. But it is of no use to stay too much by generalities. There are two degrees by which religion may enter into or influence city business men. The first I shall call the negative degree of godliness in trade. That is when the fear of God leads a business man to abstain under a sense of duty to the Lord of trade from all dishonorable practices in it. Primary laws of trade on the moral side are very simple. Unlike its economic laws, they need no philosophic Adam Smith to make them plain to common people. They are just two: Lie not in word; cheat not in deed. Both, in fact, are branches of a single canon: "Do justly." This does not exhaust the duty of man to man, but it may be said to exhaust the duty of trader to trader. I am assured that the carrying out of these laws has become extremely difficult—so difficult as to be practically impossible. It is said that in the unscrupulous competition and complicated ways of trade downright honesty will not pay. Into details I am not competent to enter; it is for men of business to do that. I only suggest these consideration: 1. The honest man is not a casuist. It is not by trying to sail close in the wind's eye that one manages to be upright. If you really want to be true and fair, it is possible to be so, whether it pay or not. 2. It is rather dangerous to pretend that business cannot be carried on profitably on honest lines; for some day people may ask whether trade be, in that case, worth preserving, or fit for honest men to embark in. 3. It seems to me that if modern business try conclusions with the moral laws of the world, these moral laws are likely to prove the stronger of the two. No trade has continued in the past to flourish that was not based on substantial fair-dealing. It was thus that English commerce was originally built up. The secret of success was uprightness. From the days of Elizabeth and James down, the vast edifice of our commercial supremacy was certainly reared on these principles—sterling work, full measure, fair profit, open dealing, a man's word his bond. In proportion as English commerce sticks to these will he its chance of credit and confidence in the markets of the world.

AFFLICTION.

BY AUBREY DE VERE.

Count each affliction, whether light or grave,
God's messenger sent down to thee. Do thou,
With courtesy, receive him; rise and bow;
And ere his shadow pass thy threshold, crave
Permission first his heavenly feet to lave.
Then lay before him all thou hast; allow
No cloud of passion to usurp thy brow,
Or mar thy hospitality: no wave
Of mortal tumult to obliterate
The soul's marmoreal calmness. Grief should be Like joy—majestic, equable, sedate,
Confirming, cleansing, raising making free,
Strong to consume small troubles, to command
Great thoughts, grave thoughts, thoughts lasting to the end.

DOCTRINAL AND SENSATIONAL PREACHING.

BY PROF. JOHN P. GULLIVER, D. D., ANDOVER.

There is a great outcry against what is called doctrinal preaching. Yet every preacher knows that there has never been a time in the history of the Church when preaching has been so doctrinal as now. And every eminent and successful preacher knows that it is the sermon which contains the most cleanly-cut, clear, cogent thought, which most interests the average American congregation. This is true even where metaphysical distinctions are luminously drawn, or historical facts compactly stated, or an intricate exegesis simplified by an emphatic synopsis, as a school boy gives the principal parts of a complicated Greek verb. But it is true in a marked degree when the thought is the statement of a cardinal evangelical truth. Man is sinful; man is lost; Christ has died for man; faith in Him will save the soul; there is salvation in none other; the Holy Ghost is with man; the new birth must precede the new life; the new life will grow to the perfect life, and the man is in heaven; the death in sin will ripen into eternal death, and the man is in hell—these are truths of which men never tire. The voice of the preacher uttering these doctrines is reinforced by ten thousand voices within and about every man's being, till the universe becomes one vast telephone, reduplicating the appeals of the man to God. It is evident, therefore, that what people dislike is not doctrinal preaching, but something else, to which they have given that name.

The same faulty nomenclature appears in the strong and universal condemnation of what is termed sensational preaching. A great many attempts have been made to define this monstrous and hideous thing, but, after all, it has in men's minds as little substance and shape as Victor Hugo's devil fish. Everybody knows what it is, but nobody can describe it. But what is it but preaching which has no doctrine in it—which has the apparatus and surroundings of thought without the thought? It is a mill running with clack and clatter, without any grist. It is a gandy frame without a picture. It is an illustration, poetic or pyrotechnic, with nothing to illustrate. Dr. Emmons always closed his sermons with an "improvement," the numerous heads of which sometimes made large inroads upon the Arabic numerals. A young student, who had been preaching for him, asked, "Will you tell me, sir, why I have so much trouble with my 'improvements?'" "Because you have nothing to improve," was the testy reply. Sensational preaching is a milliner's manakin—all dress and no woman.

Now what is it which people do not want? In the first place, they do not want to see all the bones of a doctrine. They do not want to see a skeleton hanging before the pulpit, staring at them out of eyeless cavities, and rattling firstly, secondly, and tenthly, as the different bones are touched. They want the truth clothed upon with a house which is from heaven. They want to see a living, breathing form, which the preacher's faith and toil have drawn down from the very throne of God, all radiant with the presence of that Spirit of whom Christ said, "He shall take of mine and shall shew it unto you."

That is not the most profound sermon which is the most unintelligible. That is not the most finished garment which is sent to you full of basting threads. That is not a comely building whose rafters are all in sight, or which, like the Cathedral of Cologne, keeps its scaffolding always in sight. A sermon should be a unit, a completed creation, with a body, life, and soul of its own, as elegantly dressed, as brilliantly adorned, as your subject or your resources will admit, but with an essence of truth, a substance of doctrine, that will make it something more than a rattle of words, or a galvanized corpse.—Christian at Work.

REVIVALS.

BY REV. C. M. HOWARD.

As the result of careful study of revivals, past and present, and a number of years of constant labor in this work, a few thoughts have occurred to me that I wish to lay before the Christian Church. I am especially stimulated to do this, at this time, by quite an extensive tour of observation lately made among the most noted evangelists of different denominations, now laboring in the Northern and Southern States.

I find some good people opposed to revivals; and, if their experience is limited to such as I have often witnessed, it is not wonderful, for I have greatly feared myself, less more harm than good would be done. A very prominent evangelist, who counts his converts by hundreds, in almost every town he visits, told me he thought if one in ten of the professed converts stood, it would be good work. Heaven defend us from such revivals! But we should discriminate between the true and the false.

No earnest effort to promote the cause of Christ was, perhaps, ever made but satan has endeavored to prevent or hinder it, either by mixing alloy or substituting a counterfeit.

Was the service of song likely to prove a blessing to the Church? at once he introduces a lot of drawling, nonmusical, or operatic tunes, and dry and insipid hymns, till scarcely one Christian in a dozen ever attempts to warm his heart in singing God's praise at church or at home. Was great good to come from the distribution of carefully prepared tracts? then must Mr. Dry-as-dust be set immediately to writing tracts, till he can hardly get saint or sinner to look at one? Have revivals, under careful management, conducted by devotedly pious men, resulted in great and permanent good? then a spurious article is smuggled into the Church, which destroys confidence in all revivals and brings the work of God to a stand for years.

But I am fully persuaded, by my own experience and reading, that if the following rules were observed by those laboring in revivals, great good, instead of harm, would result:

1. Do the work thoroughly. Most evangelists are in too great a hurry.

2. Have longer meetings. I never wish to begin unless I may continue four weeks, if feasible, and where I have remained five, six, seven, or even eight weeks, it has been far more satisfactory to me; as the converts were so much more strengthened and made more earnest Christians. Holding, usually, but one regular service, and that at night, I find people will come many miles every night, and not weary; the interest and audiences increasing to the last. One should watch this, however, and stop before the interest abates, or when there seems little probability of reaching any more unconverted people.

3. The sermons should not be too brief, yet so constructed that the attention and interest will increase to the end. They should be crammed full of instruction and convincing argument, and very plain, that children may understand. Instead of this, we often hear an empty harangue, of twenty minutes, followed by fearfully loud and exciting calls to the anxious seat, and the rest of the evening consumed in efforts to drag all the unconverted there, even the children.

4. The law should be preached, and its penalty proclaimed, yet with great tenderness. The sinner should be made to see that he is an abominable creature in God's sight, and richly deserves all that God has threatened. I have passed through long meetings, where the evangelist scarcely spoke of the horrible nature and awful consequences of sin, but dwelt wholly upon God's goodness, etc. As would be expected, I saw little conviction of sin. The gospel should be very fully and constantly proclaimed, but it will not do to leave out the law.

5. Instructions to inquirers and converts should be very full and explicit. The ignorance of the unconverted, even the best educated, and those brought up in pious families and Sabbath Schools, as to what the gospel and religious experience really is, is most astonishing; and could scarcely be believed by one who has not labored much among them. I find it necessary to give a great deal of instruction every night, and have devoted as much as a whole week at the close of the meeting to their special instruction. Hard work, and insignificant in the estimation of man, but we must work for eternity. The instructions given are often very meagre and unscriptural. Sometimes they are of a legal character; sometimes the opposite, to use no means but wait God's time; and sometimes they are taught that a mere intellectual reception of Christ will save. I believe much in the importance of singing into the heart and mind, by the aid of sweet and tender tunes, as much gospel as possible so that it will ring in their ears, and they will sing it all their days. Converts should be greatly urged to study the Bible. Suitable religious books and tracts, most carefully selected, should be left with every inquirer and convert.

6. The church must be aroused to prayer and effort. Many little praying bands, among all classes, should be started and kept up. Work must be cut out for the members. I find the law and gospel, as preached to the unconverted, also revives the Church.

7. Pastors should visit much from house to house, also such members as are qualified for this work; and, of course, continue after the meeting is over.

8. All the evangelical churches should unite.

9. Noise, confusion, and undue excitement should be repressed, as unfitting the mind to understand, and lay hold of saving truths presented. All means, measures and machinery calculated to produce this should be excluded, and no reliance placed upon anything but the Word and Spirit of God to impress the soul.

It is, no doubt, desirable to separate the awakened, who sincerely desire instruction and prayer, from the rest of the congregation, but the anxious seat, as it has often been used in the past, has done much harm. I have seen persons almost dragged there, no instruction given, but petted, fondled, hugged, amid deafening noise and shouts till of course some sort of feeling was aroused (with which, however, the Spirit had probably nothing to do) and immediately they were pronounced converted and urged to get up and proclaim it. What the result of such work is, many witnesses can tell us.

10. Inquirers should not be pressed to make profession of conversion until they have had sufficient time to understand thoroughly the marks of conversion. These I have printed in my hymn book and insist upon their careful study. Every argument is used, in some meetings, to induce inquirers to get up and say, "I believe," and they are told if they will say so, they do believe, and then they are pronounced converted. Others urge all that intend to lead a better life to come forward and take the preacher by the hand. Numbers of children and others will do so. They are counted converts. Terrible results follow such work. Let inquirers have plenty of time to see whether they are changed or not, before proclaiming it to the world.

11. Professed converts should not be received into the Church during or immediately after a revival. Nothing, to my mind, has brought revival work more into disfavor than this. I could not, conscientiously, labor in a meeting where I thought they would be taken into the Church in less than a month after the close of the meeting. About they only test we have now, when it is so reputable to join the Church, is time. At least let the devil have a few shots at them, and see how they will stand when the help and stimulus of daily meetings are withdrawn. By neglect of this caution our churches are filled with unconverted souls. In churches where we should little expect to see it, during the progress of a meeting, and at the close of a stirring sermon, such invitations as this are made: "If there is any one here now willing to confess Christ, let him come forward and take me by the hand," and all who do this are immediately received into the Church. Multitudes will come forward when urged to do so, and unite with the Church, who will not deny themselves the least sinful indulgence to please God. Do we want any more such in our churches?

During the tour, above alluded to, I took ample time for careful observation, visiting all the meetings, especially inquiry meetings. In many places I saw much to trouble me, and lead me to expect soon a great public reaction in sentiment against revivals. Not to trespass further on your patience, I will only mention this: In some of the largest meetings I attended, multitudes thronging the buildings, I heard for weeks scarcely anything preached about the nature and consequence of sin; nothing, it seemed to me, to trouble the sinner's conscience, or alarm his fears; but God's goodness, pity, His anxiety to save men, how easy to become a Christian, etc. Week after week, in the crowded inquiry rooms, I did not see a tear shed or scarcely any evidence of conviction of sin. Instructions seemed to be mostly, "Accept of Christ." "Why not?" etc., till finally the soul would apparently accept of Christ, as one who never was sick, nor ever expected to be, would accept of a physician; or, as one would take a horse, who had no use for him now, but upon which he might like to take a ride sometime, perhaps; and upon this intellectual and apparently heartless acceptance of Christ he was told that Christ then accepted of him, and he went off believing himself a Christian. I asked one why he came to the inquiry room when he felt no need of a Saviour? He said, "Because I like Mr. ——, the evangelist." May God grant that my fears are not well founded, but we cannot be too careful in administering comfort to unawakened souls. We may as well preach Universalism at once.—Christian Observer.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

From London Weekly Review:

Mr. Stokes, a member of the Church Missionary Society's Nyanza expedition, has recently made a journey from Enbaga, the capital of Uganda, to the Ripon Falls, where the Nile issues from the Victoria Nyanza.

The supplementary elections in some thirty Protestant parishes of Berlin have been gained by the Broad Church party. The superior ecclesiastical authorities being of the opposite way of thinking, the Liberals are not a little elated at the additional influences secured.

The Pope has written a letter to the German Bishops, in which he quotes the admonition contained in the New Testament as to the duty of Christs apostles to sacrifice and suffer all things for the welfare of the Church. He exhorts them to use their utmost efforts to bring about a modus vivendi between the Papacy and the German Empire.

The Russian Minister of the Interior has issued an order instructing the Governors-General and Governors of the Western and Southwestern Governments to collect and send to him all measures promulgated since 1864 having relation to the Roman Catholic Church. A special commission is to be instituted to examine the decrees referred to.

The master of the Horsham work house made a complaint to the last meeting of the Board of Guardians against the chaplain, the Rev. J. F. Coles. The master stated that on questioning a female inmate as to the cause of a large hole in her apron, she said that the chaplain had recently administered the sacrament to her, and in doing so had spilt some of the wine on her apron. In consequence of this the chaplain said the part of the apron where the stain was had become "consecrated," and he must cut it out and deposit it in a box at Roffey Church. The guardians expressed strong disapproval of the chaplain's conduct, and gave directions that he should be informed that they considered he had no excuse whatever for mutilating work-house property in such a manner.

For some years the University of Cambridge has had a mission at Delhi. The Bishop of Calcutta has now appealed to the University of Oxford to send out missionaries to work especially among the educated natives in that city, many of whom are now familiar with the English language and English literature. Three clergymen have agreed to go out next year.

At the Mission Chapel, Little Wild street, Drury Lane, on New Year's evening, a tea was specially provided for about 300 blind persons, who were present from various asylums in the metropolis. Mr. G. Hatton presided, and several clergymen addressed the meeting on the subject of the New Year. After a distribution of presents had been made, the blind guests were led to their respective homes by their friends, highly pleased with the evening's entertainment.

News from Florence shows how vain are the laws against convents in Italy. The celebrated Badia, on the hill of Fiesole, was recently acquired and restored to monastic purposes by the Scolopians. Now the Dominicans have reacquired and re-established the large convent at San Dominico, suppressed since 1810; and the still larger convent of the Deccia, which was founded by the Davanzati family, and rebuilt by Michael Angelo, is to be restored. Thus there will be six monasteries on the Fiesole Hill.

The Nonconformist says Ritualism has now found its way into Guy's Hospital, where, through the aid of the newly appointed matron, in conjunction with the chaplain, something "very much like a confessional" is said to have been established, producing a feud between the Governors and the medical staff, and resulting in the withdrawal of thirty or forty of the best nurses, to be ultimately replaced, it may be presumed, by members of a guild bound by secret vows obediently to carry out the behests of clerical dictators.

The difficulty with the Porte seems in a fair way towards a solution. The Sultan with his own hands delivered the papers belonging to the Church Missionary Society to Sir H. Layard, and expressed his determination to maintain the principles of religious liberty in his Empire. The Ulema's release from prison was at the same time assured, but it was considered necessary for his safety to remove him to an island near Smyrna. The dismissal of Hafiz Pacha is waived. Hafiz declared himself ignorant of the arrest till he met the carriage containing the Ulema and Dr. Koeller. The officer concerned in the forcible detention of Dr. Koeller will be dismissed.

The Roman Catholic Archbishop of Algiers has received from Zanzibar favorable reports of the eighteen missionaries who left Algiers last June, and have reached Ugogo, as also of the missionaries sent out last year for Tanganyika. The latter had lost their superior, Pere Pascal, but had arrived at Ujiji, and had been well received there by the English mission and the Arab chiefs. They had explored Orundi, a rich and populous region, which they depict in altogether different colors from Stanley, and, by invitation of the Sultan of Kikari, they had established a station, commencing operations by rescuing abandoned infants. The Abbe Debaize, on the other hand, had been twice deserted by his porters, had been plundered of a great part of his outfit, and had returned sick and discouraged to Ujiji, where the Algerian and English missions were nursing him. It was not known whether he would recommence the exploration entrusted to him by the French Government.

GOLD DUST.

How vain are all hereditary honors,
Those poor possessions from another's deeds,
Unless our own just virtues form our title,
And give a sanction to our fond assumption!
—Shirley.

Happiness is the congruity between a creature's nature and its circumstances.—Bishop Berkley.

A life of carnal ease, a death of stupor and an eternity of horror, are closely allied. In the matter of converting a human soul to God all human power is reduced to zero—J. W. Alexander.

As we must render an account of every idle word, so must we likewise of our idle silence.—Ambrose.

The law of the harvest is to reap more than you sow. Sow an act and you reap a habit; sow a habit and you reap a character; sow a character and you reap a destiny.—George D. Boardman.

Religion stands upon two pillars, namely: What Christ did for us in his flesh and what he performs in us by his Spirit. Most errors arise from an attempt to separate these two.—John Newton.

A weak mind is like a microscope, which magnifies little things, but cannot receive great ones.—Chesterfield.

Do not insult calamity;
It is a barbarous grossness to lay on
The weight of scorn, where heavy misery
Too much already weighs man's fortunes down.
—Daniel.

The maelstrom attracts more notice than the quiet fountain; the comet draws more attention than the steady star; but it is better to be the fountain than the maelstrom, and the star than the comet, following out the sphere and orbit of quiet usefulness in which God places us.—Dr. John Hall.

Every promise of God rests on four pillars; His holiness and justice, which will not suffer Him to deceive; His grace and goodness, which will not suffer Him to forget; His truth, which will not suffer Him to change; and His power, which makes Him able to accomplish.—Rockwell.

All truly consecrated men learn, little by little, that what they are consecrated to is not joy or sorrow, but a divine idea and a profound obedience, which can find their full outward expression, not in joy and in sorrow, but in the mysterious and inseparable mingling of the two.—Phillips Brooks.

The union of matter and form makes a body; the union of body and soul together makes a man; and the union of man and Christ makes a Christian, and sap from this root makes him a growing one.—Ralph Erskine.

The Lord takes up none but the forsaken; makes none healthy but the sick; gives sight to none but the blind; makes none alive but the dead; sanctifies none but sinners, and to all these He is precious.—Luther.

Some men are born to endure the toil and strife
And heavy burdens of the earth. They are
The pillars in the temple of this life,
Its strength and ornament; or, hidden far
Beneath, they form its firm foundation-stone.
—MacKellar.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN, - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1880.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

INDIVIDUAL DUTY.

One of the greatest obstacles to the progress of Christianity is the dead weight it has to carry in the form of the inconsistency or slothfulness of its professors. The spirit of worldliness has made great inroads upon the Church, formalism has usurped the place of spirituality to a large degree, and many professors of religion, instead of being an impelling force, are a serious drawback to all religious progress.

One casts in his lot with the people of God, solemnly avows his determination to live for Christ and His cause, but has hardly withdrawn from the sanctuary before we find him ensnared in the toils which Satan so skillfully sets, and he is announced as a leader in the most religion-stifling, soul-destroying worldliness. Another, having for a season run well, turns aside, lured by increasing wealth, and finds the race too long and wearisome, and retires into spiritual sloth. Yet, another, beginning by neglecting private prayer, deserts the house of God, or if, under the goading of conscience, he attends, imagines the sermons dull and uninteresting. The pastor is at fault—'tis so he would appease the inward monitor—and he readily draws the contrast between his own pastor and others. Soon the church officers are at fault, and ere long the members are brought in. Nothing that is done is right. Very possibly he will deplore the terrible lapse of spirituality in the church. He would contribute liberally, but there is so little done by the other members; he would attend the meetings for prayer, but so few attend and there is so little life. He is thoroughly soured.

Very pitiable are all these and many other cases. They are all dead weights to the Church. But our deepest sympathies go out to the last. He made the false step when he turned away from the closet. Assuming, and the assumption is not baseless, that he is a child of God, he is utterly miserable when he dares to think. He is in a false position, but he stifles the conviction when it arises to his conciousness. If he is God's child, He will lead him back; it may be, and yet in very mercy through the dark waters of terrible affliction, but it may come through earnest repentance and immediate return to the forsaken paths of holiness.

Not only our Church but every Church suffers from these drags upon its progress. We love to look out upon the Church at large and expect great deeds; we wonder why its progress is so slow; we love to find the fault in others. But the true way to bring back prosperity to the Church, and send it leaping forward, is for every individual to realize that he is a part of the Church, and to do his individual part of the work. There is, indeed, work which no individual can do, work to be done by the Church collectively, but only by the earnest, steady, whole-souled efforts of each individual member can the Church be so vitalized and so charged with power as to be fitted for its own grand peculiar work.

Individual duty necessarily precedes personal responsibility. As we shall not be judged hereafter for the deeds done by the Church, or for the deeds not done by her; not for the inefficiency, or the vagaries, or the sins of pastor, elders, deacons or others, but each for the sins of himself, it follows, rather it precedes, that the prime matter for our consideration is to seek to know our specific duty, and to discharge that faithfully. In every case this duty will be found not in deploring the shortcomings of others, but in aiding them in every possible way; neither by doing their work, but by doing our own, encouraging others and extending the hand of aid where the weight of burden requires it.

Let him who would know his duty begin at the closet, throwing himself at the feet of Christ, and with humble and entire reliance upon the power and the grace of the Holy Spirit consecrate himself anew to His service, and thenceforth do his duty as God shall give him strength.

The motive power in the doing of right, in every case, of the Church or of the individual, is the Holy Spirit. God, in every case the Enabler, the Doer, man the instrument used, or the means employed. To spend our time in bewailing the low estate of religion is useless. God is ready and waiting to be gracious, but revivals of spiritual life do not come by murmurings and repinings, nor by casting blame upon others; nor do they descend unlooked for and unsought upon the Church as a whole. When the people of God, as individuals, shall endeavor to walk in the ways of His commandments, and plead as for the life for the outpouring of His Spirit, He will descend upon us, the indifferent will become earnest, the backslidden will be restored and the Church will go forth with renewed strength to the evangelization of the world.

THE SABBATH MOVEMENT.

The friends of the Sabbath are everywhere active. The following, which we take from the Christian Observer, shows how they are moving in Louisville, Ky.:

"A petition is in circulation, from which we subjoin an extract, asking the Legislature of Kentucky so to amend its laws on the Sabbath that the proprietors of bar-rooms may no longer claim that it has no application to their saloons. It ought to receive immediate attention from friends of the Sabbath.

"The memorial of the undersigned citizens of Kentucky respectfully showeth: That your memorialists have observed with great satisfaction the introduction of a bill in the Legislature entitled, 'An act to amend section 10, article 17, of the Revised Statutes,' which prohibits labor, business and dissipation on Sunday, by adding a provision thereto that the said statute shall specifically apply to prohibit the sale of spiritnous or intoxicating liquors on Sunday by licensed taverns, saloons, or any others. And your memorialists do hereby express their earnest desire that said act to amend section 10, article 17, of the revised statutes shall be enacted by your honorable body."

DEATH OF REV. DONALD McQUEEN, D. D.

Rev. Dr. McQueen died at his home in Sumter, S. C., on January 23rd, ulto., in the 70th year of his age and after a protracted illness.

At his funeral, as we gather from the True Southron, of Sumter, S. C., the following statement of his ecclesiastical course was read:

"Graduated at S. C. College, in the class of 1832; Graduated in Theological Seminary Columbia, S. C., 1836; Licensed by Presbytery of Harmony at a pro re nata meeting, May, 1837; called to the joint pastorate of Concord and Sumterville churches; ordained and installed over the same, and afterwards over Sumterville church alone; resigned his pastoral charge on account of ill health at the Presbytery of Harmony, met at Midway, October 11th, 1879."

From the journal above named we also copy this tribute:

"Dr. McQueen for forty-three years supplied the churches of Sumter and Concord, as his only ministerial charge. He commenced his labors, fresh from the Columbia Seminary, in 1836, and for a period of nearly twenty years, supplied the two churches, having his residence in the vicinity of Concord church. In the year 1853, he removed to this town and took charge of the Presbyterian church here, and devoted his whole time to its interest and prosperity, which was greatly enlarged, and built up under his ministry.

"It is only stating a simple and well known truth, to say that he was a faithful and devoted pastor. He spared no pains nor labor in the fulfilment of his ministry. He early secured the affections of his people, and he continued to enjoy their love and confidence to the close of his life. Being blessed with remarkable bodily health he could perform a large amount of labor without inconvenience. During the few last years of his life, however, his health gave way, and his labors, which he seemed unwilling to intermit, during that period, were performed amidst much physical suffering. He received the devoted attention of his people, and enjoyed the consolations of the gospel he had so long preached, and departed in hope of a better world.

"Dr. McQueen held a prominent position in his own church, and a large and controlling influence in his Presbytery for many years. He was judicious and conservative as a counsellor, always having the interests of the Church at heart, and laboring in every good way to promote them. He was prominent in efforts to extend the bounds of the Church, laboring with unflagging zeal as Chairman of the "Executive Committee of Harmony Presbytery," to sustain feeble churches, and plant new ones wherever practicable.

"He was not, however, intolerant or narrow-minded in his religious opinions, but eminently liberal and catholic in his views, exchanging Christian courtesies and ministerial services with his Christian brethren around him. As a citizen he was eminently patriotic, sympathizing deeply with the people of this State in all their recent trials, though not taking any active part in political affairs. He was genial of temper, and cheerful in his life, and ever ready to encourage others in their despondency. He was, as a neighbor, kind and generous, ever ready to help the poor and distressed, and to minister the consolations of religion to the suffering and the afflicted. He was therefore a favorite with all classes of the community, and he will be mourned by many who did not belong to his pastoral charge, while his own people will mourn the loss of their instructor and guide."

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

Maj. Bingham writes that he has three candidates in his school, and is expecting a fourth every day. This refers to his plan for educating candidates for the Presbyterian ministry.

The speculators in wheat, who were allured by the rapid and steady advance in the price to place their capital in it, have come to grief. We waste little pity on them. In August last wheat was 84 cents in Chicago; as it advanced the stock was taken up by speculators and stored. The European market was to furnish the demand, but Europe would not pay the prices. The mild winter enabled the Russian wheat districts to throw supplies forward. Prices fell and numbers are ruined; but the same lesson will be repeated as long as time shall last. Men will never learn that the species of gambling called speculation means ruin to hundreds where its wealth to individuals.

We should like to know how the Archbishop of Canterbury felt, or rather what he thought, when the following protest of the parishioners of the Ritualistic bishop of Ceylon was handed in:

"We would inform your Grace," say they, "that in heathen worship flowers and lights take a prominent place, and that their intimate connection with devil-worship renders them, in our view, a most undesirable adjunct in the service of the church."

In the following tilt between the (Roman) Catholic Review and the Christian at Work our readers will agree with us, we think, that the latter is victor:

"The Christian at Work quotes from our editorial page the trite remark that 'a man cannot be a good Catholic and be ignorant,' and adds: 'An encouraging sign, but what hosts of bad Catholics there must be!' Owing to the public schools, the ability to read bad books, and similar causes, we are afraid we must admit a good deal of ignorance, resulting in bad Catholicity on our side.—Catholic Review.

"Very good; we thank the Catholic Review for its candor. Now tell us, please, why it is that while Protestants have the same public schools, the same 'ability to read bad books,' and other 'similar causes,' as the Catholics, ignorance yet shows so much more on the Catholic side than on the Protestant? Not only so, but why is the same exhibit made in Catholic countries? Take Spain for example: In the province of Grenada, with a population of 404,000 only 50,000 can read or write—so that 86 per cent. of the population are absolutely illiterate—and this in a country boasting of almost entire unity of faith and living at peace with her Church, and boasting so large a number of unattached—i. e. idle—clergy! The Catholic Review is so frank that we again appeal to its candor. And we have a few other problems awaiting solution."—Christian at Work

Those engaged in the work referred to below deserve all encouragement: "The Society for the Prevention of Vice held its sixth annual meeting at Association Hall January 18th. The attendance was large, and great interest was manifested by the audience. Mr. Comstock read the yearly report, which may be summarized as follows: Persons tried in United States courts 35, in State courts 9, convicted 16, sentenced 12; imprisonment imposed three years and seven months, amount of fines imposed $3,715, convicts pardoned 2, books seized 9,850 pounds, circulars, songs, etc., 74,700 pounds, open letters seized on the person 38,250, letters ready for mailing seized 349, names and post-office addresses seized 478,825, miles traveled by agent outside of city 20,250. The leading trial was that of D. B. Bennett, who was sentenced to thirteen months' imprisonment, which he is now undergoing. The expenses of the year were $8,357 19, and the receipts $7,820 18, gifts and donations amounting to $7,000, and the fees from Mr. Comstock to over $500. Addresses were made by Samuel Colgate, Esq., president of the Association, and by Drs. H. C. Potter and Howard Crosby. The work of the year has been more satisfactory and fruitful than that of any preceding year since the organization of the society. Through its agency laws for the suppression of vice have been passed in several States and several similar societies have been organized in a number of the large cities. The suppression of fifty lottery and gambling concerns is one of the good results of the year."

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

The Pee Dee Bee is informed that Rev. S. C. Alexander will have ministerial charge of the Presbyterian church at Rockingham, N. C., for the present year.

SECOND CHURCH, PETERSBURG, VA.

A friend writes that "the Second Presbyterian church, Petersburg, at the last communion received eight persons into membership, four on profession of faith and four by certificate (not letter, as we sometimes see). Three were from the mother Church of Scotland; one was from the Sabbath school of the Second church.

"By the way, this church has a novel way of announcing new members. As their names are read out from the pulpit they arise at their seats and the pastor, in the name of the church and congregation, addresses them a few words of welcome and advice; the congregation then stand and the pastor commends the new members to their affectionate regard and sympathy. A stranger, in this way, is made known to the whole church at once. The plan is a new one, but all seem to be highly pleased with it."

REJOICE WITH US.

Dear Presbyterian: Like the woman who found her piece of money, like human nature everywhere, we feel this morning like calling out to all the Presbyterian world, "Rejoice with us, we have a settled, resident pastor."

Many of your readers have watched with interest and sympathy our efforts as a church to secure a minister who could live with us, and do pastoral work among us. Yesterday Rev. James L. Currie preached his first sermon as our pastor. Our little church was full in the morning and crowded at night. Mr. Currie gave us two excellent sermons. His manner is earnest and full of life and feeling. He pleased everybody, and the students especially were much impressed.

Pray for us that the good work, begun so many years ago and so faithfully continued by dear brother Dalton, may go on increasing in results. Pray that we may all work under and with our new pastor to the ingathering of many sheaves for the Master's harvest. Yours faithfully, PRESBYTERIAN.

ANOTHER PASTOR KINDLY REMEMBERED.

Early on Wednesday last the people of Bethel church began to call on their pastor, and continued so to do till almost noon. The aged and the young, parents and children, came. They came with cheerful faces and full hands—hands full of just such things as a family need. The premises were taken possession of, and it soon appeared they meant business. At the proper time a table was arranged and literally covered, crowded and loaded with substantials and dainties, such as our good ladies know so well how to prepare, which received the most tasteful respects of all present. Young and old seemed to enjoy the occasion, and left in the afternoon gratified that they had been present.

It may here be said that this is not the first time that these good people have shown, in concert, in this substantial way, their regards for their pastor, and the individual acts of kindness have been numerous. And now, when you remember that their pastor has been "pounding" them for nearly nineteen years you can but admire their patience and determination not to be outdone.

Some families, providentially prevented from being present, were represented by their gifts, and others have since presented their tokens of affection. PASTOR.

P. S.—Caution: We would suggest that this visit be not repeated too soon, lest the pastor and his family be put to inconvenience. P.

Greensboro, Jan. 27, 1880.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF EDUCATION.

Receipts for Beneficiary Education, from Dec. 9th, 1879, to Jan. 1, 1880:

Synod of Alabama	$ 95 43
Synod of Arkansas	16 25
Synod of Georgia	118 10
Synod of Kentucky	30 95
Synod of Memphis	90 25
Synod of Mississippi	188 85
Synod of Missouri	10 85
Synod of Nashville	16 95
Synod of South Carolina	113 48
Synod of Virginia	577 70
Synod of Texas	21 45
Miscellaneous	99 00
	$1,379 06

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE BEATITUDES.

I hope that I will not be considered destitute of all modesty be ause I venture to criticise the exposition given by Dr. B. M. Palmer, of the first Sabbath school lesson for February. I shall offer a different interpretation from the one he has given on what I consider an important point on Theology, with the hope that if I am mistaken I may be led to see and correct the mistake.

To my view, each of the three Beatitudes, equally with the subsequent ones, describes a condition of the soul pertaining only to believers in Christ, and consequently only to Christians. And this also seems to be the opinion of Dr. Palmer, if only the first part of his exposition is considered. He says, "The qualities described are not the virtues of the natural man, and the promised blessings are strictly spiritual." In his exposition of the first Beatitude, he says, "This humility" (found in those who are poor in spirit) "is characteristic of such as are in a state of grace, the beginning of the holiness which belongs to the kingdom of Christ, whether on earth or hereafter in heaven." He describes the second Beatitude as consisting in that "penitential sorrow for sin" which "distinguishes repentance from remorse." Of the third Beatitude he says, that it has reference to the meekness which is "used almost technically in the Scriptures for true piety," and "represents the entire breaking down of the sinner's will."

After thus describing, as I think, a genuine Christian, I was truly surprised to find him saying in his exposition of the fourth Beatitude, that it "marks the transition into a state of justification before God." If, by these words, he simply means that the qualities of the soul described by the first three Beatitudes, precede the qualities described by the last five, in the order of cause and effect, and not by any means in the order of time, the question might admit of debate, but this article would not have been written for the purpose of debating it. But the words will not admit of any such meaning. They seem to teach that a person may be possessed of the virtues indicated by the first three Beatitudes, and yet not be in "a state of justification before God;" that is, not a believer in Christ. He says that the fourth Beatitude "makes the transition into a state of justification before God," and then goes on immediately to say that "It lies midway between the two classes of blessings which divide respectively the sinner and the saint." And he says that "The three first benedictions cover the whole process of conviction for sin until we are brought to the point of surrender" (indicated by the fourth).

Now, if a person can have the poverty of spirit indicated by the first Beatitude, and at the same time be an unbeliever, who is in a state of condemnation, our Saviour would not have called him BLESSED. Neither would He have declared such a person to be already in possession of the kingdom of heaven.

It is only by the new birth that a sinner enters the kingdom of Heaven—the invisible, spiritual Church of Christ. And there is no appreciable interval of time between a sinner's regeneration, and his ceasing to be an unbeliever, in an unjustified state. Although the sinner is passive in regeneration, his conscious or unconscious motions of life cannot be separated in point of time from the act of God in giving him life. There can be no point of time in which it can be said that a sinner is neither dead nor alive. When there is a loud noise in the immediate vicinity of a deaf man, he is compelled to hear it as soon as his ears are opened. As soon as a man's eyes are opened, he can see, and does see, though he may only "see men as trees walking." And, supposing that a regenerated adult may, during an infinitesimal interval of time be an unbeliever, what would become of him if in that interval he should be ushered into eternity?

And surely the repentance indicated in the second Beatitude cannot be exercised without the faith indicated in the fourth. However theologians may differ on the question which of these fruits of the spirit precede the other in the order of cause and effect, all Calvinistic divine hold that there is no difference between them in the order of time. Turning from sin to Christ I regard as one act of a regenerated soul. It should be noted that in Luke's record of the Beatitudes, the hungering for righteousness (faith) is mentioned before the weeping (mourning) for sin (repentance.)

Not to make this article too long, I will conclude by quoting the opinion of Dr. Scott the commentator, and others, on this subject.

Dr. Scott, on Matt. 5:3, quotes approvingly the following from Whitby the Armenian: "In general, the beatitudes do not refer to any natural tempers, but to holy dispositions, produced by divine grace, rectifying the obliquities of fallen nature. Where one of them really exists, all the others exist, though not in equal prominence," Henry, the commentator, says of the poor in spirit, "This poverty of spirit is a gracious disposition of soul, so emptied of self as to be filled with Christ." Of the second Beatitudes, he says that it is "A godly sorrow, a sorrow according to God, with an eye to Christ. Zech. 12:10." Jacobus says, of the poor in spirit, "This disposition here called Blessed is that humility which is characteristic of Christians." Olshausen says, "The first statements of the Sermon on the Mount contain a description of the character of God's children, which is true of all grades of development, the highest as well as the lowest. For as in the lowest, purity of heart exists in its germ, the highest still maintains poverty of spirit." P. T. P.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Biblical Museum, consisting of Notes (critical, homiletic and illustrative) on the Holy Scriptures, forming a complete commentary on an original plan, especially designed for ministers, Bible students and Sunday school teachers. By James Comper Gray, author of "The Class and the Desk." Anson D. F. Randolph & Co., 900 Broadway, N. Y. The value of this work to ministers and Sunday school teachers consists in this, that besides explanatory and critical notes, marginal references, explanations and derivations of words, literary, chronological and analytical notes, etc., each verse or group of verses is accompanied by suitable anecdote or illustration. Thus a most complete commentary is presented to the reader, as well as the most perfect museum of anecdote and illustration that has ever yet been published, with additional advantage of the whole of the material being so arranged as to be instantly accessible under the passage of Scripture referred to. In eight volumes; 12mo, cloth, 384 pp. each, $1 25 per volume. Either or all of the volumes sent by mail or express, prepaid, on receipt of price by the publishers.

Wide Awake for February is on the table. Among the contents are: Granny Luke's Courage; In Trouble; Little Lotti's Grievance; The Jeweled Tomb; Wishes; Tangles. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

The Eclectic Magazine for February contains articles from the following publications: Contemporary Review, Fraser's, Fortnightly Review, Macmillan's, Temple Bar, The Spectator, Cornhill, The Nineteenth Century, Belgravia. E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond street, New York.

An Introduction to the Greek of the New Testament, by Geo. L. Cary, is before us. It can no doubt be made useful in colleges. W. F. Draper, Andover, Mass.

Blackwood's Magazine for January comes to us with the following contents: A Turkish Effendi on Christendom and Islam; Pindar's Hymn to Persephone; Reata, or What's in a Name; Our Strachelberg Symposium; Bush Life in Queensland; The Roman Breviary; How I Fell Among Thieves; Notes from Epirus; To Portia at Belmont; Mr. Gladstone's Pilgrimage. The Leonard Scott Pub. Co., New York.

The Emotions, by James McCosh, D. D., LL. D., president of Princeton College. 1880. Charles Scribner's Sons. New York. $2 A fresh and able discussion of the emotions from a skillful psycologist was needed. Dr. McCosh treats the subject with ability. Discarding the vague terms, "spring of action," "motive," &c., he introduces a new term, "appetence," and lays down this proposition: that as the basis of all emotion there is a mental principle determining its nature and its intensity, i. e. an "appetence." This unconscious appetence of soul is open to an idea or phantasm, grasped by consciousness, with the accompanying excitement arising from attractions and repulsions, and the results are certain organic affections. Dr McCosh combats materialists, who explain all mental action by cerebral structure, or nervous movement; Hobbes' summary reference of all activities to motives from pleasure or pain, and the methods of physiological psychologists, who give the physical phenomena—mere signs of emotion—but fail to picture the emotions under the eye of experience and consciousness. Under the classification of Sir Thomas Browne he gives very beautiful analyses of various emotions. While the book will awaken debate it will be read with great pleasure. It has a good table of contents as well as an index.

MONTHLY REVIEW OF MISSION.

We have letters from China from the 13th of November to the 1st of December. Miss Safford writes: "We are all in good health and spirits. It would be joyful news to us if we hear that the Church had return to, and even exceeded, the ardor of her first love in the great cause of missions."

Mr. DuBose writes: "Just returned from a successful itinerant trip to Werseih and Changchow on Grand Canal, selling 1,500 Gospels and Tracts in four days."

Mr. Davis reports that he had finished his book (the translation of the Gospels and the Acts into the Soochow dialect) and was again at Soochow. He also reports that a second school was about to be opened under the care of Mrs. Davis, and attaches great importance to these schools as a means of reaching and influencing the minds of the Chinese people, and especially the female part of the population.

From Greece we have intelligence as late as the 11th of December. A letter from Dr. Kalopothakes, of the 6th of December, published in our present issue, gives a detailed account of the efforts that have been made to secure greater religious freedom in Greece, and the success that has already attended those efforts as well as the prospect of still greater results. This communication deserves to be carefully read. God's providence seems to betoken a brighter day for the Greek population generally.

From the Mexican Mission we have intelligence as late as the 24th of December. Mr. Hall had got back from his journey up the Rio Grade and was, in consequence, in health, and the work going on pleasantly. It was expected that Mr. Carrero, one of the native licentiates, would be sent in the course of a few weeks to open a new station at Victoria, a town of 7,000 inhabitants, situated to the south-east of Matamoras.

From Campinas our latest letters are dated the 3rd of December. We were sorry to learn that Mr. Lane had been summoned to Sao Paulo, where Mrs. Lane and her children had gone a few weeks before for relaxation, to attend a child in extreme illness. Very little hope was entertained of its recovery at the date of his letter. Mr. Boyle had located at Mogy-Mirim, a small Brazilian town to the north of Campinas, with the view of making that place the centre of his evangelistic labors in that part of Brazil. Mrs. Boyle, with her two little children, left New York on board the steamer Para for Rio de Janeiro on the 4th of January. Her health, we are glad to find, had been very much improved by a sojourn of nine months in this country. She had the prospect of a pleasant voyage.—Missionary.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

Since the dedication of Belle Haven church, Accomac county, Va., last fall, the pastor, Rev. R. D. Stimson, has been rejoiced to witness five accessions to its membership, making the total at present thirty-two.—Central Presbyterian.

The church at Hazelhurst, Miss., we learn from the Southwestern Presbyterian, is prospering. A few Sabbaths since, Rev. W. B. Bingham preached. Four persons—three of them heads of families—were admitted to the communion of the church.

At a meeting of Charleston Presbytery, during the session of Synod at Rock Hill, S. C., Rev. John H. Bryson, D. D., was dismissed to the Presbytery of Nashville, and Mr. Horace B. Zernow, a member of Glebe Street church, Charleston, was taken under the care of Presbytery as a candidate for the gospel ministry. Mr. Zernow is at present a student in Davidson College.

Rev. C. M. Howard has been preaching for several weeks past in Old Concord church, Appomattox county, Va. The meetings have been well attended, and quite a number of persons have professed conversion.—Central Presbyterian.

The Rev. T. R. English has requested the Presbytery of Macon to dissolve the pastoral relation between himself and the church at Cuthbert, Ga.—Southern Presbyterian.

The interest in the First Presbyterian church, Louisville, Ky., is increasing. Rev. J. W. Bachman has returned home. Rev. J. M. Evans is expected to assist Dr. E. O. Guerrant. Thirty-five accessions thus far, nine of them on Sabbath, 25th ult., on profession.

The Christian Observer says: Ten communicants have been added recently to the church at Covington, Ky., which is under the pastoral care of the Rev. George Summey.

At a pro re nata meeting of the Presbytery of Nashville, held in the First church, Nashville, on January 22nd, the following items of business were transacted:

Ministers Received—The Rev. J. H. McNeilly was received from the Presbytery of Brazos, the Rev. W. T. Thompson from the Presbytery of Harmony, and the Rev. J. H. Bryson, D. D., from the Presbytery of Charleston. The Rev. J. H. McNeilly accepted the call from the Moore Memorial church, and order was taken for his installation on the second Sabbath in February. The Rev. W. T. Thompson accepted a call from the Shelbyville church, and the Rev. Drs. Bryson and T. A. Hoyt were appointed to install him on the first Sabbath in February. The Rev. W. L. Bosser was released from the pastoral charge of the Mt. Vernon and Spring Creek churches.—Christian Observer.

We learn from the Staunton Vindicator that the Presbyterian congregation of Lexington, Va., has purchased a residence for $2,250, for a manse.

From the Texas Presbyterian we learn that the week of prayer was observed by the Methodist and Presbyterian churches in San Antonio, Texas, and continued during the succeeding week in the Presbyterian church. Two additions were made to the Presbyterian church on the regular communion occasion.

METHODIST.

The Raleigh Christian Advocate says: The whole Methodist membership paid $1,401 38 to the Bishop, $11,117 86 to Presiding Elders, $76,647 62 to pastor, $4,180 90 to superannated preachers, widows and orphans, $7,018 86 for missions, $1,317 41 to the poor, $5,036 30 to Sunday Schools, $37,628 74 for building and repairing churches, $1,080 75 for education, $5,208 21 for incidentals, and $369 98 to the Bible cause. The whole sum paid during the past year is $151,699 70. This gives a general average of $2 28 per member, or over $3 00 to each who really paid, and 87 per cent. of all assessments.

The committee appointed at the Methodist conference at Baltimore, in 1876, to consider the matter of a conference of Methodists throughout the world, have received favorable replies from the various Methodist bodies. A meeting of the committee will be held in Cincinnati to prepare a call for the conference. It is expected that 20,000,000 Methodists will be represented. The conference will be held in 1881 but the place of meeting has not yet been selected.

BAPTIST.

The congregation of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, now worshipping in West Fifty-third street between Sixth and Seventh avenues, under the Rev. Dr. Joseph F. Elder, last Sabbath morning raised $66,000 for the purchase of a site for church edifice.

The Baptist Year Book for 1880 gives the strength of this denomination in the United States in 1879 as follows: Churches 24,794; ordained ministers, 15,401; baptisms, 78,924; membership, nearly two millions and a quarter.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Capt. C. P. Williams bequeaths a farm to the Second Congregational church of Stonington, Conn.; $5,000 to the American Home Missionary Society of the city of New York, and $5,000 to the American Board.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN.

The condition of affairs in the Sixth Church of Philadelphia was such that letters of dismission were granted to the members and elders, and a report made to the Presbytery of Philadelphia that the church was dissolved.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

The Churchman says: The Protestant Episcopal Church reported in 1877, 281,970 communicants; in 1878, 314,367; and in 1879 320,000.

Some years since an Episcopal church was erected in Ogden, Utah, at a cost of $16,000, furnished by an Eastern gentleman.

LUTHERAN.

Mr. Doano Michener, who lost his life by falling from a freight train near Marysville, on December 7th, bequeathed $2,000 to the Lutheran church of Duncannon, Penn.

NORTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

On the 14th ulto., Rev. Alfred E. Meyers, of the Reformed (Dutch) Church, was installed pastor of the Presbyterian church of Owasco, New York.

The Presbyterian says: Judge J. L. Williams, of Fort Wayne, Ind., says that in 1831 no church of Presbyterian order had been organized between Piqua, on Big Miami, Ohio, and the Selkirk settlement so-called, on the Red River of the North, now Manitobe, at which point a few Scotchmen had formed a settlement and organized a Presbyterian church. Now there are hundreds of flourishing churches within these limits.

REFORMED (DUTCH.)

The Rev. Wm. H. Smith, of Unionville, Conn., died near Aiken, S. C., on Dec. 17, 1879, and was buried in Aiken on the 24th. He was a minister of the Reformed (Dutch) church and came South on account of his frail health. He had made some warm friends in South Carolina."—Southern Presbyterian.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

The Chicago Catholic Colonization Society have purchased 25,000 acres for a colony in Nebraska, and they will be open to colonists on the 15th of February.

GENERAL.

Arthur H. Adams, M. D., medical missionary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, died suddenly on board the steamship Pekin, November 28rd. He was returning to Japan, having spent some months with his invalid wife in Southern California, expected her to join him again when her health would permit.—Presbyterian.

ECLECTICISMS.

MORAL TESTIMONY WANTED.

Southwestern Presbyterian:

In these days of unsettled convictions, selfishness and unbelief we need moral testimony, weight of character, established conviction and power at the throne of Grace, to bear witness for the truth. There can be no testimony produced nor imagined, more specially suited to the prevailing character of modern thought. Then, there is a very earnest injunction resting on the consciences of those who are drawing near the close of life, to resist any suggestions of the tempter, that the day of their usefulness is past, that their power to exert a good influence is exhausted. Their testimony, the weight of their character, the power of their prayers, increased in value as they become more confirmed and established in faith and in a godly life—in other words, "as ye see the day approaching," A godly life never flickers in the socket, but shines brightest at the last.

CHRISTIAN JOY A DUTY.

Southern Presbyterian:

Christianity is a fountain of pleasure. It appeals to all those sentiments in man whose exercise brings real enjoyment. Its grand aim is just as much to lead men to enjoy as to glorify God, and it teaches him to glorify by enjoying him. It even commands him to rejoice, and includes joy amongst the fruits of the Spirit in every renewed soul. And then it supplies him with ample grounds and sources of the purest and highest pleasures, in its sublime and attractive representations of God, in its refreshing disclosures of divine mercy, in its precious promises relating to both temporal and eternal blessings, in the spiritual exercises to which it introduces him, and even in the duties which it imposes. Christian experience abounds in illustrations of this feature of the gospel, which prove that it is not a mere theory but a blessed fact. And the best proof of all is that those who experience the largest amount of this evangelical joy are these who most abound in the labors, the self-denials, and the sacrifices of a godly life.

THREEFOLD CONSIDERATIONS.

Central Protestant:

The shortness of the time, the greatness of the work, the mightiness of the issues—these are the threefold considerations which should hourly press the mind of every worker in God's cause.

Because procrastination is a deceiver, spurn his counsel and rather redeem than squander the time. And because the work is great, come not down from the high place on the wall to wrangle with the childish disputants of the world. Also, because of the mightiness of the issues, involving an eternity of bliss or pain, be intensely earnest. A little while longer, and the record will be wound up.

COMPELLED TO HONOR.

Baltimore Presbyterian:

Let the traditional, and in many cases, fictitious, "blue laws" of Connecticut be enforced to the letter—let the husband be fined for kissing his wife, let the maiden be punished for plucking a flower, let all the grotesque enactments be enforced to the letter—and yet think you a village or community so governed, would be the seat of drunkenness and debauchery, with its glittering "hells" and numberless saloons, or a well-to-do, moral and educated community, with citizens possessed of the stuff from which heroes and martyrs are made? We might laugh at their whimsical regulations, but would be compelled to honor their integrity.

WORSE THAN A BUTTERFLY.

S. S. Times:

A person to whom the most solemn and sacred things of life are nothing more than food for jest, is worse than a butterfly, for butterflies are silent; and more empty-headed than a hired clown, for the paid jesters of mediæval kings knew enough not to intrude their mechanical witticisms when the monarch was in no mood for frivolity. And the would-be wit in modern society, in his never-ceasing search for a subject, is very sure to pass from the regions of folly to those of cruelty. If he did nothing more than display his own frivolousness, he might be pitied; but when he wantonly wounds natures so far above his own that he cannot even perceive the injury he inflicts he becomes a nuisance to whom the homes of gentlefolk should not be opened.

NO SHORT CUTS.

Christian Intelligencer:

There are no "short cuts" in God's Redeeming plan. The kingdom of heaven must come in His own, old way—by the regeneration of souls, one by one, and not by the christening of nations with a name. The kingdoms of the world are of the world, and not of the Father. Civilization is not Christianity, nor does the divine map know aught of latitude or longitude, or statistical tables of classification. Where His will is done, there is Christ King; where it is done as in heaven, there has the kingdom come—and not one inch or hair's breadth further.

OUTFLASHES OF GLORY.

Interior:

Every newly discovered truth in nature, since Galileo, has been a new outflash of the glory of God. Worship has grown more profound as it has become more intelligent. Nay, verily, the truths of God's Word are an arch which grows stronger with the superincumbent weight of the truths of God's works. Men will constantly rush to false conclusions—they always have, why not now? They have rushed to materialistic and atheistic conclusions with every new development of biological science, and they rebounded back to the acknowledgment of God—and it must be so. The contrary is impossible. How can a man who applies the key found in the first of Genesis to the arcana of nature, and finds it to lift every bolt and latch—how can he take that light which explains and illuminates every dark problem—and doubt? He may doubt for a time, but back he will come. And this is not theory—it is a matter of experience among thousands of thoughtful minds.

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

The new Governor of New York signed his first annual message with a gold pen made from Egyptian coins 4,000 years old.

The Newbern and Wilmington mills, in this State, are now, we learn, both making money. And we have reason to believe the same can be said of most of the mills in North Carolina.—Raleigh Observer.

Mr. N. Ballew, at Nathan's Creek, Ashe county, has recently sold one hundred acres of mineral lands to a company of Northern capitalists for $25,000.—Greensboro Patriot.

In the education of the blind at Boston an excellent step has been taken. They are now taught to tune pianos, and are extremely successful in their work, which is praised by leading musicians. The city has for three years intrusted to these blind tuners all the pianos in the public schools.

Growers in Vineland, N. J., are shipping radishes and tomatoes to the New York and Philadelphia markets. Radishes bring $19 a barrel and tomatoes $60 a barrel.

The Shah of Persia is stated to intend undertaking a pilgrimage to Mesned next spring accompanied by 10,000 troops.

A negro man had some white mice in a cage in Kinston on Saturday, which, he said, he caught last week, ploughing them up in the field.—Kinston Journal.

There were 401 divorces in the little State of Connecticut last year, and the Governor recommends the most stringent legislation to prevent the dissolution of the marriage bond on "any sudden caprice."

Dr. Thomas Hill, an eastern county man, has been raising rice on the high lands of Rowan. The editor of this paper remembers seeing it growing in Montgomery county years ago.—Carolina Watchman.

The demand for business houses in Durham is so far in excess of the supply that no less than two dozen applications are already in for the store now occupied by Capt. J. J. Freeland.—Tobacco Plant.

The exploring expedition under the lead of Henry M. Stanley, has established the first Belgian trading station in Congo, near Yellalla, which place is claimed by both England and Portugal.

Ottawa dispatch of January 30: "A man supposed to be dead from smallpox was being buried here Wednesday. The grave-digger had begun to fill up the grave, when a noise was heard in the coffin, which was opened, and the man was found to be alive. He was taken back to the hospital."

Two gold mines are now worked in the streets of Concord, as we see from the papers. We have one in our town that has been worked some, and there is talk of working it again. —Alamance Gleaner.

One of the best signs of the times is the marked improvement in the business and condition of the savings banks. The number of depositors, and the amounts of deposits, are now larger than they have been since 1873.

The grading of the track for the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley railroad is going on rapidly, the convicts working well, as they do on the Western railroad. Guilford, Stokes and Surry have added $65,000 to the capital stock, but the progress of the road to completion must be very slow until the State is in condition to pay the $50,000 appropriated at the last session of the Legislature.—Hale's Weekly.

We learn from the Wilmington Star that Mr. Winslow Newkirk, engineer of the Narasss Guano Works, got his clothing caught in the machinery and narrowly escaped being crushed to death. His wounds were quite severe, though at last accounts he was about. His escape from death was almost miraculous.

A Berlin dispatch to the London Times says that as neither the Ultramontane party nor the Centre, nor the Russian Bishops can be regarded as impartial sources of information touching the plans of the Vatican, Bismarck has determined to demand directly from the Pope what really are the grievances of the Church which prevent the establishment of solid peace. When an answer is received Herr von Putt Kanmer, Minister of Ecclesiastical Affairs, will draft a bill abolishing the severest clauses of the May laws.

PRESBYTERIAL NOTICE.

Presbytery of Mecklenburg will meet at Dallas, Friday, March 19, 1880, at 7 p. m.
R. Z. JOHNSTON, S. Clerk.

A large part of the stock of Messrs. Yeargan, Petty & Co., of Raleigh, we learn was bought before the recent advance in prices, and they can and will make it to the interest of buyers to trade with them.

Good prayers never come creeping home. I am sure I shall receive either what I ask or what I should ask.—Bishop Hall.

TRUTH AND SOBERNESS.

What is the best family medicine in the world to regulate the bowels, purify the blood, remove costiveness and billousness, aid digestion and stimulate the whole system?

Truth and soberness compel us to answer, Hop Bitters, being pure, perfect and harmless. See "Truths" in another column.

Messrs. Polk Miller & Co:

I have used Vest Pocket Cure in my family for ten years, and have taken it for a Dyspepsia Colic, which threatened my life, and was cured, eating any diet without hurt. I have recommended it to other sufferers with happiest results. It is the best tonic and corrective I ever knew. For protration from Dyspepsia or Liver Disease it is invaluable.—Rev. ROBERT W. WATSON, A. M., Va.

Nothing is uglier than a crooked boot or shoe; straighten them with Lyon's Heel Stiffeners.

Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer.
Hall's Vegetable Secilian Hair Renewer,
Sold by all druggists.

AN ARTICLE OF MERIT.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches are the most popular article in this country or Europe for Throat Diseases and Coughs, and this popularity is based upon real merit. Imitations are offered for sale, many of which are injurious. The "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are sold only in boxes.

The 172d session of Bingham School has opened stronger than ever before—100 per cent. ahead of the 170th, or 50 per cent. ahead of the 171st. Ten Southern States and three Northern States—New York, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin—together with Brazil and Siam, are represented, among over 150 names on the roll.

A Phenomenon in Literature.

ANDREW'S BAZAR, to-day the leading fashion paper of this continent, is an example of what business energy and business promptness faithfully fulfilled can do. From the start this magnificent journal has commanded the admiration of every one who has seen it. Its Fashion Departments are always fresh and reliable; its literary excellence unsurpassed; and is fun joyous and refined. Notwithstanding its low price—only $1 per annum—every subscriber, new or old, for 1880, will be presented free with 50c. worth of ANDREWS' BAZAR PATTERNS, and furthermore, those who subscribe in time to secure the January number, will receive as a New Year's Gift an immense supplement sheet—the largest ever printed—filled with useful and practical designs for marking linen, worsted and other fancy work, for painting on china, silk and satin, etc., which could not be purchased separately for $10. Every lady should subscribe for this splendid journal, or at least send ten cents for a sample copy, to
W. R. ANDREWS, Publisher,
Tribune Building, New York.

15 Pounds Gained in Three Weeks, and CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

Messrs. Craddock & Co., 1032 Race street, Philadelphia, Pa.

GENTLEMEN:—Please send me twelve bottles of Dr. A. JAMES' CANNABIS INDICA, one each of Pills and Ointment, for a friend of mine who is not expected to live; and as your medicines cured me of CONSUMPTION some three years ago, I want him to try them. I gained fifteen pounds while using the first three bottles, and "I know it is just nothing for him.

Respectfully, J. V. HULL.
Lawrenceburg, Anderson Co., Ky.

This remedy speaks for itself. One bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. There is not a single symptom of CONSUMPTION that it does not dissipate at once, and it will break up a fresh cold in 24 hours. $1 50 per bottle. Address
CRADDOCK & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and Throat and Lung, Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative power in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. SHERAR, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, New York.

MARRIED.

☞ No notice of a marriage or death will be inserted unless accompanied by a responsible name, which is wanted not for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.

By Rev. John W. Primrose on night of 28th, at the residence of R. J. Boyd, the bride's father, HORACE P. ROBERTSON, of Warren county, and ANNIE B. BOYD, of Halifax county.

DIED.

☞ Obituary notices must be paid for in advance The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

On Sabbath, Jan. 11th, 1880, suddenly of apoplexy, in the comfort of Christian hope, ROSSLYN CUMMING VASS, aged 60 years.

The deceased was the son of the late James and Elizabeth Vass, of Fredericksburg, Va., and brother of Rev. L. C. Vass, of Newbern, N. C.

In Lumberton, on Dec, 31st, 1879, Mr. CHRISTOPHER VON GLAHN, aged 46 years, 9 months and 10 days, leaving a fond and devoted wife and four affectionate children to mourn their great loss.

He was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church for several years. He bore his illness with patience and Christian fortitude, and when the summons came, his spirit passed away, leaving its clay tenement, as it were, in a "sweet and dreamless sleep."

IN MEMORIAM.

Centre church (Iredell) has been lately much afflicted by the death of two of her most useful members, viz: Mrs. CATHARINE CRESWELL, the wife of Mr. David Creswell, who died with paralysis on the 14th of September last, in the 71st year of her age; and Mr. ROBERT MCPHERSON, who died with perhaps the same disease, on the 12th ultimo, in the 66th year of his age.

Mr. McPherson was a ruling elder in Centre church for many years, was foremost in every Christian enterprise, and was regarded as the main pillar, humanly speaking, of our little church. Much could be written touching the usefulness and virtues of these departed ones. Suffice it to say that no two persons, perhaps, in our little church would be more missed in their families, their neighborhood and the church in which they held their memberships. They have both been removed since the day I last preached at said church. If I am ever permitted to enter that pulpit again I will look instinctively, but in vain to their vacant pews for those familiar faces into which I have looked from Sabbath to Sabbath for more than a score of years. PASTOR.

WILMINGTON MARKET
DURING WEEK
ENDING FEBRUARY 3.

THE attention of all persons interested is called to the fact that strict personal attention is given to the collection of the necessary information, and the careful preparation of our MARKET REPORT, so as to give a correct general review of transactions and prices, for the week ending each Tuesday morning.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—Wednesday nominally 38 cents; Thursday sales at 37 cents, and later 36½ cents; Friday and Saturday 36½ cents; Monday 36½ cents, and later 36 cents.

ROSIN—Strained $1 22½ and Good Strained $1 25 throughout.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—Wednesday and Thursday $1 60 for Hard and $2 60 for Yellow Dip; Friday and since $1 40 and $2 40 respectively.

TAR—Wednesday and Thursday $1 10 per barrel; Thursday price advanced to $1 15, and at these figures receipts were taken up to close.

COTTON—On Wednesday sales at 12¼@12¾ cents per lb for Middling; Thursday 12¼ cents; Friday held higher without sales; Saturday sales at 12¼ cents for Middling; Monday held at 12¼ cents per lb.

CORN—Sales one cargo of 2,300 bushels, at 68 cents per bushel. Demand light and stock fair.

TIMBER—Sales one raft Common Mill at $6 50; one do. do. at $7 50; one raft Fair Mill at $8 50; one do. Prime Mill at $11 00.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

REDUCTION! REDUCTION!

WE HAVING THIS DAY REDUCED THE prices of our

Cloaks and Dalmans

so low that it will be to the interest of everybody wanting one to look at our stock before purchasing. Our stock is very large, and we are

WE ARE DETERMINED TO SELL THEM!

You can also find a large stock of

GENT'S AND YOUTHS' CHOTHING

Ladies' and Gent's Underwear, Hosiery, Boots and Shoes, to be sold ont at

GREATLY REDUCED PRICES!

Give us a call.

T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opposite Charlotte Hotel.
feb 4 630 tf

1880.

TRY OUR

New Crop Cuba Molasses.

We have received the agency again for the well-known and popular

L. & R. GUANO,

Which we offer, on Crop Time,

For 425 Lbs. Middling Cotton.

Send in your orders.

BRYAN & CO.

Jonesboro, N C., Jan, 30, 1880.
feb 4 630 8t

1880. 1880.

YEARGAN, PETTY & CO.

PREPARING FOR THE

New Year!

WE OFFER FOR SALE A FULL LINE OF Fancy and COLORED DRESS GOODS!

At Cost and Less than Cost!

ALL DESIRABLE GOODS!

Repellants, Cassimeres, Cloths, Waterproofs, Waterproofs, Clockings, Suitings, Doeskins.

A Great Variety of Woolens!

For Men's and Boys' Wear.

The largest stock and greatest variety of

TOWELS! TOWELS! TOWELS!

DAMASKS, WHITE AND COLORED.

With Doyles to match—best ever shown in this market.

Flannels, Flannels, Flannels!

Shaker, Silk Warp, Domets, Cotton Flannels, Opera Flannels, plain colors, and FANCY PLAIDS!

All colors—plain fabrics and twilled. Bargains in these goods.

feb 4 630-e3w-tf

SELECT BOARDING
AND
DAY SCHOOL,
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.

Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.

THE SPRING TERM of 1880 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE Board and Tuition $100.
Circulars forwarded on application.
466-*jan.1,'79

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

1880.

WHO Shall be President?
Who Shall be Governor?
Subscribe for the

RALEIGH OBSERVER,

A Democratic Newspaper,
"The Old Reliable,"
SAMUEL A. ASHE, Editor and Owner.

Daily, per annum, $6. Weekly, per annum, $2.

Postmasters and agents allowed a liberal commission on all new subscribers they may obtain for THE OBSERVER.

The Editor of THE OBSERVER requests his friends in the various parts of the State to interest themselves in getting up clubs and otherwise extending the circulation and influence of THE OBSERVER during the campaign year of 1880. By their assistance he hopes to make THE OBSERVER still more acceptable and more useful to the cause of Democracy.
jan 21 4t

D'ROSSET & NORTHROP,

FIRE AND MARINE

INSURANCE AGENTS,

REPRESENTING { Standard American AND English Companies.

28 North Water Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.
nov 19 619-tf

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,

HARDWARE MERCHANTS,

Charlotte, N. C.,

KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will

Compete in Prices,

—EITHER—

WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,

With any Market.

All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods

VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.

We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 185.

COTTON!

IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants

For the Sale of Cotton,

Which they are prepared to do

On the Most Economical Charges.

They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.

ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,
Wilmington, N. C.
September 3d, 1879. 608

CHEESE.

200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,

For sale by

KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

Eggs from Premium Stock, $2 for 13. Can supply Partridge and White Cochin, Dark Brahma, Imp. P. Rock, White Leghorn and Bronze Turkey Eggs, from Best Strains. Stock acclimated. Order early, and save heavy express charges by ordering from

A. S. CALDWELL,
Jan 14 Charlotte, N. C. 627-4t

WHAT A FARMER HAS TO SAY
To Other Farmers

About Corn, Potatoes and Hay. Send postal for circular fully describing pure white Horse-tooth Seed Corn; Second Crop Irish Potatoes, a new discovery in Potatoes; Pearl Millet Seed, 10 cents per lb., a great forage plant. Their cultivation and uses. Also describing some of the best farms in Virginia for sale. Address A. H. LINDSAY, jan 7-feb 4-18-mb3 Portsmouth, Virginia.

jan 21 628 4teow

jan 7 626-4teow

jan 21 628-5t

THE DEAF HEAR
THROUGH THE TEETH!
PERFECTLY, all Ordinary Conversation, Lectures, Concerts, etc., by NEW Chamber to the Nerves of Hearing, by a wonderful few Artificial Invention, THE DENTAPHONE. For remarkable public tests on the Deaf, see The New York Herald, Sept. 28, Christian Standard, Sept. 27, etc. It disguises all Ear-trumpets. Size of an ordinary Watch. Send for our FREE pamphlet. Address AMERICAN DENTAPHONE CO., 287 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio
dec 24 624-13t

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. Send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. DR. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.
nov 19 619-13t

HOMES
in Western Arkansas.

The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway offer for sale the best LANDS in the West or South-West, with healthy climate, fertile soil, and not affected by dronth. Easy terms of sale. Full information.
Apply to W. D. SLACK, Land Comm'r,
Little Rock, Ark.
dec 24 624-13t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THOS. A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.

McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.

Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 593 1y.

CATARRH EFFECTUALLY and ABSOLUTELY CURED in every case. No pay till cured. For circulars explaining method of treatment, &c., address DR. J. K. ROSS, Centreville, Ind.
jan 21 628-4t

SALT

AND

GUANO.

5,000 Sacks
LIVERPOOL SALT,
6,500 Sacks
Peruvian Cotton Guano,

Now landing and for sale low by

WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.

Lynch's Select School,
HIGH POINT, N. C.

An English, Mathematical, Classical, Commercial and Scientific Academy,

MAJ. W. B. LYNCH, A. M., Principal.
B. P. PRICE, A. B., Assistant.

Spring session of 1880 begins January 21st. Board and Tuition $80. For circulars address the Principal.
dec 17 623-6t

READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN
If you like to be satisfied deal with

W. J. MOTT,

—Dealer in—

BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.

Keeps on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain his reputation in this regard. I will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,

W. J. MOTT,
North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.

P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult me either by mail or in person.
nov 19 619-tf

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.

THE SPRING TERM of 1880 opens Thursday, January 15. Board and tuition in English, $55 per session of twenty weeks.

Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.

Address MRS. E. N. GRANT, Principal.
feb 20 628-1y

PEACE INSTITUTE,
For Young Ladies,
RALEIGH, N. C.

THE Spring term commences on the 16th of January 1880, and closes the 1st of June following. The total expense of a boarding pupil for one term is $120, payable in advance. This amount will include board, with washing, fuel, lights, furnished room and servant's attendance, tuition in English branches and Latin, Calisthenics, Text Books and Stationery used for school purposes. For $150 all the above, with Instrumental Music and use of Piano.

For circular containing particulars as to terms, Course of Study, &c, address

REV. R. BURWELL & SON,
dec 24 624-3m Raleigh, N. C.

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $200. $5 Outfit free. P. O. RIDEOUT & CO., 218 Fulton St. N.Y.
oct 8 413-26t

EGG MACHINES.

BROWN LEGHORNS	Mature Earlier. Lay Earlier. Produce More Eggs. Are Most Happy. Are Most Profitable. Of All Fowls.

HALL & PEARSALL

OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of

100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER,
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.

sep 3 - 608-tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.

WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.

Our Trimming Department is Complete,

and comprises the leading styles.

Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.

We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.

Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.

The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.

N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.
nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.

THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the

Latest and Most Approved Style.

To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.

"First Come, First Served."

MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
apl 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER. Send your orders by mail.

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.

BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.

LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.

The Remington Sewing Machine,

A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.

Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.
Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.
GEO. A. PECK.
25 South Front Street.
dec 10 622-tf

AGENTS READ THIS

We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.
nov 19 619-6m

BETHEL ACADEMY,
DAVIDSON COLLEGE (P. O.) N. C.

Rev. L. K. GLASGOW, A. M. Principal.
Miss ELLA W. FLEMING, Assistant.

NINTH semi-annual session begins January 26, 1880. Boarders in Principal's family pay in advance for all expense except books, per quarter (10 weeks) $30.

For circulars containing testimonials from well-known educators and from patrons, address the Principal. dec 31-tf

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED.
NEW EDITION.
Now added, a SUPPLEMENT of over
4600 NEW WORDS and Meanings.
ALSO ADDED, A NEW Biographical Dictionary
of over 9700 NAMES.

A NATIONAL STANDARD.

WEBSTER'S is the Dictionary used in the Government Printing Office. Jan. 1879.
Every State purchase of Dictionaries for Schools has been of Webster.
Books in the Public Schools of the United States are mainly based on Webster.
Sale of Webster's is 20 times as great as the sale of any other series of Dictionaries.
THIRTY-TWO THOUSAND COPIES have been placed in the public schools of the U. S.
Engravings,—contains 3000, nearly three times as many as any other Dictionary.
Recommended by State Supts of Schools in 35 States, and by 50 College Pres'ts.
Is it not
THE NATIONAL STANDARD?
Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass.

THE MARVEL COPYIST.

NO COPYING PRESS REQUIRED. Most simple process invented. One hundred copies of circulars, letters, price-lists, plans, drawings, music, church reports, Sunday school lessons, &c., taken from a single writing. This process can be repeated for thousands of copies. Copies made on any kind of paper; also on linen, leather, &c Nothing to get out of order. Agents wanted. Note size $1 50; Letter, $3 00; Legal, $4.00; Postal, $1 00.

A. S. CALDWELL,
Jan 14 Charlotte, N. C. 627-4t

BEGIN THE NEW YEAR RIGHT!
BY SUBSCRIBING FOR

ANDREWS' BAZAR FOR 1880.

This is the best Illustrated Fashion and Family Journal published in the world, and costs

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR,

A trifle over EIGHT CENTS A MONTH, and contains information about just what is and is to be in the World of Fashion.

ANDREWS' BAZAR devotes ample space each month to HINTS ON HOME DRESSMAKING, which alone makes it invaluable to every mother in the land. Lovers of REFINED AND ELEVATED LITERATURE will find in its columns an admirable banquet, chaste and carefully selected, the contributions of the most eminent writers of this and foreign countries. The monthly article, "Illustrated Needlework," presents a perfect compendium of practical information as to the manufacture of the most exquisite embroideries and laces, giving in each issue new designs so clearly explained that they can easily be reproduced. From PARIS, BERLIN and LONDON able correspondents make monthly contributions to its columns. Hygienic and Scientific Information of sterling worth and importance is carefully collated from the best available sources. The "New York Trade Notes" of ANDREWS' BAZAR are an inside view of this the great market of the continent, and present an absolute correctly statement of what goods are desirable and what are not, with retail quotations compiled with care, thus making this journal indispensable to every merchant who desires to keep fully posted on all matters relating to his trade.

THE LITTLE FOLKS will find ANDREWS BAZAR just the paper to meet their wants, containing, as it always does, fresh and original stories written expressly for them. "Turtle Tracks," our funny column, is always filled with bon mots of delicious flavor, and is extensively quoted by every journal in the land which caters to this growing taste of the American people. In short, ANDREWS' BAZAR occupies in journalism a field at once unique, practical, and entirely its own.

SIX YEARS OLD!

Six years ago ANDREWS' BAZAR was launched upon the "sea of literature." Its superlative merits, recognized from the start, have placed it in the front rank above and far beyond any of its competitors. Six years ago unknown, and to-day each issue is mailed to thousands of post offices, and is welcomed in tens of thousands of homes. Its proprietor, ambitious and unresting in his determination to make ANDREWS' BAZAR an absolute necessity to every lady on this continent, pledges himself to spare neither expense nor time to secure a constant succession of startling and brilliant surprises for his readers.

A Present to Every Subscriber,

Every subscriber to ANDREWS' BAZAR, for 1880, renewals and new subscribers alike, will be presented free with FIFTY CENTS WORTH OF ANDREWS' BAZAR PATTERNS, which have just been awarded the Bronze Medal at the CINCINNATI INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION, the highest award of the association over all competitors.

OUR GRAND NEW YEAR'S GIFT!

Every New Yearly Subscriber who begins with the January Number will be presented, free, with a Magnificent and Gigantic Supplement Sheet, 33x36 inches in size, containing useful and practical illustrations of Fancy Letters and Monograms for marking Clothing, Bed and Table Linen; Designs for Making Laces, for Flannel Embroideries, for Worsted Work, and for Painting on China, Silk and Satin, and each so clearly and plainly pictured that it can be cut from the sheet and used as a pattern without destroying any other, and is accompanied with full and careful directions. These designs, if furnished by any dealer, would cost TEN DOLLARS.

NOTE.—This sheet will not be given with sample copies of the January Number, being positively reserved for New Yearly Subscribers.

☞ Remember, the Subscription Price to ANDREWS' BAZAR is only ONE DOLLAR PER ANNUM, and every subscriber gets a present of Fifty Cents worth of Patterns.

☞ Single copies, 10c. For sale by News Dealers everywhere. Sample copies mailed to any address upon receipt of 10c.

CANVASSERS can make more money working for ANDREWS' BAZAR than for any dozen others papers published in America! Send a 3c. stamp for our Illustrated Hand-Book and Premium List for 1880.

Address,

W. R. ANDREWS, Publisher,
Tribune Building, New York, or 171 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, O.

Please say in what paper you saw this advertisement.
feb 4 630-4t

THE PACIFIC GUANO COMPANY.

This Company, with a capital of $1,000,000, was chartered in 1865.

The stock was taken by a few of the largest and wealthiest merchants in Boston and New York, who still direct and control the Company.

The Works, situated at Woods' Holl, Mass., and Charleston, S. C., are the largest and most complete of the kind in the United States.

The Company owns several large deposits of Phosphate, which it works, and having acid chambers, manufactures its own Oil of Vitrol.

The Company employs and consults with several of the leading chemists and most progressive vegetable physiologists in the country.

With all these advantages—viz: long experience, ample capital, large works, splendid machinery, extensive deposits, and the best scientific ability, the Company can and does offer a Fertilizer unexcelled at the lowest possible price.

By reason of the liberal policy of the Company, as well as the intrinsic value of its principal brand, Soluble Pacific Guano, has become, unquestionably, the most popular Fertilizer in the United States, its sale extending from Maine to Texas.

It would be a work of supererogation for us to do more than simply call attention to the fact that Soluble Pacific Guano will be offered this (the fifteenth Spring) season for sale at all points in North Carolina, because there is no manufactured Guano as long, as widely, and certainly none more favorably known, than this brand.

We therefore will devote but a few lines to a description of this popular article, preferring that others should testify from their own practical experience as to its value.

It is proper, however, that we should call attention to a comparative analysis of Fertilizers sold in North Carolina, published in 1878, by Prof. Ledoux, the State Chemist of North Carolina, who places Soluble Pacific Guano among the very highest grades known.

Such an endorsement of Soluble Pacific Guano, confirmed as it is by Hon. L. L. Polk, the Commissioner of Agriculture, under whose auspices the analysis was published, is certainly worthy of note.

This year, Soluble Pacific Guano is equal, in every respect, to what it was in 1879.

It is manufactured by the same Company, under the same formula, using the same materials, and hence must give the same splendid analysis as that published by Prof. Ledoux.

It is in fine physical condition.

It is packed in new, clean bags, each bag containing 200 pounds.

The analysis is stenciled on each bag, as required by law.

For Sale By

LOUIS T. HICKS,	FAISON.
O. HICKS, Agent,	MOUNT OLIVE.
DANIEL BOWDEN,	BOWDEN'S.
T. B. PEIRCE,	WARSAW.
A. D. BLACK,	KENANSVILLE.
WHITEVILLE WINE COMPANY,	WHITEVILLE.
J. D. ROGERS,	FAIRBLUFF.
R. B. GADDY,	MULLINS.
L. L. MACLAURIN & SONS,	MCLAURIN'S MILLS.
EVERETT BROTHERS & GILL,	LAURINBURG.
MACRAE BROTHERS,	SHOE HEEL.

AND BY

ALEXANDER SPRUNT & SON.,

General Agents,

feb 4 630-2m WILMINGTON, N. C.

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.

HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.

Children's Merino Under Suits---A great comfort and convenience.
CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.
LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.
PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,
In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.

A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.
OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.
Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.
dec 3 631-1y

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847.) S. W. WHITING.

R. B. ANDREWS & CO.

Men and Boys CLOTHING, Extra Large Sizes

CLOTHING,
A Specialty.

Dress Shirts, Cuffs,
TIES, SCARFS,
Half Hose, Suspenders,
Gloves,
Handkerchiefs, Underwear,
Trunks, Valises, &c.

HATS AND CAPS,
A Large Assortment.

We give special attention to orders from a distance.

LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.

NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh. N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods
—AT—
M. M. KATZ'S,
36 MARKET STREET.

BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.

Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS. SILK VELVETS. SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.

DRESS GOODS.—Satin Melange, Cashmere Soie, Brocade Persan, Persan Rave, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.
MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Ete, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.
CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS, Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets. The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.
MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c., &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to oct 23 M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

NEW BOOKS

For Sunday School and Ministers Libraries. Send for Catalogue containing names of over

1200 Approved Books.

The only safe way to select books for your

SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES

Is to order those which have been read and approved by some competent person.
Our DISCOUNT to MINISTERS and SUNDAY SCHOOLS is the largest offered by any Publisher or Bookseller in the United States.
Address orders for all Sunday School Supplies to

PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va. Or, 207 N. 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR THE FAMILY.

Who is She?

There is a little maiden—
Who is she? Do you know?—
Who always has a welcome
Wherever she may go.

Her face is like the May-time,
Her voice is like a bird's;
The sweetest of all music
Is in her lightsome words.

Each spot she makes the brighter,
As if she were the sun,
And she is sought and cherished
And loved by every one:

By old folks and by children,
By lofty and by low,
Who is this little maiden?
Does anybody know?

You surely must have met her;
You certainly can guess;
What! must I introduce her?
Her name is—Cheerfulness.

May Blossom's Canes.

New neighbors were coming to live in the pretty cottage over the way, and our Freddy had perched on the gate post to oversee the moving in. Directly he scrambled down from his observatory in great glee, and ran into the sitting-room calling out, "Mamma, mamma, there's a boy in pants—just as big as me, I guess! Isn't that jolly?" and off he went in breathless haste, fearing to lose too much of the entertainment. In a moment he was back again with a pitiful look in his great blue eyes, and said in a low, hushed voice, "There is such a dear little girl, too, mamma, but she walks with two long sticks under her arms. When they lifted her out of the carriage she had to wait till they gave her the sticks; she can't walk without them. Isn't it dreadful, mamma? isn't it too bad?"

This was Freddy's first sight of a child with crutches, and it made a deep impression on his tender heart.

Very soon the children became playmates, and every day Freddy ran and romped with the boys. They swung, and rolled hoop, and played horse-cars and steam-cars and all the other merry make-believes that shorten the longest summer day for the little ones; but very soon we noticed something that caused us to wonder. It was this: no game with the boys seemed to interest Freddy for very long. After a little he would say simply, "I am tired," or perhaps without a word he left the little fellows at their play, and wandered to the porch, or the long bench under the elm tree, where "May Blossom" sat looking on with her pleasant smile; the "sticks" he had learned to call "canes," and, sitting down by her side, very often he leaned on one as they chatted together. He had begun almost to like May Blossom's "canes." She had soft, bright brown eyes, and a gentle, patient look on her small, round face, and, when Freddy came, had always a pleasant welcome and a pretty story to tell, or perhaps a nice, cosey little talk that was just as good as a story to Fred any day. We soon saw the result of these quiet talks, "Mamma, I must say 'please' every time, May Blossom always does." "Don't I say 'thank you' to Nora now? May Blossom it is nice." "May Blossom never tells wicked stories, and I won't." "May Blossom says it is cruel to touch the little blue eggs in the nest," and so it fared on through the summer. Very quietly May Blossom acquired this strong, sweet influence over our Freddy, till her gentle admonitions became a power with the wayward, loving little darling.

We, at first, had looked at her sweet figure through tears that dimmed our sight—the tears of a worldless pity. Slowly we seemed to see her through a clearer, truer medium. Our hearts grew peaceful beneath the echoes of words spoken long ago concerning the "babes" to whom the Father had revealed himself. "Even so, Father, for so it hath seemed good in Thy sight." Truly it seemed that for every lesser blessing withheld by her affliction, the greater boon of a perfect content had been given to the little one.

The parents, in their ceaseless efforts for her relief, had found a new physician. His skill was marvelous. The feeble limbs strengthened daily, and very soon the little girl could walk with but one cane, and then, before very long, she had learned to walk slowly, unassisted by any support. Great was the joy of all who knew May Blossom.

For a time she quite rejoiced in her new power; but soon we saw that she wearied and went back often to the house for her cane, and used it in preference. Noting this, one day a friend inquired, "Why do you not rather walk without it, dear, like other little girls?" "Because," said May Blossom, with a tone in her voice that went straight to the heart of her questioner, "because I am lonely without my crutch."

Could any reproving of her affliction have had more touching rebuke?

It was the old story of the pearl in the oyster, with a new rendering; the sharp sorrow permitted to enter the daily life. The sorrow that apparently comes to stay, with all of its wounding power, and yet so mercifully softened by gentle alleviations born of itself, that the unwelcome guest becomes the gem, the pearl, the blessing of the completed life.

Can the sweet lesson be too often repeated? Can we learn too much of the invisible help that comes with the visible sorrow, even to these unconscious little ones?—Canada Presbyterian.

"I Forgot."

Children, the story I am going to tell you is a true one, and I want you to learn from it how wrong it is for you to forget when you have made a promise to any one. How often we hear children say, "O, I forgot!" and think it is of no consequence.

One of the coldest days of last winter a gentleman in Baltimore was going home to his dinner. He was all muffled up and didn't mind the cold much, but as he turned the corner he saw a little school girl standing still on the sidewalk and looking so very cold that he stopped to see if she got safely into the car that was coming. But she didn't get into the car, and so he crossed the street to speak to her. He found that she had been crying, and that the tears had frozen on her little cheeks. Her hands were stretched out stiff, and she took no notice when he spoke to her. He saw in a moment what was the matter, she was freezing to death right in the street.

He picked her up in his arms as tenderly as he could, and ran with her to the nearest drug store. There she was rubbed and rubbed, and they put some medicine between her teeth to warm her blood; but it was a long time before the kind man saw any sign of life, and when he did it was only a shiver and a sigh. When the little eyes opened they looked at him, but closed very quickly again. Would she live to speak, and tell who she was and where she lived?

After awhile the eyes opened again, and then in a low voice she said, "Where's Allie?"

"There, my dear," said the gentleman, "don't try to talk just yet; wait till you feel better."

"But Allie's come, I guess. I got so cold waiting for him. Please let me go to him."

"Not just now, little dear; lie still and I'll try to find Allie," said the gentleman.

So she closed her eyes again, and seemed to sleep, but suddenly she roused and said, "There's Allie; I hear him."

A crowd had gathered round the door, and one little boy, very curious to find out what was the matter, had pushed his way into the store, and when he saw the little girl he cried out:

"That's our Bessie! It's Bessie!"

It was this that roused the child, and she could not lie still till they brought him to her.

He looked very much frightened.

"O, Allie," said the little girl, as tears came into her eyes, "I waited so long, and I got so cold."

"And will you please tell us, sir," said the gentleman, "why you let you last your little sister wait so long in the cold; it seems to have been your fault."

"I asked her to wait and carry home my books while I went to see Frank Page's new dog, but I didn't have any books to bring home to-day—and—and—"

"And what? What about your little sister?"

"I forgot her," said the boy, hanging his head and speaking very low

"Forget her! while you want to see Frank Page's new dog! and left her there to freeze to death! Supposing we had not been able to bring her to life, what then?'

"She needn't have waited," said the frightened boy, trying to excuse himself.

"Ah! and then you would have scolded her, no doubt, for not keeping her promise. This is a serious lesson to you, my lad, and I hope you'll remember it as long as you live. Now go get me a carriage, and I will take your sister home."

The parents were glad, you may be sure, to have their little Bessie home again, alive after such a narrow escape, and I presume they settled the matter with Allie. I hope he will never again be so careless and forgetful.—Morning Light.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Legend of St. George.

BY M. E. QUACKENBUSH.

There hangs in the Louvre at Paris a celebrated picture by one of the world's greatest artists. It represents a noble looking knight, mounted on horseback, with his glittering lance piercing the neck of a huge dragon, which appears to be writhing in agony. This picture is "St. George and the Dragon," and the legend is as follows:

St. George is generally represented as being a native of Cappadocia. He was a soldier in the army during the reign of Diocletian, A. D. 303. Being on his way to join his legion, he came to a certain city, whose inhabitants suffered greatly because of a dragon who lived in a marsh near by.

In order to prevent the monster from coming into the city to procure its prey, the people sent out cattle to appease its appetite, and, when these were gone, two children were daily sent out for the same purpose. The victims were chosen by lot, and were under fifteen years of age.

The King had one daughter, beautiful and beloved, and one day the lot fell on her. Her father was in great distress, and begged that she might be spared. But the people said that inasmuch as he had made the law and their children had suffered under it, his child should not escape. And the maiden, Cleodolinda, also said that this was but just, and that she was willing to die. So, arrayed in her royal robes, and kissing her weeping father farewell, she startad for the place where the dragon met his victims.

As she passed along the way paved with the bones of those who had been slain, St. George rode by. Struck by her majestic bearing and her beautiful face, he stepped and inquired who she was. When he heard her story he declared that she should not be sacrificed, but that he would slay the dragon.

Every one was astonished at his boldness, and Cleodolinda besought him not to risk his life. She told him that all the inhabitants of the city shrank in fear from the dreaded monster, and that it was folly for one man to attack it. But, in spite of her entreaties, St. George began to prepare himself for the combat.

Presently, on came the dragon, with a noise like thunder. His back, covered with scales, shone like burnished silver. Lashing his tail, he approached his supposed victims. He seemed the personification of all evil, and well might the sight of him strike terror into the heart of the beholder. But St. George, all undaunted, crossed himself, and then fiercely attacked the monster. The struggle that followed was long and bloody, but finally the knight succeeded in piercing the neck of the dragon, and afterward binding him, Cleodolinda led him into the city.

The people were much alarmed when they saw their enemy in their midst, but St. George said, "Have no fear! Only believe on the Son of God and be baptized, and you shall be saved." And in that day many thousands were baptized.

After this, St. George beheaded the dragon, then, distributing the treasure that the grateful king had given him, among the poor, he resumed his journey toward Palestine.

Now this was about the time of the edict of Diocletian ordering all Christians to renounce their faith or die. Many in their terror did the former, but St. George boldly tore down the edict and trampled it under his feet. For this he was compelled to suffer painful tortures. Divine aid was given to him to endure these without giving up his religion, but when his persecutors found that he would not yield, they released him.

As a noble, pure hearted knight, and a brave Christian martyr, St. George is much admired, and he has been for centuries the patron saint of England.

When Richard I. started out on his crusades, he placed his army under the protection of St. George. The order of the Garter is said to have been originated by the same King, who made twenty-six of his knights wear blue thongs of leather around their legs in a battle fought with the Saracens on St. George's Day, 1192 A. D. Others say that Edward III. instituted the the order somewhere about the year 1350. The original dress of the knights of this order was embroidered with garters of blue and gold. This costume was remodelled by Henry VIII. and afterward by Charles II. It now consists of a garter of dark blue velvet, edged with gold, bearing the motto, "Evil to him who evil thinks!" The other parts of the costume are of rich velvet. The collar consists of twenty-six pieces of gold, each in the form of a garter, and engraved with the figure of St. George slaying the dragon.

At one time ladies had their robes embroidered with the design of the garter, but the fashion has long since disappeared. The original number of the knights was twenty-six, but at present there are many more. On St. George's Day, April 23d, installations take place in St. George's chapel, Windsor.—Christian at Work.

Distribution of Plants.

Man, especially the Roman, has been the distributor of plants, but climate governs their distribution, arranges their divisions, and sets limit to their migrations. The Romans could not borrow from the flora of the south so freely as we have borrowed from them, since the aborescent and evergreen character of vegetation towards the tropics renders it liable to be destroyed by a slight degree of frost at any period of the year, whereas the herbaceous plants and deciduous trees and shrubs of temperate zones escape the winter's cold by retiring from active contention with it. On the other hand, our sun seldom scorches our vegetable visitors, unless they come from a land of mist, like the Sikkim rhododendrons; but Italian summers are too hot for some of the plants from the north. The Romans collected everything that a splendid sky, without a tropical sun, permitted, and their gardens contained nearly all the vegetables now in use. They had even the cauliflower, a highly artificial modification of the cabbage, which is said to have been originated in Cyprus, where luxury kept a good gardener. In the days of primitive virtue Cato restricted his account of the horticultural art to the cultivation of culinary plants, and of those used in chaplets; and the same spirit, dictating the laws of the decemvire, made hortus synonymous with heredium or inheritance (as it was practically to Naboth); and it made the families of the Lactuearii, and Fabii proud of their names. Taste becomes less severe under the empire, and flower-pots were introduced in windows, and even the hanses of the poor in Rome had little gardens in front for ornamental plants—equivalent to our window gardens—while the villas had highly decorated gardens attached to them, and there were parks and pleasure grounds in the heart of the city. The favorite garden trees were the pine, for its refreshing odor; the bay, for its beauty and fame; and the box, for its shade. Trees were regarded as the temples of the gods. "The simple peasants, savoring with antiquity, do still," says Pliny, "consecrate to one god or another the fairest trees, and we ourselves worship the same gods in silent groves with not less devotion than we dor their images of gold and ivory in our stately temples."

The London Livery Companies

At first these companies were organized as mutual benefit associations for the several trades. Goldsmiths, for example, joined the Goldsmith's Company, and were protected by it in their rights; in case of sickness they received, if needed, pecuniary aid. A man, no matter how high his qualifications, could not practise his trade or "mystery," in the city of London till approved by the company established to regulate that trade. Some of the companies, or guilds, as they are now called, still exercise the authority once accorded them by common consent. Thus the apothecaries' hall still licenses druggists; and the fishmongers still exercise the right of inspecting and putting out of the market decaying and unsavory fish. And this too, notwithstanding the fact that there is not a bona fide fishmonger in the Fishmongers' Guild at the present time.

The companies are of ancient origin, some of them dating back more than six hundred years. For a long time they had no charters from the king, and therefore no rights such as corporate bodies now have. Edward III. and Richard II. chartered some of them, and immediately they began to assume an importance that previously they had not aspired to. They made every tradesman under their jurisdiction wear a dress that was peculiar to his trade; hence the name "livery company." At one time no person could follow a trade without joining a company; but this rule has been abrogated.

A still greater innovation was brought to pass when persons of wealth and distinction who did not know or practise any trade were allowed to become members of a guild on payment of a fee. The livery companies collecting small money assessments regularly of every member, found after a time that their funds were accumulating. They invested their surplus in lands and buildings, at first in London and later in various parts of England and Ireland. About a dozen out of some eighty companies have become immensely wealthy. It is a matter of history that some of the richest guilds were pounced upon and robbed by crowned heads in a polite way. As far back as the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, the sovereigns were compelling these rich guilds to contribute money to help carry on foreign wars. Henry VIII., Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth and Charles I. demanded and received large sums of money, in some instances from a quarter to half a million dollars. As the kings and queens seldom repaid the money, the guilds may have purchased power to conduct their affairs with a loose justice and without fear of being called to account.

The principal companies are the Mercers', Grocers', Drapers', Fishmongers', Goldsmiths', Skinners' Merchant-Tailors', Ironmongers', Vintners', Cloth Workers' and Haberdashers'. So rich and powerful did these companies become that persons were glad to avail themselves of their influence, and in several instances royal personages became members and attended their sumptuous banquets. Queen Elizabeth belonged to the Mercers' Company, James I. was a Cloth-Worker; Charles II. and William III. were Grocers; and Henry VII. was a Merchant-Tailor.—The Watchman.

A Floral Ornament.

Many persons know it, but some do not, that a pretty and easily grown window plant may be obtained by soaking a round piece of coarse sponge in warm water until it is thoroughly expanded. After squeezing it about half dry, place in the openings millet, red clover, and barley, grass seeds, rice, and oats. Hang the sponge in a window where the sun shines a part of the day, and sprinkle it lightly with water every morning for a week. Soon tender leaves will shoot out, and, growing rapidly, will form a drooping mass of living green. If regularly sprinkled, it will later be dotted with the blossoms of the clover.

SECULAR NEWS.

Not a pound of ice has been put up here this season, and the prospect for a summer supply is rather gloomy.—Statesville Landmark.

The paper goes to press with 154 orphans in attendance. Some have whooping cough; but their general health is good.—Orphan's Friend.

Dr. William Sharswood, of Philadelphia, has been elected by the Trustees of the University of North Carolina to deliver a course of lectures on acoustics.—Raleigh Observer.

As an evidence that Winston is growing in population, the demand for dwelling houses is largely on the increase, notwithstanding the many new ones that are now going up. At least half a dozen families are now wanting houses, and they cannot be had.—Winston Leader.

"Our cotton factory is still doing well. Parties from Georgia and South Carolina, and also from Sampson, Beaufort and Washington counties, in this State, have recently visited Windsor with the view of examining the Harden factory and establishing factories in their sections. They left well pleased with their examination."—Windsor Correspondent E. City Economist

It may not be generally known by our country friends that the tar buyers in this city have adopted a rule among themselves to reject all barrels of tar weighing over 310 pounds; or, to insist upon a deduction of one-tenth from the price of all over that weight, and two-tenths for all over 330 pounds. The proper weight for barrels of tar is 280 pounds.—Wilmington Star.

We notice that a large quantity of rockfish are now being brought to our market, which are now being caught up and shipped North, where good prices are generally had. A new business is also going on in the shipment of catfish, which bring a fair price, somewhere about 6 or 7 cents per pound. They are skinned and packed in ice before shipment.—North State Press.

Our townsman, Dr. W. H. Moore, has been elected Superintendent of the Colored Insane Asylum. Dr. Moore is well qualified for the place, and so is Col. J. T. Kennedy, who is to fill the position of Steward. Superintendent's salary $1,500. Steward's salary $500 and family supplies.—Goldsboro Messenger.

An exchange tells of a man who had sixty-five dollars stolen from him, and who soon after received twenty-five dollars with the following note: "I stoled your money. Remorse naws at my conshens, and I send you some of it back. When remorse naws again I'll send you some more."

GREAT MERIT.

All the fairs give the first premiums and special awards of great merit to Hop Bitters, as the purest and best family medicine, and we most heartily approve of the awards for we know they deserve it. They are now on exhibition at the State Fairs, and we advise all to test them. See another column.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS

AN ENLARGED VIEW OF THE PAD.

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.
Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs.
Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago.

45 Years Before the Public.
THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
CELEBRATED
LIVER PILLS,
FOR THE CURE OF
Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,
DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.
Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression Dr. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.
The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.
Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

IRON BITTERS, A Great Tonic.
IRON BITTERS, A Sure Appetiser.
IRON BITTERS, A Complete Strengthener.
IRON BITTERS, A Valuable Medicine.
IRON BITTERS, Not Sold as a Beverage.
IRON BITTERS, For Delicate Females.
Highly recommended to the public for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient TONIC, especially in Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Intermittent Fevers, Want of Appetite, Loss of Strength, Lack of Energy, etc. It enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. To the aged, ladies, and children requiring recuperation, this valuable remedy can not be too highly recommended. It cures like a charm on the digestive organs. A teaspoonful before meals will remove all dyspeptic symptoms.
TRY IT.
Sold by all Druggists,
THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO.
BALTIMORE, Md.
dec10 236-1y-eow

Frontis & Leazar's School,
MOORESVILLE, IREDELL COUNTY, N. C
S. FRONTIS, A. M.,
A. LEAZAR, A. M.,
Principals.
The Seventh Session of this School opened Jan 5, 1880, under very favorable auspices, sixty pupils having reported the first week.
The healthfulness of the locality is unexcelled Creswell's Springs one mile distant. System of instruction thorough and exhaustive. Two Departments—Male and Female. The Sexes occupy different Halls. Superior advantages for Religious Instruction. Board $7 to $8 per month. Tuition $1, $2, $3, $4, and $4 50 per month, according to the degree of advancement. For particulars address
FRONTIS & LEAZAR,
67jan14-tf Mooresville, Iredell County, N. C.

THOMASVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE, N. C.
THE SPRING TERM WILL BEGIN JANUARY 14, 1880. The new building furnishes additional facilities of a fine Chapel 40x72, Dining Room 42x80 and accommodations for 108 Boarders. A First Class School at Lowest Rates. Pupils taught to speak French and German. Eight Teachers. Board per month $10. Tuition $2 50, $4, and $5. For Catalogue address,
H. W. REINHART,
67jan14-3t President.

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.
Molasses, Bacon and Lard.
200 Hhds and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

50 Gilt, Motto, Lily, Scroll, and Marble Cards, 10 cents. 60 Agents' Samples, 10 cents. U. S. Card Co., Northford, Ct. dec 31-633-13t

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.
1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties. New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ring-worm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.
By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions, promotes energy and strength, restores and preserves health, and infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial.
It is folly to experiment with the numerous low-priced mixtures, of cheap materials, and without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been widely used for forty years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.
Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of
BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,
For the purpose of carrying on a
General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,
AT THE OLD STANDS,
5, 7 and 9, North Front Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.
JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.
Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 8, 1877.
oct 10 509-

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,
MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,
1879–'80.
THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's-day, into two Terms.
The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.
There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:
1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.
A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.
Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.
Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.
For Catalogues and other information apply to
REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D.,
jan 16-532- President.

PROVERBS.
"Sour stomach, bad breath, indigestion, and headache easily cured by Hop Bitters."
"Study Hop Bitters books, use the medicine, be wise, healthy and happy."
"When life is a drug and you have lost all hope, try Hop Bitters."
"Kidney and urinary trouble is universal, and the only safe, and pure remedy is Hop Bitters—rely on it."
"Hop Bitters does not exhaust and destroy, but restores and makes new."
"Ague, biliousness, drowsiness, jaundice, Hop Bitters removes easily."
"Boils, pimples, freckles, rough skin, eruptions, impure blood, Hop Bitters cure."
"Inactive kidneys and urinary organs cause the worst of diseases, and Hop Bitters cures them all."
"More health, sunshine and joy in Hop Bitters than in all other remedies"
Hop Cough Cure and Pain Relief is the best.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS. 62

ALTAFFER & PRICE
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Woodwork and Builder's Hardware.
We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.
Church Windows Doors Pew Ends
CAPS and ARM RESTS made in latest styles.
Factory foot of Walnut St
Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross
Wilmington, N. C.
apl 16 588-1y

H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments. jan 7-3m

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL.
HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET
WILMINGTON, N. C.
WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF
Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish
Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,
COTTON BAGGING and TIES.
☞ We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.
HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
63-1y

BUY THE BEST.
WE HAVE now on hand finished,
35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.
Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.
Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.
A. A. McKETHAN & SONS,
Oct. 21. Fayetteville, N. C. 354-t

SALT. SALT. SALT.
21,000 Sacks
Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!
Factory Filled Fine Table,
AND
Liverpool Ground Alum.
Full Weight Guaranteed.
"WILLARD'S,"
NORTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
dec 17 623-tf

TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.
Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings. Machinery of Every Description.
Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.
TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER
The Invention of the Age.
It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
☞ Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.
JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.

JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.
GOOD WORK. — LOW PRICES.
We are prepared to execute in the very best style,
ALL KINDS OF PRINTING,
SUCH AS
Business Cards, Bill Heads, Letter and Note Heads, Statements, Drafts, Notes, Checks, Account Sales, Tags, Envelopes, Labels, Bills Lading, Receipts, Notices, Show Cards, Posters, Manifests, Wedding Cards, Visiting Cards, Catalogues, Pamphlets, School Circulars, Reports,
and in fact, every description of
RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING
We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed. Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1,012 Pages, 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (it ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & CO., 64 N. 4th St., Phila., Pa.
WANTED
oct 15 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO
New Grand $65 Organ, 24 Set Golden Tongue Reeds, 6 Octaves, Knee Swells, Walnut Case, warranted 12 years. Sheet & Book Organ, $45. New Piano-for, Stool, Cover & Book, $145. Before you buy be sure to write me. Illustrated Newspaper sent Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.
oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.
CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
63 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,
would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys' wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.
SAMPLES SENT FREE!
Also, to their
DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.
Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.
All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 12-1y

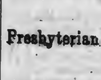
TOBACCO.
100 BOXES MANUFACTURED TOBACCO.
SPECIALTIES:
Uncle Ned's Twist.
Queen Bee Plug.
HALL & PEARSALL.

McMILLAN BROS.,
MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN
SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS

15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS
FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.
Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes. Still Doors & Grate bars
As we have four Copper-smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only
Regular and Reliable Establishment
where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing
D. G. McMILLAN, Supt.
feb 12 Fayetteville, N. C.

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.
HAVE FOR SALE.
2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.
Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.
Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.
Nov. 19 461-1y

ADRIAN & VOLLERS
CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present,
SMOKED BACON,
in hogsheads and boxes,
HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKS,
Breakfast Strips,
Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,
SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,
Molasses and Syrup
OF ALL KINDS.
FLOUR of all Qualities,
and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries
nov 19 551-12m



WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
86 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md.
Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies, &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c
mch 28 481-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES
OF THE
GENERAL ASSEMBLY,
OF THE
Freshyterian Church in the United States.
THE CLERKS.
Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D., Richmond, Va.
THE TRUSTEES.
President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq. Greensboro, N. C.
FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.
Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md
PUBLICATION.
Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va.
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.
EDUCATION.
Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D.D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn.
ANNUAL COLLECTIONS
1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January.
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September
6. Education—First Sabbath in November.

WE KEEP
PLANTS EXTRA FLOUR,
FAIRBANK'S LARD,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER,
FINE N. O. SYRUP,
And other Standard articles.
Orders solicited.
HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents. Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XIII—No 631.] WILMINGTON, FEBRUARY 11, 1880. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXIII—No. 1,251.

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

One copy one year, in advance..... $2 65
If payment be delayed six months..... 3 15
One copy six months, in advance..... 1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each New subscriber of $2 65.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procurred without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THREE OBSTACLES TO PRESBYTERIAN PROGRESS.

The discussion of this question to be useful must be practical. In order to do this the progress considered should be relative; not absolute. Were Presbyterianism the sole occupant of the ground, absolute progress would be the sole subject of consideration. This, however, is not the case. The talents are entrusted to several different branches of the Church of Christ, and the difficulty is that the impartial eye must see with pain, if not with shame, that our talent has not multiplied itself as has that of others. The question is why? None can vie with it in importance, therefore none is worthier of discussion and, if necessary, of prolonged, persistent discussion. It is no sufficient solution of this difficulty to point to defects which are common to all denominations. If Presbyterianism lags behind other denominations it must be because it has some hindrance which they do not. The readiest solution of the problem is to deny the facts of the case. This, however, is impossible to the careful, candid observer. Making all allowance for reckless, exaggerated statistics that even the most skeptical can claim, it yet remains true that we are lamentably behind two sister denominations in our State. As an answer to the question "What is the Matter?" so ably and interestingly discussed in your columns, the writer of this article would suggest three defects not inherent in Presbyterianism as a system, but in its practical working.

Briefly then we need,

1. A less expensive class of ministers. The practical working of our system is such that when a Presbyterian minister is ready for work his preaching is his sole support. If he has no private resources they are exhausted in acquiring an expensive education; if he has none his very preparation for the ministry has unfitted him for gaining his support in anything else. His preaching is his bread. Hence he cannot occupy any field which cannot immediately support him. We speak of the scarcity of ministers as a hindrance to aggressiveness. It is a mistake; if the Synod of North Carolina had to-day at its disposal graduates from the seminary in sufficient number to occupy every unoccupied field, the difficulty would not be remedied, for these men could not live without support; the people could not support them; for these fields are not missionary ground. The evangelistic fund has proved with sad force that it could not be expected to do so. Other denominations, except those who, like ourselves, fail to meet the difficulty, solve this problem by a provision made for it in their setting apart of ministers. They have different grades of qualifications for different localities. They select some man of discretion, sound common sense, attached to their faith and order, able to edify his friends, acquaintances and neighbors, and license him to exercise the gifts in his community. The result is he gathers a congregation which finally grows into a church, able and willing to support an educated minister. While this is being accomplished the licentiate supports himself by his farm, store, or office during the week, and conducts religious services on Sabbath. True he could not fill a city pulpit, nor does his determination put him in one; but he can and does edify his neighbors and build up a church, while Presbyterians are reading able and instructive papers before church courts on evangelistic work. This is not a plea for lowering the standard of the ministry (though it is possible that we have a tendency to make a sort of idol ont of this high standard of ours) but merely for a little more elasticity in the application of our principles, an increase in the number of our licentiates to meet the necessities of evangelistic work. Our Assembly once made a tentative move in this direction but afterwards drew back, perhaps too soon. It is certainly possible that we need a more inexpensive class of preachers for missionary work. Much is said of consecration to the work, as if this were all that is needed, but even consecration cannot enable a man to live without support, and to enter missionary ground and preach to people who care not know nothing and care nothing for him or his work.

2. Episcopal Oversight.—This is theoretically lodged in the Presbytery—practically it is lodged nowhere. Our system in its working leaves the congregation and pastor almost as independent as Congregationalism. The right of Presbyterial supervision and control is recognized in form always, but the exercise of this right is exceedingly rare. We need careful cognizance of the practical work in each individual field of labor, knowledge of the progress or decadence of each church, with the recognized authority to suggest and demand changes where such are advisable. This is provided for in the Methodist church by the work of the presiding elder in each district, who selects men suitable for certain fields and secures their appointment to them; he puts each man where he will be most useful, changes men who are unsuited to their charges, or who while they suit very well, might be more useful in some other place of greater exigency. A. B. has a field able to support a man with a large family, say C. D.; A. B. is acceptable and useful, but here is a field which needs good work, but which cannot support C. D., therefore A. B. is appointed to it. C. D. goes to the other, and both are supplied and perhaps C. D. gives as great satisfaction as A. B., though the congregation would not have desired the change had they been consulted beforehand. Under our system one field would have been supplied and the other remained vacant. Moreover a man drifts into a charge for which he proves unsuited though he might be eminently useful elsewhere, but there he is, and there he must remain until things reach such a state that the congregation are driven to take measures for relief, when alas! it is well nigh too late to remedy matters but not too late to create all the stir and unpleasantness coincident with such a step. Yet the Presbytery as individuals have been aware of the state of affairs for a long time, have discussed it perhaps with each other privately at every meeting for a year or two. Is there any Presbytery to which such a case seems strange and improbable? Some exercise of the power of the bishop is necessary. The Presbytery is our bishop in name, is it so in reality?

3. No protracted meetings.—Not "new measures," nor hot-house forcing methods. But simply a continuous series of gospel sermons and prayer meetings, continuous because the effect of one sermon is often dissipated before another is heard. In some quarters there seems to be a distrust of this old custom; in the same quarters there is lack of growth sufficiently common to be considered something of a coincidence, if not a consequence. In this work the pastor needs help, and in this connection a thoughtful minister has suggested to the writer the need of what he aptly termed reserve force, and remarked that it was found in all denominations but our own. In the Methodist church the presiding elder was ever ready to aid in these services whenever needed in his district. In the Episcopal church the visitation of the Bishop amounts to Evangelistic work in destitute sections and to protracted services, so far as allowed in that church, in settled charges. The Baptists (he said from his own personal observation and experience) while they had no such provision in theory yet practically were not without it, in that they had ministers who were "foot-loose," and were really engaged in this very work. It has been said that some Presbyterian ministers really discountenance any and all such work, and that even where they yield their prejudices sufficiently to invite one of their own brethren to assist them in preaching for a week or more, decline to approach the unconverted privately upon the subject of personal salvation, confess that they have never done so, and consider it un-Presbyterian! We need less of this distrust of steady, persistent presentation of gospel truth in protracted meetings in, and out of the pulpit.

Such are three of the obstacles to Presbyterian progress, according to the writer's views. They are offered as the result of earnest study of this question, and with a sincere desire for more and better light. MACON.

For the N. C. Presbyterian

A BIT OF PERSONAL HISTORY.

In the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN of December 31, 1879, in an article on the "Presbyterian Tree," mention is made of Rev. James H. Brooks, who married a sister (if I understand the writer) of Rev. Dr. Lacy of Raleigh.

This Mr. Brooks' mother was a Houston, but we suppose that his middle name was Hall, and that he was named after Rev. Jas. Hall, D. D., so prominent in this part of the country at that time, and who died in 1826. This Mr. Brooks was born a few rods from where the writer of this now lives and on the land owned by him. There is no trace of a house there now. Some old apple trees remain, and a large tree that stood before the door died and fell down a few years ago. A married sister is living near by. The aunt of the present Rev. James H. Brooks (I suppose the H. here is for Houston), and her son, James M. Puckot, were here at church, Feb. 1—at Fifth Creek church. The old lady is very infirm, but has pointed out the spot to the writer where she was born. The father died when the present Dr. B. was a child.

In the article referred to, under No. 2 there is confusion or mistake: Major James Morton's oldest daughter married, &c.; another daughter married Rev. James Wharey, &c.; two of the daughters married, &c.; then Major Morton's third daughter married, &c. But there were four before this.

There is a case, reported some years ago, that very strongly illustrates the point of the writer of the article. In a congregation where two-thirds of the attendants were non-professors, in the course of years 500 were added to the church. Out of this number 430 were from the families of Christians. God remembers his holy covenant unto a thousand generations. E. F. R.

Hasty words rankle a wound, soft ones dress it. Forgiveness cures it, and forgetfulness removes the scar. It is more noble, continues Quarles, to avoid an injury by silence than to overcome it by argument. So, in hearing mysteries, keep thy tongue quiet. Five words spoken cost Zacharias forty weeks silence. God is forgiving. Michael, an angel of wrath, comes on one wing, but Gabriel, an angel of peace, on two wings. So runs the Jewish proverb.

CAN WE FEEL SURE?

It was said of a certain magnificent speech of Daniel Webster that "every word weighed a pound." But there is a line of the thirty-fifth psalm—mostly made up of monosyllables—in which every word weighs a ton. David uttered it in a season of despondency, when he cried out: "Say unto my soul, I am thy salvation." The old monarch was in trouble. His own throne was assailed, and so he went to the Everlasting Throne. His own heart was assailed by doubts, and so he sought for a fresh and full assurance of salvation. Whatever David's own experiences may have been, he furnished a golden prayer for universal use in these pregnant, pithy words: "Say unto my soul, I am thy salvation."

The salvation which all of us most need is a deliverance from the guilt and dominion of sin. We need to be liberated from the bondage of that great slaveholder, the Devil. Beset with temptations, we need succor when we are tempted. The only salvation "under heaven given among men" is by the atoning blood of Jesus and the regenerating power of the Holy Spirit. This is a full salvation, a complete salvation; it is God's masterpiece of mercy to us guilty, depraved and dying sinners. Can this salvation he made sure to a man, and can he be sure that he possesses it?

We answer unhesitatingly, Yes. David did not ask for impossibilities when he asked God to assure him of his salvation. Paul knew what he was about when he said: "Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?" There is no perhaps about the salvation of a true follower of Christ any more than there is about the rising of to-morrow's sun. It does not depend upon my say, or your say, or any man's say. Only God can give the decisive and infallible assurance to us that we are safe for this world and for eternity.

Let it be carefully noted that the prayer is that God would say unto the soul: "I am thy salvation." There is no audible voice addressed to the ear; in fact, multitudes hear the offer of salvation every Sabbath by the ear, and yet their hearts are as deaf as adders. What God says can only be heard by the heart. We would define faith to be heart-hearing. And unto the docile, believing soul God says wonderful things, and things to make the soul leap for joy. This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners. I open the ivory coamber of John's Gospel, and these words, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that heareth my word and believeth on Him that sent me hath everlasting life and shall not come into condemnation." Again, Jesus: "This is the will of Him that sent me, that every one who believeth on the Son may have everlasting life." "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them and they follow me. And I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish; neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." He does not affirm that we may never, in a fit of waywardness and pride, throw ourselves out of that almighty and loving hand. But He does declare that while we stay there we are safe. And, being safe, we have a right to know it, and to feel all the serenity and satisfaction which this ownership by the Lord Jesus can inspire.

Faith is the soul's trust in Jesus as our salvation. It ought to bring a delightful sense of security. But it does not always do so, because it is too weak and doubting to produce assurance. Faith is the milk, and assurance is the cream which rises on it. The richer the milk the more abundant will be the cream. Assurance is not essential to salvation, as faith is; for God will let a great many people into heaven who had a very feeble faith here on earth. Faith is life, though it be sometimes a very weak, anxious, burdened and uncomfortable life. Assurance marks a higher degree of health, vigor, joy and power to overcome. Peter possessed some faith when he screamed to his Master, from the waves: "Lord, save me!" He had reached a much higher attainment by the Spirit when he exclaimed in the market-place of Jerusalem: "This is the stone which was set at naught of you builders, which is become the head of the corner." Saul of Tarsus had an infant faith born in his soul when he was groping about in the house of Ananias at Damascus. The infant had grown into a giant when Paul had reached up to the eighth chapter to the Romans, and could shout: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed to Him." Jesus had really said to Paul: "I am thy salvation."—Dr. Cuyler.

DOUBTS FROM THE PULPIT.

Rightly to divide the word of truth is the Christian minister's special mission. It is not my purpose captiously to criticise men who sustain the exalted position of ambassadors of Christ. And yet, perhaps, a few honest words from the pew, in the spirit of kindly sympathy, may be the means of correcting an evil, which, if persisted in, must weaken or injure the work of the pulpit. The people who go to church do not care anything about the difficulties that surround the exegesis of this or that passage. Neither do they care to know what the Greek or Hebrew of it may be. It is undoubtedly necessary that a minister be versed in these languages, but the pulpit is not the place for quotations from the original. There is a popular tendency to discuss in the pulpit mooted passages and mooted questions that have in themselves no practical bearing upon the issues of life and death to the soul. Within the last few weeks church-goers in the city in which we write have returned from public preaching perplexed with unnumbered difficulties.

Passages that for a lifetime have been accepted in the old orthodox fashion are suddenly deprived of all their sacredness, questionable hypotheses taking the place of what was before an undoubted fact. Modern rationalism shows its insidious hand nowhere more markedly than in the dialectic tendency of our pulpits. It is not that popular misconception are corrected, now that prevalent errors are exposed, but there are withal needless expositions of the most recondite and abstruse questions of theology; questions enshrouded in a cloud of metaphysical opacity, the discussion of which produces no benefit to the church, nor aids in the conversion of a single soul. I would not for a moment have the minister forsake the didactic character of his preaching. My only plea is that he rise above the trifling inaccuracies of text and translation, above the influence of critics and exegetes, and present to the people life, life—eternal life.

It is much to be feared that in our namby-pamby age, an age of luxuries and elegances, not only are we physically deteriorating, but the quality and style of our preaching is vastly more accommodating to the errors and foibles of modern civilization than the plain, homely and soul-cutting truths presented by our forefathers. The minister needs to preach the truth as one having authority. He ministers the balm of his high commission by laboring to reconcile the scientific and textual difficulties suggested by Rationalistic sceptics. Church-going people have little patience with many theological distinctions. They prefer, as a rule, the plain, unvarnished Gospel, fresh with the inspiration of Calvary, unalloyed with the lemmas, dilemmas and trilemmas of theology.—Cor. The Presbyterian.

"AS THY DAY THY STRENGTH SHALL BE."

Christian, does thy heavenward journey
Seem to thee a weary way?
Have the fairest flowers faded?
And thy golden skies grown gray?
Have the shadows gathered round thee,
Till the sun is hid from view?
Do earth's false ones seem so many,
And its fond ones seem so few?
This sure stay is left to thee—
"As thy day thy strength shall be!"

Hast thou toiled from morn till even
In the Master's harvest field;
And to all thy earnest effort
Seems it no return to yield?
Or amidst thy gathered gleanings,
Looking o'er thy shining sheaves,
Does it shame thee to discover
Worthless sticks and withered leaves.
Hope and faith are still for thee—
"As thy day thy strength shall be."

Or hast thou gone forth at morning
Strong to strive, and do, and dare;
And does evening find thee shrinking
Low in doubt and self despair?
Didst thou falter in the battle?
Didst thou fail in hour of need?
Hast thou half denied thy Master
By thy look or word or deed?
Thou hast still whereto to flee—
"As thy day thy strength shall be."

Though thy life be crowned with sorrow,
Pierced by pain, and sharp with strife;
Thou hast still this thought for comfort—
Christ, thy Lord, endured life,
Knowing all that thou must suffer
In thy little day of years;
Pitying, with loving kindness,
All thy wants, and woes, and fears;
He has left this world to thee—
"As thy day thy strength shall be."

Then whatever fate befall thee,
Be thou brave, and calm, and strong;
Fill with work thy little moment,
Life at longest is not long.
May Christ's love rebuke thy coldness,
And His faithfulness thy fears!
Till to joy He turns thy grieving,
And to smiling all thy tears.
Know, whatever comes to thee—
"As thy day thy strength shall be!"
—Marjorie Moore, in Examiner and Chronicle.

THE SEPARATING TIME.

What a separation it will be. Once the whole congregation of Israel were called to stand before God. There was a secret sinner among them, and the separating time was come, and he must be taken out to be punished. He stood there among the rest and nobody could think who it could be. Presently every tribe was called to stand the scrutiny, and one tribe was fixed upon, and then the families of that tribe, and at last the very man was pointed out, and he was taken. Read the account. It is in the seventh chapter of Joshua.

Some time ago there was a man who did a wicked deed. He committed murder, but no one, as he thought, knew anything about it. After he had perpetrated the awful crime, he went to the railway station, took a ticket, and came to the city. Now, he thought himself safe. After he had left the place, the dreadful deed was discovered, and some suspicion falling upon this man, a messenger was sent to the railway station, but he was gone. The telegraph wire, however, carried a message to the city to which the fugitive had gone. It gave a description of the murderer—his hat, his brown coat, his age, the color of his hair, his height, and such other particulars as could be furnished.

After a while the train arrived. The carriages are full of people, the innocent and the guilty are there, they have all arrived, and the tickets are taken, the doors are opening, the people step out, and are hurrying away to their homes. But there are some stern-looking men watching every carriage, scrutinizing every passenger. See! they keep their eyes on that man, they follow him, and at last they lay their hands on his shoulder; he is separated from all the rest—what an awful separation! They say: "You must go with us; you are our prisoner." They bind his hands with manacles; they lodge him in prison. He is tried, found guilty, and suffers death!

Reader, we are all going on together in life's journey. Some are pardoned and saved, others, are yet in their sins, but all are going on together. Ah! but at the end of the journey there will be a separation! The sinner may think to escape in the crowd, but swifter than the telegraph his sin is known in heaven, and God has his officers, who will sever the wicked from among the just. "It is appointed unto men once to die, and after that the judgment."

Which am I? A child of the kingdom, or a child of the devil? Do I love God? Have I repented of my sins? Am I trusting in Jesus Christ and striving to serve him? Shall I be numbered among his children at last? Into which band will the angels gather me?—Presbyterian Journal.

SUCCESS IN THE MINISTRY.

What constitutes "success?" If we are to accept the currently received opinion, we suppose that popularity, crowded buildings, and great efficiency in promoting the outward work of church extension and growth, would be a correct response to this question.

Is the current answer to this inquiry the true one? We doubt it. If we turn to the Scriptures for our authority, we shall find that what is often looked upon as the crowning proof of ministerial success is nowhere even suggested. God declares that his faithful ministers shall be "hated," "persecuted," but he never promised that they shall be "popular." We are told that "he that winneth souls is wise," and "they that turn many to righteousness" "shall shine as the stars for ever and ever;" but we have no intimation that this "wisdom" is to find its sanction in the applause of men, or that those who are considered "stars" upon the earth are therefore certain to be equally resplendent in the constellations of heaven. The truth is that so many baser elements enter into what is ordinarily termed ministerial success, that it is hazardous, before the judgment day, to pronounce definitely upon the success or failure of any professed minister of Jesus Christ. The popular judgment may be correct, and it may be utterly at fault. Instances are not rare of men of whom their own time was not worthy, who have labored in obscurity all their lives and have at last gone down to unnoticed graves, but whose modest work has been rescued from oblivion by other and wiser times, and has become a blessing to all subsequent ages. So many subtle influences go to make up that fitful and wayward thing we call "popularity," that the least worthy are not unfrequently its largest recipients, while the deserving and those whom we have every reason to believe God will yet count among His shining ones are left to utter forgetfulness and neglect. Indeed, one of the surprises that are probably in store for us in the world to come will be to find how exceedingly small some of our great men have become, and how surpassingly resplendent the lives of some obscure, modest ministers of the Gospel will then appear.

A preacher should certainly "covet earnestly the best gifts." It is not only his right, but his duty, to make his message as attractive as possible, so long as he uses only legitimate means for the purpose. But to aim at popularity for its own sake is a prostitution of ministerial talent that is utterly destructive to the noblest ideal of Christian labor and Christian manhood. It does not follow that a man is a faithful minister of Jesus Christ because he preaches to crowded churches or that he is a poor and inefficient preacher because he speaks to few. It would be just as safe to accept the converse of the proposition; and neither can be taken as the basis of estimate, and we are never justified in so regarding them. Popularity may indeed be the price of shallowness or even of unfaithfulness to the truth. We could name one of the ablest ministers in the world, a man whose learning is wonderful, whose life is sweet, and simple, and modest, whose mind is a perfect treasury of all the garnered wisdom of the past, whose sermons are absolute models of matter and style, who preaches to a handful of people, while flippant, glib-tongued tyros are haranguing to gaping crowds.

We have no intention of decrying or disparaging legitimate popularity. But praise is so grateful to our poor human nature that the danger of any preacher's neglecting or despising it is one that we may rarely disregard. The danger is all in the other direction; that those who win the applause of men will be "puffed up" by it, those who fail to win it be unduly despondent. The only permanent safeguard against this is to be found in a rigid devotion to duty, and a willingness to leave results to God. No faithful minister of Jesus Christ can say whether it will be most for the glory of the master that he shall or shall not labor in obscurity. If God sends popularity, let him be humbly thankful and make the best use of it. If his work is unnoticed by the busy world, it is by no manner of means an indication that God has forgotten him, or that in the great day of eternal harvest he shall not come rejoicing and bearing his sheaves with him.—London Weekly Review.

MISERABLE CHRISTIANS.

Christians sometimes find themselves having only enough of religion to make them miserable. They seem to want to be religious, but everything is wrong in their view. They find fault with everything they see other Christians doing. They harbor all kinds of suspicions about the motives of religious people, exaggerate all their faults, condemn their attempts to do good, and yield to the temptation to have nothing more to do with other Christians. They show clearly that the devil is riding them without saddle, but with a fearful lash and a cruel bit.

No being is more miserable than the professor of religion who is not in the enjoyment of the love of God. There is an easy way out of the difficulty, a remedy that never fails. It is to go to God for more of the power of religion. It must be sought earnestly until all the faultfinding, suspicious, bitter feeling leaves the heart.

As a fact, God can give relief to every professor of religion who is miserable with a half backslidden state. How much better one feels after being relieved of this tortnring condition. Other Christians appear, even with their faults, in a much better light to one who has been made happy in the fullness of the love of God. They seem to the renewed one to be worthy of respect for the little they may be doing. Their motives no longer appear to be wholly base, nor their conduct contemptible. The miserable Christian who expected other church-members to carry him around on their hands, does not expect so much of them when he is once filled with the love of God. He goes to church without feeling that everybody is slighting him. The fact is, he is impelled by love of God's people to show himself friendly, whereas he formerly expected others to show unusual respect to him. Sermons appear better to him than formerly, and do not seem so long, dry, tedious and empty.

In fact, the miserable Christian becomes a very different person after receiving a fresh baptism of the love of God.—Religious Telescope.

TEACH THE CATECHISM.

The churches may well set a very high value upon the careful and systematic instruction of the young. In a sense they make their future, as they mould the youthful mind and life. The Catechism is one of the most useful aids they can employ in this work, and should be made much of in the home and the Sunday school. It wields a most important influence in right training, and occupies a place in Christian nurture which no other method of teaching, however excellent, can so well fill. Our system of International Sunday school Lessons is admirable, and is doing much to promote an intelligent acquaintance with Scripture among the rising generation. The churches and the nation will reap blessed fruit from this scheme of study within the next thirty years; but, good as it is, it cannot do the work of, and must not be allowed to supplant, regular catechetical training.

The Christian religion is a grand and orderly scheme of divine truths, and the more learning of one truth here and other there, with no obvious connection and relation, valuable as such acquisitions are in their way, can never be either entirely satisfactory to the teacher or thoroughly instructive and satisfying to the taught. You may get some little idea of the majesty of Karnak by looking upon its fallen columns and mighty stones half buried in the sand. You would have gotten a much nobler impression could you have gazed upon the temple in the greatness of its prime.

The Gospel plan, to be appreciated, needs to be understood and surveyed in its relations—stone to stone, and part to part—as a grand and consistent whole. A little systematic theology will do the children no harm, and might do some older people a great deal of good.

Do not the churches need to be toned up on this subject? Many a man might have been saved from drifting about with every wind of strange doctrine if those who had in charge his early training had seen to it that he was well grounded in "the faith once delivered to the saints."—Church Union.

GOLD DUST.

But faith, fanatic faith, once wedded fast,
To some dear falsehood, hugs it to the last.
—Tom Moore.

He who loves not books before he comes thirty years of age will hardly love them enough afterward to understand them.—Clarendon.

Trust him little who praises all, him less who censures all, and him least who is indifferent about all.—Lavater.

He who receives a good turn should never forget it. He who does one should never remember it.—Charron.

A man should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong, which is but saying, in other words, that he is wiser to-day than he was yesterday.—Pope.

A great mind is above doing an unjust act, above giving way to grief, above descending to buffoonery, and it would be invulnerable, if compassion did not prey upon its sensibility.—La Bruyere.

Perseverance is a Roman virtue
That wins each godlike act, and plucks success
E'en from the spear-proof crest of rugged danger.
—Howard.

Nature has left every man a capacity of being agreeable, though not of shining in company; and there are a hundred men sufficiently qualified for both who, by a very few faults that they might correct in half an hour, are not so much as tolerable.—Swift.

We can be thankful to a friend for a few acres, or a little money; and yet for the freedom and command of the whole earth, and for the great benefits of our being, our life, health and reason, we look upon ourselves as under no obligation.—Seneca.

Those things that are not practicable are not desirable. There is nothing in the world really beneficial that does not lie within the reach of an informed understanding and a well directed pursuit. There is nothing that God has judged good for us that He has not given us the means to accomplish, both in the natural and the moral world.—Burke.

Cheerfulness ought to be the vratium vitæ of this life to the old. Age without cheerfulness is a Lapland winter without a sun; and this spirit of cheerfulness should be encouraged in our youth, if we would wish to have the benefit of it in our old age. Time will make a generous wine more mellow, but it will turn that which is early on the fret to vinegar.—Colton.

Immortality o'ersweeps
All pains, all tears, all time, all fears—and peals
Like the eternal thunders of the deep,
Into my ears this truth: Thou liv'st forever.
—Byron.

KINDNESS.

It cannot be too often remarked that kindness is one of the virtues that hardly ever fails to produce an effect; kindness "in season and out of season;" (kindness which is in every one's power. How very much the wheels of life would be smoothed, how much every one would add to the sum total of human happiness if every one were to take hold any of the many opportunities which every situation offers to be kind, courteous, easy and agreeable toward the chance travelers that he meets on his journeys; towards the chance sufferers that he comes across! It is never forgotten. The boy at school never forgets the kindness of an elder schoolfellow. The poor, solitary, and way-worn man or woman never forgets the pressure of a kind, feeling hand, the glance of a loving, sympathetic eye. A cup of cold water given unexpectedly at the right moment will indeed not "lose its reward."—Dean Stanley.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

Gleaned from exchanges:

The Jesuits have at length obtained permission to open a college at Cairo, Egypt.

The Bulgarian mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church contributes $146 per member for missions. This is nearly three times as much as the Methodists of America give to the same cause.

The Continental Committee of the Pan-Presbyterian Council propose to raise $60,000 so as to add $100 to the income of each of the twenty-two pastors of the Waldensian Church, who now receive $300 a year. The Scotch have raised $15,000 toward the amount.

The inhabitants of the commune of Aranne, in the Swiss canton of Tessin, have demanded exemption from the tax levied for the support of the Roman Catholic Church, and, to the great indignation of the Ultramontanes, the federal tribunal has decided in their favor.

M. Chavard, an Old Catholic priest at Geneva, has resigned on the ground that after six years' efforts he despairs of a Catholic reformation in its present hands, the movement being without unity of doctrine or liturgy, and perverted to political ends. He intends to hold aloof from all theological controversies.

In the Madras Presidency the Arcot Mission of the Reformed Church has during the past year welcomed to its fellowship over 5,000 who have abandoned the worship of idols and professed themselves adherents of Jesus. On one Sabbath the Rev. Jared Scudder baptized 307, and on the next 227 converted Hindoos.

A meeting was recently held in one of the largest Calvinistic Methodist chapels in Cardiff, Wales, to consider the desirability of introdnoing the prayers and Litany contained in the Book of Common Prayer to the service of their church. After a long discussion the question was adjourned.

The banker of the Vatican, who managed the Pope's financial matters in Rome, has absconded, leaving behind debts amounting to more than 700,000 lire. Several high ecclesiastical officials are suddenly thrown into financial difficulty in consequence, and one of the recently created Cardinals has been absolutely beggared.

The Church of Jesus, in Mexico, (Episcopal), has been maintaining services in Vera Cruz, which were conducted by a lay reader, Albino Soto. Being informed that it would be necessary to withdraw the support heretofore given him, Soto declared that the mission must not be closed, and for the purpose of keeping it open he would get some work to do, so as to pay the rent of the hall and support his family.

Certain Bishops have again urged Leo XIII. to enter on the question of the beatification of his predecessor. The Pope has replied that it will be well to proceed with the collection of any precise facts bearing on such claim, but that it is not desirable to make any exception to the usual method of procedure, which insures deliberate and dispassionate judgment.

The Chinese Religious Tract Society has determined to publish twelve tracts of, say, twenty pages each, of uniform size, and treating of doctrinal and practical subjects. The Publishing Committee are the Rev. Dr. Edkins, of Pekin, Chairman; Bishop Scherschewsky, the Rev. Dr. Allen, the Rev. Y. K. Yen, the Rev. Pæn Sing-z, and the Rev. C. K. Marshall, of Shanghai; and the Rev. Dr. Lord and the Rev. Kan Jinkwæ, of Ningpo.

The newly-founded Welsh (Cardiff) mission on the Congo river is making encouraging progress in all its operations. It was started only a few months ago, with five missionaries. Now the arrival of three new missionaries is reported, while a fourth, who returned to get well of an accidental shot, is about to start away again. This mission is undenominational and intends to work on new ground.

The Rev. John R. McDougall writes from Florence that he has just secured, at a moderate cost, a most central building in Venice for the Free Italian Church work in that city. The principal entrance to the building is from the great square of San Marco. Although the premises have been purchased for the Italian evangelization Mr. McDougald hopes that the Gospel will likewise be preached in English in this easily-found building, through the agency of one of our evangelical denominations, to the crowds of American and British visitors who throng the renowned City of the Sea. More than $6,000 have been secured in this country, during the past year, in small sums by the Rev. Antonio Arrighi, the agent of the Free Italian Church in America, for this most excellent work. It is hoped that much larger subscriptions may be had during the year 1880. Money may be sent directly to the Rev. John A. McDougall in Florence, Italy, or may be forwarded through Mr. Roswell Smith, of Scribner & Co., 743 Broadway, New York, or through any other responsible channels.

Did any one ever hear of a person who, because there is counterfeit money in circulation, would have nothing to do with money? Why, then, reject Christianity because there are bogus Christians in circulation? It is very strange that so trivial and unreasonable an excuse should be so often offered.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XIII—No 631.] WILMINGTON, FEBRUARY 11, 1880. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXIII—No. 1,251.

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

Per copy one year, in advance ... $2 05
If payment be delayed six months ... 2 15
One copy six months, in advance ... 1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each New subscriber of $2 05.
In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, on Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procurred without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N.C. AS SECOND CLASS MAIL MATTER.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THREE OBSTACLES TO PRESBYTERIAN PROGRESS.

The discussion of this question to be useful must be practical. In order to do this the progress considered should be relative; not absolute. Were Presbyterianism the sole occupant of the ground, absolute progress would be the sole subject of consideration. This, however, is not the case. The talents are entrusted to several different branches of the Church of Christ, and the difficulty is that the impartial eye must see with pain, if not with shame, that our talent has not multiplied itself as has that of others. The question is why? None can vie with it in importance, therefore none is worthier of discussion and, if necessary, of prolonged, persistent discussion. It is no sufficient solution of this difficulty to point to defects which are common to all denominations. If Presbyterianism lags behind other denominations it must be because it has some hindrance which they have not. The readiest solution of the problem is to deny the facts of the case. This, however, is impossible to the careful, candid observer. Making all allowance for reckless, exaggerated statistics that even the most skeptical can claim, it yet remains true that we are lamentably behind two sister denominations in our State. As an answer to the question "What is the Matter?" so ably and interestingly discussed in your columns, the writer of this article would suggest three defects not inherent in Presbyterianism as a system, but in its practical working.

Briefly then we need,

1. A less expensive class of ministers. The practical working of our system is such that when a Presbyterian minister is ready for work his preaching is his sole support. If he had any private resources they are exhausted in acquiring an expensive education; if he had none his very preparation for the ministry has unfitted him for gaining his support at anything else. His preaching is his bread. Hence he cannot occupy any field which cannot immediately support him. We speak of the scarcity of ministers as a hindrance to aggressiveness. It is a mistake; if the Synod of North Carolina had to-day at its disposal graduates from the seminary in sufficient force to occupy every unoccupied field, the difficulty would not be remedied, for these men could not live without suppor; the fields could not support them; for these fields are to us missionary ground. The evangelistic fund has proved with sad force that it could not be expected to do so. Other denominations, except those who, like ourselves, fail to meet the difficulty, solve this problem by a provision made for it in their setting apart of ministers. They have different grades of qualifications for different localities. They select some man of discretion, sound common sense, attached to their faith and order, able to edify his friends, acquaintances and neighbors, and license him to exercise his gifts in his community. The result is he gathers a congregation which finally grows into a church, able and willing to support an educated minister. While this is being accomplished the licentiate supports himself by his farm, store, or office during the week, and conducts religious services on Sabbath. True he could not fill a city pulpit, nor does his denomination put him in one; but he can and does edify his neighbors and build up a church, while Presbyterians are reading able and instructive papers before church courts on evangelistic work. This is not a plea for lowering the standard of the ministry (though it is possible that we have a tendency to make a sort of idol out of this high standard of ours) but merely for a little more elasticity in the application of our principles, an increase in the number of our licentiates to meet the necessities of evangelistic work. Our Assembly once made a tentative move in this direction but afterwards drew back, perhaps too soon. It is certainly possible that we need a more inexpensive class of preachers for missionary work. Much is said of consecration to the work, as if this were all that is needed, but even consecration cannot enable a man to live without support, and to enter missionary ground and preach to people who as yet know nothing and care nothing for him or his work.

2. Episcopal Oversight.—This is theoretically lodged in the Presbytery—practically it is lodged nowhere. Our system in its working leaves the congregation and pastor almost as independent as Congregationalism. The right of Presbyterial supervision and control is recognized in form always, but the exercise of this right is exceedingly rare. We need careful cognizance of the practical work in each individual field of labor, knowledge of the progress or decadence of each church, with the recognized authority to suggest and de-

[illegible] changes which may be advised. This is provided for in the Methodist [illegible] by the work of the presiding elder in charge here, who sets in motion an able for each field and secures the appointment to it, who puts each man where he will be most useful, changes men who are unsuited to their charges, or who while they may very well, might be more useful in some other place of greater exigency. A B has a field able to support a man with a large family, say C. D; A. B. is acceptable and useful, but here is a field which needs good work, but which cannot support C. D, therefore A. B is appointed to it. C. D. goes to the other, and both are supplied and perhaps C. D gives as great satisfaction as A. B, though the congregation would not have desired the change had they been consulted beforehand. Under our system one field would have been supplied and the other remained vacant. Moreover a man drifts into a charge for which he proves unsuited though he might be eminently useful elsewhere, but there he is, and there he must remain until things reach such a state that the congregation are driven to take measures for relief, when alas, it is well nigh too late to remedy matters but not too late to create all the stir and unpleasantness coincident with such a step. Yet the Presbytery as individuals have been aware of the state of affairs for a long time, have discussed it perhaps with each other privately at every meeting for a year or two. Is there any Presbytery to which such a case seems strange and improbable? Some exercise of the power of the bishop is necessary. The Presbytery is our bishop in name, is it so in reality?

3. No protracted meetings. Not "new measures," nor hot-house forcing methods. But simply a continuous series of gospel sermons and prayer meetings, continuous because the effect of one sermon is often dissipated before another is heard. In some quarters there seems to be a distrust of this old custom; in the same quarters there is lack of growth sufficiently common to be considered something of a coincidence, if not a consequence. In this work the pastor needs help, and in this connection a thoughtful minister has suggested to the writer the need of what he aptly termed reserve force, and remarked that it was found in all denominations but our own. In the Methodist church the presiding elder was ever ready to aid in these services whenever needed in his district. In the Episcopal church the visitation of the Bishop amounts to Evangelistic work in destitute sections and to protracted services, so far as allowed in that church, in settled charges. The Baptists (he said from his own personal observation and experience) while they had no such provision in theory yet practically were not without it, in that they had ministers who were "foot-loose," and were really engaged in this very work. It has been said that some Presbyterian ministers really discountenance any and all such work, and that even where they yield their prejudices sufficiently to invite one of their own brethren to assist them in preaching for a week or more, decline to approach the unconverted privately upon the subject of personal salvation, confess that they have never done so, and consider it un-Presbyterian! We need less of this distrust of steady, persistent presentation of gospel truth in protracted meetings in, and out of the pulpit.

Such are three of the obstacles to Presbyterian progress, according to the writer's views. They are offered as the result of earnest study of this question, and with a sincere desire for more and better light. MACON.

For the N. C. Presbyterian

A BIT OF PERSONAL HISTORY.

In the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN of December 31, 1879, in an article on the "Presbyterian Tree," mention is made of Rev. James H. Brooks, who married a sister (if I understand the writer) of Rev. Dr. Lacy of Raleigh.

This Mr. Brooks' mother was a Houston, but we suppose that his middle name was Hall, and that he was named after Rev. Jas. Hall, D. D., so prominent in this part of the country at that time, and who died in 1826. This Mr. Brooks was born a few rods from where the writer of this now lives and on the land owned by him. There is no trace of a house there now. Some old apple trees remain, and a large tree that stood before the door died and fell down a few years ago. A married sister is living near by. The aunt of the present Rev. James H. Brooks (I suppose the H. here is for Houston), and her son, James M. Pucket, were here at church, Feb. 1—at Fifth Creek church. The old lady is very infirm, but has pointed out the spot to the writer where she was born. The father died when the present Dr. B. was a child.

In the article referred to, under No. 2 there is confusion or mistake: Major James Morton's oldest daughter married, &c.; another daughter married Rev. James Wharey, &c.; two of the daughters married, &c.; then Major Morton's third daughter married, &c. But there were four before this.

There is a case, reported some years ago, that very strongly illustrates the point of the writer of the article. In a congregation where two-thirds of the attendants were non-professors, in the course of years 500 were added to the church. Out of this number 480 were from the families of Christians. God remembers his holy covenant unto a thousand generations. E. F. R.

Hasty words rankle a wound, soft ones dress it. Forgiveness cures it, and forgetfulness removes the scar. It is more noble, continues Quarles, to avoid an injury by silence than to overcome it by argument. So, in hearing mysteries, keep thy tongue quiet. Five words spoken cost Zacharias forty weeks silence. God is forgiving. Michael, an angel of wrath, comes on one wing, but Gabriel, an angel of peace, on two wings. So runs the Jewish proverb.

CAN WE FEEL SURE?

It was said of a certain stage-frost speech of Daniel Webster that "every word weighed a pound." But there is a line of the thirty-fifth psalm—mostly made up of monosyllables—in which every word weighs a ton. David uttered it in a season of despondency, when he cried out: "Say unto my soul, I am thy salvation." The old monarch was in trouble. His own throne was assailed, and so he went to the Everlasting Throne. His own heart was assailed by doubts, and so he sought for a fresh and full assurance of salvation. Whatever David's own experiences may have been, he furnished a golden prayer for universal use in these pregnant, pithy words: "Say unto my soul, I am thy salvation."

The salvation which all of us most need is a deliverance from the guilt and dominion of sin. We need to be liberated from the bondage of that great slaveholder, the Devil. Beset with temptations, we need succor when we are tempted. The only salvation "under heaven given among men" is by the atoning blood of Jesus and the regenerating power of the Holy Spirit. This is a full salvation, a complete salvation; it is God's masterpiece of mercy to us guilty, depraved and dying sinners. Can this salvation be made sure to a man, and can he be sure that he possesses it?

We answer unhesitatingly, Yes. David did not ask for impossibilities when he asked God to assure him of his salvation. Paul knew what he was about when he cried: "Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?" There is no perhaps about the salvation of a true follower of Christ any more than there is about the rising of to-morrow's sun. It does not depend upon my say, or you say, or any man's say. Only God can give the decisive and infallible assurance to us that we are safe for this world and for eternity.

Let it be carefully noted that the prayer is that God would say unto the soul: "I am thy salvation." There is no audible voice addressed to the ear; in fact, multitudes hear the offer of salvation every Sabbath by the ear, and yet their hearts are as dead as adders. What God says can only be heard by the heart. We would define faith to be heart hearing. And unto the docile, believing soul God says wonderful things, all things to make the soul leap for joy. This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners. I open the ivory chamber of John's Gospel, and these words: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that heareth my word and believeth on Him that sent me hath everlasting life and shall not come into condemnation." Again, Jesus: "This is the will of Him that sent me, that every one who believeth on the Son may have everlasting life." "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them and they follow me. And I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish; neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." He does not affirm that we may never, in a fit of waywardness and pride, throw ourselves out of that almighty and loving hand. But He does declare that while we stay there we are safe. And, being safe, we have a right to know it, and to feel all the serenity and satisfaction which this ownership by the Lord Jesus can inspire.

Faith is the soul's trust in Jesus as our salvation. It ought to bring a delightful sense of security. But it does not always do so, because it is too weak and doubting to produce assurance. Faith is the milk, and assurance is the cream which rises on it. The richer the milk the more abundant will be the cream. Assurance is not essential to salvation, as faith is; for God will let a great many people into heaven who had a very feeble faith here on earth. Faith is life, though it be sometimes a very weak, anxious, burdened and uncomfortable life. Assurance marks a higher degree of health, vigor, joy and power to overcome. Peter possessed some faith when he screamed to his Master, from the waves: "Lord, save me!" He had reached a much higher attainment by the Spirit when he exclaimed in the market-place of Jerusalem: "This is the stone which was set at naught of you builders, which is become the head of the corner." Saul of Tarsus had an infant faith born in his soul when he was groping about in the house of Ananias at Damascus. The infant had grown into a giant when Paul had reached up to the eighth chapter to the Romans, and could shout: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed to Him." Jesus had really said to Paul: "I am thy salvation."—Dr. Cuyler.

DOUBTS FROM THE PULPIT.

Rightly to divide the word of truth is the Christian minister's special mission. It is not my purpose captiously to criticise men who sustain the exalted position of ambassadors of Christ. And yet, perhaps, a few honest words from the pew, in the spirit of kindly sympathy, may be the means of correcting an evil, which, if persisted in, must weaken or injure the work of the pulpit. The people who go to church do not care anything about the difficulties that surround the exegesis of this or that passage. Neither do they care to know what the Greek or Hebrew of it may be. It is undoubtedly necessary that a minister be versed in these languages, but the pulpit is not the place for quotations from the original. There is a popular tendency to discuss in the pulpit mooted passages and mooted questions that have in themselves no practical bearing upon the issues of life and death to the soul. Within the last few weeks church-goers in the city in which we write have returned from public preaching perplexed with unnumbered difficulties.

Passages that for a lifetime have been accepted in the old orthodox fashion are [illegible] denied or deprived of all their sacredness, questionable hypotheses taking the place of what was before an undoubted fact. Modern rational sin shows its insidious hand nowhere more markedly than in the dialectic tendency of our pulpits. It is not that popular misconception are corrected, now that prevalent errors are exposed, but there are withal needless expositions of the most recondite and abstruse questions of theology; questions enshrouded in a cloud of metaphysical opacity, the discussion of which produces no benefit to the church, nor aids in the conversion of a single soul. I would not for a moment have the minister forget the didactic character of his preaching, [illegible] that he rise above the [illegible] of text and translation, [illegible] critics and exegetes, [illegible] life, life—eternal life, [illegible] pamphlets, [illegible] not of [illegible] preaching is vastly more [illegible] the errors and foibles of modern civilization than the plain, homely and soul-cutting truths presented by our forefathers. The minister needs to preach the truth as one having authority. He ministers the value of his high commission by laboring to reconcile the scientific and textual difficulties suggested by Rationalistic sceptics. Church going people have little patience with many theological distinctions. They prefer, as a rule, the plain, unvarnished Gospel, fresh with the inspiration of Calvary, unalloyed with the lemmies, dilemmas and trilemmas of theology.—Cor. The Presbyterian.

"AS THY DAY THY STRENGTH SHALL BE."

Christian, does thy heavenward journey
Seem to thee a weary way?
Have the fairest flowers faded?
And thy golden skies grown gray?
Have the shadows gathered round thee,
Till the sun is hid from view?
Do earth's false ones seem so many,
And its fond ones seem so few?
This sure stay is left to thee—
"As thy day thy strength shall be."

Hast thou toiled from morn till even
In the Master's harvest field,
And to all thy earnest effort
Seems it no return to yield?
Or amidst thy gathered gleanings,
Looking o'er thy shining sheaves,
Does it shame thee to discover
Worthless sticks and withered leaves
Hope and faith are still for thee—
"As thy day thy strength shall be."

Or hast thou gone forth at morning
Strong to strive, [illegible] and dare;
And does evening find thee shrinking
Low in doubt and self-despair?
Didst thou falter in the battle?
Didst thou fail in hour of need?
Hast thou half deuied thy Master
By thy look or word or deed?
Thou hast still whereto to flee—
"As thy day thy strength shall be."

Though thy life be crowned with sorrow—
Pierced by pain, and sharp with strife,
Thou hast still this thought for comfort—
Christ, thy Lord, endured life,
Knowing all that thou must suffer
In thy little day of years;
Pitying, with loving kindness,
All thy wants, and woes, and fears.
He has left this word to thee—
"As thy day thy strength shall be."

Then whatever fate befall thee,
Be thou brave, and calm, and strong;
Fill with work thy little moment,
Life at longest is not long.
May Christ's love rebuke thy coldness,
And His faithfulness thy fears
Till to joy He turns thy grieving,
And to smiling all thy tears.
Know, whatever comes to thee—
"As thy day thy strength shall be."
—Marjorie Moore, in Examiner and Chronicle.

THE SEPARATING TIME.

What a separation it will be. Once the whole congregation of Israel were called to stand before God. There was a secret sinner among them, and the separating time was come, and he must be taken out to be punished. He stood there among the rest and nobody could think who it could be. Presently every tribe was called to stand the scrutiny, and one tribe was fixed upon, and then the families of that tribe, and at last the very man was pointed out, and he was taken. Read the account. It is in the seventh chapter of Joshua.

Some time ago there was a man who did a wicked deed. He committed murder, but no one, [illegible] thing about it. Af[illegible] crime, he went t[illegible] a ticket, and came [illegible] ught himself safe. [illegible] place, the dreadful deed w[illegible], and some suspicion falling upon this man, a messenger was sent to the railway station, but he was gone. The telegraph wire, however, carried a message to the city to which the fugitive had gone. It gave a description of the murderer—his hat, his brown coat, his age, the color of his hair, his height, and such other particulars as could be furnished.

After a while the train arrived. The carriages are full of people, the innocent and the guilty are there, they have all arrived, and the tickets are taken, the doors are opening, the people step out, and are hurrying away to their homes. But there are some stern-looking men watching every carriage, scrutinizing every passenger. See! they keep their eyes on that man, they follow him, and at last they lay their hands on his shoulder; he is separated from all the rest—what an awful separation! They say: "You must go with us; you are our prisoner." They bind his hands with manacles; they lodge him in prison. He is tried, found guilty, and suffers death!

Reader, we are all going on together in in life's journey. Some are pardoned and [illegible] saved, others are yet in their sins, but all are going on together. Ah! but at the end of the journey there will be a separation! The sinner may think to escape in the crowd, but swifter than the telegraph his sin is known in heaven, and God has his officers, who will sever the wicked from among the just. "It is appointed unto men once to die, and after that the judgment."

"Which am I? A child of the kingdom, or a child of the devil? Do I love God? Have I repented of my sins? Am I trusting in Jesus Christ and striving to serve him? Shall I be numbered among his children at last? Into which hand will the angels gather me?—Presbyterian Journal.

SUCCESS IN THE MINISTRY.

What constitutes "success?" If we are to accept the currently received opinion, we suppose that popularity, crowded buildings, and great efficiency in promoting the outward work of church extension and growth, would be a correct response to this question.

Is the current answer to this inquiry the true one? We doubt it. If we turn to the Scriptures for our authority, we shall find that what is often looked upon as the crowning proof of ministerial success is nowhere even suggested. God declares that his faithful ministers shall be "hated," "persecuted," but he never promised that they shall be "popular." We are told that "he that winneth souls is wise," and "they that turn many to righteousness" "shall shine as the stars for ever and ever;" but we have no intimation that this "wisdom" is to find its sanction in the applause of men, or that those who are considered "stars" upon the earth are therefore certain to be equally resplendent in the constellations of heaven. The truth is that so many baser elements enter into what is ordinarily termed ministerial success, that it is hazardous, before the judgment day, to pronounce definitely upon the success or failure of any professed minister of Jesus Christ. The popular judgment may be correct, and it may be utterly at fault. Instances are not rare of men of whom their own time was not worthy, who have labored in obscurity all their lives and have at last gone down to unnoticed graves, but whose modest work has been rescued from oblivion by other and wiser times, and has become a blessing to all subsequent ages. So many subtle influences go to make up that fitful and wayward thing we call "popularity," that the least worthy are not unfrequently its largest recipients, while the deserving and those whom we have every reason to believe God will yet count among His shining ones are left to utter forgetfulness and neglect. Indeed, one of the surprises that are probably in store for us in the world to come will be to find how exceedingly small some of our great men have become, and how surpassingly resplendent the lives of some obscure, modest ministers of the Gospel will then appear.

A preacher should certainly "covet earnestly the best gifts." It is not only his right, but his duty, to make his message as attractive as possible, so long as he uses only legitimate means for the purpose. But to aim at popularity for its own sake is a prostitution of ministerial talent that is utterly destructive to the noblest ideal of Christian labor and Christian manhood. It does not follow that a man is a faithful minister of Jesus Christ because he preaches to crowded churches or that he is a poor and inefficient preacher because he speaks to few. It would be just as safe to accept the converse of the proposition; and neither can be taken as the basis of estimate, and we are never justified in so regarding them. Popularity may indeed be the price of shallowness or even of unfaithfulness to the truth. We could name one of the ablest ministers in the world, a man whose learning is wonderful, whose life is sweet, and simple, and modest, whose mind is a perfect treasury of all the garnered wisdom of the past, whose sermons are absolute models of matter and style, who preaches to a handful of people, while flippant, glib-tongued tyros are haranguing to gaping crowds.

We have no intention of decrying or disparaging legitimate popularity. But praise is so grateful to our poor human nature that the danger of any preacher's neglecting or despising it is one that we may safely disregard. The danger is all in the other direction; that those who win the applause of men will be "puffed up" by it, those who fail to win it be unduly despondent. The only permanent safeguard against this is to be found in a rigid devotion to duty, and a willingness to leave results to God. No faithful minister of Jesus Christ can say whether it will be most for the glory of the master that he shall or shall not labor in obscurity. If God sends popularity, let him be humbly thankful and make the best use of it. If his work is unnoticed by the busy world, it is by no manner of means an indication that God has forgotten him, or that in the great day of eternal harvest he shall not come rejoicing and bearing his sheaves with him.—London Weekly Review.

MISERABLE CHRISTIANS.

Christians sometimes find themselves having only enough of religion to make them miserable. They seem to want to be religious, but everything is wrong in their view. They find fault with everything they see other Christians doing. They harbor all kinds of suspicions about the motives of religious people, exaggerate all their faults, condemn their attempts to do good, and yield to the temptation to have nothing more to do with other Christians. They show clearly that the devil is riding them without saddle, but with a fearful lash and a cruel bit.

No being is more miserable than the professor of religion who is not in the enjoyment of the love of God. There is an easy way out of the difficulty, a remedy that never fails. It is to go to God for more of the power of religion. It must be sought earnestly until all the faultfinding, suspicious, bitter feeling leaves the heart.

As a fact, God can give relief to every professor of religion who is miserable with a half backslidden state. How much better one feels after being relieved of this torturing condition. Other Christians appear, even with their faults, in a much better light to one who has been made happy in the fullness of the love of God. They seem to the renewed one to be worthy of respect for the little they may be doing. Their motives no longer appear to be wholly base, nor their conduct contemptible. The miserable Christian who expected other church members to carry him around on their hands, does not expect so much of them when he is once filled with the love of God. He goes to church without feeling that everybody is slighting him. The fact is, he is impelled by love of God's people to show himself friendly, whereas he formerly expected others to show unusual respect to him. Sermons appear better to him than formerly, and do not seem so long, dry, tedious and empty.

In fact, the miserable Christian becomes a very different person after receiving a fresh baptism of the love of God.—Religious Telescope.

TEACH THE CATECHISM.

The churches may well set a very high value upon the careful and systematic instruction of the young. In a sense they make their future, as they mould the youthful mind and life. The Catechism is one of the most useful aids they can employ in this work, and should be made much of in the home and the Sunday school. It wields a most important influence in right training, and occupies a place in Christian nurture which no other method of teaching, however excellent, can so well fill. Our system of International Sunday school Lessons is admirable, and is doing much to promote an intelligent acquaintance with Scripture among the rising generation. The churches and the nation will reap blessed fruit from this scheme of study within the next thirty years; but, good as it is, it cannot do the work of, and must not be allowed to supplant, regular catechetical training.

The Christian religion is a grand and orderly scheme of divine truths, and the mere learning of one truth here and other there, with no obvious connection and relation, valuable as such acquisitions are in their way, can never be either entirely satisfactory to the teacher or thoroughly instructive and satisfying to the taught. You may get some little idea of the majesty of Karnak by looking upon its fallen columns and mighty stones half buried in the sand. You would have gotten a much nobler impression could you have gazed upon the temple in the greatness of its prime.

The Gospel plan, to be appreciated, needs to be understood and surveyed in its relations—stone to stone, and part to part—as a grand and consistent whole. A little systematic theology will do the children no harm, and might do some older people a great deal of good.

Do not the churches need to be toned up on this subject? Many a man might have been saved from drifting about with every wind of strange doctrine if those who had in charge his early training had seen to it that he was well grounded in "the faith once delivered to the saints."—Church Union.

GOLD DUST.

But faith, fanatic faith, once wedded fast,
To some dear falsehood, hugs it to the last.
—Tom Moore.

He who loves not books before he comes thirty years of age will hardly love them enough afterward to understand them.—Clarendon.

Trust him little who praises all, him less who censures all, and him least who is indifferent about all.—Lavater.

He who receives a good turn should never forget it. He who does one should never remember it.—Charron.

A man should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong, which is but saying, in other words, that he is wiser to-day than he was yesterday.—Pope.

A great mind is above doing an unjust act, above giving way to grief, above descending to buffoonery, and it would be invulnerable, if compassion did not prey upon its sensibility.—La Bruyere.

Perseverance is a Roman virtue
That wins each godlike act, and plucks success
E'en from the spear-proof crest of rugged danger.
—Havard.

Nature has left every man a capacity of being agreeable, though not of shining in company; and there are a hundred men sufficiently qualified for both who, by a very few faults that they might correct in half an hour, are not so much as tolerable.—Swift.

We can be thankful to a friend for a few acres, or a little money; and yet for the freedom and command of the whole earth, and for the great benefits of our being, our life, health and reason, we look upon ourselves as under no obligation.—Seneca.

Those things that are not practicable are not desirable. There is nothing in the world really beneficial that does not lie within the reach of an informed understanding and a well directed pursuit. There is nothing that God has judged good for us that He has not given us the means to accomplish, both in the natural and the moral world.—Burke.

Cheerfulness ought to be the viatieum vitæ of this life to the old. Age without cheerfulness is a Lapland winter without a sun; and this spirit of cheerfulness should be encouraged in our youth, if we would wish to have the benefit of it in our old age. Time will make a generous wine more mellow, but it will turn that which is early on the fret to vinegar.—Colton.

Immortality o'ersweeps
All pains, all tears, all fears—and peals
Like the eternal thunders of the deep,
Into my ears this truth: Thou livest forever.
—Byron.

KINDNESS.

It cannot be too often remarked that kindness is one of the virtues that hardly ever fails to produce an effect; kindness "in season and out of season;" kindness which is in every one's power. How very much the wheels of life would be smoothed, how much every one would add to the sum total of human happiness if every one were to take hold any of the many opportunities which every situation offers to be kind, courteous, easy and agreeable toward the chance travelers that he meets on his journeys; towards the chance sufferers that he comes across! It is never forgotten. The boy at school never forgets the kindness of an elder schoolfellow. The poor, solitary, and way-worn man or woman never forgets the pressure of a kind, feeling hand, the glance of a loving, sympathetic eye. A cup of cold water given unexpectedly at the right moment will indeed not "lose its reward."—Dean Stanley.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

Gleaned from exchanges:

The Jesuits have at length obtained permission to open a college at Cairo, Egypt.

The Bulgarian mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church contributes $146 per member for missions. This is nearly three times as much as the Methodists of America give to the same cause.

The Continental Committee of the Pan-Presbyterian Council propose to raise $60,000 so as to add $100 to the income of each of the twenty-two pastors of the Waldensian Church, who now receive $300 a year. The Scotch have raised $15,000 toward the amount.

The inhabitants of the commune of Araune, in the Swiss canton of Tessin, have demanded exemption from the tax levied for the support of the Roman Catholic Church, and, to the great indignation of the Ultramontanes, the federal tribunal has decided in their favor.

M. Chavard, an Old Catholic priest at Geneva, has resigned on the ground that after six years' efforts he despairs of a Catholic reformation in its present hands, the movement being without unity of doctrine or liturgy, and perverted to political ends. He intends to hold aloof from all theological controversies.

In the Madras Presidency the Arcot Mission of the Reformed Church has during the past year welcomed to its fellowship over 5,000 who have abandoned the worship of idols and professed themselves adherents of Jesus. On one Sabbath the Rev. Jared Scudder baptized 307, and on the next 227 converted Hindoos.

A meeting was recently held in one of the largest Calvinistic Methodist chapels in Cardiff, Wales, to consider the desirability of introducing the prayers and Litany contained in the Book of Common Prayer to the service of their church. After a long discussion the question was adjourned.

The banker of the Vatican, who managed the Pope's financial matters in Rome, has absconded, leaving behind debts amounting to more than 700,000 lire. Several high ecclesiastical officials are suddenly thrown into financial difficulty in consequence, and one of the recently created Cardinals has been absolutely beggared.

The Church of Jesus, in Mexico, (Episcopal), has been maintaining services in Vera Cruz, which were conducted by a lay reader, Albino Soto. Being informed that it would be necessary to withdraw the support heretofore given him, Soto declared that the mission must not be closed, and for the purpose of keeping it open he would get some work to do, so as to pay the rent of the hall and support his family.

Certain Bishops have again urged Leo XIII. to enter on the question of the beatification of his predecessor. The Pope has replied that it will be well to proceed with the collection of any precise facts bearing on such claim, but that it is not desirable to make any exception to the usual method of procedure, which insures deliberate and dispassionate judgment.

The Chinese Religions Tract Society has determined to publish twelve tracts of, say, twenty pages each, of uniform size, and treating of doctrinal and practical subjects. The Publishing Committee are the Rev. Dr. Edkins, of Pekin, Chairman; Bishop Scheraschewsky, the Rev. Dr. Allen, the Rev. Y. K. Yen, the Rev. Pæn Sing-z, and the Rev. C. K. Marshall, of Shanghai; and the Rev. Dr. Lord and the Rev. Kan Jinkwæ, of Ningpo.

The newly-founded Welsh (Cardiff) mission on the Congo river is making encouraging progress in all its operations. It was started only a few months ago, with five missionaries. Now the arrival of three new missionaries is reported, while a fourth, who returned to get well of an accidental shot, is about to start away again. This mission is undenominational and intends to work on new ground.

The Rev. John R. McDougall writes from Florence that he has just secured, at a moderate cost, a most central building in Venice for the Free Italian Church work in that city. The principal entrance to the building is from the great square of San Marco. Although the premises have been purchased for the Italian evangelization Mr. McDougall hopes that the Gospel will likewise be preached in English in this easily-found building, through the agency of one of our evangelical denominations, to the crowds of American and British visitors who throng the renowned City of the Sea. More than $6,000 have been secured in this country, during the past year, in small sums by the Rev. Antonio Arrighi, the agent of the Free Italian Church in America, for this most excellent work. It is hoped that much larger subscriptions may be had during the year 1880. Money may be sent directly to the Rev. John A. McDougall in Florence, Italy, or may be forwarded through Mr. Roswell Smith, of Scribner & Co., 743 Broadway, New York, or through any other responsible channels.

Did any one ever hear of a person who, because there is counterfeit money in circulation, would have nothing to do with money? Why, then, reject Christianity because there are bogus Christians in circulation? It is very strange that so trivial and unreasonable an excuse should be so often offered.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN. - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1880.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

MORE PREACHING.

One of the remedies for the complaint (of which so much has been wisely and earnestly said) of the inefficiency of the Presbyterian Church is faith. We do not, of course, mean to write a truism when we say what is needed is the grace of God—this more than all else. Of course this grace would make the Church more wise, earnest, aggressive and successful, and showing its power in various ways, would secure progress and usefulness. The ministry would be more direct and fervent, the membership more alert and prayerful, the organization more efficient. This is too general a remark.

But one thing lacking in the working of the great arm of evangelization is faith in God's promise to bless the means used.

Preaching is the great weapon of the Church. It pleases God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. This is God's honored instrument. He entrusts it to the Church and enjoins its use, and promises success. And yet how many use it faithfully?

It is not an untrue picture of the facts to say that in many country charges the minister goes to his church Sunday morning, and preaches, half-frozen, a stone-cold discourse to a shivering and apathetic audience. The gathering of the people is scarcely warmer than the day, the house, or the preaching. No wonder that minister is disheartened, and that church is languishing, if not dead. He rides back to his home, ten miles perhaps, Sunday afternoon, wishing for a better field, and half way murmuring at his lot. He evidently does not believe that preaching is the divinely appointed plan for reaching the hearts and consciences of men—God's ordinance for saving souls! The next Sunday, with variations of temperature, is a repitition of the last. One sermon a week, without fire in the house or fire in the heart, is the extent of his labors!

Is there not here a lack of faith in God's promise that His word shall not return unto Him void? More frequent preaching, more fervid preaching, more instructive preaching, is needed in all our country churches.

And we do not single out the country in comparison with city work, with any view of disparagement whatever. But it is well known that in our town churches that the pastor is expected to preach twice on Sabbath and have a weekly service besides. Why should a town church need more religious instruction than a country church? Is there not to be found in this frequency of spiritual instruction the reason for the more effective organization and more energetic enterprise that are to be seen in such charges? More than two-thirds of our members are connected with country churches—it was stated on the floor of Synod in Fayetteville—and yet the one-third who belong to town and city churches contribute more than seven-tenths of all that is given to benevolent causes, and are foremost in all aggressive work. Why is this? Surely not because the country Christians are less pious, sincere and earnest. Many, perhaps most, of the best people are there. Is it not rather because their brethren in the city have more frequent opportunities and can more conveniently combine their efforts? Might not like results be secured in the country with like efforts? Why ought not the same service be expected of the country pastor as of his city pastor? It is true a congregation assembling in the country at the church cannot go home and reassemble for afternoon or evening preaching. And two services at church, after a Sunday school, too, and with a basket dinner sandwiched between, are, we confess, a weariness to the flesh, and usually unproductive of good. But after morning service is there not some outpost, some mission station, some school house, where an afternoon or evening meeting may be held with great promise of good? Surely if men believed preaching was so efficient a means of good there would be more of it done.

Those who attended the meeting of Synod in Charlotte will not have forgotten the resolution introduced by Rev. L. McKinnon of Concord, near the close of the meeting, urging upon settled pastors more of the evangelistic work by manning well their frontiers and visiting their picket lines. This action has been already fruitful of good result, but we had hoped to have heard more of it. "A third of a man" was what our brother called those who only gave their charges one service a week. A third of a man, because such an one only did a third of a man's work; for he argued from the labors of a father and son—that is, taking the older and the younger ranks of the ministry—who each gave three services a week to their charges, that this was at least what an average minister could do. How many are there in our Synod who do only a third of a man's work? Saturday or Monday is the minister's rest, or Sabbath day. He must be ready to be very tired by his Sunday's work. This of course takes him out of his mill on Saturday or his school on Monday. His great work is preaching, and he has no business having any other business, or sparing himself for any other business.

This would make easy the supply of some of our feeble and vacant churches, if ministers would preach twice or thrice on Sunday and occasionally in the week. How many of our churches in the country are only six to ten miles apart? And how easy it would be after preaching in the forenoon at one to preach in the afternoon at another. Sunday afternoon is as much a part of Sunday, and may be used in public worship as well as the morning. It is ridiculous for some of these helpless little churches that have but a limited area and promise but little extension, and that raise for a minister's support but little or nothing, to clamor for a whole Sunday out of the four in a month, and ask Presbytery to help them too, when perchance they might be thus supplied.

Some one may well say that a greater amount of preaching is not the panacea for the ills of the church, is not the remedy for stagnation and lack of growth; that quality counts for more than quantity; and that one good sermon preached by an educated, qualified Presbyterian minister is worth half a dozen harangues by these ranting, half-baked, untrained preachers. Perhaps as a sermon, as an orderly compend of Scriptural truth, as a thesis of theology, or a critical exegesis, it may be far superior. It may have far more truth, and saving truth well put, but yet it does not accomplish the like result. One sharp blow of an axe may cut deep into the heart of a tree. But a duller instrument will cut it down if the blows be repeated with frequency and force. More than this, there is not only repetition, but variety. A larger audience is reached, in more homely style, it is true, but in a more effective way.

And here presents another difficulty: Our ministers, too often, are unwilling to preach half-prepared sermons. Unless the subject is thoroughly mastered, the order perfectly arranged, matter and manner well digested and considered, they are unwilling to preach. Every sermon must be as perfect, as a work of art, as it can be. We grant this to be a correct canon. Every man should preach at the time just as well as it is possible for him to preach. Every minister should do his best every time. But one time's "best" may be better and different from another time's "best." The best sermon, in the minister's judgment, is rarely the best in the judgment of his hearer. The minister knows which has cost him more toil, more study, more soul sweat, as Baxter calls it, but the hearer knows which affects him most deeply, which stirs him, which moves him, which quickens purpose of good. The sermon most full of theological truth, most condensed, most complete, most exhaustive, is not necessarily the best one. The average hearer is an untrained thinker. The truth must not be too condensed, must be simply put, must be freely illustrated. Hence it is that what many ministers call their "prayer meeting talks," their off-hand remarks, are their most effective discourses, and their really best sermons. It may be mortifying to their vanity, that what they have wrought on, should be passed by, for an impromptu utterance, the exhortation of a heart burdened with a desire to do a present good. But it is honoring to God, who thus takes "the foolish things of the world to confound the wise, that no flesh should glory in His presence," and teaches the lesson over and over again, which we are so slow to learn, that it is "not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit." It is not the grand sermons, it is the simple earnest talks that do the most good.

Let us have more faith in God's Word that He will bless the means. And let the means be used more faithfully and freely.

ONE OF THE NOBLEST CHARITIES.

Among, and very prominent among, the noble charitable institutions of New York, that city of noble charities, is the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Right lately one of its noblest deeds has been the bringing to punishment one Rev. (?) Edward Cowley, who was in charge of the "Fold of the Good Shepherd," an institution of the Episcopal Church, supposed to be properly caring for quite a number of otherwise friendless children. The atrocities of this wretch, in his system of starvation, menial service and cruel beatings of these defenceless waifs, seems almost incredible. He was arraigned, and in the progress of the case his counsel retired from the defence. Cowley was taken to the Tombs, placed in a cell, and will be tried on twenty-five indictments for misdemeanor and assault and battery. He may be imprisoned one year on each indictment if found guilty.

The Christian at Work furnishes the following in regard to the general work of the Society: "The sum of a year's doings of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and what has been accomplished by the Society for the Suppression of Vice, shows that the philanthropy of this age has one very attractive feature. It tries to redeem the children of want and vice from their dreadful associations in the cellars and the streets, and to give them a chance to grow up to maturity in clean, wholesome country homes. From time to time, the daily papers give accounts of companies of little fellows, selected from the poorest, and sent, through some good man's or good woman's charity, away from the crowded cities to the broad, free West. Reading the other day some of the brief biographies of these lads of twelve and fourteen, who had from babyhood battled hand to hand with starvation, who, born of drunkards and thieves, took naturally to theft and drink, who have slept in coal-boxes and gutters, have evaded policemen since they were old enough to walk, and have grown sharp-eyed and old from their familiarity with hunger and crime, the thought came back that the Good Samaritan had found his work in New York. Too many times and too long have respectability and religion shirked their duty to these children, who, whatever their future may be, can never wholly forget the sadness and horror of great darkness which have invested their opening lives.

One likes to follow in fancy the swift-rolling cars, freighted with those travellers who are bound to some depot of God's providence. Far away in an ample home there is a bluff, broad-shouldered farmer and a strong, healthy, sweet-voiced farmer's wife, and they will harness up and drive to the station and select one of the knavish, stunted, ill-fed, ill-born waifs, and take him home to do what they can. They believe that he is God's child, and that love and truth, and conscientious care, and steady habits, and honest work, will help him to find his place in the world. In hundreds of instances their faith has been well repaid, and there are men now of full stature, of pure morals and of sturdy Christian character, who owe everything, humanly speaking, to the practical charity which lifted them from the depths of stagnant poverty, and set them down on the breezy bosom of the prairies.

It is well when swift and stern justice is meted out to criminals, but it would be better were the number of criminals reduced, as it can only be, by reaching out hands of help, and giving hearts of pity to the young. We may very safely say that one boy or girl taken away from the town and placed beside a country hearth, is better started than ten who are clustered into Truant Refuges and Asylums. Rich and generous men and women can find no thriftier, no better paying way of investing their money, when they want to give the Lord a thank-offering, than the way indicated here.

THE PUBLICATION CAUSE.

Inviting the attention of readers to the circulars of Rev. Dr. Hazen, in another column, we feel that there is nothing more for us to do than to urge the subject upon their hearts and consciences. Whatever may have been the errors or shortcomings of the Publication cause in the past, belongs to the past. The duty of the hour is to put our shoulders to the wheel—which means put our hands into our pockets (that is just what it does mean) and help along this really needy and deserving cause.

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

The whole amount collected in Lincolnton church during last year was $501; not $50, as incorrectly set in type.

M. DeLesseps has visited Panama, thrown his shovelful of dirt, and announced the absolute success—that is to be—of his canal project, but the money does not seem to be forthcoming. The French Government officially disavows any connection with the project in any shape whatever, and we haven't far to look to see the end of DeLesseps' Isthmus Canal project.

The United Presbyterian has this to say:

"The insecure tenure by which an emperor holds his place is suggested by the agitations going on in Brazil. A few years since Dom Pedro was regarded as the happiest of rulers, not only his own country but all others which he visited praising him for his virtues. Just now, however, he is held in contempt, and his empire is on the verge of revolution. It all grows out of the fact that the people are taxed, or claim to be taxed, beyond what they can endure, and that the emperor, instead of sympathizing with them and endeavoring to help them, is indifferent and devoted to his own pursuits. However just the cause of the disturbance is, nothing can more strikingly show the fickle attachment by which people are now bound to their sovereign.

In response to our inquiry as to the progress in the culinary art, making or made, by the students of Peace Institute, we have the following communication:

A REPLY.

"The young ladies of the Peace Institute Cooking Class request the pleasure of your company at an informal supper given by them at 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, evening, Jan., 21.

In the above little formula the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN will find the opening words of the answer to the query in its issue of January 28th, as to the present status of the new departure at Peace Institute.

Three months have passed since a group of sceptical and inwardly scornful listeners gathered about the expounder of the new system, and looked half disdainfully, half wonderingly, at the array of shining utensils, and the most unaccustomed order and daintiness of all the appointments of the sunny class-room. That the work could be performed by any one claiming the name of lady, that cooking had any first principles, or that anything in or about it demanded any attention whatever, were all questionable points, each one brought up urgently, and each one at last quietly dismissed as settled once for all. Whatever may be the fortunes of cooking as a science in the Southern States, one thing is certain, that even if nothing more be accomplished, some thirty young girls will leave Peace Institute with the first intelligent idea of food and what forms of food this wonderful human body demands, that has ever entered their minds. And something more than theory is their portion. Already some twenty have, with their own hands, made bread, broiled steak, cooked potatoes properly, and mastered coffee and tea, while before the session ends, every member of the class will, in the same manner, have performed every essential operation in cooking, and have definite ideas of prices and qualities, and in what true house-keeping consists.

The supper referred to, in which every article was prepared by the girls themselves, included the following

BILL OF FARE:

Stewed Oysters.
Fried Oysters.
Chicken Salad.
Jellied Chicken—cold.
Sandwiches of "Class Bread" and Deviled Ham.
Parker House Rolls.
Fruit, Dover and Lady Cake.
Coffee. Chocolate.

It may be added that the Trustees of the Institute to whom the invitation was addressed, are gentlemen of proved capacity, their reception of the above bill, proving it effectually and beyond question. Should the PRESBYTERIAN, desire personal knowledge, the class will be most happy to extend its hospitality, and to prove by its works what manner of fruit this new and strange seed has already borne. H. C.

The General Methodist Conference is a foregone fact, and now it is in order to cut out work for it. Here is the contribution of a contemporary:

"The question of itinerancy is looming up on the Methodist horizon, and is likely to overspread the whole denominational sky by the time the General Conference meets. There will undoubtedly be an earnest and interesting discussion when this matter comes before the Conference, and whatever result the discussion may lead to it is evident that this time-honored custom will not die without a hard struggle."

An old and valued friend, one who has been a subscriber to the PRESBYTERIAN from the beginning, who loves good papers and keeps them, and whose house is filled with such treasures, sends us the following elegant extract, as worthy of a place in our columns. It surely is, and our readers will thank our friend, whose hospitality we once enjoyed at a meeting of Fayetteville Presbytery, and whose kindness we appreciate, for this excerpt furnished us. It is taken from the Weekly Recorder, published at Chillicothe, Ohio, December 2nd, 1819. The extract is taken by that paper from "Family Lectures, by Mrs. N. Sproat, of Taunton," (so reads the caption.)

"A great proportion of the wretchedness which has so embittered married life, I am persuaded, has originated in the negligence of trifles. Connubial happiness is a thing of too fine a texture to be handled roughly. It is a sensitive plant, which will not even bear the touch of unkindness—a delicate flower which indifference will chill, and suspicion blast. It must be watered with the showers of tender affection, expanded with the glow of attention, and guarded by the impregnable barrier of unshaken confidence. Thus matured, it will bloom with fragrance in every season of life, and sweeten even the loneliness of declining years."

The Christian Observer puts forth this point:

"A Re[illegible]ge in Philadelphia, bei[illegible]ed a circular to P[illegible]g money, or any[illegible]money. Those[illegible]n" are prem[illegible]"participati[illegible]erits of all the [illegible]14,000 brothers"

Not long ago [illegible] into an office asking for a d[illegible]upport a Catholic hospital. To test their disposition, they were asked to make a donation to a Presbyterian orphanage. "Oh, we are poor, we have no money." The fact was developed that they wanted Protestant money to support their proselyting institutions, but not a copper had they for a Protestant one.

If the teachings of Romanism tend to make the sinner trust to "the merits of all the good works of more than 14,000 brothers," instead of the merits of Christ, then every man who contributes to its support is contributing to hinder the conversion of the world and the salvation of souls."

It is stated of postal money orders, that not even one rightful claimant has lost a single dollar under this system from the date of its organization until the present time, although during the last fiscal year alone the post office department issued over $90,000,000 worth of these orders. Of misdirected orders, or orders not called for on account of death, the aggregate worth now amounts to $700,000.

The above is doubtless correct as a statement, and is highly creditable to the postal order system, as a safe mode of conveying money, but the fee for money orders is too large—that is the percentage on small orders is altogether unreasonable, and ought to be reduced.

Covenant:

"There is profound truth in the remark of the poor, lame boy, after he became a Christian. Of his home, whose influences were about as unfriendly as they could be, he said:

'Once everything went wrong at our house. Father was wrong, mother was wrong, and sister was wrong; but, now that Jesus is mine, it is all right. I know why everything went wrong before, it was because I was all wrong myself.'

Aye! 'because I was wrong myself.' It is wonderful how distorted everything appears, when we ourselves are wrong; or how great the mote appears in another's eye, where there happens to be a beam in our own!"

Presbyterian:

Professor March of Yale College explains matters, as the Churchman informs us, by saying "that the 'primates' who preceded man in America emigrated to Europe by the way of Behring Straits, which, in the Miocene age, was bridged by land. Among those that went was the tiger. He says that the reason the old world apes did not come back to the land of their 'earlier ancestry' is found in the fact that the Miocene bridge broke down (when, he does not say), and the ocean intervened." This is scientific guessing of the kind of which we have so much at present.

"Rev. A. Krieken, a Hollander, is now in the Newbern section as the representative of a number of Hollanders residing in Michigan. He is on a visit to the Havelock colony of his countrymen already established by Mr. C. W. McLean, and if he finds it as it has been represented by all who have been there before him, will go to all the Holland settlements in America and tell them his views, and then to the old country, with the view of having a line of steamers direct from Amsterdam and Rotterdam to Morehead City, only eighteen miles from the colony. Mr. McLean is doing all this at his own expense, and can hardly expect to enrich himself, as the outlay is so great. He, however, expects to take up other large tracts in various sections of the State, and the expense of organizing the next colonies will not be great and his gain must come then. His scheme has the best wishes of our people.—Goldsboro Messenger.

The Christian at Work says:

"The matter seems to be assuming a very important [illegible] and the [illegible] of such an earnest [illegible]kard, of Grand [illegible] valuable results. [illegible]d be connected wi[illegible]regular line of steamers, [illegible]th Carolina will become a [illegible]or the Hollanders in the future [illegible]an has been in the past. The West, of course, will never loose its attractions, but there will undoubtedly be a large stream of immigration pouring its healthful tides of industry and thrift into the Southern States.

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

Rev. S. C. Alexander writes:

"I labored last year at Mt. Carmel and Mt. Harmony churches. They sent up each a call to Presbytery for one-fourth of my time. Since then Rockingham church unanimously asks for the other half of my time.

"We have received twenty-two persons into the church on profession of their faith in Christ, during the last year; and several others contemplate joining the Church in a few weeks. This is a very promising field indeed, where much good can be done by an earnest worker for Christ. I feel sorry to think about leaving them. But you know I have been elected evangelist of the extreme western part of our Presbytery and State, and am urged to accept that work; but will be able to speak more definitely in a short time. I have prayed earnestly for a righteous decision in this matter. Both the fields are large and promise great usefulness, and great hardship and selfdenial. The way seems opened now for me to obey the orders of Presbytery and go up to Cherokee; but can't speak yet with absolute certainty.

At a late meeting the session of Waynesville Presbyterian church two persons were received by certificate.

The work on the new and pretty Second Presbyterian church, on North Blount street, is now going on quite rapidly. The congregation will probably be in the building by the middle of March—at least they hope to be in. Almost the sum needed to enable the church to be occupied has been raised. The handsome stained glass windows, three in number, in the front of the church, are a present from Christ Episcopal church. The building is an ornament to the portion of the city where it stands, and the design is considered one of the best in the State.—Raleigh Observer.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

LETTER FROM WILLIAMSBORO.

Dear Mr. Editor: Will you be kind enough to give the paper below adopted by the Nutbush church, a place in your paper, in memory of our faithful friend and stated supply, the late Rev. E. Hines?

On the third Sunday in January we had the pleasure of having the Rev. D. E. Jordan of Oxford with us. He gave us two sermons on that occasion, which were the first services we have had since Mr. Hines' decease. Our old church, Mr. Editor, is closed for the first time within the memory of the present generation. We are trying to preserve our organization by holding a congregational meeting monthly. It is our earnest desire to have preaching at least twice a month, and we are casting about and hoping that we may be able after awhile to employ a pastor with some of the other churches of the county:

NUTBUSH CHURCH—IN MEMORIAM.

Whereas, our Heavenly Father, since the last meeting of the session of this church, has seen fit, in His unsearchable wisdom, to remove by death our long-tried, faithful and well beloved minister, the Rev. Edward Hines, who, for nearly two generations, had ministered to us in holy things with great acceptance and untiring fidelity, and had seen nearly every member of his flock gathered into the fold; therefore,

Resolved, That we bow in humble submission to the Divine Will, remembering that our beloved minister has entered into his rest.

2d. That our warmest sympathies are tendered to his sorrowing family.

3d. That the above proceedings be entered on the sessional records of this church, and that a copy of the same be forwarded to Mrs. Hines and to the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN for publication.

It was further moved and unanimously agreed to by the session that a page of our Sessional Records be inscribed to his memory, viz:

"To the memory of Rev. Edward Hines. Born May 6th, 1811. Pastor of this church from August, 1841, to April 11, 1858. Stated supply from the 4th Sabbath in April, 1871, to the date of his death, November 27th, 1879. CLERK OF SESSION."

The Rev. F. A. Whaley has consented to preach for us on the fifth Sabbath in February. Respectfully, CLERK OF SESSION.

Williamsboro, Feb. 1880.

For the N. C. Presbyterian

THE RELIEF FUND.

At the last meeting of the Executive Committee of Home Missions the following report of the Standing Committee on the Relief Fund was received, approved and ordered to be published. In accordance with this resolution, I herewith transmit you a copy and will thank you to insert it in your paper.

Most truly yours,
RICHARD McILWAINE, Sec'y.
Baltimore, Feb 5, 1880.

REPORT OF THE STANDING COMMITTE ON THE RELIEF FUND TO THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF HOME MISSIONS

The Committee on the Relief Fund have examined its assets and liabilities on the 1st of January, 1880, and find its condition in all respects satisfactory. It has $31,500 invested in bonds, all of which are above par and every one of them worth more than its cost. Its progress during the last year has been so favorable that we have been able to value its probable interest, receipts and liabilities at five per cent., and yet show a surplus of $689, which is better than in any former year. Our corpons have more than paid all the annuities due in the current year, so that nearly all the contributions from the churches and ministers have been invested in interest-bearing bonds, making us more able to pay the annuities of the next year in the same manner. The new members have been few, and this is the only discouraging feature that we have to report. Our expenses are as low as any of the life insurance companies, and our rates lower; while our returns to those who withdrew from participation in the fund are more liberal. Our business is conducted entirely for the interest of the members, and though we have heretofore made no dividends of profits, we have every reason to believe that we will do so in the near future. Our rates at first were too low and our terms too liberal, but since these have been changed to our present charges, our improvement has been steady and invariable, and every year has found our condition better. Our success is now certain, and all that we desire is that we should have more of our ministers enjoying the advantages that we offer.

C. F. McCAY,
G. F. ANDERSON,
RICHARD McILWAINE,
Committee of Arrangements.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

CIRCULARS.

TO THE PASTORS, SESSIONS AND MEMBERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Dear Brethren: In view of the approaching March collection for the cause of Publication, we ask your prayerful attention to the following statement:

We had hoped by this date to be entirely free from debt, but in various ways our expectations have been disappointed, and a considerable debt still remains.

This burden has for several years prevented the active prosecution of a work that is greatly needed in the churches—the dissemination of a Christian literature, and the aid of needy churches and Sabbath schools.

We cannot as a Church afford to dispense with this important agency, but it cannot be effectively prosecuted until we are free from debt.

We have reached a point where a united and earnest effort will accomplish the object for which we have been struggling for more than two years.

It is for the honor of the Church and the cause of Christ that this should be done at once; that there should be no longer either reproach resting upon us, or a dead weight hindering our work.

We need not remind you that the General Assembly of 1879, as well as the Assemblies of the two preceding years, strongly urged the pressing importance of this work, and directed collections to be taken in all our churches for this object, but less than one-half have contributed anything during the past year.

And now, brethren, can we not secure the aid and co-operation of every pastor and session in the Church in bringing this pressing need faithfully before all our congregations?

Can we not have from every congregation, and from every Sabbath school in our bounds, a liberal collection for this object—the payment of the debt?

Brethren, can we not do even better than this, and provide a small sum beside for the prosecution of the Publication work during the coming year?

We ask that the collection taken on the first Sabbath of March be forwarded promptly to the treasurer, as the financial year closes April 1st.

In behalf of the Executive Committee of Publication.

JAMES K. HAZEN, Secretary.
Richmond, Va., Feb. 1, 1880.

TO THE SUPERINTENDENTS, TEACHERS AND SCHOLARS OF PRESBYTERIAN SABBATH SCHOOLS.

Dear Friends: For nearly three years past the work of Publication, which is so closely connected with the Sabbath school work in our Church, has been almost suspended, because of the debt resting upon it.

The committee has been unable to aid mission Sabbath schools and feeble churches as in former years, and yet this help was never needed so much as now. We want to send our Sabbath school papers and our excellent lesson helps, and other literature of the Committee of Publication, to those who are greatly in need, but we must pay our debt first.

We ask all our Sabbath schools to help us, by taking up a collection for this object on the first Sabboth of March or as soon after as possible.

Will not each pastor or superintendent explain this question to his school one or two weeks beforehand, and ask each class and each scholar to give something?

The name and amount of each contributing school will be published in the Earnest Worker.

This cause has special claims upon our Sunday schools, and we are confident our appeal will not be vain.

Send remittances in post office money orders or drafts to the secretary and treasurer.

In behalf of the Executive Committee of Publication.

JAMES K. HAZEN, Secretary.
Richmond, Va., Feb. 1, 1880.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

SINGULAR ERRORS OF OUR SECRETARIES.

It is amazing that such good men as our Secretaries have so little mother wit. This deficiency is strikingly displayed in that remarkable circular just issued by Bro. Hazen for the Publication cause. What pre-eminently old-fashioned ideas he and Drs. Wilson and McIlwaine, &c., have! Our decision, as a Church, seems to be against paying old debts. We are abundantly able to pay the Publication debt by a ten-cent subscription. But we do not do so. We can pay the Foreign Mission debt, and send out new missionaries, if we choose. But we do not choose. In fact we do not look at these things in the "old fogy" light. If one, about to die, concludes to spare a little of what he cannot take with him, for these causes, we are willing. But we have more important uses for our money now than paying old debts, sending men on trips to China and helping men to an education they should work for. The Secretaries are constantly talking about obligations to Christ, and duty, and the claims of the impenitent and dying world. We know as much about obligation as they do, and differ from their opinions. Why, nobody pays old debts now, except a few curiously constructed people. Many are getting rich by not paying back scores. So these circulars of the honored—but old-fashioned—Secretaries are a disturbing element to many.

If they will be popular and do their work well, just let them issue and sow broadcast over the Church some such letters as these:

"PUBLICATION.

"Brethren, we rejoice to inform you that we have succeeded in keeping our debt about as usual. We can make it last forever, unless some unfriendly legal steps be taken by cruel creditors; or we be forced into a convenient and fashionable assignment, which some over-sensitive brethren object to, because of "old timed" notions of dishonor to the church. I hope, however, to succeed in keeping the debt by making some fair promises, and by occasionally actually paying a few dollars to the cormorant debtors, who cannot appreciate the honor of having us in debt to them. Rely upon us. Yours, &c.,

"JAS. K. HAZEN."

"MISSIONS

"Brethren, our laborers at home and abroad are much cramped, while many inviting fields allure them. Our numbers have steadily diminished, which is a subject of thanksgiving. While we speak of hope of sending our reinforcements, and do occasionally send one, we are happy to inform you that in few years all our men will be able to return home, and you will be relieved from calls for mission work. Advanced science proves that men rose from below the ape: so the heathen will in the course of some ages reach proper development, and invent a suitable Gospel. As a weekly amusement it may be expedient to maintain some pulpit exhibitions at home a while longer. But to a large extent the desired recreation may be afforded by popular Sunday excursions, beer-gardens, &c. As your agents, we will endeavor to carry out your desires to cease foreign and home missionary operations as quickly and surely as we possibly can, with decent respect to many grand sentiments we have expressed in thoughtless moments that unfortunately overtook us. Trust us implicitly. J. L. WILSON, D. D., "R. McILWAINE, D. D."

We trust that in the midst of much trouble our words may be as sunlight. The other Secretaries can take the hint given. We look for the gratitude of a rescued and relieved Church and happy Secretaries.

MOSES HOPEFUL.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Preacher and Homiletic Monthly is before us. Contents for February: Sermonic Hints at the Meaning of Texts; Brotherly Talks with Young Ministers; Ministers and Money Matters; The International S. S. Lessons; Prayer Meeting Service; Sermonic Criticism; Preachers Exchanging Views; Living Issues for Pulpit Treatment; Expository Preaching; Queries and Answers; Helpful Data in Current Literature; Illustrations and Smiles; Themes and Texts of Leading Sermons Preached During the Month; Suggestive Themes. Single numbers 25 cents, $2 50 per annum. Rev. I. K. Funk & Co., 21 and 23 Barclay street, New York.

The South Atlantic for January is at hand. Contents: Two Questions of the Day, Cicero W. Harris; A Vision of Echoes (a poem), Edgar Fawcett; Certain Historians of English Social Life, Philip A. Bruce; Carmelita, W. H. Babcock; The Havana Commission; Thiers, Th. Von Jasmond; Dust to Dust, Appleton Oaksmith; A Dream, M. T. Hunter; Editorial; Recent Literature. Price $3; single copy 30 cents; Mrs. Cicero W. Harris, Wilmington, N. C.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Mr. Rittenhouse, of the Northern Assembly, is at present supplying the chapels of Lynchburg, Va.

Rev S. F. Tenney writes to the Southern Presbyterian that Rev. W. C. Wallace is supplying the Presbyterian churches in the towns of Beaumont and Orange, Texas, and prospects are brighter in that quarter. One or two ministers are needed for San Augustine, Jasper, Moscow and other points. Mr. Tenney adds: "As I expect to visit these places shortly, I will be glad to correspond with any minister who may think of coming to this field, and will give him such information as I can concerning these places."

Rev. Dr. M. D. Hoge of Richmond, Va., announced to his congregation on Sabbath, 1st inst., that he would sail for Europe on the 11th inst. His objective point is the Holy Land, but he will visit Constantinople, Cairo and probably other cities in the far East.

Rev. A. P. Smith writes to the Texas Presbyterian that a church was organized at Frankfort, in Dallas Presbytery, on 22d inst. It was constituted with sixteen members, two others were to join. It will be known as Mt. Olivet. Col. Bishop and Mr. Mason were ordained and installed as ruling elders. The church will be supplied by Rev. T. M. Irwin.

Rev. H. Moseley writes, Jan. 22d, to the same paper that Rev. Dr. Bonde had been preaching at Mexico for ten days. Three members were added to the church and six children were baptized. The people gave marked attention and the church was edified and strengthened. Mexia is growing rapidly and the outlook for Presbyterianism is encouraging. The ladies are at work to repair the church building, and lately they have been presented with a set of elegant pulpit chairs and a marble top table for the communion service.

Rev. J. B. Carne, from Union City, will shortly take charge of the Presbyterian church at Covington, Tenn.

Rev. H. M. Whaling, so says the Christian Observer, has taken charge of the Park Avenue church in Memphis, formerly served by Rev. John S. Park.

Rev. E. McNair should be addressed at Cossy Creek, Jefferson county, instead of Jackson, Tenn., as heretofore.

The postoffice address of Rev. T. R. English is changed from Cuthbert, Ga., to Mayesville, S. C.

The meeting at First church, Louisville, Ky., during the past week has been favored with the services of Rev. J. M. Evans of Augusta, Ky. It was closed last Sunday night. On Sabbath morning the pastor read the names of eleven new members admitted during the week, making over forty that have been added during the meeting. This church has been richly blessed during the year, and by reason of its many additions is now numerically a strong church.—Christian Observe.

A Presbyterian church was organized at Marlo, Texas, on Dec. 28th, with fourteen members, including two elders and two deacons.

NORTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Burr Baldwin died at Montrose, Pa., on January 30 h, aged 90 years. He is believed to have been the oldest living graduate of Yale College, and the only surviving member of the class of 1809.

The centennial of the burning of the second house of worship of the Presbyterian congregation of Elizabeth, N. J., was celebrated on the 25th ult. The church was destroyed by marauders—during the Revolutionary war—and the exercises, bringing forward the history of the church, were very interesting.

BAPTIST.

The Baptist Church at Groton, N. Y., has paid a debt of nearly $2 000, and solemnly pledged itself never again to incur any interest-bearing indebtedness.

CONGREGATIONAL.

It is reported that the Congregational Church of Bafield, Mass., has received a legacy of $15 000.

Quite a number of revivals are in progress in the Congregational Churches of New York State since the Week of Prayer.

REFORMED EPISCOPAL.

St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal Church, Chicago, Bishop Fallows pastor, last Sunday raised the debt of $25,000 which they have been carrying.

Rev. A. A. P. Neel, of the Baltimore Conference, has accepted a call to a Reformed Episcopal church at Kensington, in the suburbs of Philadelphia.

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

The Wilmington Star informs us that Dr. W. W. Lane will establish an infirmary in Wilmington and have it in operation in a very few days.

The extensive sash and blind factory of W. C. Petty, at Bush Hill, was destroyed by fire last night, causing a loss of $6,000 worth of property, on which there was an insurance of $2,000.—Greensboro Patriot.

The 1879 "cattle drive" represents about $18,000,000 and will number 45,000,000 head—Texas 250,000 and Montana and Oregon 100,000 each, besides a large aggregate of smaller fry from various localities.

Governor Jarvis has determined to call an extra session of the Legislature of North Carolina, to meet March 10, to consider certain propositions submitted to that Commonwealth in reference to the purchase of the State's interest in the Western North Carolina Railroad.

There has been a singular trial at Madras respecting the guardianship of the sacred hair of Mohammed. The hair is enclosed in a case called the "Ansaree Shareef," the possession of which carries with it a small pension. Four persons claimed it, two by succession and two by right of a will. One was a woman, and the Judge decided that she could not fulfill the ceremonies connected with it, and so the hair goes to one of the male litigants.

THE OLDEST GRADUATE.

Many of our readers are interested in the University of North Carolina as alumni, or special friends, and for their benefit we give place to the following. We copy from the Raleigh Observer:

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan. 26, 1880.

My Dear Sir: I notice a resolution of the Alumni Association requesting each alumnus of the University to pay $1 to bear the expenses of preparing sketches, &c. Enclosed you will find my contribution.

Our class graduated in 1818, and I believe Bishop Green, Edward J. Mallett and myself are the only survivors. Of the classes of an earlier date I presume none are living.

With the highest esteem,
I am, yours truly,
R. H. MORRISON.

Col. W. L. Saunders, Raleigh, N. C.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 29, 1880.

Dear Sir: Your note of the 26th inst., enclosing $1 under the recent resolution of the University Alumni Association, came duly to hand, and in acknowledging its receipt I trust you will permit me, though personally unknown to you, to thank you for the promptness of your response to the resolution of the association, for, coming from an alumnus at once so venerable and so distinguished as yourself, its effect upon other alumni must be felt speedily and beneficially.

I have, sir, the honor to be,
Very respectfully,
W. L. SAUNDERS,
Sec'y and Treas'r Alumni Association.

To Rev. Dr. Morrison.

The venerable Dr. Morrison is doubtless correct in supposing there is now no living graduate of an older date than himself. Indeed, before his graduation there had been only twenty classes at the University and only 163 graduates. In the class which the distinguished and able divine still affectionately calls "our class," there were fourteen members, and among them names that North Carolina will not willingly let die. Among them were Robert Donaldson, one of the most prominent mannfactnrers and merchants of fifty years ago; General Thomas J. Green, distinguished in the Texan war and father of Colonel Wharton J. Green; Rt. Rev. W. M. Green, Bishop of Mississippi; Arthur J. Hill, of Pittsboro; Hamilton C. Jones, Supreme Court Reporter, one of the best lawyers and inimitable humorists of his day, and father of Colonel H. C. Jones, of Charlotte; Wm. D. Moseley, Governor of Florida; James K. Polk, President of the United States, and Honorable Hugh Waddell, lately deceased.

We sincerely trust the example of Dr. Morrison will be promptly followed by the thousands of junior alumni scattered everywhere over our broad land. It is certainly worthy of all imitation as well in the manner as in the matter of it.

Nothing is uglier than a crooked boot or shoe; straighten them with Lyon's Heel Stiffeners.

PRESBYTERIAL NOTICE.

Presbytery of Mecklenburg will meet at Dallas, Friday, March 19, 1880, at 7 p. m.
R. Z. JOHNSTON, S. Clerk.

The 220th session of the Presbytery of Orange will be held in Washington, N. C., on Wednesday, the 24th of March, 1880, at 7 p. m. F. H. JOHNSTON, Stated. Clerk.

WHEN YOU FEEL A COUGH or bronchial affection creeping on the lungs, take AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and cure it before it becomes incurable

GOOD FOR BABIES.

We are pleased to say that our baby was permanently cured of serious protracted irregularity of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.—The Parents, University ave., Rochester, N. Y. See another column.

HOARSENESS All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

Messrs. Polk Miller & Co:

Vest Pocket Cure is highly esteemed here by the regular Medical Faculty and the people It is excellent for Indigestion and Flatulent Colic—sedative, soporific, tonic, slightly aperient, without nausea.
Rev. R L DABNEY, LL. D, Ham. Sid. Col., Va.

DIED.

☞ Obituary notices must be paid for in advance The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

In Mongomery county, January 24, 1880, of scarlet fever, MAGGIE CHRISTIAN CLARK, aged 6 years and 9 months.

A beautiful child, and much beloved by parents and friends. She was early called from the rough and painful school of earth to the higher school in heaven May the Comforter cheer the sorrowing hearts of those who mourn. S. C. A.

In Chambersburg township, Iredell county, on the 31st of January, Mr. JOHN McHENRY, aged about 81 years.

He had survived all his near relatives: His wife and only child died some years ago. He was universally beloved and respected. A large concourse of people attended his funeral at Fifth Creek church, of which he had long been a member. A sermon was preached on the solemn occasion from Zech. 1:3.

Near Laurinburg, in Richmond county, on the 7th of January, Miss KATIE CARMICHAEL, in the 63rd year of her age. For many years past deceased was, for the most part, an invalid, and at times a great sufferer.

She was for many years a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church. The only fear or dread that she seemed to have in regard to death, was the struggle or agony which might be experienced in the hour of dissolution. But this she did not realize; for when that hour came, she passed away as one going to sleep. Of her we think it may be truly said,

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

WILMINGTON MARKET
DURING WEEK
ENDING FEBRUARY 10.

THE attention of all persons interested is called to the fact that strict personal attention is given to the collection of the necessary information, and the careful preparation of our MARKET REPORT, so as to give a correct general review of transactions and prices, for the week ending each Tuesday morning.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—Price advanced to 38 cents on Wednesday and at these figures held firm till Saturday, when, and since, sales have been at 37 cents.

ROSIN—Market has been steady, but without activity, at $1 20 for Strained and $1 22½ for Good Strained.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—On Wednesday last, after sales had been made at $1 40 for Hard and $2 40 for Yellow Dip, price advanced to $1 55 and $3 55 respectively, and since these figures have been maintained.

TAR—Receipts taken as they come in at $1 10 per barrel.

COTTON—Market has been steady and sales made day by day at 12½ cents per pound for Middling. Very little offering and market closes firm.

CORN—One cargo of 1,800 bushels received by dealer and stored. One cargo of 2,000 bushels sold at 68 cents cash.

TIMBER—Is coming in freely, and sales range from $5 00 for Common to $12 00 for Extra Long. We give sales: one raft Fair Mill at $6 50; one raft do. at $7 00; one do. Good Mill at $8 25; one do. do. $9 50; two do. do. Prime Mill at $10 00; one do. do. at $11 00; one do. extra long at $12 00.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

COOK'S
Grand Excursions to EUROPE.
1880 FOR THE SUMMER OF 1880
ANNUAL MAY PARTY.
GRAND ANNUAL EDUCATIONAL PARTY.
ANNUAL MIDSUMMER PARTY.
Pamplet containing full particulars, with MAP OF EUROPE, sent free on application.
Tourist Tickets, for Independent Travelers, by all routes.
Cook's Excursionist contains fares for over 1,000 tours; by mail, 10 cents.
Address, THOMAS COOK & SON,
261 Broadway, New York; P. O. 4197.
feb 11 631-6t

ELECTRICITY is Life Dr. DYE'S Galvanic Battery and Absorption Pad cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, all Nervous, Liver and Stomach diseases by Absorption, while it renews vitality, aids nature, strengthens the nerves, makes the weak strong by its astonishing electrical powers. It is safe, pleasant, certain, sure. Price only $. Sent free by mail. For circulars, testimonials, &c, address DYE BATTERY and PAD CO., Box 679, Brattleboro, Vt.
feb 11 631-2t

GEMS OF POETRY: being Choice Selections from the Poets, for use in Albums, Valentines, Letter-writing, etc. 64 pages with cover. Full of wit, wisdom and tender sentiment. Sent postpaid, for only 15 cts. Our Illustrated Catalogue of Books, Pictures, etc., FREE.
PATTON & CO., 47 Barclay St., New York.
feb 11 631-cow 3w

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE
PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE WORLD
It contains 672 fine historical engravings and 1260 large double-column pages, and is the most complete History of the World ever published It sells at sight. Send for specimen pages and extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book.
Address, NATIONAL PUBLISHING Co.,
Philadelphia, Pa.
feb 11 631-4t

MY WIFE
says: If you want to get POSTED upon BUYING FURNITURE get an Illustrated Price List of the BROOKLYN FURNITURE CO, 557 to 574 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y. ☞ Send for one, mailed FREE.
feb 11 631-4t

EMPLOYMENT—LOCAL or Traveling Also SALARY per month. All EXPENSES advanced. WAGES promptly paid. SLOAN & Co., 306 George St. Cincinnati, O.

BAND INSTRUMENT CATALOGUE.
Our new catalogues of Band Instruments, Music, Suits, Caps, Belts, Pouches, Pompons, Drum Majors' Staffs and Hats, Epaulets, Cord, Lamps, Stands, and Outfits contains 85 pages of information for musicians. Mailed Free. Address
LYON & HEALY, 162 State St., Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED for THE SUMMIT
STOVE PIPE SHELF
And Utensil Stand
The most convenient article ever offered to Housekeepers. One Agent made $164.65 in 12 days; another $83 in 3 days; another $15 in 1 day. Freight charges to Agents Free. For Circulars, address
R. S. HARTZELL & CO.,
No. 236 South Third Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

IMPROVE Your Long Evenings
Make Money and
Beautify Your Homes
With a Scroll Saw
Will pay for itself in a week. I keep in stock all kinds of Scroll Saws, the Mully, Demas, Rogers, Lester, Burdett, Fleetwood, etc., and sell at manufacturers' prices. Send for my large illustrated catalogue and price-list of Scroll Saws, Carving Tools, Mechanics' and Machinists' Tools, Clocks, Fancy Woods, Designs, Archery, etc. If I am the oldest dealer in these goods in the U. S. My trade extends to all civilized countries in the world, and I never recommend poor goods. ☞New edition of Hope's Manual of Scroll Sawing (ready Jan. 20th) contains 100 pp., has 70 full size hand-some designs, and should be in the hands of every Scroll Sawyer. Price, 15 cts., postpaid.
JOHN WILKINSON, Importer and Manufacturer,
No. 77 State Street, Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED—Best Book—Most Money
THE COMPLETE HOME
How to Keep House, Cook, Dress, Care for Sick, Manage Children, Treat Accidents, Entertain Company, and make Home Beautiful and Happy.
Endorsed by Clergy, Scholars and the Press:
"Valuable and interesting."—Rev. Dr. WYLIE.
"Can not fail to do good."—J. G. WHITTIER.
"Full of good sense."—PRESBYTERIAN.
Fine paper, Clear type, Beautiful binding, Low price, Sells every where. Full description and terms free, Address
J. C. McCURDY & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Black Cashmeres
—AND—
BLACK ALPACA.
The Greatest Bargains in BLACK DRESS GOODS
in the Market.
HENRIETTA CLOTHS,
AUSTALIAN CRAPES, AND
THE FINEST ASSORTMENT OF BLACK MOHAIRS AND BRILLIANTINES.
Brocaded and Figured Lustres,
BLACK SILKS:
GROS DeRHINE, GROS GRAIN—a special bargain in these. TRIMMING SILKS—all colors Velvets, Plain, Embossed, Fancy Plushes, &c, &c.

EMBROIDERIES:
We have always kept the largest variety and richest assortment, and sold more of these than any other house in the City, and we now offer the most complete line of Hamburg, Mull Swiss
—AND—
NAINSOOK EDGINGS
AND INSERTIONS,
Wide and Narrow, ever offered in Raleigh.
COTTON DIAPERS;
One Hundred and Fifty Pieces Just Received.
YEARGAN, PETTY & CO.,
No. 30 Fayetteville Street, Raleigh, N. C.

ARE YOU SUFFERING
With Cancer, Scrofula, Epilepsy, and Disease of the Lungs, Dyspepsia, or any other form of Chronic, Long-Standing or Obscure Disease? If so, send for my pamphlet.
"THE WAY TO HEALTH."
Free of Charge. If also, you will give me an idea of the nature of your disease, I will send you a list of questions, which if you will answer and return to me I will give you my opinion of your case, prospect of cure, &c., free, except a postage stamp for the answer.
Address E. H. GREENE, M. D., Charlotte, N. C.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE ORPHANS' FRIEND,
(Organ of the Orphan Asylum at Oxford, and of the Grand Lodge of Masons in North Carolina.)
IS PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, AT
ONE DOLLAR A YEAR!
It is designed to promote the Entertainment, Instruction and
INTERESTS OF THE YOUNG.
Especially those deprived of the benefits of parental and scholastic training. It also seeks to increase the soul-growth of the prosperous by suggesting proper objects of charity, and true channels of benevolence, in order that they may, by doing good to others, enlarge their own hearts and extend the horizon of their human sympathies, as they ascend to a higher plane of Christian observation. Address
ORPHANS' FRIEND,
361 feb 11-tf OXFORD, N. C.

In The Sick Room.
A SERIES OF PAPERS ON
DOMESTIC NURSING,
By MISS E. R. SCOVILL, of the Massachusetts General Hpspital, in
THE CHRISTIAN UNION.
27 Park Place, New York.
Per annum, $3; clergymen, $2.50; sample copies free.

WHAT IS THE USE
In advertising to give away articles for half their actual value, when every benefits person knows that this is an impossibility? For this reason we have decided to do away with all premiums to accompany a 3 months' subscription to our paper, and make it unvarying offer:
For the small sum of 10c. we will send to any address, for 3 months on the Hearth and Home, The Cricket on the Hearth, a Christmas Story Extraordinary, by Charles Dickens. Price, 10 cents. Also The Cricket Almost Interesting paper for the whole family published. It is an old-established and popular Story Paper of 16 pages (size of Harper's Weekly), and is filled with the most useful and entertaining literary matter of all kinds. Costs $2 per year; subscription with choice of 4 useful and beautiful premiums. 3 months for only 10 cts.; your subscription commencing with the issue containing the opening chapters of our new and brilliant Serial Story for 1880. Big trial subscription list to different address, sent at one time, 20c., 13 for $1. Write or send to ROGER & WILSON, Publishers, 245 Broadway, N. Y.

1880.
WHO Shall be President?
Who Shall be Governor?
Subscribe for the
RALEIGH OBSERVER,
A Democratic Newspaper,
"The Old Reliable,"
SAMUEL A. ASHE, Editor and Owner.
Daily, per annum, $6. Weekly, per annum, $2.
Postmasters and agents allowed a liberal commission on all new subscribers they may obtain for THE OBSERVER.

The Editor of THE OBSERVER requests his friends in the various parts of the State to interest themselves in getting up clubs and otherwise extending the circulation and influence of THE OBSERVER during the campaign year of 1880. By their assistance he hopes to make THE OBSERVER still more acceptable and more useful to the cause of Democracy.
jan 21 4t

D'ROSSET & NORTHROP,
FIRE AND MARINE
INSURANCE AGENTS,
REPRESENTING { Standard American AND English Companies.
28 North Water Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
nov 19 619-tf

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
Charlotte, N. C.
KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will Compete in Prices,
—EITHER—
WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,
With any Market.
All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods
VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.
We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.
BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 185.

COTTON!
IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants
For the Sale of Cotton,
Which they are prepared to do
On the Most Economical Charges.
They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.
ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,
Wilmington, N. C.
September 3d, 1879. 608

CHEESE.
200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,
For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

HOMES
in Western Arkansas.
The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway offer for sale the best LANDS in the West or South-West, with healthy climate, fertile soil, and not affected by drouth. Easy terms of sale. Full information
Apply to W. D. SLACK, Land Com'r
Little Rock, Ark.
dec 24 624-13t

1880.
TRY OUR
New Crop Cuba Molasses.
We have received the agency again for the well-known and popular
L. & R. GUANO,
Which we offer, on Crop Time,
For 425 Lbs. Middling Cotton.
Send in your orders.
BRYAN & CO.
Jonesboro, N C., Jan, 30, 1880
feb 4 630 8t

REDUCTION! REDUCTION!
WE HAVING THIS DAY REDUCED THE prices of our Cloaks and Dalmans
so low that it will be to the interest of everybody wanting one to look at our stock before purchasing. Our stock is very large, and we are
WE ARE DETERMINED TO SELL THEM!
You can also find a large stock of
GENT'S AND YOUTHS' CHOTHING
Ladies' and Gent's Underwear, Hosiery, Boots and Shoes, to be sold out at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES!
Give us a call.
T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opposite Charlotte Hotel.
feb 4 630-1t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THOS. A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.
McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.
Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 598 1y.

CATARRH SPEEDILY and Absolutely CURED in every case. No pay till cured. For circulars explaining method of treatment, &c., address DR. J. K. ROSS, Centreville, Ind.
Jan 21 628-4t

SALT
AND
GUANO.
5,000 Sacks
LIVERPOOL SALT,
6,500 Sacks
Peruvian Guano,
For sale low by
TROHISON.
PRESBYTERIAN
[illegible] deal with
J. MOTT,
—Dealer in—
BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.
Keeps on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain his reputation in this regard. I will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,
W. J. MOTT,
North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.
P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult me either by mail or in person.
nov 19 619-tf

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.
THE SPRING TERM of 1880 opens Thursday, January 15. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks.
Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.
Address MRS E. N. GRANT, Principal.
feb 20 628-1y

PEACE INSTITUTE,
For Young Ladies,
RALEIGH, N. C.
THE Spring term commences on the 16th of January 1880, and closes the 1st of June following. The total expense of a boarding pupil for one term is $120, payable in advance. This amount will include board, with washing, fuel, lights, furnished room and servant's attendance, tuition in English branches and Latin, Calisthenics. Text Books and Stationery used for school purposes For $150 all the above, with Instrumental Music and use of Piano. For circular containing particulars as to terms, Course of Study, &c, address
REV. R. BURWELL & SON,
dec 24 624-3m Raleigh, N. C.

AGENTS, READ THIS
We will pay Agents a salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. No more what or any. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.
nov 19 619-6m

EGG MACHINES.
BROWN LEGHORNS
Mature Earlier.
Lay Earlier.
Produce More Eggs.
Are Most Happy.
Are Most Profitable.
Of All Fowls.

HALL & PEARSALL
OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of
100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.
sep 3 - 608-tf

THE MARVEL COPYIST.
NO COPYING PRESS REQUIRED. Most simple process invented. One hundred copies of circulars, letters, price-lists, plans, drawings, music, church reports, Sunday school lessons, &c., taken from a single writing. This process can be repeated for thousands of copies. Copies made on any kind of paper; also on linen, leather, &c Nothing to get out of order. Agents wanted. Note size $1 50; Letter, $3 00; Legal, $4.00; Postal, $1 00.
A. S. CALDWELL,
Jan 14 Charlotte, N. C. 627-4t

BETHEL ACADEMY,
DAVIDSON COLLEGE (P. O.) N. C.
Rev. L. K. GLASGOW, A. M. Principal.
Miss ELLA W. FLEMING, Assistant.
NINTH semi-annual session begins January 26, 1880. Boarders in Principal's family pay in advance for all expense except books, per quarter (10 weeks) $30.
For circulars containing testimonials from well-known educators and from patrons, address the Principal. dec 31-tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.
WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.
Our Trimming Department is Complete,
and comprises the leading styles.
Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.
We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.
Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.
The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.
N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.
nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.
THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the
Latest and Most Approved Style.
To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.
"First Come, First Served."
MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
apl 28-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER.
Send your orders by mail.

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.
BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.
LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.
The Remington Sewing Machine,
A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.
Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.
Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.
GEO. A. PECK.
25 South Front Street.
dec 10 622-tf

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. 24 Outfits free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., 216 Fulton St. N. Y.
oct 8 618-26t

THE DEAF HEAR
THROUGH THE TEETH!
PERFECTLY, all Ordinary Conversation, Lectures, Concerts, &c., by the use of the Dentaphone, a wonderful New Invention. THE DENTAPHONE, for remarkable purity of tone in the Lecture Room or the Deaf and Dumb—See New York Herald, Sept. 28, Christian Standard, Sept. 27, etc. It disgraces all Ear-trumpets. Is worn as an ordinary Watch. Send for our FREE pamphlet. Address AMERICAN DENTAPHONE CO., 287 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio
dec 24 624-13t

FITS CURED FROM 1 to 3 Days PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. Dr. H. G. ROOT, 186 Pearl Street, New York.
nov 19 619-13t

SELECT BOARDING
AND
DAY SCHOOL,
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.
Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.
THE SPRING TERM of 1880 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE Board and Tuition $100.
Circulars forwarded on application.
466-2 jan 1, '79

AGENTS WANTED For the handsomest and CHEAPEST BIBLES Ever furnished Agents. Extra Terms and Large CASH PREMIUMS
FORSHEE & McMAKIN, Cincinnati, O.
oct 8 618-13teow

BLYMYER M'F'G CO.
BELLS.
Church, School, Fire-alarm, Plantation, low-priced, warranted. Catalogue with 1500 testimonials, prices, etc., sent free.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.
dec 3 621-cow-1y

Sawing off a Log,
Easy and Fast.
Our latest improved sawing machine cuts off a 2-foot log in 2 minutes. A $100 PRESENT will be given to two men who can saw as much in the old way, as one man can with this machine. Circulars sent free. W. GILES, 741 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
Jan 14 627-4teow

Eggs from Premium Stock, $2 for 13. Can supply Partridge and White Cochin, Dark Brahma, Imp. P. Rock, White Leghorn and Bronze Turkey Eggs, from Best Strains. Stock acclimated. Order early, and save heavy express charges by ordering from
A. S. CALDWELL,
Jan 14 Charlotte, N. C. 627-4t

FOUND AT LAST!
"DOBYNS' SURE CURE!"
Has NEVER Failed to CURE CATARRH
Neuralgic and Nervous Headache,
COLD IN THE HEAD, STOPPAGE OF THE NASAL PASSAGES, DEAFNESS, DIZZINESS, DIMNESS OF SIGHT, AND ALL KINDRED COMPLAINTS ARISING FROM NEGLECTED COLDS AND EXPOSURE.
It is used as a Snuff and is always ready and convenient for use, without extra trouble or additional expense. Contains no injurious ingredients; children of five years may use it with perfect safety. One box will last one month, and has frequently effected a complete cure.
Something Impostors can not and do not Show
To convince the poor sufferer that we are honest and thoroughly responsible for all statements made by us, we append the following:
TO THE AFFLICTED:—We have known A. T. Mitchell and Sam T. Dobyns, who compose the firm of Dobyns & Mitchell, and are proprietors of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" for a number of years. We know them to be gentlemen in whose honor and integrity implicit confidence can be placed; and we unhesitatingly say that the patrons of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" can rest assured that said firm are pecuniarily good and responsible for, and will faithfully carry out, any and all promises made by them. C. Alexander, Cashier Northern Bank, Paris, Ky.; Henry Speers, Cashier Agricultural Bank, Paris, Ky.; Matt Turney, Judge of the Bourbon Co. Court; J. M. Hughes, Clerk of the Bourbon County Court.
Many Testimonials as to its great virtues and curative powers have been received, but the remedy itself is its best recommendation.
The Late ELD. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,
The gifted evangelist, and earnest, true-hearted Christian gentleman, says of this great Remedy, in the American Christian Review, of October 28th, 1879:
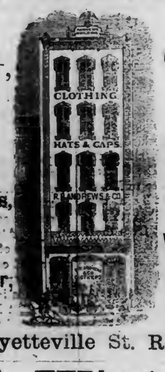
"We call attention to 'DOBYNS' SURE CURE' as a voluntary thing, and not for pay. We have been troubled with Catarrh of the head for the last ten years, and now, after using the 'SURE CURE' about three months, can truly say that we feel about free from the entire trouble in the head. We have also given the 'SURE CURE' to others—as we have been in public nearly all the time—and it has invariably given relief."
"I know that I am doing a public favor to the thousands who are suffering from Catarrh in recommending my testimonial in its value." (Elder) W. K. PENDLETON, Pres. Bethany College, W. Va.—Sept. 9, 1879.
"It will afford me unfeigned pleasure to recommend your 'SURE CURE' to my friends." (Elder) ROBERT GRAHAM, Prin. Collegiate Institute, Lexington, Ky.—Sept. 14, 1879.
"I have been using your 'SURE CURE,' and it will do all you claim for it. I recommend it wherever I go." (Elder) D. T. WRIGHT, Chillicothe, Mo.—Nov. 4, 1879.
"Believing in its excellency, as I do, I shall recommend it everywhere I go." (Rev.) W. H. MILBURN, Jacksonville, Ill.—Oct. 4, 1879.
"I have given your 'SURE CURE' a thorough trial, and am now ready to personally recommend it." (Elder) C. C. CLINE, State Sunday School Evangelist, Louisville, Ky.—Nov 17, 1879.
"Five years ago I paid a Cincinnati Physician fifty dollars for treating me, that which your dollar box has already completely mastered. I advise the afflicted to send on for the 'SURE CURE' at once."
THOMAS MUNNELL, Mt. Sterling, Ky.—Oct. 9, 1879.
OVER 18,000 SUCH TESTIMONIALS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED by us, and will be cheerfully shown to anyone.
OUR TERMS:—We express or mail "DOBYNS' SURE CURE" to any part of the United States for One Dollar per Single Box, or three Boxes for Two Dollars. Druggists and dealers will be furnished with wholesale price list on application.
In ordering, please write your Name, Post-office, County, and State PLAINLY, and send money by Post-office Money Order on Paris, Ky., or by Registered Letters. We will not be responsible for money sent in any other way. Address all orders to the Proprietors. ☞Circulars free to all applicants.
DOBYNS & MITCHELL, North Middletown, Bourbon County, Ky.

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.
LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.
Children's Merino Under Suits---A great comfort and convenience.
CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.
LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP, } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.
PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,
In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.
A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.
OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.
Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.
dec 3 621-1y

THE PACIFIC
GUANO COMPANY.
This Company, with a capital of $1,000,000, was chartered in 1865.
The stock was taken by a few of the largest and wealthiest merchants in Boston and New York, who still direct and control the Company.
The Works, situated at Woods' Holl, Mass., and Charleston, S. C., are the largest and most complete of the kind in the United States.
The Company owns several large deposits of Phosphate, which it works, and having acid chambers, manufactures its own Oil of Vitrol.
The Company employs and consults with several of the leading chemists and most progressive vegetable physiologists in the country.
With all these advantages—viz: long experience, ample capital, large works, splendid machinery, extensive deposits, and the best scientific ability, the Company can and does offer a Fertilizer at the lowest possible price.
By reason of the liberal policy of the Company, as well as the intrinsic value of its principal brand, SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO has become, unquestionably, the most popular Fertilizer in the United States, its sale extending from Maine to Texas.
It would be a work of superogation for us to do more than simply call attention to the fact that SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO will be offered this (the fifteenth Spring) season for sale at all points in North Carolina, because there is no manufactured Guano as long, as widely, and certainly none more favorably known, than this brand.
We therefore will devote but a few lines to a description of this popular article, preferring that others should testify from their own practical experience as to its value.
It is proper, however, that we should call attention to a comparative analysis of Fertilizers sold in North Carolina, published in 1878, by Prof. Ledoux, the State Chemist of North Carolina, who places SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO among the very highest grades known.
Such an endorsement of SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO, confirmed as it is by Hon. L. L. Polk, the Commissioner of Agriculture, under whose auspices the analysis was published, is certainly worthy of note.
This year SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO is equal, in every respect, to what it was in 1879.
It is manufactured by the same Company, under the same formula, using the same materials, and hence must give the same splendid analysis as that published by Prof. Ledoux.
It is in fine physical condition.
It is packed in new, clean bags, each bag containing 200 pounds.
The analysis is stenciled on each bag, as required by law.

For Sale By
Whiteville Wine Company, Whiteville.
Louis T. Hicks, - - Faisons.
O. Hicks, Agt. - - Mount Olive.
Daniel Bowden, - - Bowden's.
T. B. Pierce, - - Warsaw.
A. D. Black, - - Kenansville.
J. D. Rogers, - - Fair Bluff.
R. M. Gaddy, - - - Mullins.
L. L. MacLaurin & Sons, McLaurin's Mills.
Everett Brothers & Gill, Laurinburg.
MacRae Brothers, Shoe Heel.
AND BY
ALEXANDER SPRUNT & SON.,
General Agents,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
feb 4 630-2m

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1817.) S. W. WHITING.
R. B. ANDREWS & CO.
Men and Boys CLOTHING, Dress Shirts, Cuffs, TIES, SCARFS, Half Hose, Suspenders, Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Underwear, Trunks, Valises, &c.



Extra Large Sizes CLOTHING, A Specialty.
HATS AND CAPS, A Large Assortment.
We give special attention to orders from a distance.
LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.
NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh. N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods
—AT—
M. M. KATZ'S,
36 MARKET STREET.
BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.
Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.
DRESS GOODS.—Satin Melange, Cashmere Soie, Brocade Persan, Persan Raye, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.
MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab DE'e, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.
CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS, Trimmings; Silk Grass and Chencil Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.
MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c, &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to oct 22 M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

NEW BOOKS
For Sunday School and Ministers Libraries. Send for Catalogue containing names of over 1200 Approved Books.
The only safe way to select books for your
SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES
Is to order those which have been read and approved by some competent person.
Our DISCOUNT to MINISTERS and SUNDAY SCHOOLS is the largest offered by any Publisher or Bookseller in the United States.
Address orders for all Sunday School Supplies to
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va. Or, 207 N. 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN.

FOR THE FAMILY.

Baby Years.

BY GEORGE BIRDSEYE.

Ah, how every little cheers,
In the careless baby years!
Troubles come and troubles go
Like a whirl of sunny snow,
Every trifle gives delight,
Ever new and ever bright;
Yet how slight a thing can grieve
Till it sympathy receive:
Then the smiles break out again,
As though pain had never been.

Sad that age should e'er destroy
Such sweet innocence and joy,
Such pure faith and confidence
Free from hard experience.
All their dainty, winning ways,
At their labor, at their plays,
Soon must change and they must act
In the waiting world of fact.
Be the world that they shall see
Kinder than was mine to me!

—Selected.

A Boy's Last Hymn in a Garret.

A friend of mine, seeking for objects of charity, got into the upper room of a tenement house. It was vacant. He saw a ladder pushed through the ceiling. Thinking that perhaps some poor creature had crept up there, he climbed the ladder, drew himself through the hole, and found himself under the rafters. There was no light but that which came through a bull's eye in place of a tile. Soon he saw a heap of chips and shavings, and on them a boy about ten years old.

"Boy, what are you doing here?"

"Hush! don't tell anybody, please, sir."

"What are you doing here?"

"Hush! don't tell anybody, please sir."

"What are you doing here?"

"Hush! don't tell anybody, sir; I'm a-hiding."

"What are you hiding from?"

"Don't tell anybody, please sir."

"Where's your mother?"

"Please sir, mother's dead."

"Where's your father?"

"Hush! don't tell him, don't tell him! but look here!" he turned himself on his face, and through the rags of his jacket and shirt my friend saw that the boy's flesh was bruised and his skin broken."

"Why, my boy, who beat you like that?"

"Father did, sir!"

"What did he beat you like that for?"

"Father got drunk, sir, and beat me 'cos I wouldn't steal!"

"Did you ever steal?"

"Yes, sir; I was a street thief once!"

"And why don't you steal any more?"

"P'ease, sir, I went to the mission school and they told me there of God, and of heaven, and of Jesus; and they taught me 'Thou shalt not steal,' and I'll never steal again if my father kills me for it. But please, sir, don't tell him."

"My boy, you must not stay here; you'll die. Now you wait patiently here for a little time; I'm going away to see a lady. We will get a better place for you than this."

"Thank you, sir; but please, sir, would you like to hear me sing a little hymn?"

Bruised, battered, forlorn, friendless, motherless, hiding away from an infuriated father, he had a little hymn to sing.

"Yes, I will hear you sing your little hymn." He raised himself on his elbow and then sang:

"Gentle Jesus, meek and mild,
Look upon a little child;
Pity my simplicity,
Suffer me to come to Thee.

"Fain I would to Thee be brought,
Gracious Lord, forbid it not,
In the kingdom of Thy grace
Give a little child a place.

That's the little hymn, sir; good-bye."

The gentleman went away, came back again in less than two hours, and climbed the ladder. There were the chips, and there were the shavings, and there was the boy, with one hand by his side, and the other tucked in his bosom underneath the little ragged shirt—dead.—London Christian.

The Man in The Moon.

Many years ago, when the Professor was younger than he is now, he used to look up at the moon and wonder what the queer-looking figure might be that seemed to inhabit the bright yellow disc. When he asked what it was, people would say, 'Oh, that's the man in the moon," as though that settled the matter and it wasn't necessary to say anything more about it; and so he was left to puzzle it out: at one time discovering a man with a bundle of sticks across his shoulder, and another time a great staring face looking down upon the world like one of the pumpkin lanterns which boys in the country proudly exhibit on dark nights. At that time the Professor did not know that in every age of the world and in nearly every nation other children besides himself had been curious about this matter, and that innumerable stories had been invented to satisfy their curiosity.

One of these stories, perhaps the most ancient, relates that the man in the moon is the man who was found by Moses gathering sticks on the Sabbath, and that as a punishment for his crime he was condemned to dwell in the moon until the end of all things. The German legend, which does not, however, refer to Moses, tells that the faggot bearer was met by a man who said to him: "Do you know that this is Sunday on earth, when all must rest from their labors?"

"Sunday on earth or Monday in heaven, it is all one to me," said the wood-cutter.

"Then bear your bundle forever," answered the other, "and as you value not Sunday on earth you shall be a perpetual moon-day in heaven; and you shall stand for eternity in the moon, a warning to all Sabbath-breakers."

So the man was caught up with his sticks into the moon, where he stands yet.

This story with variations is told in all countries. Even the poets allude to it. Chaucer speaks of the man as,

"Bering a bush of thornis on his back
Which for his theft might clim'e no'er the heaven."

Shakespeare, in the "Midsummer Night's Dream," makes Quince the Carpenter say, "One must come in with a bundle of thorns and a lantern and say he comes in to disfigure or to present the person of Moonshine." And an old poet of the twelfth century named Necham, who wrote in Latin, says,

"See the rustic in the moon,
How his bundle weighs him down;
Thus his sticks the truth reveal,
It never profits man to steal."

The idea of the moon as a thief prevailed also among the Swedes, who believed that the figures in the moon were those of two children who had been caught up from the earth with their bucket in which they had been drawing water from the well Byrgir.

It would be easy, you see, for people to imagine that when the moon grew old and the figures disappeared they had tumbled down a hill, or gone almost anywhere else out of sight.

It was not until Galileo invented the telescope and turned it upon the moon that all these ridiculous fancies about the person who was supposed to inhabit it were blown away. What people's excited imaginations had for thousands of years magnified—or, to speak more correctly, dwarfed—into a human face or a man with sticks, proved to be mountains and pits and craters on the rugged surface of the planet, lit up here with the sunlight and throwing in another place the deepest and blackest shadows.

Wise men, to be sure, had anticipated something of this sort, and their idea was that the dark places were seas; whereas the telescope showed that there was not a drop of water anywhere on the moon. And yet the wise men were not far out of the way, for the telescope showed also that the dark places were the beds of seas where probably the waters once rolled just as they do now upon the earth. Indeed the moon is nothing more nor less than a dried up earth, and if the olass wants to know how this planet of ours would look if the fires were all gone out inside and the waters all drained off outside, let them take a look at the moon through a good telescope.

What will you see? Well, if you have fancied a face in the moon you will find the eyes to be two of these great dark pits, the nose to be a mountain range between them, and the mouth to be another gaping pit, called by astronomers the Sea of Clouds. Besides these you will see other pits out of which rise great mountains, and which are supposed to be craters of extinct volcanoes. Of course, seen through the telescope all resemblence to a face will disappear, and unless the telescope is very large it will require a considerable effort of imagination to make pits out of the dark spots and mountains out of the bright ones. If the telescope is a good one, however, you will not only be able to distinguish these features but you can look down into the pits, which are thousands of feet deep, and see the immense rocks and bowlders with which the floor is strewn. The best telescopes bring the moon, which is really 242,000 miles distant, within 120 miles; that is to say, through one of these glasses a mountain in the moon 5,000 or 6,000 feet high will seem about as large as the White Mountains when looked at by the unassisted eye from the Catskill Mountain House. That is about as close a comparison as the Professor is able to make.

Some of the mountains in the moon, though, are much higher than that. One is calculated to be 16,000 feet high, and the astronomers think they have discovered one which is not less than 23,000 feet high. On the whole, considering how bleak and barren the planet is, and that it has no air, water or vegetation, and, so far as discovered, no inhabitants, the Professor thinks he would very much prefer living on the earth.—Prof. Chair in Christian Union.

How to Love God.

In a beautiful village a boy about ten years old lay very sick, drawing near to death, and very sad. He was joint heir, with an only brother, to a great estate, and the inheritance was just about coming into his possession, but it was not the loss of this that made him sad. He was a dying boy, and his heart longed for a treasure which he knew had never been his, and which was worth more to him now than all the gold of all the western mines.

One day I came into his room. I sat down by him, took his hand, and, looking in his troubled face, asked him what made him so sad.

"Uncle," said he, "I want to love God. Won't you tell me how to love God?"

I cannot describe the piteous tones in which he said these words, and the look of trouble which he gave me. I said to him:

"My boy, you must trust God first, and then you will love Him without trying to at all."

With a surprised look he exclaimed:

"What did you say?".

I repeated the exact words, and I shall never forget how his large hazel eyes opened on me, and his cheek flushed as he slowly said:

"Well, I never knew that before. I always thought that I must love God first before I had any right to trust Him."

"No, my dear boy," I answered, "God wants us to trust Him; that is what Jesus asks to do first of all, and He knows that as soon as we trust Him we shall begin to love Him. That is the way to love God, to put your trust in Him first of all."

Then I spoke to him of the Lord Jesus, and how God sent Him that we might believe in Him, and how, all through His life, He tried to win the trust of men; how grieved He was when men would not believe in Him, and how every one who believed came to love without trying to love at all.

He drank in all the truth, and, simply saying, "I will trust Jesus now," without an effort put his young soul in Christ's hands that very hour, and came into that peace of God which passeth understanding, and lived in it calmly and sweetly to the end. None of all the loving friends who watched over him during the remaining weeks of his life doubted that the dear boy had learned to love God without trying to, and that dying he went to Him whom not having seen he had loved.—Canada Presbyterian.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Prosperous France.

France is affording fresh proof that she is one of the most wonderful nations on the face of the earth. The disasters of the Franco-Prussian war, and the payment of five milliards of francs as the further penalty for entering upon that war, would have crippled an ordinary nation. But France is not an ordinary one, and the result is that she has not only cast off her burden, but contemplates an outlay in internal improvements such as the most prosperous country could alone entertain. It will be remembered that M. de Freycinet, the new Prime Minister of France, before leaving his old department, drew up an elaborate report embodying a gigantic scheme for the creation, extension, and union of railways and canals throughout the country. The estimated cost of these improvements is nine milliards of francs, or £360,000,000 sterling; but France is not deterred thereby, and in twelve years the scheme is to be worked out in its entirety. Already France is noted for the completeness of her railway system, which, with her river and canals, afford a means of communication apparently leaving but little to be desired; but she is impressed with the belief that improvement is possible, and she is going to add 16,000 miles to her railways, and 900 miles to her rivers and canal. This fresh burst of enterprise on the part of France can have but one effect, and that is increased prosperity in the great industries already stirred into activity by the demands of India, America, and the colonies. Rumor is already busy, says our excellent English contemporary Capital and Labor, with the names of English firms about to contract with the French Government, while the iron and steel in America and Belgium must also benefit.—Scientific American.

Seeds.

At the last meeting of the British Association Sir John Lubbock read a very interesting paper on seeds. He commenced by calling attention to the difference presented by seeds, some being large, some small, some covered with hooks, some provided with heirs, some smooth, some sticky, etc. He gave the reasons of these peculiarities, and then spoke of the modes of dispersion, by means of which seeds secured a sort of natural rotation of crops, and in other cases were enabled to rectify their frontiers. Some plants actually threw their seeds, some were transported by the wind, and many were provided with a wing which caught the wind. Dispersion was also effected by the agency of animals. This means was divided into two classes, where seeds adhered to animals by hooks, and where the same purpose was effected by sticky glands. The next point touched upon was that seeds found themselves in spots suitable for growth. Most seeds germinated on the ground, but there were instances, as the mistletoe, where they were parasitic on trees. Such seeds were imbedded in a viscid substance, so that if dropped by a bird on a bough they adhered to it. In some cases plants buried their own seeds, and in other instances the seeds buried themselves, the means by which these processes were effected being fully explained by Sir John, who in conclusion called attention to mimicking seeds, such as the scorpiurus, the pods of which did not open, but looked so exactly like worms that birds were induced to peck at them and thus free the seeds. That this was the purpose of the resemblence he would not assert, but he threw it out as a matter for consideration.

Scottish Songs.

Every way you take them—in authorship, in sentiment, in tone, in language—they are the creation and property of the people. And if educated men and high-born ladies, and even some of Scotland's kings, have added to the store, it was only because they had lived familiarly among the peasantry, felt as they felt, and spoken their language that they were enabled to sing strains that their country's heart would not disown. For the whole character of these melodies, various as they are, is so peculiar and so pronounced that the smallest foreign element introduced, one word out of keeping, grates on the ear and mars the music. Scottish song has both a spirit and a framework of its own, within which it rigorously keeps. Into that framework, these molds, it is wonderful how much deep and tender human-heartedness can be poured. But so entirely unique is the inner spirit, as well as the outward setting, that no one, not even Burns, could stretch it beyond its compass without your being at once aware of a falsetto note. It was the glory of Burns that, taking the old form of Scottish song as his instrument, he was able to elicit from it so much. That Burns was the creator of Scottish song no one would have denied more vehemently than himself. When he appeared, in 1786, as the national poet of his country, the tide of popular taste was running strong in favor of Scottish song. He took up that tide of feeling, or rather he was taken up by it, and he carried it to its height. He was nurtured in a home that was full of song. His mother's memory was stored with old tunes or songs of her country, and she sang them to her eldest boy from his cradle-time all through his boyhood. Amid the multifarious reading of his early years the book he most prized was an old song book, which he carried with him wherever he went, poring over it, he says, as he drove his cart or walked to labor, song by song, verse by verse, carefully distinguishing the true, tender, or sublime from affectation and fustian. Thus he learned his songcraft and his critic-craft together. The earliest poem he composed was in his seventeenth summer, a simple love song in praise of a girl who was his companion as a reaper in the harvest field. The last strain he breathed was from his deathbed in remembrence of some former affection.—J. C. Sharp, in October Atlantic.

The New Cunard Steamer.

Mr. John Burns, one of the proprietors of the Cunard Steamship Company, writes to the London Times:

"It may interest the public to know that my partners and I have just concluded a contract with Messrs. James & George Thompson by which that firm is to build on the Clyde, for our fleet, a screw steamship the size of which will be exceeded only by that of the Great Eastern, while the speed will be greater than that of any ocean steamer afloat. This new vessel will be of 7,500 tons and 10,000 horse power, her dimensions being 500 feet in length, 50 feet in breadth and 41 feet in depth, propelled by inverted direct acting compound engines, with three cylinders and seven oval tubular boilers, having thirty-eight furnaces and 1,000 feet of effective fire grate surface. She will have an extra promenade deck, and will practically be a five-decker, being fitted for 450 first-class and 600 steerage passengers, with accommodation for a crew of 200 officers and men. Her cargo capacity will be equal to 6 500 tons, with 1,700 tons of coal and 1,000 tons of water ballast, having a double bottom on what is called the 'longitudinal and bracket system.'

"This vessel has been designed, after lengthened consideration, to meet the requirements of our traditional service, and we have adopted in every detail of the ship and engines the most advanced scientific improvements compatible with the safe working of so great a vessel. Among the important matters into which we have crucially inquired has been that of the employment of steel instead of iron, and after a practical and thorough examination into the merits of both materials we have adopted steel for the hull and boilers, but under a provision so stringent that every plate, before acceptance, will undergo a severe and rigid test by a qualified surveyer appointed and stationed at the steel manufactory for that special purpose and that the manipulation of the steel by the builders shall be subject to an equally careful supervision by qualified engineers of our own appointment. The steel is to be made on the Siemens-Mattin process, and all rivets as well as plates throughout the ship are to be of steel. The name of the new vessel is to be the Sahara, and she is to be ready for sea in March, 1881."

A Faithful Dog.

Among the ruins of Pompeii and Herculaneum the skeleton of a dog was found stretched over that of a child. It was conjectured, on the discovery, that this dog, from his position, was attempting to save the child when the eruption of Vesuvius was fatal to the city. The opinion was confirmed by the collar which was found, of curious workmanship; its inscription stated that the dog was named Delta, and belonged to a man called Severinus, whose life he had saved on three occasions: first, by dragging him out of the sea when nearly drowned; then by driving off four robbers who attacked him unawares, and lastly, by his destroying a she-wolf, whose cubs he had taken in a grove sacred to Diana, near Herculaneum. Delta afterword attached himself particularly to the only son of Severinus, and would take no food but what he received from the child's hand.—Christian at Work.

SECULAR NEWS.

It is said that the Mexican soldiers' pension bill will pass Congress and be worth $2,000,000 to the South.

A telephone company is to be established, so said, between Louisburg and Franklinton, N. C., and one between Charlotte and Statesville is proposed. The estimated cost of the latter is $2,500.

A graduate of the colored department of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb and Blind has gone to Moulton, Alabama, to take charge of a class of colored deaf mutes there. His name is Wm. A. Cardwell.—Hale's Weekly.

The insect that has been destroying the wheat is pronounced by some farmers to be the Hessian fly. Others say it is too small for this, and that the insect is entirely new to this section.—Statesville Landmark.

J. D. Williams, one of the surfmen of Life-Saving Station No. 22, while out on patrol on the night of the 22d inst., found a corked up cognac brandy bottle. On opening and turning it up a gold dollar dropped therefrom.—Elizabeth City Carolinian.

One night last week the private house of General J. T. Wilder, who keeps a hotel on the top of Roan Mountain, [illegible] Mitchell county, was entered by thieves and robbed of about $200 worth of goods. Among other things taken was a cook stove. No arrests have been made. This was call high if not highway robbery, being several thousand feet above the level of the sea.—Asheville Journal.

A LADY'S WISH.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters, that makes pure rich blood and blooming health. It done it for me, as you observe."

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS

AN ENLARGED VIEW OF THE PAD.

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.

Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs.
Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago, Ill.

THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated American
WORM SPECIFIC

VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale or sometimes colored, with occasional flushes, and a circumscribed redness of one or both cheeks; the eyes have a leaden hue, the pupils dilate; an azure transparent circle is seen along the lower eye-lid; the appetite is variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE
will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY

in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

—:o:—

DR. C. McLANE'S
LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.
As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.
Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.
Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.
Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY
CURATINE
A VEGETABLE MEDICINE FOR THE BLOOD, LIVER & KIDNEYS.

CURATINE, For Blood Diseases.
CURATINE, For Liver Complaints.
CURATINE, For Kidney Diseases.
CURATINE, For Rheumatism.
CURATINE, For Scrofula Diseases.
CURATINE, For Eruptions, Pimples, Blotches, etc.

A medicinal compound of known value—combining in one preparation the curative powers for the evils which produce all diseases of the Blood, the Liver, the Kidneys. Harmless in action and thorough in its effect. It is unexcelled for the cure of all Blood Diseases such as Scrofula, Tumors, Boils, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Rheumatism, Mercurial Poisoning, also Constipation, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Retention of Urine, etc.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR IT.

THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO.
BALTIMORE, Md.

dec 17 c28-eowly

Frontis & Leazar's School,

MOORESVILLE, IREDELL COUNTY, N. C.

S. FRONTIS, A. M., [illegible] Principals.
A. LEAZAR, A. M., [illegible]

The Seventh Session of this School opened Jan 5, 1880, under very favorable auspices, fifty pupils having reported [illegible] enrolled. Greenwell's Grammar School [illegible] instruction in the different departments—Mathematics, [illegible] different Hells. [illegible] Instruction [illegible] tuition $1, $2, $3, $4, and [illegible] according to the degree of advancement [illegible] address

FRONTIS & LEAZAR,
Mooresville, Iredell County, N. C.

67jan14-tf

THOMASVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE, N. C.

THE SPRING TERM WILL BEGIN JANUARY 14, 1880. The new building furnishes additional facilities of a fine Chapel 40x72, Dining Room 40x50 and accommodations for 108 Boarders. A First Class School at Lowest Rates. Pupils taught to speak French and German. Eight Teachers. Board per month $10. Tuition $2 50, $4, and $5. For Catalogue address,

H. W. REINHART,
President.

67jan14 3t

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.

200 Hhds and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses. 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tees Lard. For sale by

KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

50 Gilt, Motto, Lily, Scroll, and Marble Cards, 10 cents. 60 Agents' Samples, 10 cents. U. S. CARD CO., Northford, Ct. dec 31-c26-13t

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.

1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of

BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,

For the purpose of carrying on a

General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,

AT THE OLD STANDS,

5, 7 and 9, North Front Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.

JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 3, 1877.

oct 10 509-

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,

MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,

1879–'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's-day, into two Terms.

The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.

There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:

1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.

A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.

Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.

Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.

For Catalogues and other information apply to

REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D.,
President.

jan 16 523-

PROVERBS.

"Sour stomach, bad breath, indigestion, and headache easily cured by Hop Bitters."

"Study Hop Bitters books, use the medicine, be wise, healthy and happy."

"When life is a drug and you have lost all hope, try Hop Bitters."

"Kidney and urinary trouble is universal, and the only safe and pure remedy is Hop Bitters—rely on it."

"Hop Bitters does not exhaust and destroy, but restores and makes new."

"Ague, biliousness, drowsiness, jaundice, Hop Bitters removes easily."

"Boils, pimples, freckles, rough skin, eruptions, impure blood, Hop Bitters cure."

"Inactive kidneys and urinary organs cause the worst of diseases, and Hop Bitters cures them all."

"More health, sunshine and joy in Hop Bitters than in all other remedies."

Hop Cough Cure and Pain Relief is the best.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS. 69

ALTAFFER & PRICE

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Woodwork and Builder's Hardware.

We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.

Church Windows Doors Pew Ends

CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles!

Factory foot of Walnut St
Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross } Wilmington, N. C.

apl 16 568-1y

H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments. jan 7-6m

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL.

HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF

Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish

Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,

COTTON BAGGING and TIES.

We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.

HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
63-1y

BUY THE BEST.

WE HAVE now on hand finished.

35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.

Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.

Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.

A. A. McKETHAN & SONS,
Fayetteville, N. C.

Oct. 21. 854-t

SALT. SALT. SALT.

21,000 Sacks

Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!

Factory Filled Fine Table.
AND
Liverpool Ground Alum.
Full Weight Guaranteed.

"WILLARD'S,"
NORTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

dec 17 623-tf

TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.

Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings. Machinery of Every Description.

Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.

TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER
The Invention of the Age.

It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape.)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.

JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.

JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.

GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.

We are prepared to execute in the very best style, ALL KINDS OF

PRINTING,

SUCH AS

Business Cards, Bill Heads, Letter and Note Heads, Statements, Drafts, Notes, Checks, Account Sales, Tags, Envelopes, Labels, Bills Lading, Receipts, Notices, Show Cards, Posters, Manifests, Wedding Cards, Visiting Cards, Catalogues, Pamphlets, School Circulars, Reports,

and in fact, every description of

RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING

We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed. Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1,016 Pages. 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. WANTED BRADLEY, GARRETSON & CO., 64 N. 4th St., Phila., Pa.

oct 15 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO

NEW ORGANS $35 up. 10 Stops, 2 Set Golden Tongue Reeds, 6 Octaves, Knee Swells, Walnut Case, warranted 12 years, Stool & Book, $90. New Pianos, Stool, Cover & Book, $163 to $325. Before you buy be sure to write me. Illustrated Newspaper sent Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.

oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.

CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
63 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys' wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.

SAMPLES SENT FREE!

Also, to their

DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT,

Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.

All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 12-1y

TOBACCO.

100 BOXES MANUFACTURED TOBACCO.

SPECIALTIES:
Uncle Ned's Twist.
Queen Bee Plug.
HALL & PEARSALL.

McMILLAN BROS.,

MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN

SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS

15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS FROM 10 TO 20 BBL. CAPACITY.

Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes. Still Doors & Grate bars

As we have four Copper-smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only

Regular and Reliable Establishment

where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing

D. G. McMILLAN, Supt.
feb 12 Fayetteville, N. C.

WORTH & WORTH,

Commission Merchants,

—AND—

DEALERS IN GROCERIES.

HAVE FOR SALE.

2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.
Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.

Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.

Nov. 19 468-1y

ADRIAN & VOLLERS

CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present,

SMOKED BACON,

in hogsheads and boxes,

HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKGS,

Breakfast Strips,

Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,

SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,

Molasses and Syrup

OF ALL KINDS.

FLOUR of all Qualities,

and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries

nov 19 551-12m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
86 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md.

Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies, &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c
mch 26 481-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES

OF THE

GENERAL ASSEMBLY,

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States

THE CLERKS.

Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D., Richmond, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.

President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md

PUBLICATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION.

Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D. D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January.
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September.
6. Education—First Sabbath in November.

WE KEEP

PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR,
FAIRBANK'S LARD
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER,
FINE N. O. SYRUP,

And other Standard articles.

Orders solicited.

HALL & PEARSALL.

$777 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents. Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

The Wilmington Star informs us that Dr. W. Lane will establish an infirmary in Wilmington and have it in operation in a very few days.

The extensive sash and blind factory of W. Perry, at Bush Hill, was destroyed by fire last night, causing a loss of $6,000 worth of property, on which there was an insurance of $2,500.—Greensboro Patriot.

The "cattle drive" represents about 1,500,000 and will number 45,000,000 head of Texas 250,000 and Montana and Oregon 1,000 each, besides a large aggregate of smaller fry from various localities.

Governor Jarvis has determined to call an extra session of the Legislature of North Carolina, to meet March 10, to consider certain propositions submitted to that Commonwealth in reference to the purchase of the State's interest in the Western North Carolina Railroad.

There has been a singular trial at Madras respecting the guardianship of the sacred hair of Mohammed. The hair is enclosed in a case called the "Ansaree Shareef," the possession of which carries with it a small pension. Four persons claimed it, two by succession and two by right of a will. One was a woman, and the Judge decided that she could not fulfill the ceremonies connected with it, and so the hair goes to one of the male litigants.

THE OLDEST GRADUATE.

Many of our readers are interested in the University of North Carolina as alumni, or special friends, and for their benefit we give place to the following. We copy from the Raleigh Observer:

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan. 26, 1880.

My Dear Sir: I notice a resolution of the Alumni Association requesting each alumnus of the University to pay $1 to bear the expenses of preparing sketches, &c. Enclosed you will find my contribution.

Our class graduated in 1818, and I believe Bishop Green, Edward J. Mallett and myself are the only survivors. Of the classes of an earlier date I presume none are living.

With the highest esteem,
I am, yours truly,
R. H. MORRISON.

Col. W. L. Saunders, Raleigh, N. C.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 29, 1880.

Dear Sir: Your note of the 26th inst., enclosing $1 under the recent resolution of the University Alumni Association, came duly to hand, and in acknowledging its receipt I trust you will permit me, though personally unknown to you, to thank you for the prompt response to the resolution of the Association, for, coming from an alumnus at once so venerable and so distinguished as yourself, its effect upon other alumni must be felt speedily and beneficially.

I have, sir, the honor to be,
Very respectfully,
W. L. SAUNDERS,
Sec'y and Treas'r Alumni Association.

To Rev. Dr. Morrison.

The venerable Dr. Morrison is doubtless correct in supposing there is now no living graduate of an older date than himself. Indeed, before his graduation there had been only twenty classes at the University and only 163 graduates. In the class which the distinguished and able divine still affectionately calls "our class," there were fourteen members, and among them names that North Carolina will not willingly let die. Among them were Robert Donaldson, one of the most prominent manufacturers and merchants of fifty years ago; General Thomas J. Green, distinguished in the Texan war and father of Colonel Wharton J. Green; Rt. Rev. W. M. Green, Bishop of Mississippi; Arthur J. Hill, of Pittsboro; Hamilton C. Jones, Supreme Court Reporter, one of the best lawyers and inimitable humorists of his day, and father of Colonel H. C. Jones, of Charlotte; Wm. D. Moseley, Governor of Florida; James K. Polk, President of the United States, and Honorable Hugh Waddell, lately deceased.

We sincerely trust the example of Dr. Morrison will be promptly followed by the thousands of junior alumni scattered everywhere over our broad land. It is certainly worthy of all imitation as well in the manner as in the matter of it.

Nothing is uglier than a crooked boot or shoe; straighten them with Lyon's Heel Stiffeners.

PRESBYTERIAL NOTICE.

Presbytery of Mecklenburg will meet at Dallas, Friday, March 19, 1880, at 7 p. m.
R. Z. JOHNSTON, S. Clerk.

The 220th session of the Presbytery of Orange will be held in Washington, N. C., on Wednesday, the 24th of March, 1880, at 7 p. m. F. H. JOHNSTON, Stated. Clerk.

WHEN YOU FEEL A COUGH or bronchial affection creeping on the lungs, take AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and cure it before it becomes incurable

GOOD FOR BABIES.

We are pleased to say that our baby was permanently cured of serious protracted irregularity of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.—The Parents, University ave., Rochester, N. Y. See another column.

HOARSENESS—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

Messrs. Polk Miller & Co:
Vest Pocket Cure is highly esteemed here by the regular Medical Faculty and the people It is excellent for Indigestion and Flatulent Colic—sedative, saporific, tonic, slightly aperient, without nausea.
Rev. R L DABNEY, LL. D, Ham. Sid. Col., Va.

DIED.

☞Obituary notices must be paid for in advance. The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

In Mongomery county, January 24, 1880, of scarlet fever, MAGGIE CHRISTIAN CLARK, aged 6 years and 9 months.

A beautiful child, and much beloved by parents and friends. She was early called from the rough and painful school of earth to the higher school in heaven May the Comforter cheer the sorrowing hearts of those who mourn. S. C. A.

In Chambersburg township, Iredell county, on the 31st of January, Mr. JOHN McHENRY, aged about 80 years.

He had survived all his near relatives: His wife and only child died some years ago. He was universally beloved and respected. A large concourse of people attended his funeral at Fifth Creek church, of which he had long been a member. A sermon was preached on the solemn occasion from Zech. i: 3.

Near Laurinburg, in Richmond county, on the 7th of January, Miss KATIE CARMICHAEL, in the 33rd year of her age. For many years past deceased was, for the most part, an invalid, and at times a great sufferer.

She was for many years a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church. The only fear or dread that she seemed to have in regard to death, was the struggle or agony which might be experienced in the hour of dissolution. But this she did not realize; for when that hour came, she passed away as one going to sleep. Of her we think it may be truly said,

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

WILMINGTON MARKET
DURING WEEK
ENDING FEBRUARY 10.

THE attention of all persons interested is called to the fact that strict personal attention is given to the collection of the necessary information, and the careful preparation of our MARKET REPORT, so as to give a correct general review of transactions and prices, for the week ending each Tuesday morning.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—Price advanced to 38 cents on Wednesday and at these figures held firm till Saturday, when, and since, sales have been at 37 cents.

ROSIN—Market has been steady, but without activity, at $1 20 for Strained and $1 22½ for Good Strained.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—On Wednesday last, after sales had been made at $1 40 for Hard and $2 40 for Yellow Dip, price advanced to $1 55 and $2 55 respectively, and since these figures have been maintained.

TAR—Receipts taken as they come in at $1 10 per barrel.

COTTON—Market has been steady and sales made day by day at 12⅛ cents per pound for Middling Very little offering and market closes firm.

CORN—One cargo of 1,800 bushels received by dealer and stored. One cargo of 2,000 bushels sold at 68 cents cash.

TIMBER—Is coming in freely, and sales range from $5 00 for Common to $12 00 for Extra Long. We give sales: one raft Fair Mill at $6 50; one raft do. at $7 00; one do. Good Mill at $8 25; one do. do. $9 50; two do. do. Prime Mill at $10 00; one do. do. at $11 00; one do extra long at $12 00.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

COOK'S
Grand Excursions to EUROPE.
1880 FOR THE SUMMER OF 1880
ANNUAL MAY PARTY.
GRAND ANNUAL EDUCATIONAL PARTY.
ANNUAL MIDSUMMER PARTY.
Pamplet containing full particulars, with MAP OF EUROPE, sent free on application.
Tourist Tickets, for Independent Travelers, by all routes.
Cook's Excursionist contains fares for over 1,000 tours; by mail, 10 cents.
Address, THOMAS COOK & SON,
261 Broadway, New York; P. O. 4197.
feb 11 631-6t

ELECTRICITY is Life. Dr. DYE'S Galvanic Battery and Absorption Pad cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, all Nervous, Liver and Stomach diseases by Absorption, while it renews vitality, aids nature, strengthens the nerves, makes the weak strong by its astonishing electrical powers. It is safe, pleasant, certain, sure. Price only $5. Sent free by mail. For circulars, testimonials, &c, address DYE BATTERY and PAD CO., Box 679, Brattleboro, Vt.
feb 11 631-2t

GEMS OF POETRY: being Choice Selections from the Poets, for use in Albums, Valentines, Letter-writing, etc. 64 pages with cover. Full of wit, wisdom and tender sentiment. Sent postpaid, for only 15 cts. Our Illustrated Catalogue of Books, Pictures, etc., FREE.
PATTON & CO., 47 Barclay St., New York.
feb 11 631-eow 3w

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE
PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE WORLD
It contains 672 fine historical engravings and 1260 large double-column pages, and is the most complete History of the World ever published. It sells at sight. Send for specimen pages and extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book.
Address, NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philadelphia, Pa.
feb 11 631-4t

MY WIFE
says: If you want to get POSTED upon BUYING FURNITURE get an Illustrated Price List of the BROOKLYN FURNITURE CO, 557 to 574 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y. ☞Send for one, mailed FREE.
feb 11 631-4t

EMPLOYMENT—LOCAL OR Traveling. Male or female, to introduce our Staple Goods. Also SALARY or commission. AN EXPENSES advanced. WAGES promptly paid. SLOAN & Co. 264 George St. Cincinnati, O.

BAND INSTRUMENT CATALOGUE.
Our new catalogue of Band Instruments, Music, Suits, Caps, Belts, Pouches, Purposes, Drum Majors' Staffs and Hats, Epaulets, Cap Lamps, Stands, and Outfits contains 88 pages of information for musicians. Mailed free. Address LYON & HEALY, 100 State St., Chicago, Ill.
100 ILLUSTRATIONS

AGENTS WANTED for THE SUMMIT
STOVE PIPE SHELF
And Utensil Stand
The most convenient article ever offered to Housekeepers. One Agent made $124.56 in 12 days; another $96 in 6 days; another $12 in 1 day. Freight charges to Agents Free. For Circulars, address
R. S. HARTZELL & CO.,
No. 235 South Third Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

IMPROVE Your Long Evenings
Make Money and
Beautify Your Homes
A Scroll Saw
Will pay for itself in a Week. I have in stock all kinds of Treadle Scroll Saws, Jig, Fret, Buzz, Band, Circular, Pattern, Planing and Moulding Machines, Lathes, Boilers, Engines, etc., and sell at manufacturers' prices. Send for my large illustrated catalogue and price-list of Scroll Saws, Carving Tools, Designs, Fret-cut Patterns, Mouldings, Veneers, Ebonies, Fancy Woods, Pedigree, Arabesque, etc. If I am the oldest dealer in these goods in the U. S. My trade extends to all dealers in these goods in the world, and I never recommend poor articles for anybody. ☞My new edition of Hope's Manual of Scroll Sawing (ready Jan. 20th) contains 100 pp., has 87 full size handsome designs, and should be in the hands of every Scroll Saw user. Price, 50 cts., postpaid.
JOHN WILKINSON, Importer and Manufacturer,
No. 77 State Street, Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED—Best Book—Most Money
THE COMPLETE HOME
How to Keep House, Cook, Dress, Care for Sick, Manage Children, Treat Accidents, Entertain Company, and make Home Beautiful and Happy.
Endorsed by Clergy, Scholars and the Press.
"Valuable and instructive."—REV. DR. WYLIE.
"Can not fail to do good."—J. G. WHITTIER.
"Full of good sense."—PRESBYTERIAN.
Fine paper, Clear type, Beautiful bindings, Low price. Sells where books without half its merit fail. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Black Cashmeres
—AND—
BLACK ALPACA.
The Greatest Bargains in BLACK DRESS GOODS in the Market.
HENRIETTA CLOTHS, AUSTALIAN CRAPES, AND THE FINEST ASSORTMENT OF BLACK MOHAIRS AND BRILLIANTINES.
Brocaded and Figured Lustres.
BLACK SILKS:
GROS DeRHINE, GROS GRAIN—a special bargain in these. TRIMMING SILKS—all colors Velvets, Plain, Embossed, Fancy Plushes, &c, &c.
EMBROIDERIES:
We have always kept the largest variety and richest assortment, and sold more of these than any other house in the City, and we now offer the most complete line of Hamburg, Mull Swiss
—AND—
NAINSOOK EDGINGS
AND INSERTIONS,
Wide and Narrow, ever offered in Raleigh.
COTTON DIAPERS.
One Hundred and Fifty Pieces Just Received.
YEARGAN, PETTY & CO.,
No. 30 Fayetteville Street, Raleigh, N. C.

ARE YOU SUFFERING
With Cancer, Scrofula, Epilepsy, and Disease of the Lungs, Dyspepsia, or any other form of Chronic, Long-Standing or Obscure Disease? If so, send for my pamphlet.
"THE WAY TO HEALTH."
Free of Charge. If also, you will give me an idea of the nature of your disease, I will send you a list of questions, which if you will answer and return to me I will give you my opinion of your case, prospect of cure, &c., free, except a postage stamp for the answer.
Address R. H. GREENE, M. D., Charlotte, N. C.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE ORPHANS' FRIEND,
(Organ of the Orphan Asylum at Oxford, and of the Grand Lodge of Masons in North Carolina.)
IS PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, AT
ONE DOLLAR A YEAR!
It is designed to promote the Entertainment, Instruction and INTERESTS OF THE YOUNG.
Especially those deprived of the benefits of parental and scholastic training. It also seeks to increase the soul-growth of the prosperous by suggesting proper objects of charity, and true channels of benevolence, in order that they may, by doing good to others, enlarge their own hearts and extend the horizon of their human sympathies, as they ascend to a higher plane of Christian observation. Address
ORPHANS' FRIEND,
361 feb 11-tf OXFORD, N. C.

In The Sick Room.
A SERIES OF PAPERS ON DOMESTIC NURSING,
By MISS E. R. SCOVILL, of the Massachusetts General Hospital, in THE CHRISTIAN UNION,
27 Park Place, New York.
Per annum, $3; clergymen, $2.50; sample copies free.

WHAT IS THE USE
in advertising to give away articles for half their actual value, when every sensible person knows that this is an impossibility? For this reason we have decided to do away with all present sums to accompany a 3 months' subscription to our paper, and make this astonishing offer: we will send to any address, for the small sum of 10c. Stamps taken. The Cricket on the Hearth, the most interesting story for the whole family published. Sketched! It is an old-established and popular Story Paper of 16 pages (size of Harper's Weekly), and is filled with the most useful and entertaining literary matter of all kinds. Only 10 for a year's subscription, with choice of a useful and beautiful premiums. 3 months for only 10 cts., your subscription commencing with the issue containing the opening chapters of our new and brilliant Serial Story for 1880. Six trial subscriptions to different addresses, sent at our risk, for 25c. Five dollars per year. Address HOUSE & WILSON, Publishers, 245 Broadway, N. Y.

1880.
WHO Shall be President?
Who Shall be Governor?
Subscribe for the
RALEIGH OBSERVER,
A Democratic Newspaper,
"The Old Reliable,"
SAMUEL A. ASHE, Editor and Owner.
Daily, per annum, $6. Weekly, per annum, $2.
Postmasters and agents allowed a liberal commission on all new subscribers they may obtain for THE OBSERVER.

The Editor of THE OBSERVER requests his friends in the various parts of the State to interest themselves in getting up clubs and otherwise extending the circulation and influence of THE OBSERVER during the campaign year of 1880. By their assistance he hopes to make THE OBSERVER still more acceptable and more useful to the cause of Democracy.
jan 21 4t

DeROSSET & NORTHROP,
FIRE AND MARINE
INSURANCE AGENTS,
REPRESENTING { Standard American / AND / English Companies,
28 North Water Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
nov 19 619-tf

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
Charlotte, N. C.,
KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and House Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will Compete in Prices,
—EITHER—
WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,
With any Market.
All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods
VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.
We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.
BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 185.

COTTON!
IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants
For the Sale of Cotton,
Which they are prepared to do
On the Most Economical Charges.
They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.
ALEX. SPRUNT & SON,
Wilmington, N. C.
September 3d, 1879. 606

CHEESE.
200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,
For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

HOMES
in Western Arkansas.
The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway offer for sale the best LANDS in the West or South-West, with healthy climate, fertile soil, and not affected by drouth. Easy terms of sale. Full information
Apply to W. D. SLACK, Land Com'r.
Little Rock, Ark.
dec 24 634-13t

1880.
TRY OUR
New Crop Cuba Molasses.
We have received the agency again for the well-known and popular
L. & R. GUANO,
Which we offer, on Crop Time,
For 425 Lbs. Middling Cotton.
Send in your orders.
BRYAN & CO.
Jonesboro, N. C., Jan. 30, 1880
feb 4 630 8t

REDUCTION! REDUCTION!
WE HAVING THIS DAY REDUCED THE prices of our Cloaks and Dalmans
so low that it will be to the interest of everybody wanting one to look at our stock before purchasing. Our stock is very large, and we are
WE ARE DETERMINED TO SELL THEM!
You can also find a large stock of
GENT'S AND YOUTHS' CHOTHING
Ladies' and Gent's Underwear, Hosiery, Boots and Shoes, to be sold out at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES!
Give me a call.
T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opposite Charlotte Hotel.
feb 4 630-4t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THOS. A. McNEILL, FRANK McNEILL.
McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.
Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 608 1y.

CATARRH
DR. J. K. ROSS, Centreville, Ind.
jan 21 628-4t

SALT
AND
GUANO.
5,000 Sacks
LIVERPOOL SALT,
6,500 Sacks
Peruvian Cotton Guano,
Now landing and for sale low by
WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.

READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN
If you like to be satisfied deal with
W. J. MOTT.
—Dealer in—
BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.
Keeps on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain his reputation in this regard. I will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,
W. J. MOTT,
North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.
P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult me either by mail or in person.
nov 19 619-tf

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.
THE SPRING TERM of 1880 opens Thursday, January 15. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks
Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.
Address MRS. E. N. GRANT, Principal.
feb 20 628-1y

PEACE INSTITUTE,
For Young Ladies,
RALEIGH, N. C.
THE Spring term commences on the 16th of January 1880, and closes the 1st of June following. The total expense of a boarding pupil for one term is $130, payable in advance. This amount will include board, with washing, fuel, lights, furnished room and servant's attendance, tuition in English branches and Latin, Calisthenics, Text Books and Stationery used for school purposes. For $150 all the above, with Instrumental Music and use of Piano. For circular containing particulars as to terms, Course of Study, &c, address
Rev. R. BURWELL & SON,
dec 24 624-3m Raleigh, N. C.

AGENTS READ THIS
We will pay Agents a Salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.
nov 19 619-6m

EGG MACHINES.
BROWN LEGHORNS
Mature Earlier.
Lay Earlier.
Produce More Eggs.
Are Most Happy.
Are Most Profitable.
Of All Fowls.

HALL & PEARSALL
OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of
100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES.
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.
sep 8 - 606-tf

THE MARVEL COPYIST.
NO COPYING PRESS REQUIRED. Most simple process invented. One hundred copies of circulars, letters, price-lists, plans, drawings, music, church reports, Sunday school lessons, &c., taken from a single writing. This process can be repeated for thousands of copies. Copies made on any kind of paper; also on linen, leather, &c Nothing to get out of order. Agents wanted. Note size $1 50; Letter, $3.00; Legal, $4.00; Postal, $1.00.
A. S. CALDWELL,
Jan 14 Charlotte, N. C. 627-4t

BETHEL ACADEMY,
DAVIDSON COLLEGE (P. O.) N. C.
Rev. L. K. GLASGOW, A. M. Principal.
Miss ELLA W. FLEMING, Assistant.
NINTH semi-annual session begins January 26, 1880. Boarders in Principal's family pay in advance for all expense except books, per quarter (10 weeks) $30.
For circulars containing testimonials from well-known educators and from patrons, address the Principal dec 31-tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.
WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC, THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.
Our Trimming Department is Complete,
and comprises the leading styles.
Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.
We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.
Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.
The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.
N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.
nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.
THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the
Latest and Most Approved Style.
To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.
"First Come, First Served."
MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
apl 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER. Send your orders by mail.

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.
BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.
LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.
The Remington Sewing Machine,
A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.
Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.
Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.
GEO. A. PECK.
25 South Front Street.
dec 10 622-tf

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. C. RIDEOUT & CO., 215 Fulton St. N. Y.
oct 8 618-26t

THE DEAF HEAR
THROUGH THE TEETH!
PERFECTLY, all Ordinary Conversation, Lectures, Concerts, etc., by New Common-sense Invention. THE DENTAPHONE. Is the only means to public knowledge of the Deaf and Dumb.—See New York Herald, Dec. 28. Send for Circular, U. S. Dentaphone Co., Manufacturers of Ear-trumpets, Rims of ear, Aluminum Watches. Send for our FREE pamphlet. Address AMERICAN DENTAPHONE CO., 207 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio
dec 24 634-13t

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.
nov 19 619-13t

SELECT BOARDING
AND
DAY SCHOOL,
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.
Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.
THE SPRING TERM of 1880 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE Board and Tuition $100.
Circulars forwarded on application. 466-*jan.1.'79

AGENTS WANTED For the handsomest and CHEAPEST BIBLES Ever furnished Agents. Sixty Days' Time and Large CASH PREMIUMS
FORSHEE & McMAKIN, Cincinnati, O.
oct 8 613-13teow

BLYMYER M'F'G CO.
BELLS.
Church, School, Fire-alarm, Plantation, low-priced, warranted. Catalogue with 1600 testimonials, prices, etc., sent free.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.
dec 3 621-eow-1y

Sawing off a Log, Easy and Fast.
Our latest improved sawing machine cuts off a 2-foot log in 2 minutes. A $100 PRESENT will be given to two men who can saw as much in the old way, as one man can with this machine. Circulars sent free.
W. GILES, 741 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
Jan 14 627-4teow

Eggs from Premium Stock, $2 for 13. Can supply Partridge and White Cochin, Dark Brahma, Imp. P. Rock, White Leghorn and Bronze Turkey Eggs, from Best Strains. Stock acclimated. Order early, and save heavy express charges by ordering from
A. S. CALDWELL,
Jan 14 Charlotte, N. C. 627-4t

FOUND AT LAST!
"DOBYNS' SURE CURE!"
Has NEVER Failed to CURE CATARRH
Neuralgic and Nervous Headache,
COLD IN THE HEAD, STOPPAGE OF THE NASAL PASSAGES, DEAFNESS, DIZZINESS, DIMNESS OF SIGHT, AND ALL KINDRED COMPLAINTS ARISING FROM NEGLECTED COLDS AND EXPOSURE.
It is used as a Snuff and is always ready and convenient for use, without extra trouble or additional expense. Contains no injurious ingredients; children of five years may use it with perfect safety. One box will last one month, and has frequently effected a complete cure.
Something Impostors can not and do not Show
To convince the poor sufferer that we are honest and thoroughly responsible for all statements made by us, we append the following:
To our Advertisers:—We have known A. T. Mitchell and Sam T. Dobyns, who compose the firm of Dobyns & Mitchell, and are proprietors of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" for a number of years. We know them to be Eashion in whose honor and integrity implicit confidence can be placed; and we unhesitatingly say that the patrons of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" can rest assured that said firm are pecuniarily good and responsible for, and will faithfully carry out, any and all promises made by them. C. Alexander, Cashier Northern Bank, Paris, Ky.; Henry Speers, Cashier Agricultural Bank, Paris, Ky.; Matt Turney, Judge of the Bourbon Co. Court; J. R. Hughes, Clerk of the Bourbon County Court.
Many Testimonials as to its great virtues and curative powers have been received, but the remedy itself is its best recommendation.
The Late ELD. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,
The gifted evangelist, and earnest, true-hearted Christian gentleman, says of this great Remedy, in the American Christian Review, of October 28th, 1879:
"We call attention to 'DOBYNS' SURE CURE' as a reformatory thing, and not for pay. We have been troubled with Catarrh of the head for the last ten years, and now, after using the 'SURE CURE' about three months, can truly say that we feel about free from the entire trouble in the head. We have also given the 'SURE CURE' to others as we have been in public nearly all the time—and it has invariably given relief."
"I know that I am doing a public favor by the thousands who are suffering from Catarrh by adding my testimonial to its value." (Elder) W. K. PENDLETON, Pres. Bethany College, W. Va.—Nov. 3, 1879.
"It will afford me unfeigned pleasure to recommend your 'SURE CURE' to my friends." (Elder) ROBERT GRAHAM, Pres. Bible College, Lexington, Ky.—Aug. 14, 1879.
"I have been using your 'SURE CURE,' and it will do all you claim for it. I recommend it wherever I go. (Elder) J. T. WRIGHT, Chillicothe, Mo.—Nov. 4, 1879.
"Believing in its excellency, as I do, I shall recommend it wherever I go." (Rev.) W. H. MILBURN, Jacksonville, Ill.—Oct. 4, 1879.
"I have given your 'SURE CURE' a thorough trial, and am now ready to personally recommend it." (Elder) C. C. CLINE, State Sunday School Evangelist, Lodiville, Ky.—Nov. 21, 1879.
"Five years ago I paid a Cincinnati Physician fifty dollars for treating me, which your one dollar box has already completely mastered. I advise the afflicted to send on for the 'SURE CURE.'" et cetera. THOMAS MUNNELL, Mt. Sterling, Ky.—Oct. 9, 1879.
OVER 18,000 SUCH TESTIMONIALS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED By us, and will be cheerfully shown to anyone.
OUR TERMS:—We express or mail "DOBYNS' SURE CURE" to any part of the United States for One Dollar per Single Box, or three Boxes for Two Dollars. Druggists and dealers will be furnished with wholesale price list on application.
In ordering, please write your Name, Post-office County, and State PLAINLY, and send money by Post-office Money Order on Paris, Ky., or by Registered Letters. We will not be responsible for money sent in any other way. Address all orders to the Proprietors. ☞Circulars free to all applicants.
DOBYNS & MITCHELL, North Middletown, Bourbon County, Ky.

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.
LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.
Children's Merino Under Suits---A great comfort and convenience.
CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.
LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.
PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,
In Black, Gray, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.
A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.
OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.
Respectfully,
dec 3 R. M. McINTIRE. 621-1y

THE PACIFIC
GUANO COMPANY.
This Company, with a capital of $1,000,000, was chartered in 1865.
The stock was taken by a few of the largest and wealthiest merchants in Boston and New York, who still direct and control the Company.
The Works, situated at Woods' Holl, Mass., and Charleston, S. C., are the largest and most complete of the kind in the United States.
The Company owns several large deposits of Phosphate, which it works, and having sold chambers, manufactures its own Oil of Vitrol.
The Company employs and consults with several of the leading chemists and most progressive vegetable physiologists in the country.
With all these advantages—viz: long experience, ample capital, large works, splendid machinery, extensive deposits, and the best scientific ability, the Company can and does offer a Fertilizer at the lowest possible price.
By reason of the liberal policy of the Company, as well as the intrinsic value of its principal brand, SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO has become, unquestionably, the most popular Fertilizer in the United States, its sale extending from Maine to Texas.
It would be a work of superogation for us to do more than simply call attention to the fact that SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO will be offered this (the fifteenth Spring) season for sale at all points in North Carolina, because there is no manufactured Guano as long, as widely, and certainly none more favorably known, than this brand.
We therefore will devote but a few lines to a description of this popular article, preferring that others should testify from their own practical experience as to its value.
It is proper, however, that we should call attention to a comparative analysis of Fertilizers sold in North Carolina, published in 1878, by Prof. Ledoux, the State Chemist of North Carolina, who places SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO among the very highest grades known.
Such an endorsement of SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO, confirmed as it is by Hon. L. L. Polk, the Commissioner of Agriculture, under whose auspices the analysis was published, is certainly worthy of note.
This year SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO is equal, in every respect, to what it was in 1879.
It is manufactured by the same Company, under the same formula, using the same materials, and hence must give the same splendid analysis as that published by Prof. Ledoux.
It is in fine physical condition.
It is packed in new, clean bags, each bag containing 200 pounds.
The analysis is stenciled on each bag, as required by law.

For Sale By

Whiteville Wine Company, Whiteville.	J. D. Rogers, - - Fair Bluff.
Louis T. Hicks, - - Faisons.	R. M. Gaddy, - - - Mullins.
O. Hicks, Agt. - - Mount Olive.	L. L. MacLaurin & Sons, McLaurin's Mills.
Daniel Bowden, - - Bowden's.	Everett Brothers & Gill, Laurinburg.
T. B. Pierce, - - Warsaw.	MacRae Brothers, Shoe Heel.
A. D. Black, - - Kenansville.

AND BY ALEXANDER SPRUNT & SON.,
General Agents,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
feb 4 630-2m

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847.) E. W. WHITING.
R. B. ANDREWS & CO.
Men and Boys CLOTHING, Dress Shirts, Cuffs, TIES, SCARFS, Half Hose, Suspenders, Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Underwear, Trunks, Valises, &c.

Extra Large Sizes CLOTHING, A Specialty.
HATS AND CAPS, A Large Assortment.
We give special attention to orders from a distance.
LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.
NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh, N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods
—AT—
M. M. KATZ'S,
36 MARKET STREET.
BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.
Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin stripes.
DRESS GOODS.—Satin Melange, Cashmere Soie, Brocade Persan, Persan Raye, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.
MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Etc, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henriettas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.
CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS, Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets. The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS.—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.
MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Buchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c, &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to
M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.
oct 28

NEW BOOKS
For Sunday School and Ministers Libraries. Send for Catalogue containing names of over 1200 Approved Books.
The only safe way to select books for your
SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES
Is to order those which have been read and approved by some competent person.
Our DISCOUNT to MINISTERS and SUNDAY SCHOOLS is the largest offered by any Publisher or Bookseller in the United States.
Address orders for all Sunday School Supplies to
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va. Or, 907 N. 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR THE FAMILY.

Baby Years.

BY GEORGE BIRDSEYE.

Ah, how every little cheers,
In the careless baby years!
Troubles come and troubles go
Like a shadow on the snow,
Every child gives delight;
Ever new and ever bright;
Yet how slight a thing can grieve
Till a sympathy receive;
Then the smiles break out again,
As though pain had never been.

Sad that age should e'er destroy
Such a sweet innocence and joy,
Such pure faith and confidence
Free from hard experience.
All their dainty, winning ways,
At their labor, at their plays,
Soon must change and they must act
In the waiting world of fact.
Be the world that they shall see
Kinder than was mine to me!

—Selected.

A Boy's Last Hymn in a Garret.

A friend of mine, seeking for objects of charity, got into the upper room of a tenement house. It was vacant. He saw a ladder pushed through the ceiling. Thinking that perhaps some poor creature had crept up there, he climbed the ladder, drew himself through the hole, and found himself under the rafters. There was no light but that which came through a bull's eye in place of a tile. Soon he saw a heap of chips and shavings, and on them a boy about ten years old.

"Boy, what are you doing here?"

"Hush! don't tell anybody, please, sir."

"What are you doing here?"

"Hush! don't tell anybody, please sir."

"What are you doing here?"

"Hush! don't tell anybody, sir; I'm a-hiding."

"What are you hiding from?"

"Don't tell anybody, please sir."

"Where's your mother?"

"Please sir, mother's dead."

"Where's your father?"

"Hush! don't tell him, don't tell him! but look here," he turned himself on his face, and through the rags of his jacket and shirt my friend saw that the boy's flesh was bruised and his skin broken.

"Why, my boy, who beat you like that?"

"Father did, sir."

"What did he beat you like that for?"

"Father got drunk, sir, and beat me 'cos I wouldn't steal."

"Did you ever steal?"

"Yes, sir; I was a street thief once."

"And why don't you steal any more?"

"Please, sir, I went to the mission school and they told me there of God, and of heaven, and of Jesus; and they taught me 'Thou shalt not steal,' and I'll never steal again if my father kills me for it. But please, sir, don't tell him."

"My boy, you must not stay here; you'll die. Now you wait patiently here for a little time; I'm going away to see a lady. We will get a better place for you than this."

"Thank you, sir; but please, sir, would you like to hear me sing a little hymn?"

Bruised, bastered, forlorn, friendless, motherless, hiding away from an infuriated father, he had a little hymn to sing.

"Yes, I will hear you sing your little hymn." He raised himself on his elbow and then sang:

"Gentle Jesus, meek and mild,
Look upon a little child;
Pity my simplicity,
Suffer me to come to Thee.

"Fain I would to Thee be brought,
Gracious Lord, forbid it not,
In the kingdom of Thy grace
Give a little child a place.

That's the little hymn, sir; good-bye."

The gentleman went away, came back again in less than an hour, and climbed the ladder. There were the chips, and there was the shavings, but there was the boy, with one hand by his side, and the other tucked in his bosom under the little ragged shirt—dead.—London Christian.

The Man in The Moon.

Many years ago, when the Professor was younger than he is now, he used to look up at the moon and wonder what the queer-looking figure might be that was moving about the bright yellow disc. When he asked what it was, people would say, 'Oh, that's the man in the moon,' as though that settled the matter, and it wasn't necessary to say anything more about it; and so he was left to puzzle it out: at one time discovering a man with a bundle of sticks across his shoulder, and another time a great staring face looking down upon the world like one of the pumpkin lanterns which boys in the country proudly exhibit on dark nights. At that time the Professor did not know that in every age of the world and in nearly every nation other children besides himself had been curious about this matter, and that innumerable stories had been invented to satisfy their curiosity.

One of these stories, perhaps the most ancient, relates that the man in the moon is the man who was found by Moses gathering sticks on the Sabbath, and that as a punishment for his crime he was condemned to dwell in the moon and there collect all things. The German legend, which does not, however, refer to Moses, tells that the faggot bearer was met by a man who said to him: 'Do you know that this is Sunday on earth, when all must rest from their labors?'

"Sunday on earth or Monday in heaven, it is all one to me," said the wood-cutter.

"Then bear your bundle forever," answered the other, "and as you value not Sunday on earth you shall be a perpetual moon-day in heaven; and you shall stand for eternity in the moon, a warning to all Sabbath-breakers."

Ever since then he has had to put up with his sticks into the moon, where he stands yet.

This story with variations is told in all countries. Even the Greeks include to it. Chaucer speaks of the man as,

"bering a bush of thornis on his back
Which for his theft might clim'e so ner the heaven."

Shakespeare, in the "Midsummer Night's Dream," makes Quince the Carpenter say, "One must come in with a bundle of thorns and a lantern and say he comes in to disfigure or to present the person of Moonshine." And an old poet of the twelfth century named Necham, who wrote in Latin, says,

"See the rustic in the moon,
How his bundle weighs him down;
Thus his sticks the truth reveal,
It never profits man to steal."

The idea of the moon as a thief prevailed also among the Swedes, who believed that the figures in the moon were those of two children who had been caught up from the earth with their bucket in which they had been drawing water from the well Byrgir.

It would be easy, good rice, for people to imagine that when the moon grew old and the figures disappeared they had tumbled down a hill, or gone almost anywhere else out of sight.

It was Galileo Galilei who invented the telescope and turned it upon the moon that all these ridiculous fancies about the person who was supposed to inhabit it were blown away. What people's excited imaginations had for thousands of years magnified—or, to speak more correctly, dwarfed—into a human face or a man with sticks, proved to be mountains and pits and craters on the rugged surface of the planet, lit up here with the sunlight and throwing in another place the deepest and blackest shadows.

Wise men, to be sure, had anticipated something of this sort, and their idea was that the dark places were seas; whereas the telescope showed that there was not a drop of water anywhere on the moon. And yet the wise men were not far out of the way, for the telescope showed also that the dark places were the beds of seas where probably the waters once rolled just as they do now upon the earth. Indeed the moon is nothing more nor less than a dried up earth, and if the class wants to know how this planet of ours would look if the fires were all gone out inside and the waters all drained off outside, let them take a look at the moon through a good telescope.

What will you see? Well, if you have fancied a face in the moon you will find the eyes to be two of these great dark pits, the nose to be a mountain range between them, and the mouth to be another gaping pit, called by astronomers the Sea of Clouds. Besides these you will see other pits out of which rise great mountains, and which are supposed to be craters of extinct volcanoes. Of course, seen through the telescope all resemblance to a face will disappear, and unless the telescope is very large it will require a considerable effort of imagination to make pits out of the dark spots and mountains out of the bright ones. If the telescope is a good one, however, you will not only be able to distinguish these features but you can look down into the pits, which are thousands of feet deep, and see the immense rocks and bowlders with which the floor is strewn. The best telescopes bring the moon, which is really 242,000 miles distant, within 120 miles; that is to say, through one of these glasses a mountain in the moon 5,000 or 6,000 feet high will seem about as large as the White Mountains when looked at by the unassisted eye from the Catskill Mountain House. That is about as close a comparison as the Professor is able to make.

Some of the mountains in the moon, though, are much higher than that. One is calculated to be 16,000 feet high, and the astronomers think they have discovered one which is not less than 23 000 feet high. On the whole, considering how bleak and barren the planet is, and that it has no air, water or vegetation, and, so far as discovered, no inhabitants, the Professor thinks he would very much prefer living on the earth.—Prof. Chair in Christian Union.

How to Love God.

In a beautiful village a boy about ten years old lay very sick, drawing near to death, and very sad. He was joint heir, with an only brother, to a great estate, and the inheritance was just about coming into his possession, but it was not the loss of this that made him sad. He was a dying boy, and his heart longed for a treasure which he knew had never been his, and which was worth more to him now than all the gold of all the western mines.

One day I came into his room. I sat down by him, took his hand, and, looking in his troubled face, asked him what made him so sad.

"Uncle," said he, "I want to love God. Won't you tell me how to love God?"

I cannot describe the piteous tones in which he said these words, and the look of trouble which he gave me. I said to him:

"My boy, you must trust God first, and then you will love Him without trying to at all."

With a surprised look he exclaimed:

"What did you say?"

I repeated the exact words, and I shall never forget how his large hazel eyes opened on me, and his cheek flushed as he slowly said:

"Well, I never knew that before. I always thought that I must love God first before I had any right to trust Him."

"No, my dear boy," I answered, "God wants us to trust Him; that is what Jesus asks to do first of all, and He knows that as soon as we trust Him we shall begin to love Him. That is the way to love God, to put your trust in Him first of all."

Then I spoke to him of the Lord Jesus, and how God sent Him that we might believe in Him, and how, all through His life, He tried to win the trust of men; how grieved He was when men would not believe in Him, and how every one who believed came to love without trying to love at all.

He drank in all the truth, and, simply saying, "I will trust Jesus now," without an effort put his young soul in Christ's hands that very hour, and came into that peace of God which passeth understanding, and lived in it calmly and sweetly to the end. None of all the loving friends who watched over him during the remaining weeks of his life doubted that the dear boy had learned to love God without trying to, and that dying he went to Him whom not having seen he had loved.—Canada Presbyterian.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Prosperous France.

France is affording fresh proof that she is one of the most wonderful nations on the face of the earth. The disasters of the French-Prussian war, and the payment of five milliards of francs as the further penalty for entering upon that war, would have crippled an ordinary nation. But France is not an ordinary one, and the result is that she has not only cast off her burden, but contemplates an outlay in internal improvements such as the most prosperous country could alone entertain. It will be remembered that M. de Freycinet, the new Prime Minister of France, before leaving his old department, drew up an elaborate report embodying a gigantic scheme for the creation, extension, and union of railways and canals throughout the country. The estimated cost of these improvements is nine milliards of francs, or £366,000,000 sterling; but France is not deterred thereby, and in twelve years the scheme is to be worked out in its entirety. Already France is noted for the completeness of her railway system, which, with her river and canals, afford a means of communication apparently leaving but little to be desired; but she is impressed with the belief that improvement is possible, and she is going to add 10,000 miles to her railways, and 900 miles to her rivers and canal. This fresh burst of enterprise on the part of France can have but one effect, and that is increased prosperity in the great industries already stirred into activity by the demands of India, America, and the colonies. Rumor is already busy, says our excellent English contemporary Capital and Labor, with the names of English firms about to contract with the French Government, while the iron and steel in America and Belgium must also benefit.—Scientific American.

Seeds.

At the last meeting of the British Association Sir John Lubbock read a very interesting paper on seeds. He commenced by calling attention to the difference presented by seeds, some being large, some small, some covered with hooks, some provided with hairs, some smooth, some sticky, etc. He gave the reasons of these peculiarities, and then spoke of the modes of dispersion, by means of which seeds secured a sort of natural rotation of crops, and in other cases were enabled to rectify their frontiers. Some plants actually threw their seeds, some were transported by the wind, and many were provided with a wing which caught the wind. Dispersion was also effected by the agency of animals. This means was divided into two classes, where seeds adhered to animals by hooks, and where the same purpose was effected by sticky glands. The next point touched upon was that seeds found themselves in spots suitable for growth. Most seeds germinated on the ground, but there were instances, as the mistletoe, where they were parasitic on trees. Such seeds were imbedded in a viscid substance, so that if dropped by a bird on a bough they adhered to it. In some cases plants buried their own seeds, and in other instances the seeds buried themselves, the means by which these processes were effected being fully explained by Sir John, who in conclusion called attention to mimicking seeds, such as the scorpiurus, the pods of which did not open, but looked so exactly like worms that birds were induced to peck at them and thus free the seeds. That this was the purpose of the resemblance he would not assert, but he threw it out as a matter for consideration.

Scottish Songs.

Every way you take them—in authorship, in sentiment, in tone, in language—they are the creation and property of the people. And if educated men and high-born ladies, and even some of Scotland's kings, have added to the store, it was only because they had lived familiarly among the peasantry, felt as they felt, and spoken their language that they were enabled to sing strains that their country's heart would not disown. For the whole character of these melodies, various as they are, is so peculiar and so pronounced that the smallest foreign element introduced, one word out of keeping, grates on the ear and mars the music. Scottish song has both a spirit and a frame-work of its own, within which it rigorously keeps. Into that frame-work, these molds, it is wonderful how much deep and tender human-heartedness can be poured. But so entirely unique is the inner spirit, as well as the outward setting, that no one, not even Burns, could stretch it beyond its compass without your being at once aware of a falsetto note. It was the glory of Burns that, taking the old form of Scottish song as his instrument, he was able to elicit from it so much. That Burns was the creator of Scottish song no one would have denied more vehemently than himself. When he appeared, in 1786, as the national poet of his country, the tide of popular taste was running strong in favor of Scottish song. He took up that tide of feeling, or rather he was taken up by it, and he carried it to its height. He was nurtured in a home that was full of song. His mother's memory was stored with old tunes or songs of her country, and she sang them to her eldest boy from his cradle-time all through his boyhood. Amid the multifarious reading of his early years the book he most prized was an old song book, which he carried with him wherever he went, poring over it, he says, as he drove his cart or walked to labor, sang by song, verse by verse, carefully distinguishing the true, tender, or sublime from affectation and fustian. Thus he learned his song-craft and his critic-craft together. The earliest poem he composed was in his seventeenth summer, a simple love song in praise of a girl who was his companion as a reaper in the harvest field. The last strain he breathed was from his deathbed in remembrance of some former affection.—J. C. Sharp, in October Atlantic.

The New Cunard Steamer.

Mr. John Burns, one of the proprietors of the Cunard Steamship Company, writes to the London Times:

"It may interest the public to know that my partners and I have just concluded a contract with Messrs. James & George Thompson by which that firm is to build on the Clyde, for our fleet, a new steamship the size of which will be exceeded only by that of the Great Eastern, while the speed will be greater than that of any ocean steamer afloat. This new vessel will be of 7,500 tons and 10,000 horse power, her dimensions being 500 feet in length, 50 feet in breadth and 41 feet in depth, propelled by inverted direct acting compound engines, with three cylinders and seven oval tubular boilers, having thirty-eight furnaces and 1,000 feet of effective fire grate surface. She will have an extra promenade deck, and will practically be a five-decker, being fitted for 450 first-class and 600 steerage passengers, with accommodation for a crew of 200 officers and men. Her cargo capacity will be equal to 6 500 tons, with 1,700 tons of coal and 1,000 tons of water ballast, having a double bottom on what is called the longitudinal and bracket system.'

"This vessel has been designed, after lengthened consideration, to meet the requirements of our traditional service, and we have adopted in every detail of the ship and engines the most advanced scientific improvements compatible with the safe working of so great a vessel. Among the important matters into which we have crucially icquired has been that of the employment of steel instead of iron, and after a practical and thorough examination into the merits of both materials we have adopted steel for the hull and boilers, but under a provision so stringent that every plate, before acceptance, will undergo a severe and rigid test by a qualified surveyor appointed and stationed at the steel manufactory for that special purpose and that the manipulation of the steel by the builders shall be subject to an equally careful supervision by qualified engineers of our own appointment. The steel is to be made on the Siemens-Martin process, and all rivets as well as plates throughout the ship are to be of steel. The name of the new vessel is to be the Sahara, and she is to be ready for sea in March, 1881."

A Faithful Dog.

Among the ruins of Pompeii and Herculaneum the skeleton of a dog was found stretched over that of a child. It was conjectured, on the discovery, that this dog, from his position, was attempting to save the child when the eruption of Vesuvius was fatal to the city. The opinion was confirmed by the collar which was found, of curious workmanship; its inscription stated that the dog was named Dalta, and belonged to a man called Savirius, whose life he had saved on three occasions: first, by dragging him out of the sea when nearly drowned; then by driving off four robbers who attacked him unawares, and lastly, by his destroying a she-wolf, whose cubs he had taken, in a grove sacred to Diana, near Herculaneum. Delta afterward attached himself particularly to the only son of Severinus, and would take no food but what he received from the child's hand.—Christian at Work.

SECULAR NEWS.

It is said that the Mexican soldiers' pension bill will pass Congress and be worth $2,000,000 to the South.

A telephone company is to be established, so said, between Louisburg and Franklinton, N. C., and one between Charlotte and Statesville is proposed. The estimated cost of the latter is $2,500.

A graduate of the colored department of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb and Blind has gone to Moulton, Alabama, to take charge of a class of colored deaf mutes there. His name is Wm. A. Cardwell.—Hale's Weekly.

The insect that has been destroying the wheat is pronounced by some farmers to be the Hessian fly. Others say it is too small for this, and that the insect is entirely new to this section.—Statesville Landmark.

J. D. Williams, one of the surfmen of Life-Saving Station No. 22, while out on patrol on the night of the 22d inst., found a corked up cognac brandy bottle. On opening and turning it up a gold dollar dropped therefrom.—Elizabeth City Carolinian.

One night last week the private house of General J. T. Wilder, who keeps a hotel on the top of Rean Mountain, in Mitchell county, was entered by thieves and robbed of about $200 worth of goods. Among other things taken was a cook stove. No arrests have been made. This would call high if not highway robbery, being several thousand feet above the level of the sea.—Asheville Journal.

A LADY'S WISH.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend: "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters, that makes pure rich blood and blooming health. It done it for me, as you observe."

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS

An Enlarged View of the Pad.

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUSTING BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.

Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs
Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago.!!!

THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated American
WORM SPECIFIC
OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a knawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE
will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY

in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

—:o:—

DR. C. McLANE'S
LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.
As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.
Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.
Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.
Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY
CURATINE
A VEGETABLE MEDICINE FOR THE BLOOD, LIVER & KIDNEYS.

CURATINE, For Blood Diseases.
CURATINE, For Liver Complaints.
CURATINE, For Kidney Diseases.
CURATINE, For Rheumatism.
CURATINE, For Scrofula Diseases.
CURATINE, For Erysipelas, Pimples, Blotches, etc.

A medicinal compound of known values combining in one preparation the curative powers for the evils which produce all diseases of the Blood, the Liver, the Kidneys. Harmless in action and thorough in its effect. It is unexcelled for the cure of all Blood Diseases such as Scrofula, Tumors, Boils, Fever-Sore, Salt Rheum, Rheumatism, Mercurial Poisoning, also Constipation, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Retention of Urine, etc.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR IT.

THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO.
BALTIMORE, Md.

dec 17 623-eow1y

Frontis & Leazar's School,
MOORESVILLE, IREDELL COUNTY, N. C.

S. FRONTIS, A. M.,
A. LEAZAR, A. M.,
Principals.

The Seventh Session of this School opened Jan. 5, 1880, under very favorable auspices, sixty pupils having reported the first week.

The healthfulness of the locality is unexcelled. Cresswell's Springs one mile distant. System of instruction thorough and exhaustive. Two Departments—Male and Female. The Sexes occupy different Halls. Superior advantages for Religious Instruction. Board $7 to $8 per month. Tuition $1, $2, $3, $4, and $4 50 per month, according to the degree of advancement. For particulars address

FRONTIS & LEAZAR,
67jan14-tf Mooresville, Iredell County, N. C.

THOMASVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE, N. C.

THE SPRING TERM WILL BEGIN JANUARY 14, 1880. The new building furnishes additional facilities of a fine Chapel 40x72, Dining Room 40x50 and accommodations for 100 Boarders. A First Class School at Lowest Rates. Pupils taught to speak French and German. Eight Teachers. Board per month $10. Tuition $2 50, $4, and $5. For Catalogue address,

H. W. REINHART,
67jan14-3t President.

KERCHNER & CALDER BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.

200 Hhds and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses. 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by

KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

50 Gilt, Motto, Lily, Scroll, and Marble Cards, 10 cents. 60 Agents' Samples, 10 cents. U. S. CARD CO., Northford, Ct. dec 31-633-13t

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.

1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of

BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,

For the purpose of carrying on a

General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,

AT THE OLD STANDS,

5, 7 and 8, North Front Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.

JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 8, 1877.
oct 10 509-

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,
MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,
1879–'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's day, into two Terms.

The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, travelling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.

There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:

1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.

A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.

Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.

Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.

For Catalogues and other information apply to

REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D.,
jan 14-52t President.

PROVERBS.

"Sour stomach, bad breath, indigestion, and headache easily cured by Hop Bitters."

"Study Hop Bitters books, use the medicine, be wise, healthy and happy."

"When life is a drag and you have lost all hope, try Hop Bitters."

"Kidney and urinary trouble is universal, and the only safe and pure remedy is Hop Bitters—rely on it."

"Hop Bitters does not exhaust and destroy, but restores and makes new."

"Ague, biliousness, drowsiness, jaundice, Hop Bitters removes easily."

"Boils, pimples, freckles, rough skin, eruptions, impure blood, Hop Bitters cure."

"Inactive kidneys and urinary organs cause the worst of diseases, and Hop Bitters cures them all."

"More health, sunshine and joy in Hop Bitters than in all other remedies."

Hop Cough Cure and Pain Relief is the best.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS. 623

ALTAFFER & PRICE
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Woodwork and Builder's Hardware.

We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.

Church Windows Doors Pew Ends

CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles.

Factory foot of Walnut St
Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross
Wilmington, N. C.
apl 16 633-1y

H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments. jan 7-6m

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL.
HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF
Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish
Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,
COTTON BAGGING and TIES.

☞ We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.

HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
63-1y

BUY THE BEST.

WE HAVE now on hand finished,

35 No Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.

Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.

Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.

A. A. McKETHAN & SONS,
Oct. 21. Fayetteville, N. C. 554-t

SALT. SALT. SALT.

21,000 Sacks

Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!

Factory Filled Fine Table.
AND
Liverpool Ground Alum.
Full Weight Guaranteed.

"WILLARD'S,"
NORTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
dec 17 633-tf

TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.

Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings Machinery of Every Description.

Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.

TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER.
The Invention of the Age.

It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape).
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
☞ Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro,

JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.

JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.

GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.

We are prepared to execute in the very best style, ALL KINDS OF

PRINTING,
SUCH AS

Business Cards, Bill Heads, Letter and Note Heads, Statements, Drafts, Notes, Checks, Account Sales, Tags, Envelopes, Labels, Bills Lading, Receipts, Notices, Show Cards, Posters, Manifests, Wedding Cards, Visiting Cards, Catalogues, Pamphlets, School Circulars, Reports,

and in fact, every description of

RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING

We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed. Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS For the Pictorial Bible Commentary. 1,018 Pages, 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in two volumes) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & CO., 66 N. 4th St., Phila., Pa.
WANTED
oct 15. 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO
New Concert Grand Organs, 27 Set Golden Tongue Reeds, 4 Unity & Knee Swells, Walnut Case, warr'd 6 years, Stool & Book $90. New Pianos, Stool, Cover & Book, $125. Before you buy be sure to write me. Illustrated Newspaper Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.
oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.
CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
63 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

would call special attention to their extensive stock of 'Dress Goods,' Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys' wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.

SAMPLES SENT FREE!

Also, to their

DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.

Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.

All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 12-1y

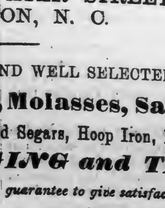
TOBACCO.

100 BOXES MANUFACTURED TOBACCO.

SPECIALTIES:
Uncle Ned's Twist.
Queen Bee Plug.
HALL & PEARSALL.

MISCELLANEOUS.

McMILLAN BROS.,
MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN
SECOND HAND TURPENTINE STILLS



15 NEW & SECOND HAND STILLS
FROM 10 TO 200 BBL. CAPACITY.

Also Extra Worms, Caps and Arms, Still Bottoms of all sizes. Still Doors & Grate bars.

As we have four Copper-smiths regularly employed we can furnish a reliable workman through the country at all times. Parties in want of work will find it to their advantage to call on us, as we are the only

Regular and Reliable Establishment

where first-class work can be had. Consult your own interest by calling on or addressing

D. G. McMILLAN, Supt.
feb 12 Fayetteville, N. C.

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.

HAVE FOR SALE.

2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.
Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.

Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.
Nov. 19 463-1y

ADRIAN & VOLLERS
CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present.

SMOKED BACON,
in hogsheads and boxes,
HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKS.
Breakfast Strips,
Mess Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal.
SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,
Molasses and Syrup
OF ALL KINDS.
FLOUR of all Qualities,
and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries
nov 19 551-12m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
86 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md
Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies, &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c
mch 28 481-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES
OF THE
GENERAL ASSEMBLY
OF THE
Presbyterian Church in the United States

THE CLERKS.

Elated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D. Richmond, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.

President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Esq Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md

PUBLICATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION.

Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D. D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January.
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September
6. Education—First Sabbath in November.

WE KEEP PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR,
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FAIRBANK'S LARD
FINE N. O. SYRUP,
And other Standard articles.
Orders solicited.
HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents. Outfit free. SHAW & CO., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XIII—No 632.] WILMINGTON, FEBRUARY 18, 1880. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXIII—No. 1,252.]

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

One copy one year, in advance.....$3 65
If payment be delayed six months..... 3 15
One copy six months, in advance..... 1 60

AGENTS.

Every Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.

An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.

A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each NEW subscriber of $3 65.

In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procurred without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

[ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.]

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

THE DISINTEGRATION OF SOCIETY.

Probably at no period of the world's history has the tie of human brotherhood been so weak, so feebly felt as at present. Feudalism, with its train of consequent feelings and opinions, has entirely passed away, and with it the feeling of protection and benevolence on one side and the loyalty of faithful devotion on the other. The days when the mighty barons of England assembled periodically with their numerous followers were days of picturesque martial displays, and every man loved his lord with an unselfish chivalry which made him comparatively careless of his own life. The crusades bound men together for a noble but mistaken purpose. Compare the selfish pursuits of our times (money getting, pleasure seeking, studied and ostentatious displays of luxury) with the grand idea which led the hosts of Europe to the Holy Land to re cue the sepulchre of their crucified Lord from the hands of the infidels. The thousands of human beings who assemble in the great manufacturing centres of Europe and America have but little to bind them to each other, and still less to bind them to their employers. The struggle with them is for the daily necessaries of life—food, shelter and clothing—and the shabby little fineries which their small means place within their reach. Amongst the wealthier classes another tie which binds men together is that of fashion. They congregate at balls and dinners and other assemblies, but that this tie is not one of brotherhood is shown by the fact that when one or other of this society of fashionables is removed by death none of their associates seem really to grieve for their loss. Certain forms of mourning are gone through with, but apparently no heart ache, no tears, no real sorrow is felt. Yet these people are as dependent upon the excitement of society, as an inebriate is upon the excitement of liquor. Extremes meet, and the mill operatives, where crowds are thrown together at their daily work, acquire the same craving for the excitement of numerous companions. It is a sad and touching fact that factory girls in England cannot bear the loneliness of domestic life, and even after they marry the strong love of wife and mother sinks in comparison with their love of society. It is not affection, for these companions of the mill have no hold on their hearts. It is a selfish indulgence of their own love of society. The fashionable lady is precisely like her humbler sister in this respect. She neglects her duties of wife and mother for the selfish indulgence of social pleasure. If she has any human love in her heart it is for her husband and children, but, like the drunkard, this love yields to the stronger love of stimulants.

Political disintegration is also going on at a fearful rate all over the world. The Nihilism of Russia, the Socialism of Germany, the Communism of France and England are working on minds, like what chemists call the "giant acids" work on matter, destroying all existing ties, and, as Daniel foretold, "they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron cannot mix with clay." In the Franco-Prussian war the French were conquered, because communism had destroyed the adhesion necessary to success. In Germany the government is still too strong for this effect to be so disastrously felt. But how long will it continue so? Unless some strong counter enthusiasm arrests this destructive tide of human thought it bids fair to sweep everything before it.

Oh, for some holy influence (not so mistaken, however, as that which moved the Crusaders) to bind men together again as brothers, with a noble purpose before them. Desperate diseases require desperate remedies; but the patient must know how ill he is before he will submit to the necessary restorative. Yet often simple means will, by the blessing of God, remove very serious difficulties.

When England seemed on the eve of being destroyed by anarchy, after the conquest of a foreign foe, a Bible student was God's instrument for her temporal salvation. Lord Bacon says Alfred's system of government was copied from the Bible. At the time we speak of every man's hand seemed to be raised against his brother. The king's own messengers were robbed on the highway between Winchester and London. Alfred found the remedy for this state of things in God's Word. Like the decimal system of coinage it simplified things and worked to a charm. "So strange and sudden a change," says Sir John Spelman, historian of the 16th century, "did Alfred's institutions produce in the kingdom that whereas before there was no traveling without arms, there was soon not only safe passage, but all places became so secure that when the king, for experiment sake, caused golden bracelets to be hung up in the crossways they seemed to deride the passengers, for no man durst lay hands on them. Virgins might safely travel anywhere alone."

Now what was this mighty remedy which had so sudden and marvelous an effect? Simply the remedy proposed by Jethro, God's priest of Midian, to Moses for a somewhat similar state of anarchy among the Hebrew people. Binding the disintegrated sands of society into tens, each one a vigilance committee, and binding these tens into hundreds, and binding these hundreds into thousands, and these thousands into tens of thousands, &c., he united and ennobled a discontented and demoralized nation. Sir W. Blackstone says Alfred's reformation was effected by reducing the whole kingdom under one gradual and regular subordination of government, wherein each man was answerable to his immediate superior for his own conduct and that of his nearest neighbors; for to him we own that masterpiece of judicial polity, the subdivision of England into tithings, hundreds, &c, &c. "All these divisions," he continues, "were under the administration of one supreme magistrate, the king, in whom, as in a general reservoir, all the executive authority of the law was lodged, and from whom justice was dispensed by distinct yet communicating ducts and channels; which wise institution has been preserved for near a thousand years, from Alfred's to the present time" (1758).

Nothing gives such cohesion as this binding the interests of each neighborhood together, making each parish a body of self-governing men. It fosters the strongest esprit de corps; and hence these early English institutions made Englishmen the patriots that they were. "Better be dying in England than living anywhere out of it," used to be one of their popular sayings. Miss Mitford, one of the most delightful of England's lady writers, dwells upon this strong feeling of brotherhood, which in her day pervaded the rural parishes of England. They formed themselves into cricket clubs and played against the neighboring parishes. She thought nowhere else on earth was the esprit de corps so strongly felt as amongst these neighbors, who assembled in the same church, listened to the same nightingales, saw the smoke rising from the same chimneys and played cricket on the same grass-covered commons. Do we see anything of this in our own democratic country, where our next door neighbor is rarely any dearer to us than the citizen from the most distant county? It were well to consider how much influence political organizations have upon individual character. A despotic government, if wielded by a strong, just and merciful hand, sometimes excites enthusiastic devotion in its subjects. But no reliance can be placed in a succession of despots. Human nature is too fallible.

Alfred's government would have been a powerful engine for a despot to wield, but for his trial by jury. It was so perfect, so thoroughly organized that the guilty never escaped punishment—never escaped detection—but this punishment could only be inflicted by his equals. Whatever the crime, and wherever committed, no single ruler could pronounce sentence. Judge Blackstone says it is "the most transcendent privilege which an subject can enjoy, or wish for, that he cannot be affected either in his property, or liberty, or his person, but by the unanimous consent of twelve of his neighbors and equals."

Ancient English juries were always to come, de vicinito—from the neighborhood; but in the modern times this is not considered necessary. Every departure from the old model is a mistake. I believe the ancient juries to have been permanent officers, elected by the people and retaining their positions as long as they maintained their hold upon the confidence of the people.

There should be no disintegration in the church; we ought to be a band of closely united members; and thank God there is some love for each other in our hearts. Without it we were spiritually dead. But we long and hope for that enthusiastic love which will carry everything before it, bringing all the kingdoms of the world under the sway of Him who built the "house of Moses," not for a single people, nor a single age, nor a single country, but for all climes and ages and people.

With the Hebrews, one species of property was considered as belonging to the Lord, and too sacred for barter or sale. Land remained in the hands of the same family forever. The homestead may have been ever so small, but the owner know that whatever expense was put upon it, would be the property of his descendants. They could rent their lands in case of debt for forty-nine years, but at the end of that long period it returned to the family.

H. M. I.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

"HOW CAN IT BE REMEDIED?"

MR. EDITOR:—In a recent issue of the PRESBYTERIAN (28th Jan.) appears the following words, from a correspondent under this caption:

"I think the great barrier to the advancement of Presbyterianism, especially in country churches, is that young ministers—many, not all—after having been in college, then three years in a seminary in the midst of highly cultivated society, and having become familiar with literature and science, being transferred to a country charge, cannot let themselves down to the interests, habits and views of their parishioners. How different it is with ministers of some other denominations. I am decidedly in favor of an educated ministry; but have some doubts as to whether seminaries are a blessing in the Church or not."

To this statement you add, that (excepting the latter clause) your correspondent "expresses the views of very many persons in our church"—all of which was read with surprise and regret, by some, if not "very many" of your readers.

By the provisions of the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church, its ministers must pass the examintion, care and oversight of the Presbyteries. Before licensure, they must be engaged in a long literary and professional training and discipline, by way of preparation for their life Work, in the noblest calling and employment, which can engage the mind and heart of any man. To that end, they make use of the advantages of our Colleges and Theological Seminaries. At home and abroad, these institutions have received the endorsement and approval of great and good men, for a long period of time. Our Theological Seminaries are under the care of Professors, who are justly regarded as scholars of marked ability and learning, and by those who have the good fortune to know them, are esteemed as very practical men. From these men our students, by daily and cordial intercourse, receive the large benefit, of that rich experience, as pastors and teachers, which rises to the dignity of wisdom.

Then, again, our young men go out, for a period of four months in each year, from the Seminary, mingle with the people and read and study the great unwritten volume of human nature.

And now, in the last quarter of the 19th century, after all this diligent labor and care—after all the training, while the church has endorsed and approved,—after the most solemn of all vows and the setting apart, with prayer, and consecration of our licentiates, who are now scattered from the Potomac to the Rio Grande or telling the grand "old, old story" of salvation, to sinners at home and abroad, we are gravely informed, that "the great barrier to the advancement of Presbyterianism (!) is, that young ministers cannot let themselves down to the interests (!) (what interests pray?) habits and views of their parishioners!" And these too are the views of "very many" of our Church! To this lame and impotent conclusion and complexion, it has come at last! Can it be possible, that the Alumni, of our two excellent Theological Seminaries, have become by study and training, so changed, that they cannot "let themselves down to" and are not in sympathy with the highest "interests"—spiritual and temporal—of their "parishioners," composed of men and women like themselves?

To this broad statement, "very many of our people" very respectfully enter their dissent. To be sure, our young ministers lack experience and sometimes that sound judgment, which can be acquired and disciplined by mingling with others. But is not this true of young briefless lawyers, or young doctors or engineers or young men in the various pursuits of life. The correctness, of the reflection on our young ministers, ought not to pass unchallenged. Failures in professional life, it is submitted, are far less frequent among ministers, than in any other pursuit. And, we add, that a more faithful, laborious, hard working and successful class of men, are not to be found in any departments of usefulness. Apart from the grand and noble ends arrived at, taking a lower view than the promotion of the spiritual "interests" of the people, we assert, that, after all and not undervalning schools and colleges, preachers are the great educators of the people, and that the most inexperienced of our young ministers are "great barriers to the advancement of Presbyterianism" some of us do not believe. We go further and wholly deny the proposition, that Presbyterianism is not "advancing" in our country. Statistics, financial and numerical, prove the contrary. Take the assessed value of property in 1859 and 1879, in our poor Southern country, after all the disaster of war and,—the disaster of peace,—and our people give more money, in proportion to values, to "advance" the cause of Christ, (synonymous, we hope, and believe, with Presbyterianism,") in the latter than in the former period. And, thank God, His blessings follows the faithful labors of our ministers old and young.

Depend you on it, Mr. Editor, croaking is one of the "great barriers to the advancement of Presbyterianism," wherever it fails to advance. We do not appreciate, as we ought, the blessings of an able and faithful ministry. Let us be more thankful. It is a fashion to underrate our young men, and to say, with your correspondent, "how different it is with members of other denominations." Let us thank God, for all the great good, done by these brethren "of other denominations," some of whom may not have had the misfortune to be students of Theological Seminaries. Don't let us go mourning over the inefficiences of our pulpits, but let us improve the efficiency of the pew. If Presbyterianism is not "advancing," one remedy is very simple:"—in every thing by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let our requests be made known unto God." Let the occupants of the pew preach the Gospel, supplement the labors of the pulpit, by being "living epistles to be read of all men": then will Presbyterianism make greater advance,—and—not till then.

LAYMAN.

For the N. C. Presbyterian

TREASURES IN HEAVEN.

During last year, in the month of November, a family connected with the Presbyterian church in Fayetteville, N. C., experienced peculiar and grievous bereavement: On the 7th, Lelia, a lovely little girl of four years, was stricken down by diphtheria; on the 13th her sister, Bettie Moore, aged fourteen years, was removed by the same fatal disease; on the 16th Nealie, a bright child of eight years, was taken; while twelve days later, on the 28th, Lucy, who was only two years old, fell a victim to the same terrible malady.

All that the sympathy of friends, medical skill, prompt attention, and faithful nursing, could accomplish, was done, but did not avail to check this destructive plague.

These children were remarkably bright, and well instructed. The younger ones had made unusual progress in secular knowledge for young persons of their age. Nor were they less carefully taught in Bible truths, and the doctrines of their church. No children in the congregation recited the catechism more regularly or perfectly than these, and at the household meeting, the pastor will long miss their bright faces and clear, pleasant voices, uttering those forms of sound words contained in church standards. The oldest sister, Bettie, was not only intelligent, but on the verge of womanhood, and possessed of moral qualities and habits that made her a treasure in her home and community. She was skillful and industrious in fancy work, and disposed to exert herself for the good of others. For several years past she did not permit a Christmas to pass without sending her pastor some token of her regard. From no member of his charge, among the young people, has he more frequently received tokens of remembrance. It was her delight, too, to visit the sick and poor, and to bestow upon them sympathy and aid. A young person of such amiable traits of character, it might well be supposed would not be unmindful of her pious obligations, nor forgetful of her Saviour. Such we have good reasons to believe was the case. Though Bettie had made no public profession of religion, and shrank from avowing herself a Christian until she was sure as to the state of her heart; yet she had pondered the subject of personal piety deeply, and expressed to intimate friends the purpose of professing Christ as her Saviour. Her ripening excellences of character then, we may well hope, were not merely natural virtues, but graces wrought by the Divine Spirit, and fitting her for the society of the holy.

To lose such children makes a sad void in the heart, the home and the Church on earth. But their departure lends new beauty to the Father's house above, and is calculated to draw our hearts and lives nearer to our gracious Lord, His precious gospel, and the heavenly home. The soul follows its most valued treasures, and the "early lost and early saved," of our households should attract us powerfully towards Christ and heaven.

H. G. H.

"THERE IS THAT SCATTERETH AND YET INCREASETH."

A rill from living fountains
So secretly may flow,
That but a thread of verdure
Its desert path may show.

But when that narrow streamlet
Hath reached the shining sea,
All heaven finds there a mirror,
All earth a minstrelsy!

So hearts that come to Jesus
A thrill of love must know,
Enough to bind the spirit
To Him who loves us so;

But O, what deeper glory
Lights up our lives so dim,
When love can burst all barriers,
And widen into Him!

One with our Lord in spirit,
Each faithful child hath proved
What joy may flood the soul that here
Takes in the world He loves.

—Canada Presbyterian

THE PEDIGREE OF HERESIES.

The originality and novelty so attractive to many in heresies have their existence only in popular ignorance. They are all in the thought that what we have neither seen nor heard must be new. Heresies are made from the old conceptions of the past, re-dyed, re-shaped, and re-trimmed; or, to adopt a homely figure, the new carpets are made of old rags. In the history of thought no new heresies will be found in a thousand years. They are like old humors breaking out in new places, with modifications or extensions according to the idiosyncracies of individual constitutions. Neither has the race made any original discoveries in the form of philosophical systems. Modifications, limitations, and applications of the system of Aristotle, Plato, and others exist, but the history of speculative thought will show no modern creation equal to any of these. In theology this is equally true, as those who have best studied ecclesiastical history, or the history of Doctrine, will be bound to admit. The student of the history of religious and philosophical speculation is no more surprised at a new heresy, nor more perplexed as to where to place it, than a naturalist when he has found, by itself, the lower jaw of an ancient Saurian. If the historian is perplexed at the modern novelty at all, it will not be by its originality, but as to where it came out of the old trumpery of the past. He will exclaim, as did Isaac, "The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are Esau's."

This line of thought is suggested by hearing Christian people, half-frightened at the last religious or scientific vagary, saying, "Are you not afraid of the ruin these new theories will make? They are very attractive to a certain class of thinkers, and to the young." We reply, "We are not afraid of the thing itself, but of the ignorance of the theologies and philosophy of the past in those who think they have grasped an original and antagonistic system, while they are simply being run away with by an old rogue in new clothes." He who knows the past forecasts the future; being forewarned he discounts its heresies, and is forearmed against its assaults. A knowledge of the history of religions and philosophical speculation is the best preventive against philosophical and religious aberrations. Our modern surprises in these directions are but the swell of the tide from the storm that raged on the Continent. It will go down to its level again in the bosom of the unfathomable, for it is a law of the human mind in its motions to compass extremes. "But are you not afraid of the effects of German Rationalism?" says the half-frightened believer. No. It has been on the earth before, and in its swing around the shores of speculation it has come back to us again. But if it is carefully examined you will see the marks of battle on it. German Rationalism is Hume-ism driven out of Britian to the continent, and now, having made its circuit, it is again crossing the channel and the Atlantic to renew the contest for possession. Hume was but the echo on the English shore of Lord Herbert, and Lord Herbert was the far-off echo of Porphyry and Celsus in the East. It is only a tidal wave we again encounter of the old chilling element. It will flow back again to its ocean depths, leaving the wrecks for the coming generations, to excite the wonder of future sceptics, and which they will surely re-produce in the shapes and fashions of their times.

But it is said, "This of which you speak is only in the line of religious speculation." How is it with the modern scientists and their novelties? Are they not threatening death to our faith? They are stating and defending theories that will not only antagonize, but subvert by their plausibilities the cherished faith of the Bible. They are declaring that man was not created by God, or if God had anything at all to do with him, it was to create a germ which he gave to a monkey to experiment with, and the monkey set it a going on the plains of development, on which, by dint of native laziness, sitting most of the time, he wore off his prehensile, and then scratching himself, according to that definition of happiness given by Paley, which is, "a continued succession of pleasurable sensations," he wore off his primeval covering, and so on until his present make up of cloths, notions, and perfumery. Are you not afraid that this plausible theory, which is gaining such high favor with the more intelligent part of our community, will eventually subvert our religion? Not much!

There is a constant quantity in the race, of which Solomon said, "Though thou shouldst bray like a fool in a mortar among wheat with a pestle, yet will not his foolishness depart from him?" Still we believe there are degrees of this thing, and we are not prepared to say that it has reached the superlative degree of all folly. Neither is there novelty nor originality in this development. It is only the deposit of the same old miry sea, a little more stirred and filthier, coming in where it has been oft before, to get rid of its dirt in fresh deposits. It has only dumped the dirt of ages on our philosophies.

The present sponsors of spontaneous generation and development, found the waif at the door of his grandsire. It was then known under the name of the "Vestiges," and this was but the classified waste gathered from the last tide-mark of the French swell. Before Lamarck it came to the shore, bottled up with the vagaries of Lord Monboddo, and before him it was in the form of sedimental deposits from Lucretius, and before him it was the accumulation of Epicurus in the form of fortuitous combinations.

In reading of this order of being and development one is reminded of the exposition of the Hard-Shell Baptist, whose habit was to read the chapter through before his preaching, no matter where and what it was; so he found himself confronted one day by the genealogies of Matthew. He read, as was his wont, with great gravity, "Abraham begat Isaac, and Isaac begat Jacob;" on and on he went, until he thought himself it would be better to abbreviate, and he stopped and said, "My brethren, not to enlarge, they kept on begetting one another throughout the chapter." So the heresies of our times have come by lineal succession from the heresies of past times, and will have their successions in all the times to come. Let not their coming alarm any one.—Presbyterian.

NOT WORTH WHILE.

It is not worth while for men to deceive themselves on this essential point of moral character—an unswerving determination to do right. God certainly knows of each man whether he has it or not. It is not unknown in many cases even to their fellow-men. For the most part the man himself knows perfectly well whether he has this fire-proof virtue or not. There is nothing of which a good man is more distinctly conscious than his settled purpose is to do right. On the other hand, when a bad man is induced to do wrong, whether from lack of conviction of duty, or from weakness of will to resist evil, he is very apt to know what he is doing. There is a conscience within, God's vicegerent in the soul, whose index-finger points with unmistakable precision to the right and the wrong.—Interior.

THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

The liquor question will not keep down. It is one of the most vital issues of the day. In all great political, philanthropic, economic and social questions it is a controlling factor. Those who think it affects only the dealer and the drunkard, his victim, are very short-sighted. Its virus taints the whole body politic, so that the best method of remedying or removing the evil comes home to every citizen and taxpayer, and demands the exercise of his most intelligent and candid thought. The old Pine-tree State is attempting to work out this difficult problem in its own way. Amid all the conflicting statements this fact is settled in its experience, that while in 1830 there were in Maine 2,000 open liquor bars, 460 taverns with open bars, and liquor sold at nearly every grocery store, and the estimated sales approximated $12,000,000 there is not now an open bar in the State, no tavern or grocery keeps it for sale, and the estimated sales do not reach half a million, and what is more significant public sentiment in its favor is so strong that both the great political parties are compelled to sanction and support the law. Whether it is wise for every State to imitate the example of Maine may be an open question, but there is no question that the sooner such a public sentiment against this great source of crime and misery is secured, the better for every State. Many who rely upon moral suasion in repressing the fearful evil, hesitate as to the wisdom of enacting a prohibitory law. But, as ex-Governor Brown of Missouri tersely said in a recent address, "All modes of action at last end in prohibition. Moral suasion is a social prohibition. License is prohibition to those not licensed. Local option prohibits the sale in certain proscribed sections." It is not a question of words, but of facts. The evil must be repressed if we would save the land, and whatever judicious means can free us from the curse of this oppressive monopoly should secure the hearty co-operation of every citizen who believes in the largest good to the largest number.—The Illustrated Christian Weekly.

A VALUABLE SECRET.

It is related of Franklin that from the window of his office in Philadelphia he noticed a mechanic, among a number of others, at work on a house which was being erected close by, who always appeared to be in a merry humor, and who had a kind and cheerful smile for every one he met. Let the day be ever so cold, gloomy or sunless, the smile danced like a sunbeam on his cheerful countenance. Meeting him one day, Franklin requested to know the secret of his constant, happy flow of spirits. "It's no secret, Doctor," the man replied, "I've got one of the best of wives, and when I go to work she always gives me a kind word of encouragement and a blessing with her parting kiss; and when I go home she is sure to meet me with a smile and a kiss of welcome, and then the tea is sure to be ready; and as we chat in the evening, I find that she has been doing so many little things through the day to please me, that I cannot find it in my heart to speak an unkind word, or give an unkind look to anybody." And Franklin adds: "What an influence, then, hath woman over the heart of man, to soften it, and make it the fountain of cheerful and pure emotions. Speak gently, then; a happy smile and a kind word of greeting after the toils of the day are over, cost nothing, and go far toward making a home happy and peaceful."

A GOOD SIGN.

If the spirit of devotion to the Lord is not what it ought to be in the Church, a good indication is that so many people apparently feel it to be so, and are longing for something better. To know and feel the want is one great part of reformation. It is possible that some of the crying out respecting barrenness is but formality, the infection having spread from those who are in earnest to those who are only imitators; yet a great part of it is the real longing of souls that desire to have the enrichment of God's spiritual bestowals according to the promise of the Gospel.—United Presbyterian.

GOLD DUST.

The first sure symptom of a mind in health,
Is rest of heart, and pleasure felt at home.
—Young.

In times of affliction we commonly meet with the sweetest experience of the love of God.—Bunyan.

The generality of men expend the earlier part of their lives in contributing to render the latter part miserable.—La Bruyere.

In life we shall find many men that are great, and some men that are good, but very few men that are both great and good.—Colton.

He who is always in want of something cannot be very rich. 'Tis a poor wit who lives by borrowing the words, decisions, mein, inventions and actions of others.—Lavater.

True joy is a serene and sober motion; and they are miserably out that take laughing for rejoicing: the rest of it is within, and there is no cheerfulness like the resolutions of a brave mind.—Seneca.

He cannot be a perfect man,
Not being tried and tutor'd in the world:
Experience is by industry achieved,
And perfected by the swift course of time.
—Shakspeare.

The mind that is cheerful in its present state, will be averse to all solicitude as to the future, and will meet the bitter occurrences of life with a placid smile.—Horace.

We should manage our fortune as we do our health—enjoy it when good, be patient when it is bad, and never apply violent remedies except in an extreme necessity.—La Rochefoucald.

It requires more faith and courage to say two words face to face with one single sinner than from the pulpit to rebuke two or three thousand persons, ready to listen to everything on condition of forgetting all.—Bossuet.

In order to grow in grace, we must be much alone. It is not in society—even Christian society—that the soul grows most vigorously. In one single quiet hour of prayer it will often more progress than in days of company with others. It is in the desert that the dew falls freshest and the air is purest.—H. Bonar.

For me fall my fortune as it may—
A comfort and a strength it is to know
That wherso'er I go
There is the same heaven over me on high,
Whereon in faith to fix the steady eye;
The same access for prayer,
The same God, always present everywhere;
And if no home, yet everywhere the bed
Which earth makes ready for the weary head.
—Robert Southey.

Contentment produces, in some measure, all those effects which the alchemist usually ascribes to what he calls the philosoper's stone; and if it does not bring riches, it does the same thing by banishing the desire for them.—Addison.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

Gleaned from exchanges:

The American Presbyterians have three stations and eighty-one out-stations in Persia, with ten missionaries and 1,221 communicants. The converts are principally Nestorians. Access to the Mohammedans is becoming easier.

The Sheik-ul-Islam has called on the Constantinople authorities to prevent the wearing of Paris boots, low dresses, and transparent veils by Mussulman women. He also complains of cafes being frequented by men in the hours of religious service.

Father Curci, who is living in retirement at Naples, has written a preface to a new Italian translation of the New Testament, in which he deplores that the Scriptures are so little read by Italian Catholics.

The Rev. C. W. Banks, editor of the Earthen Vessel, the organ of the "Strict Baptists" of England, has been presented with £600 by his admirers. On the abolition of the stamp duty, he started the first penny religious newspaper in London, which was entitled the Christian Cabinet.

The Italian residents in Berlin have aroused the wrath of the Roman Catholic clergy there. The Italians had arranged to hold a commemorative service on the anniversary of the death of the late King Victor Emmanuel, but the clergy objected, because the deceased monarch was excommunicated by the late Pope, and carried their opposition to the length of refusing the use of the church.

The fact that a steam engine is being erected in a flour mill at Jernsalem is a startling announcement, but it is an evidence of the progress of civilization. The "Infidels" who have thus introduced modern inventions into the Holy City are a firm of Wurtemburg colonists, who, with the characteristic enterprise of the Teutonic race, are doing all the Oriental powers will let them to make the historic and Old-World city march with the times.

The London and China Telegraph states the offer of a prize by the Chinese Religious Tract Society for the best tract against "Feng-shui" has brought out more than twenty competitors. The essays are in the hands of a competent committee to award the prize. The offer of a prize by the Rev. Mr. Yen for the best tract in favor of the Christian religion bought out thirteen competitors. The two best are to be offered to the Chinese Tract Society for publication.

The native college at Malua, Samoa, in charge of Dr. Turner, is a most important institution. It numbers about one hundred students preparing for the Gospel ministry and other useful callings among their countrymen. This is doubtless the fountain whence flows most of the regenerating influences for Samoa. There are about two hundred acres of land belonging to the college (which of course belongs to the London Mission Society), and each married student is allowed to cultivate three acres, which, in this tropical clime, furnishes ample provision for him and his household.

On Sabbath the blessing of the Neva took place at St. Petersburg. A mass celebrated at noon in the Winter Palace, in presence of the Emperor and the Imperial family. Outside the palace was erected the shrine, with steps leading to the river where the ice had been broken. At 12.40 the procession issued from the palace, consisting of choristers, priests, high officials and color sergeants bearing fifty regimental flags and standards. These were sprinkled by the Metropolitan with consecrated water, which was drunk by devotees. It is considered a panacea for various ills. In some instances ablutions, considered necessary in the case of those who had worn masks in the late holidays, were resorted to, notwithstanding the cold—27 degrees Fahrenheit.

According to the Moscow Gazette, the following curious incident occurred in St. Petersburg a few days ago: Rigorous efforts are being made by the ecclesiastical authorities to counteract the spread of Nihilism. One of the priests attached to the Isaac Cathedral lately delivered a sermon in condemnation of the revolutionary propagandists, and a day or two afterwards he was surprised to receive at his house a visit from three young men, who expressed a great desire to make his personal acquaintance. As soon as they were announced by the servant the priest suspected there was something wrong, and before asking them in took the precaution of sending for an attendant to be present during the interview. In the presence of this person the three men informed the priest that, in his sermon delivered in the Isaac Cathedral, he had insulted "the better representatives of the young generation," and that they had to ask him never to repeat anything of the kind again. On the priest replying that he should always preach what his duty and conscience dictated, one of the trio drew a revolver from his pocket and leveled it at the priest. Fortunately the attendant, who had been called in, seized the would-be assassin in time, and wrenched the weapon out of his hand. The other two attempted a rescue, but all the servants in the house making their appearance, the "better representatives of the rising generation" were marched off to the police station.

Mr. Murphy, the Roman Catholic priest at Irvine (says the Glasgow News), has committed the error of supposing that he possessed citizen rights. He is, it seems, a sympathizer with the Irish Nationalists and a believer in Mr. Parnell. He promised to preside at the recent Nationalists meeting at Glasgow, believing that he had every right to do so if he chose. But his bishop forbade him to fulfil the promise, and Mr. Murphy, like a good Roman Catholic, obeyed. He, however, disobeyed the spirit of its prohibition while observing its letter, by sending a note of apology to the meeting, in which he said that, though absent in body he was present in spirit, and expressed a hope that God might guide Mr. Parnell. For this the bishop has removed Mr. Murphy from his charge, an act at which the congregation are highly indignant, it being, as they properly say, an interference with his rights as a citizen. It is not for us to apportion blame in the matter, but Mr. Murphy certainly ought to have known that, as a Popish priest, bound hand and foot to the will of his ecclesiastical superior, he has no citizen rights. The bishop has simply acted in conformity with the principles of his Church, which are that a Roman Catholic must be a Catholic first and a citizen afterwards. A Roman Catholic is debarred from fulfilling the plainest duties of patriotism, or from exercising the commonest rights of citizenship, if his superior forbids him to do so; and in so far as Mr. Murphy forgot this fact, of which he ought to have been aware, he has brought his punishment upon his own head.

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN, - - - Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1880.

The Synod of North Carolina, at its late meeting, passed the following resolution:

"The Synod commends the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN as a paper worthy of the confidence and liberal patronage of our people, and hereby encourages its ministers and elders to aid in extending its circulation, until every family is supplied with a copy."

LOOKING FOR RESULTS.

In noting faith as one of the remedies for the inefficiency of the church, we adverted last week to the lack of faith, as shewn in the use of God's chosen means for converting sinners. We urged more frequent preaching as honoring God. It is His plan. And if what we said be interpreted as implying a desire for a ministry less educated, or sermons less carefully and thoroughly prepared, we do not wish to be misunderstood. Let our ministers be as well trained and fitted for their life-work as it is possible for them to be; as the wisdom, learning and experience of the Church may suggest the methods. Let them receive all the culture that can be imparted by the best schools of literature and theology; and let them, in addition, have that practical wisdom which a wide acquaintance with the needs of the Church, and of the world would intimate as most essential to ministerial success. Let brains and soul, and thought and feeling go into each sermon. Presbyterians have too long held the van in requiring an educated ministry to abate one jot of their high prestige.

But for all that the command is: "Preach the Word. Be instant, in season and out of season." Which, by a liberal exegesis, may mean: Be ye ready to preach the truth, anywhere, at any time you are called on, whether you have a manuscript and sermon-case or not.

One of the reasons for the large results of protracted meetings, of continued preaching from day to day, is that the truth is so repeatedly as well as pointedly preached. "Strike while the iron is hot," is a wise rule; and it may sometimes be wise to make the iron hot by striking.

It would be well always to look for results. A pastor once casually—as was his occasional custom—invited any one who was impressed with the present importance of salvation, and desired instruction, to meet him and the session in the session-room. Two young men presented themselves. After a brief and frank interview, closed with prayer, and the inquirers had retired, the minister remarked to one of the elders, that he was surprised at any one's appearing; that he did not expect it. "That seems strange to me," said the elder, "you preached the importance of religion, and the duty of seeking Christ at once; and you asked any to come. It seems to me you ought always to expect the gospel to do good."

Was not this ruler wise? Is there not a lack of faith on the part of many who preach, that their message may prove a word of life to some one present? Is it not true, that many would be surprised, as this young pastor was, if persons should come to the inquiry room, after an ordinary service? And yet is it not right to look for such results? Perhaps that is one reason that there is so much aimless, ineffectual, unresultant preaching. It is aimed at nothing; it expects nothing.

We remember the remark, made, we believe, by the distinguished professor of theology in Union Seminary, about this not looking for results: "We fire into the covey, and never look to see whether there is a wounded bird." The sermon is preached and that is the end. If there were faith to believe that that very message might be a saver of life, would there not be more directness in preaching, both in matter and manner, and would there not be always, in some wise way, an attempt to ascertain if there was any "wounded bird?"

In an address delivered before the graduating class of Union Seminary, two or three years ago, by the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, then of Raleigh, this point was emphasized, and it was recommended that the session retire to the session-room (and it was urged that a door from the church open immediately into the session-room, to make it as easy as possible for any one to meet the session) after every sermon; or at any rate that the pastor so retire to this private room, and let it be well understood that every time a sermon was preached he would be prepared to give a personal interview to any one who sought spiritual guidance, and would meet any one alone in this room, who might wish to see him. We have known such expectation of results to be signally fulfilled.

The room, however, is not always so convenient. If practicable it ought to be made so. Yet a prudent anxiety to win souls will suggest other methods. At household prayer-meetings in the country, or Thursday evening lectures in town, let the minister linger—be alert to note any diffident advance—be prepared to say a word in private to any who desire. And this might likewise be carried into practice in the more public exercises of the house of God, without using the high-pressure systems so common and so justly objectionable.

In such watching for souls, the elders, the pious mothers in Israel, the earnest Sunday School teachers, may be most efficient auxiliaries to the pastor. If they discover that the word preached has affected any soul, let instant knowledge of it be given to the chief watchman; let them provide in some thoughtful and unsuspected way, for a personal interview between the interested and the minister; let them pray and expect an answer. Oh this very eagerness to save souls, this anxiety for others and ready aid to the pastor, these are signs of revival. The skies are reddening, and the morning glows with unwonted splendor!

But results are not to be estimated merely in the number of souls awakened and converted. Too often we think of preaching with this one purpose in view. The faithful shepherd not only finds the torn and lame sheep on the mountain side, the lost and straying, and brings them back to the fold, but he feeds and cares for those that are safe in the fold. He expects their growth. He is disappointed if they are not thrifty and vigorous. He seeks their good. Perhaps Presbyterian ministers do not need to be admonished to feed the settled fold, but rather to hear the command; "Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in." Yet they do need to expect their flocks to grow. They should honor the word of the king, who thus orders that Zion be edified. Pastors are given for the perfecting of the saints for the edification of the body of Christ.

And yet how much of preaching addressed to Christians is expected to produce observable effect. How little looking for results is there? A sermon is preached on family prayer, or on covetousness, or on Christian consecration, or on intercessory prayer, or on doctrine rather than duty, and the comfort and hope such doctrine gives; there is a general desire that such preaching may do good, but how seldom is any special inquiry as to the immediate or proximate effect produced. Can we believe that preaching does good, that each sermon does a present service, if we act thus with aimless indefiniteness? Let it rather be the inspiration of each one: "So fight I, not as one that beateth the air."

A GRAVE MISTAKE.

It comes to us that in one of our towns a lot of land was donated by a Protestant for the establishment of a Roman Catholic school. Now, with every disposition to do justice to the probable motives which influenced this gift we must think the act itself a very grave mistake. Such deeds are done in a spirit of liberality no doubt, but the donors are ignorant of what Romanism is, and ignorant of the fact that Roman schools always directly teach, or at least lead the pupils toward Romanism; or, the donors are misled by false views of liberality. Liberality by a Protestant to Romanism is certainly, Romanism being what it is, illiberality to Protestantism, for it never does less than aid Romanism as against Protestantism. And liberality, displayed in any Protestant community towards Romanism, in any way that promotes the increase or prosperity of the Roman Catholic Church, is illiberality to that community and to the country at large, for the spread of Romanism is detrimental to the welfare of any community or country.

The Romanist urges the advantages to secure from education, but Romish education we repeat is always Romewards. Romanists themselves are far too wise to practice what they applaud in Protestants. Did one ever hear of a Romanist donating land for a Protestant school? Nay, verily, they are even forbidden to send their children to public schools taught by Protestants—are excommunicated even for so doing. Did one ever hear of a Romish Church being thrown open to Protestants for service? No, indeed! yet Protestants have been known to offer, in their ill-advised liberality, their Church to Romish bishops or priests. True, they never do this but one time, for their liberality is not more promptly accepted than grossly abused, but it has been done and under misconception may be again.

We beg any who may be disposed to listen to the specious pleas of Romanism, and to its absurd claim to be a friend to education, to compare Italy, Spain, Mexico, countries where Papacy holds, or until lately has held, undisputed sway, with Scotland, or Germany; we ask them to compare such part of Ireland as is Roman Catholic with such part of Ireland as is Protestant, and they cannot be imposed upon by any such nonsense.

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

We note that our brethren, editors of the religious journals published at Raleigh, visit our city occasionally, but never give us a call. If ever we go to Raleigh again, we expect to physically demonstrate to them that we do not deserve such treatment.

The Covenant has a very orthodox answer to the question how to reach the masses:

"Nothing so simple. Just go to them! Tell them about Jesus. Make them feel that in them we are all brothers; and that while we have much to tell of the power of His dear name, He is making us better men and better women; better in all the relations of life—men of stronger Faith and more comprehensive Charity."

"Layman" comes out in a communication which we are not expected to answer, but we must insist that neither this journal nor any of its correspondents has decried an educated ministry. Neither the NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN nor any who are rather unkindly and unnecessarily designated as croakers, yield to "Layman" in sympathy for the young ministers—indeed it is in part because of sympathy for young brethren that they ask if they cannot be aided.

"Layman" has essentially missed the point of discussion, we think, and will probably be replied to, but we warn any one who may reply, that a retort upon "Layman" in kind is not allowable. We want the subject discussed and not the motives or opinions of opponents discourteously characterized.

It will be gratifying to many friends to learn that R. Chalmers Davis, son of Rev. T. E. Davis, of Seneca City, S. C., as a student of the graduating class of the University of the city of New York., Medical Department, has been chosen to deliver the Valedictory Address, at the Annual Commencement of that Institution, which takes place February 17th, 1880.

The Living Church says:

"On their human side the Sacraments have their illustrations in the affairs of life. A few strokes of the pen and the foreigner is a naturalized citizen. A piece of paper passed from hand to hand conveys the building or the bank stock. It is conceded that these writings must be executed according to law, or they are worthless."

Well, if these words mean anything at all they mean that "the Sacraments" do for us what legally executed naturalization papers do for a foreigner, and what a deed or certificate of bank stock does for its lawful holder! Now, if the most ultra Romanism can say more, or go farther than this, we would be very much obliged to any one who will have the goodness to point it out to us!—The Covenant.

"A well regulated person needed only to have been at the hanging of the murderer Gillespie, at Taylorsville, last Friday, to have become a thorough convert to the idea of private executions. We are persuaded that nothing carries with it so widespread an influence of demoralization, or has a more marked tendency towards hardening the populace, than the execution of criminals before the public gaze."

In saying which the Statesville Landmark expresses our views exactly.

We noted, a short time since, the failure of Mr. George H. Stuart of Philadelphia, the well-known philanthropist. With great pleasure we now note that "The Merchant's National Bank," with a capital stock of half a million dollars, will soon be doing business with Mr. Stuart as its President. This enterprise has been originated since Mr. Stuart's failure, by his friends. No higher attestation of their confidence in his integrity could have been devised.

The Southwestern Presbyterian never misses a chance to put in a telling blow:

The Echo furnishes the alarming intelligence that the banker of the Pope has suddenly fled from Rome, carrying off with him not only the deposits of the Pope, but also the little savings of a number of the Cardinals of high ecclesiastical officials. That the Pope should entrust his own financial business to this banker was readily thought to be a sufficient endorsement. And other victims felt safe in following the lead of an infallible Pope. This will be regarded as another illustration of the unreliability of the Romish faith, where money is concerned. Pope Pius, in this particular, seemed to be more infallible in money matters than his successor. His success in saving money is well known. But he was particular as to who he deposited his money with. It will be remembered that that so-called infallible Pope did not trust his money with Romish bankers. He deposited it with the Jews.

Father Scully is again in trouble. He is the Romish priest concerning whom so much has been written because of his outrageous conduct towards members of his church who sent their children to the Massachusetts public schools. The Christian at Work says:

"He is accused of breaking his contract with them by raising his pew rents unfairly, of refusing a confession to the children who attend the public schools, and of disgracing them otherwise and publicly, of excluding from mass those present who cannot pay an admission fee, of openly ridiculing the poor for their poverty, etc. All the people are up in arms, declaring the spiritual condition of the church deplorable. A Mr. Rearden, a member of Father Scully's church, lets in some light touching Father Scully's parochial school, affirming "that the greatest curse that can be visited upon the children of the parish is that school that is existing there." Mr. Reardon also suggests a remedy, "to button up our pockets and keep our hands over our wallets. Then they (Fathers Scully and Mundy) will go." It will be well for Father Scully's dissatisfied people if they follow Mr. Reardon's advice; and if the Roman Catholics in Cambridge shall conclude that it is far better to send their children to the 'secular' public schools, attending themselves to the spiritual education of their children, they will have learned a lesson which will be worth all that Father Scully's impertinence and his outrageous proceedings have cost."

NEWS NOTES.

We specially invite news from all quarters for this column.

At a meeting of Newark Presbytery, Feb. 3rd, Rev. Lucius H. Baldwin was dismissed to Orange Presbytery. He takes charge of the Presbyterian church at Tarboro, N. C.

In the appropriate columns appears an obituary of Mrs. Isabella Darnall, the venerable mother of Rev. H. T. Darnall. We extend our sympathies.

COLPORTAGE IN THE BAHAMAS.

Capt. W. J. Potter, well-known and known most favorably in Wilmington and Smithville writes to us of his colportage work in the Bahama Islands. The prayers of God's people everywhere, are invoked for the work in which this brother is engaged.

"I am here, working, Jan. 29th. I find that the colporteur has a wide field to cultivate for the Master, for there are many old Bahamans who have heard the hurricane many times, but are not acquainted with Jesus. Oh! dear Brother, I am trying the best I can to sow the good seed. I leave the results with God.

"This is the most beautiful country I ever saw, the climate is delightful and fruit growing all around you. I will finish Harbor Island this week and then go to San Salvador and other Islands. Pray for me."

TUSKALOOSA INSTITUTE.

Rev. D. A. McRae writes to us from Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 12th, about this school:

Leaving home on the 20th of January, I made it my special business to visit Tuskaloosa Institute. I there found Bro. D. C. Rankin earnestly engaged in his work, and one day was spent in the lecture-room with Prof. Rankin and his students. I heard and saw all the exercises for that day. Some of the students are making wonderful progress in Greek; and all are doing as well or perhaps better than could be expected in all their studies. They are encouraged to inquire of the professor concerning things they do not understand, and some of the questions asked indicate thoughtfulness. Thus one asked while the Professor was examining on Theology: "If a minister, in baptising an infant, would omit calling the name of one of the persons of the Godhead, would the baptism be considered valid?" I will not give the Professor's answer, hoping that some one will answer the question through your columns. Tuskaloosa is emphatically united in almost every respect for the Institute. The Institute is surrrounded by the right kind of atmosphere, and is retired from many evil influences that might be brought to bear against it in some other places, and the sympathies of all denominations of Christians appear to be with it in its work. I had the pleasure of making the acquaintance of Dr. Stillman; and Drs. Little, Read, and Searcy, whose hearts are fully in the work. It is to be hoped that the whole church will come up as one man and support and sustain this great work; and that the Synod of North Carolina will adhere strictly to the resolution adopted at its last meeting, in connection with this matter.

SECOND CHURCH, WILMINGTON, N. C.

At communion of the Second Presbyterian church, of which Rev. C. M. Payne is pastor, six members were received. To two of them baptism was administered. Preliminary services were held on the evenings of Wednesday and Friday, and the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered on Sabbath, 15th inst.

GOLDSBORO' CHURCH.

Mr. T. B. Hyman, of Goldsboro', N. C., writes:

"Rev. R. C. Reed has declined the call to the Goldsboro' Church. Congregation last night voted a call to Rev. R. B. McAlpine of the Synod of Alabama."

MORE KINDNESS.

DEAR BROTHER:—First one and then another of your correspondents has been moved to tell of kindnesses received from the people of their charge. I also might unfold a budget of the same kind but the deeds were privately done and I do not know that I ought. Suffice it to say that supplies for the store room came in from Oxford and Henderson, from Manson and even from Wilmington, and that they brought with them gifts to the children (and to the parents too) from the dear children of the Church who thus remind us that they are not to be forgotten in our prayers and labors for the Church of God. May the Father's blessing be on them. Our thanks, hearty and true to all the kind friends who have thus shown kindness to us.

D. E. J.

Our good brother, Rev. A. N. Ferguson, on 4th inst., took to his home a wife. More on that subject we know not and therefore cannot say, but our congratulations, go to the happy pair. We really started out to say that the Laurel Hill congregation went far beyond kind words—which "butter no parsnips we are told"—and invaded the premises of the devoted couple. And now, we seem to see the ladies and gentlemen rushing in, taking possession, spreading the table and crowding it with good things. Then in vision those good things disappear, and the scene changes. A cart drives up with a barrel of flour, and while that is being stored away, comes the rolling of chariots as of the Scythians of old. On they come from all quarters, by all roads, bringing flour, corn, potatoes, meat, chickens, &c., &c.,—and, speak it softly—greenbacks! The invaded seemed to take it well. One might suppose, indeed, from the looks and words, not less than from the deeds, that the whole affair was a nice thing, done very nicely.

The value of the gifts is considerable, but the pastor of Laurel Hill Church specially appreciates the evidence of kindly feeling on the part of his flock and returns to all his prayer that God may bless them.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

SUSTENTATION IN FAYETTEVILLE PRESBYTERY.

The Committee of Home Missions in Fayetteville Presbytery consists of Rev. Martin McQueen, Rev. David Fairley, and Elders B. Fuller, Joseph McArthur and Dr. Hugh A. McSwain, with the chairman.

This committee will meet in Fayetteville on Thursday, the 11th of March ensuing, for acting on applications from feeble churches for aid in supporting their ministers. These applications must come from the sessions of the churches, and should state:

1st. What part of a minister's time is desired.

2d. What sum the church proposes to pay.

3d. Whether this amount has been raised by a fair effort and is in proportion to its ability; and

4th. What aid is needed to secure preaching.

The committee can appropriate only what the churches furnish for Sustentation by collections during the months of January and February, after deducting fifteen per cent. for the Assembly's treasury, according to the direction of Presbytery. Let every church in our bounds then take up its collection for this object during the period mentioned, and forward the contribution promptly to Rev. J. P. McPherson, Treasurer of Presbytery, by the first week in March. At least three charges will need aid, and liberal contributions to the Sustentation fund must be made if we help efficiently our feeble organizations.

H. G. HILL,
Ch'm'n Home Mission Committee.

For the N. C. Presbyterian

A CARD.

Through the kindness of a friend I have been furnished with a slip from the N. C. PRESBYTERIAN, containing the criticism of P. T. P. on my expositions of the Beatitudes in the Earnest Worker for the month of February.

There is not the difference of a hair between my own views and those of P. T. P. on the points he has indicated. I fully concur with him in regarding all gracious exercises as wrought in the soul by the Holy Ghost; also that faith and repentance are so co-ordinate that each successively involves the other.

My view of the Beatitudes is this: that in each of them we have an articulate statement of some feature of the Christian character and life, clear out as though it stood by itself, in order to its full exposition. Whilst in Christian experience they interpenetrate each other and blend together in a composite whole, just as the colors of the spectrum are defined respectively as red, orange and yellow, whilst they shade into each other, coalescing in the white light which floods a hemisphere with its glory.

The position of the fourth Beatitude was emphasized simply to distinguish the elements which enter into conviction for sin and those which are found in true conversion, the turning point being the faith which receives Christ and rests upon Him alone for salvation.

Had I dreamed of the possibility of misconstruction upon points where Calvinists are so entirely agreed, the exposition might have been more guarded in its language. Its design was only to rescue the Beatitudes from a cold ethical interpretation, and to show that in them all the elements of a true Christian experience are presented in their logical connexion.

B. M. PALMER.

New Orleans, Feb 10, 1880.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

"A BIT OF PERSONAL HISTORY."

Mr. Editor: A communication with this heading, in your paper of Feb. 11th, in the third paragraph, suggests "a confusion or mistake" in an article taken from the Central Presbyterian and published in your paper of Dec. 31st. The writer thinks the language implies that four of Major Morton's daughters married ministers; but it does not. The clause after "Rev. James Wharey" mentions "two of the daughters" and refers to Mr. Wharey's daughters. Yours, &c.,

"CENTRAL PRESBYTERIAN."

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

TO THE CHURCHES OF MECKLENBURG PRESBYTERY.

I have been requested to give notice to the churches that I expect—Providence permitting—to enter on my work as Evangelist, in Cherokee county, about the first of April. Any contributions for the establishment of our Church, in this new field, will be gladly received, as soon as possible, by Col. J. L. Brown, or Gen. R. D. Johnston, of Charlotte, N. C. These gentlemen are the committee to collect funds for this special work.

Your fellow servant in Christ,
S. C. ALEXANDER.

BENEFICIARY EDUCATION.

Receipts for Beneficiary Education from January 1st to February, 1880.

Synod of Alabama	$ 56 80
" " Arkansas	103 80
" " Georgia	11 10
" " Kentucky	304 95
" " Memphis	153 85
" " Mississippi	32 65
" " Missouri	59 59
" " Nashville	52 58
" " North Carolina	149 93
" " South Carolina	86 13
" " Texas	248 90
" " Virginia	445 29

NORTH CAROLINA.

Presbytery of Orange.—Bethel, $3 82; Graham, 25 80; Greensboro, 16 33; Fairfield, 1 47; Lexington, 5 55; Little River, 4 15; Madison, 7 10; Red House, 4; Second Church, Raleigh, 2; Pittsboro, 2; Company Shop, 1 87; Eno, 1 55; Winston, 7; New Hope, 2; Chapel Hill, 8; Cross Roads, 4; Newbern, 30; Buffalo, 2 62; Newbern Sunday School, 3 35; Jos. S. Morrison, 5 70 ..... 137 71

Presbytery of Fayetteville.—Ashpole, 7 10; Fayetteville Sunday School, 5 12 ..... 12 22

Total of Synod	$ 149 93
Miscellaneous	247 15
Grand Total	$1,952 72

G. W. MAC RAE, Treasurer,
300 Front St., Memphis, Tenn.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Roman Catholicism in the United States. 1879. The Authors' Publishing Co., N. Y. $1 25. Roman Catholicism, its spirit and relation to modern civilization and our national government; is the subject of this book. Many important facts and declarations are presented, and their significance unveiled. No more important subject claims to-day the earnest attention of every Protestant American citizen. This volume has the true ring, but the author's style is repetitious.

Rev. Adonijah and His Wife's Relations. By Mrs. L. A. B. Steele. 1879. The Author's Publishing Company, New York. $1. An interesting and practical story of New England parish life; the settlements and mistakes of a young pastor, and the evils of a sharp gossip's tongue. The book is handsomely bound.

The Manliness of Christ. By Thomas Hughes, Q. C., author of "Tom Brown's School Days." 1880. Houghton, Osgood & Co., Boston. $1. We are glad that Messrs. Houghton, Osgood & Co., are rising from the ashes of their late fire, and once more sending out from the "Riverside Press" their sterling publications. This volume embraces, in the main, papers originally published in Good Words, and presents, in a fresh and simple, yet scholarly way, the perfection of the human bearing and carriage of Christ in working out His mission on earth. By a rapid analysis of Christ's life and a terse picturing of all surroundings and conflicting motives the figure of the Son of Man and Son of God rises grandly before us as the true Head of humanity, the perfect Ideal of wisdom, love and holy courage. In mechanical execution the volume is perfect.

The Missionary Herald, A. B. C. F. M. February. Boston. 1880. Illustrated.

Brain Work and Over Work, by Dr. H. C. Wood, Clin Prof. of Nervous Diseases in the University of Pennsylvania, is No. 8 of American Health Primers, issued by P. Blakiston, Philadelphia. 1880. 50 cents. It is full of most sensible and valuable matter for every brain-worker who would avoid ill health and a break down through ignorant waste of nervous energy.

The North American Review for February has: The Catholic Church and Modern Society, Cardinal Manning; The Third Term, T. O. Howe; M. de Lesseps and His Canal, Rear Admiral Daniel Ammen; Now and Then in America, George Angustus Sala; The Emancipation Proclamation, President James C. Welling; Recent English Literature, M. W. Hazeltine. Published monthly by D. Appleton & Co., New York, at $5 a year.

The Edinburgh Review for January contains: Agricultural Depression; Hamerton's Life of Turner; The Military Positions of Russia and England in Central Asia; Ireland, Her Present and Future; The Persian Miracle Play; British Light-Houses; Russia Before and After the War; Lord Minto in India; Plain Whig Principles.

The British Quarterly Review for January contains: The Lords of Ardres; Glimpses of the New Gold and Silver Mines; Modern Greece; Practical Aesthetics; Why is Scotland Radical; The Christian Idea of God; Early Nonconformist Psalmody; Mr. Gladstone and the Nation; Contemporary Literature.

From I. K. Funk & Co., 23 Barclay street, New York, we have John Ploughman's Talk (Rev. C. H. Spurgeon) and On the Choice of Books, by Thomas Carlyle, under one paper cover for 12 cents. I. K. Funk & Co. are doing the cause of education good service by getting up at an incredibly cheap price various first class books, such as Macaulay's Essays—"Milton," "Dryden," "Bunyan," "History," and two essays on "Johnson"—under one cover for 15 cents. Also The Manliness of Jesus, by Thomas Hughes, author of "Tom Brown's School Days," for 10 cents.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine holds its position as the best magazine of its kind in this country, if not in the world. $3 yearly, 25 cents a number.

Proceedings of the Synod of North Carolina, sixty-sixth annual session, on our table. Gotten up very neatly by Uzzell & Wiley, Raleigh, N. C.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

The lecture room of the new Presbyterian church at Danville, Va., has been made ready for services. Rev. Dr. —— Hall of Lynchburg, preached there on Sunday, the 8th inst.

Mr. John B. Adger, Jr., only son of Rev. Dr. Adger died at Pendleton, S. C., on 3rd inst., from the injuries received from being thrown from a carriage, and of which our readers were advised. He was to have been ordained as a ruling elder and installed in the Pendleton church on the Sabbath after the accident.

From the Christian Observer we learn that as a result of visitations and preaching by Rev. James H. Morrison, pastor of Portland Avenue church, Louisville, Ky., and Rev. S. W. Blain there have been seven professions of religion at New Haven, Ky. The services were held in the Methodist church, which was kindly allowed for the purpose. A nucleus for a Presbyterian church has thus been formed.

Ten persons have lately been received into the Third church, Knoxville, Tenn., of which Rev. Dr. W. A. Harrison is pastor.

The Presbytery of Western District met at Humboldt, Tenn., on 22nd ult. Rev. J. E. Dubose and ruling elder William A. Allison were elected delegates to the General Assembly, and Rev. B. M. Faris and ruling elder W. D. Robertson alternates. All pastors and stated supplies are requested to preach on the subject of Foreign Missions at least once before the first Sabbath in May.

The Rev. Dr. R. L. Breck, says the Kentucky Register, will tender his resignation as Chancellor of Central University.

Rev. S. McCune lately conducted protracted services at Stony Run church, Highland county, Va., preaching twenty-nine nights in succession. Many persons from a distance had never before seen a meeting conducted with such order, quietness and solemnity. As the result of the meeting twenty-one persons professed religion. It was, indeed, solemn and touching when several of the older members of the community, whose heads had grown hoary with age, came forward and humbly professed Christ. Fourteen united with the Stony Run Presbyterian church, two expect to connect themselves with the church at Williamsville, three with the Methodist church, and the rest are undecided. Before these revival services were held, there were only thirteen white members in the church.—Central Presbyterian.

The church at Uniontown, Ala., has tendered a unanimous call to Rev. Dr. E. T. Baird and he will remove there immediately to take charge of that church. Demopolis will have a portion of his time also. This supplies an important vacancy in the Presbytery of South Alabama.—Christian Observer.

Rev. J. J. Robinson, D. D., has signified to the church at Enfaula, Ala., his desire to be released from the pastoral care of that church after the 1st of June next. He has been with that people nearly thirteen years. The church has meanwhile doubled in membership; it has the best house of worship in a city noted for its church buildings, and the congregation will lose nothing by comparison with the others.—Christian Observer.

Rev. J. R. Jacobs writes to the Southern Presbyterian from Corpus Christi, Texas: "I am glad to write that the Holy Spirit still appears to be moving among my people. Since I wrote you last we have received six others upon profession of faith, and I believe we have reason to expect a further blessing. We have been holding no extra services except an occasional inquiry and session meeting. The Lord appears to have blessed the simple stated preaching of the word. One by one there has been a continual coming in, until now I find that we have received fourteen in the past six or seven months."

Changes of postoffice addresses are as follows: Rev. W. H. Darnall from Lebanon to Chattanooga, Tenn.; Rev. R. Q. Way from Savannah to Way's Station, Ga.; Rev. Dr. J. A. Dickson from Paris to Millersburg, Ky.; Rev. N. M. Long from Pulaski to No. 8 Madison street, Memphis, Tenn. Mr. Long will take charge for one year of Lauderdale street church, Memphis.

Items from the St. Louis Presbyterian: We hear that special services of a few days preparatory to the celebration of the Lord's Supper, on the 23d ult., in the Church at Memphis, Mo., (Rev. M. G. Goriu, pastor,) were marked by much more than usual interest. Three persons were received. Two adults and four children were baptized.

Rev. T. C. Barret pastor elect of Mizpah Church, has entered upon his work. His correspondents will please note that his address is changed from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to Pattonville, St. Louis county, Mo.

Rev. C. W. Humphreys, of Virginia, has accepted an invitation to take charge of the Paris, Pleasant Hill, Florida and Mt. Prairie Churches, in Palmyra Presbytery, and will remove thither as soon as the health of his family will allow.

Rev. W. E. Burke, now of Montgomery City, in this State, is about removing to Arkansas to take charge of the Church at Prescott.

The Audrian Press says that the protracted meeting at the Presbyterian church in Mexico, Mo., closed with eight additions to the membership. From the date at which Dr. Grasty assumed pastoral charge of the church there has been, as we learn, a very material increase in the membership with every indication of steady and continuous growth.

A telephone (we so learn from the Staunton Vindicator) has been placed in the First Presbyterian church, of which Rev. W. E. Baker is pastor, and connected with the room of an invalid lady. The services were heard distinctly by the lady.

At the called meeting of Lexington Presbytery the pastoral relation between Rev. Daniel L. Wilson and Broadway church, Va., was dissolved. The post office address of Mr. Wilson has been changed from Broadway, Rockingham county, to Churchville, Augusta county, Va.

The Goliad Guard, of Goliad, Texas, says: "The Presbyterian church has renewed the engagement with Rev. W. E. Caldwell for his pastoral services for the present year. He will preach at night on the second Sabbath of each month, and morning and night of each fourth Sabbath monthly, the other parts of his time being engaged elsewhere." We learn that these other parts of his time are employed as follows: He preaches one Sabbath monthly at Charco, fifteen miles from Goliad; one Sabbath at Refugio, twenty-eight miles distant, and one at Lagarto, west of the Nences river, in Live Oak county, sixty miles distant."—Texas Presbyterian.

BAPTIST.

R. H. Austin, President of the Baptist General Association of Pennsylvania, writes: "There are 869 towns, having from 1,500 to 12,000 inhabitants, without Baptist churches, and entire counties without a single Baptist meeting house."

NORTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Dr. Wm. M. Taylor, pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle has been called unanimously to the Second Presbyterian church of Philadelphia.

The Herald and Presbyter says: We are sorry to learn that Rev. Dr. Robinson, the pastor of the Ashland, Ohio, Presbyterian church, has had another stroke of paralysis. His health being quite feeble, he will probably never be able to preach again. He has ministered to the church at Ashland for thirty-six years.

REFORMED EPISCOPAL.

The Reformed Episcopal church now reports 9,448 communicants, 3,140 more than last year. It also has a hundred ministers and 8,000 in the Sabbath schools. The past year has seen six churches and fifteen congregations formed.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Twelve French Catholics have joined the Congregational church at Centre Falls, R. I., having been brought into the light by reading the Bible.—Presbyterian.

North Vineland Congregational church has been sold to the Roman Catholics, who will use it as a place of worship.

GENERAL.

Six seamen joined the Upper Bethel Church last night—two upon profession of faith in Christ, and the other four by cards of membership, given to those who are church members at home, and this step constitutes them members of the Bethel church while in the port of New Orleans. One hundred and nine seamen have connected themselves with the Bethel church since November last.

The chaplain is aided by pious mariners in the upper room of the church proper. On last Wednesday the chief officer of a steamship made a religious address, and the second officer of a ship was converted, joined the church, and his vessel sailed the next day. On next Wednesday the second engineer of a steamship will deliver an address on the Claims of Christ upon Men, and especially upon sailors.—New Orleans Times.

SECULAR MISCELLANY.

It is estimated that there are 7,000,000 people in France who have renounced the Roman Catholic religion.

Of the 160,000 houses standing within the boundaries of Philadelphia, twelve out of sixteen are mortgaged.

The Torchlight says an experienced Granville farmer speaks of opening a farming school at an early day. The object of this is to teach the youth practically how to cultivate and cure successfully the fine yellow tobacco. He says such an art in this country would be far more beneficial than the professions, all of which are crowded.

Three kittens have died of diphtheria in Ogdensburg. They contracted the disease from children affected with it. The post mortem examination showed plainly the diphtheric membrane in the kitten's throats.

The Duchess of Edinburgh has three children, who have all magnificent blue eyes, and are as free from any suspicion of coddling as the severest disciplinarian could desire. The eldest, Prince Alfred, is a great, plump, handsome, five-year-old boy. Princess Maria is three years old, fair, and with a wealth of sunny curls. The youngest is unnamed and yet in the cradle.

The Sultan has ten servants whose special duty it is to unfold the carpets for him when he is going to pray; ten to take care of his pipes and cigarettes; two to dress his royal hair; and twenty to attend to his most noble clean shirts. There are a multitude of other attendants about the palace; indeed, it is stated that 800 families and about 4,000 persons live at his Majesty's expense. He is an extravagant house-keeper; the annual expenditures of the palace are mentioned as nearly $14,000,000.

The warehouse of the North Carolina Railroad Company, at Cary, came near being consumed by fire Sunday night, at an early hour. Persons in their return from church saw the fire, and by hard work saved the building. The damage was not very great, but the walls were considerably burned. The contents were not injured. The fire was found to have been caused by a rat, which carried some matches to her nest in the wall of the house.—Raleigh Observer.

Geo. Allen, Esq., of Newberne, is doing a work for Eastern North Carolina not equaled by any other citizen. We refer particularly to his efforts to encourage settlers and advertise the truck farming capacities of that region. He sends us a circular issued by the Newbern Railroad, allowing 500 miles free transportation over the road to settlers from beyond the State's borders who shall occupy not less than 40 acres, in the region adjacent to the line of the road. And not less than half-rates of freight on tools, machinery and material for mills or factories along the line. This is liberal or long-sighted.—Raleigh News.

The mouster Italian double-turreted iron-clad Dnilio; the most powerful war vessel in the world, in a recent trial of her speed gave fourteen miles per hour, working at six-sevenths of her full capacity. It is expected that she will eventually attain a speed of fifteen miles per hour. The armament of the Duilio consists of four 100 ton Armstrong guns 43 feet long, firing projectiles 2,500 pounds in weight, with powder charges of 350 pounds.

At a public sale in this city last Tuesday county bonds sold 101, and Western N. C. Railroad bonds (guaranteed by the State) at 102½—the par value of both classes of bonds being valued at 100, the latter free from taxation. The bonds were bought by capitalists.—Charlotte Democrat

We learn that Hon. Thos. S. Ashe, one of the Supreme Court Judges, and Montfort McGeehee, Esq., of Person county, will move to Chapel Hill, and, in conjunction, open a law school. Two men better qualified for such a task could not be found in or out of the State, and it will prove a decided acquisition to the University.—Tobacco Plant.

The Chapel Hill Ledger notes the death of a twenty-nine year old mule, who had served sixteen masters in seventeen States, and fought through the war.

A Berlin letter says that at the government cannon foundry such large orders have been received that a number of fresh hands have been employed, and all are working extra time.

The discovery has been made near Neuwied, in Germany, of what is supposed to be one of the subterranean stores of the ancient Germans, mentioned by Tacitus. It contains charcoal, potsherds of rough descriptions and remains of bones, and on the lime wall is the drawing of a running horse, apparently scratched with a hard stone, and evincing a certain amount of skill.

The largest orchard in the world is probably that of Robert McKinstry, of Hudson, N. Y., which contains more than 24,000 apple trees, 1,700 pear trees, 4,000 cherries, 500 peaches, 200 plums, 200 crabs, 1,500 vines, 6,000 currants and 500 chestnuts. The apple crop of last year was 30,000 barrels.

NORTH CAROLINA PRESBYTERIAN.

PRESBYTERIAL NOTICES.

The Presbytery of Fayetteville will meet at Laurel Hill church, Richmond county, N. C., Wednesday, April 21, 1880, at 11 o'clock a. m.

The usual blanks will be mailed to all the churches in due time. Let these blanks be carefully filled and sent up to Presbytery at Laurel Hill.

The assessments for the "Presbyterial Fund" are considered due April 1st, and should be promptly paid. Churches which are credited to this fund will be duly notified by the Treasuror. J. P. McPHERSON, Stated Clerk.

Fayetteville, N. C., Feb. 7, 1880.

Presbytery of Mecklenburg will meet at Dallas, Friday, March 19, 1880, at 7 p. m.
R. Z. JOHNSTON, S. Clerk.

The 220th session of the Presbytery of Orange will be held in Washington, N. C., on Wednesday, the 24th of March, 1880, at 7 p. m. F. H. JOHNSTON, Stated. Clerk.

GOOD FOR BABIES.

We are pleased to say that our baby was permanently cured of serious protracted irregularity of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.—The Parents, University ave., Rochester, N. Y. See another column.

Messrs. Polk Miller & Co:

Vest Pocket Cure is highly esteemed here by the regular Medical Faculty and the people It is excellent for Indigestion and Flatulent Colic—sedative, soporific, tonic, slightly aperient, without nausea.
Rev. R. L DABNEY, LL. D, Ham. Sid. Col., Va.

15 Pounds Gained in Three Weeks, and CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

Messrs. Craddock & Co., 1032 Race street, Philadelphia, Pa.

GENTLEMEN:—Please send me twelve bottles of DR. A. JAMES' CANNABIS INDICA, one each of Pills and Ointment, for a friend of mine who is not expected to live; and as your medicines cured me of CONSUMPTION some three years ago, I want him to try them. I gained fifteen pounds while taking the first three bottles, and I know it is just the thing for him.
Respectfully, J. V. HULL.
Lawrenceburg, Anderson Co., Ky.

This remedy speaks for itself. One bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. There is not a single symptom of CONSUMPTION that it does not dissipate at once, and it will break up a fresh cold in 24 hours. $2 50 per bottle. Address
CRADDOCK & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and Throat and Lung, Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative power in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. SHERAR, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, New York.

We invite the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mr. J. L. Winner. Mr. Winner is a gentleman of long experience, and we think well deserving of extensive patronage.

Ladies' and children's boots and shoes cannot run over if Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners are used.

Those who wish a reliable preparation for the hair should adopt Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer.

The remarkable proposition of Marchal & Smith, in this week's issue, cannot fail to attract the attention of all interested in that noble and beautiful instrument which they offer. The terms upon which they are willing to supply the public insures complete satisfaction. They give you the instrument on trial, and if in every respect it does not please they remove it without cost. Organ-makers have never before manifested such unbounded confidence in their own work. Messrs. Marchal & Smith have had an experience of twenty years as organ manufacturers, and they have customers in every part of the country.—A. C. Review.

MARRIED.

☞No notice of a marriage or death will be inserted unless accompanied by a responsible name, which is wanted not for publication but as a guaranty of good faith.

On the 29th ult., at the the residence of the bride's mother, (Mrs. Juda McFadyen,) by the Rev. James McQueen, Miss FLORA McFADYEN and Mr. JOHN A. MUNN, all of Moore county.

At the residence of the bride's father, at Pittsboro, N. C., Feb. 11, by the Rev. P. R. Law, Mr. J. J. PEOPLES and Miss FLORA J. PACE.

In Laurinburg, N.C., Feb. 12, at the residenee of the bride's father, by Rev. J. H. Coble, Mr. M. M. BITCH and Miss LIZZIE, daughter of Col. John C. McLaurin.

In Richmond county, at the residence of Mr. Murdoch McCormic, the bride's father, on the 12th inst., by Rev. A. N. Fergusen, Mr. M. H. McCALL and Miss ANNA J. McCORMIC.

In Fayetteville, N. C., on January 15th, at the residence of Mr. Joseph Utley, Jr., by the Rev. H. G. Hill, Mr. WALTER B. ROBESON of Bladen county to Miss MINNIE UTLEY of Fayetteville

DIED.

☞Obituary notices must be paid for in advance. The first ten lines are inserted free. The excess over ten lines is charged for at the rate of ten cents per line. Correspondents can ascertain what an obituary will cost by counting eight words to a line, and multiplying each line by ten cents.

Near Milton, N. C., Jan. 25, 1880, Mrs. CHRISTINE GARLAND, in the 77th year of her age. She was for twenty-seven years a member of the Presbyterian Church.

In Fayetteville, N. C., February 5th, Mrs. MARGARET HOOPER, in the 79th year of her age. The deceased was an earnest Christian, a zealous Presbyterian, an active church worker, a kind friend to the poor, and a conscientious laborer for extending Christ's kingdom. Her life was full of good works. "Planted in the house of the Lord she flourished in the courts of our God, and brought forth fruit in old age." H. G. H.

At the residence of her son, Rev. H. T. Darnall, in Milton, N. C., on Feb. 5th, 1880, Mrs. ISABELLA M. DARNALL, in the 71st year of her age.
It pleased God to bring her to her rest after a very long and painful illness. Her sufferings were borne, however, with patient, cheerful resignation to God's will, and her end was perfect peace. She died with no cloud, either of donbt or fear, about her. In the exercise of a simple, trusting faith, and in the hope of a blessed immortality she calmly awaited God's will, expressing herself as wholly submissive to it and passed away without a struggle. Her life and character was the exemplification of all that enters into the idea of a Christian mother. H. T. D.

In Cumberland county, December 2d, 1879, DANIEL McCASKILL, in the 74th year of his age.
He was, from a young man, a devoted follower of Jesus.

Near Milton, N. C., on Monday, January 26th, Miss ELLA A. SHETON, after a lingering illness, aged about 18 years.

In Orange county, February 10th, Mrs. CORNELIA HUGHES, wife of Thomas H. Hughes, Esq., in the 61st year of her age.
She professed faith in Christ in her 16th year, joined the Presbyterian Church, and lived a consistent Christian life. She was a kind friend, a faithful wife and a devoted mother. She will be sadly missed by those who knew her best. But the bereaved do not mourn as those who have no hope. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labor, and their works do follow them."

WILMINGTON MARKET
DURING WEEK
ENDING FEBRUARY 18.

THE attention of all persons interested is called to the fact that strict personal attention is given to the collection of the necessary information, and the careful preparation of our MARKET REPORT, so as to give a correct general review of transactions and prices, for the week ending each Tuesday morning.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE—Wednesday and Thursday 38 cents per gallon; Friday some sales at 39 cents, but the bulk of sales at 40 cents; Saturday 39 cents; Monday large sales were made at 40 cents. At close of our report the tendency was to higher prices

ROSIN—Sales of Good Strained were made on Wednesday last at $1 17½, but market revived somewhat on Thursday and sales were made at $1 17½ for Strained and $1 20 for Good Strained. At figures last named sales have been made since to the close.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—$1 55 for Hard and $2 55 for Soft throughout.

TAR—Steady throughout at $1 10.

COTTON—Sales as far as made have been on a basis of 12¾ cents per pound for Middling. On Monday and Tuesday these figures could not be realized and there were no sales.

CORN—Market quiet and steady, with moderate demand. We quote White at 67½ cents. A cargo, 2000 bushels, received and sold, price not transpired.

TIMBER—A large quantity of Timber has arrived and is readily taken at prices showing little or no decline. In such activity we quote sales Common at $5, and proportionate prices for intermediate grades, up to $13 for extra large and long.

COUGHS AND COLDS are often overlooked. A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs or some chronic Throat Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are an effectual COUGH REMEDY.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

SEEDS For 50c we will send 12 choice varieties of Flower or Garden Seed, worth $1 10. PARAGON SEED CO., Newtown, Pa.

EVERY-DAY PROBLEMS,
BY JOSEPH COOK,
A SERIES OF PAPERS ON
"How to Read," "Labor and Capital," "The Workingman's Home," etc., etc., in
THE CHRISTIAN UNION,
27 Park Place, New York.
Per annum, $3; clergymen, $2.50; sample copies free.

NEW JEWELRY STORE.

THE UNDERSIGNED WISHES TO INFORM the public in general that he is prepared to give entire satisfaction in repairing fine Watches, Jewelry and Chronometers. Over twenty years' practical experience. Prices consistent with good work.
J. L. WINNER,
No. 3 S. Front st., Wilmington, N. C.
Orders by mail will be promptly attended to. References, business men of Wilmington. [632 TRUTHS.

Hop Bitters
(A Medicine, Not a Drink) CONTAINS
HOPS, BUCHU, MANDRAKE, DANDELION,
AND THE PUREST AND BEST MEDICAL QUALITIES OF ALL OTHER BITTERS.
THEY CURE
All Diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Female Complaints and DRUNKENNESS.
$1000 IN GOLD
Will be paid for a case they will not cure or help, or for anything impure or injurious found in them.
Ask your druggist for Hop Bitters and free books, and try the Bitters before you sleep. Take no other Hop Cough Cure and Pain Relief is the cheapest, surest and best.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS. 632

COOK'S
Grand Excursions to EUROPE.
1880 FOR THE SUMMER OF 1880
ANNUAL MAY PARTY.
GRAND ANNUAL EDUCATIONAL PARTY.
ANNUAL MIDSUMMER PARTY.
Pamplet containing full particulars, with MAP OF EUROPE, sent free on application.
Tourist Tickets, for Independent Travelers, by all routes.
Cook's Excursionist contains fares for over 1,000 tours; by mail, 10 cents.
Address, THOMAS COOK & SON,
261 Broadway, New York; P. O. 4197.
feb 11 631-6t

ELECTRICITY is Life Dr. DYE'S Galvanic Battery and Absorption Pad cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, all Nervous, Liver and Stomach diseases by Absorption, while it renews vitality, aids nature, strengthens the nerves, makes the weak strong by its astonishing electrical powers. It is safe, pleasant, certain, sure Price only $2. Sent free by mail. For circulars, testimonials, &c., address DYE BATTERY and PAD CO., Box 679, Brattleboro, Vt.
feb 11 631-2t

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE
PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE WORLD
It contains 672 fine historical engravings and 1260 large double-column pages, and is the most complete History of the World ever published. It sells at sight. Send for specimen pages and extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book
Address, NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philadelphia, Pa.
feb 11 631-4t

MY WIFE
says: If you want to get POSTED upon BUYING FURNITURE get an Illustrated Price List of the BROOKLYN FURNITURE CO, 557 to 574 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y. ☞Send for one, mailed FREE.
feb 11 631-4t

EMPLOYMENT—LOCAL OR Traveling; state which preferred. Also SALARY per month. All EXPENSES advanced. WAGES promptly paid. SLOAN & Co. 306 George St. Cincinnati, O.
feb 11 631-2t

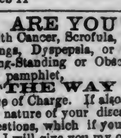
AGENTS WANTED for THE SUMMIT STOVE PIPE SHELF And Utensil Stand
The most convenient article ever offered to Housekeepers. One Agent made $166.65 in 12 days! another $98 in 8 days; another $18 in 1 day. Freight charges to Agents Free. For Circulars, address
R. S. HARTZELL & CO.,
No. 236 South Third Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
feb 11 631-4t



IMPROVE Your Long Evenings
Make Money and Beautify Your Home
A Scroll Saw
Will pay for itself in 4 Cards. I keep a full line of Treadle Scroll Saws, the Neatly, Boxes, Fret-work, etc., and Manufacturers' Prices. Send for my large Illustrated catalogue and price list of Scroll Saws, Carving Tools, Workbenches and Machinery. Clocks, Fancy Woods, Designs, Agency, etc. I am the oldest dealer in these goods in the U. S. My trade extends to all civilized countries in the world, and I never recommend poor goods. My New edition of Hope's Manual of Scroll Saw Jig (ready Jan. 20th) contains 100 pp., has 80 full size handsome designs, and should be in the hands of every Scroll Sawyer. Price, 25 cts., postpaid.
JOHN WILKINSON, Importer and Manufacturer, No. 77 State Street, Chicago, Ill.
feb 11 631-4t

ARE YOU SUFFERING
With Cancer, Scrofula, Epilepsy, and Disease of the Lungs, Dyspepsia, or any other form of Chronic, Long-Standing or Obscure Disease? If so, send for my pamphlet,
"THE WAY TO HEALTH."
Free of Charge. If also, you will give me an idea of the nature of your disease, I will send you a list of questions, which if you will answer and return to me I will give you my opinion of your case, prospect of cure, &c., free, except a postage stamp for the answer.
Address E. H. GREENE, M. D., Charlotte, N. C.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE ORPHANS' FRIEND,
(Organ of the Orphan Asylum at Oxford, and of the Grand Lodge of Masons in North Carolina.)
IS PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, AT
ONE DOLLAR A YEAR!
It is designed to promote the Entertainment, Instruction and INTERESTS OF THE YOUNG.
Especially those deprived of the benefits of parental and scholastic training. It also seeks to increase the soul-growth of the prosperous by suggesting proper objects of charity, and true channels of benevolence, in order that they may, by doing good to others, enlarge their own hearts and extend the horizon of their human sympathies, as they ascend to a higher plane of Christian observation. Address
ORPHANS' FRIEND,
361 feb 11-tf OXFORD, N. C.

SELECT BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL,
HILLSBOROUGH, NORTH CAROLINA.
Misses NASH and Miss KOLLOCK, Principals.
THE SPRING TERM of 1880 will open the 6th of FEBRUARY and close on 24th of JUNE Board and Tuition $100.
Circulars forwarded on application.
466-*jan.1.'79

WHAT A FARMER HAS TO SAY
To Other Farmers
About Corn, Potatoes and Hay. Send postal for circular fully describing pure white Horse-tooth Seed Corn; Second Crop Irish Potatoes, a new discovery in Potatoes; Pearl Millet Seed, 10 cents per lb., a great forage plant. Their cultivation and uses. Also describing some of the best farms in Virginia for sale. Address A. H. LINDSAY, jan 7-feb 4-18-mh3 Portsmouth, Virginia.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS
A GREEN-HOUSE AT YOUR DOOR
We will send, free by mail, and guarantee their safe arrival in Good Condition, our choice
10 ROSES.....10 sorts.
10 VERBENAS.....10 "
10 Basket or Bedding Plants.....10 "
10 GERANIUMS.....10 "
10 CARNATIONS.....10 "
10 Tuberoses, all double.....
10 Gladioli, all Flowering Bulbs.....
2 Camellia Japonicas, and 2 Azaleas.....
Hundreds of others—
CHEAP, and many RARE!
For your choice of varieties, see our 72-page Catalogue, free. Also an immense stock of Price-list Ornamental Trees, Evergreens, Small Fruits, Shrubs, etc.
6 Hardy Flowering Shrubs.....6 sorts.
25 Carnet Roses.....25 "
25 Raspberry Plants.....3 "
75 Strawberry Plants.....5 "
6 Grape Vines.....4 "
40 Sweet Chestnuts.....100 Catalog Prices.
With Four 15 Greenhouses: 400 Acres.
STORRS, HARRISON & CO., Painesville, Ohio.
jan 21 628-4teow

D. M. FERRY & CO'S ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE AND PRICED SEED ANNUAL FOR 1880
Will be mailed free to all applicants, and to customers without ordering it. It contains four colored plates, 300 engravings, about 200 pages, and full directions for planting 1500 varieties of Vegetable and Flower Seeds, Plants, Roses, etc. Invaluable to all. Send for it. Address,
D. M. FERRY & CO., Detroit, Mich.
jan 7 626-4teow

PETER HENDERSON & CO.
SELL EVERYTHING FOR THE GARDEN
CATALOGUE FREE TO ALL.
Peter Henderson & Co.
35 CORTLANDT ST. NEW YORK
jan 21 628-5t

BETHEL ACADEMY,
DAVIDSON COLLEGE (P. O.) N. C.
Rev. L. K. GLASGOW, A. M. Principal.
Miss ELLA W. FLEMING, Assistant.
NINTH semi-annual session begins January 28, 1880. Boarders in Principal's family pay in advance for all expense except books, per quarter (10 weeks) $30.
For circulars containing testimonials from well-known educators and from patrons, address the Principal. dec 31-tf

BAND INSTRUMENT CATALOGUE.
Our new catalogue of Band Instruments, Music, Suits, Caps, Belts, Pouches, Pompons, Drum Majors' Staffs and Hats, Epaulets, Cap Lamps, Stands, and Outfits contains 85 pages of information for musicians. Mailed free. Address
LYON & HEALY, 162 State St., Chicago, Ill.
feb 11 631-4t

D. ROSSET & NORTHROP,
FIRE AND MARINE
INSURANCE AGENTS,
REPRESENTING { Standard American AND English Companies.
28 North Water Street,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
nov 19 619-tf

AGENTS WANTED—Best Book—Most Money
THE COMPLETE HOME
How to Keep House, Cook, Dress, Care for Sick, Manage Children, Treat Accidents, Entertain Company, and make Home Beautiful and Happy.
Endorsed by Clergy, Scholars and the Press.
"Valuable and interesting."—REV. DR. WYLIE.
"Can not fail to do good."—J. G. WHITTIER.
"Full of good sense."—PRESBYTERIAN.
Fine paper, Clear type, Beautiful bindings, Low price. Sells everywhere. Full description and terms free. Address
J. C. McCURDY & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.
feb 11-4t mch 10-635 9teow

COTTON!
IN VIEW of the approaching Cotton Season, the undersigned offer their services to Planters and Country Merchants
For the Sale of Cotton,
Which they are prepared to do
On the Most Economical Charges.
They will warrant the full price of the day of sale. Account sales will be rendered promptly, and proceeds be at once remitted.
ALEX. SPRUNT & SON.
Wilmington, N. C.
September 3d, 1879. 608

CHEESE.
200 Boxes No. 1 CREAM CHEESE,
For sale by
KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

1880.
TRY OUR
New Crop Cuba Molasses.
We have received the agency again for the well-known and popular
L. & R. GUANO,
Which we offer, on Crop Time,
For 425 Lbs. Middling Cotton.
Send in your orders.
BRYAN & CO.
Jonesboro, N. C., Jan. 30, 1880.
feb 4 630-8t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THOS. A. McNEILL. FRANK McNEILL.
McNEILL & McNEILL,
Attorneys at Law,
LUMBERTON, N. C.
Practice in all the State and Federal Courts in North Carolina. 598 1y.

SALT
AND
GUANO.
5,000 Sacks
LIVERPOOL SALT,
6,500 Sacks
Peruvian Cotton Guano,
Now landing and for sale low by
WILLIAMS & MURCHISON.

READERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN
If you like to be satisfied deal with
W. J. MOTT,
—Dealer in—
BEEF, VEAL, PORK, &C.
Keeps on hand good Meats, and will endeavour to maintain his reputation in this regard. I will be pleased to have your trade. Very respectfully,
W. J. MOTT,
North side Market street, bet. 2d and 3d.
P. S.—Those who have Fine Beef to sell would do well to consult me either by mail or in person.
nov 19 619-1f

SIMONTON FEMALE COLLEGE,
Statesville, N. C.
THE SPRING TERM of 1880 opens Thursday, January 15. Board and tuition in English, $85 per session of twenty weeks
Catalogue and circular with full particulars, on application.
Address MRS E. N. GRANT, Principal.
feb 20 628-1y

PEACE INSTITUTE,
For Young Ladies,
RALEIGH, N. C.
THE Spring term commences on the 16th of January 1880, and closes the 1st of June following. The total expense of a boarding pupil for one term is $120, payable in advance. This amount will include board, with washing, fuel, lights, furnished room and servant's attendance, tuition in English branches and Latin, Calisthenics, Text Books and Stationery used for school purposes. For $150 all the above, with Instrumental Music and use of Piano. For circular containing particulars as to terms, Course of Study, &c., address
REV. R. BURWELL & SON,
dec 24 624-3m Raleigh, N. C.

HALL & PEARSALL
OFFER FOR SALE AT CLOSE PRICES, A FRESH and COMPLETE stock of GENERAL GROCERIES, consisting in part of
100 Boxes D. S. SIDES,
25 Bbls New MESS PORK,
15 Tubs choice Northern BUTTER
450 Bbls FLOUR, MADE FROM NEW WHEAT AND PUT IN FANCY PACKAGES,
3000 Bush CORN, White and Mixed,
30 Bbls and Hhds New Crop CUBA MOLASSES,
50 Bbls SYRUPS and MOLASSES.
sep 3—608-tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS.
WE ARE OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC THE Latest Novelties in the Millinery Line.
Our Trimming Department is Complete,
and comprises the leading styles.
Our Flexible Hip Corset, with improvements, is just in. No extra charge.
We have on hand a large assortment of Fancy Ribbons, and special bargains are offered in Feather Tips.
Our Fancy Goods Department is larger than ever, with an elegant and varied assortment of Goods to please the ladies.
The Finest Assortment of Ties in the City.
N. H. SPRUNT, Exchange Corner.
nov 5 617-tf

TO THE LADIES.
THE SUBSCRIBER would most respectfully inform her patrons and friends that she is ready to receive orders for MAKING, also for CUTTING and BASTING DRESSES in the
Latest and Most Approved Style.
To her country friends she would say, send in your orders at once.
"First Come, First Served."
MRS. JOSEPH McLAURIN,
apl 23-tf Market Street, between 8th and 9th.

GRAVE STONES and MONUMENTS MADE TO ORDER.
Send your orders by mail.

GUNS, LAMPS, SEWING MACHINES.
BREECH LOADING, SINGLE and DOUBLE Barrel Guns, with all kinds of Implements for loading Shells, Powder, Caps and Wads.
LAMPS of all kinds. German Student, Perkins & House, and others.
The Remington Sewing Machine,
A consignment from the makers at Factory prices—a new and excellent Machine. Prices very low.
Kerosene Oil 7 Cents Per Gallon.
Safety Oil 15 Cents Per Gallon.
GEO. A. PECK.
dec 10 25 South Front Street. 632-tf

$55.66 Agents Profit per Week. Will prove it or forfeit $500. $4 Outfit free. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., 218 Fulton St. N.Y.
oct 8 413-26t

THE DEAF HEAR
THROUGH THE TEETH!
PERFECTLY, all Ordinary Conversation, Lectures, Concerts, etc., by new Chemical Principle in the Nerves of Hearing. A wonderful New Invention, THE DENTAPHONE. Send for pamphlet of remarkable public tests in the Deaf—also on the Deaf and Dumb—See New York Herald, Sept. 28, Cartoon Standard, Sept. 27, 28. It Displaces all Ear-trumpets. Size of an ordinary Watch. Send for our FREE pamphlet. Address
AMERICAN DENTAPHONE CO., 287 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio
dec 24 624-13t

FITS CURED PROMPTLY and PERMANENTLY. I send a bottle of my celebrated remedy, with a valuable treatise on this disease, free to all sufferers who send me their P. O. and Express address. Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl Street, New York.
nov 19 619-13t

AGENTS, READ THIS
We will pay Agents a salary of $100 per month and expenses, or allow a large commission, to sell our new and wonderful inventions. We mean what we say. Sample free. Address SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Mich.
nov 19 619-6m

RAVEN BLACK ALPACAS!

A CHOICE VARIETY
—OF—
Black Dress Goods,
Black Dress Goods a Specialty.
HAMBURG, SWISS, and NAINSOOK Edgings and Insertions.
YEARGAN, PETTY & CO.,
Raleigh, N. C.
Wholesale and Retail.

Any one sending two subscribers (not their own) to Farm and Fireside, Springfield, [illegible], Ohio, Twenty Cents a year, will receive a copy of the Farm and Fireside Cook Book, containing [illegible]

Best Cook Book IN THE WORLD Free
By mail postpaid, as a premium. This Cook Book is published by Farm and Fireside, Springfield, [illegible], Ohio. It is not a paper for the press in the ordinary sense of the word, and has no new matter this year other than that of new paper. It is a large eight page illustrated double column journal, issued twice a month, at fifty cents a year, and draws as much valuable and entertaining reading matter as any $3 journal or magazine. Each number contains something of interest to every member of the family, from the youngest to the oldest, therefore it is a welcome visitor in every household where known.
There being a demand for a reliable and cheap Cook Book, the Publishers requested their readers to contribute their best recipes, those which they had tried and found to be good for publication in a book. OVER 20,000 RECIPES were received, and about 1,000 of the choicest selected. They came from nearly every State and Territory in the Union and Canada, and the names and post office addresses of the contributors are given in the book. If you can double so many recipes at Cook Book prices, ranging $1.50 to $3 each. It tells how to make all kinds of Bread, Biscuit, Rolls, Waffles, Fritters, Puddings, Pastry, Pies, Dumplings, Tarts, Sauces, Salads, Soups, Pickles, Jellies, Preserves, Cakes, Icings, Beverages, Soda Water, Lemonade, Chocolate, Coffee, Tea, Candies, Butter, Soap, etc.; also how to cook all kinds of Meats, Fish, Oysters, Eggs, Terrapin, and Vegetables. It also gives many Health Hints and Recipes, and receipts for Invalids' and Medical compounds, forming much practical information as a great variety of subjects that every house-keeper ought to know. In short, it is just the complete and practical Cook Book that every house-keeper should have, and the demand for it during the coming year will be greater than ever before. Besides the number of Recipes contained in each book, over 25 [illegible] some designs, and should be in the hands of every Scroll Sawyer. Price, 25 cts., postpaid.
HOW TO OBTAIN IT.—It is given FREE as a premium to any one sending TWO subscribers (not their own) to Farm and Fireside, Springfield, Ohio, at 50 cents a year. Free of Cook Book, including one year's subscription to Farm and Fireside, is 75 cents. Send three cent stamp for sample copies of Farm and Fireside and Illustrated Premium List, containing descriptions of 200 new, useful, and attractive articles, which we offer for sale and as premiums. Do not confuse it with similar articles advertised in our Premium List. Address Publishers FARM AND FIRESIDE, SPRINGFIELD, OHIO.

Marchal & Smith.
"NEW" UNIVERSITY ORGAN
NO AGENTS

Sub-Bass, Coupler, Celeste
Solid Walnut—5 Octaves—9 Stops—Two Knee-Swells.
Grand Power, Infinite Variety, Sweetest Tone.
Stops:
(1) Diapason,
(2) Dulcet,
(3) Dulciana,
(4) Echo,
(5) Celeste,
(6) Clarionet,
(7) Sub-Bass,
(8) Coupler,
(9) Vox Humana
From Factory Direct to Purchaser for $65.
Sent for trial and examination to Every one Guaranteed Six Years. You take no responsibility or expense till you test and approve the Organ.
THE ONLY HOUSE IN AMERICA
That offers a 5-octave Organ, 2 Sets of Reeds, Sub-Bass and Coupler for $65.00. Deposit the money with your Bank or any responsible business man to hold till you receive and test the Organ. If you are not satisfied with it, have your money returned to you when you return the Organ to us. Send certificate of such deposit with your order and Organ will be shipped at once for fifteen days' trial. If Organ is returned we pay freight both ways. Our Organs have been Triumphant the World Over.
SEVENTY THOUSAND SOLD—NOT ONE DISSATISFIED PURCHASER.
A MOMENT'S CONSIDERATION will show the certainty of securing a superior instrument from us. Dealers can want to their own shrewdness and the ignorance of purchasers to conceal defects in the instruments they sell. We can not know who will test ours, and must send instruments of a quality so superior that their merits can not be hidden. Circulars with thousands of references sent free.
MARCHAL & SMITH, No. 8 West Eleventh St., New York, N. Y.

DRESS GOODS AND TRIMMINGS.
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.
LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.
Children's Merino Under Suits---A great comfort and convenience.
CLOAKS AT $5, $6, $7, $8, $10 AND UP.
LADIES' DOLLMANS FROM $10 UP. } Very Fashionable this Season and Very Pretty.
PLAIN AND FANCY DOUBLE WIDTH GOODS,
In Black, Grey, Brown, Navy, &c., for Circulars.
A large assortment CARPETS, Cotton, Hemp, Ingrain, Extra Super and Brussels.
OIL CLOTHS IN ALL WIDTHS, MATS, RUGS, &c.
Respectfully, R. M. McINTIRE.
dec 3 631-1y

THE PACIFIC
GUANO COMPANY.

This Company, with a capital of $1,000,000, was chartered in 1865.

The stock was taken by a few of the largest and wealthiest merchants in Boston and New York, who still direct and control the Company.

The Works, situated at Woods' Holl, Mass., and Charleston, S. C., are the largest and most complete of the kind in the United States.

The Company owns several large deposits of Phosphate, which it works, and having acid chambers, manufactures its own Oil of Vitrol.

The Company employs and consults with several of the leading chemists and most progressive vegetable physiologists in the country.

With all these advantages—viz: long experience, ample capital, large works, splendid machinery, extensive deposits, and the best scientific ability, the Company can and does offer a Fertilizer at the lowest possible price.

By reason of the liberal policy of the Company, as well as the intrinsic value of its principal brand, SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO has become, unquestionably, the most popular Fertilizer in the United States, its sale extending from Maine to Texas.

It would be a work of superogation for us to do more than simply call attention to the fact that SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO will be offered this (the fifteenth Spring) season for sale at all points in North Carolina, because there is no manufactured Guano as long, as widely, and certainly none more favorably known, than this brand.

We therefore will devote but a few lines to a description of this popular article, preferring that others should testify from their own practical experience as to its value.

It is proper, however, that we should call attention to a comparative analysis of Fertilizers sold in North Carolina, published in 1878, by Prof. Ledoux, the State Chemist of North Carolina, who places SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO among the very highest grades known.

Such an endorsement of SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO, confirmed as it is by Hon. L. L. Polk, the Commissioner of Agriculture, under whose auspices the analysis was published, is certainly worthy of note.

This year SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO is equal, in every respect, to what it was in 1879.

It is manufactured by the same Company, under the same formula, using the same materials, and hence must give the same splendid analysis as that published by Prof. Ledoux.

It is in fine physical condition.

It is packed in new, clean bags, each bag containing 200 pounds.

The analysis is stenciled on each bag, as required by law.

For Sale By

Whiteville Wine Company, Whiteville.	J. D. Rogers, - - Fair Bluff.
Louis T. Hicks, - - Faisons.	R. M. Gaddy, - - - Mullins.
O. Hicks, Agt. - - Mount Olive.	L. L. MacLaurin & Sons, McLaurin's Mills.
Daniel Bowden, - - Bowden's.	Everett Brothers & Gill, Laurinburg.
T. B. Pierce, - - Warsaw.	MacRae Brothers, Shoe Heel.
A. D. Black, - - Kenansville.

AND BY ALEXANDER SPRUNT & SON.,
General Agents,
feb 4 630-2m WILMINGTON, N. C.

R. B. ANDREWS. (ESTABLISHED 1847.) S. W. WHITING.
R. B. ANDREWS & CO.
Men and Boys CLOTHING, Extra Large Sizes CLOTHING,
Dress Shirts, Cuffs, TIES, SCARFS, Half Hose, Suspenders, Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Underwear, Trunks, Valises, &c.

HATS AND CAPS, A Specialty. A Large Assortment.
We give special attention to orders from a distance.
LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO MINISTERS.
NO. 27 Fayetteville St. Raleigh. N. C.

Fall and Winter Goods
—AT—
M. M. KATZ'S,
36 MARKET STREET.
BARGAINS IN BLACK DRESS SILKS.
Our celebrated heavy soft Gros Grain for One Dollar per yard. COLORED SILKS, SILK VELVETS, SATINS, in plain and satin striper.
DRESS GOODS.—Satin Melange, Cashmere Soie, Brocade Persan, Persan Rare, Raye Broche, Cavalo Mohair, Striped Satins, Camel's Hair, Colored Cashmeres, from 45 cents up. Colored Alpacas, all shades, 12½ cents; Double Width Colored Alpacas, heavy, only 16 cents per yard.
MOURNING GOODS.—The best assortment ever offered here in Drab D'Ete, Bombazine, Tamise, Crape Cloth; Plain, Striped and Brocade Cashmere; Henrietas, Mohairs, Australian Cloth.
CLOAKS, WATERPROOFS, SHAWLS, Trimmings; Silk, Grass and Chenell Fringes; Gloves and Hosiery, every style, good and cheap; Skirts and Corsets The best Fifty Cent Corset ever sold in the city. RIBBONS—Fancy, Satin, Striped and Brocaded. Laces and Embroideries in greatest variety. Housekeeping Goods, Blankets, Flannel.
MEN AND BOYS' WEAR. Ladies' Cloth, Ladies' and Children's Merino Vests, Ruchings, Ties, Fancy Goods. One Thousand Dozen Linen Handkerchiefs, from 5 cents up; DOMESTIC GOODS, &c., &c., all at prices which defy competition, and qualities which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I can assure my kind patrons that every article will be sold AS LOW, and the majority LOWER, than at any previous season. Send for samples to oct 22 M. M. KATZ, 36 Market Street.

NEW BOOKS
For Sunday School and Ministers Libraries. Send for Catalogue containing names of over 1200 Approved Books.
The only safe way to select books for your
SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES
Is to order those which have been read and approved by some competent person.
Our DISCOUNT to MINISTERS and SUNDAY SCHOOLS is the largest offered by any Publisher or Bookseller in the United States
Address orders for all Sunday School Supplies to
PRESBYTERIAN PUBLISHING CO.,
1001 Main Street, Richmond, Va. Or, 207 N. 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR THE FAMILY.

Grandma's Birthday.

BY MRS. AMANDA WHITING.

Happy hearts and faces bright
We are bringing here to-night,
Singing thus with all our might—
All for love of Grandma.

Had we each a seraph's tongue,
Young and old and every one,
Half could not be said or sung
In the praise of Grandma.

Face so kind and loving, too;
Hands that find so much to do;
Heart so faithful good and true,
Has our darling Grandma

Roses sweet should strew the way;
Birds should sing both night and day,
And the sunlight ever stay
In the path of Grandma

This shall be our daily prayer,
Which each loving heart shall share,
That God's mercy long may spare—
Spare to us our Grandma.

And when life's long work is o'er,
May we on the golden shore
Meet and live for evermore—
Evermore with Grandma.

—Christian at Work.

Old Dan.

Farmer Henderson came in from the barn one morning with his hands and clothes wet and covered with mud, his face red, and his eyes flashing.

"Ned!" he shouted, as he entered the kitchen. "Where's Ned?"

"Here I am?" came a cheery voice in reply; and an instant after, a bright, strong boy, of some sixteen years, entered the old fashioned country kitchen from the adjoining woodshed, where he had been cutting potatoes for the day's planting. 'Do you want anything?'

"I want to tell you this," said Mr. Henderson, as he washed himself at the sink, and rubbed the weather-beaten face with the coarse towel until it was even more red than before. "Old Dan must be killed! Just see the state I'm in, and all from that worthless old rascal! I won't have him about the house another day. He's good for nothing but to make trouble, and he must be shot before night!" added the farmer, wrathfully.

Ned was about to plead for his pet, when his little sister came into the room.

"Why, papa, what is the matter?" she cried, running to him in astonishment. "Did you fall into the creek?"

"I might as well," he replied, half laughing. "Old Dan butted me into the watering-trough!"

There was a shout of laughter from both children, in which their mother joined.

"Well, Jedediah," said Mrs. Henderson, coming into the kitchen, and still shaking with mirth, "what could you have been thinking about to let an old ram, 'most twenty years old, knock you into the watering-trough?"

"But," explained her husband, "he took me unawares. I had just filled one pail to carry to the barn, and was stooping to dip the other, when the old rascal came at me like the wind, and knocked me completely into the water! Ha scampered, I tell you, before I could get out. He knew he had done mischief. Anyhow, he's got to be killed to-day, sure. He's only a nuisance, and I'll shoot him to-night, when we come back from town, if he's on the farm."

Two hours later Mr. and Mrs. Henderson drove away to be absent from home until night. As they rattled out of the yard, Old Dan suddenly appeared close to the gate, and wagging his tail as if in derision, gave utterance to a hoarse Baa-a!"

The farmer turned, shook his whip at the fellow, and cried, "This is your last day, my boy! make the most of it!"

Ned and Carrie were the only children. Leaving Carrie in the house alone, after they had considered for awhile whether there was any way of averting Old Dan's sad fate, Ned shouldered his hoe and marched off to his work, planting potatoes with Bronson, the hired man, in the "back lot."

But the little girl of thirteen had no thought of being afraid. She had the breakfast dishes to wash, some sweeping to do, and the dinner to get, all before twelve o'clock.

Time fled. The dishes stood in shining rows upon the pantry shelves, the broom had performed its work; and Carrie was preparing the vegetables to be boiled, when there came a faint knock at the door. Supposing it to be one of the neighbors, the little girl did not rise, but called,—

"Come in!"

He wore a long black coat buttoned to the chin, and very threadbare. His trowsers, too, were black and shiny, and much too short for him. On one foot was a boot, while the other was graced by a ragged shoe. He carried a battered silk hat in his hand. His face was long and solemn, but quite red, his eyes bleared, his hands very dirty, and altogether he was a queer-looking visitor.

"Is your ma at home, miss?" said he, in a half-whine, as he glanced sharply about the room.

"No, sir," replied Carrie, wondering why he asked; "she has gone to Underhill. Did you wish to see her?"

"Oh, no," the man replied. "I only asked out of politeness, you know," and he smiled solemnly at the little girl, and winked one eye. "No, I came on business with your pa—particular, urgant business. S'pose he's round, is he not?"

"No, sir; he went to town with mether," said Carrie.

"Now that's too bad!" exclaimed the visitor, as he seated himself, "and I've come so far to see him. But perhaps your brother or sister would do as well."

"I haven't any sisters," said the little hostess, laughing, "and my brother's over in the back lot. He'll be in by-and by, though, if he'll do."

"Well, I don't hardly believe he will, after all," said the man, shaking his head thoughtfully; "and I can't wait to-day, any way, I haint the time. But I'm terribly hungry. If I could, I'd stay for dinner, miss. However, under the circumstances, perhaps you had better give me a light lunch before I go; a piece of pie, a cup of tea, a little cold meat, or something of that sort."

"Oh, certainly; only I can't give you the meat, for we haven't it in the house," said Carria; "but I will find something." And she brought from the pantry a whole apple-pie, which she placed before him, with a knife and fork.

"If you will help yourself, I'll have the tea ready in three minutes."

"All right, my dear!" said the man, seizing the knife and drawing the pie towards him, "I will act upon your advice. The last time I took dinner with General Grant," he continued, as he cut a great piece, and began to eat, "he said to me, 'Governor, governor,' said he, 'never disregard a lady's advice;' and I have always remembered what he said; and he chuckled merrily, and nodded his head at the delicious-looking pastry before him.

Carrie wondered a little at the table manners of a man who had dined with Grant, but she steeped his tea, flavored it with rich cream and sugar, and passed it to him.

"I am not much of a hand for tea," said the man," as he drained the cup, "but my doctor says that I must drink it for my digestion. Ruined my digestion while I was in the army, you see;" and he winked solmnly. "By the way," he continued, picking up the silver teaspoon from his saucer, "have you any more of these? They are as neat a pattern as I ever saw, and odd, too. I should like to see the rest of the dozen, if you have them."

"Mother has only eleven," said Carrie, in her innocence, "and she is very proud of them; but I will show them to you."

Then she brought the little box with the precious table silver—eleven teaspoons, four tablespoons and an ancient cream jug, all pure silver and shining brightly—and placed them before her inquisitive visitor to admire.

He had finished his "light lunch." That is, the pie was demolished and the teapot empty. As the little girl handed him the treasures, he arose, took the box to the window, examined its contents with a critical eye for a moment, and then, as if rejoyful surprise, cried—

"I am right! They are the very spoons! The very same identical spoons that my friend lost when he was a boy! How lucky it is that I have found them at last!"

With these words and a very low bow, the rascal opened the door and slipped away with the spoons and a silver pitcher down the path towards the gate.

For an instant Carrie stood motionless; and then rushing after him, she shrieked:

"Give me those spoons! They are my mother's spoons, and you are trying to steal them! You are a thief, a thief! Bring them back! bring them back!"

The man, however, paid no attention to the child's cries, but ran rapidly down the path, carrying the box in his arms; and the spoons and pitcher would have been lost forever, had not a new party appeared on the scene.

Old Dan was quietly nibbling the grass near the gateway. Hearing his little mistress' voice, he looked up at the very instant that the tramp passed. What he saw about the man that disturbed him, I don't know; but erecting his head with a hoarse "Baa-a!" he shot after him like a cannon ball.

The man turned to receive him, and defend himself, but the ram struck him fairly in front, and knocked him, half senseless, flat on his back, scattering the silver in all directions.

For an instant the fellow remained sprawling in the dust, then he slowly arose, limping and groaning, and without a glance at his enemy, began to gather up his stolen spoils.

He had partly completed his task, when Old Dan, who had all this time been watching the proceeding from beneath his shaggy eyebrows, shook his long beard, and with another tremendous "Baa-a!" dashed at him again, and over he went a second time, his treasures flying from his hands.

And now began a strange battle. With cries of rage and pain, the man recovered his feet and turned upon the ram, kicking and striking at him furiously, while Old Dan, accustomed to such warfare from years of experience with the boys of the country-side, easily eluded him, and in return, butted him to the earth again and again.

The spoons and cream-pitcher were knocked hither and thither, as the combatants struggled, the road was trampled into some hing like a race-course, the air was filled with very bad language, very angry baas, and a great cloud of dust.

But after some five minutes, victory declared itself upon the side of the quadruped, and bruised and bleeding, with clothes in rags, minus hat and shoes, the vanquished man suddenly turned away, and ran limping down the road, leaving his antagonist in full possession of the field and the stolen silver.

Old Dan remained motionless, gazing after his enemy, until he disappeared around a distant turn in the road, then shaking the dust from his coarse wool, he gave utterance to a low grumble of satisfaction, and wagging his tail, returned to his dinner in front of the house.

Half an hour later as Carrie washed the coveted spoons and the bright little pitcher, and laid them carefully away once more, she told her brother the story, and how the robber was foiled; and Ned, full of enthusiasm, cried,

"We will not kill Old Dan at all, for I do not believe that father would shoot him now for a hundred dollars!"

And the boy was right. The old ram won more than he knew when he fought the tramp and conquered him. He won his master's regard, and a free, happy life for the remainder of his days.—Youth's Companion.

Helping the Teacher.

"I didn't quite get that," said Ben, edging his way nearer to the teacher. And so the teacher repeated what she had been saying.

"O, yes, I've got it now. I can tell that easy enough," and Ben settled back content.

"But why do you want to tell it, Ben?" asked the teacher.

"'Cause mother likes it, o' course. I always tell it over to her."

"If your mother likes what you get at Sabbath school, why don't she come herself?"

"Come herself! Don't you know?" and Ben looked in extreme astonishment.

"Know what?"

"Know mother can't step her foot to the ground to go anywhere. She don't never expect to again."

"I wish you had told me before, Ben, and I would have gone to her," said the teacher, with compassion in her face.

"I s'posed, of course, you knew," said Ben. It seemed to him as though all the world must know what great grief had befallen him and his mother.

"That's it, children," said the teacher, looking kindly over her class. "You little folks think we grown-up people know everything, and you don't help us to know more as often as you might."

"Well," said Ben, "I never thought I could help you any."

"But you see you might. If you had only looked out for me, I should have so liked to help you take home comfort to your mother, and doing so I should have been a better teacher, would I not? So you would have helped me do my work well."

This was a new thought to Ben, and after finding out, as the school closed, what day his teacher was most likely to come, he went home, thinking, "Catch me not looking out for her next time. I'll tell her everything I know."—Canada Presbyterian

MISCELLANEOUS.

Phenomena of the Sea.

The various tints of blue and green which constitute what may be called the proper color of sea water are due to a greater or lesser proportion of salt held in solution, the color being an intense blue when the water is very salt, and changing by degrees to a green-blue, or blue-green, and green color, as the water becomes more fresh. On the other hand, the abnormally colored, red, yellow, brown and inky seas owe their appearance to the accumulation of large masses of sea-weeds, from the gigantic algæ, which fringe the shores of oceanic islands, to the microscopic diatoms; but almost as frequently the discoloration is caused by myriads of animal organisms collected in shoals at the surface of the ocean. A discussion on the subject of the color of the sea would be incomplete if we omitted mention of a phenomenon, perhaps more striking and more beautiful than any other aspect presented to the eye of the wanderer over the trackless ocean—we mean the phosphorescence of the sea. The luminous appearances which suddenly flash up from the dark depths of the sea, and, borne along by the invisible waves, finally disappear in the distance! At one time these luminous displays take the shape of short bright flashes, and the sea seems dotted over with brilliant scintillating sparks. These are caused by a variety of small animals, chiefly crustacea. At other times we see large globes, filled with a weird, mysterious light, and which, phantom-like, rise and fall with the receding waves. These are due to the well-known medusæ, or jelly-fish. Often—and this phenomenon seems to be confined to the seas of the warmer latitudes—the waves appear crested with a white luminous foam, which in the distance melts into one continuous sea of light, fairly eclipsing the quiet splendor of the starry sky. At such times the track of the ship looks like a long avenue of intense brightness, lighting up the sails and rigging. This magnificent display is produced by a microscopic animal, known to zoologists under the name of Nocticluca. Like the Diatoms, it abounds in myriads in the surface water of the sea, and, like them, its soft living matter is encased in a glassy transparent shell. But the most dazzling displays of phosphorescence are due to Pyrosoma, a jelly-like cylindrical mass measuring from two to ten inches in length, with a diameter of from one to two inches, and forming a colony of animals. These bodies congregate in immense luminous shoals, floating near the sea-surface, and sometimes embracing the whole of the visible horizon. When fished up from the sea, and touched with the fingers, they give out a bright bluish light at the point of contact, from whence the phosphorescence is seen to spread over the whole mass, as the shock or irritation rapidly passes from one animal to the other until the whole colony is in a blaze.—Science for All.

Tennyson and Some Interviewers.

Nobody admires Tennyson's poetry more than Tennyson himself, and he is very much addicted to talking about it. He does not sink the shop when he has anybody to listen to him whom he imagines to be appreciative. An example of this—its truth is vouched for—occurred when Sumner visited Europe in 1857. Sumner had letters of introduction to the poet, and, visiting him at Farringford, began to talk of his own country and himself—he was, you know, a conspicuous egotist—but soon perceived that the topics were not interesting to Tennyson, who was equally egotistic. The American consequently changed the subject to poetry, particularly to Tennyson's poetry, whereupon the Englishman was immediately concerned, entering into the talk with extreme animation. "You have read 'The Princess,' of course," said Tennyson "as you are a man of taste and culture." The American replied that he was very familiar with it; that it was one of his favorites. The poet then went to his book-shelves—this was in his library at Farringford—took down a volume, and opening at the piece, and thrust it into his visitor's hand, with the laconic and peremptory words, "read it!" It is easy to see how embarrassing it must be for any man to read the writings of another before his face. But Sumner, who read very well, began the delicate task. He had not got through with twenty lines when Tennyson almost snatched the book from him, and saying "This is the way it should be read," began at the beginning, and never stopped until he had completed the whole. Imagine poor Sumner. He departed precipitately at the close of the bard's chanting recitation, and never dared to call again. He had been cruelly punished by his own double-edged weapon, and he never forgave Tennyson to his dying day. It would have been unhuman to forgive him.

Another anecdote equally true: During the first year of the Civil War in the United States, the late Thomas Buchanan Read (he told me the story himself) was here and was invited to meet Tennyson at an evening company. Having been introduced as an American poet, Tennyson at once entered upon the war, saying: "I have had much sympathy with your country, Mr. Read; but I have withdrawn my sympathy now. I feel bound to tell you that your country is going to perdition, and I don't mind it either. England, Mr. Read, is not with the North in this barbarous struggle." Read, nettled by such rudeness, determined to be rude in return, and retorted thus: "You need not disturb yourself, Mr. Tennyson, about my country. It can get on perfectly well without England or English sympathy. We intend to do our own fighting. You are giving yourself unnecessary uneasiness. To be plain, Mr. Tennyson, we Americans of the North don't care a fig about you Englishmen, and the sooner you learn it the more trouble you will be saved." "My rudeness," remarked Read to me, "seemed to please Tennyson. He was very polite and kind after my explosion, treating me for the remainder of the evening with distinguished consideration." Tennyson is a genuine type of John Bull. He has virtues and defects inextricably mixed, and one of his defects is inexcusable rudeness; another is prodigious egotism. He is an illustrious poet, but he is full to the lips of vanity, and is capable on small provocation, of becoming a colossal bore.

Humorous.

"You see that blessed man," said Mrs. Partington, "that preached for us last Sunday? He was first a circus rider, then a locust preacher, and now he is an exhauster."

The five year old daughter of an Eighth street family (relates the Cincinnati Breakfast Table) tha other day stood watching her baby brother, who was making a great fuss over having his face washed. The little miss at length lost her patience, and stamping her tiny foot, said: "You think you have lots of trouble, but you don't know anything about it. Wait till you're big enough to get spanked, and then you'll see—won't he, mamma?"

The Rev. T. T. Everett of Philadelphia is quite noted thereabouts for oratorical power and humor. Recently, when preaching for a charity before a large crowd, he related the story of a miser who laid by two shillings, one for a benevolent object, which he called the Lord's money, the other for himself, which he called the world's money. As he came forward to put his contribution into the box, he found but one shilling in his pocket, whereupon he said to himself as he retired from his good intentions, "What a pity it is that I have lost the Lord's shilling!"

SECULAR NEWS.

The Tarboro Southerner says it is likely Washington will have a cotton factory soon.

Tobacco from Buncombe county was sold in Danville last week at $165 per hundred, another lot at $261 per hundred, and another at $590 per hundred.—Reidsville Times.

A wagon containing seven bales of cotton, on its way to Oxford recently, caught fire from a spark from the driver's pipe, and before it could be extinguished most of the cotton was destroyed and a part of the wagon burned.—Robesonian.

The Charlotte Observer says a negro girl, about 12 years old, fell forty feet into a shaft of the Rudisill mine, and remained nine hours underground before she was rescued. She was heard, found, hauled up and she walked off apparently unhurt, to the astonishment of every one.

Gen. Hoke reports that ground was broken on Monday at University Station, on the University railroad. Twenty convicts were taken up on Monday, and are now on the work. It is intended to have the road finished by June.—Raleigh Observer.

On last Tuesday Mr. Zacharish Styron landed at one haul over nineteen thousand star fish. This is said to be the largest number of fish that was ever taken in Neuse river at a single haul. —Newbern Nut Shell.

From the Wilmington Star we learn that the deposits in the Bank of New Hanover for the year past aggregate over $800,000, supposed to be in excess of anything heretofore reached by any bank in the State. Not a dollar has been lost by bad debts in the last twelve months.

A LADY'S WISH.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters, that makes pure rich blood and blooming health. It done it for me, as you observe."

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIS NEW

ELASTIC TRUSS

An Enlarged View of the Pad.

Has a Pad differing from all others, is cup-shaped, with SELF-ADJUST'NG BALL in the center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the BALL in the Cup PRESSES BACK THE INTESTINES JUST AS A PERSON WOULD WITH THE FINGER. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure is certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail, postage paid. Circulars free.

Address, Eggleston Truss Co., Manfrs.
Or C. H. EGGLESTON CO., Chicago.Ill

45 Years Before the Public.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

LIVER PILLS,

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.
Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.
The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.
Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

IRON BITTERS, A Great Tonic.
IRON BITTERS, A Sure Appetizer.
IRON BITTERS, A Complete Strengthener.
IRON BITTERS, A Valuable Medicine.
IRON BITTERS, Not Sold as a Beverage.
IRON BITTERS, For Delicate Females.

Highly recommended to the public for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient TONIC; especially in Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Intermittent Fever, Want of Appetite, Loss of Strength, Lack of Energy, etc. It enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. To the aged, ladies, and children requiring recuperation, this valuable remedy can not be too highly recommended. It acts like a charm on the digestive organs. A teaspoonful before meals will remove all dyspeptic symptoms.

TRY IT.

Sold by all Druggists.
THE BROWN CHEMICAL CO.
BALTIMORE, Md.

dec10 236-1y-eow

Frontis & Leazar's School,

MOORESVILLE, IREDELL COUNTY, N. C.

S. FRONTIS, A. M.,
A. LEAZAR, A. M.,} Principals.

The Seventh Session of this School opened Jan. 5, 1880, under very favorable auspices, sixty pupils having reported the first week.

The healthfulness of the locality is unexcelled. Cresswell's Springs one mile distant. System of instruction thorough and exhaustive. Two Departments—Male and Female. The Sexes occupy different Halls. Superior advantages for Religious Instruction. Board $7 to $8 per month. Tuition $1, $2, $3, $4, and $4 50 per month, according to the degree of advancement. For particulars address

FRONTIS & LEAZAR,
67jan14-tf Mooresville, Iredell County, N. C.

HOMES
in Western Arkansas.

The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway offer for sale the best LANDS in the West or South-West, with healthy climate, fertile soil, and not affected by drouth. Easy terms of sale. Full information.

Apply to W. D. SLACK, Land Com'r.
Little Rock, Ark.
dec 24 694-13t

KERCHNER &
CALDER
BROTHERS
WHOLESALE GROCERS
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Molasses, Bacon and Lard.

200 Hhds. and Bbls. Cuba and Sugar House Molasses. 100 Boxes Long Clear Sides and Backs. 100 Tubs and Tces Lard. For sale by

KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

50 Gilt, Motto, Lily, Scroll, and Marble Cards, 10 cents. 60 Agents' Samples, 10 cents. U. S. CARD CO., Northford, Ct. dec 31-695-13t

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bagging, Ties and Salt.

1000 Half Rolls Bagging, 2¼, 2 and 1¾ lbs.
1000 Bdls Arrow Ties, New and Pieced.
5000 Sacks Salt.
For sale by KERCHNER & CALDER BROS.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which in at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The Vigor cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The Vigor is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

CO-PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day associated themselves together under the firm name of

BOATWRIGHT & McKOY,

For the purpose of carrying on a

General Wholesale and Retail Grocery,

AT THE OLD STANDS,

5, 7 and 8, North Front Street,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

We solicit a liberal share of the public patronage.

JOHN L. BOATWRIGHT,
THOS. H. McKOY.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 3, 1877.
oct 10 509-

DAVIDSON COLLEGE,

MECKLENBURG CO. N. C.,

1879–'80.

THE NEXT COLLEGIATE YEAR BEGINS ON THURSDAY, September 18th, 1879, and ends June 17th, 1880. It is divided by a recess of about ten days, embracing Christmas and New Year's day, into two Terms.

The necessary expenses for the entire year, exclusive of clothing, traveling expenses, and pocket money, vary from $200 to $250.

There are three fully organized Courses of Instruction:

1. The CLASSICAL COURSE, occupying four years.
2. The SCIENTIFIC COURSE, occupying three years.
3. The ECLECTIC COURSE, designed for those who do not wish to take a regular course but to pursue special studies.

A PREPARATORY CLASS, intended to fit students for the Freshman Class, is in successful operation.

Applicants for any class will be received at any time during the year.

Davidson College is on the Railroad, midway between Charlotte and Statesville.

For Catalogues and other information apply to

REV. A. D. HEPBURN, D. D.,
jan 16-532- President.

ALTAFFER & PRICE

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Sash, Doors, Blinds, Ornamental Woodwork and Builder's Hardware.

We have added new and improved Machinery to our Establishment, and are prepared to fill any orders in our line at short notice and low figures.

Church Windows Doors Pew Ends

CAPS and ARM RESTS, made in latest styles

Factory foot of Walnut St
Office on Nutt Street, near Red Cross } Wilmington, N. C.
apl 16 588-1y

H. McL. GREEN,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND AGENT FOR THE SALE OF
Ton Timber,
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Timber a specialty. Liberal advancements made on all consignments. jan 7-3m

REDUCTION! REDUCTION!

WE HAVING THIS DAY REDUCED THE prices of our

Cloaks and Dalmans

so low that it will be to the interest of everybody wanting one to look at our stock before purchasing. Our stock is very large, and we are

WE ARE DETERMINED TO SELL THEM!

You can also find a large stock of

GENT'S AND YOUTHS' CLOTHING

Ladies' and Gent's Underwear, Hosiery, Boots and Shoes, to be sold out at

GREATLY REDUCED PRICES!

Give us a call.

T. L. SEIGLE & CO.,
Opposite Charlotte Hotel,
feb 4 630 tf

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. F. HALL. OSCAR PEARSALL.

HALL & PEARSALL
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
HEAVY GROCERIES,
AND
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
No. 7 SOUTH WATER STREET
WILMINGTON, N. C.

WE ALWAYS CARRY A LARGE AND WELL SELECTED STOCK OF

Flour, Sugar and Coffees, Molasses, Salt and Fish

Hay, Corn and Oats, Tobacco, Snuff and Segars, Hoop Iron, Nails and Glue,

COTTON BAGGING and TIES.

☞ We solicit the patronage of the public, and guarantee to give satisfaction. Correspondence invited.

HALL & PEARSALL,
Wilmington, N. C.
63-1y

BUY THE BEST.

WE HAVE now on hand finished.

35 No. Top Buggies
5 Top Buggies.
10 Rockaways.

Which we are offering at reduced prices, and are daily finishing a fine and complete stock of the BEST and CHEAPEST work in the State.

Also, a fine stock of HARNESS of our own make. All work warranted as usual. Send for prices.

A. A. McKETHAN & SONS,
Fayetteville, N. C.
Oct. 21 354-t

SALT. SALT. SALT.

21,000 Sacks

Now on way from England, and a portion daily expected!

Factory Filled Fine Table,
AND
Liverpool Ground Alum.
Full Weight Guaranteed.

"WILLARD'S,"
NORTH WATER STREET,
WILMINGTON, N. C.
dec 17 623-tf

TALBOTT & SONS
Shockoe Machine Works
RICHMOND, VA.

Manufacturers of Portable and Stationary Engines and Boilers, Saw Mills, Corn and Wheat Mills, Shafting, Hangers and Pulleys, Turbine Water Wheels, Tobacco Factory Machinery, Wrought Iron Work, Brass and Iron Castings Machinery of Every Description.

Ginning & Threshing Machines a Specialty
Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.

TALBOTT'S PATENT SPARK ARRESTER
The Invention of the Age.

It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.
It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark-Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.
☞ Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
Branch Houses at Charlotte and Goldsboro.

JAMES W. JACKSON. BENJAMIN BELL.

JACKSON & BELL,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS,
Wilmington, N. C.

GOOD WORK. LOW PRICES.

We are prepared to execute in the very best style, ALL KINDS OF

PRINTING,

SUCH AS

Business Cards, Bill Heads, Letter and Note Heads, Statements, Drafts, Notes, Checks, Account Sales, Tags, Envelopes, Labels, Bills Lading, Receipts, Notices, Show Cards, Posters, Manifests, Wedding Cards, Visiting Cards, Catalogues, Pamphlets, School Circulars, Reports,

and in fact, every description of

RAILROAD AND MERCANTILE PRINTING

We have all the NEWEST STYLES OF TYPE, and execute work in a style that cannot be surpassed. Orders from our friends in the country promptly filled and delivered by express or mail.

AGENTS For the Pictorial Bible Commentator. 1,016 Pages. 475 Illustrations and Maps. The most complete and comprehensive Commentary on the entire Scriptures (in one vol.) ever published. Price, $3.75. BRADLEY, GARRETSON & Co., 64 N. 4th St., Phil'a., Pa.
oct 15 614-1y

ORGAN BEATTY PIANO
NEW ORGANS 324 Stops, 24 set Golden Tongue Reeds, 6 Octs., 3 Knee Swells, Walnut Case, warr'd 6 years, Stool & Book $90. New Pianos, Stool, Cover & Book, $143 to $325. Before you buy be sure to write me. Illustrated Newspaper sent Free. Address DANL. F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.
oct 15 614-1y

ESTABLISHED 1815.

CHAS. SIMON & SONS,
63 N. HOWARD St., BALTIMORE, Md.,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN and DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

would call special attention to their extensive stock of Dress Goods, Linen and Cotton Goods, Embroideries, Laces, Goods for Men's and Boys' wear, Corsets, Ladies' ready-made Underwear, &c., &c.

SAMPLES SENT FREE!

Also, to their

DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT.

Cloaks, Dresses, &c., made to order promptly in a superior manner, and in the latest style at moderate rates. Orders solicited. Rules for self-measurement and samples of materials, with estimate of cost, sent upon application.

All orders amounting to $20 or over, will be sent free of freight charges by Express. Parties having their goods sent C. O. D., must pay for return of the money, and if strangers to us, must remit at least one third of the amount with the order. mch 12-1y

TOBACCO.

100 BOXES MANUFACTURED TOBACCO.

SPECIALTIES:

Uncle Ned's Twist.
Queen Bee Plug.

HALL & PEARSALL.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
Charlotte, N. C.,

KEEP THE LARGEST AND BEST ASSORTED Stock of Hardware, Carriage Material and Home Furnishing Goods of any house in the South, and will

Compete in Prices,

—EITHER—

WHOLESALE OR RETAIL,

With any Market.

All we ask is an examination of our Goods and prices. We are selling Goods

VERY CHEAP FOR CASH.

We give our personal attention to the filling of orders.

BROWN & WEDDINGTON,
oct 29—616-1y P. O. Box 183.

WORTH & WORTH,
Commission Merchants,
—AND—
DEALERS IN GROCERIES.

HAVE FOR SALE.

2000 Bbls. Lime, Cement and Plaster.
1000 Tons Grate, Stove and Blacksmith's Coal.
500 Bales Eastern Hay.
1000 New and Second Hand Spirit Barrels.
100 Hhds. and Bbls. Molasses and Syrups.
50 Bales Sheetings and Yarns.
300 Bales Hoop Iron.
50 Bbls. Glue.
300 Bbls. Flour, all grades.
50 Boxes Bacon.
50 Bags Coffee.
50 Hhds. and Bbls. Sugar.
Bagging, Ties, Candles, Candy, Soap, &c.

Consignments and orders for Cotton and Naval Stores solicited.

Nov. 19 463-1y

ADRIAN & VOLLERS

CORNER DOCK and FRONT STS.,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

OFFER AT LOWEST PRICES to buyers on the spot, and all orders filled at the ruling price of the day they are received, thus giving customers sending orders direct to us the same advantage that they would have if present.

SMOKED BACON,

in hogsheads and boxes,

HAMS in TIERCES or SMALL PACKAGES,

Breakfast Strips,

Moss Pork, Fish, Mackerel, Mullets, Water Ground Meal,

SUGAR, COFFEE, SALT,

Molasses and Syrup

OF ALL KINDS.

FLOUR of all Qualities,

and over 500 different articles of Fancy Groceries.
nov 19 551-1m

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
86 North Howard Street, Baltimore, Md
Manufacture WIRE RAILING for Cemeteries, Balconies &c., Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, &c.
Also, Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, Settees, &c. &c.
mch 28 481-1y

OFFICERS AND AGENCIES

OF THE

GENERAL ASSEMBLY,

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States.

THE CLERKS.

Stated Clerk and Treasurer—Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.
Permanent Clerk—Rev. William Brown, D.D., Richmoud, Va.

THE TRUSTEES.

President—Hon. James Hemphill, Chester, S. C.
Secretary and Treasurer—Jesse H. Lindsey, Jr., Greensboro, N. C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS AND SUSTENTATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Co-ordinate Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. Richard McIlwaine, D.D., Baltimore, Md

PUBLICATION.

Secretary—Rev. J. K. Hazen, Richmond, Va.
Treasurer—C. Gennet, Esq., Richmond, Va.

EDUCATION.

Secretary—Rev. John N. Waddell, D. D., Memphis, Tenn.
Treasurer—A. F. Dodd, Esq., Memphis, Tenn.

ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

1. Sustentation—First Sabbath in January.
2. Publication—First Sabbath in March.
3. Foreign Missions—First Sabbath in May.
4. Relief Fund—First Sabbath in July.
5. Evangelistic Work—First Sabbath in September.
6. Education—First Sabbath in November

WE KEEP

PLANT'S EXTRA FLOUR, FAIRBANK'S LARD
CHOICE DAIRY BUTTER, FINE N. O. SYRUP,

And other Standard articles.

Orders solicited.

HALL & PEARSALL.

$77 A Month and expenses guaranteed to Agents. Outfit free. SHAW & Co., Augusta, Me.

North Carolina Presbyterian.

A Religious Family Newspaper: Devoted to the Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Interests of the People.

[NEW SERIES—VOL. XIII—No 633.] WILMINGTON, FEBRUARY 25, 1880. [OLD SERIES—VOL. XXIII—No. 1,253.]

The Presbyterian.

TERMS OF PUBLICATION:

One copy one year, in advance.....$2 65
If payment be delayed six months.....3 15
One copy six months, in advance.....1 60

AGENTS.

Any Minister belonging to the Synod of North Carolina is an authorized Agent for this paper.
An Agent is wanted in every congregation. If it is not convenient for the Minister to act, some other reliable person will be appointed.
A commission of 50 cents will be paid for each New subscriber of $2 65.

In making remittances money should be sent through Post Office Orders, in Registered Letters, Checks, or by Express. Post Office Orders preferred, when they can be procured without too great inconvenience. Money may be sent by any of these methods, at our risk and at our expense,—but when sent by ordinary letter, it must be at the risk of the person sending it.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C. AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

"ARAMANCHY" VS. "ALLEMANDE"

Mr. Editor:—In your issue of January 7th their appeared, under the above caption, the following communication which I have kept and away till I could get an opportunity to answer it:

A few weeks ago the reporter of Rev. C. H. Wiley's Historical Address on Alamance Church, represented him as deriving the name Alamance from Allemande, referring to a body of German settlers who originally occupied a section on that stream. This etymological derivation is plausible, and would if satisfactory, were there not historical evidence for another derivation. In Colonel Byrd's "History of the Dividing Line" (between Virginia and North Carolina), he mentions the Saxapahaw river, and says: "Not far from thence the (Trading) path crosses Aramanchy river, a branch of Saxapahaw; and about forty miles beyond that, Deep river." (Hist. Div. Line, p, 86.) The path described as passing through Haw old fields, between Eno and Saxapahaw. There is no doubt that "Aramanchy" is the same stream as Alamance. The Dividing Line was run in 1728 and Colonel Byrd died in 1744. This history was composed, probably soon after 1738—certainly before 1744, the date of his death. Now the evidence is that the first settlers, both German and Scotch-Irish, began to settle in that region between 1740 and 1750. Hence the name is older than the settlement, and could not be derived from "Allemande."

As to the change of "a" into "l," Mr. Lawson, in his History, of North Carolina, says: "As for the two consonants 'l' and 'k,' I never knew them in any Indian speech I have met withal." (p. 378). The change of the letters was probably made by the English, as being more euphonious than the Indian pronunciation. I have no clew to the meaning of the word "Aramanchy." J. R."

In the Historical Address referred to, I stated that the origin of the word Alamance is conjectured, and that it was possible if not probable, that some one Anglicised Allemande to get a euphonious term for Dutch creek or river; at all events, that this supposition was more satisfactory to my mind than that which derived the name from Aramanch or Aramanchy.

I alluded to the fact that there was an authority for this latter, and which I considered rather slender, but my time and purpose did not permit a full discussion of the subject. I have long known of this Aramanchy theory, and I confess to a desire to trace our beautiful Alamance to an Indian origin, but the more I have considered the matter the more slender has seemed the authority for such a derivation. The first American Gazetter, that of Morse, first issued in 1797, speaks of Saxapahaw river as formed by Aramanche and Deep rivers, and as far as I have been able to ascertain the Alamance is no where else thus called except in the Diary of Col. Byrd, above referred to, where it is spoken of as the Aramanchy; and this mention of Morse is of little importance as it was made more than forty years after the section examined by these waters was settled by an intelligent people, and the name of the waters well established.

As to Col. Byrd's dictum it is hard to say, in my judgment, whether it is worth anything or not. The part of his Diary in which it occurs is dated in November, 1729, and the Colonel is therein describing the country traversed by the traders from the white settlements in Virginia and North Carolina, to the towns of the Cherokees, and to Indian towns in South Carolina, a country never seen by Col. B., and probably known to him only by the accounts of the traders. From what we know of the author in his book we could easily infer that if he had heard the name Allemance, or Alamance, he would have concluded that it was wrongly called by the traders, and would have given another name of an Indian sound as the true one. He was evidently a man of enormous egotism, and entered on his work with a very contemptuous opinion of the white inhabitants of North Carolina; and in fact the whole Commission from Virginia seemed to share in his sublime assumption, and continued to run the boundary line for two Provinces after the Commissioners of one of them had withdrawn—formally and under protest—from the work. Col. B., a man of some reading, was not chary of his opinions on any subject, and we find him making Deep river a branch of the Pee Dee, freely charging that the debauchery of the Indians was due to the pernicious influence of the North Carolina traders, and asserting that the sentimental savages much preferred the elevating and refining intercourse of Virginia traffickers, and with ex cathedra certainty and assurance defending that Job's leviathon was the crocodile of the Nile. That he had heard of the Great Alamance, in what was once Orange county, before the settlements on its upper waters, and by a name sounding like his Aramanchy, is probable, though there is a possibility of a reference to one of two other considerable streams; and how come these hard facts in the way of the theory, based on the solitary dictum of Col. Byrd, that the Alamance once bore the Indian name of Aramanchy:

1. From the time when Col. Byrd wrote to the settlement of Guilford county was only 19 to 23 years, during which brief period there were no occurences in the region concerned to change the names of its natural features. The state of things existing might have continued for ages without causing a new geographical nomenclature, and certainly changes preserving the original sound, and made through carelessness, or convenience of utterance, would have been by degrees and in abbreviation. These transitions are hardly ever made by scholars, or on any principle of orthography, the habit of the masses who use the word fixing its force to suit a careless utterance, as Chowanock became Chowan, Passequanoke Pasquotank, and Saxapahaw was reduced to Haw.

2. The settlement of the upper waters of the Alamance, and of Guilford county generally, was not made by slow degrees and by diverse classes, but a homogeneous and intelligent people, in no sense adventurers, came in bodies, after, apparently, a careful study of the country and of its features and resources, took full possession of it, and need a geographical nomenclature which has remained unchanged.

3. The written instrument called a deed is so designated by way of eminence because it is regarded as a man's most deliberate and solemn act, and, as far as I have seen, the deeds for lands on the Alamance waters uniformly say Allemance, or Allamance. I have examined quite a number of the instruments from 1753 to 1759 inclusive, recorded in the office of the Secretary of State, at Raleigh, and among them one to my great-grandfather on my mother's side, for 635 acres, on which tract Alamance church was located, and there is no trace of a transition from Aramanchy.

4. Surely in the land offices of Earl Granville, from which these grants were made, something must have been known of the natural features of the country covered by them, and if there had been confusion or uncertainty in regard to them it would have appeared in some of the many deeds to various persons and different times.

Finally. Of what value in this connection is the remark of Mr. Lawson, in his history, that he had never met with the two consonants l and k in any Indian speech? My good Bro. R., for whose opinions I have a high regard, here shows the danger of taking a matter for authority merely because it is in a book. A pioneer explorer of a vast wilderness may know far less as a whole than men living after him, who have never even been on the field, but have careful surveys of it before them. In what he says above, Lawson is authority only for his own comparatively narrow observations, and Bro. R. and I know that l and k do occur in many Indian names, some of them beautiful and famous. Mr. L. was just up from that part of South Carolina where abounded words ending in ee, as Peedee, Santee, Wateree, Congaree, Gemmassee, &c., &c., and soon after he wrote his history he was murdered by Indians whose tribal name contained a k or hard c! The Tuscaroras were a powerful tribe in North Carolina, and there were Chowanock, an Indian town, and the river of the same name, now called Chowan; Coratock, now Currituck; Roanoke, called in some places, Meratook; Passequanoke, now Pasquotank; Nensecoke, now Nense; Croatan and Hatorask. Up west was the great nation of Cherokees; in upper South Carolina were the Saludas and their river; in upper Georgia and South Carolina, the Triguloos and their river, the head of the Savannah. In western North Carolina were and are Nantihala and Nolachucky; and farther west and south, Tallaloma, Tellico, Altamaha, Tallipoosa, Tallahassee, Tuskaloosa, Alabama, and across the whole country the Appalachian range of mountains, the great feature of the continent. C. H WILEY.

February 7th, 1880.

For the N. C. Presbyterian.

MISSIONARY LETTER FROM SOOCHOW, CHINA.

The condition and prospects of the work in Soochow are full of encouragement. We begin the new year with health and strength; we still feel the good effect of the few weeks of recreation we all took during last summer.

A HOPEFUL INQUIRER.

Since the writer came to China he has had about twenty applications for admission into the church. All of these were men broken down in business and in character. They wanted money, not truth. There is now one inquirer who seems to be sincere. She is a woman who has been known to the missionaries in Soochow for five years: has always acted with propriety, so far as we know. She has been living with her mother and sister, and the family, though poor, is respectable. She is now in the employ of Mrs. Davis. She seems really anxious to learn to read, and every morning spends about half an hour with Mrs. Davis and her teacher, studying the gospel of Matthew.

A COMPLETED WORK.

We have now increased facilities for our labors, as the following work has been published: The Gospel and Acts, in the Soochow dialect, with maps, illustrations, and occasional notes. An octavo edition of a thousand copies was issued recently. The five books are bound in five volumes, and also in one volume. As this work is in the living spoken language, it is much easier to learn to read it than to learn the ancient classical style of Chinese. To learn to read the classical language cannot be accomplished by a Chinese child in less than three or four years, and I have noticed children who have been in school five or six years stumbling over words in the New Testament in a way which showed that they knew not what they were reading. We have scholars who six months ago did not know a character; now they can read understandingly a great deal of the Gospel of Mark. I do not decry the use of the classical style. Though difficult, it should be learnt by all Chinese pupils who can find time to master it. But I rejoice in having the Gospel and Acts in the spoken language. The poor woman to whom I have referred could never learn to read God's precious word if she had not the translation in the colloquial. As it is, she can learn and seems determined to do so.

The children in the day school are generally poor, and their parents take them away from school and put them to learning trades before they have learned to read the difficult classical style. So that in many cases the child forgets in a year or two what he has half learned in three or four years. The wretched system of making children memorize the Chinese classics and repeat line after line of what they do not understand is good enough for those who continue their studies and learn to read intelligently what they have been taught to repeat by rote. The fact that most of the poorer classes break off the studies of their children at the most critical period is deeply deplorable. This state of affairs made me resolve either to translate the Bible into the living language or to give up the vain hope of making intelligent Christians. If a human soul has the word of God and the influence of the Holy Ghost it can grow spiritually. Without the Word growth is not to be expected. What a church without the Bible is can be seen in Roman Catholic Ireland. Compare that country with Scotland.

The work to which I have referred was published by the aid of the Presbyterian church in Salisbury, from whose bosom the writer went forth to be a missionary to the Chinese. I desire to express my warmest thanks for the timely aid which enabled me not only to publish this work, but also to print it in the best style that the Presbyterian Mission Press in Shanghai could furnish. It contains about fifty illustrations; most of these were found already prepared in the Mission Press. Several of them were engraved specially for this work, copied by Chinese wood engravers from such authors as Howe and Wm. Smith. In connection with this work I wish to give special thanks to my esteemed pastor Rev. Jethro Rumple, of Salisbury.

SCHOOLS.

In May, 1879, we opened a day school for boys. It has proved to be a success. Thirteen scholars soon entered and began to learn to read and write, and to repeat Bible verses and catechism lessons, and to sing Christian hymns. In December, 1879, we rented a small house near us and opened another school. That has seven scholars and we have a fair prospect of having more soon. As each pupil is a class by himself, our teacher cannot do justice to more than fifteen scholars. These scholars are kept by Christian teachers, who teach them to read and write, and to repeat their lessons in Christian books. Mrs. Davis hears their lessons daily, and prayers are held every day in both schools. So that the dullest child must learn the way of salvation through Christ. There are two catechisms used in teaching the children; we also have a most excellent work on the soul, and other books containing brief statements of Christian doctrine followed by short and simple prayers. These books are

TRANSLATIONS BY MISS SAFFORD.

She has, in making them, supplied a long-felt want. I do not see what we could do if we did not have them. Having spent many an agonizing hour wrestling with the difficulties of expressing Christian truth in a heathen language, I appreciate the excellence of these books. In the work before us we must have the grand truths of Christian doctrine expressed in the simplest manner. To accomplish this is no easy task. But, thanks to Miss Safford's clear judgment and patient perseverance, we have the very books that we need.

VISITORS.

The forenoon we devote to study. In the afternoon I go into the chapel and, with the native helper, preach to those who enter. Meanwhile Mrs. Davis receives the women and girls who come daily to see her. They come in great numbers; often we are compelled to fasten the door and pay no heed to the knocking; for the sitting room is full of visitors and Mrs. Davis and her female servant are busy entertaining them. Most of these are women of the middle classes of society. Not a few, however, are quite wealthy.

CROWDED ATTENDANCE ON SUNDAYS.

As the women who come during the week are informed what day of the month is our "worship day," and are invited to come and attend the services, our preaching room is filled to overflowing on Sunday. We have good audiences, and as I make a special point of preaching as well as I can to the untutored minds of the women, they pay close attention to what is said.

LARGER PREMISES NEEDED.

Mrs. Davis and I have been greatly distressed during the past few weeks because we have not room enough to seat the women who come on Sunday to hear the gospel. What shall we do? is a question that we ask often and anxiously. Men and women of the Presbyterian Church of North Carolina, what manner of hearts have ye? Here are two missionaries who have spent many months and years in studying the language and peculiarities of the Chinese. Now when we are ready to use the knowledge that has cost so much, when we would stretch out our hands to hundreds and thousands of the poor heathen women, we find our hands tied and our efforts cramped. We need larger premises. There is a place offered for sale to the missionaries. One thousand dollars would secure it. We do sorely need just such a place as this.

A SPECIAL APPEAL.

In view of the circumstances I make a special appeal to the Christian men and women in the Synod of North Carolina. The Committee of Foreign Missions in Baltimore will appropriate to this purpose the needed funds if you will make your contributions liberal enough to justify them in so doing. I appeal to you, therefore, by the love of Christ and by the urgency of this want of means to give salvation to your fellow men. Send money to the Committee of Foreign Missions.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN IN NORTH CAROLINA, pity your sisters in the heathen land. Exert yourselves to give them the word of life. A crisis is to be met. If Mrs. Davis and I can obtain larger premises at once, many thousand women will hear the gospel who otherwise will not hear it. We are in an end of the city far removed from the other missionaries, and if these women are to hear the gospel we must give it to them. Arouse your husbands and brothers and fathers and sons to a sense of their duty. Make sacrifices and lead others to make them. Let it not be that missionary women who give up cultivated society and go to spend their lives isolated from their Christian sisters shall feel that you have no sympathy with them. Encourage them while they are devoting their lives to a strange people, speaking a heathen language and striving against superstition, ignorance, indifference and sin to win their sisters to Christ. Make them know that you remember them and are determined to help them.

Cost what it may, let this appeal be met: let this work for Christ and for the heathen women of China be done—and done speedily.

JOHN W. DAVIS.

January 8, 1880.

PRESBYTERIAN HEROISM.

The very name of Scotland calls up a host of thrilling associations. More than once the patriotic activity of the General Assembly saved the Reformation in Britain, and once, at least, Presbyterianism saved constitutional liberty for mankind. When Wentworth could write to his master from Ireland, "In this island the king is as absolute as any prince in the whole world could be," when Laud could report to his royal chief that, thanks to the Court of High Commission and his omnipresent spies, no conventicle could be held in the realm without his cognizance; when Charles, with his Star Chamber, held the State where Laud held the Church, and only Mordecai sat in the gate to disturb the peace of the despots and break the monotony of despotism—then it was that Presbyterianism in Scotland spoiled the whole well laid scheme! Then came the wild outburst at St. Giles' church in Edinburgh, followed by the sublime scene in Greyfriars' churchyard, where men signed the Covenant with their own blood—scenes and acts which, in their remote consequences, took off the heads of Wentworth, Laud and Charles, and secured liberty for mankind.

Carlyle says: "The tumult in the High Church at Edinburgh spread into a universal battle, a struggle over all these realms; there came out after fifty years' struggling what we call the glorious Revolution, a habeas corpus act, free parliaments, and much else."

Macaulay writes: "To this step"—that is the attempt to enslave Scotland—"our country owes its freedom." And Hallam writes, "In its ultimate results it preserved the liberties, and overthrew the monarchy of England."

While persecution was developing Presbyterian heroism in Scotland it was peopling the wilds of America with Presbyterians; and at the first blast of the trumpet of independence they sprang to arms, every man of them; to lay down those arms only when independence had been secured. Mr. Bancroft truly says: "The first voice publicly raised in America to dissolve all connection with Great Britain came, not from the Puritans of New England, not from the Dutch of New York, not from the planters of Virginia, but from the Scotch and Irish Presbyterians." In the congress of the Declaration there was just one clergyman and he was a Presbyterian, and when the assembly wavered his eloquent voice proved a heavy weight in the scale of decision.

Nor should our Presbyterian manual lack vivid portraits of the characters which have been formed in its nursery, and have illustrated the brilliant pages of Presbyterian history. There should appear that scene in the old Bastille—a venerable man in chains, King Henry III standing near, his courtiers all around, while the king exclaims, "Recant, or I shall be compelled to give you up to your enemies. These two girls here are to be burned to-morrow." "Sire," replied Palissy, the potter, "listen to me, and I will teach thee to talk like a king. I cannot be compelled to do wrong." And Knox should be there, in many a crisis of his eventful life, as when on trial before the Queen upon a charge of treason, and reminded that he was not there to preach, exclaiming, "I am here to speak the truth; I will impugn it whose list." Melville, too, should be depicted there, sent to remonstrate with James against some of the many outrages, catching the monarch by his robes and exclaiming, "Thou God's silly vassal, there are two kings and kingdoms in Scotland—King James and King Christ Jesus, whose subject King James is, and of whose kingdom he is not king, lord nor head, but a member."

Nor should women be omitted from the record; as, for example, Charlotte de Laval, sitting by her husband, the great Admiral Coligny, on the balcony of their castle, and asking, "Husband, why do you not openly avow your faith, as your brother Andelot has done?" "Sound your own soul," was the reply, "are you prepared to be chased into exile with your children, and to see your husband hunted to the death? I will give you three weeks to consider, and then I will take your advice." She looked at him through her tears, and said, "Husband, the three weeks are ended; do your duty, and leave us to God!" And he did. There, too, should be seen Mrs. Welsh, the daughter of Knox, pleading with King James to allow her dying husband to return to Scotland and breathe once more his native air. "He may if he will conform," is the brutal reply. Gathering up the corners of her apron she answers, "Your Majesty, I will sooner keep his head here."

We are thoroughly persuaded that a more familiar acquaintance with the nature of our polity, the history of our Church, the services it has rendered to all the best interests of man, and the characters that have glorified its career, would fill especially our younger people with a new enthusiasm for all that pertains to its name, its interests and its growth in the world.—Dr. Wm. P. Breed, in Catholic Presbyterian.

SLIPPING AWAY.

They are slipping away—these sweet, swift years,
Like a leaf on the current cast;
With never a break in their rapid flow,
We watch them as one by one they go
Into the beautiful past.

As silent and swift as the weaver's thread,
Or an arrow's flying gleam;
As soft as the languorous breezes hid,
That lift the willow's long golden lid,
And ripple the glassy stream.

As light as the breath of the thistle down,
As fond as a lover's dream;
As pure as the flush in the sea-shell's throat,
As sweet as the wood-bird's wooing note,
So tender and sweet they seem.

One after another we see them pass.
Down the dim-lighted stair;
We hear the sound of their steady tread
In the steps of the centuries long since dead,
As beautiful and as fair.

There are only a few years left to love;
Shall we waste them in idle strife?
Shall we trample under our ruthless feet
Those beautiful blossoms, rare and sweet,
By the dusty way of life?

There are only a few swift years—ah, let
No envious taunts be heard;
Make life's fair pattern of rare design,
And fill up the measure with love's sweet wine,
But never an angry word!

—Selected.

ROMEWARDS.

A daughter of the Hon. Richard H. Dana, Jr., of Massachusetts, having become a pervert to Rome from attending a Romish school, a Romish paper very candidly says: "The influences of convent education have wrought this change of views, and if her family object to the way she has taken, they have themselves to thank for it. Religious instruction from a Catholic standpoint is about the first thing to find a lodgment in an imaginative mind, and Miss Dana is quite romantic and poetic in her temperament."

Thus it always is true that the Roman Church is waiting to catch all who may become dissatisfied with other churches, or are enamored of her tinsel and mummeries. She is essentially a proselyting Church, and very crafty. She always postures as the deserted mother of all who believe in Jesus Christ, and the satisfaction she evinces over any one who "gives up his heresy" is very refreshing to other people.

And thus, also, it is always true that as people lose their heart-religion and begin to substitute forms for the spirit, they set sail with a stiff breeze towards Rome. If we were going to put form in the stead of real religion—to use the Church only as a means to an end—we think we too would want to go home; for she has the traditions of age and stability, and her forms are the most imposing, her outward displays the most gorgeous. Going in that direction one would quite naturally not stop short of the extreme. Then, if we care only to use the Church for our own ends, what organization is more compact, more subservient to the central power? If a man can move upon the Bishop, or Cardinal, or Pope, what limit can be placed to his control?—Golden Censer.

GALILEE IN THE DAYS OF CHRIST.

The river from the Nazareth hills swept over all this landscape, but it embraced much more. Josephus says that there were two hundred and forty towns and villages in Galilee and fifteen fortresses. Tabor, Sepphoris and Jotapata were among them, in Christ's own district, and Safed and Cesarea Philippi within the sweep of his view. St. Mark speaks of towns, villages and farm houses on the Galilean hillsides. Not a spot of ground was left idle, and the minute division of the soil from the dense population had caused the plow often to give way to the spade. Pasture land was turned into fields, as more profitable than cattle or even flocks, which were left to graze the mountains of Syria and the barren hills of Judea. The rich, dark soil of Esdraelon bore magnificent Indian corn and wheat, and the hill-slopes on its sides were noted for their wines, and the rich yield of their olive gardens and vineyards. The rabbis, in their hyperbolical way, say that one waded in oil in Galilee. "It never suffers from want of people," says Josephus, "for its soil is rich, with trees of all kinds on it, and its surpassing fertility yields a splendid return to the farmer. The ground is worked with the greatest skill, and not a single spot left idle. The ease with which life is supported in it, moreover, has overspread it with towns and well-peopled villages, many of them strongly fortified. The smallest has over 15,000 inhabitants." The ease with which Josephus levied 100,000 Galilean troops seems to indicate a population of perhaps 2,000,000, and the general prosperity is shown in the readiness with which Herod raised a Roman contribution of one hundred talents in Galilee as compared with Judea.

The pictures in the Gospels support this description. Everywhere the scene is full of life. Busy labor enlivens the vineyard, or plows the field, or digs the garden. In the towns building is going on vigorously, the extra millstone lies ready beside the mill, the barns are filled and new ones about to be built, vineyards stretch along the terraced hillsides and outside the town are seen the whitewashed stones of the cemeteries. On the roads and beside the hedges the blind and cripple await the gifts of passers-by, laborers are being hired in the market places, and the farm servant wends homeward in the evening with his plow, the song and dance of light-hearted youth on the village green are heard from a distance, the children play and strive in open places of the towns, visitors knock at closed doors even late in the night, and the drunken upper servant storms at and maltreats the maids. From morning to night the hum of many-colored busy life everywhere rises; the busy crowd have no time to think about higher things. One has bought a field and must go to see it; another has to prove a new yoke of oxen, and a third has some other business—a feast, a marriage or a funeral. To use our Lord's words, they ate, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded, they married wives and were given in marriage, as full of the world in the ambitions, cares, labors and pleasures, as if the little moment of their lives were to last forever.—Geike's Life of Christ.

TRUTHS FOR SIXTEEN YEAR-OLD MEN.

Remember, my son, that the world is older than you are, by several years; that for thousands of years it has been so full of smarter and better young men than yourself, that their feet stuck out of the dormer windows; that when they died the old globe went whirling on, and not one man out of ten million went to the funeral, or even heard of the death.

Be as smart as you can, of course. Know as much as you can without blowing the packing out of your cylinder-heads. Shed the light of your wisdom abroad in the world, but don't dazzle people with it, and don't imagine a thing is so simply because you say it is. Don't be too sorry for your father because he knows so much less than you do. Remember the reply of Dr. Wayland to the student of Brown University who said it was an easy enough thing to make proverbs such as Solomon wrote. "Make a few," tersely replied the old man. And we never heard that the young man made any; not more than two or three, anyhow. The world has great need of young men, but no greater need than young men have of it. Your clothes fit better than your father's fit him; they cost more money, they are more stylish; your moustache is nester, the out of your hair is better, and you are prettier, O, far prettier than "pa." But, young man, the old gentleman gets the biggest salary, and his homely, scrambling signature on the business end of a check will drain more money out of a bank in five minutes than you could get out with a ream of paper and a copper-plate signature in six months.

Young men are useful, and they are ornamental, and we all love them, and we could not engineer a picnic successfully without them. But they are no novelties, my son. O no, nothing of the kind. They have been here before. Do not be so modest as to shut yourself clear out; but don't be so free that you will have to be put away to keep from spoiling. Don't be afraid that your merit will not be discovered. People all over the world are hunting for you, and if you are worth finding they will find you. A diamond isn't so easily found as a quartz pebble, but some people search for it all the more intently.—Burlington Hawkeye.

GOLD DUST.

The ill-timed truth we might have kept—
Who knows how sharp it pierced and stung?
The word we had not sense to say—
Who knows how grandly it had rung?

A man's virtues should be measured, not by his occasional exertions, but by the doings of his ordinary life.

Venture not to the utmost bounds of even lawful pleasure; the limits of good and evil join.

To most men experience is like the stern-lights of a ship, which illumine only the track it has passed.—Coleridge.

Real friendship is a slow grower; and never thrives, unless engrafted upon a stock of knowledge and reciprocal merit.—Chesterfield.

No sorrow will your heart betide,
Without a comfort by its side;
The sun may sleep in its sea-bed,
But you have starlight overhead.

—Mrs. Browning.

He who freely praises what he means to purchase, and he who enumerates the faults of what he means to sell, may set up a copartnership with honesty.—Lavater.

We ought always to deal justly, not only with those who are just to us, but likewise with those who endeavor to injure us; and this, too, for fear lest, by rendering them evil for evil, we should fall into the same vice.—Hierocles.

Every mind seems capable of entertaining a certain amount of happiness, which no increase, no circumstances alter, and entirely independent on fortune. Let any man compare his present fortune with the past, and he will probably find himself, upon the whole, neither better nor worse than formerly.—Goldsmith.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FOREIGN.

Gleaned from exchanges:

The Pope has sent a beautifully wrought pyx to the Church of St. Peter's, Hatton Garden, as an act of public recognition for the sacrilege recently committed there.

A trial of some interest is about to come on before the Leghorn Court of Assizes. The editor of a paper called the Atheist is to be tried for lesa divinita (offence against the Deity). Several distinguished advocates are engaged for the defence.

Three hundred lives were lost in Lima during the recent revolution by which Pierto became Dictator of Peru. It is said that Pierola has placed a loan of $21,000,000 with Messrs. Dreyfus of Paris, offering guano deposits as security.

Possibly to revive the zeal of the "faithful" during the present distress, a miraculous appearance of the Virgin Mary is reported from the West of Ireland, and several miraculous cures are said to have been performed. It is not stated whether she has relieved the starving poor.

Dr. Jessup says that the progress of the Gospel among Mohammedans had been greatly hindered by the latter witnessing the idolatrous mummeries of the Romish and Greek churches, and it was found very difficult to convince them that Protestants did not bow down before images or pictures.

It is announced that the congregation of St. John's Episcopal church, Dundee, hitherto under the jurisdiction of Bishop Beckles, have unanimously, and through their incumbent, applied to Bishop Gregg for admission into the Reformed Episcopal Church in the United Kingdom, otherwise called the Reformed Church of England.

There is stated to be some foundation for the rumor that the converts of the Church of Rome, headed by certain noble adherents of that faith in Great Britain, have initiated a movement for the purpose of erecting a Roman Catholic cathedral in London. The proposed structure will be raised upon the Thames embankment. The cost is estimated at a quarter of a million.

M. Ernest Renan intends giving a series of lectures in London, and is said to be now engaged in refreshing his English, in order to be able to deliver them in that tongue. It is announced that the general subject of M. Ernest Renan's forthcoming Hibbert lectures in London will be the Deterioration of Christianity in percolating through the Roman Empire.

It is noteworthy that, according to the statement of a reliable witness, the contributions to the Roman Catholic Church in the West of Ireland do not seem to have fallen off greatly, in spite of the prevailing distress. In the cathedral of Tuam the receipts are only £5 less than last year, and in the country chapels the deficiency is said to be only a few shillings in each place.

The Bombay Guardian says there has been in Cabul for centuries a professedly Christian Church, descendents of a hundred Armenian and Georgian families brought there by Nadir Shah. But the Church has been a very defective witness for the truth. On the altar of the chapel is a picture of the Virgin Mary, with candles burning before it, before which the congregation kneel when the service is read. No pictures but such as have been consecrated at Palestine or in Armenia are admitted in the chapel.

At a public meeting in Glasgow on Monday night, in connection with the Tichborne case, a letter from the Home Secretary was read, stating that the claimant's application to be allowed a Roman Catholic Bible had been before the Roman Catholic chaplain, whose necessary sanction, however, has not as yet been received. Mr. Cross was in communication with the Roman Catholic bishop of the district upon this subject. Resolutions were passed protesting against the unconstitutional rules which thus prohibited a prisoner from reading his Bible at pleasure.

A curious story is told by the Roman correspondent of the Standard in Rome as to how the Jesuits have tricked the Pope in connection with the new Vatican paper, the Aurora, recently started. The Pope, it is said, was anxious to establish a paper directly representing his views, and, of course, to be inspired from the Vatican. While the matter was under consideration a gentleman came to certain cardinals with excellent references, with proof of the possession of ample funds, and with an offer to take the commercial management of such a paper, supplying the money himself, and promising that the new sheet should represent the views of the Pope. His offer was accepted, and the paper appeared, but in a little time it began to advocate opinions utterly opposed to those of the Vatican, and the Pope had to disown it. It is now said that the Jesuits, who were anxious to launch a newspaper of their own, but knew they could not get the consent of Pope Leo, took this means of making the Pope's intended paper their own.

The North British Daily Mail says: "Bishop Cleveland Coxe has published a reply to Prof. Goldwin Smith's clarmist essay on the moral interregnum. He thinks there is no good reason for the Professor's scare. If we take Germany, which he deems no unfair test of the whole matter, we find that, whereas unbelief was predominant in that country at the close of the last century, and far into our own, in our own day not only are the devout believers of Germany the masters of her mind but the presses of England and America teem with the products of her faith, translated into English, and made the handbooks of the leading minds of our race. Is Gladstone an unbeliever? Have not successive Chancellors of England been earnest teachers in Sunday schools? Is no account to be made of such scholars as Lightfoot? Are not many scientists of England arraying themselves forcibly against the 'Agnostic School?' Now, the calm logic of Butler, which demolished the Deists, and the revival of faith in Germany, before which the Illuminati became as dead men, give us every assurance that Christianity is on the eve of fresh victories over a much less formidable school. Instead of the faith of Christ being a creed outworn, see how it has propagated itself over the world during the past fifty years. The intellect of Christendom is occupied with making glad the waste places of the earth, and has, as yet, hardly been excited enough by 'modern thought' to gird up its loins for a conflict with it. Bishop Coxe suggests that Goldwin Smith has lived so long in the 'Toilet street' of the Darwinians that he has come to believe it to be the whole world. There is a gnat in his object-glass, and no elephant in the moon is threatening our planet."

The Presbyterian.

JOHN McLAURIN, Editor.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1880.

FACTS.

We yield to no one in our attachment to Presbyterianism. Our System of Doctrine, derived directly from the Holy Scriptures, does not admit of substitution or change; our Form of Government, drawn from the same source, as at present formulated, does not invite alteration; but there is wide scope for discussion as to plans and methods, and we believe that the interests of the Church are best subserved by such a discussion. Presbyterians, of all men, claim to be free from all disposition to shackle thought where the testimony of God is not impugned, and, of all men, Presbyterians refuse to accept the commandments and traditions of men, or their modes and plans as infallible.

Presbyterianism has made progress, and is progressing. Some denominations it is outstripping in the race, but with others it is not keeping pace, and we are not content that our Church should fall into the rear of any. Nothing in our theory justifies this backwardness, nor anything, we are sure, in the Christian conduct of our people. A baptism of the Holy Spirit would cure it all, we are told. Truly, God's power is not to be limited, but are we prepared to admit that other Churches are more under the guidance and direction of the Holy Spirit than ours? May it not be possible, even though it be only possible, that we may improve in some practical directions? May not the subject be worthy of thought and worthy of a comparison of ideas? We have thought so, and ask, not unreasonably ask, that in a spirit of Christian courtesy, those who think on this matter and desire to express their thoughts may be assumed to have only the best interests of our Church at heart, and may be met in a free and full discussion of matters at issue.

We have heretofore dealt in abstract statements, and now we propose to particularize. We trust that we shall not be considered unfriendly to Presbyterianism in stating facts as they are.

Not a single Presbyterian church is to be found in the following counties of Eastern North Carolina: Currituck, Camden, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Chowan, Gates, Hertford, Northampton, Nash, Wilson, Bertie, Martin, Washington, Tyrrell, Dare, Hyde, Pitt, Greene, Pamlico, Franklin and Brunswick—21 in all. Not only is there no Presbyterian church but there is no Presbyterian preaching, with the exception, probably, of Wilson and Pitt. Take out the counties of Wayne, Duplin, Sampson, Pender, Bladen and New Hanover, in which the strength of Presbyterianism mainly lies, and in the remaining section of what may properly be called Eastern North Carolina, we find one church in Warren, one in Halifax, one in Johnston, one in Edgecombe, one in Beaufort, one in Craven, two in Carteret, one in Onslow, one in Jones, one in Lenoir and two in Columbus—14 Presbyterian churches in 32 counties, embracing nearly one-third of the State.

In this section we find the earliest settlements of the State, and yet our Church, itself early established and having, more than any other, made its impress upon the civil and educational history of the State, is comparatively unknown.

These are facts which should be considered by all the lovers of our cause, particularly by those in the Presbyteries the most deeply concerned. It is for them to say whether this state of things shall longer exist. It is high time to make an onward and extended movement in this large field, lying at our doors, a field rich in historical interest, rich in productive lands, rich in hospitality, and noted in many places for more than usual intelligence and refinement. What shall we do about it?

THE CZAR OF RUSSIA.

The Emperor of Russia is verifying the adage, "Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown." The attempt a few days since to assassinate him is the fifth from which he has escaped—from some as if by miracle. The Czar ordinarily dines at 6 o'clock, but on the evening of the 17th inst. he was detained, by one account, for a very few moments in the apartments of the Empress; by another account he was busily engaged in discussing the political affairs of the Balkan provinces with Prince Alexander of Bulgaria, who was, at the time, his guest. He had just arisen to answer a second summons to dine when the explosion occurred. The Emperor maintained his calmness of demeanor.

The accounts that come from Paris, as they appear in exchanges, are interesting, and we copy in part for our readers:

"As soons as the news got abroad the corridors were filled with an excited crowd, each member of it giving a different version of the affair. From all the private apartments poured the stream. Court chamberlains, in coats that gleamed with rich gold embroideries, hurried down from the Hall of St. George, and an army of white-capped cooks defiled from the subterranean kitchens. Court ladies, with sweeping trains and sparkling jewels, issued from their dressing rooms, and the watchmen, with their wives and families, came from their huts upon the roof. Round the statue of Alexander gathered a medley throng of officers in full uniform, maids of honor, coachmen, grooms, scullions and hundreds of the inmates of the palace, whose names are supposed to be registered by the Minister of the Imperial Household, but who are in reality as little noticed by him as the colonists who settle in Russian forests are noticed by the proprietor of the estate.

"The first impulse of all these people was to hasten to offer their congratulations to the Emperor. Their second was to return thanks for the preservation of the palace itself. In their eyes the building is sacred. The gilt cross on the cupola of the private chapel, which survived the fire of 1837, symbolizes to them the blessing which rests upon it. It was this feeling which animated the workmen by whose industry it rose again to its old magnificence. It was this feeling that caused the humblest mujik to bring their contributions to the expenses of reconstruction. The news that no damage had been sustained by the heirlooms of the palace, that the portraits were undisturbed, the imperial uniforms unsinged, the court jewels undusted, was received by the inmates with extreme satisfaction. All along the river side, between the Neva and the palace, surged a mass of the populace in sheepskins and furs, and torches flashed to and fro upon the ice. Many of the aristocracy hastened down the Newsky Prospect to offer their congratulations, but the police had strict orders to let no drovsky pass the gates. At early morning the Emperor drove to the Koran church and returned thanks to the Virgin for his fifth preservation from death."

The last sentence will strike our readers painfully. Our sympathies are with the Czar, whose troubles result from practical efforts to realize his desire to be the father of his subjects. What a life of splendid misery he leads. Surrounded day and night by armed men to prevent the assassination which he every moment dreads, without the comforts of domestic peace, and with the affairs of the empire, home and foreign, in turmoil, it is not surprising that his disposition is morose and that fears are entertained of his sanity. His daily life is thus described by a writer:

"Quiet as is the Emperor's ordinary life it has been quieter than ever during the past month. Only the earliest risers have caught sight of him walking in the Summer Gardens, chatting to some old soldier or pacing the grounds in solitary meditation. He has had little appetite for his lunch at 12, and after staying all the morning closeted with his secretary, has immediately after lunch returned to receive the visits of his Ministers. He has devoted his time impartially to the latter, now consulting with Gortschakoff and Giers, now with Valujieff and Milintin. His afternoon drives, for which people used to wait in expectant crowds along the quays, have been altogether abandoned. His dinner has occupied even less time than that of old, and while his sight has now grown too dim to permit him to work at night, he no longer takes his former zest in the rubber of whist or game of piquet that regularly brought his day to a close."

SPECIAL APPEAL.

We commend the article on our first page from the pen of Rev. John W. Davis, to our readers. The information is such as every friend of Foreign Missions will be glad to have, and the special appeal made is so direct, plain and forcible, that no words of ours can add aught to it.

PRESBYTERIAN EYE AND EAR CHARITY HOSPITAL.

We have before us the Second Annual Report of this noble enterprise, sustained by the Presbyterian Church in Baltimore, Md. It has a Board of Governors, and also one of Lady Managers from the different Presbyterian churches in the city, who visit the hospital by monthly committees regularly, and see that every department is in order. That distinguished surgeon, Dr. J. J. Chisolm, is at its head, with an able corps of assistants. This hospital never had any infancy. On the day it was opened 29 poor persons, afflicted in eye or ear, came to this temple of Presbyterian sympathy, which held out its helping hand—unlike its Catholic and Episcopal neighbors in their stately institutions—to all, white and black, Catholic or Protestant. In the past year nearly 2,500 persons have received gratuitous treatment; aggregating 64 patients daily, and for the year 19,683 calls. Then 550 operations have been performed, some for diseases and accidents of great rarity, and 92 per cent. were successful, while not one death occurred. As we look over the list of diseases treated, we marvel and thank God for such a blessed temple of Presbyterian charity. Free beds are being established.—The interest of $5,000 endows one perpetually. Any who choose to pay for treatment can do so. The corps of six physicians serve without compensation. We trust that generous contributions will flow to this work, so that it may be placed on a secure basis for all time. Gifts are solicited.

NOTES AND JOTTINGS.

We thank Rev. John W. Davis for a specimen sheet of Chinese printing of Scripture, executed by the press, the gift of H. H. Wilkinson, Esq., of Richmond, Va., to the Methodist Mission, Shanghai, China; also, for copies of the North China Herald, which—the Herald, not the Chinese Scriptures—we will try to use for our readers.

The Texas Presbyterian has entered on its fifth volume, and we are pleased to know is meeting with a fair measure of success. This pleasure we can here freely express, because though we are far from being gainers by its establishment, yet, we have both publicly and privately stated it as our conviction that no other instrumentality can do so much for the maintenance and spread of Presbyterianism in Texas as the Texas Presbyterian.

Among the latest inventions is a "Cotton Picking Shade." The Scientific American says, "the invention consists simply of a protective shade of cotton cloth, mounted on a light frame provided with wheels, which facilitate its movement along the rows of cotton to be picked." The picture represents the pickers as outside as well as under the shade, and if we know anything of the human nature of cotton pickers, we adjudge that the bulk of the cotton will be picked outside.

M. DeLesseps appears to have advanced sufficiently in his canal project to seriously raise the question among the United States authorities as to whether he shall be allowed to proceed. The French Government does not appear to have, or desire to have, a controlling or directing interest in the work, and until it takes hold the Monroe Doctrine will hardly apply.

The perversion of Rev. Arthur Wagner to Rome gives occasion for much speculation. The Christian Union has this to say:

